10. Duties with reference to leased property.—Bankruptcy of a tenant does not terminate the lease, but the tenant remains liable, and its obligation to pay rent is not discharged as to the future unless the trustee elects to retain the lease as an asset. In re Sherwoods (C. C. A. 1913) 210 Fed. 754. The trustee is not bound to assume a lease made to the bankrupt unless he thinks it will be for the benefit of the creditors; he has an option either to accept it or to abandon it. In re Chambers, Calder & Co. (D. C. 1900) 98 Fed. 865, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 537; Summerville v. Kelliher (1904) 144 Cal. 155, 77 Pac. 889. The trustee cannot be charged v obligations of the lease withou affirmative act of acceptance part. In re Frazin (1910) 18 28, 105 C. C. A. 320, 24 Am. Rep. 903. While the trustee ma election decline to continue a l the bankrupt for the benefit of tate, and thus relieve himself estate from further liability t a referee has no power to or cancellation. In re J. Sapinsky (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 523, Bankr. Rep. 416. The trustee accorded a reasonable length after his appointment in which cide whether he will take over th or not. In re Rubel (D. C. 19 Fed. 131, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. re Ells (D. C. 1900) 98 Fed. Am. Bankr. Rep. 564; In re (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 673. Wh bankrupt's landlord repeatedly i of the trustee as to when he wo render the possession, and wa to accept a surrender, having ne with a new tenant, but the trust him no information, but conti occupy the premises, held, th trustee was liable for the rents or not he had any funds in his h reimburse himself. In re Met traction & Refining Co. (C. C. 195 Fed. 226, 27 Am. Bankr. 1

If the trustee elects to assu lease, he may continue to occ premises to the end of the st term. In re Schwartzman (D. 167 Fed. 399, 21 Am. Bankr. R He will be liable for the stipulat Matter of Otis (1886) 101 N. 5 N. E. 571; Brooklyn Impr Co. v. Lewis (1910) 136 App. D 122 N. Y. Supp. 111. He will b for a share of the crops raised land, if that is among the condi the lease. Summerville v. (1904) 144 Cal. 155, 77 Pac. 88

The mere fact of the bankru a lessee does not sever the rel landlord and tenant, and the obligation to pay rent under h is not discharged as to the f his trustee abandons or does sume the lease. In re Roth & (C. C. A. 1910) 181 Fed. 667, Bankr. Rep. 588; In re Scru C. 1913) 205 Fed. 673.

If the rent was in arrear at t of the bankruptcy of the tena the landlord had not taken the sary steps to regain possession, not oust the trustee. In re Ada C. 1905) 134 Fed. 142, 14 Am. Rep. 23.

A court of bankruptcy has p restrain a landlord from int with the possession by the trus store occupied by the bankrup an unexpired lease, and which a valuable stock of goods, u trustee has had a reasonable dispose of the same, where they be removed without serious los estate, and on the giving of a protect the landlord from loss. In re Schwartzman (D. C. 1909) 167 Fed. 399, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 885.

Where the trustee continues in the temporary occupation of leased premises, without assuming the lease, the landlord is entitled to reasonable compensation for the use of the premises while so occupied by the trustee, not necessarily the sum specified in the lease, which will be chargeable as a part of the expense of administering the estate. In re Sherwoods, Inc. (C. C. A. 1913) 210 Fed. 754; Bray v. Cobb (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 270, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 788; In re Luckenbill (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 984, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 455; In re Jefferson (D. C. 1899) 93 Fed. 948, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 206; In re Grimes (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 529, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 730; In re Secor (D. C. 1883) 18 Fed. 319. If the trustee and the landlord have not made any agreement as to the amount of such compensation, the latter is entitled to recover on a quantum meruit. In re Grignard Lithographic Co. (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 699, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 101; In re Adams Cloak, Suit & Fur House (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 337, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 923. If the trustee occupies only a part of the premises, the rest having been sublet by the bankrupt, the landlord can demand rent only for the portion actually occupied. In re J. Frank Stanton Co. (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 169, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 549. Where the trustee, with knowledge of the expiration of the lease, holds over for several days, notwithstanding a notice to quit, he becomes a trespasser and is personally liable for the damages sustained. In re Hunter (D. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 904, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 477.

II. Expenditures by trustee.—Expenditures by a trustee, to be allowed by the court, must have been actually made, reasonably necessary, and beneficial to the estate, having regard, on the one hand, to economy in the administration of the estate, and, on the other hand, to the necessity of realizing all that is possible for the creditors. In re Krause (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 702, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 93; In re Criblier (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 338, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 765; Akers v. Veal (1881) 66 Ga. 302.

The trustee is allowed to incur all necessary expenses for the care and custody of the bankrupt's property so long as it remains in his hands. Gardner v. Cook (D. C. 1872) 7 N. B. R. 346, Fed. Cas. No. 5,226. Where a part of the estate consists of horses or cattle, the trustee must pay the proper charges of an agistor with whom they were pastured. In re Mitchell (D. C. 1872) 8 N. B. R. 47, Fed. Cas. No. 9,657. He must also pay the charges of an officer who had the stock in his charge under a foreclosure or attachment which was dissolved by the bankruptcy proceedings. Zeiber v. Hill (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 18,206; In re Davis (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 671, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 98.

The trustee may charge the estate with necessary office expenses of his administration, as for stationery and postage. In re Pegues (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 80, Fed. Cas. No. 10,907; In re Tulley (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 82, Fed. Cas. No. 14,235. And for the rent of an office and the wages of a bookkeeper, if shown to be necessary for the efficient administration of the estate. In re Barnes (D. C. 1883) 18 Fed. 158.

The rent of premises temporarily occupied by the trustee, under an unexpired lease to the bankrupt, for the purpose of storing the bankrupt's property or keeping it together until it can be sold, is chargeable as part of the expense of administration. In re Hunter (D. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 904, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 477.

It is the duty of a trustee in bankruptcy to pay all taxes assessed or becoming due on the property of the bankrupt while it remains in his hands for administration, and he will be allowed credit for such payments. Swarts v. Hammer (1903) 120 Fed. 256, 56 C. C. A. 92, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 691; In re William F. Fisher & Co. (D. C. 1906) 148 Fed. 907, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 404; In re Mitchell (D. C. 1878) 16 N. B. R. 535, Fed. Cas. No. 9,658. And where he finds the bankrupt to be the owner of imported merchandise, he may and should pay the customs duties on it, in order to release it from bond, and so make it available as assets. J. I. Case Plow Works v. Edwards (1898) 176 Ill. 34, 51 N. E. 618.

The estate in bankruptcy must also bear the cost of actions or proceedings properly undertaken by the trustee for the purpose of recovering assets or contesting spurious claims, but he will not be allowed the costs of unfounded and unnecessary litigation. In re Josephson (D. C. 1903) 121 Fed. 146, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 608.

In regard to paying out the money of the estate for any other purpose than that of administration expenses, the trustee must have the warrant or order of the court, and without it he acts at his own peril, as, for example, where he pays to a lien creditor his distributive share of the estate without noticing an attorney's lien upon it for services in securing its allowance. In re Rude (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 805, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 319. Claim of one employed by a corporation to investigate its operations, who after its bankruptcy reported thereon to its directors as instructed by them, held properly disallowed as a claim for compensation for services in the administration of the bankrupt estate. In re Union Dredging Co. (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed.

188. Settlement of the accounts of a trustee, with respect to a sum received by him and his counsel in settlement of a criminal prosecution and irregularly used outside the bankruptcy proceedings, approved. In re Di Cola (1914) 217 Fed. 743, 133 C. C. A. 437.

12. Employment and compensation of trustee's attorney.—Where the affairs of the estate committed to his charge are simple, and require no more than the application of intelligence and good business judgment, the trustee is not justified in charging the estate with fees for professional advice or assistance. In re Muldaur (D. C. 1875) 8 Ben. 65, Fed. Cas. No. 9,905; In re New York Mail S. S. Co. (C. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 423, Fed. Cas. No. 10,210; In re Noyes (D. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 277, Fed. Cas. No. 10,371. But where the situation of the estate is such that he really requires legal assistance, the trustee may employ counsel, and their fees for services properly and actually rendered to the trustee, to a reasonable amount, may be allowed as part of the cost of administering the estate. In re Stotts (D. C. 1899) 93 Fed. 438, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 641; In re Davenport (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 77, Fed. Cas. No. 3,587; In re Comstock (D. C. 1875) 13 N. B. R. 193, Fed. Cas. No. 3,080. This is the case where the trustee believes that certain property belongs to the bankrupt, but cannot recover it without litigation, and needs advice as to the existence of a cause of action and the probable chances of success. In re McKenna (D. C. 1905) 137 Fed. 611, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 4; In re Waterloo Organ Co. (C. C. A. 1907) 154 Fed. 657, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 752. And an attorney's bill is evidence of his services and their payment, but must be supported by proof of the occasion, necessity, and value thereof. In re Staff (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 13,-273. The trustee (at least without authority from the court) cannot retain an attorney to conduct a suit for a contingent fee. In re Brinker (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 195, Fed. Cas. No. 1,882.

13. —— Selection of attorney.—As to the choice of an attorney for the trustee, it is the policy of the bankruptcy law to leave the selection entirely to the trustee himself, subject to the authority of the court to interfere if it appears that the attorney selected is acting under improper influences or for his own advantage. In re Champion Wagon Co. (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 1004, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 51. In some jurisdictions it has been the practice to allow the creditors, when assembled in their first meeting, to elect an attorney for the trustee. In re Little River Lumber Co. (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 558. But this is wrong, and referees should not allow it. The trustee should be left free to choose his own attorney and creditors ha right to dictate to him in the n In re Columbia Iron Works (1904) 142 Fed. 234, 14 Am. I Rep. 526; In re Rusch (D. C. 105 Fed. 607, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep

Where there are disagreement tween factions of creditors as t manner of administering the esta matters in controversy between ent classes of creditors, the truste not be authorized to retain as his sel one who also represents and tinues to act for any of the cre In re Rusch (D. C. 1900) 105 607, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 565; Columbia Iron Works (D. C. 1904 Fed. 234, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. But see In re Smith (C. C. A. 203 Fed. 369, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep where it is said that the genera that a receiver may not employ t licitor of either party to the s which he is appointed is applica trustees in bankruptcy, but it is when the trustee is acting advers one of the parties that there is a propriety in his employing the c of the other; and that, in gene trustee or receiver in bankr should not employ an attorney wh resents the bankrupt, or an inter litigation having an interest adve that represented by the trustee the fact that attorneys represent itors of the bankrupt, whose int are not adverse to the estate gen does not so far disqualify them t for the trustee as to preclude a lowance for their services to the tee out of the estate.

The court may refuse to allo fee to an attorney representin trustee, when he has already bee lowed a fee as attorney for the tioning creditors, which covers services rendered to the trustee c estate. In re Carolina Cooperag (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 950, 3 Am. B Rep. 154. But while the fact th attorney had acted for the ban may affect the propriety of his em ment as counsel for the trustee, does not deprive him of the rig compensation for services actually dered. In re Dimm & Co. (D. C. 146 Fed. 402, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep

14. —— Services of trustee as ney at law.—Where the trustee is self an attorney at law, it has said that the court may, in its d tion, allow him additional compen for his services rendered in that c ity in the conduct of necessary l tion for the estate. In re Welge (1880) 1 Fed. 216. But the weig authority is the other way. The tee is not bound to place his p sional knowledge and skill at the ice of the estate, but if he does, h not have compensation therefor, cannot, in the character of a tr employ himself, in the character lawyer. In re McKenna (D. C.

137 Fed. 611, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 4; In re Muldaur (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 9,905; In re Drake (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 150, Fed. Cas. No. 4,058; In re Cook (D. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 328.

15. —— Nature of services and amount of compensation of attorney.—No compensation can be claimed by an attorney for services not rendered under the employment of the trustee, though they may have been beneficial to the estate. In re Hamburger (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 5,974. Nor for services rendered prior to the appointment of the trustee. In re New York Mail S. S. Co. (C. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 423, Fed. Cas. No. 10,210. Nor for services rendered for the petitioning creditors in the bankruptcy proceedings. Holland v. McIlwaine (1915) 223 Fed. 777, 139 C. C. A. 597. Nor for assistance in the performance of the ordinary duties of a trustee, such as making up reports, statements, and accounts. In re Averill, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 544. But a fee may be allowed where such reports or accounts cover so long a period, or involve transactions of such magnitude and complexity, as to require the services of a professional adviser. Lape's Adm'r v. Jones (Ky. 1891) 15 S. W. 658. An attorney should not be allowed a fee for conducting the examination of the bankrupt or a witness, from which no benefit to the estate has resulted, where he virtually acted for certain creditors who were his clients. In re Rozinsky (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 229, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 830.

Counsel for the trustee may be allowed a fee for trying an action to set aside an unlawful preference given by the bankrupt. In re Stearns Salt & Lumber Co. (1915) 225 Fed. 1, 140 C. C. A. 461. But not for assistance to the trustee in a preliminary search or investigation to ascertain whether a preference has been given or property fraudulently transferred. In re Cook (D. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 328. But the compensation of attorneys for a trustee in bankruptcy, in a contest between antecedent creditors suing to set aside a conveyance by their debtor, and subsequent creditors, is properly chargeable against the bankrupt estate. In re Atkins (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 639.

The trustee may retain counsel not only to prosecute actions which he brings, but also to defend suits brought against him by creditors or claimants. Gazin v. Norton (C. C. 1889) 38 Fed. 200. But he cannot charge the estate with attorneys' fees incurred in an unsuccessful attempt to retain particular property as against its equitable owner. Gillespie v. Piles (1910) 178 Fed. 886, 102 C. C. A. 120, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 502.

As to the amount to be allowed to the trustee's attorney, it will naturally vary with the circumstances of the particular case, the only general rule being that it must not exceed the reasonable value of his services, having regard to the nature of the work performed and also to the amount involved and the circumstances of the estate. In re Cook (D. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 328; In re Hoffman (D. C. 1909) 173 Fed. 234, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 19; In re McKenna (D. C. 1905) 137 Fed. 611, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 4; In re Byerly (D. C. 1904) 128 Fed. 637, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 186; In re Bignall (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 385; In re Drake (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 150, Fed. Cas. No. 4,058; In re Union Dredging Co. (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 188; In re Smith, 203 Fed. 369. The rule in bankruptcy that, where many contested suits in which amounts not extremely large are involved, attorneys for the trustees may be allowed 15 per cent. of the amounts recovered, does not necessarily apply where the very large sum is recovered, since the work done is the real thing to be paid for. In re J. M. Fiske & Co. (D. C. 1913) 209 Fed. 982. The court, in allowing compensation of attorneys, must fix the amount of compensation without reference to the fact that certain of the creditors consented to a specified allowance. In re Atkins (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 639. An allowance to counsel for bankrupt's trustee covering ordinary services held not to preclude an additional allowance for subsequent unexpected and extraordinary services, made necessary by the filing of a doubtful claim. In re Metallic Specialty Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 937.

16. —— Claim and allowance of attorney's fees.—The trustee's charges for the fees of his attorney must be included in his accounts and submitted to the meeting of the creditors. In re Hubbel (D. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 523, Fed. Cas. No. 6,820. They must be allowed or disallowed by the court of bankruptcy, which has jurisdiction to determine, in a summary manner, all questions as to the propriety of making the allowance and the amount. In re Brinker (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 195, Fed. Cas. No. 1,882; In re Noyes (D. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 277, Fed. Cas. No. 10,371. Fees payable to counsel for a bankrupt's trustee are subject to supervision by the court. In re Metallic Specialty Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 937. Attorney for trustee in successful action held not entitled to retain compensation from recovery, but bound to pay the entire recovery to the bankruptcy court, and submit to the court his claim for compensation. In re Stemper (D. C. 1915) 222 Fed. 690. A dismissal of the proceedings, though not opposed by the creditors, will not be ordered until payment of the reasonable and proper fees of the trustee's attorney. In re Salaberry (D. C. 1901) 107 Fed. 95, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 847.

17. Deposit and disbursement of funds.—The duty of a trustee in bankruptcy to deposit the funds of the estate in a depository designated by the court is imperative, and his compliance with the law in this regard cannot be waived by the consent of the creditors and all parties in interest. In re Michel (D. C. 1880) 6 Fed. 706. Though he may himself have claims against the estate, as for disbursements in cash, he cannot simply retain the amount out of funds coming into his hands, but must first deposit such funds as required. In re Kyle (C. C. 1910) 181 Fed. 617. Besides exposing himself to animadversion and possible removal from office, a trustee who omits altogether to deposit the money of the estate may be charged with interest on it, at least if the proper depository would have paid interest. In re Newcomb (D. C. 1887) 32 Fed. 826; In re Burt (D. C. 1886) 27 Fed. 548; In re Thorp (D. C. 1846) Fed. Cas. No. 14,-002.

As to the manner of making the deposit, the statute makes no explicit provision, but it was probably the intention of the legislators that the funds of each estate in bankruptcy should be separately deposited to the credit of the trustee as such, designating the estate. In re Carr (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 572, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 58; Utica Ins. Co. v. Lynch, 11 Paige (N. Y. 1845) 520.

The requirement of General Order No. 29 (ante, § 9614), that funds shall not be withdrawn from the depository unless on check or warrant, signed by the clerk of the court or by a trustee, and countersigned by the judge or a referee, or, in some circumstances, by the clerk or his assistant, is imperative, and the disbursement of money in any other manner is irregular and may subject both the trustee and the depository to liability on their bonds, as well as to attachment for contempt of court. In re Cobb (D. C. 1901) 112 Fed. 655, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 202. Even the court itself cannot violate this rule, and it has been held error for a court of bankruptcy to withdraw the proceeds of a sale of a bankrupt's property from the designated depository and have the money deposited in another bank, though it was done for the purpose of securing interest on the fund while it was tied up by litigation. Huttig Mfg. Co. v. Edwards (1908) 160 Fed. 619, 87 C. C. A. 521, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 349. For similar reasons, no state court can require a depository to pay a judgment against a trustee in bankruptcy out of the funds deposited by him. Havens v. National City Bank (1875) 4 Hun. (N. Y.) 131. But if there is apprehension that the money may be lost through the insolvency of the depository, the court may hear the suggestions of parties in interest with reference to removing it, or may do the same ex officio and without application. Ex parte Shipley (1853) 4 Md. 493.

Where an officer of a court of ruptcy deposits money in a desig depository, the same relation of or and creditor is created as i case of an ordinary bank depo that the court no longer has the jurisdiction over the money as over funds in the hands of a re or trustee, and hence it cannot marily order the payment of out of the depository after the i tion has passed into the hands superintendent of banks for liquid In re Bologh (D. C. 1911) 185 825, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 726. Pc the depository may be regarded officer of the court, and so liab misconduct in misappropriating funds, as in case of contempt, bu cannot be true of each of th ployés or servants of the bank. Southern Development Co. v. H & T. C. Ry. Co. (C. C. 1886) 2 344; In re Western Marine & Fi Co. (1865) 38 Ill. 289.

In regard to the duty of the r in countersigning checks, it is observed that this is a judicial tion and not a mere ministerial and the referee will be justified fusing his signature if he has ca believe that the amount of the is too great, or that the propose ment is fraudulent or for an i claim. In such circumstance should withhold his signature un has investigated the matter, a will not be constrained by mand In re Clark (D. C. 1874) 9 N. 67, Fed. Cas. No. 2,810; Peo Wood (1862) 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 6

18. Responsibility for negligen misconduct.—A trustee in bank is personally responsible, in an on his bond, for property of t tate converted to his own use. wold v. Watkins (1880) 20 Hun (114. In regard to the performa such duties of his office as are ministerial in character, and d involve the exercise of discretion, liable in damages to any person ed by his neglect or omission of Russell v. Phelps (1880) 42 Mic 4 N. W. 1. He is personally r sible where he allows money in the bankrupt has an interest to b out and dissipated by a bank an tain joint owners without obj when he could have prevented it. Kane (D. C. 1908) 161 Fed. 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 616.

The trustee is not allowed w or recklessly to incur costs an penses in litigation, when the ex of ordinary prudence and for would have taught him that liti was unnecessary or would fai if he does, he is personally char with such costs, and cannot cast upon the estate. Kingsbury v. ers (1889) 131 Ill. 182, 22 N. E In re Preston (D. C. 1873) 6 N. 454, Fed. Cas. No. 11,394;

Brinkman (D. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 541, Fed. Cas. No. 1,883. But the estate of the bankrupt is not liable to third persons injured by the torts, negligence, or misconduct of the trustee. Adams v. Meyers (D. C. 1870) 8 N. B. R. 214, Fed. Cas. No. 62; King v. Deitz (1849) 12 Pa. 156.

19. Authority of joint trustees.—Under former bankruptcy acts it was held that where two of the three trustees of a bankrupt enter into an agreement, in the absence of the third, the contract is not binding upon the absent trustee, unless he had previously given authority to make it, or unless he subsequently recognizes and acknowledges it. Blight v. Ashley (C. C. 1808) Fed. Cas. No. 1,541. But this rule appears to be changed by the provision of the present statute that, when three trustees have been appointed, the concurrence of at least two of them shall be necessary to the validity of their every act concerning the administration of the estate. Supra, this section, subdivision "b."

20. Accounts and reports of trustees.—It is in the power of the referee to make an order requiring the trustee to file an account, report, or statement which is due from him. In re Bellamy (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 1,266. And his obedience to such order may be compelled by the court of bankruptcy by commitment as for contempt. O'Conor v. Sunseri (C. C. A. 1911) 184 Fed. 712, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1.

Upon the final settlement of the trustee's accounts, a clear balance sheet should be presented, and proper vouchers should be filed, and the balance shown by such sheet must correspond with that shown by the statement of the designated depository. In re Carr (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 556, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 635.

The final account of the trustee is to be submitted to the final meeting of the creditors, and it should be exhibited and read to them, though they may dispense with this by vote, when the account has been on file long enough for all to inform themselves of its terms. In re Merchants' Ins. Co. (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 9,442. The referee must pass upon the accounts of the trustee, and it is his duty to examine and pass upon every item of the account, without regard to whether or not objections to particular items are raised by the creditors. In re Fullick (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 463; In re Sawyer (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 12,396. The district judge has jurisdiction to investigate the condition of the trustee's accounts on petition of a creditor, to ascertain what dividends, if any, are due and payable. In re Sand (D. C. 1822) Fed. Cas. No. 12,302.

Any person who desires to object to the decision of the referee in allowing or disallowing a particular item, whether it be the trustee himself or a creditor, should promptly file exceptions to the account as passed, and bring the matter before the judge by petition for review of the referee's rulings. In re Reliance Storage & Warehouse Co. (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 619, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 49; In re Clark (D. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 67, Fed. Cas. No. 2,810. See In re Byerly (D. C. 1904) 128 Fed. 637, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 186. But the exceptant must move promptly, or he will be deemed to have acquiesced. In re Scherr (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 695, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 794. The decision of the judge on such exceptions is also subject to review by the appellate court, but proceedings for its review must be taken in due season, and if not, the order of the court will become final and cannot be set aside or modified on motion. In re Hoyt & Mitchell (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 968, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 784.

21. Duty to furnish information.—Failure of the trustee to inform creditors of their rights and of the condition of the estate, when the suppression of facts is in the interest of one class of creditors, is good cause for the removal of the trustee. Ex parte Perkins (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 10,982.

The referee is one of those entitled to demand proper and necessary information from the trustee. In re Clark (D. C. 1871) 6 N. B. R. 194, Fed. Cas. No. 2,807. And so is the bankrupt. In re Blaisdell (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 1,488. And so is any creditor of the bankrupt even though he has not formally proved his claim. In re Samuelsohn (D. C. 1909) 174 Fed. 911, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 528. Or though he has instituted proceedings against the trustee for the reclamation of specific property. In re Saur (D. C. 1903) 122 Fed. 101, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 353.

22. Discharge of trustee.—The discharge of a trustee in bankruptcy may be effected by a written order made by the referee, but the judge has power to review and vacate such order. Brown v. Persons (1903) 122 Fed. 212, 58 C. C. A. 658, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 416.

Objections to the allowance of the account and the discharge of the trustee may be filed by any creditor who alleges fraud or embezzlement on the part of the trustee or any such mismanagement of the estate as would render him liable to be surcharged with losses or wasting of assets. In re Peabody (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 243, Fed. Cas. No. 10,866.

The court may set aside a discharge of the trustee which has inadvertently found its way into the files of the court, and may order him to proceed. Maybin v. Raymond (C. C. 1877) 15 N. B. R. 353, Fed. Cas. No. 9,338.

After receiving his discharge, and unless it is vacated, the trustee has no power to convey property which came into his hands as assets of the estate, and the mere fact that his conveyance recites that it is executed to correct a former deed gives it no additional effect. Richards v. Northwestern Coal & Mining Co. (1909) 221 Mo. 149, 119 S. W. 953. But an order made by the referee authorizing a discharged trustee to sell subsequently acquired assets is equivalent to opening the discharge or reappointing the trustee. Geisreiter v. Sevier (1878) 33 Ark. 522.

23. Closing and reopening estates.— The referee to whom the case was originally referred has jurisdiction of a petition to reopen it and may make the necessary order. Bilafsky v. Abraham (1903) 183 Mass. 401, 67 N. E. 318. Where a bankrupt has concealed property which he should have surrendered, the title thereto does not revest in him upon his discharge so as to deprive the court of jurisdiction upon the reopening of the estate. Fowler v. Jenks (1903) 90 Minn. 74, 95 N. W. 887.

A petition to reopen an estate can be filed only by one who has an interest and will be benefited thereby. In re Meyer (D. C. 1910) 181 Fed. 904, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 44. This does not include a creditor who has not proved his claim within the time allowed. In re Paine (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 246, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 351. But a petition to reopen may be filed by the original trustee in bankruptcy. In re Paine (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 246, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 351. And the bankrupt himself in a voluntary case. In re Shaffer (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 982, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 728.

As the statute provides no limitation of time within which closed estates may be reopened, the application must be made within a reasonable time, and the doctrine of laches applies if there has been unreasonable delay. Traub v. Marshall Field & Co. (C. C. A. 1910) 182 Fed. 622, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 410; In re Paine (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 246, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 351; Clark v. Pidcock (1904) 129 Fed. 745, 64 C. C. A. 273, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 309. There are no terms of court in bankruptcy, within the rule that orders may be vacated at any time during the term at which they are made. In re Rochester Sanitarium & Baths Co. (1915) 222 Fed. 22, 137 C. C. A. 560.

The granting of such an application rests very much in the discretion of the court, and its decision will not be reversed unless an abuse of discretion is shown. In re Paine (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 246, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 351; In re Goldman (1904) 129 Fed. 212, 63 C. C. A. 370, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 707. Generally the application is made on the ground of the discovery of unadministered assets, and if the sum is considerable, it will proper to reopen the case. In re I ton's Estate (D. C. 1906) 144 I 540, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 569. not if the assets in question are so considerable as not to justify trouble and expense. In re O'Con (1904) 137 Fed. 838, 70 C. C. A. 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 237; In re N ton (1901) 107 Fed. 429, 46 C. C. 399, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 52. Wher does not appear that an estate in ba ruptcy was not fully administe when closed, the court had no juris tion to open the same that the ba rupt might include certain omi creditors in his schedules. In re Sa (D. C. 1914) 210 Fed. 397.

The vacating of an order closing estate and discharging the trustee d not reinstate the original trustee in office. In re Rochester Sanitarium Baths Co. (1915) 222 Fed. 22, 137 C. A. 560. But the first step to taken on the reopening of an estat to call a meeting of the creditors, they are thereupon to elect a tru as in the first instance. In re New (1901) 107 Fed. 429, 46 C. C. A. 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 52; In re Pa (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 246, 11 Bankr. Rep. 351; In re Roche Sanitarium & Baths Co. (1915) Fed. 22, 137 C. C. A. 560. As thi a case of "vacancy" in the office trustee, it is not proper for the refe to make an appointment to that o until after the creditors have had opportunity to elect and have ei neglected to do so or failed to re an agreement. But if the referee p ceeds at once to appoint a trustee, title of the latter will not be consi ed invalid in any collateral proceed Fowler v. Jenks (1903) 90 Minn. 95 N. W. 887.

Where no creditors took the tro to prove their claims because bankrupt scheduled no assets, and was discharged and the estate clo but afterwards property was disco ed and the estate reopened, it was that the court might permit the fi of claims for a year from the dat the order for reopening the case, though the year after the adjudica had expired. In re Pierson (D. 1909) 174 Fed. 160, 23 Am. Ba Rep. 58. CONTRA, In re Meyer C. 1910) 181 Fed. 904, 25 Am. Ba Rep. 44.

The order reopening the estate d not of itself authorize the bringing a suit to recover the assets claime have been newly discovered in hands of a third person, but sin leaves the matter in the hands of referee to cause the election of a t tee and to authorize such suit, or as he shall deem proper under the cumstances shown. In re Ryburn C. 1906) 145 Fed. 662, 16 Am. Ba Rep. 514.

II. SALES OF PROPERTY BY TRUSTEES

24. Authority of trustee in general.—Before the appointment of a trustee in bankruptcy, the court has authority to order the sale of particular assets of the bankrupt if special circumstances render it necessary or desirable. In re Hitchings (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 384, Fed. Cas. No. 6,542; In re Vila (C. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 16,941. But when a trustee is appointed he becomes invested by operation of law with title to all the nonexempt property of the bankrupt and is charged with the duty of reducing the same to money. This applies to all property in the possession of the bankrupt when the proceedings were instituted. In re Union Trust Co. (1903) 122 Fed. 937, 59 C. C. A. 461, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 767.

A trustee in bankruptcy has a transferable interest in real estate owned by the bankrupt and conveyed by him in fraud of creditors, and may sell such interest, together with the right to sue to set aside the fraudulent conveyance. If he is not able to prosecute such a suit himself because he has no funds of the estate in hand and creditors refuse to contribute to the expense, it is proper for the court to authorize him to sell his inferest in the property and assign his right to sue for the benefit of the estate. In re Downing (C. C. A. 1912) 201 Fed. 93, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 228; Id. (D. C. 1912) 192 Fed. 683, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 309. A trustee's right to recover property transferred by the bankrupt as a preference is not assignable. Lovell v. Latham & Co. (D. C. 1914) 211 Fed. 374. Where a bankrupt's trustee applied to sell all the interest of the bankrupt in the estate of his father, and the referee found that there was a purchaser who was willing to give a substantial sum for the proposed transfer, and it did not plainly appear that the bankrupt had no right in his father's estate which passed to his trustee, it was held proper to authorize the sale. In re Gutterson (D. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 698, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 495. The personal medical and surgical practice and good will of a bankrupt as a physician are not subject to sale by his trustee, although his property interest in a practice and good will purchased from another may be so sold. In re Myers (C. C. A. 1913) 208 Fed. 407. Where a note becomes the property of a bankrupt estate, the title thereto cannot pass except by sale, as provided by the United States Bankruptcy Act. Segen v. Fabacher (1915) 67 So. 369, 136 La. 568. Sale by a corporation's trustee in bankruptcy of the assets and property of its business, without its good will and trade-marks, destroyed both the good will and trade-marks as things of value, and precluded the trustee from thereafter selling them as property of the bankrupt. In re Jaysee Corset Co. (D. C. 1911) 201 Fed. 779.

If the trustee fails or refuses to sell available assets for the benefit of the creditors, he may be held personally responsible. In re Jackson (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 508, Fed. Cas. No. 7,127.

The power of the trustee to sell and convey the bankrupt's estate is wholly statutory, and a sale otherwise than as the statute directs will not be valid. Wisner v. Brown (1883) 50 Mich. 553, 15 N. W. 901.

When the trustee once sells particular property at public auction, he divests himself of all title to it and an attempted second sale thereafter is entirely void. Townshend v. Thomson (1892) 60 N. Y. Super. Ct. 454, 18 N. Y. Supp. 870.

Where the bankrupt's assets include a stock of liquors, the trustee may sell them in bulk without being obliged to take out a license or pay a tax under either state or federal laws. In re Becker (D. C. 1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 225.

25. Order of court.—Except in cases of private sales, or where the property to be sold is incumbered with valid liens, the trustee may and should proceed on his own responsibility, and no order of court is necessary to authorize the sale or enable him to give a good title. In re La France Copper Co. (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 207; Hallyburton v. Slagle (1902) 130 N. C. 482, 41 S. E. 877; In re White (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 218, Fed. Cas. No. 17,531; Curdy v. Stafford (1895) 88 Tex. 120, 30 S. W. 551. A court of bankruptcy may make a standing rule or order prescribing when and how trustees' sales are to be held, and in ordinary cases the trustee needs no further or specific authority or direction. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Eno (C. C. 1888) 35 Fed. 89. But when the trustee has never gained possession of the property in question, and the title is in litigation, if such property can be sold at all, it can only be done under an order of the court of bankruptcy, made on the trustee's petition and after notice to the parties claiming adversely. Shaw v. Lindsey (1877) 60 Ala. 344; In re Ludwigson (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 8,601; Knight v. Cheney (C. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 305, Fed. Cas. No. 7,883; Stanley v. Sutherland (1876) 54 Ind. 339.

A special order of court for the sale of property by a trustee should fix the time and place of the sale, and it will be irregular and void for omitting these details. Osborn v. Baxter (1849) 4 Cush. (Mass.) 406. But it is not void because it does not fix an upset price for the property. Schuler v. Hassinger (1910) 177 Fed. 119, 100 C. C. A. 539, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 184. An order for such sale is not to be relied on as an adjudicaton that the property in question belonged to the bankrupt. Wilkins v. Tourtellott (1882) 28 Kan. 825. But a sale of personal property by a trustee in bankruptcy, acting under an order of sale issued by the court, is a "judicial sale." Carney v. Averill (1912) 110 Me. 172, 85 Atl. 494. For the purpose of making an order for the sale of property by the trustee, the referee is the court and may exercise its full powers. In re Sanborn (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 551, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 54; In re Bank of North Carolina (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 164, Fed. Cas. No. 896; In re Styer (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 290, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 424. But it is said (in the case last cited) that if the property is in the hands of a receiver at the time of the adjudication in bankruptcy, an order for its appraisement and sale can be made only by the judge sitting as the court of bankruptcy. An order for the sale of property of a bankrupt is none the less an order of court because signed by the judge. There is no practical distinction in a court of bankruptcy between an order of the judge and an order of the court, because the court in bankruptcy is always open, and whenever the judge acts, wherever he may be, the act is the act of the court. In re Mott (D. C. 1881) 6 Fed. 685. The trustee's petition for authority to sell should be filed with the referee and not with the clerk of the court. In the case of joint trustees, all should join in the petition. But in a case where the creditors irregularly elected two trustees instead of three, and the two so chosen presented a petition for authority to sell assets, and afterwards the creditors appointed a third trustee, it was held that the irregularity was cured by his joining in the petition. In re William F. Fisher & Co. (D. C. 1905) 135 Fed. 223, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 366.

The pendency of composition proceedings may prevent a sale of the bankrupt's assets, if all has been done that is necessary to make the composition effective. In re William F. Fisher & Co. (D. C. 1905) 135 Fed. 223, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 366. But the sale is not void merely because it does not follow immediately after the order authorizing it, nor even because so long a period as six years is allowed to elapse. Potter v. Martin (1899) 122 Mich. 542, 81 N. W. 424.

In a proceeding by a trustee for an order authorizing the sale of real estate in his possession, the bankruptcy court is without jurisdiction to cite into court a mortgagee of such real estate and adjudicate upon the validity of his mortgage, without his consent and over his objection. In re Henderson (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 139.

26. Sale of incumbered property.—Where the real estate of a bankrupt is incumbered by valid liens, the t may either sell the equity of re tion subject to the liens or he take possession and sell the pr free from the liens. In re Cu John (D. C. 1916) 228 Fed. 771. in the latter case, he must, befor ing, obtain from the bankruptcy an order for that purpose; and sells the property without such he can only sell it subject to t cumbrances, and the purchase take no better title than the ba had; that is, he will take on bankrupt's equity of redemptio take the property subject to the See v. Rogers (1888) 31 W. Va 7 S. E. 436; Ray v. Norseworthy 23 Wall. 238, 23 L. Ed. 116; In bane (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R Fed. Cas. No. 9,380; In re A (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 76; ware v. Hartsook's Adm'r (18 Va. 679, 3 S. E. 289; King v. B (1872) 24 La. Ann. 506; In r Clellan (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R Fed. Cas. No. 8,694; In re Stewa C. 1912) 193 Fed. 791, 27 Am. Rep. 529. One buying property bankruptcy sale, subject to the li mortgage thereon, does not there sume payment of the mortgage but he becomes the owner of the erty subject to the incumbrance. man v. Leeper (Mo. App. 1913) W. 984. Where property is thu subject to liens, by order of the of bankruptcy, it passes out of risdiction, and the state court then proceed to enforce the liens all v. Walker (1885) 26 W. Va And by ordering and confirming under a mortgage, the bankruptcy exhausts its jurisdiction, so as validate a subsequent sale un purported vendor's lien. J. M. Lumber Co. v. Lyon (1909) 5 Civ. App. 648, 116 S. W. 652.

If the trustee obtains an ord the sale of the property, but t der does not mention liens, it construed as only authorizing subject to existing valid liens. Platteville Foundry & Machine C C. 1906) 147 Fed. 828, 17 Am. Rep. 291; Ex parte City of An (1909) 82 S. C. 131, 63 S. E.

If the trustee obtains an ord the sale of the property subjec certain specified lien, or if the directs it to be made free from ified lien, in either case the sa not divest a superior lien not tioned in the order and the ho which was not made a party proceeding. In re McGilton 1872) 7 N. B. R. 294, Fed. Ca 8,798; Cain v. Sheets (1884) 7 492; Bassett v. Thackara (19 N. J. Law, 81, 60 Atl. 39. In ceeding by a trustee for an ord thorizing the sale of real estate possession, the bankruptcy cou not have jurisdiction to cite into court a mortgagee of such real estate and adjudicate upon the validity of his mortgage, without his consent or over his objection. In re Henderson (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 139. But if there is a direction to sell free from first or superior liens, the fact that inferior liens are not mentioned will not prevent their being divested in accordance with the ordinary rule governing judicial sales. McKay v. Hamill (C. C. A. 1911) 185 Fed. 11, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 164. The right of a mortgagor to redeem under Code Ala. 1907, § 5746, from foreclosure within two years does not pass to a purchaser from the mortgagor's trustee in bankruptcy. Leith v. Galloway Coal Co. (Ala. 1914) 66 So. 149.

Where other courts have taken full jurisdiction of property on which liens are asserted, the court of bankruptcy will not ordinarily interfere. In re Taliafero (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 13,736. And where it is reasonably certain that the market value of the property does not exceed the amount of the valid liens upon it, it is not the duty of the trustee to petition for its sale, nor is it a proper exercise of the court's discretion to order it sold. In re Rose (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 815, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 752; In re Foster (D. C. 1910) 181 Fed. 703, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 96; In re Union Trust Co. (1903) 122 Fed. 937, 59 C. C. A. 461, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 767; In re Mebane (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 347, Fed. Cas. No. 9,380; In re Ludwigson (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 8,601; In re Dillard (C. C. 1873) 9 N. B. R. 8, Fed. Cas. No. 3,912; In re Hahnlen (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 5,901; In re Bowie (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 628, Fed. Cas. No. 1,728. For such a course would result in no benefit to the general creditors, and would amount merely to putting through a sale for the benefit of the lien-holder, saving him the cost of foreclosure and making the expense fall unjustifiably upon the general estate. In re Cogley (D. C. 1901) 107 Fed. 73, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 731. In such a case, it is entirely proper for the court to order the surrender of the property to the lien creditor, if he will take it in satisfaction of his claim; if not, he should be allowed to foreclose on his own account. Equitable Loan & Security Co. v. R. L. Moss & Co. (1903) 125 Fed. 609, 60 C. C. A. 345, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 111; In re Rose (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 815, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 752; In re Lausman (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 647, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 186.

27. Sale free from incumbrances.—The court of bankruptcy has power and authority to order the sale of any property of the bankrupt free and clear of all liens or incumbrances then resting upon it, transferring the liens to the fund realized by the sale, or rather, transforming the lien creditors' contractual right into an equity to claim satisfaction out of the proceeds of the sale. Ray v. Norseworthy (1874) 23 Wall. 128, 23 L. Ed. 116; In re Kohl-Hepp Brick Co. (1910) 176 Fed. 340, 100 C. C. A. 260, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 822; In re Loveland (1907) 155 Fed. 838, 84 C. C. A. 72, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 18; Sturgiss v. Corbin (1905) 141 Fed. 1, 72 C. C. A. 179, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 543; In re Roger Brown & Co. (C. C. 1912) 196 Fed. 758, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 336; In re Trayna & Cohn (C. C. A. 1912) 195 Fed. 486, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 594; In re Shoe & Leather Reporter (1904) 129 Fed. 588, 64 C. C. A. 156, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 248; In re Torchia (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 576, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 188; In re United States Graphite Co. (D. C. 1908) 161 Fed. 583, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 573; In re Keet (D. C. 1903) 128 Fed. 651, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 117; In re Prince & Walter (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 546, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 675; In re Union Trust Co. (1903) 122 Fed. 937, 59 C. C. A. 461, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 767; Southern Loan & Trust Co. v. Benbow (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 514, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 9; In re Pittelkow (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 901, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 472; In re Worland (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 893, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 450; In re Mead (D. C. 1893) 58 Fed. 312; In re Kahley (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 378, Fed. Cas. No. 7,593; In re Kirtland (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 7,851; Sutherland v. Lake Superior Ship Canal, R. & I. Co. (C. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 298, Fed. Cas. No. 13,643; In re Rhodes (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 11,746; Giveen v. Smith (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 5,467; In re Barrow (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 481, Fed. Cas. No. 1,057; Foster v. Ames (C. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 455, Fed Cas. No. 4,965; In re Columbian Metal Works (D. C. 1861) 3 N. B. R. 75, Fed. Cas. No. 3,039; Meeks v. Whatley (1873) 48 Miss. 337, 10 N. B. R. 498; Blair v. Carter's Adm'r (1884) 78 Va. 621. But in order to do this, it is absolutely essential that each lien creditor whose rights may be affected should have personal notice of the trustee's application for an order directing the sale to be made in this manner, and be accorded an opportunity to present any objections he may have. Factors' & Traders' Ins. Co. v. Murphy (1884) 111 U. S. 738, 4 Sup. Ct. 679, 28 L. Ed. 582; Ray v. Norseworthy (1874) 23 Wall. 128, 23 L. Ed. 116; In re Kohl-Hepp Brick Co. (1910) 176 Fed. 340, 100 C. C. A. 260, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 822; In re Stewart (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 791, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 529; In re Saxton Furnace Co. (D. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 697, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 483; In re Gerdes (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 318, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 346; Anonymous (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 456; Ex parte Drewry (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 4,081; In re Taliafero (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 13,736; In re Major (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 8,981; In re Rowland (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 12,096; Murphy v. Factors' & Traders' Ins. Co. (1881) 33 La. Ann. 454; Meeks v. Whatley (1873) 48 Miss. 337, 10 N. B. R. 498. Unless his conduct at or after the sale may be taken as a waiver of notice or acquiescence in the order of the court, as, where he was present at the sale and raised no objections. Giveen v. Smith (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 5,467. Or where he brings trover against the trustee for the conversion of the property sold. In re Platteville Foundry & Machine Co. (D. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 828, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 291.

The actual consent of the lien creditor to a sale of the property free of liens will obviate any possible question as to the jurisdiction and power of the court. Chauncey v. Dyke Bros. (1902) 119 Fed. 1, 55 C. C. A. 579, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 444; In re Caldwell (D. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 377, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 495. But jurisdiction is based upon the court's control over the estate in bankruptcy, and the consent of a creditor is not essential to the authority of the court to decide how the property shall be sold. In re Kronrot (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 653, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 738. The referee in bankruptcy has authority, in the exercise of a judicial discretion, to order the sale of property free from liens, transferring the claims of lien creditors to the proceeds of sale, and to confirm the sale when made. In re Miners' Brewing Co. (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 327, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 717; In re Sanborn (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 551, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 54; In re Waterloo Organ Co. (D. C. 1902) 118 Fed. 904, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 427. An order to sell a bankrupt's property free of liens, being within the jurisdiction of the court, cannot be collaterally attacked. Equitable Trust Co. of New York v. Vanderbilt Realty Improvement Co. (1913) 140 N. Y. S. 1008, 155 App. Div. 723.

The mortgagee or other lienor must have notice and a hearing, but he may be brought in by a rule to show cause. In re E. A. Kinsey Co. (1911) 184 Fed. 694, 106 C. C. A. 648, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 651.

The mere fact that a lien creditor objects is not enough to prevent the court from ordering a sale free of incumbrances, if that course shall appear best for the general interests of the estate. In re E. A. Kinsey Co. (1911) 184 Fed. 694, 106 C. C. A. 648, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 651; In re Howard (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 402.

Where claimant sold certain chattels to the S. company subject to a purchase-money mortgage and the pany sold the chattels to the b subject to the mortgage, claim the absence of novation or assu of the debt, could not become itor of the bankrupt so as to o an order for a sale of the p free from liens. In re Pittsb Muddy Coal Co. (C. C. A. 191 Fed. 703.

Mortgaged chattels may be sold free of liens notwithstand fact that the mortgagee has, contract, a right to the immedis session of the goods and des avail himself of that right. F Ames (C. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. 963.

When a sale is made free of brances under order of the c bankruptcy, the purchaser wi an entirely free and unincumber Ray v. Norseworthy (1874) 2 128, 23 L. Ed. 116. And it is i rial that the proceeds of the s not be sufficient to discharge rious liens on the property or e senior lien alone. Houston Bank of New Orleans (1848) 486, 12 L. Ed. 526; In re Sanb C. 1899) 96 Fed. 551, 3 Am. Rep. 54.

If a third person becomes t chaser, the rights of the mortg other lienor are transferred to t arising from the sale, and as is extinguished, it is not necess him to take any further steps way of continuing or renewing it an v. Schnugg (D. C. 1874) F No. 9,786; Shinn v. Kemp & (1913) 73 Wash. 254, 131 Pac.

The court of bankruptcy v order the trustee to sell proper of liens, unless satisfied that terests of the general creditors advanced thereby, by the produ a fund available for their clai and above the liens, and that terests of creditors holding li not be injuriously affected. In etteville Wagon-Wood & Lum (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 180, Bankr. Rep. 307; In re Shaef C. 1900) 105 Fed. 352, 5 Am. Rep. 248; In re Styer (D. C. 1 Fed. 290, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. re Pittelkow (D. C. 1899) 92 F 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 472. See ble Trust Co. v. Vanderbilt Rea provement Co. (1913) 155 Ap 723, 140 N. Y. Supp. 1008. Th er inquiry for both the trustee court is: On what terms will th erty bring most for the creditor ject to or discharged from the brances upon it? In re Nation Co. (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 42 Cas. No. 10,045. Foreclosure o gage on bankrupt's property h to be delayed, unless sale by free from incumbrances, within able time, will produce enough bondholders in full. In re Pro

'all Paper Corporation (D. C. 1915) 22 Fed. 87.

Where a portion of the bankrupt's roperty was subject to a valid attachent lien, and it appeared that the le of the attached property by the heriff would dismember the property nd result in destroying its value, while sale of the whole property by the nkrupt's trustee would enable the reditors to obtain a better price, held roper to order the sale free from ens. In re United States Graphite o. (D. C. 1908) 161 Fed. 583, 20 Am. ankr. Rep. 573.

Where, by a prompt sale of the bankupt's assets, interest accruing on ens thereon and taxes would be savd, and the sale could be made by the rustee with less expense than by the heriff on foreclosure of the liens, and sale by the trustee would enable the state to be settled promptly, without waiting the outcome of an action by en creditors to enforce their liens, nd the bankrupt's wife had quitclaimed er dower in the property to the trusee, these facts were held sufficient to ove the court to exercise its discreion to order an immediate sale of the ssets free from the liens. In re Keet D. C. 1903) 128 Fed. 651, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 117.

Where claimants had liens on seprate portions of the property, all of hich was sold as a whole for a lump um, the referee, in proportioning the roceeds as between such liens, properly fixed the value of the various porions in accordance with a previous id for the property when offered seprately. In re Benz (1914) 218 Fed. 50, 134 C. C. A. 26.

28. What interests not divested.—Since a trustee in bankruptcy can sell o more than the bankrupt himself wned, a sale of real estate by the rustee does not bar or extinguish an nchoate right of dower therein existng in the bankrupt's wife. Porter v. Lazear (1883) 109 U. S. 84, 3 Sup. Ct. 58, 27 L. Ed. 865; In re Shaeffer (D. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 352, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 248; In re Hays (C. C. A. 1910) 181 Fed. 674, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 669; In re Angier (D. C. 1871) 4 N. B. R. 619, Fed. Cas. No. 388; Dwyer v. Garlough (1877) 31 Ohio St. 158; Kelso's Appeal (1882) 102 Pa. 7; Lazear v. Porter (1879) 87 Pa. 513, 30 Am. Rep. 380; Worcester v. Clark (1853) 2 Grant (Pa.) 84; Cooper v. Tabor (1880) 8 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 341. See Baird v. Winstead, 123 N. C. 181, 31 S. E. 390. But as it is highly desirable to make the sale free from such dower right, as the property will ordinarily bring a much better price, the wife's consent to release her dower should be obtained if possible, and in that case she may be compensated by a fair allowance out of the proceeds of the sale. Savage v. Savage (1905) 141 Fed. 346, 72 C. C. A. 494, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 599. Since in Pennsylvania a widow has dower only in the surplus of her husband's estate after payment of debts, an order directing a sale of a bankrupt's Pennsylvania real property free from liens contemplated a sale free from the inchoate right of dower of his widow, under this section, giving the trustee the rights of a lien creditor. In re Codori (D. C. 1912) 207 Fed. 784. Under the law of Pennsylvania, by which dower is an estate of the wife and not of the husband, a sale of real estate by a trustee in bankruptcy under order of the bankruptcy court, free and discharged of all liens, does not divest the property of the inchoate dower interest of the bankrupt's wife. In re Chotiner (D. C. 1914) 216 Fed. 916.

The liens of state and municipal taxes are not divested by a bankruptcy sale, even though ordered to be made free of all incumbrances. In re Gerry (D. C. 1902) 112 Fed. 958, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 459; In re Keller (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 131, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 351; Stokes v. State (1872) 46 Ga. 412, 9 N. B. R. 191, 12 Am. Rep. 588. But it seems that they may be so divested if the revenue officer or other proper representative of the state is made a party to the trustee's application for an order of sale. Meeks v. Whatley (1873) 48 Miss. 337. The purchaser at a bankruptcy sale of property on which a city had a lien for taxes takes it subject to the lien; the sale not having been free of tax liens, and the city not having had notice of the bankruptcy proceedings, or that its claim was therein adjudicated. Citizens' Savings Bank of Paducah v. City of Paducah (1914) 167 S. W. 870, 159 Ky. 583. Property of a bankrupt, sold free from all liens and incumbrances, held to have been sold free from taxes. In re New York & Philadelphia Package Co. (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 219.

Where the court of bankruptcy ordered the sale of real estate subject only to a first mortgage thereon, it was held that all other liens were divested, including a lien for taxes, and this, although a statute of the state provided that taxes should be a continuing lien on property notwithstanding a judicial sale of it, unless the proceeds of the sale were sufficient to pay them, where it further appeared that this statute was not enacted until after the creation of the first mortgage and that it was not retroactive In re Prince & Walter (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 546, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 675.

A person holding the legal title to lands, but bound under a deed of trust to account to third persons for specific interests therein, conveyed the same to his trustee in bankruptcy. No issues were framed or determined in the court of bankruptcy as between the trustee and such third persons, and at the trustee's sale, the bankrupt repurchased the lands. Held, that the sale did not divest the interests of the third persons, and that the bankrupt took the lands still burdened with the trust. Roby v. Colehour (1892) 146 U. S. 153, 13 Sup. Ct. 47, 36 L. Ed. 922.

Where certain realty was conveyed by an alleged fraudulent conveyance from husband to wife, and subsequently they jointly executed a mortgage thereon to a third party, held, that the subsequent private sale in bankruptcy of the realty in question as the property of the husband could not discharge the land from the lien of the mortgage, since the mortgage was good under the wife's title, which would remain perfect until directly impeached by the husband's creditors. Schwartz v. Kleber (Pa. 1886) 7 Atl. 209.

29. Sale of perishable property.—Where property of a bankrupt is of a perishable nature and must be disposed of immediately in order to prevent its dissipation or loss, it may be ordered sold at any time after the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, even before the adjudication, or before the appointment of a trustee. In re Kelly Dry-Goods Co. (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 747, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 528.

When the trustee has sold property as perishable, and his action is confirmed by the court on his petition, it is not necessary to state the grounds on which the property, taken as a whole, was considered to be in the nature of perishable property. Rogers v. Abbot (1910) 206 Mass. 270, 92 N. E. 472, 138 Am. St. Rep. 394.

But the court has no power to order the sale of such property unless it is in the possession of the bankrupt or the trustee or of some officer of the court appointed to take charge of it, such as the marshal or a receiver. In re Metzler (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 9,512.

An order authorizing the receiver of a bankrupt to sell perishable property consisting of produce in storage, "at public or private sale within his discretion, at current rates, without notice," will justify a sale in bulk of all the property in the hands of a warehouseman, after it has been offered in car load lots. In re Roberts (1908) 166 Fed. 96, 92 C. C. A. 80, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 573.

30. Sale of land in another district or state.—A state statute providing that lands taken in execution shall be sold in the county where the property is situated has no application to a proceeding in bankruptcy in a federal court, and a trustee in bankruptcy may conduct a sale of land in a county other than that in which the land lies. James v. Koy (Tex. Civ. App. 1900) 59 S. W. 295. And the Act of Congress of March 3, 1893, requiring sales of land to be made on the property or at the courthouse in the county where the land lies, does not apply to sales in bankruptcy proceedings. In re Brittania Mining Co. (C. C. A. 1913) 203 Fed. 450, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 4
re La France Copper Co. (D. C
205 Fed. 207, 30 Am. Bankr. Re
Robertson v. Howard (1913) 22
254, 33 Sup. Ct. 854, 57 L. Ed.

So the fact that land of a b may be situated in a state bey federal district where the proc are pending is no obstacle to c ing it into cash for the benefit estate. If the trustee has tak session, it is within the custody court of bankruptcy, and the has jurisdiction to order its s from liens. In re Wilka (D. C
131 Fed. 1004, 12 Am. Bank
727; Robertson v. Howard (19
U. S. 254, 33 Sup. Ct. 854, 57
1174, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 611;
Wells & Co. v. Sharp (1913) 2
393, 125 C. C. A. 609; Brown v (1913) 153 Ky. 452, 156 S.
The court of bankruptcy has j tion in proceedings pending court to order the trustee to s tificates of purchase of schoo owned by the bankrupt, though is situated in another state. Ro
v. Howard (1913) 33 S. Ct. 8
U. S. 254, 57 L. Ed. 1174, re judgments (1910) 109 P. 696, 588; 112 P. 162, 83 Kan. 453.

As to the place where the sale be conducted, in the case of lan other state, it has been held t trustee may hold the sale at th where he would sell any chatt is, where the estate is being s tered. Oakey v. Corry (1855)
Ann. 502. And see In re B
Mining Co. (D. C. 1912) 197 F
28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 651.

It is not necessary for the tru go in person to the place of order to be present and superin
but he may employ an auctio conduct the sale. It was so he case where the land to be so situated in Arizona, but the es bankruptcy was being administ Massachusetts. In re National Exploration Co. (D. C. 1911) 1
232, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 92.

31. Notice of sale.—The requ of notice to creditors of a p sale of the bankrupt's propert give them an opportunity to app show cause against the sale, or the time, place, or terms of sa
re Vila (C. C. 1842) Fed. C 16,941.

The only requirements as to of bankruptcy sales which the are bound to regard are to be f the bankruptcy act itself, and fore the act of March 3, 1893, ing publication of notice of sales once a week for four weel not apply. Robertson v. 1
(1913) 229 U. S. 254, 33 Sup. C
57 L. Ed. 1174, 30 Am. Bank
611; In re Edes (D. C. 1905) 1
595, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 382;
National Mining Exploration C

. 1911) 193 Fed. 232, 27 Am. Bankr. ep. 92. But see, CONTRA, In re rittania Mining Co. (D. C. 1912) 197 'ed. 459, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 651.

When the time fixed by order for the ale has expired without the sale being eld, notice to creditors and others in-erested must be given de novo before new order of sale is made. Allgair . William F. Fisher & Co. (1906) 143 'ed. 962, 75 C. C. A. 148, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 278.

In addition to this, all holders of liens n the property and claimants of in-erests therein must be served with otice or process, which must affirma-ively appear by the record, or the sale vill be ineffectual to divest their liens r interests. In re Reading Hat Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 786; Fac-ors' & Traders' Ins. Co. v. Murphy 1884) 111 U. S. 738, 4 Sup. Ct. 679, 28 L. Ed. 582; Ex parte Bryan (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 71, Fed. Cas. No. 2,061; Moorman v. Arthur (1894) 90 Va. 455, 18 S. E. 869; In re Platte-ville Foundry & Machine Co. (D. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 828, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 291. Notice to the trustee in a mortgage is enough to give jurisdic-tion over holders of the bonds secured. Equitable Trust Co. v. Vanderbilt Real-ty Improvement Co. (1913) 155 App. Div. 723, 140 N. Y. Supp. 1008. Stock-holders of a bankrupt corporation are not entitled to this notice. In re With-erbee (C. C. A. 1913) 202 Fed. 896, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 314. An adverse claimant or lien holder may waive the objection of a want of notice, and he will be held to have done so where he is personally present at the sale and interposes no objection. Keyser v. Wessell (1904) 128 Fed. 281, 62 C. C. A. 650, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 126; In re Caldwell (D. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 377, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 495.

A notice in bankruptcy, serving in a double capacity, as a notice to creditors that application for a sale of property will be made, and as notice to bidders that they may attend and offer bids, though irregular, will not vitiate the sale, if it is shown that the notice was freely advertised, and it does not ap-pear that further publicity would have produced a better bid. In re Nevada-Utah Mines & Smelters Corp. (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 497, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 409.

While the statute requires notice to be given to creditors of sales by trus-tees, it does not require notice to be given of sales by pledgees, and hence a trustee, while acting as receiver, is not chargeable for a sale of pledged collaterals under an order authorizing a public or private sale thereof, with-out notice to creditors. In re James Carothers & Co. (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 687, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 921.

32. Manner and conduct of sale.—The court of bankruptcy or the referee has discretionary power to order a private sale of the bankrupt's property, with or without notice. In re Knox Automobile Co. (D. C. 1913) 210 Fed. 569; In re Hawkins (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 633, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 49; In re Edes (D. C. 1905) 135 Fed. 595, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 382; In re Gut-terson (D. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 698, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 495. But authoriza-tion from the court or referee is strict-ly necessary, and a private sale made by the trustee without an order of the court allowing him so to sell is void. Reid v. Robrecht (1894) 102 Cal. 520, 36 Pac. 875. Compare Curdy v. Staf-ford (1895) 88 Tex. 120, 30 S. W. 551.

There is a "public" sale in bankrupt-cy, where all persons are permitted to bid, where bids are not held open ex-cept with the bidders' consent, and where notice inviting bids is publicly given, though the sale is not made by auction, and is combined with a meet-ing of the creditors of the bankrupt held for the purpose of enabling such creditors to vote on the acceptance of the bid or bids made. In re Nevada-Utah Mines & Smelters Corp. (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 497, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 409. On appeal in this case ([C. C. A. 1913] 202 Fed. 126, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 754), it was held that a sale made under an order passed at a meeting of creditors, according to a notice addressed to "creditors, stock-holders, and other parties in interest," but not inviting the public to attend and bid, was a private sale, but was justified in the circumstances of the case. It is also a permissible method of conducting a sale in bankruptcy for the trustee, under an order of court, to invite sealed bids for specified prop-erty, to be accompanied by certified checks for a certain amount, such bids to be opened in the presence of the referee on a day and at an hour named, and the property to be awarded to the highest bidder, subject to confirmation by the court, upon the hearing and determination of objections, which are directed to be filed by a certain day and appointed to be heard on a designated other day. In re Chandler (C. C. A. 1912) 194 Fed. 944, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 89. Proposals to purchase cer-tain assets of a bankrupt made to the trustee held not mere offers which pe-titioner could withdraw at any time be-fore acceptance by the trustee but con-stituted a binding contract on the trus-tee having approved the proposals and taken steps looking to a confirmation of the sale by the court. In re Lane Lumber Co. (C. C. A. 1913) 207 Fed. 762.

Section 1640, ante, requiring sales of land to be made on the property or at the courthouse in the county where the land lies, does not apply to bankruptcy proceedings. In re Britannia Mining Co. (1913) 203 Fed. 450, 121 C. C. A. 395, reversing order (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 459. The provision requiring judicial sales of land to be made on the property or at the courthouse in the county where it lies, does not apply to sales by trustees in bankruptcy. In re La France Copper Co. (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 207. A court of bankruptcy, when selling bankrupt's equitable interest in land in another state represented by certificates of purchase of school lands, is not governed by section 1640 et seq., ante, regulating generally the sale of real estate by federal courts. Robertson v. Howard (1913) 33 Sup. Ct. 854, 229 U. S. 254, 57 L. Ed. 1174, reversing judgments (1910) 109 Pac. 696, 82 Kan. 588; 112 Pac. 162, 83 Kan. 453.

A petition by the trustee to the bankruptcy court for an order authorizing a meeting of creditors, the object of the meeting being to enable the creditors to act upon any bid for certain property of the bankrupt which may be submitted at the meeting, is irregular, but yet is sufficient to authorize the referee to act upon it, and is sufficient notice that a sale is proposed. In re Nevada-Utah Mines & Smelters Corp. (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 497, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 409.

There is no specific requirement in the bankruptcy act that sales shall be made personally by the trustee, and therefore it is held to be within the power and discretion of the court of bankruptcy to appoint commissioners to make a given sale. Sturgiss v. Corbin (1905) 141 Fed. 1, 72 C. C. A. 179, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 543. Or the court may appoint an auctioneer to sell property of a bankrupt's estate in advance of any particular occasion therefor. In re Benjamin (1905) 136 Fed. 175, 69 C. C. A. 191, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 481. The trustee may also employ an auctioneer to cry the sale, but only under the authority of the court. In re National Mining Exploration Co. (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 232, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 92; In re Pegues (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 80, Fed. Cas. No. 10,907.

It is the duty of the trustee to sell the bankrupt's property with all reasonable promptness, unless all the creditors will consent to a delay. Hart v. Crane (1837) 7 Paige (N. Y.) 37. A mistake in judgment as to the proper place for the sale will not invalidate it in the absence of fraud or collusion. Hills v. Alden (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 6,507.

In pursuance of his duty to realize as much as possible for the creditors, it is incumbent upon the trustee not to sell in bulk, but to divide the property into portions, if susceptible of division, and if it will thus command a higher price; if his failure to do this results in a sacrifice of the property, the sale will be set aside. In re Lloyd (D. C. 1882) 11 Fed. 586; Chesley v. Chesley (1872) 49 Mo. 540; Smith v. Scholtz (1877) 68 N. Y. 41. A sale of a bankrupt's assets en masse for a larger sum than was bid for the property cels, under the court's order held valid. In re Haywood Wa (1914) 219 Fed. 655, 135 C. 391.

Anything like collusion or an to stifle competition will of co validate the sale but this resu not follow because of a private ment between the attorney for chaser and the auctioneer that of any other person should b $50 each time until a sign to s given. In re Ketterer Mfg. Co 1907) 156 Fed. 719, 19 Am. Rep. 638.

The property should be sold highest bidder, and a "bid" m offer by a purchaser to pay so to the trustee for the proper chased which the trustee may di among creditors. In re J. B. Cornell Co. (D. C. 1911) 186 F 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 252. The est bidder" is the one who ma highest bid in good faith. For tee is not bound to accept ev and the court will always sust in refusing bids which would ma frustrate the very object and of the sale. Gray v. Veirs (1 Md. 18. And a bid which was cepted will not give the bidd standing to complain either of jection or of a sale to anoth higher price. In re Chandler A. 1912) 194 Fed. 944, 28 Am. Rep. 89. But see In re V (1912) 197 Fed. 1, 116 C. C. 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 258.

Generally speaking, the tru bound to obtain the best possibl under the conditions attending t and will be held responsible negligence in failing to do so. Ryan (D. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 2 Cas. No. 12,182; In re Knott 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 7,893; I v. Alston (1845) 4 Ired. Eq. (39 137.

33. Terms of sale.—There is in the bankruptcy act which spe forbids the sale of a bankrupt's ty by the trustee on credit. An the act of 1867, it was held tha so made was not necessarily inv that reason alone. Traer v. (1885) 115 U. S. 528, 6 Sup. 29 L. Ed. 467.

If the trustee, without the of the court, sells the effects of tate on credit, taking the pur notes for the price, and then is atory or negligent in his efforts lect the notes that he suffers t become outlawed, he is person sponsible for the loss, wheth makers of the notes were or responsible or not. In re Newco C. 1887) 32 Fed. 826.

34. Who may purchase.—On has been employed in appraisi property cannot buy it at the tr sale in bankruptcy, either directly or through the agency of an attorney. In re Frazin & Oppenheim (C. C. A. 1910) 181 Fed. 307, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 598. The trustee in bankruptcy cannot become the purchaser at his own sale. Citizens' Bank v. Ober (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 2,731. Such a sale will be set aside; and though the trustee may not be required to lose the value of improvements made by him on the property after the sale, yet it is not enough to prevent a resale that he accounts for the value of the property at the time of the sale, if it largely appreciated thereafter. In re Hawley (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 364, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 61. But where real estate came to the trustee incumbered with liens exceeding its value, the trustee himself being one of the judgment creditors, it was held competent for the court to grant him leave to proceed in a state court to sell the property on his judgment, and to bid in his individual right at the sheriff's sale. In re Carrier (D. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 193. A sale in bankruptcy is not voidable because one of the three trustees of the bankrupt was a stockholder and officer of a new corporation organized for the purpose of purchasing the bankrupt's property, when the creditors appointed him with full knowledge of this fact, and the new company was promoted by a reorganization committee of the bankrupt's creditors for the purchase of the property, and all the stockholders of the bankrupt corporation were given full opportunity to participate. In re National Mining Exploration Co. (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 232, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 92.

There is nothing to prevent the bankrupt himself from buying any portion of his former assets when offered for sale by his trustee, if he can pay the price either out of his exempt property or out of property acquired after the adjudication; and if he does so purchase, he will take a new title, embracing all the interest which the trustee had to convey. Hallyburton v. Slagle (1902) 130 N. C. 482, 41 S. E. 877; Gates v. Fraser (1882) 9 Ill. App. 624; Udall v. School District No. 4 (1876) 48 Vt. 588; Arnold v. Leonard (1849) 12 Smedes & M. (Miss.) 258. The bankrupt may make such purchase through an attorney. Beall v. Chatham (1907) 100 Tex. 371, 99 S. W. 1116. And it does not invalidate the sale that the successful bid was made by an attorney employed by the purchaser for that purpose and that the attorney had acted as counsel for the bankrupt and also for the trustee in rendering certain legal services required locally, where he had no connection with the bankruptcy proceedings. In re National Mining Exploration Co. (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 232, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 92.

Any collusive or fraudulent combination among creditors or other bidders will be ground for setting aside the sale. In re Troy Woolen Co. (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 14,201. But when the property of a bankrupt corporation is for sale, it is perfectly proper for the bondholders, stockholders, or officers to form a syndicate or a reorganization committee or a new corporation, for the purpose of bidding on the property and acquiring it if they can fairly, and if they make no attempt to stifle or exclude independent competition. In re Pittsburgh Dick Creek Min. Co. (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 106, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 613; Schuler v. Hassinger (1910) 177 Fed. 119, 100 C. C. A. 539, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 184.

35. Rights and liabilities of purchasers.—The powers of a trustee in bankruptcy are in no sense judicial, and his acts bind only those whom he represents. In the sale of the bankrupt's estate, he acts only for the creditors who prove their claims, and in such matters he can conclude the rights of no one else. Second Nat. Bank v. National State Bank (1873) 10 Bush (Ky.) 367. A purchaser at a bankruptcy sale must take notice that nothing is sold except the bankrupt's interest. Asheville Supply & Foundry Co. v. Machin (1909) 150 N. C. 738, 64 S. E. 887. And see Whitman v. Cammack (1844) 7 Rob. (La.) 361; Shesler v. Patton (1906) 114 App. Div. 846, 100 N. Y. Supp. 286; Osborn v. Mills (Cal. App. 1913) 128 Pac. 1009. Where a bankrupt constructed an addition to a leased building on leased ground, the question whether such building constituted a fixture, or whether it was removable, as against the landlord, by a purchaser at a sale of the bankrupt's assets, could not be determined in advance of a sale and an attempt to sever. In re Gorwood (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 844, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 107. Where the trustee sells land, the title to which was acquired by the bankrupt after the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, the burden is on him and those who claim under him to show that the land equitably belonged to the bankrupt when the petition was filed. Wilkins v. Tourtellot (1882) 28 Kan. 825.

Although a sale is ordered and confirmed by the court, this is not an adjudication that the property sold belonged to the estate of the bankrupt, but only that whatever title the bankrupt had to the property legally passed to the purchaser at the sale. Chellis v. Coble (1887) 37 Kan. 558, 15 Pac. 505. That, as recited in the deed of an assignee in bankruptcy, there was an assignment to him of the property, and an order of sale, may 40 years after the discharge of the bankrupt be presumed, though there has been no actual possession of the land. Lacey v. Southern Mineral Land Co. (Ala. 1912) 60 So. 283.

A court of equity, in pursuance of justice, may set aside a sale made by a trustee in bankruptcy where it is shown that the purchaser has been innocently misled by the advertised notice of the sale. Searcy v. McChord (D. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 261; In re Mott (D. C. 1873) 1 N. B. R. 223, Fed. Cas. No. 9,879; Carney v. Averill (1912) 110 Me. 172, 85 Atl. 494. But where the purchaser was expressly informed that the trustee was selling only such title as he possessed, and knew that such title was in litigation, and that the trustee assumed no personal responsibility and did not warrant the title or salability of the property, the purchaser cannot recover the money paid therefor, when it is subsequently determined that the trustee had no interest which he could convey. In re Frasin (C. C. A. 1912) 201 Fed. 343, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 212. It is the duty of an intending purchaser at such a sale to make an independent investigation of the nature and validity of the bankrupt's title, and to follow up all inquiries which are suggested by his discovery of doubtful or suspicious circumstances, otherwise he is in no position to ask aid or relief from the court. Webber v. Clark (1891) 136 Ill. 256, 26 N. E. 360. But he is entitled to rely on an absolute compliance with the terms of the sale, and on the absolute fairness of an auction conducted under the order of the court. In re Kronrot (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 653, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 738. He is not bound to see that every particular in the appointment and qualification of the trustee has been complied with. Zeigler v. Shomo (1875) 78 Pa. 357.

The purchaser becomes so far a party to the proceedings as to give the court of bankruptcy jurisdiction to make any and all orders necessary to compel him to complete his purchase. And if he abandons his purchase, without any attempt to secure the property (transferable only on certain conditions) he will be liable for the loss on a resale. Snyder v. Bougher (1906) 214 Pa. 453, 63 Atl. 893; In re Myers-Wolf Mfg. Co. (C. C. A. 1913) 205 Fed. 289, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 572. So long as the proceedings are pending in the court of bankruptcy, as, on application to have the sale confirmed, the property is still within the control of that court, and it may give the purchaser what aid he may need. Potter v. Martin (1899) 122 Mich. 542, 81 N. W. 424. Damage to bankrupt's property after sale, but before confirmation, cannot be visited upon the purchaser. In re Finks (1915) 224 Fed. 92, 139 C. C. A. 648. But when the sale has been made, the proceeds received by the trustee, and the sale ratified by the court, it has no further jurisdiction over the property, and cannot interfere, by injunction or otherwise, to protect the purchaser against the assertion of adverse claims. He is thereafter left to himself, and must protect his own interests in any appropriate court, but cannot treat the bankruptcy cou general warrantor of title. A Crittenden (C. C. 1881) 17 F Briggs v. Stephens (D. C. 184 Cas. No. 1,873; Henrie v. He (1906) 145 Fed. 316, 76 C. C. 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 617. Th does not follow the property of tates of bankrupts into the h purchasers, but only to the h purchasers. After they have o the property, they must take it and of the possession of it. Hale (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. Fed. Cas. No. 5,912. Assets of rupt corporation having been s reorganization committee, a cou bankruptcy proceeding has no j tion to control the rights to be g such committee to stockholders old company in the reorganizati re Witherbee (C. C. A. 1913) 2 896, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 314.

Where the property sold is in action, the purchaser may su and it is sufficient evidence of thority of the trustee in ban that he acted as such, without evidence thereof. Arnold v. (1849) 12 Smedes & M. (Miss See Breakstone v. Buffalo Fou Machine Co. (1913) 79 Misc. R 141 N. Y. Supp. 159. A sale by tee in bankruptcy under order court of a stock subscription not es the legal title to the purchas may sue thereon with all the rig trustee had. Bailey v. Anders 1914) 82 S. E. 290. And where due to the bankrupt from a thi son is sold, it cannot be offse debt due from the bankrupt third person which was acquire the bankruptcy. Judson v. (1851) 6 La. Ann. 587.

Where an equity of redemption and a valid conveyance made, t chaser may maintain a suit to Davis v. Ives (1903) 75 Conn. Atl. 922.

The special short statute of tions contained in the bankrup does not apply to actions by pur to recover property or collec bought by them. Judson v. (1851) 6 La. Ann. 587.

36. Nature and extent of ti veyed.—A purchaser at a truste of the property of a bankrupt a no higher title or greater righ the bankrupt himself had in the ty sold. McKiernan v. Fletcher 2 La. Ann. 438; Wallace v. (1911) 99 Ark. 350, 138 S. W Watson v. Conrad (1893) 38 536, 18 S. E. 744; Winter, Loeb v. Montgomery Cooperage Co. 169 Ala. 628, 53 South. 905; N Willard (C. C. 1871) Fed. Ca 10,374; Converse v. Sorley (18 Tex. 515; Roberts v. W. H. Co. (1912) 86 Vt. 76, 83 Atl. 80 born v. Mills (1913) 20 Cal. Ap 128 Pac. 1009. A deed of land g uch a sale conveys only an interest in he surface of the land, where the bankrupt had previously conveyed by a recorded deed the coal and other minerals underlying it. Catlin Coal Co. v. Lloyd (1899) 180 Ill. 398, 54 N. E. 214, 72 Am. St. Rep. 216. Where the tenant of a building places fixtures therein, the purchaser of the same from his trustee in bankruptcy acquires only such right to remove the fixtures as the tenant may have had. Jacob v. Kellogg (1907) 56 Misc. Rep. 661, 107 N. Y. Supp. 713. See Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church v. Vedder (1913) 80 Misc. Rep. 541, 142 N. Y. Supp. 870. Conveyance by the trustee of a bankrupt in which the only property described was real estate held not to convey a band house on the property which to the knowledge of the grantee belonged to another. Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church v. Vedder (1913) 142 N. Y. S. 870, 80 Misc. Rep. 541. Evidence held insufficient to show that a sale of a corporation's property by its trustee in bankruptcy included a certain warehouse and its equipment, or that the buyer had any reasonable cause to suppose they had bought it. Union Trading Co. v. Drach (Colo. 1915) 146 P. 767.

One who buys land from a trustee in bankruptcy knowing that the bankrupt held the land in trust for another, though by a deed absolute in form, acquires no title on which he can maintain a writ of entry. Faxon v. Folvey (1872) 110 Mass. 392.

One who buys the bankrupt's interest in a contract for the conveyance of land to him has all the rights therein which the bankrupt would have had but for the bankruptcy. Harriman v. Tyndale (1904) 184 Mass. 534, 69 N. E. 353. And a sale by the trustee of land held in trust by the bankrupt to secure debts due to himself passes to the purchaser the debts secured as well as the legal estate in the land, and entitles him to possession until the debts are paid. Green v. Green (1878) 79 N. C. 343.

The purchaser acquires whatever title the bankrupt had in the land at the time of the sale, and if the bankrupt acquired any better or different title from the time of the adjudication in bankruptcy to the time the sale was made, that title inures to the benefit of the purchaser. McAlpine v. Tourtelotte (C. C. 1885) 24 Fed. 69. Under Revisal N. C. 1905, § 983, and this section, a sale by trustee in bankruptcy of property bought by the bankrupt under an unrecorded conditional sale contract passes title as against seller. Hinton v. Williams (N. C. 1915) 86 S. E. 994. But it is otherwise as to a title vesting in the bankrupt by devise after the sale. Wilson v. Dresser (1894) 152 Ill. 387, 38 N. E. 888.

A purchaser of property at a bankruptcy sale takes it subject to all the equities with which it was chargeable in the hands of the bankrupt. Renick v. Dawson (1881) 55 Tex. 102; Baker v. Vining (1849) 30 Me. 121, 50 Am. Dec. 617; Anderson v. Miller (1846) 7 Smedes & M. (Miss.) 586; Steadman v. Taylor (1877) 77 N. C. 134. Where, pending suit to subject to the rights of creditors a bankrupt's interest in his mother's estate, such interest was purchased by defendants from the bankrupt's trustee, the purchase was subject and not superior to the rights of such creditors. Collier v. Seward & Roper (Va. 1914) 82 S. E. 100.

Unless the court of bankruptcy orders the property sold free of incumbrances, the purchaser will take it subject to all valid and recorded liens, that is, he will take only the equity of redemption, and the holder of a mortgage or other lien may proceed to enforce it against such purchaser. In re Reading Hat Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 786; In re Wylie (1907) 153 Fed. 281, 82 C. C. A. 411, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 503; In re Allin (D. C. 1882) 12 Fed. 433; Bucknam v. Dunn (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 470, Fed. Cas. No. 2.096; In re Cooper (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 178, Fed. Cas. No. 3,190; Horkan v. Eason (1912) 10 Ga. App. 236, 73 S. E. 352; Owen v. Potter (1898) 115 Mich. 556, 73 N. W. 977. One by buying property at the sale of a trustee in bankruptcy, subject to the lien of a mortgage thereon, does not assume payment of the mortgage debt, but becomes owner of the property subject to the incumbrance. Kerman v. Leeper (1913) 157 S. W. 984, 172 Mo. App. 286. The purchaser will have the right to redeem from a mortgage or other lien or from a sale on foreclosure thereof. Greene v. Taylor (1889) 132 U. S. 415, 10 Sup. Ct. 138, 33 L. Ed. 411. Since the trustee in bankruptcy takes the property of the bankrupt with all the equities impressed on it by the bankrupt and with the equities in the bankrupt's favor, a purchaser from the bankrupt assumes no obligation not enforceable against the bankrupt. Consolidated Arizona Smelting Co. v. Hinchman (1914) 212 Fed. 813, 129 C. C. A. 267, reversing decree Hinchman v. Consolidated Arizona Smelting Co. (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 907.

The purchaser will be protected against a prior unrecorded deed of the bankrupt if he has no notice of it and is not chargeable with knowledge of facts sufficient to put him on inquiry. Webber v. Clark (1891) 136 Ill. 256, 26 N. E. 360, 32 N. E. 748; Holbrook v. Dickenson (1870) 56 Ill. 497. But see Hinchman v. Consolidated Arizona Smelting Co. (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 907, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 893. But an announcement made at the sale, concerning the existence of an unrecorded mortgage or deed, will charge the purchaser with notice. Roberts v. W. H. Hughes Co. (1912) 86 Vt. 76, 83 Atl. 807. And where the order of court directing the sale authorizes the trustee to sell only the right, title, and interest of the bankrupt in the property and to convey by a quitclaim deed, a purchaser who has actual notice of an agreement made by the bankrupt and binding him to pay certain royalties on mining operations conducted on the land to the former owner, the same constituting a covenant running with the land, will take subject to the same and not free from it. Hinchman v. Consolidated Arizona Smelting Co. (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 907, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 893. But if a previous conveyance, transfer, or assignment of the property in question, made by the bankrupt, is voidable under the bankruptcy law as having been preferential or as made in fraud of creditors, the purchaser of the property at the trustee's sale of it will succeed to the trustee's right to vacate or annul such transfer or assignment, and may maintain an appropriate action to do so. In re Downing (C. C. A. 1912) 201 Fed. 93, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 228; Bryan v. Madden (1903) 79 App. Div. 636, 80 N. Y. Supp. 1131; s. c. (1905) 109 App. Div. 876, 96 N. Y. Supp. 465; Dwinel v. Perley (1850) 32 Me. 197; Bartles v. Gibson (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 293. But see Annis v. Butterfield (1904) 99 Me. 181, 58 Atl. 898; Belding-Hall Mfg. Co. v. Mercer & Ferdon Lumber Co. (C. C. A. 1909) 175 Fed. 335, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 595.

Whatever title the purchaser takes, it is understood to be absolute and final, and not provisional or defeasible. The court has no power to deprive him of whatever rights he may acquire by his purchase, and therefore cannot grant leave to a creditor of the estate, or to any one else, to redeem from the sale on reimbursing the purchaser. In re Novak (D. C. 1901) 111 Fed. 978, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 267.

The purchaser will be entitled to the rents and profits of real property purchased from the day of the sale, and not merely from the date of its confirmation. Hall v. Scovel (D. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 295, Fed. Cas. No. 5,945. A bankrupt corporation was the owner of a valuable lease on the property which it occupied, subject to a mortgage on the fee given by the lessor. The lease contained a provision giving the lessee the right to apply the rent in payment of the taxes on the property and the interest and principal of the mortgage, and so far as the rent had been paid it had been so applied. The trustee sold the leasehold, there being at the time a certain amount of rent due, in part accruing before the bankruptcy and in part from the trustee during his occupancy. Held, that such provision of the lease was for the protection of the bankrupt's leasehold interest, and that the purchaser took such leasehold with respect to the mortgage in the condition it stood at the time of the sale, and could not insist on the application of the unpaid rent on the mortgage as against the lessor, who had duly proved h therefor. In re Ketterer Mfg. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 583, 20 Am. Rep. 694. The purchaser cann the bankrupt's right to any po the crops growing on the la stipulated to be paid to him by rent. In re Bledsoe (D. C. 1 N. B. R. 402, Fed. Cas. No. 1,

Where the property sold con a going business, the purcha take it with the good will, if t meant to be included in th James Van Dyk Co. v. F. V. R (1911) 73 Misc. Rep. 87, 130 Supp. 755. The sale by a corpo trustee in bankruptcy of the as property of its business, with good will and trade marks, both the good will and trade m things of value, and will precl trustee from thereafter selling property of the bankrupt, and i tempts to do so, he may be res In re Jaysee Corset Co. (D. C 201 Fed. 779, 29 Am. Bankr. R The purchaser of a going busin quiring also the good will, m tinue the business in the name former owner, when it was a c tion. S. F. Myers Co. v. Tuttle 1911) 188 Fed. 532, 26 Am. Rep. 541. Where a business of ing remedies for the hair and made valuable by advertising be conducted by clerks filling o supplying labeled packages of size and shape, it is a busine commercial and nonprofessiona acter; and on a sale of the and good will by a trustee in ba cy, an incorporation of a compa ing the name of the bankrupt, addition of the word "compa take over the purchase, cannot joined by the bankrupt. Austin (1912) 171 Ill. App. 327. The p er will at least have the right vertise himself, by store signs erwise, as the successor of th rupt in the business. Freeman man (1903) 86 App. Div. 110 Y. Supp. 478. While, upon the the assets of bankrupt corporat good will may be assigned to t chaser, the trustee cannot con right to so use the bankrupt's to convey to the public an imp that the assignee and the bankr the same person. Hotel Claridg George Rector, Inc. (1914) 14 S. 748, 164 App. Div. 185.

Taxes due on the property time of the sale will be taken count in fixing the price. But ta sessed after the sale, though be payment of the balance of the p price and delivery of the deed paid by the purchaser, and he claim reimbursement out of th of the estate, and this although was made free of liens and brances, since this applies only liens as existed at the date of t n re Crowell (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 59, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 478. The liability of a purchaser of a bankrupt's real estate for taxes thereon, constituting under the law of the state a lien, depends on the terms of sale. In re Reading Hat Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 786.

37. Approval on confirmation of sale. Under the requirement of section 9654, post, any sale for which it is practicable to obtain the approval of the court of bankruptcy must be approved or confirmed, and the sale passes no title until approved or confirmed, either expressly or impliedly. In re Shea (1903) 126 Fed. 153, 61 C. C. A. 219, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 207; Everett v. Belden & Wright (1910) 127 La. 573, 53 South. 867. If the matter is drawn in question, a purchaser under a trustee's sale which was not approved by the court has the burden of proving that it was impracticable to make the sale subject to such approval. Davis v. Ives (1903) 75 Conn. 611, 54 Atl. 922. The authority of the court in this respect may be exercised by the referee. Idem.

Where, after an alleged unauthorized sale of the bankrupt's assets, the trustee applied for an order directing that the proceeds be delivered to him, which was duly entered by the court, this was held to constitute an affirmance of the sale. Mason v. Wolkowich (1906) 150 Fed. 699, 80 C. C. A. 435, 10 L. R. A. (N. S.) 765, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 709. But where the trustee makes a sale under order of the court and reports it for confirmation, the general rules governing judicial sales apply, and the validity of the title acquired depends upon the validity of the order of confirmation. J. M. West Lumber Co. v. Lyon (1909) 53 Tex. Civ. App. 648, 116 S. W. 652.

The creditors of the estate are not entitled to notice of an application for the confirmation of a sale. In re Nevada-Utah Mines & Smelters Corp. (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 497, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 409.

As to the matters to be considered on such an application, the approval or disapproval of the sale rests very much in the discretion of the court. In re Sanborn (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 551, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 54. And it may withhold its approval on account of mere inadequacy of price, without more; it is not necessary that there should be fraud shown, or such gross inadequacy of price as to be proof of fraud. In re Groves, 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 30; In re O'Fallon (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 10,445. See In re Thompson, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 355. The court, in deciding whether or not to confirm or approve a sale, where the only question is whether the price offered is the best that could be obtained, should consider what is for the benefit of the creditors in general, and may properly be influenced by their wishes, if a large majority concur in their views. See In re Peerless Finishing Co. (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 350, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 429.

The highest bidder at the trustee's sale, provided he is able and willing to comply with the terms of sale, is entitled to have his bid accepted and reported for confirmation, and to have the sale to him confirmed, if the sale was made on sufficient notice and for a fair price, and there appears to have been a compliance with all necessary and proper requirements for holding the sale, and honesty and fair dealing in the sale itself. In re Williams (C. C. A. 1912) 197 Fed. 1, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 258; In re National Mining Exploration Co. (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 232, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 92; In re Throckmorton (1906) 149 Fed. 145, 79 C. C. A. 15, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 856; In re Ewing (C. C. 1883) 16 Fed. 753; In re Kronrot (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 653, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 738. Trustees in bankruptcy petitioned for and were granted by the referee authority to offer real estate at auction, adjudications to be made at such prices as they might determine, not less than three-fourths of the appraised value. The advertisement of sale referred to the order and stated that the sale was subject to confirmation by the referee, and the auctioneer read the advertisement including such provision before offering the property. A bid of more than three-fourths of the appraised value, but less than the amount which the trustees had told the auctioneer they would accept, was made, and the auctioneer made no adjudication, and refused to accept a deposit, but had the bidder sign an agreement to make such deposit, in order that he might be held if the trustees decided to accept the bid. They, however, declined to do so. Held, that the bidder acquired no legal rights in the bid, as no adjudication was made, and the trustees were vested with ample discretion to reject the bid as a private offer, and hence the referee acted within his authority and discretion in declining to compel a transfer of the property. Untereiner v. Camors (C. C. A. 1916) 228 Fed. 890.

The court may impose equitable terms or conditions upon the purchaser, as, for instance, by requiring him to give security for the payment of future rent on the sale of a leasehold interest. In re Varley & Bauman Clothing Co. (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 761, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 104.

An order of confirmation has the effect of a judgment and may raise an estoppel against parties whose rights were before the court. Blood v. Munn (1909) 155 Cal. 228, 100 Pac. 694. But it is not a ratification of any act of the trustee done in excess of his authority, where it does not appear that the excess of power exercised was brought to the knowledge of the court. In re McGilton (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 8,798. The order of confirmation relates back to the date of the sale, so as to invest the purchaser with the character of an owner from the day of his purchase. Lathrop v. Nelson (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 8,111. Order confirming sale of bankrupt's property held not to be treated as made nunc pro tunc as of date of sale, though referee told trustee it would be confirmed; the property having been damaged in the meantime. In re Finks (1915) 224 Fed. 92, 139 C. C. A. 648.

38. Payment or recovery of purchase money.—The court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction and power to enforce in a summary manner the completion of the contract of sale, and to compel the purchaser to pay the stipulated price, which may also include interest if there has been unreasonable delay. Mason v. Wolkowich (1906) 150 Fed. 699, 80 C. C. A. 435, 10 L. R. A. (N. S.) 765, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 709. On the other hand, the purchaser may be entitled to a deduction or refund of part of the purchase money on account of a shortage in the quantity of the property sold. In re Drumgoole (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 208, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 261. See Owens v. Bruce (1901) 109 Fed. 72, 48 C. C. A. 239, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 322. And he may be entitled to be excused from paying any part of the price, or to a restoration of what he may have paid, when it proves impossible for the trustee to make a title. In re Caponigri (C. C. A. 1914) 210 Fed. 897. A bankrupt's trustee became vested with the bankrupt's title to patents and applications therefor, so that a sale thereof by the bankrupt's receiver, concurred in by the trustee, and confirmed by the referee, vested all the bankrupt's rights in the purchaser, who would therefore be compelled to complete the purchase. In re Myers-Wolf Mfg. Co. (1913) 205 Fed. 289, 123 C. C. A. 441.

When the property sold is a license for the sale of liquors, having a market value, but transferable only by the consent and approval of the licensing authority, if the transfer of the license to the trustee's vendee is refused by the licensing authority, without any reason being assigned, or for reasons not personal to the purchaser, the latter is entitled to a refund of his earnest money. In re Miller (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 263, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 560. But not so if the transfer is refused on the specific ground that the purchaser is not a proper person to hold the license. In re Comer & Co. (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 261, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 558.

An order for the sale of a bankrupt's property properly provided that in case of a purchase by a lien creditor he could have credit on the price fo portion thereof as would otherwi crue to him by reason of his Clark Hardware Co. v. Sauve (A. 1915) 220 Fed. 102. Where erty incumbered by a mortgage ing an issue of bonds is sold in ruptcy, the holders of bonds, i become the purchasers, must b mitted to use their bonds in the purchase price. In re Fayet Wagon-Wood & Lumber Co. (1912) 197 Fed. 180, 28 Am. Rep. 307; In re Saxton Furna (D. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 697, 1 Bankr. Rep. 483; In re Waterl gan Co. (D. C. 1902) 118 Fed. Am. Bankr. Rep. 427; Schuler v. singer (1910) 177 Fed. 119, 1 C. A. 539, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep But this rule does not apply whe bonds are void under the const of the state. In re Wyoming Ice Co. (D. C. 1907) 153 Fed And the court will not ratify where the bondholders of the ba corporation, who do not include its creditors, propose to take o property and assets, by transfe new corporation, and to pay th included creditors only a percent their claims or else give them tions of the new corporation, f court has no power thus arbi to preclude the claims of the n senting creditors. In re J. B. & Cornell Co. (D. C. 1911) 18 859, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 252.

39. Conveyance and delivery.— there is a valid sale, under whi price has been paid, the mere to deliver a deed will not autho resale. In re King (D. C. 18 Fed. 839.

The deed of a trustee in bank should be made in exact acco with the directions of the cou an error in this respect will be by an order confirming the deed. man v. Stearns (1897) 95 Va. S. E. 601. It should be execu the trustee in his official capaci by describing himself as "trus bankruptcy." Coryell v. Klehm 157 Ill. 462, 41 N. E. 864. An i ual deed by a trustee in bankru property held in his official ca after the title had revested in the rupt, is ineffective for any p Calligan v. Calligan (1913) 2 52, 102 N. E. 247. Where a dee trustee in bankruptcy is relied o action against strangers, preli proof of the trustee's title and thority to make the sale is nec Brown v. White (1913) 153 K 156 S. W. 96. The trustee's dee not contain a recital of the order court of bankruptcy authorizi sale to be private. Ryder v. (1882) 102 Ill. 338. It will b cient to pass title though not seal. Westfeldt v. Adams (190

N. C. 379, 42 S. E. 823. The deed should be acknowledged before a competent officer. Harris v. Pratt (1887) 37 Kan. 316, 15 Pac. 216. It should contain a sufficient description of the property to identify it with reasonable certainty. James v. Koy (Tex. Civ. App. 1900) 59 S. W. 295. It should run to the purchaser at the sale, unless he directs it to be made out in the name of some other person. Wilson v. Winslow (1887) 145 Mass. 339, 14 N. E. 103. A state court has no jurisdiction to enjoin the execution of a deed to the purchaser, on a bill filed by one claiming to be jointly interested with him in the purchase of the property. Henderson v. Henrie (1907) 61 W. Va. 183, 56 S. E. 369, 11 Ann. Cas. 741.

In the absence of specific covenants of title, they are not to be read into a trustee's deed by implication. Clark v. Post (1889) 113 N. Y. 17, 20 N. E. 573.

A bankrupt in possession of realty at the time of its sale by his trustee, who thereafter agrees with the purchaser to vacate on a certain day, holds as a tenant under the purchaser, and a petition will not lie by the trustee in bankruptcy for delivery of possession. In re Hale (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 330, Fed. Cas. No. 5,912.

In case of the sale of personal property, the duty of the trustee is to deliver it to the purchaser. But authority as trustee ceases when he has sold the property, and his subsequent failure to make delivery is a personal, and not an official, breach of duty. Sheldon v. Rounds (1879) 40 Mich. 425. On his refusal to deliver, the purchaser may maintain trover against him in a state court, to which action, however, an order of the court of bankruptcy setting aside the sale would be a complete defense. Ives v. Tregent (1874) 29 Mich. 390.

In the case of intangible property or choses in action, delivery to the purchaser will include whatever is necessary to make his title clear and his ownership effective, as, for instance, a written assignment of a mortgage which was the subject of the sale. In re Franklin Sav. Fund Soc. (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 5,059. But on the sale of a negotiable note by a trustee in bankruptcy, after its indorsement by the payee, or where it was payable to bearer, it is not necessary in order to pass title that the trustee should indorse the note, mere delivery being sufficient. Wade v. Elliott (1912) 11 Ga. App. 646, 75 S. E. 989; Arnold v. Leonard (1849) 12 Smedes & M. (Miss.) 258. An assignment by a trustee in bankruptcy in pursuance of an order of sale of the bankrupt's bills receivable includes a debt due to the bankrupt for goods sold, although the debt, without the knowledge of the trustee or the purchaser, had been previously reduced to judgment. Rogers v. Abbot (1910) 206 Mass. 270, 92 N. E. 472, 138 Am. St. Rep. 394.

40. Application of proceeds.—Out of the proceeds of a trustee's sale in bankruptcy are to be paid first the costs and expenses of the sale. In re Utt (1901) 105 Fed. 754, 45 C. C. A. 32, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 383; Arnold v. Greene Gold-Silver Co. (1910) 68 Misc. Rep. 449, 125 N. Y. Supp. 29; In re Johnston (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 7,424; In re Whitehead (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 599, Fed. Cas. No. 17,562. On sale of incumbered real property constituting all of a bankrupt's estate, where both the trustee and the lienors had made untenable claims and were more or less in the wrong, held, that there would be allowed out of the proceeds the necessary expenses of various sales but not the expenses of administration in the bankruptcy court. In re Howard (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 402.

Proper expenses incurred in caring for the property or putting it in condition to be sold, including payments for insurance, are to be paid out of the proceeds of sale next after the costs of the sale. In re Prince & Walter (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 546, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 675. Also the value of improvements put upon the property by a purchaser at a former sale which was set aside. In re William F. Fisher & Co. (D. C. 1906) 148 Fed. 907, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 404.

Where the property is incumbered by a valid mortgage or other lien, it is wrong practice to charge the mortgagee with a proportionate part of the costs and expenses of the sale, but these should first be paid out of the proceeds, and then the mortgage creditor should be paid in full if the fund is sufficient for that purpose. In re Sanderlin (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 857, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 384; McNair v. McIntyre (1902) 113 Fed. 113, 51 C. C. A. 89, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 638. But see In re Howard (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 402. Only those fees, charges, and expenses necessary for the preservation of the property and the foreclosure of the lien may be charged against the fund realized from the sale without the consent of a lienholder of a bankrupt's property subject to the lien, made free from liens. In re New York & Philadelphia Package Co. (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 219. The bankruptcy court cannot sell mortgaged premises free of the lien and use the proceeds in paying the expenses of administering the estate but may ascertain the amount actually due and make proper allowances for the necessary expenses of so doing. In re Howard (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 402. Chattel mortgagee petitioning for proceeds of sale by trustee in bankruptcy held liable for expense of sale, including rent bankruptcy. In re International Mineral Co. (D. C. 1915) 222 Fed. 415.

A creditor desiring to move for the vacation of a bankruptcy sale must be reasonably prompt, and one who, with full knowledge of the circumstances of the sale, accepts a dividend from the proceeds and allows the purchaser to sell the property, cannot avoid the sale even for fraud and collusion. Hills v. Alden (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 6,-507.

Though a single creditor may complain of a sale of the bankrupt's assets, that all of the secured and most of the unsecured creditors were satisfied with the sale is some evidence that the good faith of the trustee should not be impugned. In re Haywood Wagon Co. (1914) 219 Fed. 655, 135 C. C. A. 391.

The sale will not be vacated at the instance of one who is an entire stranger to the proceedings and whose rights, if any, in the property could not be prejudiced by the sale. In re Muhlhauser (1903) 121 Fed. 669, 57 C. C. A. 423, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 236. A stockholder of a bankrupt corporation, as such, has no standing in the bankruptcy case to require the trustee to answer his petition to set aside a sale of the bankrupt's assets to a reorganization committee. In re Witherbee (C. C. A. 1913) 202 Fed. 896, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 314.

The special short statute of limitations contained in the bankruptcy act does not apply to proceedings to vacate a sale. Clark v. Clark (1854) 17 How. 315, 15 L. Ed. 77.

When an order vacating a sale is made, based on causes for which the purchaser was not in any way responsible, he will be entitled to have his money refunded, and also such expenses as he has reasonably and properly incurred in the preservation of the property. In re Troy Woolen Co. (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 14,201.

45. —— Grounds for vacating.—A trustee's sale in bankruptcy should not be set aside except for cause sufficient to move the conscience of the court. In re Metallic Specialty Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 300, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 408. Or where it would be a gross discredit to the administration of justice if the sale should be permitted to stand. In re Troy Woolen Co. (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 14,201.

Any manipulation of the sale which tends to prevent the attendance of bidders, or to stifle competition among them, will be sufficient ground for vacating it. In re Shea (1903) 126 Fed. 153, 61 C. C. A. 219, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 207; In re Ethier (D. C. 1902) 118 Fed. 107, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 160. But see In re Pittsburgh Dick Creek Mining Co. (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 106, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 613, where it was held that a sale otherwise satisfactory will not be set aside at the instance of a creditor who alleges that there was a conspiracy to keep him away the sale and otherwise to defrau of his just rights, since, if suc really the case, he has a remedy for damages. And see In re K (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 653, 2 Bankr. Rep. 738.

That the only other bidder was fer employed to run up bids he ground for releasing person fro at sale of bankrupt's property, absence of any assurance to the or belief that he would not be he ble. Williams v. Hogue (1914 Fed. 182, 134 C. C. A. 556.

46. —— Inadequacy of price.— quacy of price will be ground fo ting aside a sale in bankruptc only in case it is unconscionable gross as fairly to raise a presu of fraud. In re National Minin ploration Co. (D. C. 1911) 193 Fe 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 92; In re M Specialty Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1912 Fed. 300, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep In re Shapiro (D. C. 1907) 15 673, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 125; Throckmorton (1906) 149 Fed. 1 C. C. A. 15, 17 Am. Bankr. Re In re Bousfield (D. C. 1877) 16 R. 481, Fed. Cas. No. 1,702. A Ballentyne v. Smith (1907) 205 285, 27 Sup. Ct. 527, 51 L. Ed. 8

The appraisal fixes the value bankrupt's property, in the abse reliable evidence impeaching it, sale for more than the appraised confirmed by the court, will not aside by an appellate court ground of inadequacy of price. S v. Hassinger (1910) 177 Fed. 11 C. C. A. 539, 24 Am. Bankr. Re

The fact that the property h creased in value since the sale, it is discovered to possess a greater than was then suppose not warrant annulling the sale. v. McDonald (1876) 2 MacArth C.) 375; Tyson v. Mickle (1844) (Md.) 376. The difference betwe 250, for which property was fir by a trustee in bankruptcy, and which it brought on a resale, he to show such a gross inadequ price as to justify the vacation confirmation and the setting as the first sale. In re Burr Mfg. & ply Co. (1914) 217 Fed. 16, 133 A. 126, reversing order (D. C. 209 Fed. 138. A bankruptcy should not be set aside merely b a third person offers to pay a price than was realized at the sa re Ethier (D. C. 1902) 118 Fe 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 160; In re (D. C. 1903) 120 Fed. 524, Bankr. Rep. 679. But an offer advanced price, made by a genui responsible bidder, is strong ev that the price given at the sale adequate, and if the court is way satisfied that there was a discrepancy between the actual of the property and the price ob nay properly vacate the sale and or- a resale. In re Palmer (D. C. 2) 13 Fed. 870; In re Collins (D. C. 5) Fed. Cas. No. 3,005. But the ance so offered must be substantial, not a mere trifle. Sturgiss v. Cor- (1905) 141 Fed. 1, 72 C. C. A. 179, Am. Bankr. Rep. 543. And the in- ding purchaser may be required to er into an agreement with the court, to give security, that he will attend resale and bid at least as much as has offered. In re Shea (1903) 126 l. 153, 61 C. C. A. 219, 11 Am. kr. Rep. 207.

'. Collateral impeachment of sale.— validity of a trustee's sale in bank- tcy is not open to inquiry or im- chment in any collateral proceed- either in a state or federal court. kler's Adm'r v. Rogers (1900) 54 W. 848, 21 Ky. Law Rep. 1265; mbo v. Fulk (1904) 103 Va. 73, 48 E. 525; Keller v. Faickney (1906) Tex. Civ. App. 483, 94 S. W. 103; lton v. Metcalf (1911) 234 Mo. 27, S. W. 701; Mims v. Swartz (1873) Tex. 13; Steele v. Moody (1875) Ala. 418, 16 N. B. R. 558; Equitable st Co. v. Vanderbilt Realty Im- vement Co. (1913) 155 App. Div. , 140 N. Y. Supp. 1008. This rule lies especially after the lapse of a siderable period of time, during which all parties in interest have acquiesced in the sale. Buckler's Adm'r v. Rogers (1900) 21 Ky. Law Rep. 1265, 54 S. W. 848. Or where the attack upon the sale is based on mere irregularities. Robertson v. Howard (1913) 229 U. S. 254, 33 Sup. Ct. 854, 57 L. Ed. 1174, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 611; James v. Koy (Tex. Civ. App. 1900) 59 S. W. 295; Herbst v. Bates, 13 Wkly. Law Bul. (Ohio) 565; Smith v. Long (1881) 9 Daly (N. Y.) 429. An order of the referee in bankruptcy, made under the discretionary power conferred by § 70b, post, § 9654, confirming a trustee's sale of the bankrupt's interest in real estate, validates the sale as against collateral attack for alleged lack of appraisement and error in description. Robertson v. Howard (1913) 33 Sup. Ct. 854, 229 U. S. 254, 57 L. Ed. 1174, reversing judgments (1910) 109 P. 696, 82 Kan. 588, 112 P. 162, 83 Kan. 453.

Where a bankrupt's liquor license was sold subject to the condition that its transfer to the purchaser must be authorized by the local court having jurisdiction, an inquiry by the court of bankruptcy to ascertain the grounds on which the local court refused to approve the transfer, is not a collateral attack on its order. In re Miller (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 263, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 560.

9632. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 48, as amended, Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 11, and Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, § 9.) Compensation of trustees, receivers, and marshals.

Compensation of Trustees, Receivers and Marshals:—(a) Trus- s shall receive for their services, payable after they are rendered, ee of five dollars deposited with the clerk at the time the peti- n is filed in each case, except when a fee is not required from voluntary bankrupt, and such commissions on all moneys disbursed turned over to any person, including lien holders, by them, as may allowed by the courts, not to exceed six per centum on the first e hundred dollars or less, four per centum on moneys in excess five hundred dollars and less than fifteen hundred dollars, two r centum on moneys in excess of fifteen hundred dollars and less an ten thousand dollars, and one per centum on moneys in excess ten thousand dollars. And in case of the confirmation of a compo- ion after the trustee has qualified the court may allow him, as com- nsation, not to exceed one-half of one per centum of the amount be paid the creditors on such composition.

(b) In the event of an estate being administered by three trustees tead of one trustee or by successive trustees, the court shall ap- rtion the fees and commissions between them according to the vices actually rendered, so that there shall not be paid to trustees the administering of any estate a greater amount than one trus- would be entitled to.

(c) The court may, in its discretion, withhold all compensation from y trustee who has been removed for cause.

(d) Receivers or marshals appointed pursuant to section two, sub- vision three, of this Act shall receive for their services, payable er they are rendered, compensation by way of commissions upon e moneys disbursed or turned over to any person, including lien lders, by them, and also upon the moneys turned over by them or afterwards realized by the trustees from property turned o kind by them to the trustees, as the court may allow, not to six per centum on the first five hundred dollars or less, four per c on moneys in excess of five hundred dollars and less than one sand five hundred dollars, two per centum on moneys in exc

one thousand five hundred dollars and less than ten thousand d and one per centum on moneys in excess of ten thousand d Provided, That in case of the confirmation of a compositio commissions shall not exceed one-half of one per centum amount to be paid creditors on such compositions: Provided f That when the receiver or marshal acts as a mere custodian an not carry on the business of the bankrupt as provided in clau of section two of this Act, he shall not receive nor be allowed form or guise more than two per centum on the first thousand or less, and one-half of one per centum on all above one th dollars on moneys disbursed by him or turned over by him trustee and on moneys subsequently realized from property over by him in kind to the trustee: Provided further, That bef allowance of compensation notice of application therefor, spe the amount asked, shall be given to creditors in the manner in in section fifty-eight of this Act.

(e) Where the business is conducted by trustees, marsh receivers, as provided in clause five of section two of this A court may allow such officers additional compensation for suc ices by way of commissions upon the moneys disbursed or over to any person, including lien holders, by them, and, in c receivers or marshals, also upon the moneys turned over by t afterwards realized by the trustees from property turned o kind by them to the trustees; such commissions not to exce per centum on the first five hundred dollars or less, four per c on moneys in excess of five hundred dollars and less than one sand five hundred dollars, two per centum on moneys in exc
one thousand five hundred dollars and less than ten thousand d
and one per centum on moneys in excess of ten thousand d Provided, That in case of the confirmation of a compositio
commissions shall not exceed one-half of one per centum amount to be paid creditors on such composition: Provided f That before the allowance of compensation notice of appl therefor, specifying the amount asked, shall be given to credit the manner indicated in section fifty-eight of this Act. (30 557. 32 Stat. 799. 36 Stat. 840.)

In this section, as originally enacted, subdivision a thereof was as "a Trustees shall receive, as full compensation for their services, after they are rendered, a fee of five dollars deposited with the clerk time the petition is filed in each case, except when a fee is not requir a voluntary bankrupt, and from estates which they have administere commissions on sums to be paid as dividends and commissions as ma lowed by the courts, not to exceed three per centum on the first five t dollars or less, two per centum on the second five thousand dollars thereof, and one per centum on such sums in excess of ten thousand Said subdivision a was amended by Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 1 above, to read as follows:
"a Trustees shall receive for their services, payable after they are r a fee of five dollars deposited with the clerk at the time the petition in each case, except when a fee is not required from a voluntary bankr from estates which they have administered such commissions on all disbursed by them as may be allowed by the courts, not to exceed six tum on the first five hundred dollars or less, four per centum on mo excess of five hundred dollars and less than fifteen hundred dollars, centum on moneys in excess of fifteen hundred dollars and less than te sand dollars, and one per centum on moneys in excess of ten thousa lars. And in case of the confirmation of a composition after the trus qualified the court may allow him, as compensation, not to exceed one-half of one per centum of the amount to be paid the creditors on such composition."

The section was further amended by Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, § 9, last cited above, by changing said subdivision a, as so previously amended, and by adding, after subdivisions b and c, two further subdivisions d and e, making the section read as set forth here.

Section 19 of said first amendatory Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, 32 Stat. 801, provided that the act should not apply to bankruptcy cases pending when it took effect, but that such cases should be adjudicated and disposed of conformably to the provisions of the original act.

Section 14 of said second amendatory Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, 36 Stat. 842, also provided that the act should not apply to bankruptcy cases pending when it took effect, but that such cases be adjudicated and disposed of conformably to the provisions of the original act as previously amended.

Trustees, receivers, and marshals were prohibited from receiving any compensation other than that allowed by the act, by section 72, added thereto by amendment by Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 18, post, § 9656.

Notes of Decisions

1. Compensation of trustees.—This ection and § 9624, ante, when read in onnection with § 9656, post, provide or compensation for trustees based on ommissions on moneys disbursed. merican Surety Co. v. Freed (1915) 24 Fed. 333, 140 C. C. A. 19, reversg decree In re Breakwater Co. (D. . 1915) 220 Fed. 226.

Where a partnership and its members re adjudged bankrupt on a single petion, there is but one case for the urpose of computing the trustee's ees and commissions. The word case," as used in the bankruptcy act, used in its ordinary meaning as a omprehensive term, embracing the agregate in respect to that which is rought and prosecuted in the form of single proceeding. In re Rider (D. . 1915) 220 Fed. 193.

The provision of the statute with refrence to the compensation of trustees mandatory and must be followed, nd the court has no authority to alow to a trustee a lump sum in lieu of ommissions calculated as the act diects. In re Carolina Cooperage Co. D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 950, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 154. The commission must be alculated, as the statute prescribes, n the amount of money disbursed or urned over, and not on the gross mount collected. In re Smith (D. C. 901) 108 Fed. 39, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 59.

Under § 9644, ante, § 9656, post, and his section prior to the amendment of 910, where pledged securities having market value about equal to the sered loans were sold in bankruptcy, ealizing a small surplus, trustee held ntitled to commissions only on the urplus. In re Meadows (C. C. A. 914) 211 Fed. 948, affirming order (D. . 1912) 199 Fed. 304. Under this ection, held, that commissions are alowable to trustees on moneys receivd and disbursed, which were derived rom the sale of mortgaged property, nd which were covered by and proprly applicable to the payment of the en, especially in view of the amendent of Act June 25, 1910, § 9. In re Howard (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 402. The trustee in bankruptcy held entitled to fees upon the total amount of the assets transferred to a new corporation, not upon the amount actually received at the sale of the assets subject to existing liens. In re Breakwater Co. (D. C. 1915) 220 Fed. 226, decree reversed American Surety Co. v. Freed (1915) 224 Fed. 333, 140 C. C. A. 19. Where, to preserve assets of a bankrupt, they were transferred to a corporation for a small sum, and secured and unsecured creditors received stock, the commissions to trustee must be based on the cash, within Bankr. Act, §§ 40a, 48a, as amended. American Surety Co. v. Freed (1915) 224 Fed. 333, 140 C. C. A. 19, reversing decree In re Breakwater Co. (D. C. 1915) 220 Fed. 226.

Money is disbursed or turned over by the trustee when it is paid into the hands of a receiver appointed by a state court in a suit between the bankrupt and a creditor, the former claiming it as exempt and the latter denying the contention. In re Castleberry (D. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 1021, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 430.

Under § 9656, post, the court has no authority to make any extra allowance to a trustee in bankruptcy for unusual or highly beneficial services to the estate or for particularly onerous or inconvenient duties. In re Coventry Evans Furniture Co. (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 673, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623; In re Screws (D. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 989, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 269; In re Carolina Cooperage Co. (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 950, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 154; In re Epstein (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 878, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 191. CONTRA, In re Dimm & Co. (D. C. 1906) 146 Fed. 402, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 119; In re Mammoth Pine Lumber Co. (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 731, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 651.

If the trustee is himself a lawyer, he is not bound to perform legal services for the estate, and if he does, he cannot have a fee therefor from the estate. In re George Halbert Co. (1904) 134 Fed. 236, 67 C. C. A. 18, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 399; In re Mc-Kenna (D. C. 1905) 137 Fed. 611, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 4; In re Felson (D. C. 1905) 139 Fed. 275, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 185; In re Van Denburg (D. C. 1914) 221 Fed. 475.

Even where a creditor, desiring to secure the services of a particular person as trustee, promises him a sum in excess of the commissions which he will receive, the bargain is void and cannot be enforced in the face of the express prohibition contained in the statute. Devries v. Orem (1906) 104 Md. 648, 65 Atl. 430; Cowing v. Altman (N. Y. 1875) 5 Hun, 556.

If the business of the bankrupt is carried on for a limited time by the trustee, under authority of the court, he may be allowed additional compensation for his services in such business. The amount of it rests very much in the discretion of the court, having regard to the nature of the services rendered and their benefit to the estate, provided that it shall not exceed the percentages specified in the act. In re George W. Shiebler & Co. (1909) 174 Fed. 336, 98 C. C. A. 208, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 162. But the court has no authority to fix the compensation of a trustee in advance for such services to be rendered in the future. In re Willis W. Russell Card Co. (D. C. 1909) 174 Fed. 202, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 300.

The provision of this section allowing the court, in its discretion, to withhold all compensation from a trustee who has been removed for cause is applicable to a case where there was sufficient ground for the removal of a trustee, but, to avoid the odium of such a course, he was allowed to resign. In re E. I. Fidler & Son (D. C. 1909) 172 Fed. 632, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 16. And since, within the limits fixed by law, the amount to be allowed as commissions to a trustee is subject to the sound judicial discretion of the court, it is held that, where a trustee has been negligent in the performance of his duty, the court may in a proper case, and even without the filing of any exceptions, deny him any commissions. In re Schoenfeld (1910) 183 Fed. 219, 105 C. C. A. 481, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 748.

2. Fees and expenses of marshals and receivers.—Prior to the amendatory act of 1910, a receiver might be allowed the maximum commission which would be awarded to a trustee in similar cases, but could claim nothing extra for carrying on the bankrupt's business. In re Cambridge Lumber Co. (D. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 983, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 168; In re Richards (D. C. 1903) 127 Fed. 772, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 581. The general rule was that the court had authority to allow the receiver a just and reasonable compensation for his personal services, the amount of which rested in the sound discretion of the court and should depend upon all the circumstances of the pa case. In re Scott (D. C. 1900) 404, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 625; Hardware Co. v. Huddleston (1909) 167 Fed. 433, 21 Am. Rep. 731; In re Huddleston 1908) 167 Fed. 428, 21 Am. Ban 669; In re Scott (D. C. 1900) 404, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 625; Sully (D. C. 1904) 133 Fed. Am. Bankr. Rep. 783; In re Sartorial Art Co. (D. C. 1900) 1 215, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 107.

The court has power in the stance to direct that the exper the compensation of the receiv be paid out of the property in hi although the proceedings are wards dismissed, as it is no par receiver's duty to move to recov expenses and compensation aga petitioning creditors. In re T. Co. (1907) 159 Fed. 73; 86 C 263, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 73.

Where, after the appointme receiver, a second petition is another district, where an adju is made, and to which the pro are transferred, as being the of the bankrupt's domicile, th in the latter district has jurisdi fix the compensation of the r although payment can only be r order of the court having the of the estate. In re Isaacson 174 Fed. 406, 98 C. C. A. 614, Bankr. Rep. 98.

Where the receiver is afterwa pointed trustee, the settlement fees should be determined in tion with the claim for com and fees for services rendered estate as a whole. In re Jam others & Co. (D. C. 1910) 1 501.

In regard to the additional co tion to be allowed to the receiv he carries on the business of th rupt, it has been held that a who takes possession of the ba store, advertises a sale, and ke store open, for the purpose o sale, only for the remainder of on which he takes possession a closes the store and sells the r bulk, is not a mere custodian, the other hand, he does not "c the business" of the bankrupt r entitle himself to the extra co tion. In re Charles Knosher (1912) 197 Fed. 136, 116 C. C. 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 747. Wh receiver inventories the ba stock, has it appraised, and sel is more than a mere custodian, he does not carry on the busin he is entitled to such compens the court may allow for his services, within the general pr of the section. In re Ginsburg 1913) 208 Fed. 160. Receiver rupts, for a sale of their propert having it in possession not mo six days, during which time th was closed, held entitled to fee not exceeding 2 per cent. on the first $1,000 and one half of 1 per cent. on the balance. In re Griesheimer (D. C. 1913) 209 Fed. 134. Under this section and § 9586, subd. 5, ante, where a bankrupt's receiver turned over to the trustee $1,739.92, together with the bankrupt's stock, fixtures, and uncollected book accounts, the receiver was only entitled at that time to an allowance of $148.56 for his services, and was not entitled to an allowance on the property turned over in kind until the trustee had realized thereon. In re Falkenberg (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 835.

The requirement of notice to creditors of the receiver's application for compensation is imperative, and no allowance of fees can rightfully be made until after such notice. In re Falkenberg (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 835, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 718. A notice of hearing of an application for an allowance of fees to a bankrupt's receiver and his counsel, specifying the amount asked in dollars and cents, was not objectionable for failure to ask for an additional allowance. In re Cash-Papworth, Grow-Sir (1913) 210 Fed. 24, 126 C. C. A. 604. Creditors desiring to object should promptly file exceptions with the referee, and may bring the matter before the court by petition for review of the decision of the referee on the questions thus raised. In re Reliance Storage & W. Co. (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 619, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 49.

If the receivership was obtained by fraud or imposition practiced upon the court, and was in no way beneficial to the estate, the court will be justified in refusing to make any allowance for the services of the receiver. In re Desrochers (D. C. 1911) 183 Fed. 991, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 703.

Where the court of bankruptcy, upon the filing of a petition in involuntary bankruptcy, orders the marshal to take possession of the property of the bankrupt and hold the same until a trustee is appointed, the marshal is entitled to receive, out of the estate, compensation for his services under such order, in addition to the costs and expenses incurred. In re Adams Sartorial Art Co. (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 215, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 107. A marshal, placed in charge of the property of the bankrupt, may hire a competent watchman or store-keeper, if he considers it necessary for the preservation of the property, and the reasonable pay of such a keeper will be allowed out of the estate. In re Scott (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 404, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 625; In re Lowenstein (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 268, Fed. Cas. No. 8,572; In re Comstock (D. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 88, Fed. Cas. No. 3,075; In re Pace (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 10,640; In re Johnston (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 345, Fed. Cas. No. 7,421.

The expenses incurred by a receiver, in counsel and witness fees, in resisting a motion for his removal, will be allowed as a charge upon the fund or estate, where it appears that, although there were apparent grounds for the motion, yet the receiver had acted in good faith and with integrity of purpose. Cowdrey v. Railroad Co. (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 3,293.

§ 9633. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 49.) Accounts and papers of trustees.

Accounts and Papers of Trustees.—a The accounts and papers of trustees shall be open to the inspection of officers and all parties in interest. (30 Stat. 558.)

§ 9634. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 50.) Bonds of referees and trustees.

Bonds of Referees and Trustees.—a Referees, before assuming the duties of their offices, and within such time as the district courts of the United States having jurisdiction shall prescribe, shall respectively qualify by entering into bond to the United States in such sum as shall be fixed by such courts, not to exceed five thousand dollars, with such sureties as shall be approved by such courts, conditioned for the faithful performance of their official duties.

b Trustees, before entering upon the performance of their official duties, and within ten days after their appointment, or within such further time, not to exceed five days, as the court may permit, shall respectively qualify by entering into bond to the United States, with such sureties as shall be approved by the courts, conditioned for the faithful performance of their official duties.

c The creditors of a bankrupt estate, at their first meeting after the adjudication, or after a vacancy has occurred in the office of trustee, or after an estate has been reopened, or after a composition has been set aside or a discharge revoked, if there is a vacancy in the office of trustee, shall fix the amount of the bond of the trustee; they may at any time increase the amount of the bond. If the creditors do not the amount of the bond of the trustee as herein provided the cou shall do so.

d The court shall require evidence as to the actual value of th property of sureties.

e There shall be at least two sureties upon each bond.

f The actual value of the property of the sureties, over and abov their liabilities and exemptions, on each bond shall equal at least th amount of such bond.

g Corporations organized for the purpose of becoming suretie upon bonds, or authorized by law to do so, may be accepted sureties upon the bonds of referees and trustees whenever t courts are satisfied that the rights of all parties in interest will thereby amply protected.

h Bonds of referees, trustees, and designated depositories shall filed of record in the office of the clerk of the court and may sued upon in the name of the United States for the use of person injured by a breach of their conditions.

i Trustees shall not be liable, personally or on their bonds, to United States, for any penalties or forfeitures incurred by the b rupts under this Act, of whose estates they are respectively trus j Joint trustees may give joint or several bonds.

k If any referee or trustee shall fail to give bond, as herein vided and within the time limited, he shall be deemed to declined his appointment, and such failure shall create a vacanc his office.

l Suits upon referees' bonds shall not be brought subsequent to years after the alleged breach of the bond.

m Suits upon trustees' bonds shall not be brought subsequen two years after the estate has been closed. (30 Stat. 558.)

Notes of Decisions

Bonds of trustees in bankruptcy.— A trustee in bankruptcy must give a separate and distinct bond in each case in which he may be appointed trustee; a general bond conditioned for the performance of his duties in all cases in which he may be appointed is not sufficient. In re McFaden (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 104, Fed. Cas. No. 8,785.

The mere fact that the sureties are not residents of the district is not a sufficient reason for rejecting a bond which is in all other respects unobjectionable. Ex parte Milwaukee R. Co. (1866) 5 Wall. 188, 18 L. Ed. 676. And where the principal becomes liable for the full amount, and the bond is executed by several sureties, who become liable in smaller sums aggregating the whole amount of the bond, this is a good and sufficient bond. Bradley Fertilizer Co. v. Pace (1897) 80 Fed. 862, 26 C. C. A. 198. But the wife of the trustee should not be accepted as a surety on his bond, if the law of the particular state is such that a married woman cannot bind herself or her separate property as a surety on a bond. In re McFaden (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 104, Fed. Cas. No. 8,785.

The condition of such an obligation is construed with some strictness, and it is held that if a trustee in bankruptcy makes payments of money in his hands without an order of the court, and in violation of the rules, a liab on his bond will accrue, notwithstan the fact that the payments were s as the court might have authorize it had been applied to. In re Hoy Mitchell (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 968 Am. Bankr. Rep. 784.

Generally speaking, an accounting the trustee, under an order in that half, is a necessary prerequisitie to action on his bond, as fixing the me ure of his responsibility. U. S. v. Si heim (D. C. 1910) 188 Fed. 378. this does not apply where the trus has absconded and cannot be located where he is a fugitive from just Schofield v. U. S. (1909) 174 Fed 98 C. C. A. 39, 23 Am. Bankr. 259. In the latter case, he is not a necessary party to the action on bond. Alexander v. Union Surety Guaranty Co. (1903) 89 App. Div 85 N. Y. Supp. 282.

The bond may be sued on in the n of the United States for the use of person injured by the breach of condition, and it is not necessary the party so injured to obtain leav court to sue. Alexander v. Un Surety & Guaranty Co. (1903) 89 A Div. 3, 85 N. Y. Supp. 282. Wher trustee in bankruptcy has been remo from his office for mismanagement default, and a new trustee appoin the latter may be considered as a "p on injured" by the breach of condition of the bond of the former trustee and may sue thereon, and a district court of the United States has jurisdiction of the action. U. S. v. Union Surety & Guaranty Co. (D. C. 1902) 118 Fed. 482, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 114. But see CONTRA, Alexander v. Union Surety & Guaranty Co. (1903) 89 App. Div. 3, 85 N. Y. Supp. 282. But a state court of general original jurisdiction will also have jurisdiction of an action on the bond of a trustee in bankruptcy. Alexander v. Union Surety & Guaranty Co. (1903) 89 App. Div. 3, 85 N. Y. Supp. 282.

§ 9635. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 51.) Duties of clerks.

Duties of Clerks.—a Clerks shall respectively (1) account for, as for other fees received by them, the clerk's fee paid in each case and such other fees as may be received for certified copies of records which may be prepared for persons other than officers; (2) collect the fees of the clerk, referee, and trustee in each case instituted before filing the petition, except the petition of a proposed voluntary bankrupt which is accompanied by an affidavit stating that the petitioner is without, and can not obtain, the money with which to pay such fees; (3) deliver to the referees upon application all papers which may be referred to them, or, if the offices of such referees are not in the same cities or towns as the offices of such clerks, transmit such papers by mail, and in like manner return papers which were received from such referees after they have been used; (4) and within ten days after each case has been closed pay to the referee, if the case was referred, the fee collected for him, and to the trustee the fee collected for him at the time of filing the petition. (30 Stat. 558, 559.)

Notes of Decisions

1. Deposit of filing fees.—The deposit with the clerk of the fees prescribed by this section on the part of a voluntary bankrupt not excused on the ground of poverty is a condition precedent to the filing of the petition; but if the petition is placed on file and an adjudication made without payment of the fees, the objection may be raised on the bankrupt's application for discharge, and action on such application will be stayed until the filing fees are paid. In re Barden (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 553, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 31.

When the petition of a proposed voluntary bankrupt is accompanied by an affidavit stating that he has not and cannot obtain the money with which to pay the filing fees, the clerk will file the petition and docket the case without exacting the deposit of such fees. In re Fees Payable by Voluntary Bankrupts (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 120.

An affidavit by a voluntary bankrupt that he is without, and cannot obtain, the money with which to pay the filing fees is prima facie evidence of the facts stated. In re Levy (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 247. But it is not conclusive, and if circumstances appear casting doubts on the truth of the affidavit, the case may be sent to the referee to investigate and report the facts. In re Collier (D. C. 1899) 93 Fed. 191, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 182. And the petitioner must then support his allegation of poverty by convincing evidence. In re Williams, 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 206. As to the fact of his actual inability to procure the money with which to pay the fees, he is not required to solicit gifts or loans from his friends for that purpose, and he is not guilty of a false oath in making affidavit that he "cannot obtain" the requisite sum, although it appears that friends would have advanced him the amount if requested. Sellers v. Bell (1899) 94 Fed. 801, 36 C. C. A. 502, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 529; In re Mason (D. C. 1910) 181 Fed. 899, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 73. But compare In re Hines (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 790, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 27. But he cannot hold out property which is exempt under the laws of the state and still make the poverty affidavit. The provision of the bankruptcy act giving bankrupts the benefit of exemptions allowed by state law was not intended to exonerate them from payment of the filing fees on their voluntary petitions. Such a bankrupt is excused from payment of the fees only in case of absolute inability to pay them; and such inability does not exist so long as he has money or property sufficient for the purpose, although it is exempt. In re Mason (D. C. 1910) 181 Fed. 899, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 73; In re Hines (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 790, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 27; In re Bean (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 262, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 53; In re Collier (D. C. 1899) 93 Fed. 191, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 182. CONTRA, see Sellers v. Bell (1899) 94 Fed. 801, 36 C. C. A. 502, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 529. A voluntary bankrupt whose petition is accompanied by a poverty affidavit cannot subsequently be required to pay the filing fees out of money earned by him after the filing of the petition. Sellers v. Bell (1899) 94 Fed. 801, 36 C. C. A. 502, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 529. Under General Order No.

35 (§ 9614, ante), an order for the payment out of the estate of the filing fees, or an order to the bankrupt to pay them, can be made only by the judge, not by the referee. In re Plimpton (D. C. 1900) 103 Fed. 775, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 614.

General Order No. 10 (§ 9614, ante), providing that clerks and other officers, before incurring expenses of certain kinds, may require the bankrupt or other person in whose behalf the duty is to be performed to furnish indemnity for such expenses, and that money advanced by the bankrupt or other person for this purpose shall be repaid him out of the estate, does not apply to the filing fees prescribed by this section, and such fees, paid by a voluntary bankrupt on the filing of his petition, are not to be repaid to him. In re Matthews (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 772, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 265.

2. —— In partnership cases.—Upon the voluntary application of a partnership for the benefit of the act, only one petition need be filed, and all that is done thereupon constitutes one proceeding, although it involves granting a discharge to each of the partners, and only one deposit of the filing fee is required; it cannot be demanded of the partners, as a prerequisite to discharging them, that they should each separately deposit a like fee. In re Langslow (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 869, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 258; In re Gay (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 870, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 529. But compare In re Farley (D. C. 1902) 115 Fed. 359, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 266. But where a partnership files a voluntary petition for the adjudication in bankruptcy of the firm as suc also separate petitions for the adj tion of the several partners, eac tion, with the accompanying sche constitutes a separate and d "case," within the meaning of the ute, and a deposit of the sta filing fees must be made, not on the partnership, but also for each ber of the firm who seeks an adj tion. In re Barden (D. C. 1900 Fed. 553, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 31.

3. —— By petitioning credit When the filing fees are deposit the petitioning creditors in an in tary case, or by their attorney them, they are entitled to hav amount refunded to them out estate in bankruptcy. In re Silv (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 325, 3 Am. Rep. 227; In re J. W. Harrison cantile Co. (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 419.

4. Clerk's docket.—The clerk's d required to be kept by General No. 1 (§ 9614, ante), should sho only the fact and the date of the of each petition in bankruptcy also that it was filed in duplica required by the statute, if thi done. In re Stevenson (D. C. 189 Fed. 110, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 6 re Dupree (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 2

As a court of bankruptcy is a open for the transaction of bu and has no regular terms, it i necessary for the clerk to ma entry showing the opening and of the court on days when he proceedings in bankruptcy cases. ley v. U. S. (1909) 45 Ct. Cl. 36

§ 9636. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 52.) Compensation of c and marshals.

Compensation of Clerks and Marshals.—a Clerks shall re tively receive as full compensation for their service to each es a filing fee of ten dollars, except when a fee is not required a voluntary bankrupt.

b Marshals shall respectively receive from the estate wher adjudication in bankruptcy is made, except as herein otherwise vided, for the performance of their services in proceedings in b ruptcy, the same fees, and account for them in the same way, as are entitled to receive for the performance of the same or si services in other cases in accordance with laws now in force, or as may be hereafter enacted, fixing the compensation of mars (30 Stat. 559.)

Notes of Decisions

1. Fees of clerks.—Where the local rule of court provides that the notice of final meeting shall be issued by the clerk in accordance with Official Form No. 57 (§ 9614, ante), which includes the petition for the bankrupt's discharge, the order of notice, jurat, etc., it is held that the clerk is not entitled to charge a fee of 25 cents for each notice sent to creditors, on petition for discharge, but is only entitled to the actual items of expense thereon for postage, stationery, and clerical a ance. In re Dunn Hardware & I ture Co. (D. C. 1905) 134 Fed. 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 186.

Sections 1383, 1405, ante, hel to entitle clerks of federal cou Washington to fees for sending ou ies of the petition and notice of a plication for a bankrupt's discl he being entitled only to charge sary expense therefor under s 9642, post, and General Bankrupt der 35 (ante, § 9614). In re Loughney (D. C. 1914) 218 Fed. 980.

A clerk of a federal district and circuit court is entitled to his statutory per diem compensation for days on which he refers to the referee in bankruptcy voluntary petitions in bankruptcy filed during the absence of the judge from the district, though without written orders to open the court for that or any other purpose. U. S. v. Marvin (1909) 29 Sup. Ct. 297, 298, 212 U. S. 275, 53 L. Ed. 510.

If a per diem can be allowed a clerk in equity and admiralty cases when a judge is not present, it should likewise be allowed in a bankruptcy court. Owen v. U. S. (1906) 41 Ct. Cl. 69.

Section 1657, ante, which abolishes the clerk's supervision fee where it is sought to review a final order or decree on writ of error or appeal, held to apply to a petition to revise in bankruptcy proceedings. In re Burr Mfg. Co. (C. C. A. 1914) 215 Fed. 898.

2. Accounts and claims of marshals.—Marshals must present vouchers for the items charged in their accounts, or produce satisfactory reasons for the absence of such vouchers. In re Comstock (D. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 88, Fed. Cas. No. 3,075. The claim of the marshal for expenditures must be supported by his own oath as to their amount and the necessity for them. In re Hellmar (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 6,342. Such affidavit is not conclusive so as to preclude any further inquiry into the items charged. In re Pace (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 10,640.

§ 9637. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 53.) Duties of Attorney-General.

Duties of Attorney-General.—a The Attorney-General shall annually lay before Congress statistical tables showing for the whole country, and by States, the number of cases during the year of voluntary and involuntary bankruptcy; the amount of the property of the estates; the dividends paid and the expenses of administering such estates; and such other like information as he may deem important. (30 Stat. 559.)

§ 9638. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 54.) Statistics of bankruptcy proceedings.

Statistics of Bankruptcy Proceedings.—a Officers shall furnish in writing and transmit by mail such information as is within their knowledge, and as may be shown by the records and papers in their possession, to the Attorney-General, for statistical purposes, within ten days after being requested by him to do so. (30 Stat. 559.)

CHAPTER SIX

Creditors

Sec.
9639. Meetings of creditors.
9640. Voters at meetings of creditors.
9641. Proof and allowance of claims.
9642. Notices to creditors.
9643. Who may file and dismiss petitions.
9644. Preferred creditors.

§ 9639. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 55.) Meetings of creditors.

Meetings of Creditors.—a The court shall cause the first meeting of the creditors of a bankrupt to be held, not less than ten nor more than thirty days after the adjudication, at the county seat of the county in which the bankrupt has had his principal place of business, resided, or had his domicile; or if that place would be manifestly inconvenient as a place of meeting for the parties in interest, or if the bankrupt is one who does not do business, reside, or have his domicile within the United States, the court shall fix a place for the meeting which is the most convenient for parties in interest. If such meeting should by any mischance not be held within such time, the court shall fix the date, as soon as may be thereafter, when it shall be held.

b At the first meeting of creditors the judge or referee shall preside, and, before proceeding with the other business, may allow or disallow the claims of creditors there presented, and may publicly examin bankrupt or cause him to be examined at the instance of any itor.

c The creditors shall at each meeting take such steps as may be tinent and necessary for the promotion of the best interests o estate and the enforcement of this Act.

d A meeting of creditors, subsequent to the first one, may be at any time and place when all of the creditors who have secure allowance of their claims sign a written consent to hold a meeti such time and place.

e The court shall call a meeting of creditors whenever one-four more in number of those who have proven their claims shall written request to that effect; if such request is signed by a maj of such creditors, which number represents a majority in amou such claims, and contains a request for such meeting to be held designated place, the court shall call such meeting at such within thirty days after the date of the filing of the request.

f Whenever the affairs of the estate are ready to be closed a meeting of creditors shall be ordered. (30 Stat. 559, 560.)

Notes of Decisions

1. Meetings of creditors.—A creditors' meeting should not be held on a public holiday, but the fact that it was so held will not be cause for setting aside the proceedings taken at that meeting where it appears that no one was injured thereby. In re McGlynn (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 8,804.

In the absence of any specific provisions of law, the conduct of a creditors' meeting is properly guided by the rules and usages of parliamentary bodies. In re Merchants' Ins. Co. (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 9,442.

Where objections to a claim are filed on the ground that the claimant has received a preference, he should not be permitted to take any part in the creditors' meeting until the matter has been heard and determined. In re Columbia Iron Works (D. C. 1904) 142 Fed. 234, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 526.

If there were irregularities in the calling of the first meeting or in the notices to creditors, or if, for any other cause affecting the common interest of all in the estate, it seems to the referee proper to adjourn the meeting to a future fixed day, he has power to do so. In re Cheney (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 16, Fed. Cas. No. 2,637; In re Devlin (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 3,841. But in order to take this action, the referee must himself be present at the meeting. If he is prevented from attending, he cannot adjourn the meeting by letter. In that case, the meeting wholly fails and a new meeting must be called. In re Dickinson (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 514, Fed. Cas. No. 3,895.

2. Representation by attorney or proxy.—Where a letter of attorney, to represent and act for the principal at a creditors' meeting in bankruptcy, is given to two or more persons jointly, its authority cannot be exercised by one of the attorneys alone. In re Phelps (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R Fed. Cas. No. 11,071. If one joint proxies is disqualified, becau is the bankrupt's attorney, neit them can vote under the power torney at a creditors' meeting. Columbia Iron Works (D. C. 190 Fed. 234, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 5

A letter of attorney merely e ering the agent to attend and v meetings of creditors will not a ize him to file opposition to the rupt's application for discharge. itors v. Williams (C. C. 1870) 4 R. 579, Fed. Cas. No. 3,379.

Where an attorney sought to sent certain creditors upon an ap ment by their general attorney was himself constituted and ap prior to the passage of the bank law, by a power of attorney au ing him to sign the creditors' to any paper writing, proper or sary to collect or receive debt with power of substitution, held the authority of the special at was sufficient. In re Knoepfel 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 7,892.

An attorney at law, who is a ber of the bar of the particular need not produce a written a knowledged authority in order to sent his client at creditors' meeti bankruptcy, in respect to such a fall within the ordinary scope of torney's duties and employment. Scott (D. C. 1876) 15 N. B. R. 7 Cas. No. 12,519; In re Hill 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 6,481.

3. Participation of creditors i ceedings.—The rights of credito parties to the proceeding in bankr arise and accrue only upon pr their claims. In re Jones (D. C. 2 N. B. R. 59, Fed. Cas. No. 7,4 re Brisco (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. Fed. Cas. No. 1,886.

A nonresident creditor subject self to the jurisdiction of the court by proving his debt, and is thereafter bound to obey all the orders of the court touching his claim, and the court can, in case he disobeys its orders, deprive him of all the benefit of the act, and can reject and expunge his claim. In re Kyler (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 7,956.

If no trustee has yet been appointed, any creditor may petition the court to enjoin another creditor from proceeding with a pending suit, or enforcing a voidable lien or attachment against the bankrupt, and injunction may issue on such petition. In re Carrier (D. C. 1892) 51 Fed. 900.

Any creditor may object to the allowance of another creditor's claim, and if it is allowed, the objecting creditor may move the court to direct the trustee to appeal, or to allow him to appeal in the name of the trustee. Chatfield v. O'Dwyer (C. C. A. 1900) 101 Fed. 797, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 313.

If the trustee sells property of the bankrupt for a grossly inadequate price, himself discouraging competition, and refuses to have the sale set aside, a dissatisfied creditor may take action in that behalf. In re Groves (1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 466.

While the trustee is the one in whom the title to the bankrupt's property is vested, and therefore the proper person to bring all necessary actions for its recovery, yet the creditors are interested in having the assets brought in and realized upon, and the trustee cannot complain of the institution by creditors of suits to recover assets which he, the trustee, might intentionally or unintentionally permit to escape. Davis v. W. F. Vandiver & Co. (1905) 143 Ala. 202, 38 South. 850.

4. Furnishing indemnity for expenses.—Where creditors of an estate desire the trustee to bring suit to set aside alleged preferences or fraudulent conveyances, or otherwise to recover property alleged to belong to the bankrupt, they may be required to guaranty to the trustee all the probable costs and expenses likely to be incurred in the prosecution of such suit, if there are no funds of the estate to pay such expenses, or if the money in hand is not more than enough for the creditors having priority, or if the wish of those creditors is opposed by the trustee himself or by a considerable body of other creditors. In re Barrett (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 362, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 626; In re Barnes (D. C. 1883) 18 Fed. 158; In re Griffith, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 546; In re Hughes (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 226, Fed. Cas. No. 6,841; In re Sawyer (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 460, Fed. Cas. No. 12,396; In re McNamara (1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 341. But though a trustee in bankruptcy is not required to litigate every question called to his notice by creditors, however frivolous or apparently lacking in support, yet he cannot, by requiring indemnity in every instance against costs and expenses, cast the risk of a controversy respecting alleged preferences, etc., on the particular creditor requesting him to undertake it. In re Baird (D. C. 1902) 112 Fed. 960, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 448.

§ 9640. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 56.) Voters at meetings of creditors.

Voters at Meetings of Creditors.—a Creditors shall pass upon matters submitted to them at their meetings by a majority vote in number and amount of claims of all creditors whose claims have been allowed and are present, except as herein otherwise provided.

b Creditors holding claims which are secured or have priority shall not, in respect to such claims, be entitled to vote at creditors' meetings, nor shall such claims be counted in computing either the number of creditors or the amount of their claims, unless the amounts of such claims exceed the values of such securities or priorities, and then only for such excess. (30 Stat. 560.)

Notes of Decisions

I. General Creditors

1. Right to vote in general.
2. Representation by attorney.
3. Controlling actions of trustee.

II. Secured Creditors

4. Who are secured creditors.
5. Mortgagees.
6. Judgment creditors.
7. Pledgees, assignees, and holders of collateral.
8. Holders of notes.
9. Effect of additional security or claim against third person.
10. Voting at creditors' meetings.

I. GENERAL CREDITORS

1. Right to vote in general.—A creditor who holds a voidable preference has a provable claim, in the sense that formal written proof of it may be made and filed, but it is a claim on which he cannot be allowed to vote until he has surrendered his preference. Stevens v. Nave-McCord Mercantile Co. (C. C. A. 1906) 150 Fed. 71, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 609.

Where, after a decision by the referee between two parties as to the right to vote upon a claim, the person aggrieved allows the vote to be taken without further objection, he cannot again reopen the question. In re Spencer (C. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 199, Fed. Cas. No. 13,220.

Claims which have been proved, and then sold and assigned before the election of a trustee, must be voted upon in such election by the actual owner at the time and not by the original creditor. In re Frank (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 5,050.

2. Representation by attorney.—An attorney at law, retained generally to represent a creditor in bankruptcy proceedings, cannot cast the vote of such creditor in the election of a trustee at a creditors' meeting, without showing an express authorization thereto as attorney in fact. In re Blankfein (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 191, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 165; In re Christley (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 2,702.

3. Controlling actions of trustee.—The provision of this section that "creditors shall pass upon matters submitted to them at meetings by a majority vote" does not vest such majority at a special meeting with authority to direct the trustee to compromise and discontinue a pending suit. In re Meadows, Williams & Co. (D. C. 1910) 181 Fed. 911, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 100.

While it is not necessarily the duty of a trustee in bankruptcy to follow the wishes of a majority in number and amount of the creditors in prosecuting or defending suits, yet when his judgment concurs with that of a great majority of the creditors who speak, all having the opportunity to speak, that it would be inadvisable to defend a pending suit against the bankrupt, and not for the best interest of the estate, he is justified in refusing to defend, and it is not error for the referee, on application of the minority, to refuse to direct him to do so, unless such creditors will assume responsibility for the expense. In re Kearney (D. C. 1910) 184 Fed. 190, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 757.

II. SECURED CREDITORS

4. Who are secured creditors.—Under § 9585, cl. 23, ante, defining a secured creditor as one "who has security for his debt upon the property of the bankrupt of a nature to be assignable under this act, or who owns such a debt for which some indorser, surety, or other person secondarily liable for the bankrupt has such security upon the bankrupt's assets," the creditor must either hold security against the property of the bankrupt himself, or be secured by the individual obligation of another who holds such security. Gorman v. Wright (1905) 136 Fed. 164, 69 C. C. A. 76, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 135. Under the former bankruptcy law it was held that a creditor was not to be treated as "secured" because a surety or guarantor of the debt was protected by a lien on the bankrupt's property. In re (D. C. 1877) 15 N. B. R. 257, Fe No. 8,429.

To constitute a lien or security in the meaning of the act, there be a security additional to the pe obligation of the debtor. Shoem National Mechanics' Bank (C. C. Fed. Cas. No. 12,801.

A banker has no lien upon the eys of a depositor for any se debt which the depositor may c him, and the mere fact that he such moneys on deposit at the t the bankruptcy does not make secured creditor. In re Warne C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 414, Fed No. 17,177; In re Weeks (D. C. Fed. Cas. No. 17,349.

Where a firm is dissolved and the partners assumes payment the debts, this makes him a pri debtor and the other partner a s but it does not follow that a cr of the partnership becomes a s creditor. Schmitt v. Greenberg 58 Misc. Rep. 570, 109 N. Y. 881.

Where the bankrupt had b goods on credit, and payment guaranteed to the seller by a thir son, the creditor is not "secured less the guarantor has taken se from the bankrupt. In re Anc (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 350.

A mere promise by a subse purchaser of property subject to chanic's lien, in consideration o bearance, to pay the demand se by the lien, is not "collateral s ty" and does not discharge the Mervin v. Sherman (1859) 9 Iowa

It is necessary that the se should attach to the bankrupt's " erty" or "assets"; that is, there be a lien upon property which otherwise go into the general fu be available for the claims of g al creditors. In re Spades (D. C. Fed. Cas. No. 13,196. And a cr holding security on property never belonged to the bankrupt prove his whole debt without firs posing of the security. In re Du son (D. C. 1868) 12 N. B. R. Fed. Cas. No. 4,157. A bank h the note of a third person, secur a pledge of stock which does no long to the bankrupt, the latter liable thereon as an indorser, prove its claim against the bank estate without surrendering the In re Thompson (D. C. 1913) 208 207.

The term "security," as used i bankruptcy act, will include ever terest or right attached to or whi a charge upon specific property which entitles the owner thereof paid out of specific property, wh legal or equitable, absolute or co gent. Storm v. Waddell (N. Y. 1 2 Sandf. Ch. 494. Where the by of a corporation provide that it shall have a lien on the stock of any shareholder for his indebtedness to the corporation, and an indebted stockholder becomes bankrupt, the corporation is a secured creditor. In re Morrison (D. C. 1873) 10 N. B. R. 105, Fed. Cas. No. 9,839. Taxes, particularly those assessed by municipalities, may or may not attach to real property as liens, according to the local law, and upon this will depend the position of the state or municipality as a secured or unsecured creditor. In re Harvey (D. C. 1903) 122 Fed. 745, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 567.

When property or securities are delivered to a creditor, it may be the intention and understanding of the parties that a payment and discharge of the debt shall be effected, rather than the creation of a lien, and in the former case, the creditor cannot present himself in the guise of a secured creditor, though he may have been disappointed in the value of the property turned over to him. In re Black Diamond Copper Min. Co. (1908) 11 Ariz. 415, 95 Pac. 117.

It is not permissible for the bankrupt himself, after receiving his discharge, to purchase and take an assignment to himself of debts against his own estate in bankruptcy secured by liens, and collect the same for his own use out of assets in the hands of his trustee, to the exclusion of subsequent lien holders. His purchase of his own debt operates to extinguish the debt, and this rule is not affected by the fact of his having been discharged, because the discharge does not destroy or extinguish the debt, though it bars the remedy for its recovery. In re Burton (D. C. 1886) 29 Fed. 637.

5. Mortgagees.—The holder of a mortgage on real or personal property of a bankrupt is a secured creditor within the meaning of this section. Krugmeier v. Hackett (1907) 134 Wis. 57, 113 N. W. 1103. Bondholders of a bankrupt corporation are not precluded from proving their debts as secured because of their omission to record the deed of trust securing the bonds. In re Charles Town Light & Power Co. (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 846, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 721. The holder of a mortgage on the bankrupt's property is a secured creditor although the mortgage was not made by the bankrupt himself, but by his predecessor in the title. McKay v. Hamill (C. C. A. 1911) 185 Fed. 11, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 164. See In re Altenheim (D. C. 1867) 1 N. B. R. 85, Fed. Cas. No. 268. It is immaterial that the mortgage covers after-acquired property as well as that in possession at the time. Barnard v. Norwich & W. R. Co. (C. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 469, Fed. Cas. No. 1,007. See In re Baker (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 762. The joint note of a husband and wife secured by a deed of trust on the wife's property should be allowed as a secured claim against the estate of the husband in bankruptcy, although the wife may have died leaving heirs. In re Hartel (D. C. 1873) 7 N. B. R. 559, Fed. Cas. No. 6,157.

A creditor holding a mortgage on exempt property of the bankrupt is not entitled to receive a dividend on his entire claim, and resort to the security only to satisfy an unpaid balance. In re Lantzenheimer (D. C. 1903) 124 Fed. 716, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 720. One holding a mortgage on the exempt homestead of the bankrupt is a secured creditor. Fenley v. Poor (1903) 121 Fed. 739, 58 C. C. A. 21, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 377. CONTRA, In re Bailey (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 990, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 201.

An equitable lien on land, in the nature of a mortgage, is a security within the meaning of the act. In re Peasley (D. C. 1905) 137 Fed. 190, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 496. Where money is loaned or advanced under an agreement that it is to be used to discharge an incumbrance on the borrower's property, and the lender is to have a first lien to secure its repayment, and the money is so used, the lender may be subrogated to the rights of the incumbrancer whose debt was paid, against the borrower's trustee in bankruptcy. In re Lee (C. C. A. 1910) 182 Fed. 579, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 436; Dewey v. Kelton (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 217, Fed. Cas. No. 3,850.

6. Judgment creditors.—Ownership of a judgment against the bankrupt will constitute the creditor a "secured creditor," within the meaning of the act, provided there is property of the bankrupt upon which the judgment may attach, or has attached, as a lien. In re Cale (D. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 439, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 367; Guardians of Poor v. Ovens, L. R. 8 Ex. 37. See American Woolen Co. v. Maaget (1912) 86 Conn. 234, 85 Atl. 583. But not so if the law of the state confines the lien of judgments to real property and the estate of the particular bankrupt consists wholly of personalty. In re Erwin (D. C. 1870) 3 N. B. R. 580, Fed. Cas. No. 4,524.

Where the creditor claims the rights of a secured creditor by virtue of an alleged judgment lien on the property of the estate, the burden is on him to show that he has done everything required by statute to make his judgment attach as a lien. In re Wood (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 946, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 695. Where, by the local law, a lien is acquired on property only by the levy of an execution upon it, the fact that a creditor has procured and docketed a judgment against the bankrupt, or has caused a writ to be issued, thereon, will not make him a secured creditor within the meaning of the bankruptcy law. In re McIntosh (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 506, Fed. Cas. No. 8,826. Where a judgment recovered before a justice of the peace is not a lien on land until docketed in the superior court, this step must have been taken before the bankruptcy, or the judgment will not constitute a security within the meaning of the act. In re Wood (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 946, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 695. And the same is true of a judgment which has been allowed to become dormant, unless the statute of limitations is applicable only in favor of subsequent purchasers and judgment creditors, in which case, not being available in favor of the judgment debtor, it cannot be set up in favor of his trustee in bankruptcy. In re Huddell (C. C. 1891) 47 Fed. 207. It is otherwise if the dormant judgment has been duly revived. Appeal of Bucknor (Pa. 1886) 4 Atl. 738.

A judgment creditor does not acquire a lien, such as to make him a secured creditor, by the mere commencement of proceedings supplementary to execution, for, until the appointment of a receiver, his right is not a lien. In re Wheeler (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 385, Fed. Cas. No. 17,490. A judgment creditor who attacks an alleged fraudulent conveyance, but does not procure a decree setting it aside until after the bankruptcy of the debtor, is not a secured creditor within this section. In re Estes (C. C. 1880) 5 Fed. 60.

7. Pledgees, assignees, and holders of collateral.—One holding specific personal property in pledge, as a means of enforcing the payment of a debt, is a secured creditor within this section. In re Peebles (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 10,902. One is also a secured creditor whose claim is secured by the pledge of bonds, stocks, mortgages, or other collateral security. In re McVay (D. C. 1882) 13 Fed. 443; Dayton Nat. Bank v. Merchants' Nat. Bank (1881) 37 Ohio St. 208; Mitchell v. Roberts (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 776; Dumont v. Fry (C. C. 1882) 14 Fed. 293. One who holds a policy of insurance on the life of his debtor as collateral security for the debt, is a secured creditor. Burlingham v. Crouse (C. C. A. 1910) 181 Fed. 479, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 632; In re Mertens (D. C. 1905) 134 Fed. 101, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 226; In re Newland (D. C. 1873) 7 N. B. R. 477, Fed. Cas. No. 10,170; In re Shoenberger (D. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 12,-802. An assignment of a lease running to the debtor will constitute the creditor a secured creditor. Fitch v. Richardson (1906) 147 Fed. 197, 77 C. C. A. 423, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 835. And so of the transfer of an order drawn on a third person. In re Hines (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 543, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 495. Or an assignment of money to become due under a contract. In re De Long Furniture Co. (1 1911) 188 Fed. 686, 26 Am. B Rep. 469. But the holder of a houseman's receipt which is att to a note executed to the wareh man, as collateral security, is not cured creditor in the bankruptcy o warehouseman. State v. Federal ion Surety Co. (1911) 156 Mo. 603, 137 S. W. 613.

The holder of a protested drawn by a bankrupt bank, is no titled to preference over other cred of the bank, in the character of cured creditor, merely because drawee, which was another bank, funds of the drawer in its hands a time it refused to accept the Bank of Commerce v. Russell (C 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 884.

8. Holders of notes.—A promis note is not a security for the pay of a debt, within the meaning of section. United States Trust C Brady (N. Y. 1855) 20 Barb. 119. indorsement of the bankrupt's not a third person does not make the er a secured creditor, unless the in er has security on property of bankrupt. In re Broich (D. C. 1 Fed. Cas. No. 1,921.

A creditor of a bankrupt who ho note containing a waiver of exemp is in the position of a secured cre the exempt property being in effe security for his debt. In re Mer (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 230, 16 Bankr. Rep. 331.

9. Effect of additional security claim against third person.—If a itor of the bankrupt holds securi the form of an obligation of a person, but the third person does hold counter security, the creditor prove his debt in the bankruptcy out surrendering the security, and notwithstanding such proof, proce enforce his security against such person, provided, however, that he not take, under the bankruptcy the security, more than the full am of his debt. In re Babcock (C 1844) Fed. Cas. No. 696; In re Th as (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 54, Cas. No. 13,886; In re Beaver Knit Mills (1907) 154 Fed. 320, 83 C. C 240, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 528; I Otto F. Lange Co. (D. C. 1909) Fed. 114, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 414 re Kinne (D. C. 1880) 5 Fed. 59 re Sauthoff (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B 364, Fed. Cas. No. 12,379; In re M (1907) 14 N. Mex. 246, 89 Pac. The enforcement of the security in case does not diminish the estate o bankrupt to which the general or secured creditors must look for s faction, and moreover, the court bankruptcy would have no authorit interfere between the creditor and third person, the latter being a st ger to the bankruptcy proceedings. re Thomas (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas.

13,886. So, if a judgment is recovered against two codefendants, and execution thereon is levied on the property of one of them, and the other is adjudged bankrupt, the judgment creditor may prove his claim against the bankrupt as unsecured. In re Headley (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 765, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 272. And a creditor of a bankrupt partnership is not required to apply securities in his hands, which are the individual property of one of the partners, upon his claim against the partnership estate. In re Mertens (1906) 144 Fed. 818, 75 C. C. A. 548, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 362. The rule is the same where the creditor is additionally secured by the undertaking of a third person to guaranty the performance of the bankrupt's contract or to be surety for him. The creditor loses none of his rights or remedies against the surety by proving his debt in the bankruptcy proceedings and participating in the distribution of the estate. In re Levy (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 327, Fed. Cas. No. 8,297; Gorman v. Wright (1905) 136 Fed. 164, 69 C. C. A. 76, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 135; Vette v. J. S. Merrell Drug Co. (1909) 137 Mo. App. 229, 117 S. W. 666. And the surety upon a promissory note is liable in an action on the note, although the principal has been adjudged a bankrupt and the note has been filed by the payee in the bankruptcy proceedings. Gregg v. Wilson (1875) 50 Ind. 490, 15 N. B. R. 142.

Where the bankrupt was indorser on a note, and his liability has become fixed and absolute, the creditor holding the note may prove its full amount against him, notwithstanding the primary liability of the maker of the note, and even though he holds a mortgage on the latter's property, to secure it, which has not been foreclosed and which he does not surrender. In re Cram (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 3,343; Gorman v. Wright (1905) 136 Fed. 164, 69 C. C. A. 76, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 135. And where both the maker and indorser of a note are in bankruptcy, the holder may prove the amount of the note as a claim against each, and receive dividends from both estates, up to the full amount of his debt. National Mt. Wollaston Bank v. Porter (1877) 122 Mass. 308. But a creditor holding a note of the bankrupt, and, as collateral security therefor, another note on which the bankrupt is also liable, is not entitled to prove his claim against the estate in bankruptcy for both, but only for the amount of the actual indebtedness to him. First Nat. Bank v. Eason (1906) 149 Fed. 204, 79 C. C. A. 162, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 593.

Where a mortgage was made by the bankrupt to secure the mortgagee as a surety for him, it was held that the mortgagee was not entitled to be paid personally the amounts of the debts for which he was surety out of the bankrupt's estate, but was entitled to have such debts paid to the creditors out of the proceeds of the mortgaged property, and to be released from his liability as surety. In re Randolph (D. C. 1911) 187 Fed. 186, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623.

10. Voting at creditors' meetings.—Where a partnership creditor holds securities on both the property of the partnership and the individual property of one of the partners (the firm and all its members being in bankruptcy together), the value of the security on the individual property of the partner need not be deducted in ascertaining the voting power of the creditor, but only the value of the security on the firm property. In re Coe, Powers & Co., 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 294. But a mortgage creditor who, after the adjudication, sells the mortgaged premises, and himself becomes the purchaser, cannot vote on the deficiency as an unsecured creditor. In re Hunt (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 205, Fed. Cas. No. 6,884.

§ 9641. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 57, as amended, Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 12.) Proof and allowance of claims.

Proof and Allowance of Claims.—a Proof of claims shall consist of a statement under oath, in writing, signed by a creditor setting forth the claim, the consideration therefor, and whether any, and, if so what, securities are held therefor, and whether any, and, if so what, payments have been made thereon, and that the sum claimed is justly owing from the bankrupt to the creditor.

b Whenever a claim is founded upon an instrument of writing, such instrument, unless lost or destroyed, shall be filed with the proof of claim. If such instrument is lost or destroyed, a statement of such fact and of the circumstances of such loss or destruction shall be filed under oath with the claim. After the claim is allowed or disallowed, such instrument may be withdrawn by permission of the court, upon leaving a copy thereof on file with the claim.

c Claims after being proved may, for the purpose of allowance, be filed by the claimants in the court where the proceedings are pending or before the referee if the case has been referred.

d Claims which have been duly proved shall be allowed, upo ceipt by or upon presentation to the court, unless objection to allowance shall be made by parties in interest, or their consider be continued for cause by the court upon its own motion.

e Claims of secured creditors and those who have priority ma allowed to enable such creditors to participate in the proceedin creditors' meetings held prior to the determination of the valu their securities or priorities, but shall be allowed for such only as to the courts seem to be owing over and above the val their securities or priorities.

f Objections to claims shall be heard and determined as soon a convenience of the court and the best interests of the estates an claimants will permit.

g The claims of creditors who have received preferences, able under section sixty, subdivision b, or to whom conveyances, t fers, assignments, or incumbrances, void or voidable under se sixty-seven, subdivision e, have been made or given, shall not b lowed unless such creditors shall surrender such preferences, veyances, transfers, assignments, or incumbrances.

h The value of securities held by secured creditors shall be d mined by converting the same into money according to the ter the agreement pursuant to which such securities were deliver such creditors or by such creditors and the trustee, by agree arbitration, compromise, or litigation, as the court may direct the amount of such value shall be credited upon such claims, a dividend shall be paid only on the unpaid balance.

i Whenever a creditor, whose claim against a bankrupt est secured by the individual undertaking of any person, fails to p such claim, such person may do so in the creditor's name, and discharge such undertaking in whole or in part he shall be subro to that extent to the rights of the creditor.

j Debts owing to the United States, a State, a county, a distri a municipality as a penalty or forfeiture shall not be allowed, e for the amount of the pecuniary loss sustained by the act, transa or proceeding out of which the penalty or forfeiture arose, reasonable and actual costs occasioned thereby and such intere may have accrued thereon according to law.

k Claims which have been allowed may be reconsidered for and reallowed or rejected in whole or in part, according to the ties of the case, before but not after the estate has been closed l Whenever a claim shall have been reconsidered and rejecte whole or in part, upon which a dividend has been paid, the tr may recover from the creditor the amount of the dividend rec upon the claim if rejected in whole, or the proportional part th if rejected only in part.

m The claim of any estate which is being administered in b ruptcy against any like estate may be proved by the trustee ar lowed by the court in the same manner and upon like terms a claims of other creditors.

n Claims shall not be proved against a bankrupt estate subse to one year after the adjudication; or if they are liquidate litigation and the final judgment therein is rendered within t days before or after the expiration of such time, then within days after the rendition of such judgment: Provided, That the of infants and insane persons without guardians, without noti the proceedings, may continue six months longer. (30 Stat. 32 Stat. 799.)

In this section, as originally enacted, subdivision g thereof was as fo "g The claims of creditors who have received preferences shall not be a unless such creditors shall surrender their preferences."

Said subdivision g was amended by Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 12, cited above, to read as set forth here.

Section 19 of said amendatory Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, 32 Stat. 801, provided that the act should not apply to bankruptcy cases pending when it took effect, but that such cases should be adjudicated and disposed of conformably to the provisions of the original act.

Notes of Decisions

1. Necessity of proof of claims.
2. Effect of proof.
3. —— Rights of action.
4. Time of making proof.
5. —— Claims liquidated by litigation.
6. —— Allowance of proof after expiration of year.
7. —— Proof after declaration of dividend.
8. Persons authorized to prove.
9. Proof by agent or attorney.
10. Proof by assignee of claim.
11. Proof by secured creditors.
12. —— Waiver of security and proof of debt.
13. —— Amendment of proof to claim security.
14. —— Settling value of security.
15. —— Claim for deficiency.
16. —— Claim for interest and costs.
17. —— Right to rely on security and disregard bankruptcy proceedings.
18. Form and sufficiency of deposition.
19. —— Claims founded on written instruments.
20. Acknowledgment of deposition.
21. Receiving and filing proofs.
22. Allowance of proved claims.
23. —— Allowance as adjudication.
24. Postponement of proofs.
25. Objections to claims.
26. —— Manner and form of objections.
27. —— Grounds of objection.
28. —— Contest and determination.
29. —— Burden of proof and evidence.
30. Amendment of proofs.
31. —— After expiration of year.
32. —— By secured creditors.
33. Withdrawal of proofs.
34. Re-examination of claims and expunging.
35. —— Parties who may apply.
36. —— Grounds for expunging claim.
37. —— Proceedings and evidence.
38. Review of referee's proceedings by judge.

1. Necessity of proof of claims.—In general, a creditor is not compelled to present his claim, and his failure to do so may merely deprive him of the right to share in the distribution and bar any further relief against the bankrupt. In re Kligerman (D. C. 1915) 219 Fed. 758. Where property of a bankrupt, on which is a mortgage given by him, is sold in the bankruptcy proceedings free of the incumbrance, the mortgagee, who intervenes merely to subject the proceeds to part payment of his debt, is not bound to prove his claim. In re Goldsmith (D. C. 1902) 118 Fed. 763, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 419. And a creditor may procure an order for the examination of the bankrupt, without first proving his claim, when he desires by this means to ascertain whether it will be worth while to prove his claim. In re Jehu (D. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 638, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 498; In re Walker (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 550, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 35. But if he wishes to participate in the distribution of the bankrupt's estate, through and by means of the bankruptcy proceedings, it is necessary for him to establish his status and the validity and amount of his claim by proving it as the law directs. In re Dunn Hardware & Furniture Co. (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 719, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 147. Where all things necessary to bring a proposed composition before the court for confirmation have been done, the court cannot as a matter of law refuse confirmation on the objection of creditors whose claims, though mentioned in the schedules, have not been proved or allowed. In re French (D. C. 1909) 181 Fed. 583.

Since taxes assessed against the property of a bankrupt during the administration of his estate are matters of public record, they need not be proved as a claim against the bankrupt's estate in order to be allowed. In re Prince & Walter (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 546, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 675. Where a city has a lien for municipal taxes only on the property assessed, it has no right to share in the general assets of a delinquent taxpayer who is a bankrupt, and need not prove its claim in order to preserve its lien. In re Harvey (D. C. 1903) 122 Fed. 745, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 567.

The United States is not bound to prove a debt or claim in bankruptcy, as a condition to the priority of payment accorded to it by the statute. In re Stoever (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 394; U. S. v. Lewis (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 15,595; In re Bousfield & Poole Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 1,704.

A landlord, having a lien or charge for the rent due him on the property of his tenant at the time of the latter's bankruptcy, but the amount of which has not been adjudicated, must, in order to preserve his priority, establish his claim by proof, the same as other creditors. In re Hayward (D. C. 1904) 130 Fed. 720, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 264.

The lien of a judgment is not lost by failure to prove the claim in bankruptcy. Cottrell v. Pierson (C. C. 1881) 12 Fed. 805. But the judgment creditor cannot share in the distribution of the estate without proving his claim. In re Rosenberg (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 442, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 465. Where the defendant in a judgment is adjudicated a bankrupt, and the plaintiff with knowledge of the bankruptcy proceedings fails to schedule his judgment in such proceedings, he cannot thereafter set off his judgment against a judgment of the bankrupt recovered against him prior to the bankruptcy proceedings.

Shoemaker v. Hurwitz (1914) 56 Pa. Super. Ct. 632.

The finding, in a decree of adjudication in involuntary bankruptcy, that the petitioning creditor has a valid and provable claim to a certain amount, is not conclusive upon the trustee and creditors, so as to dispense with proof of the debt of that creditor, or to preclude questioning his right to participate in the distribution of the estate. In re Harper (D. C. 1910) 175 Fed. 412, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 918; In re Cleveland Ins. Co. (C. C. 1884) 22 Fed. 200. And a voluntary litigation against the trustee of a claim against the estate, resulting in a judgment against the trustee, does not create a preferred debt which can be enforced directly against the estate, but its only effect is to liquidate the claim, and the judgment must be proved. In re Havens (D. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 367, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 116. The statement of a debt in the schedule of the bankrupt is not a proof of it; it may be stated in fraud and may not exist, or the bankrupt may have made payments upon it or have counterclaims against it. The debt must be proved by the oath of the creditor as the law directs. In re Davis (D. C. 1874) 2 N. B. R. 391, Fed. Cas. No. 3,618.

A creditor who proves his debt in bankruptcy must do so absolutely and according to the directions of the statute and the rules of the court, and will not be allowed to interpose any protest, qualification, or reservation. Dutton v. Freeman (C. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 4,210.

The ordinary proceedings upon the proof and allowance of the demands presented by creditors are part of the entire proceeding in bankruptcy, and are not to be regarded as so many separate suits at law or in equity. Wiswall v. Campbell (1876) 93 U. S. 347, 23 L. Ed. 923.

2. Effect of proof.—A creditor who proves his claim against the bankrupt's estate and participates in the subsequent proceedings cannot afterwards deny the court's jurisdiction to make the adjudication of bankruptcy. Sabin v. Larkin-Green Logging Co. (D. C. 1914) 218 Fed. 984. If the creditor is a nonresident, his proving his claim amounts to an acceptance of the jurisdiction of the court over him, and his obedience to its orders in the bankruptcy proceeding may be enforced by the power of striking out his claim. In re Kyler (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 7,956. If an alien creditor voluntarily appears and proves his claim and receives a dividend thereon, he waives his exterritorial immunity from the operation of the bankruptcy law, which otherwise would have saved his claim from the effect of the bankrupt's discharge. Clay v. Smith (1830) 3 Pet. 411, 7 L. Ed. 723.

Proof of claim establishes the status of the claimant as a creditor o bankrupt, connects him with the ceedings, and gives him the rig participate therein to the fullest e allowed to creditors. In re Smit C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 12,971; Baldwin (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas 795. He may join in a call for a ing of creditors. In re Back Ba tomobile Co. (D. C. 1907) 158 Fed 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 835. He ma charges against the trustee and as his removal. In re Roanoke Fu Co. (D. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 846, 18 Bankr. Rep. 661. The proof establ the validity and provable charact the claim and its amount, and, u an appeal or proceeding for re-e nation is successfully prosecuted, matters are res judicata in the s quent proceedings in bankruptcy the creditor's subsequent action. ford Bros. Dry Goods Co. v. (1913) 37 Okl. 616, 133 Pac. 193; Merrick (D. C. 1873) 7 N. B. R. Fed. Cas. No. 9,463.

3. —— Rights of action.—Proc claim by a creditor is not a waiv his right of action on it in an court, unless his suit is stayed o joined by the court of bankruptcy re Buchan's Soap Corp. (D. C. 169 Fed. 1017, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. Ringenoldus v. Abresch (1903) 119 410, 96 N. W. 817. See In re Havens & Co. (D. C. 1911) 186 583; Graves v. Neosho Falls (1913) 89 Kan. 179, 131 Pac. 146. ing a claim in bankruptcy again agent, without knowledge of an u closed principal, does not preclu action against the latter. Sween Douglas Copper Co. (1912) 149 Div. 568, 134 N. Y. Supp. 247. of his claim does not preclude the itor from proceeding independ against any other person who m separately liable on the same de such as a surety. U. S. v. Schofiel (C. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 240. Or an partner in the same firm who is bankruptcy. Robinson v. First Bank (1904) 98 Tex. 184, 82 S. W And it does not waive his right t sert and enforce a lien on part property. Coles County v. Hayn Lyons (1907) 134 Ill. App. 320; ler v. Paducah Distilleries Co. (A. 1909) 168 Fed. 44, 21 Am. B Rep. 723. But see Brown v. City Bank (1911) 72 Misc. Rep. 201 N. Y. Supp. 92. Or to claim secu held as collateral. Thomas v. gart (1908) 209 U. S. 385, 28 Su 519, 52 L. Ed. 845. Or to purs independent remedy given by the law, such as the arrest of the d in case of a debt fraudulently con ed. In re Lewensohn (1900) 104 1006, 44 C. C. A. 309.

If the creditor holds a note co ing a waiver of exemptions, his pr the note as an unsecured debt i bankruptcy proceedings will not im from proceeding in a competent ourt to subject the exempt property to he satisfaction of the demand. In re Loden (D. C. 1910) 184 Fed. 965, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 917; In re Meredith (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 230, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 331. See In re Strickland (D. C. 1909) 167 Fed. 867, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 734.

Where the claim is for goods obtained by false representations and not paid for, the creditor does not waive his right of action for damages, or for the balance of the account, by proving his debt in the bankruptcy proceedings. J. K. Orr Shoe Co. v. Upshaw & Powedge (Ga. App. 1913) 79 S. E. 362; Maxwell v. Martin (1909) 130 App. Div. 80, 114 N. Y. Supp. 349; Standard Sewing Machine Co. v. Alexander (1904) 68 S. C. 506, 47 S. E. 711. But, so far as the bankruptcy proceedings are concerned, he is put to his election either to confirm the sale and assume the position of a creditor for the price or to repudiate the sale and recover the goods; and having made his election, with knowledge of the facts, by proving his claim and voting as a creditor in the bankruptcy proceedings, he is concluded thereby, and cannot afterwards withdraw his claim and demand the goods. Standard Varnish Works v. Haydock (1906) 143 Fed. 318, 74 C. C. A. 456, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 286; Lynch v. Bronson (D. C. 1908) 160 Fed. 139, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 409. Proof of a claim in bankruptcy as upon a contract, and participation in composition proceedings, is not a bar to action for deceit in obtaining credit by false reports to a commercial agency. Friend v. Talcott (1913) 33 S. Ct. 505, 228 U. S. 27, 57 L. Ed. 718, affirming judgment Talcott v. Friend (1910) 179 Fed. 676, 103 C. C. A. 80.

If the bankrupt does not succeed in his application for a discharge, then a creditor who has proved his claim is remitted, as to any unpaid balance, to his former rights and remedies, and will not be estopped from pursuing any such remedy by the mere fact that he proved his claim and received a dividend in the bankruptcy proceedings. Frey v. Torrey (1903) 175 N. Y. 501, 67 N. E. 1082; Dingee v. Becker (D. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 508, Fed. Cas. No. 3,919; Ansonia Brass & Copper Co. v. New Lamp Chimney Co. (1873) 53 N. Y. 123, 13 Am. Rep. 476, 10 N. B. R. 355; Hoyt v. Freel (1869) 8 Abb. Prac. N. S. (N. Y.) 220, 4 N. B. R. 131. But one whose claim has been proved against the estate of a bankrupt, and afterwards expunged, cannot thereafter prosecute it in a state court. Pease v. Bennett (1845) 17 N. H. 124.

Proof of a claim against a corporation in bankruptcy is not a bar to an action thereon against the stockholders. Chamberlin v. Huguenot Mfg. Co. (1875) 118 Mass. 532; Shellington v. Howland (1873) 53 N. Y. 371. But where a creditor filed its claim against a bankrupt corporation, and accepted dividends, it was estopped from subsequently suing on the same debt the stockholders as partners, even though it could have maintained such suit before filing its claim. Swofford Bros. Dry Goods Co. v. Owen (1913) 37 Okl. 616, 133 Pac. 193.

4. Time of making proof.—Under the provisions of this section and General Order No. 21 (§ 9614, ante), claims must be proved within a year after the adjudication. In re McCarthy Portable Elevator Co. (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 986. But creditors have a year in which to file their claims, and the court cannot prescribe a shorter time than this for the proof of claims of general creditors. In re Lathrop, Hoskins & Co. (1915) 223 Fed. 912, 139 C. C. A. 392. A creditor of a bankrupt is not chargeable with laches in proving his claim, where it is presented within the year allowed by the statute, unless the rights of others have been prejudiced by the delay. In re Dunlap Carpet Co. (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 726.

In the provision limiting proof of claims to one year after the "adjudication," this term means the date of the entry of a decree that the defendant is a bankrupt, or, if such decree is appealed from, the date when such decree is finally confirmed, and this includes not only the case where an appeal from an adjudication is affirmed, but also where such appeal is dismissed. In re Lee (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 266, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 820.

The limitation of time for proving claims is not binding on the United States as a creditor. In re Stoever (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 394, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 345.

The limitation of time prescribed by this section does not apply to a claim of ownership of property adverse to the bankrupt and to his estate. Nauman Co. v. Bradshaw (1912) 193 Fed. 350, 113 C. C. A. 274, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 565.

As to specific claims to funds or property in the possession of the trustee, the court of bankruptcy may limit the time for claimants to prove their titles to less than a year, provided notice is given them and a reasonable length of time accorded. In re T. A. McIntyre & Co. (1910) 176 Fed. 552, 100 C. C. A. 140, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 4; In re Lathrop, Hoskins & Co. (1915) 223 Fed. 912, 139 C. C. A. 392.

Creditors may prove their claims before the day of the first meeting of creditors, so as to make themselves parties to the proceeding and be entitled to an order for the examination of the bankrupt. In re Patterson (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 10,814.

The presentation and delivery of a proof of claim to the trustee in bankruptcy, within the limited time, is a sufficient filing of it. J. B. Orcutt Co.

v. Green (1907) 204 U. S. 96, 27 Sup. Ct. 195, 51 L. Ed. 390. Where a creditor prosecutes a suit or petition against the trustee, and recovers judgment, his claim is so far before the court that it may be considered as "proved" for the purpose of saving the bar of the statute. Buckingham v. Estes (1904) 128 Fed. 584, 63 C. C. A. 20; In re Strobel (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 787, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 884. So, a claim duly proved within the year may be increased after that time where it is made necessary by a requirement that the creditor shall return preferences received as a condition to its allowance. In re Shiebler (D. C. 1908) 165 Fed. 363, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 309.

5. —— Claims liquidated by litigation.—In the special provision of subdivision "n" of this section, relating to the time for proving claims which have been "liquidated by litigation," it is held that the term "litigation" is not limited to proceedings having for their object only the ascertainment of the amount due on the claim, but includes as well proceedings to ascertain the kind and character or validity of the claim. In re Standard Telephone & Electric Co. (D. C. 1911) 186 Fed. 586, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 601. Hence it applies to a case where the creditor has claimed to hold security, and has litigated that question and been defeated, and thereafter attempts to prove as a general creditor. In re Salvator Brewing Co. (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 522, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 21. In any case where the creditor has a suit pending which will determine the validity, nature, and amount of his claim, he has the right to wait until the end of the litigation and then prove his claim, though more than a year from the date of the adjudication may then have elapsed. In re Baird (D. C. 1907) 154 Fed. 215, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 655; In re Keyes (D. C. 1907) 160 Fed. 763, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 183; Powell v. Leavitt (1907) 150 Fed. 89, 80 C. C. A. 43; In re Salvator Brewing Co. (1912) 193 Fed. 989, 113 C. C. A. 626, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 56; In re Venstrom (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 325, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 569; Platt v. Ives (1913) 86 Conn. 690, 86 Atl. 579.

An agreement between a trustee and a secured creditor as to the value of the latter's security, made while both were parties to a suit in which the question was involved, held a liquidation by litigation, which entitled the creditor to prove the unsecured part of the claim within 60 days. First Nat. Bank v. Cameron (1913) 209 Fed. 611, 126 C. C. A. 433.

Where the claim of an accommodation indorser of notes of a bankrupt corporation was not liquidated until the termination of litigation between the bankrupt's trustee and the indorser more than a year after adjudication, the expiration of that time did not bar the indorser's right to file her claim against the estate. Platt v. Ives (
86 A. 579, 86 Conn. 690.

For decisions on the meaning c phrase "liquidated by litigation," In re Clover Creamery Ass'n (
176 Fed. 907, 100 C. C. A. 37
Am. Bankr. Rep. 884; Powell v. L
(1907) 150 Fed. 89, 80 C. C. A
In re Lyons Beet Sugar Refinin
(D. C. 1911) 192 Fed. 445, 27
Bankr. Rep. 610; In re Clark (
1910) 176 Fed. 955, 24 Am. B
Rep. 388; In re Coventry Evans niture Co. (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed
22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623; In re
(D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 758, 15
Bankr. Rep. 520; In re E. O. Th son's Sons (D. C. 1903) 123 Fed
10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 581; In re
(D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 318, 19
Bankr. Rep. 420.

6. —— Allowance of proof afte piration of year.—The bar of the ute, as to the time for proving c is absolute and prohibitive; a cr cannot be permitted under any ci stances whatever to come in fo purpose of making proof after th of the year (except as specially in the statute), but forfeits all ri that behalf by delay; and the cou no discretionary power to perm filing of proofs after the end o year, either nunc pro tunc or wise. In re Ingalls Bros. (1905 Fed. 517, 70 C. C. A. 101, 13 Bankr. Rep. 512; In re Blond (1910) 188 Fed. 452; In re Pec C. A. 1909) 168 Fed. 48, 21 Am. B Rep. 707; In re Hawk (1902) 114 916, 52 C. C. A. 536, 8 Am. B Rep. 71; Bray v. Cobb (D. C. 100 Fed. 270, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep In re Co-Operative Knitting Mill C. 1913) 202 Fed. 1016, 30 Am. B Rep. 181; In re Knosco (D. C. 208 Fed. 201; In re Trion Mf (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 521.

This rule is applied so strictly it is held to make no differenc the particular claim was not sch and that the creditor had no not the proceedings. Santa Rosa Ba White (1903) 139 Cal. 703, 73 577; In re Muskoka Lumber Co C. 1904) 127 Fed. 886, 11 Am. B Rep. 761. Or that, during the sta year, the creditor was assertin litigating the validity of a prefe and was thereby prevented from ing his proof. In re Leibowit C. 1901) 108 Fed. 617, 6 Am. B Rep. 268; In re Kemper (D. C. 142 Fed. 210, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep In re Rhodes (D. C. 1900) 105 231, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 197. O a composition had been effected re Brown (D. C. 1903) 123 Fed 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 588. Or th failure to make proof in due tim caused solely by accident and mi In re Sanderson (D. C. 1908) 16 278, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 396. because the creditor was misle omitted to prove his claim in quence of the fraudulent concealment of assets by the bankrupt, who listed no property. In re Meyer (D. C. 1910) 181 Fed. 904, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep 44; In re Peck (D. C. 1908) 161 Fed. 762, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 629.

A claim cannot be allowed, after the end of the year under the guise of an amendment or substitute for a prior claim filed in due time but afterwards withdrawn. In re E. O. Thompson's Sons (D. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 174, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 581. But where a claim against a bankrupt's estate was originally filed within the year, but was disallowed, and subsequent proceedings showed that it should have been filed for a larger amount, the amendment filed after the year had expired was not barred by the one-year limitation. In re Hamilton Automobile Co. (1913) 209 Fed. 596, 126 C. C. A. 418.

Where a claim against a bankrupt estate was seasonably delivered to the referee, but lacked a statement of the official character of the officer signing the jurat, and the referee therefore returned it to the creditor's attorney for correction, and it was not redelivered to the referee for about two years, the claim was properly allowed, as it was sufficient as originally filed to form the foundation for a good proof of claim by perfecting amendments, and the referee had no right to refuse to receive and file it when first tendered. In re Haskell (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 819.

The statute should not be so construed as to prevent proof of a valid claim after the expiration of the year, where objection is not made by any other creditor or by the trustee, but by the bankrupt alone, and the delay was caused by the latter's own fraud. In re Towne (D. C. 1903) 122 Fed. 313, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 284. So where the peculiar circumstances of the case rendered it impossible to file the claim for proof within the limited time. In re Fagan (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 758, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 520. Where a preferred creditor is compelled to surrender a voidable preference, he should thereafter be allowed to prove his claim before the estate is finally settled, though more than a year after the adjudication. In re Otto F. Lange Co. (D. C. 1909) 170 Fed. 114, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 414. And in a case where the bankruptcy court ordered a sale of the bankrupt's estate, on condition that the purchaser should pay to each unsecured creditor a specified per cent. of his claim, and the purchaser paid the money to the receiver, who turned it over to the trustee, who declared a dividend to the unsecured creditors, but excluding one creditor on the ground that he had failed to prove his claim within the statutory time, it was held that the court must permit the filing nunc pro tunc of an amended formal proof of the claim. In re Basha (C. C. A. 1912) 200 Fed. 951, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 225.

7. —— Proof after declaration of dividend.—The fact that a creditor did not present his claim for proof and allowance until after a partial dividend had been paid does not affect his rights where the delay was not great, and sufficient funds remain to pay the claim, and it does not appear that other creditors will be prejudiced thereby. William Openhym & Sons v. Blake (C. C. A. 1907) 157 Fed. 536, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 639.

While claims may be proved within a year after the adjudication, final dividend may be declared at any time after four months from the adjudication, with the effect that one thereafter, though within the year, proving his claim, is barred from participation in the distribution. In re Coulter (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 906.

8. Persons authorized to prove.—Any person being the lawful owner of a claim against the bankrupt may prove it against his estate, and the fact that another has previously filed a claim as a creditor on the same account does not prejudice his right to offer proof of it. In re James Dunlap Carpet Co. (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 532, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 788; In re Dunlap Carpet Co. (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 726, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 664. A bank which furnished the credit with which imported goods were purchased, taking the bills of lading in its own name and the usual trust receipt when the goods were sold by the importers, held the legal owner of the account against the purchaser and entitled to prove the same on its bankruptcy. In re Dunlap Carpet Co. (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 726.

Where various claims of the same general order have been pooled or placed in the hands of a committee or a trustee, they may be proved by such representative. In re Salvator Brewing Co. (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 522, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 21; In re E. T. Kenney Co. (D. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 451, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 611. But the fact that a series of bonds issued by the bankrupt corporation are secured by a mortgage to a trustee does not exclude the right of individual bondholders to prove their several claims. Mackay v. Randolph Macon Coal Co. (1910) 178 Fed. 881, 102 C. C. A. 115, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 719.

Where joint indorsers of the bankrupt's note have taken it up, each advancing half the necessary funds, they may join in making proof of the claim. In re Farmers' Supply Co. (D. C. 1909) 170 Fed. 502, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 460.

A creditor whose claim is for unliquidated damages, should first apply to the court to direct the manner in which it shall be liquidated, and when that is done, he may file and prove his claim. In re Silverman (D. C. 1899) 101 Fed. 219, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 83.

Any person who is authorized to give an acquittance of a debt may prove it in bankruptcy, and a receiver appointed to take charge of a corporation on its dissolution, or upon proceedings in bankruptcy or insolvency against it, may make proof of a debt due to such corporation from a bankrupt debtor. Ex parte Norwood (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 10,364; In re Republic Ins. Co. (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 197, Fed. Cas. No. 11,705; In re Baxter (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 560, Fed. Cas. No. 1,121; Dight v. Chapman (1904) 44 Or. 265, 75 Pac. 585, 65 L. R. A. 793.

The fact that the president of a corporation has ceased to be a stockholder cannot be raised as an objection to proof of a claim by him in favor of the corporation against his estate in bankruptcy. In re Morgan (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 9,797.

A county or municipal corporation may file and prove a claim against an estate in bankruptcy. In re Worcester County (1900) 102 Fed. 808, 42 C. C. A. 637, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 496.

If the claim to be proved is due to a state, the proof should be made by the state treasurer, or by some officer holding a relation to the state government similar to that which a treasurer or cashier bears to a business corporation of which he is such officer. In re Corn Exchange Bank (D. C. 1877) 15 N. B. R. 216, Fed. Cas. No. 3,243.

9. Proof by agent or attorney.—Where the creditor himself has no personal knowledge of the facts respecting the debt, proof may be made by an agent who has had exclusive charge and control of the same, and who has personal knowledge of all the facts required to be sworn to in making the proof. In re Watrous (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 258, Fed. Cas. No. 17,270.

If a creditor, at the time of executing a power of attorney to prove his claim in bankruptcy, is in a foreign country, the instrument may be acknowledged before a United States consul in such country. In re Sugenheimer (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 744, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 425.

A power of attorney duly executed to either of three persons as substitutes, but acknowledged before one of them, though void as to that one, may lawfully be executed by either of the other two. Id.

Guardians, executors, administrators, and all other persons acting in a representative capacity, may make proof in bankruptcy of the claims of the persons or estates represented by them. In re Republic Ins. Co. (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 197, Fed. Cas. No. 11,705.

Proof of claim for labor by minor held properly made by the minor's father. In re Haskell (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 819.

The bankrupt himself cannot act as the trustee or representative of a creditor in proving the latter's claim against his own estate and securing its allowance. In re Mitteldorfer (C. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 9,674. But while th torney for the bankrupt should n permitted to appear in the proceed as attorney for a creditor also, y the absence of a rule of court o subject, a claim duly proved again bankrupt's estate should not b jected merely because filed fo creditor by the bankrupt's attorn being apparent that the attorney in entire good faith. In re Kimba C. 1899) 100 Fed. 777, 4 Am. B Rep. 144.

10. Proof by assignee of claim. assignee of a nonnegotiable cho action may prove it against the of the debtor in bankruptcy upo own deposition, and it is not nece to the sufficiency of the proof tha deposition of the assignor shou added, if the assignment was before the commencement of the ceedings in bankruptcy, althoug that case, the deposition should the name of the original creditor re McCarthy Portable Elevator Co C. 1913) 205 Fed. 986, 30 Am. B Rep. 247; Ex parte Davenport (1869) 3 N. B. R. 312, Fed. Cas 3,586. The fact that certain cre have made a champertous agree with a third party for the collecti their debts from the bankrupt furn no ground for the disallowance of claims, on petition of a creditor re Lathrop (D. C. 1869) 3 N. 410, Fed. Cas. No. 8,103.

Negotiable paper, acquired in faith before maturity, may be p against the estate of the maker in ruptcy by an indorsee upon show valid consideration paid by him; such showing, in such a case, w held to be a compliance with th quirement of the statute, and it wi be required of the holder to show as between the maker of the pape its original payee, there was a goo valid consideration, or what that sideration was. In re Lake Sup Ship-Canal, R. & I. Co. (D. C. 10 N. B. R. 76, Fed. Cas. No. 7,99

Where, after the filing of a pe in bankruptcy by or against the d a creditor transfers or assigns his to another, the debt is to be prov the person who is the owner of the time of making proof. In re dock (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 146 Cas. No. 9,939. And see In re Swe (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 567.

The receiver of the property creditor is an "assignee" of the due to such creditor, and may prov debt in bankruptcy in the manner templated for proof by a conven assignee. In re Mills (C. C. 187 N. B. R. 472, Fed. Cas. No. But a mere agent holding nego paper, not as owner or indorsee simply for his principal, cannot it except in the name and for the fit of the real owner, and not when the owner is in a situati make the proof for himself. In re Saunders (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 12,371.

11. Proof by secured creditors.—If a secured creditor wishes to participate in the bankruptcy proceedings, he must make himself a party by filing a proof of his claim, disclosing the particular nature of the security which he holds. In re Bridgman (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 312, Fed. Cas. No. 1,866. A secured creditor, who retained his security, held not entitled to prove a claim against the estate after the year for proving claims had expired. In re Thompson (C. C. A. 1915) 227 Fed. 981. A creditor, holding bankrupt's indorsed note for part of claim, held entitled to dividend on the full claim, though indorser paid the note after proofs of claim were filed; it not being a "secured creditor," under § 9585, ante, and this section. Young v. Gordon (1914) 219 Fed. 168, 135 C. C. A. 66.

When a creditor holds a mortgage or other security on property belonging to a third person, the latter not having counter security, he is not bound to disclose or mention it in his proof of debt. Merchants' & Farmers' State Bank v. Sheridan (1910) 156 Ill. App. 25.

When a creditor proves his debt as secured, he does not waive, abandon, or surrender the security, or in any way relinquish or prejudice his rights under it. In re Medina Quarry Co. (D. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 929, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 769; Bucknam v. Dunn (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 470, Fed. Cas. No. 2,096; In re Bolton (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 370, Fed. Cas. No. 1,614; Kohout v. Chaloupka (1903) 69 Neb. 677, 96 N. W. 173; Bassett v. Thackara (1905) 72 N. J. Law, 81, 60 Atl. 39; In re Grinnell (D. C. 1873) 9 N. B. R. 29, Fed. Cas. No. 5,830.

As an adjudication of bankruptcy brings the assets of the bankrupt into the custody of the court of bankruptcy for administration, a creditor of the bankrupt having a lien on such property, at that time, is not bound to follow the course of procedure prescribed by the state statute under which the lien arises, requiring certain action to be taken within a limited time for its preservation, but only to prove his claim as the bankruptcy law directs. In re Falls City Shirt Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 592, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 437.

If any other creditor is interested in objecting to the claim of the proving creditor to an alleged security, or avers that the lien claimed is invalid under the laws of the state, or is a voidable preference, or otherwise should not be allowed, it is within the jurisdiction of the court of bankruptcy or the referee (and it is the proper practice) to determine whether the claim is a secured or an unsecured claim, so far as concerns its allowance as such, though such a determination will not have the effect to deprive the creditor of his lien, if he has one, for that question can be decided only in a proper action or proceeding brought by the trustee in bankruptcy, and not on a summary hearing. In re Quinn (C. C. A. 1908) 165 Fed. 144, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 264; In re Cramond (D. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 966, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 22; In re Braselton (D. C. 1909) 169 Fed. 960, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 419; In re Harrison (D. C. 1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 541.

The claim of a broader lien than the facts warrant will not affect the actual lien of the creditor. McKinsey v. Harding (D. C. 1869) 4 N. B. R. 38, Fed. Cas. No. 8,866.

Where a mortgage is made in good faith, prior to the commencement of the proceedings against the mortgagor, a mistake in the description of the premises in such mortgage may be corrected as against the trustee in bankruptcy to the same extent as would have been allowed against the mortgagor. Schulze v. Bolting (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 12,489. But where a mortgage given by the bankrupt secures a certain note only, and not an open account, an agreement that the account should also be covered by the mortgage cannot be implied. In re Johnson (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 838, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 138. Mortgagees who prove their debts in the bankruptcy proceedings become creditors of the mortgagor's general estate only for the balance of the debt remaining after deducting the value of the mortgaged property. McHenry v. Société Française (1877) 95 U. S. 58, 24 L. Ed. 370; In re Little (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 621, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 681.

Creditor of a bankrupt corporation, secured by a pledge of its mortgage bonds, held entitled to prove for the balance due on its claim after exhausting the mortgaged property. In re Progressive Wall Paper Corporation (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 143. Where all of the mortgage bonds of a bankrupt corporation were proved by the owners and allowed, no foreclosure suit having been instituted, and the property was sold by the trustee in bankruptcy, the court held to have properly rejected the claim of the mortgage trustee, which sought to prove the entire debt in its own name. United States Trust Co. v. Gordon (1914) 216 Fed. 929, 133 C. C. A. 117. Officers who paid an obligation of the bankrupt corporation and received the bonds given as collateral security therefor can claim on the bonds only the amount paid by them. Sauve v. Fleschutz (1915) 219 Fed. 542, 135 C. C. A. 310.

One whose judgment is a lien on property which had been sold and conveyed by the bankrupt in good faith before the bankruptcy may claim and court, but without leave of the bankruptcy court and without joining the trustee, and the proceeding was held invalid, attorneys' commissions and costs stipulated to be paid on foreclosure should not be allowed. In re Devore (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 56, Fed. Cas. No. 3,847. But a mortgagee in possession is not chargeable with any part of the costs in bankruptcy, nor with the expenses of the sale of any of the property other than that on which his mortgage was a valid lien. In re Eldridge (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 4,330.

15. —— Claim for deficiency.—If the security held by a lien creditor is valued by agreement between himself and the trustee, or under the direction of the court, but the valuation is less than the amount of his debt or claim—or if the lien is foreclosed or the security otherwise realized, and results in a deficiency—the creditor, in either case, will be entitled to prove a claim in the bankruptcy procedings for such deficiency or unsatisfied balance. McHenry v. Société Française (1877) 95 U. S. 58, 24 L. Ed. 370; In re Rudd (D. C. 1910) 180 Fed. 312, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 35; In re Ball (D. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 164, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 564; In re Linforth (D. C. 1898) 87 Fed. 386; In re Letchworth (D. C. 1883) 18 Fed. 822; In re Winn (D. C. 1867) 1 N. B. R. 499, Fed. Cas. No. 17,876; In re Bolton (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 370, Fed. Cas. No. 1,614; In re Grant (C. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 5,690; Ex parte Dalby (D. C. 1870) 3 N. B. R. 731, Fed. Cas. No. 3,540; In re Ruehle (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 577, Fed. Cas. No. 12,113; Watkins v. Worthington (1827) 2 Bland (Md.) 509. See In re J. H. Alison Lumber Co. (D. C. 1905) 137 Fed. 643, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 78. As to such deficiency, he will not be entitled to any preference or advantage over other creditors, but simply to take his proportionate share out of the bankrupt's general assets. In re Snedaker, 4 N. B. R. 168. If a mortgagee forecloses within a year after the adjudication in bankruptcy, he cannot prove his claim for a deficiency after the expiration of such year, as he had the right to prove it in the first instance as a secured claim. In re Sampter (1909) 170 Fed. 938, 96 C. C. A. 98, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 357. And as to his right to obtain and enforce a deficiency decree in the foreclosure proceeding, that right will be suspended pending the bankrupt's application for a discharge, and will be lost if the discharge is granted. Scott v. Ellery (1892) 142 U. S. 381, 12 Sup. Ct. 233, 35 L. Ed. 1050.

If the property is sold on foreclosure proceedings and is bid in by the lien creditor for a merely nominal sum, with no competing bid against him, or, if his successful bid is less than the amount due, the actual value of the property may be inquired and he will be allowed to pr claim, as on a deficiency, only f difference between the amount original debt and the value so tained. In re Dix (D. C. 1910 Fed. 582, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. In re Graves (D. C. 1910) 182 443, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 372; Woods (D. C. 1881) 7 Fed. 66 the case last cited, it was said th amount of the proceeds of a subs sale of the property by the cred no test of the actual value of the erty, and should not be credit such to the bankrupt, in the abse an agreement between the partie the creditor should sell the pr and apply the proceeds toward satisfaction of the debt. A mor cannot be permitted to come up estate for any deficiency where h ceeded to foreclose in a state without obtaining leave of the ruptcy court and without makin trustee a party, as this amounts election to rely wholly on his se and stay out of the bankruptcy. Miller (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. Fed. Cas. No. 9,555; In re H (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 335, Cas. No. 6,421. CONTRA, In re ler (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No.

Where a mortgage creditor ob permission of the bankruptcy co foreclose his mortgage in a state but upon condition of waiving an sonal claim for deficiency, but the itor, for good reasons and w laches, failed to prosecute his s judgment, it was held that he w bound, as by an election, to rely ly on the mortgaged property, might be subsequently admitted creditor against the estate on a of the same debt. In re Linfor C. 1898) 87 Fed. 386.

16. —— Claims for interest and —The mortgagee of property bankrupt is equitably entitled to the rents and profits of the pro collected by the trustee in bankr applied on the interest on his d the security itself is insufficien re Industrial Cold Storage & I (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 390, 2 Bankr. Rep. 904; In re Bennett 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 1,313. T particularly the case if he has s an equitable lien on the rents by in equity and the appointment receiver after default. In re Sne 4 N. B. R. 168. But some case that the mortgagee in such a c not entitled to the rents unless, dition to showing the insufficien his security, he actually intercep receives them. Foster v. Rhode C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 523, Fed No. 4,981; In re Hollenfeltz (1899) 94 Fed. 629, 2 Am. Bankr 499.

A secured creditor who sells the property on which he has a lien, after the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, and finds the proceeds insufficient to pay the whole amount of his claim, is not entitled to apply such proceeds first to interest accrued since the filing of the petition, and then to the principal debt, and then prove a claim for the balance. Sexton v. Dreyfus (1911) 219 U. S. 339, 31 Sup. Ct. 256, 55 L. Ed. 244, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 363, reversing In re Kessler (1910) 180 Fed. 979, 103 C. C. A. 582, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 287, which affirmed In re Kessler & Co. (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 751, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 606.

Where an estate in bankruptcy is amply sufficient for the purpose, a mortgagee may be allowed interest on his debt after, as well as before, the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. Coder v. Arts (1909) 213 U. S. 223, 29 Sup. Ct. 436, 53 L. Ed. 772.

As to costs and fees, where these are stipulated in the mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure by proceedings in court, they may be allowed when the security is realized on in the manner specified, but not where the property covered is sold by the trustee in bankruptcy at private sale under order of the court. In re Roche (C. C. A. 1900) 101 Fed. 956, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 369.

17. —— Right to rely on security and disregard bankruptcy proceedings. — One holding a secured claim against a bankrupt is not bound to file formal proof of the claim, or to come in to the bankruptcy proceeding at all, but he may rely on his security and enforce it otherwise. Courtney v. Fidelity Trust Co. (1914) 219 Fed. 57, 134 C. C. A. 595; Yeatman v. New Orleans Sav. Inst. (1877) 95 U. S. 764, 24 L. Ed. 589; Ward v. First Nat. Bank (C. C. A. 1913) 202 Fed. 609, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 312; In re Barber (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 547, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 306; In re Haake (D. C. 1872) 7 N. B. R. 61, Fed. Cas. No. 5,883; Jones v. Lellyet (1869) 39 Ga. 64; Spilman v. Johnson (1876) 27 Grat. (Va.) 33, 16 N. B. R. 145; Selfridge v. Gill (1808) 4 Mass. 95. CONTRA, Davis v. Anderson (D. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 145, Fed. Cas. No. 3,623; In re Davis (D. C. 1874) 2 N. B. R. 391, Fed. Cas. No. 3,618. A creditor of a bankrupt corporation whose debt is secured by a valid pledge of its mortgage bonds, is not required to prove his claim as a general creditor to entitle him to have his bonds participate in the mortgage fund. Butterfield v. Woodman (1915) 223 Fed. 956, 139 C. C. A. 436, modifying decree In re National Boat & Engine Co. (D. C. 1914) 216 Fed. 208. If a secured creditor has no occasion to apply to the court of bankruptcy for aid in the enforcement of his lien, he may rely upon his security and omit to prove his claim, and by so doing he will lose nothing but his right to participate in the distribution of the general estate of the bankrupt. Cottrell v. Pierson (C. C. 1881) 12 Fed. 805; Wicks v. Perkins (C. C. 1871) . Fed. Cas. No. 17,615.

If the creditor is in physical possession of personal property or collaterals pledged to him by the bankrupt, or chattels covered by a chattel mortgage, he cannot be compelled to surrender the possession to the trustee in bankruptcy without satisfaction of his debt. Yeatman v. New Orleans Sav. Inst. (1877) 95 U. S. 764, 24 L. Ed. 589; Cadmus v. Beman (D. C. 1851) Fed. Cas. No. 2,281; In re Buntrock Clothing Co. (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 886, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 454; Dallas v. Flues (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 3,544. CONTRA, In re Cobb (D. C. 1899, 96 Fed. 821, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 129.

The court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction, if the interests of the creditors at large are involved, to determine questions of liens on the property of the bankrupt or their validity or amount, and this jurisdiction may be invoked by the secured creditor himself, though he has not proved his debt. In re High (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 191, Fed. Cas. No. 6,473.

If a secured creditor brings a suit in a state court, after the commencement of the bankruptcy proceedings, to foreclose a mortgage or enforce any other lien, not having proved his debt or otherwise participated in the proceedings in bankruptcy, he may be enjoined from proceeding further with his suit, and such injunction may issue in a case where the trustee alleges that the mortgage or other security was fraudulent and void. Markson v. Heaney (C. C. 1871) 4 N. B. R. 510, Fed. Cas. No. 9,098; In re Snedaker (Utah) 3 N. B. R. 629; In re Brooks (D. C. 1898) 91 Fed. 508, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 531; In re Grinnell (D. C. 1873) 9 N. B. R. 29, Fed. Cas. No. 5,830. See Barstow v. Peckham (D. C. 1873) 5 N. B. R. 72, Fed. Cas. No. 1,064. If a secured creditor sues in a state court and enforces his lien, and it does not appear that other creditors were injured, it is in the authority and discretion of the court of bankruptcy to ratify and confirm a sale made under such proceedings, as if leave to make it had first been obtained. Bradley v. Adams Express Co. (C. C. 1880) 3 Fed. 895.

Since the statute vests the trustee in bankruptcy with title to the bankrupt's property "as of the date when he was adjudged a bankrupt," it is held that, until that date, a lienor or pledgee is at liberty to make any disposition of or perfect any title to the property which the nature of the lien permits, and where he has converted the security into money pursuant to his contract rights, he may prove the unsatisfied balance of his claim. In re Mertens (1906) 144 Fed. 818, 75 C. C. A. 548, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 362.

If the creditor relies on his security and omits to prove his claim in the bankruptcy, a discharge granted to the bankrupt will not be a bar or defense to any proceedings to enforce the lien, but will preclude the creditor from setting up any claim for a deficiency. Dixon v. Barnum (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 3,928; Pease v. Ritchie (1890) 132 Ill. 638, 24 N. E. 433, 8 L. R. A. 566; Cohn v. Colby (1879) 57 How. Prac. (N. Y.) 168; Barnett v. Salyers (Ky. 1889) 12 S. W. 303; Kinloch v. Savage (1844) Speer, Eq. (S. C.) 464.

18. Form and sufficiency of deposition.—Depositions to prove claims in bankruptcy must contain the averments and the particular details required by the statute, and must be made by the party authorized, and conform substantially to the official forms. In re Port Huron Dry Dock Co. (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 253, Fed. Cas. No. 11,293. Though a proof of debt fails to state one of the essential facts required by good pleading, yet if it complies apparently with the forms in bankruptcy and the orders and the statute itself, it is the duty of the referee to allow it. In re Ankeny, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 511. The fact that, at the head of a proof of claim, the title of the court is not given as required by the general order and form, is not sufficient to vitiate the proof so far as to prevent the creditor from participating in the creditors' meeting. In re Blue Ridge Packing Co. (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 619, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 36. A proof of claim need not observe all the formalities required in ordinary pleadings. Kelsey v. Munson (1912) 198 Fed. 841, 117 C. C. A. 483, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 520. A claim against the estate of a bankrupt firm held sufficient in form to justify its allowance against the bankrupt estate of an individual partner who was liable as indorser on a note evidencing the indebtedness. In re Collins (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 247.

A claim is not duly proved unless it appears from the deposition that a debt exists which the creditor has a present right to have paid out of the bankrupt's estate. In re Walton (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 17,129.

The referee has power to require a creditor to file a bill of particulars as to any certain item of his claim, whether the claim is liquidated or unliquidated, and, having such power, the matter is within the judicial discretion of the referee. In re Henry Siegel Co. (D. C. 1914) 223 Fed. 368.

An allegation on information and belief on a vital point in a proof of claim in bankruptcy is not sufficient as of such allegation. In re United less Telegraph Co. (D. C. 1912 Fed. 445.

The absence of a date to the tor's proof of claim is a fatal In re Blue Ridge Packing Co. (1903) 125 Fed. 619, 11 Am. Rep. 36.

It is imperatively necessary th proof of claim should state wheth claim is secured or unsecured, and creditor has a lien on property cure it, he must disclose its part character, so that it can be ider and, if necessary, liquidated b trustee. Cunningham v. Cady (1876) 13 N. B. R. 525, Fed. Ca 3,480; In re Bridgman (D. C. 18 N. B. R. 312, Fed. Cas. No. 1,866.

It is necessary to set forth th and the particulars of any partia ments which may have been made the claim. In re Girvin (D. C. 160 Fed. 197, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep

It is necessary that the conside for the claim, and the particula the consideration, should be dul adequately stated in the depositio re Elder (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. N 326. The statements in regard consideration must be sufficientl and specific to enable other cre to pursue proper and legitima quiries as to the fairness and l of the claim; if too meagre or g to serve this purpose, they will b inadequate, and the proof of deb be expunged, unless leave is giv amend. In re United Wireless graph Co. (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 848; In re Boat Co. (D. C. 1911) 190 Fed. Am. Bankr. Rep. 48; In re Griffi C. 1910) 188 Fed. 389; In re V town Paper Co. (1909) 169 Fed 94 C. C. A. 528, 22 Am. Bankr. 190; In re Coventry Evans Fur Co. (D. C. 1909) 166 Fed. 51 Am. Bankr. Rep. 272; In re Morr C. 1907) 154 Fed. 211, 18 Am. B Rep. 828; In re Blue Ridge Pa Co. (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 619, 1 Bankr. Rep. 36; In re Stevens (1901) 107 Fed. 243, 5 Am. Bankr 806; In re Scott (D. C. 1899) 93 418, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 553. A of debt on a promissory note i sufficient although it sets out the in full, unless it also states wha the consideration and whether an ments have been made thereon. Loder (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. N 456. A proof of claim for legal se rendered held insufficient, not sh the nature of the services, their or the time consumed. In re H Porcelain Co. (D. C. 1915) 225 325. But this rule does not appl debt which has been reduced to ment; that is to say, it is not sary in proving on the judgment cite or describe the consideration original debt, as that is now merged in the judgment. In re Mott (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 9,878b.

A manufacturing company agreed with a board of commerce which furnished it a factory site and defrayed the cost of moving its plant to maintain an annual pay roll in specified amounts for seven years, except and contingent upon strikes, labor difficulties, fire, acts of elements, panics, and other causes beyond the control of the company. The company became bankrupt, having previously complied with its contract, and the board filed sworn proof of its claim for the breach of contract, alleging that the breach was not brought about by strikes, etc. Held, that the proof of claim was prima facie proof that the breach of contract was not so caused, and, in the absence of any evidence on the subject by the trustee, sufficiently proved the claim. Board of Commerce of Ann Arbor, Mich., v. Security Trust Co. (1915) 225 Fed. 454, 140 C. C. A. 486.

19. —— Claims founded on written instruments.—All the formalities required in ordinary pleadings do not apply to proofs in bankruptcy, and a failure to file a written instrument upon which a claim is founded does not raise a presumption against the existence of the writing. Kelsey v. Munson (C. C. A. 1912) 198 Fed. 841, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 520.

When the creditor held a promissory note made by the bankrupt and has already recovered a judgment upon it, if he proves his claim on the note, it must be filed with the deposition, but if he proves a claim on the judgment, instead of the note, the note need not be produced, because it is merged in the judgment as a debt of a higher order, and the judgment need not be set out in full in the deposition, nor accompany it, because it is not an "instrument of writing." In re Knoepfel (D. C. 1867) 1 N. B. R. 70, Fed. Cas. No. 7,892. See In re Jaycox (D. C. 1872) 7 N. B. R. 303, Fed. Cas. No. 7,240.

Where proof of claim on judgment incorporated copy of judgment, what further particularity should be required held largely for the referee, who did not exceed his powers in treating proof as adequate. In re Haskell (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 819.

If a promissory note of the bankrupt was made payable in coin, the holder, in proving his debt in the bankruptcy, should set forth that fact in his deposition, and the demand should be entered upon the books of the trustee as payable in the stipulated currency. In re Elder (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 4,326.

In proving a claim founded on a note in which only the initials of the Christian names are given, the full names must appear. In re Valentine (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 16,812.

20. Acknowledgment of deposition.—A notary public is authorized to administer the oath to a proof of claim, and such oath is sufficiently authenticated, prima facie, by what purport to be the notary's official signature and seal, although made in a different state from that in which the proceedings are pending, and without regard to the special requirements of the statutes of either state. In re Pancoast (D. C. 1904) 129 Fed. 643, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 275. See In re Nebe (D. C. 1875) 11 N. B. R. 289, Fed. Cas. No. 10,073; In re McKibben (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 97, Fed. Cas. No. 8,859.

It is not a valid objection to the proof of a claim that the officer taking the acknowledgment was the creditor's own attorney. In re Kimball (D. C. 1899) 100 Fed. 777, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 144. Compare In re Nebe (D. C. 1875) 11 N. B. R. 289, Fed. Cas. No. 10,073; In re Keyser (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 7,748.

21. Receiving and filing proofs.—The mere execution and acknowledgment of a proof of claim is not sufficient to establish the status of the creditor, but it is necessary that the claim thus proved should be filed or presented in the bankruptcy proceeding. In re French (D. C. 1909) 181 Fed. 583, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 77.

The fact that the bankrupt's attorney filed a claim for a creditor will not be sufficient to justify its rejection if the claim was duly proved and it appears that he acted in entire good faith. In re Kimball (D. C. 1899) 100 Fed. 777, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 144. A trustee in bankruptcy cannot file with himself his proof of his own claim against the bankrupt estate, nor will the delivery of such claim to his attorney, to be filed with the referee, be deemed the equivalent of a delivery to such referee. J. B. Orcutt Co. v. Green (1907) 204 U. S. 96, 27 Sup. Ct. 195, 51 L. Ed. 390. The handing of a verified claim to an employé of the trustee in the latter's office does not constitute a filing of the claim where it was not in fact filed and it does not appear in what capacity the person with whom it was left was employed by the trustee. In re Lathrop, Haskins & Co. (1912) 197 Fed. 164, 116 C. C. A. 601, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 756.

The referee will not refuse to receive a proof of debt which appears on its face to have been taken before a proper officer and to be correct in form and substance. In re Merrick (D. C. 1873) 7 N. B. R. 459, Fed. Cas. No. 9,463. A creditor who, after making a deposition to prove his debt, retains possession of the deposition, and does not allow it to go upon the files, cannot be considered as a creditor who has proved his debt. In re Shepard (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 439, Fed. Cas. No. 12,753. A creditor cannot be prejudiced by the loss from the files of his proof of debt; he will still be entitled to receive the notices provided for by the act. In re Friedlob (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 122, Fed. Cas. No. 5,118.

22. Allowance of proved claims.—Under the provision of § 9639, ante, that the judge or referee shall preside at the first meeting of creditors, "and may allow or disallow the claims of creditors there presented," claims cannot be allowed without a meeting of the creditors. In re Back Bay Automobile Co. (D. C. 1907) 158 Fed. 679, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 835.

The "proof" and the "allowance" of claims are separate and distinct steps, so that, if a claim is duly proved and filed within the year granted for that purpose, it is enough to take it out of the statutory limitation, and its allowance or disallowance may come later. In re J. M. Mertens & Co. (1906) 147 Fed. 177, 77 C. C. A. 473, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 825. A distinction is to be drawn between proving a claim and its allowance in bankruptcy proceedings, which results in the right of a creditor to prove a secured claim, when the ultimate necessity for its allowance appears reasonable, even though it may turn out to be unnecessary because the security is adequate to pay it. Emerine v. Tarrault (1915) 219 Fed. 68, 134 C. C. A. 606. The filing of a proved claim does not necessarily constitute an allowance thereof, since, until a direct or indirect order of allowance is made, objections may properly be filed. In re Two Rivers Woodenware Co. (1912) 199 Fed. 877, 118 C. C. A. 325, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 518.

A proof of debt, made in the mode required by the statute, and conforming on its face to all the requirements of the act and the general orders, makes a prima facie case, though it is subject to objection and counter proof, and will entitle the creditor to have his debt allowed as an established claim against the estate, unless objections are interposed. In re J. M. Mertens & Co. (1906) 147 Fed. 177, 77 C. C. A. 473, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 825; In re Saunders (D. C. 1875) 13 N. B. R. 164, Fed. Cas. No. 12,371; In re Colman (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 562, Fed. Cas. No. 3,021; In re Ankeny, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 511. In the latter case, the jurisdiction of the court to hear and determine the claim and objections is undoubted, as the voluntary appearance of the creditor for the purpose of filing his claim places it within the control of the court. In re Jackson Brick & Tile Co. (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 636, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 915; In re L'Hommedieu (1906) 146 Fed. 708, 77 C. C. A. 134, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 850. But if the claim is rejected, on the ground that the creditor holds security for it, the court has then no jurisdiction to value the security and enter a decree against the creditor for the excess of its value over the debt. Fitch v. Richardson (1906) 147 Fed. 197, 77 C. C. A. 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 835.

There is nothing in the act makes a proof of claim an e which the court must either ac full or reject altogether. If the claim is found to be valid, a must be rejected for want of proof or other reasons, the refer allow the claim to the extent th valid, and it is not necessary t it to be amended and resworn. Goldstein (D. C. 1912) 199 Fe 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 301; Stre Lowe (1911) 184 Fed. 263, 106 A. 405, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 7 re T. L. Kelly Dry-Goods Co. 1900) 102 Fed. 747, 4 Am. Bank 528. Referee's disposition of cl contract for sale of automobile ers, which never got beyond exp tal stage, by treating contract a doned and allowing for expense periments, held to constitute s tial justice. In re Louis J. B Motor Co. (D. C. 1916) 229 Fe

Where one of the three equal holders of a bankrupt corporat its organization, transferred to t poration a stock of merchandis agreed valuation, a part of the p ing applied in payment for his and the remainder standing as debtedness of the corporation, o of his claim therefor against th rupt estate, the valuation fixed parties is not conclusive, but t market value of the property determined as a basis for the all of his claim. In re Peerless S (D. C. 1915) 226 Fed. 1020.

23. —— Allowance as adjudic The allowance of a claim in ban is an adjudication of all the properly before the court for its mination, and therefore cannot peached or questioned colla Carr v. Barnes (1909) 138 M 264, 120 S. W. 705. See Ski Coddington (1905) 105 App. D 93 N. Y. Supp. 460. The actio referee in bankruptcy, allowing allowing a claim, is a final judgn the absence of review. Stearns Lumber Co. v. Hammond (191 Fed. 559, 133 C. C. A. 411. A in bankruptcy allowing a clai contract is binding on both the tor and the bankrupt, and in a quent action to enforce the con reply setting up such decree is plete answer to a plea that t tract was ultra vires. Elmore, & Co. v. Henderson-Mizell Me Co. (Ala. 1913) 60 So. 820. Th lowance of a claim in bankrup usury held available to a prior p er as res judicata of the claim holder of a mortgage antedatin purchase and given to secure the ous debt. De Watteville v. Sim 1915) 146 P. 224. The presenta a claim against a bankrupt to th tee in bankruptcy does not prev action thereon against the bankrupt, where the claim was stricken out. Graves v. Neosho Falls Bank (1913) 131 P. 146, 89 Kan. 179.

The order of allowance, in so far as concerns its binding effect on the trustee and the other creditors, does not amount to an adjudication that the particular creditor has not previously received an illegal or voidable preference, that question not being necessarily involved in it. Stearns Salt & Lumber Co. v. Hammond (1914) 217 Fed. 559, 133 C. C. A. 411; Buder v. Columbia Distilling Co. (1902) 96 Mo. App. 558, 70 S. W. 508; Utah Ass'n of Credit Men v. Boyle Furniture Co. (1911) 39 Utah, 518, 117 Pac. 800. Compare Clendening v. Red River Valley Nat. Bank (1903) 12 N. D. 51, 94 N. W. 901.

24. Postponement of proofs.—If objection to a claim is interposed, or if the court is not satisfied with the prima facie case made out by the claimant's sworn statement, the claim will not be accepted as proved until the objection has been disposed of, or until the court is convinced, by testimony or otherwise, of the validity of the claim. In re Sumner (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 224, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 123; In re Dreeben (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 110, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 146. When a review by the judge of the action of the referee in such cases is sought, the better practice on behalf of the creditors who object to such postponement of their claims is to have the objection noted, obtain a stay of proceedings, and have the case certified, before any further action is taken before the referee, for if no objection is made at the time, and the trustee is appointed and enters upon his duties, the court will not interfere. In re Jackson (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 7,123. When the claim of a creditor, at the first meeting, is postponed by the referee, and again presented after the election of a trustee, the proof of claim must be treated in all respects as if it had not been before tendered; that is, such action does not cast upon the creditor the necessity of producing evidence in support of its validity, or of taking any other affirmative action not required in ordinary cases for the proof of a debt. In re Herrman (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 6,425.

25. Objections to claims.—The words "parties in interest," who are authorized to object to the allowance of claims in bankruptcy, mean parties who have an interest in the res to be administered, and hence include stockholders of the bankrupt, who were the only persons who would be injuriously affected by the allowance of a claim objected to. Rosenbaum v. Dutton (1913) 203 Fed. 838, 122 C. C. A. 156, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 155.

The trustee in bankruptcy, as the representative of all the creditors, is authorized to contest the allowance of any claim filed against the estate. Atkins v. Wilcox (1900) 105 Fed. 595, 44 C. C. A. 626, 53 L. R. A. 118, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 313; In re Two Rivers Woodenware Co. (1912) 199 Fed. 877, 118 C. C. A. 325, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 439. But where the validity of a claim is conceded, and the only dispute is between two persons about the ownership of it, the controversy concerns them alone, and the trustee, as the representative of the other creditors, has no interest. In re Dunlap Carpet Co. (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 726, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 664.

If the trustee neglects or refuses to oppose the allowance of a claim alleged to be false, fraudulent, or exaggerated, creditors who have proved their debts may proceed in his name, by order of the referee, to contest the claim. In re Knox Automobile Co. (D. C. 1915) 229 Fed. 241; First Nat. Bank v. Cooper (1873) 20 Wall. 171, 22 L. Ed. 273.

Any creditor may proceed on his own initiative to object to the allowance of a claim offered by another, and is not required to present his objections through the trustee, or to show that the latter has refused to act. In re Canton Iron & Steel Co. (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 767, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 791; In re Hatem (D. C. 1908) 161 Fed. 895, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 470; In re Wyoming Valley Ice Co. (D. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 787; In re Joseph (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 7,532; In re Overton (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 366, Fed. Cas. No. 10,625. Compare In re Randall (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 11,552. But the contesting creditor must first have proved his own claim and secured its allowance. Dressel v. North State Lumber Co. (D. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 531, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 541; First Nat. Bank v. Cooper (1873) 20 Wall. 171, 22 L. Ed. 273. An objecting creditor cannot further contest the claim of another creditor after a decision on its validity by the court. Proceedings to review such decision must be taken by the trustee by appeal. In re Troy Woolen Co. (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 14,202. The creditor at whose instance the trustee contests the claim of another creditor is liable to the latter for costs where the claim is allowed. Id. (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 412, Fed. Cas. No. 14,203.

The right to contest claims does not belong to those who are merely debtors or alleged debtors of the bankrupt. In re Sully (1907) 152 Fed. 619, 81 C. C. A. 609, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 123.

26. —— Manner and form of objections.—Objections to the proof of a claim should be in writing, and the allegations should be sufficiently explicit to indicate to the claimant the nature and character of the objections. Spencer v. Lowe (1912) 198 Fed. 961, 117

C. C. A. 497, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 876; In re Royce Dry Goods Co. (D. C. 1904) 133 Fed. 100, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 257. It is not necessary that objections should be cast in the shape of a formal pleading. Orr v. Park (1910) 183 Fed. 683, 106 C. C. A. 33, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 544; In re Carter (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 846, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 126. The statement of objections is not required to be under oath. In re Wooten (D. C. 1902) 118 Fed. 670, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 247. It is within the discretion of the referee to permit a merely oral statement on the part of the objecting creditor, provided it is definite and to the point. In re Cannon (D. C. 1904) 133 Fed. 837, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 114; Embry v. Bennett (C. C. A. 1908) 162 Fed. 139, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 651.

Creditors who desire to contest the allowance of a claim must make their objections on their own behalf, and they cannot become parties to the issue merely by formally adopting objections filed by the bankrupt, nor have they any standing to contest such claim on an appeal taken from the decision of the court by the trustee, in which they did not join. Ayres v. Cone (1905) 138 Fed. 778, 71 C. C. A. 144, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 739.

27. —— Grounds of objection.—The allowance of a claim in bankruptcy may be contested for fraud or illegality. In re Fenn (D. C. 1909) 172 Fed. 620, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 833. Or because it is barred by the statute of limitations. In re John J. Lafferty & Bro. (D. C. 1903) 122 Fed. 558, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 290; Pace's Trustee v. Pace (1915) 162 Ky. 457, 172 S. W. 925. Or because the proving creditor has received a preference which he has not surrendered. Stern v. Louisville Trust Co. (1901) 112 Fed. 501, 50 C. C. A. 367, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 305; McCulloch v. Davenport Savings Bank (D. C. 1915) 226 Fed. 309. The fact that one presenting a claim against the bankrupt is closely related to him, while it will justify a rigid scrutiny of the claim, will not alone warrant its rejection. Ohio Valley Bank Co. v. Mack (1906) 163 Fed. 155, 89 C. C. A. 605, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 40.

Informality in the proof will not cause the rejection of the claim when the creditor, under examination, has testified positively to facts which establish its validity. McKinsey v. Harding (D. C. 1869) 4 N. B. R. 38, Fed. Cas. No. 8,866.

When a judgment debt is offered for proof, the petition of the bankrupt having been filed after the rendition of the judgment, it may be objected to by the trustee or by other creditors on the ground of fraud or irregularity, including fraudulent preference; for they, not being parties or privies to the judgment, are not precluded from attacking it collaterally. Chandler v. Thompson (1902) 120 Fed. 940, 57 C. C. A. Ex parte O'Neil (D. C. 1867) 1 R. 677, Fed. Cas. No. 10,527; B v. Maybin (C. C. 1877) Fed. Ca 1,700. Compare Stillwell v. W (C. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 569, Cas. No. 13,451. For similar re the trustee is not bound by a settlement or accounting, not fol by payment or transfer of pro between the bankrupt and a cre but he may show that it was erro or fraudulent. In re Comstock (1875) Fed. Cas. No. 3,079.

The trustee may set up usury defense to the claim of a cre In re Stern (1906) 144 Fed. 956, C. A. 10, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 51 versing In re Worth [D. C. 1904 Fed. 927, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. In re Moore (C. C. 1878) Fed. No. 9,752; Bromley v. Smith (1871) 5 N. B. R. 152, Fed. Ca 1,922.

As against a negotiable note ma the bankrupt, the trustee can himself only of such defenses as available to the maker, not inc collateral issues between the ind subsequent to delivery. In re Sc (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 309, 29 Bankr. Rep. 700.

28. —— Contest and determinat Proceedings to establish claims a the estate of a bankrupt are p the suit in bankruptcy, and not pendent suits at law or in e Maryman v. S. G. Dreyfus Co. 1915) 174 S. W. 549.

If objection is made to the ance of a claim presented at a m of the creditors, the question of lowance should be heard as so feasible, and if the court is not fied with the weight of the evidenc hearing may be adjourned to a time. In re Eagles (D. C. 190 Fed. 695, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 7

A creditor presenting his clai proof and allowance against the of a bankrupt, which is contested trustee, is not entitled to dem trial by jury. In re Christense C. 1900) 101 Fed. 243, 4 Am. Rep. 99.

Contests over the allowance of in bankruptcy are intended to be and determined by the referee, a has full jurisdiction over them. Schwarz (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 700. It is not sary that the referee should adh any prescribed order of proof. Montgomery (D. C. 1911) 185 955, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 431.

Where a claim was allowed aga bankrupt firm and the bankrupt of an individual partner, the t was estopped after four years ject that the claim was insuffici form to justify its allowance a the partner's estate. In re Colli C. 1914) 215 Fed. 247.

29. —— Burden of proof and evidence.—The burden of proof is on one claiming to be a creditor of the bankrupt and presenting a demand against his estate. In re Graves (D. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 443, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 372; In re Hopper-Morgan Co. (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 533, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 539. The fact that an alleged creditor of a bankrupt is his wife does not bar her assertion of her rights as a creditor, but, if her claim is disputed, the burden is on her to establish it by proof. In re Crumling (D. C. 1914) 214 Fed. 503.

The creditor sustains the burden of proof in the first instance, and makes out a prima facie case, when he files a proof of his claim, sufficient in form and substance, and duly verified by his affidavit, as required by the statute, as such proof is regarded rather as a deposition than as a pleading. Whitney v. Dresser (1906) 200 U. S. 532, 26 Sup. Ct. 316, 50 L. Ed. 584, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 326; In re United Wireless Telegraph Co. (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 445, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 848; In re Schwarz (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 309, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 700; In re Montgomery (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 955, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 431; In re Baumhauer (D. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 966, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 750; In re James Dunlap Carpet Co. (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 532, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 788; In re Jones (D. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 108, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 206; In re Castle Braid Co. (D. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 224, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 143; In re Carter (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 846, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 126; In re Dresser (1905) 135 Fed. 495, 68 C. C. A. 207, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 747; In re Wooten (D. C. 1902) 118 Fed. 670, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 247; In re Shaw (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 780, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 499; In re Sumner (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 224, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 123; Moore v. Crandall (C. C. A. 1913) 205 Fed. 689, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 517.

When the creditor has made out a prima facie case by filing proof of his claim, the burden is shifted to the objecting creditor or creditors, or the trustee as the representative of all the creditors, and they are required to rebut the claimant's prima facie case by evidence having a probative value at least equal to his affidavit. In re Hull (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 796; In re Harper (D. C. 1910) 175 Fed. 412, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 918; In re Carter (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 846, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 126; In re Sanger (D. C. 1909) 169 Fed. 722, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 145; In re Pfaffinger (D. C. 1906) 154 Fed. 523, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 807; In re Coventry Evans Furniture Co. (D. C. 1909) 166 Fed. 516, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 272; West v. W. A. McLaughlin & Co.'s Trustee (C. C. A. 1908) 162 Fed. 124, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 654; In re Canton Iron & Steel Co. (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 767, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 791. Compare Mason v. St. Albans Furniture Co. (D. C. 1906) 149 Fed. 898, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 868.

Where the claim is for damages for breach of a contract, and the claimant has sufficiently established the elements of his case, the burden is on objecting creditors to show any circumstances in reduction or mitigation of damages. In re Duquesne Incandescent Light Co. (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 785, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 419.

In order to support the claimant's demand and warrant its allowance, the proof of claim must conform to the requirements of the law and be fair on its face. It is not self-proving if insufficient in form, or if its recitals are contradictory and irreconcilable, or if the facts alleged are improbable and suspicious. In re Hudson Porcelain Co. (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 325; In re Goble Boat Co. (D. C. 1911) 190 Fed. 92, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 48; Orr v. Park (1910) 183 Fed. 683, 106 C. C. A. 33, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 544; In re Shaw (D. C. 1902) 112 Fed. 947, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 458. Failure to file a written instrument which is the basis of a claim against the bankrupt's estate, as required by the statute, does not raise a presumption against the existence of the writing. In re Dresser (1905) 135 Fed. 495, 68 C. C. A. 207, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 747.

If the claimant does not choose to rely on the presumption of correctness of his claim raised by the formal proof of it, but elects to offer additional evidence, and such evidence is insufficient to establish his case or contradicts the allegations of his petition, he must abide by the result, and be taken to have waived the advantage of the position which he originally occupied. In re Greenfield (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 98, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 427; In re T. A. McIntyre & Co. (1909) 174 Fed. 627, 98 C. C. A. 381, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1.

When objection is made to a proof of claim, the proving creditor may be summoned as a witness and be questioned (in the nature of cross-examination) by the trustee or the objecting creditors, concerning his claim and its particulars; and if he fails to appear and submit to such examination, he will be taken to have admitted the objections to his claim, and the same will be rejected. Baumhauer v. Austin (1911) 186 Fed. 260, 108 C. C. A. 306, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 385; In re Sumner (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 224, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 123; In re Lount (D. C. 1875) 11 N. B. R. 315, Fed. Cas. No. 8,543. But testimony of the bankrupt or other witnesses taken before the referee in other issues in the bankruptcy proceedings, to which the claimant was not a party and when he was not present, cannot be used against him. In re Keller (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 118, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 334; In re Hersey

(D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 1004, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 863. The testimony of an officer of a bankrupt corporation, taken on his general examination, but not directed to any particular issue, is not admissible on the hearing of a contested claim before the referee. In re National Boat & Engine Co. (D. C. 1914) 216 Fed. 208.

The proving creditor is a competent witness in his own behalf to prove the contract out of which his claim arose, though the bankrupt is dead, as the rules of evidence in such cases are governed by the laws of the United States, and not of the state, and § 1464, ante, does not apply to proceedings in bankruptcy. In re Merrill (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 35, Fed. Cas. No. 9,466. Conversely, the bankrupt is a competent witness where a claim against his estate is contested, though the creditor is dead and the claim is presented by his executor. In re Moore (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 9,752. On similar principles, where a contest is made as to a claim offered to be proved against the estate of a bankrupt by his wife, she is a competent witness in her own behalf. In re Richards (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 562, Fed. Cas. No. 11,770; In re Bean (D. C. 1875) 14 N. B. R. 182, Fed. Cas. No. 1,166. Compare In re Bechtel (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 1,204.

A judgment recovered by the creditor in a state court is not conclusive evidence either of the existence or the amount of his claim, when he seeks to prove it in the bankruptcy proceedings, at least where the trustee was not a party to the suit. In re Freeman (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 680, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 68; Bourne v. Maybin (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 1,700.

The general rule of law that a party can only recover on the cause of action alleged in his pleading applies to claims presented in bankruptcy, and a claimant who has filed a statement of his demand under oath, as required by the statute, cannot sustain it by evidence of an indebtedness arising in a different manner from that stated. In re Lansaw (D. C. 1902) 118 Fed. 365, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 167; Orr v. Park (1910) 183 Fed. 683, 106 C. C. A. 33, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 544.

As in other cases, the evidence may be circumstantial on questions of motive, intent, good faith, and the like. In re Friedman (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 131, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 213; In re Herman (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 594. And the claimant, if put to his defense, must show all the elements of a valid and enforceable demand, just as on the trial of an issue in a plenary suit. In re Rosenthal & Lehman (D. C. 1902) 120 Fed. 848, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 626; In re Banks (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 662. Where a bankrupt, on full consideration paid before bankruptcy, contracted to absolutely pay the claimant $3 per day during the remainder of his life, the mortality tables might be u determine the claimant's life. Miller (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 3 the creditor and the bankrupt a only witnesses and they squarel tradict each other, circumstance ing to corroborate the one or th will turn the scale. In re Kald (D. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 232, Bankr. Rep. 6. The referee sh his own motion consider the cre of the witnesses and of their test and that he is not obliged to all claim even if the evidence in it port is uncontradicted. In re ((D. C. 1904) 133 Fed. 837, 1 Bankr. Rep. 114.

Decisions on weight and sufficie evidence on contested claims, see worth v. Union Trust & Depo (C. C. A. 1914) 211 Fed. 912; Cordova Shop (D. C. 1914) 21 818; In re Kanter (D. C. 191 Fed. 276; In re Hawks (D. C. 204 Fed. 309; In re House of F (1913) 203 Fed. 471, 121 C. C. A In re Utica Pipe Foundry Co. 1915) 221 Fed. 787.

30. Amendment of proofs.—Pr debt may always be amended, if a tion is made in proper time, in to the correction of clerical erro supplying of omissions, or to technical defects in the proofs i ters of form, and when the p amended so as to comply with t it will relate back to the origina unless the rights of others have mean time intervened. In re (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 691, 3 Am. Rep. 760; In re Salvator Brewi (1912) 193 Fed. 989, 113 C. C. A 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 56; In re Quarry Co. (D. C. 1910) 179 Fe 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 769; In re S (D. C. 1901) 107 Fed. 243, Bankr. Rep. 806; In re Maybin 1876) 15 N. B. R. 468, Fed. Ca 9,337; In re Myrick (D. C. 1 N. B. R. 156, Fed. Cas. No. In re Montgomery (D. C. 1869 B. R. 423, Fed. Cas. No. 9,729; Lowerre (D. C. 1867) 1 N. B. Fed. Cas. No. 8,577; In re Bas C. A. 1912) 200 Fed. 951, 2 Bankr. Rep. 225.

If a creditor, in proving his has illegally increased the amo it, or if a portion of the conside is good and a portion illegal, he w be allowed, on the detection fraud, to separate the good fro bad and amend his proof, or t it allowed for the valid portion for his fraud taints the whole. Elder (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. 326. So, where a claim of lien a mortgage has been declared f lent, the claimant is not entit amend so as to prove his clain general claim against the estate. Vogt (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 764. ther is it permissible, under the g an amendment, to introduce a new and different claim against the bankrupt. In re Miners' Brewing Co. (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 327, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 717; In re Montgomery (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 430, Fed. Cas. No. 9,731.

31. —— After expiration of year.—An amended proof of claim against a bankrupt's estate, filed more than a year after the adjudication, may be substituted for the original proof when the latter was defective, irregular, or otherwise insufficient, notwithstanding the provision of the act limiting the time for original filing of proofs. Hutchinson v. Otis, Wilcox & Co. (1903) 190 U. S. 552, 23 Sup. Ct. 778, 47 L. Ed. 1179, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 135; In re Roeber (1903) 127 Fed. 122, 62 C. C. A. 122, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 464; Hutchinson v. Otis (1902) 115 Fed. 937, 53 C. C. A. 419, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 382; In re Salvator Brewing Co. (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 522, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 21; In re Standard Telephone & Electric Co. (D. C. 1911) 186 Fed. 586, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 601; In re Kessler (C. C. A. 1910) 184 Fed. 51, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 512; In re Fisk & Robinson (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 974; In re McCarthy Portable Elevator Co. (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 986, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 247. Compare In re Moebius (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 47, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 590. A claim against a bankrupt's estate having been filed within the year, and having stated the true nature of the consideration, the fact that it was defective for failure, in that the proof was not made by the owner, but by his agent, without stating why it was not made by the owner, etc., did not prevent its amendment after the year had expired so as to comply with the law. In re McCarthy Portable Elevator Co. (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 986.

An amendment cannot be allowed after the expiration of a year from the adjudication for the purpose of enabling the creditor to set up an entirely new and separate claim. In re McCallum & McCallum (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 768, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 447; In re Stevens (D. C. 1901) 107 Fed. 243, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 806.

Where a creditor filed a claim in the form of a book account, an amended claim, based on promissory notes of the bankrupt, may be treated as an amendment of the original claim, and the court may permit it to be filed after the expiration of the year, where it is shown that the notes were given in settlement of the account, but were not shown by the creditor's books, and that the original claim was based on the account, rather than the notes, through mere inattention or because the creditor did not realize that it would make any difference as to the form of proof. Brown v. O'Connell (1912) 200 Fed. 229, 118 C. C. A. 415, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 653. So, where the creditor originally filed on a note and the claim was disallowed because it carried usurious interest, he was allowed to amend his proof by substituting therefor a claim for money fraudulently obtained by the bankrupt and received to the claimant's use. In re Robinson (D. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 994, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 626. Where, after labor claims were returned by a referee in bankruptcy for insufficiency, claimants' attorney sought unsuccessfully to cure the defects by his own affidavit and, this being returned, nothing further was done for more than a year, the claimants' right then to amend and refile the claims was barred. In re Booth (D. C. 1914) 216 Fed. 575. Though a claim was not formally filed within the year, but an assignment of it was executed and filed with the referee, it was held that this might be treated as sufficiently presenting the claim to permit an amendment after the year. Bennett v. American Credit Indemnity Co. (1908) 159 Fed. 624, 86 C. C. A. 614, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 258. So a paper filed by a creditor, denominated "an application for the sale of collateral," and containing all the statements essential to a formal proof of claim, may be used as the foundation for an amendment after the expiration of the year. In re Faulkner (C. C. A. 1908) 161 Fed. 900, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 542. Compare In re Basha (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 151, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 435. Where the trustee circulated a paper among the creditors for their signatures, containing a proposal for a settlement, each creditor to state on it the amount of his claim, and it was signed by all and returned and filed with the referee within a year after the adjudication, it was held to constitute a sufficient claim to be amendable, after the end of the year, by a creditor who signed it in the belief that a proof of his claim was not required, but without whose assent the settlement could not have been effected. In re Fairlamb (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 278, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 515. A letter written by a creditor to attorneys for a receiver after filing of the petition, but before adjudication, held not to constitute an informal proof of claim, which could be amended after the lapse of three years. In re Thompson (C. C. A. 1915) 227 Fed. 981.

A court of bankruptcy may allow an amended proof, filed with the trustee's consent, to be substituted for the defective original proof, although the trustee has an appeal pending from the decree of the court permitting the creditor to prove his claim. Hutchinson v. Otis (1903) 190 U. S. 552, 23 Sup. Ct. 778, 47 L. Ed. 1179.

32. —— By secured creditors.—The power of allowing amendments is not infrequently appealed to in behalf of secured creditors; and it is well settled that where a creditor of this class has proved his claim as unsecured, but this has been done through inadvertence or mistake or ignorance of his rights, it is in the discretion of the court to allow him to amend his proof so as to state the facts correctly, even after the lapse of a year from the adjudication, provided this will not operate to the prejudice of any other creditor, or provided all parties can be restored to their original positions. Maxwell v. McDaniels (C. C. A. 1912) 195 Fed. 426, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 692; In re James Carothers & Co. (D. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 501; In re Wilder (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 104; In re Falls City Shirt Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 592, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 437; In re Clark (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 255, Fed. Cas. No. 2,806; In re Parkes (D. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 82, Fed. Cas. No. 10,754; In re Hubbard (D. C. 1867) 1 N. B. R. 679, Fed. Cas. No. 6,813; In re Jaycox (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 241, Fed. Cas. No. 7,242; Ex parte Harwood (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 6,185; Ex parte Lapsley (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 8,083; In re Hope Min. Co. (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 6,681; In re Baxter (D. C. 1882) 12 Fed. 72. But see In re E. B. Havens & Co. (D. C. 1911) 186 Fed. 583. And it is not an insuperable objection to the allowance of such an amendment that the creditor has already received a dividend on his claim as unsecured, for it can be made a condition of the leave granted to him to amend that he shall refund to the trustee the sum so received as a dividend. In re Parkes (D. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 82, Fed. Cas. No. 10,754; In re Baxter (D. C. 1882) 12 Fed. 72. On similar principles, where a bankrupt had money on deposit in a bank and was indebted to the bank on promissory notes for a larger sum, and the cashier of the bank made proof against the bankrupt's estate for the entire sum of the notes, omitting, through mistake or forgetfulness, to offset the amount of the deposit, it was held that the bank should be permitted to amend its proof so as to retain the amount of the deposit, credit the same on the notes, and prove a claim for the balance. In re Myers (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 691, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 760. Claimant, who loaned money to bankrupt immediately prior to proceedings, taking a note and mortgages, knowing of bankrupt's intention to pay certain creditors, effecting a preference, could amend his proof of claim to stand as for an unsecured debt. Seligman v. Gray (C. C. A. 1915) 227 Fed. 417.

33. Withdrawal of proofs.—A creditor of a bankrupt will not be allowed to withdraw his proof of debt, so as to place himself outside the bankruptcy proceedings, after the claim has been filed in the case and allowed. In re McIntosh (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B Fed. Cas. No. 8,826; In re
(D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 595,
No. 4,459; In re Lowerre (D.
1 N. B. R. 74, Fed. Cas No. 8,5 a creditor who has proved a cl note may withdraw the note, by mission of the court, on leavin on file. In re Loden (D. C. 1
Fed. 965, 25 Am. Bankr. R
Withdrawal of a claim will n lowed after leave has been gr the creditor to amend his pr re Hallie (D. C. 1874) Fed.
5,960. But a creditor who ha his claim may be permitted to it if it was made under a mi fact or law, provided neither t
rupt nor th other creditors proved will be injured thereby Hubbard (D. C. 1867, Fed.
6,813.

A creditor who was in fact of his property through the fr acts of the bankrupt, of w creditor was ignorant and which discovers on the examination bankrupt, after he has proved as a general creditor, is not the ped to withdraw his claim and the return of his property. In art (D. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 463, Bankr. Rep. 474.

But the court will not gra to withdraw a proof merely purpose of allowing the cre continue an arrest of the which was made before the co ment of the proceedings in ban
In re Wiener (D. C. 1876) 14
218, Fed. Cas. No. 17,620.

34. Re-examination of claims punging.—The provision of this with reference to the reconsi of claims which have been does not apply to claims agai estate for expenses of adminis such as the charges and e shown on the account of a rece pointed to take charge of the ba estate. In re Reliance Sto Warehouse Co. (D. C. 1900) 1
619, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 49. N it apply to fixed liens on the tate of the bankrupt. Hawth
Hendrie & Bolthoff Mfg. & Su
(1911) 50 Colo. 342, 116 Pac.

In bankruptcy proceedings, the power to reconsider and revise ders and decrees does not exp the term at which they were m re Keyes (D. C. 1907) 160 Fed.
Am. Bankr. Rep. 183. But pa interest may lose their right t for the expunging of an allowe when they have acquiesced in such a length of time as to b chargeable with laches. In re P Lead & Zinc Co. (D. C. 1912) 1
316, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 880; Hinckel Brewing Co. (D. C.
123 Fed. 942, 10 Am. Bankr. R
In re Hamilton Furniture Co.

1902) 116 Fed. 115, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 588; In re Effinger (D. C. 1910) 184 Fed. 724. 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 924; In re Merwin & Willoughby Co. (D. C. 1913) 208 Fed. 293; In re Williams (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 984. But a delay of a year or even more, no other facts appearing, and where no dividend has been declared, cannot be said to constitute by itself such laches as to bar the re-examination of a claim. In re Globe Laundry (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 365, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 831.

While it would be an abuse of discretion for the court to set aside an order allowing a claim and to grant a rehearing, for the sole purpose of extending the time within which an appeal may be taken, yet such an order, like all others, is within the control of the court, and may, in its sound discretion, be set aside for good cause shown, even after the expiration of the time allowed for appeal. West v. W. A. McLaughlin & Co.'s Trustee (C. C. A. 1908) 162 Fed. 124, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 654.

The court has power to investigate a claim at any stage of the proceedings, before the final closing of the estate, and to make any correction that equity and justice demand—not only to reduce the amount of the claim if it is found to have been allowed for too large a sum, but also to increase it if, through inadvertence or mistake, it is less than by right it should be, or to allow the proofs to stand for any sum which, upon examination, is found to be actually due. In re W. A. Paterson Co. (1911) 186 Fed. 629, 108 C. C. A. 493, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 31, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 855; In re Montgomery (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 426, Fed. Cas. No. 9,730; In re New Brunswick Carpet Co. (D. C. 1880) 4 Fed. 514. But on motion to expunge a proof of debt and establish a set-off, a personal judgment cannot be rendered against the creditor for money in his hands. In re Forbes (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 4,922; In re Peacock (C. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 851, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 159. Where a referee's order disallowing claims in bankruptcy on the sole ground that the claims were not offered for proof within the time required was sustained on a petition for review, and shortly afterwards the Circuit Court of Appeals in another case so construed the bankruptcy act that such claims would not have been barred, the claimants were held entitled to a rehearing, although no appeal was claimed. In re Keyes (D. C. 1907) 160 Fed. 763, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 183. Allowance of a secured claim in part may be annulled, on its appearing that the security is sufficient to pay it, or, if allowed for too great an amount, the allowance may be reduced, instead of annulling the claim. Courtney v. Fidelity Trust Co. (1914) 219 Fed. 57, 134 C. C. A. 595.

When a trustee in bankruptcy is not satisfied of the legality or correctness of any claim which has been proved and allowed against the estate, or desires to contest such claim in respect either to its validity or amount, the proper practice is for him to move to have it re-examined, under the provisions of the general order, and proceed as therein directed. In re Firemen's Ins. Co. (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 4,796.

35. —— Parties who may apply.— Where no trustee has been appointed for the estate of a bankrupt, a motion for the re-examination and expunction of a claim proved and allowed against his estate may be made by the bankrupt himself. In re Ankeny (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 614, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 72. Compare In re Columbia Iron Works (D. C. 1904) 142 Fed. 234, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 526. If the bankrupt can be estopped from disputing the validity of a claim against his estate, or from applying to have it expunged after it has been proved, by reason of his having included it in his sworn schedule of debts, no such estoppel can be claimed in favor of a purchaser of the claim who was informed by the bankrupt, before purchasing, that the seller of the claim had no valid claim against the estate. In re Pease (D. C. 1887) 29 Fed. 593.

As between the trustee and the general creditors of the estate, it has been held that the trustee alone is vested with the right to move for the reconsideration of a claim which has been allowed, that the provision authorizing "any creditor" to do so is meant to apply only to the case where a trustee has not yet been appointed, and that, after the appointment of a trustee, such a proceeding may not be instituted by a creditor without the concurrence of the trustee. In re Sully (D. C. 1905) 142 Fed. 895, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 304; In re Lewensohn (1903) 121 Fed. 538, 57 C. C. A. 600, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 368. If any creditor is dissatisfied with the allowance of another, creditor's claim, his proper course is to demand of the trustee that the latter shall move for its reconsideration. But if the trustee refuses to do so, then the creditor may apply to the court for an order requiring the trustee so to move, or for permission for the objecting creditor to move in his own name. In re Mexico Hardware Co. (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 650, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 736; In re Stern (1906) 144 Fed. 956, 76 C. C. A. 10, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 510. And where it appears that a claim has been properly disallowed on objections made and conducted by the creditors in their own names, who voluntarily assumed liability for costs and expenses, the order of disallowance will not be disturbed on the theory that the trustee was the only proper person to attack the claim. In re Canton Iron & Steel Co. (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 767, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 791. And the right to have a claim re-examined should not be denied to creditors who clearly have an interest therein because they seek such re-examination chiefly or solely in the interest of a third party. In re Sully (1907) 152 Fed. 619, 81 C. C. A. 609, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 123.

36. —— Grounds for expunging claim. —If the claim as made by the creditor is wholly disproved in form and substance upon a re-examination, it should be entirely expunged. In re Mead (D. C. 1882) 14 Fed. 287. A claim may be stricken out on proof that the creditor had received a fraudulent preference which has not been surrendered, whereby he is disabled from proving any part of his debt. In re Headley (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 765, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 272; In re Leland (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 8,235. A claim may be expunged on account of a purpose, which was accomplished, of hindering and defrauding other creditors. In re Headley (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 765, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 272. Or because, after the proof and allowance of a debt founded on a judgment, the court in which the judgment was rendered has set it aside. In re Bruce (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 2,044. Or because the claim is shown to have been barred by the statute of limitations at the time the petition in bankruptcy was filed. In re Lipman (D. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 353, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 46.

37. —— Proceedings and evidence.— A proceeding for the re-examination of a proved claim should be begun by the filing of a petition, which should be distinct and specific, but it is not necessary to allege facts which, if proved, would defeat the claim, but only facts which constitute a sufficient cause for the re-examination of it which is demanded. In re George Watkinson & Co. (D. C. 1904) 130 Fed. 218, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 370; In re Ankeny (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 614, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 72. If the petition is faulty in this respect, the proper method of objecting to it is by motion for a more specific statement, not by motion to strike out parts of the petition. In re Ankeny (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 614, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 72. If the creditor whose claim is in contest does not file an answer, or obtain an extension of time for answering, it is proper to enter a decree against him pro confesso, carrying the ordinary incidents and consequences of such a decree. In re Docker-Foster Co. (D. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 190, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 584; In re Lewis, Eck & Co. (D. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 495, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 657.

The burden of showing that a creditor's claim, duly proven according to the provisions of the statute, is not a valid claim against the estate, re on the trustee or the creditor mo have it expunged. In re Frazin A. 1912) 201 Fed. 86, 29 Am. Rep. 214; In re Pittsburg Lead Co. (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 316, 2 Bankr. Rep. 880; In re Howard 1900) 100 Fed. 630, 4 Am. Bank 69; In re Felter (D. C. 1881) 904; In re Robinson (D. C. 18 N. B. R. 130, Fed. Cas. No. 1 Canby v. McLear (D. C. 1876) B. R. 22, Fed. Cas. No. 2,378. examination of a claim filed ag bankrupt's estate, the proofs filed constitute a prima facie ca are sufficient unless overcome b tive testimony when the claims supported by other evidence. Elk Valley Coal Min. Co. (D. C. 210 Fed. 386. On the petitio trustee in bankruptcy to exp creditor's claim on the ground o erence, the burden is on the tru proving that the preferential p was received after information insolvency of the bankrupt. In r zin (1912) 201 Fed. 86, 119 C. 424. Where a trustee's petition punge certain claims was based e on the allegation that they were by limitations and no offer to was made, evidence of an unc payment on one of the claims w error. In re Banks (D. C. 191 Fed. 662.

The creditor whose claim is un examination may be ordered to for examination concerning it, an refuses or fails to do so, the clai be expunged. In re George Wat & Co. (D. C. 1904) 130 Fed. 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 370; Laffoon (1908) 159 Fed. 861, 87 C. C. A. Am. Bankr. Rep. 174; In re Kyl C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 649, Fed. C 7,956. Where proceedings are in ed for re-examination of certain claims against a bankrupt's esta referee is not authorized by Or (ante, § 9614), to require of th tioner a deposit of money to ind the claimants for traveling ex and hotel bills while attending the ing. In re Elk Valley Coal Mini (D. C. 1914) 210 Fed. 386. If t timony of the bankrupt is desire motion to expunge a proved cl may be obtained by summoning hi witness. Canby v. McLear (1876) 13 N. B. R. 22, Fed. Cas. 378.

The referee must give due no the creditor whose claim is cha of the time fixed for hearing th tion. In re Stoever (D. C. 190 Fed. 355, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 250 he is not required to give not his findings and decision on the p as these become matter of rec which a creditor who has proved is bound to take notice. In re (D. C. 1887) 29 Fed. 593.

38. Review of referee's proceedings by judge.—The referee in bankruptcy has jurisdiction in the first instance to hear objections to the proof of claims, and to pass upon the question of allowing or rejecting them, and also to entertain and decide motions for their reconsideration or expunction; and the remedy to obtain a review of his decision on such a motion lies in the court of bankruptcy. Clendening v. Red River Valley Nat. Bank (1903) 12 N. D. 51, 94 N. W. 901. As to procedure on finding referee's decision wrong, and remand of case for rehearing, see Moore v. Crandall (C. C. A. 1913) 205 Fed. 689, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 517. A person dissatisfied with the referee's decision must file a petition for a review of his order. In re Russell (D. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 501, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 566. Compare In re John A. Baker Notion Co. (D. C. 1910) 180 Fed. 922, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 808. Ordinarily a general creditor may not prosecute before the bankruptcy court a petition for review of the allowance of the claim of another creditor; only the trustee may do so. In re Mexico Hardware Co. (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 650, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 736. The matter cannot be brought into the district court for review by filing exceptions in that court. In re Hawley (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 428, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 632. Where a petition for discharge was denied, the refusal of the referee to allow a claim against the bankrupt, filed by him as guardian of his infant children, was not reviewable on his application, as it was immaterial to him whether the claim was allowed or not. In re Roberts (D. C. 1914) 213 Fed. 905. Where a bankrupt filed three separate claims against his trustee for services rendered to the estate, two of which were disallowed and the third allowed in part, his acceptance of such allowance did not estop him from the right to review the referee's decision as to the other claims. Peck v. Richter (1914) 217 Fed. 880, 133 C. C. A. 590.

A person desiring a review of the referee's decision on the allowance or expunction of a claim must present his petition within the time limited therefor by any rule of the court. In re T. M. Lesher & Son (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 650, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 218. If no such rule applies, he must act with reasonable promptness, or he will be chargeable with laches, and may, for that reason, be denied all relief. In re Nichols (D. C. 1909) 166 Fed. 603, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 216.

It was within the discretion of the district judge to permit a claimant in bankruptcy to amend the specifications of its claim, after a recommendation by the referee that a composition be accepted, where the referee disallowed such amendments because of a doubt as to his power. In re Soloway & Katz (C. C. A. 1914) 211 Fed. 333.

On such a petition for review, the burden of proof is on those who object to the referee's decision and desire its reversal. In re Williams (D. C. 1903) 120 Fed. 542, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 731; In re Pittsburgh Lead & Zinc Co. (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 316, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 880. The referee is vested with a large measure of discretion and his decision on any matter of fact or evidence will be entitled to at least the weight accorded to the verdict of a jury, and will not be reversed by the court unless plainly unsupported by the evidence or otherwise palpably erroneous. In re New York & Philadelphia Package Co. (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 219; In re Miller (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 331; In re Charles R. Partridge Lumber Co. (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 973; Baumhauer v. Austin (1911) 186 Fed. 260, 108 C. C. A. 306, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 385; In re Schwarz (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 309, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 700; In re Montgomery (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 955, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 431; In re Levin (D. C. 1909) 173 Fed. 119, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 665; In re Carter (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 846, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 126; In re Grant (D. C. 1902) 118 Fed. 73, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 93; In re Stout (D. C. 1900) 109 Fed. 794, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 505; In re Rider (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 811, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 192.

Where a referee, in rejecting a claim, erroneously ignored material legal evidence, it was improper for the district court to allow the claim, in addition to reversing the determination of the referee; the proper procedure being to remand the claim to the referee for rehearing. Moore v. Crandall (1913) 205 Fed. 689, 124 C. C. A. 11.

§ 9642. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 58, as amended, Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, § 9½.) Notices to creditors.

Notices to Creditors.—a Creditors shall have at least ten days' notice by mail, to their respective addresses as they appear in the list of creditors of the bankrupt, or as afterwards filed with the papers in the case by the creditors, unless they waive notice in writing, of (1) all examinations of the bankrupt; (2) all hearings upon applications for the confirmation of compositions; (3) all meetings of creditors; (4) all proposed sales of property; (5) the declaration and time of payment of dividends; (6) the filing of the final accounts of the trustee, and the time when and the place where they will be examined and passed upon; (7) the proposed compromise of any controversy; (8) the proposed dismissal of the proceedings, and there shall be thirty days' notice of all applications for the discha of bankrupts.

b Notice to creditors of the first meeting shall be published at l once and may be published such number of additional times as court may direct; the last publication shall be at least one w prior to the date fixed for the meeting. Other notices may be p lished as the court shall direct.

c All notices shall be given by the referee, unless otherwise ord by the judge. (30 Stat. 561. 36 Stat. 841.)

In this section, as originally enacted, subdivision a thereof was as foll "a Creditors shall have at least ten days' notice by mail, to their respe addresses as they appear in the list of creditors of the bankrupt, or as a wards filed with the papers in the case by the creditors, unless they w notice in writing, of (1) all examinations of the bankrupt; (2) all hea upon applications for the confirmation of compositions or the dischar bankrupts; (3) all meetings of creditors; (4) all proposed sales of erty; (5) the declaration and time of payment of dividends; (6) the of the final accounts of the trustee, and the time when and the place w they will be examined and passed upon; (7) the proposed compromise o controversy, and (8) the proposed dismissal of the proceedings."

It was amended by Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, § 9½, last cited abov changing the time of notice of applications for discharge of bankrupts, m said subdivision a read as set forth here.

Section 14 of said amendatory Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, 36 Stat. 842, vided that the act should not apply to bankruptcy cases pending when it effect, but that such cases should be adjudicated and disposed of confor to the provisions of the original act as previously amended.

Notes of Decisions

Notices to creditors.—The requirement of this section that notice shall be given to the creditors of the various steps in the proceeding is mandatory, in such sense that the failure to give notice of any particular meeting or other matter enumerated in the statute as requiring notice may be cause for setting aside the proceedings taken therein, or in such sense that the creditors who should have been notified, and were not, may not be bound by anything done at the meeting or in relation to the matter in hand. In re Gilbert (D. C. 1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 378; In re Hall (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 192, Fed. Cas. No. 5,922; Anonymous (D. C. 1867) 1 N. B. R. 122, Fed. Cas. No. 457. In an action against an assignee in bankruptcy for willful neglect to give notice of creditors' meetings, it is sufficient for him to show that he placed the notice in the mail, and it is not material to show that it was received. Russell v. Phelps (1880) 42 Mich. 377, 4 N. W. 1. But the jurisdiction of the court, either over the proceedings in general or over the bankrupt's application for discharge, is not made dependent upon the correctness of the bankrupt's list of creditors or upon the actual receipt of notice by the creditors. Jurisdiction is acquired by the petition and adjudication, and if the notices required by the act were duly and regularly published and served, the regularity of the proceedings, or the jurisdiction of the court to proceed with the case, is not affected by the failure of any creditor, or any number of creditors, to receive the notice. In re Archenbrown (D. C. 1875) 1 B. R. 149, Fed. Cas. No. 504; I Stetson (D. C. 1870) 3 N. B. R. Fed. Cas. No. 13,381. See In re S ler (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 400, 2 Bankr. Rep. 704.

Written notice by mail, as req by this section, must be sent to fo creditors, as well as to those wh side within the United States. I Heys (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 6

Notices of meetings of creditors sequent to the first should be se all the known creditors, whether have proved their claims or not. Mills (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 9 Russell v. Phelps (1880) 42 Mich. 4 N. W. 1.

If the name of a given creditor pears in the bankrupt's list, wi statement that his residence is known, the failure to give him n will not vitiate the proceedings. Pulver (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. 11,466.

Clerical errors or minor inaccur in notices to creditors will not v the proceedings, provided they ar such as to mislead or deceive cred In re Hill (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas 6,481.

Where an assignee in bankr sought to renounce his trust by m an application for his discharge, on his own affidavit, alleging th tangible assets had come to his and that he had no information o property belonging to the ban other than a chose in action in of the estate, it was held that noti creditors of such application was essary. In re Savage (D. C. 1882) 12 Fed. 719.

A judgment creditor's denial that he received notice, or had knowledge of bankruptcy proceedings, is not conclusive in face of a record of the bankruptcy court that the statutory notice was given. Claflin v. Wolff (N. J. 1915) 96 A. 73.

§ 9643. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 59, as amended, Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, § 10.) Who may file and dismiss petitions.

Who may File and Dismiss Petitions.—a Any qualified person may file a petition to be adjudged a voluntary bankrupt.

b Three or more creditors who have provable claims against any person which amount in the aggregate, in excess of the value of securities held by them, if any, to five hundred dollars or over; or if all of the creditors of such person are less than twelve in number, then one of such creditors whose claim equals such amount may file a petition to have him adjudged a bankrupt.

c Petitions shall be filed in duplicate, one copy for the clerk and one for service on the bankrupt.

d If it be averred in the petition that the creditors of the bankrupt are less than twelve in number, and less than three creditors have joined as petitioners therein, and the answer avers the existence of a larger number of creditors, there shall be filed with the answer a list under oath of all the creditors, with their addresses, and thereupon the court shall cause all such creditors to be notified of the pendency of such petition and shall delay the hearing upon such petition for a reasonable time, to the end that parties in interest shall have an opportunity to be heard; if upon such hearing it shall appear that a sufficient number have joined in such petition, or if prior to or during such hearing a sufficient number shall join therein, the case may be proceeded with, but otherwise it shall be dismissed.

e In computing the number of creditors of a bankrupt for the purpose of determining how many creditors must join in the petition, such creditors as were employed by him at the time of the filing of the petition or are related to him by consanguinity or affinity within the third degree, as determined by the common law, and have not joined in the petition, shall not be counted.

f Creditors other than original petitioners may at any time enter their appearance and join in the petition, or file an answer and be heard in opposition to the prayer of the petition.

g A voluntary or involuntary petition shall not be dismissed by the petitioner or petitioners or for want of prosecution or by consent of parties until after notice to the creditors, and to that end the court shall, before entertaining an application for dismissal, require the bankrupt to file a list, under oath, of all his creditors, with their addresses, and shall cause notice to be sent to all such creditors of the pendency of such application, and shall delay the hearing thereon for a reasonable time to allow all creditors and parties in interest opportunity to be heard. (30 Stat. 561. 36 Stat. 841.)

In this section, as originally enacted, subdivision g thereof was as follows: "g A voluntary or involuntary petition shall not be dismissed by the petitioner or petitioners or for want of prosecution or by consent of parties until after notice to the creditors."

It was amended by Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, § 10, cited above, by adding to the subdivision, at the end thereof, the further provisions beginning with the words "and to that end the court," etc., making said subdivision read as set forth here.

Section 14 of said amendatory Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, 36 Stat. 842, provided that the act should not apply to bankruptcy cases pending when it took effect, but that such cases should be adjudicated and disposed of conformably to the provisions of the original act as previously amended.

Notes of Decisions

1. Voluntary petition and adjudication.
2. —— Opposition by creditors.
3. Creditors entitled to file involuntary petition.

4. —— Nature of claims.
5. —— Time of accrual of claims.
6. —— Corporation and partnership creditors.
7. —— Secured creditors.
8. —— Preferred creditors.
9. —— Creditors estopped to petition.
10. —— Requisites as to number and amount.
11. —— Solicitation, procurement, or purchase of claims.
12. —— Withdrawal of petitioners.

1. Voluntary petition and adjudication.—A bankrupt in a voluntary petition need only aver that he owes debts which he is unable to pay, and desires to take the benefit of the act. In re Lachenmaier (1913) 203 Fed. 32, 121 C. C. A. 368.

There is no legal obligation on an insolvent debtor to file a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. Richmond Standard Steel Spike & Iron Co. v. Allen (1906) 148 Fed. 657, 78 C. C. A. 389, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 583; Summers v. Abbott (1903) 122 Fed. 36, 58 C. C. A. 352, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 254.

A voluntary petition may be withdrawn and all further proceedings stayed on the application of the petitioner, before an adjudication has been made, upon proper cause shown and the payment of costs. Ex parte Randall (C. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 11,550. But this cannot be done if it is opposed by the creditors, except upon showing very substantial grounds. Ex parte Harris (D. C. 1845) Fed. Cas. No. 6,110. But where, upon the institution of proceedings in composition, it appeared that no adjudication had yet been made upon the bankruptcy petition, which was voluntary, it was held that an adjudication ought not to be made merely because certain creditors asked it, if the debtor did not desire it. In re Alsberg (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 260.

After an adjudication of bankruptcy has been made, it is not open to the bankrupt to withdraw and obtain a dismissal of the proceedings without the concurrence of all whose interest may be affected. In re Gile (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 5,423.

Where a petition in involuntary bankruptcy is filed, the default of the defendant, through failure to appear, does not convert the proceeding into one of voluntary bankruptcy. In re Taylor (1900) 102 Fed. 728, 42 C. C. A. 1, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 515.

A voluntary petition for adjudication of a corporation as a bankrupt filed pursuant to the authority of the board of directors is, in the absence of any restriction by statute or charter and by-laws as to the powers of the board, sufficient. In re Guanacevi Tunnel Co. (1912) 201 Fed. 316, 119 C. C. A. 554.

If proceedings in involuntary bankruptcy are begun against a corporation, and it adopts a resolution consenting to an adjudication being made, the proceeding substantially becomes voluntary, though compulsory in re New Amsterdam Motor C
1910) 180 Fed. 943, 24 A
Rep. 757.

Where a petition is filed by ber of a firm against the fir partners, it is involuntary in it affects the partners who sent, and hence they cannot ed bankrupt except upon pr commission of an act of b within the statutory time. I Ceballos & Co. (D. C. 1908)
445, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 459

Whether a court of b should proceed under a volun
tion of a debtor, or a pendin tary petition against him is n tion of jurisdiction or of ri parties, but one of practice; adjudication should be mad proceeding in which, under a cumstances, it appears to b best interests of the entire e a general rule, it should be m voluntary case, with proper to the rights of prior petition tors, because quicker, less and less likely to lead to co tion; and the court is not from acting under this gener the fact that the debtor may peared and participated in th
tary proceeding under suc stances as might ordinarily estoppel if his own interests a involved. In re New Chattano ware Co. (D. C. 1911) 190
27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 77. A re Stegar (D. C. 1902) 113
7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 665; In r
(D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No.
re Flanagan (D. C. 1878) 18
439, Fed. Cas. No. 4,850. C re Stewart (D. C. 1869) 3 N.
Fed. Cas. No. 13,419; In r
maier (C. C. A. 1913) 203 F
Am. Bankr. Rep. 325.

2. —— Opposition by credit act does not authorize credi proposed voluntary bankrupt swers in opposition to his pe adjudication. In re Jehu (D.
94 Fed. 638, 2 Am. Bankr.
In re R. H. Pennington & C 1915) 228 Fed. 388.

Creditors will not be heard that a debtor filing a petition tary bankruptcy is not in rea vent and therefore not entitl benefits of the act. In re Ca
C. 1902) 115 Fed. 246, 8 A
Rep. 270; In re Fowler (D.
Fed. Cas. No. 4,998. A cre not complain of an adjudicatio ruptcy of a corporation in a proceeding on the ground tha untary petition was filed wi thority. In re Guanacevi T (1912) 201 Fed. 316, 119 C.
The giving of preferences, transfers of property, conce assets, or other acts in con of the statute, are not groun jection to an adjudication in voluntary bankruptcy. In re Houghton (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 6,727; Ex parte Paget (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 10,-670. Compare In re Bailey (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 726. Mere pendency of an involuntary bankruptcy petition does not deprive the court of jurisdiction to receive and consider a voluntary petition. In re Lachenmaier (1913) 203 Fed. 32, 121 C. C. A. 368, following In re Stegar (D. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 978.

The objection that the district court for a district was without jurisdiction to adjudicate a corporation a bankrupt, on the ground that it had not maintained its principal place of business in the district for the greater part of six months before the filing of the petition as required by § 2 (1), ante, § 9586 (1), is jurisdictional, and may be made by a creditor. In re Guanacevi Tunnel Co. (1912) 201 Fed. 316, 119 C. C. A. 554; In re Waxelbaum (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 589, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 392.

Where a petition in voluntary bankruptcy, on which an adjudication is made, does not correctly allege the residence, domicile, and principal place of business of the debtor, the adjudication may be vacated for want of jurisdiction on the petition of creditors, or of a receiver appointed by a state court. In re San Antonio Land & Irrigation Co. (D. C. 1916) 228 Fed. 984. But creditors who prove their debts, choose a trustee, and otherwise participate in the proceedings so as to recognize their validity, will be considered as having waived the objection of a want of jurisdiction, and cannot first set it up in opposition to the bankrupt's application for discharge. Allen v. Thompson (D. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 116; In re Mason (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 256, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 599.

3. Creditors entitled to file involuntary petition.—Each creditor joining in a petition in involuntary bankruptcy must be the owner of a demand or claim provable against the bankrupt. In re Howell (1914) 215 Fed. 1, 131 C. C. A. 309; In re Crafts-Riordon Shoe Co. (D. C. 1910) 185 Fed. 931, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 449, Bankruptcy Act 1898, §§ 59b, 63. Persons related to the alleged bankrupt within the third degree of consanguinity may bring a petition in involuntary bankruptcy against him, although it is provided that they are not to be included in computing the total number of his creditors for the purpose of ascertaining whether a sufficient proportion have joined in the petition. Perkins v. Dorman (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 858. A corporation of another state may be a petitioning creditor, and it is not necessary to allege that it has obtained the right to do business in the state where the proceeding is brought. In re R. L. Radke Co. (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 735, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 950. But persons who extended credit to a corporation, in violation of the express provisions of the statute under which it was organized that it should neither give nor receive credit, have no claims which could be proved in bankruptcy against it, and cannot maintain a petition to have it adjudged an involuntary bankrupt. In re Wyoming Valley Co-op. Ass'n (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 436, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 462.

A creditor who has sold and assigned his claim has no standing to bring or join in the petition. In re Burlington Malting Co. (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 777, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 369. This applies to one who was qualified at the time the original petition was filed, but ceased to be a creditor before the filing of an amended petition, the first having been dismissed for insufficiency. In re Western Savings & T. Co. (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 17,442. It is immaterial that a creditor has contracted to sell his claim, agreeing, as a condition, first to join in a petition in bankruptcy against the debtor, if the transfer is not made until after the petition is filed. Lowenstein v. Henry McShane Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1904) 130 Fed. 1007, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 601. The bankruptcy proceeding is not defeated by the fact that one of the petitioning creditors has received payment of his claim from the debtor after the filing of the petition. In re Lutfy (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 873, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 614.

A creditor of a bankrupt may not split up his claim and assign some of the parts to other persons for the purpose of qualifying them as joint petitioners in a proceeding in involuntary bankruptcy. In re Halsey Electric Generator Co. (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 118, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 738. One is not qualified as a petitioner to whom a claim has been transferred without consideration and as a mere subterfuge to avoid a possible set-off or counterclaim. In re Pangborn (D. C. 1910) 185 Fed. 673, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 40. Where separate creditors of a bankrupt assigned their claims to assignees, who had no financial interest in the claims, but held the same merely as trustees for their respective assignors, they were nevertheless entitled to the rights of creditors. In re Halsey Electric Generator Co. (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 118, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 738.

A state may be a petitioner in involuntary bankruptcy against its debtor. In re Chamberlin (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 2,580.

A married woman may file a petition against her own husband, if the law of the state permits the creation of enforceable debts as between man and wife, and she is an actual creditor of her husband in good faith, having a provable claim. In re Novak (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 800, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 311.

4. —— Nature of claims.—A debt payable in the future, but upon which the debtor's liability is fixed and not contingent, will support a petition in bankruptcy, as in the case of a promissory note not yet due. In re Rothenberg (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 798, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 485; Linn v. Smith (C. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 46, Fed. Cas. No. 8,375; In re Alexander (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 178, Fed. Cas. No. 161; Phelps v. Clasen (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 11,074; In re Muller (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 329, Fed. Cas. No. 9,912; In re Ouimette (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 10,622; Barton v. Tower (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 1,085; In re King (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 7,785. Compare In re Morse (C. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 9,851.

A surety who has not paid the debt is not a creditor in such sense as to be entitled to file a petition in bankruptcy against the principal debtor. Phillips v. Dreher Shoe Co. (D. C. 1902) 112 Fed. 404, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 326. See Boyce v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1901) 111 Fed. 138, 49 C. C. A. 276, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 6. Nor a subcontractor whose claim against the contractor was not to become fixed until the latter should have been paid by the owner, the latter event not having occurred at the time of filing the petition. In re Ellis (1906) 143 Fed. 103, 74 C. C. A. 297, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 221.

Where the law of the state provides that a tax collector may sue for the recovery of delinquent taxes only after they have remained unpaid for three months, he cannot maintain a petition in bankruptcy against the taxpayer without showing that the prescribed time has elapsed. In re Corwin Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1910) 185 Fed. 976, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 269.

The claim of a creditor entitling him to file or join in a petition in bankruptcy may be an equitable demand. Sigsby v. Willis (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 12,849. Or the liability of a stockholder in a corporation to pay the debts of the corporation to the extent of the unpaid balance on his stock. In re Putnam (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 464, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 923; Walker v. Woodside (C. C. A. 1908) 164 Fed. 680, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 132. Or a liability of directors to creditors of a corporation growing out of the embezzlement or misappropriation of its funds by its officers. In re Brown (C. C. A. 1908) 164 Fed. 673, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 123. Or where the claim is a fixed liability, though the amount of damages remains to be determined and liquidated. In re Frederick L. Grant Shoe Co. (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 576, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 48. But otherwise as to an unliquidated claim, the validity of which is not admitted but is disputed. In re Big Meadows Gas Co. (D. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 974, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 697. A creditor is entitled to file or join in the petition who holds a claim for breach executory contract. In re Stern 116 Fed. 604, 54 C. C. A. 60, Bankr. Rep. 569. Or a cla damages arising out of a bre warranty on the sale of persons erty. Frederick L. Grant Sh v. W. M. Laird Co. (1909) 212 445, 29 Sup. Ct. 332, 53 L. E 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 484. Com re Morales (D. C. 1901) 105 F 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 425. B whose claim is for unliquidate ages growing out of an alleged not qualified as a petitioning c In re Brinckman (D. C. 1900) 1 65, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 551, Beers v. Hanlin (D. C. 1900) 695, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 745; E Charles, 14 East, 197, 16 Ve But otherwise when a claim fo ages has been reduced to judgme re Putman (D. C. 1911) 193 F 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 923.

A creditor cannot maintain tion in involuntary bankruptcy debt which is outlawed by the of limitations. In re Putman 1911) 193 Fed. 464, 27 Am. Rep. 923; In re Lipman (D. C 94 Fed. 353, 2 Am. Bankr. R In re Resler (D. C. 1899) 95 F 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 602; In re wall (C. C. 1871) 6 N. B. R. 30 Cas. No. 3,250. Nor a debt wh operation of law, would be extin by the adjudication in bankrupt re Windt (D. C. 1910) 177 Fe 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 536. Nor against which there exists a c claim, of a nature to be prov bankruptcy, sufficient to redu creditor's claim below the juris al amount. In re Osage Valle K. R. Co. (D. C. 1873) 9 N. B. Fed. Cas. No. 10,592.

Creditors who have proved claims in bankruptcy are not while the estate is still in pro administration, though after th rupt has been refused a dischs maintain proceedings to have judged a bankrupt a second t account of the same debts, ground that he has acquired p after the first adjudication whic alleged to have conveyed in fr his creditors. In re Barton's (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 540, Bankr. Rep. 569.

5. —— Time of accrual of c A debt contracted before the of the bankruptcy law is wit operation and will support a p and it is no objection that the is thus made to retroact by giv creditor a remedy which was no able to him when the claim a Ex parte Hull (D. C. 1842) Fe No. 6,856.

Some of the decisions hold th those creditors can bring or joi petition who had provable against the bankrupt at the time of the commission of the alleged act of bankruptcy. Brake v. Callison (1904) 129 Fed. 201, 63 C. C. A. 359, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 797; In re Callison (D. C. 1903) 130 Fed. 987, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 344; In re Brinkman (D. C. 1900) 103 Fed. 65, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 551; Beers v. Hanlin (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 695, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 745; In re Muller (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 329, Fed. Cas. No. 9,912. But others hold that it is only necessary that the petitioning creditors should have provable claims at the time they sign the petition. In re Hanyan (D. C. 1910) 180 Fed. 498, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 72, affirmed without opinion in (C. C. A. 1910) 181 Fed. 1021, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 954; In re Lewis F. Perry & Whitney Co. (D. C. 1909) 172 Fed. 745, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 772; Ex parte Shouse (D. C. 1847) Fed. Cas. No. 12,815.

6. —— Corporation and partnership creditors.—Creditors of a corporation who are also stockholders and directors of the company are not precluded, by reason of that relation, from commencing proceedings in involuntary bankruptcy against the corporation. In re Rollins Gold & Silver Min. Co. (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 982, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 327; Home Powder Co. v. Geis (C. C. A. 1913) 204 Fed. 568, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 580.

One is not a creditor of a corporation, within the meaning of the law, merely because goods furnished by him were shipped to and used by the company, where they were billed and charged to another corporation, though the latter owns the stock and controls the business of the former company. In re Hudson River Electric Power Co. (D. C. 1909) 173 Fed. 934, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 191.

A creditor of a partnership is also a creditor of each member of the firm, and is entitled as such to join in a petition in bankruptcy against one of the partners individually. In re Mercur (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 634, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 626. One partner may file a petition against the firm and his copartners. In re J. M. Ceballos & Co. (D. C. 1908) 161 Fed. 445, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 459. But not where his only claim is for a share in the assets of the firm, growing out of unsettled partnership transactions, since in that case he could not compete with firm creditors, his right being subordinate to their claim to full satisfaction out of firm property. Sigsby v. Willis (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 12,849; In re Schenkein (D. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 421.

7. —— Secured creditors.—Secured creditors, as well as those who are unsecured, may file a petition in involuntary bankruptcy, although, in making up the requisite amount of debts, their claims are to be counted only to the extent to which they may exceed the value of the securities. Emerine v. Tarault (1915) 219 Fed. 68, 134 C. C. A. 606; In re Bloss (C. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 147, Fed. Cas. No. 1,562; In re Stansell (C. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 183, Fed. Cas. No. 13,293; In re Alexander (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 178, Fed. Cas. No. 161; In re California Pac. R. Co. (D. C. 1874) 11 N. B. R. 193, Fed. Cas. No. 2,315. See In re Hazens (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 6,285.

8. —— Preferred creditors.—Numerous authorities maintain that a creditor who has received a preference is not thereby disqualified from bringing a petition in involuntary bankruptcy against his debtor. In re Hornstein (D. C. 1903) 122 Fed. 266, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 308; In re Herzikopf (D. C. 1902) 118 Fed. 101, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 90; In re Norcross, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 257, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 644; In re Cain, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 389, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 378; In re Bloss (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 1,562; In re California Pac. R. Co. (D. C. 1874) 11 N. B. R. 193, Fed. Cas. No. 2,315; In re Stansell (C. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 183, Fed. Cas. No. 13,293; Rankin v. Florida, A. & G. C. Ry. Co. (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 647, Fed. Cas. No. 11,567; Coxe v. Hale (C. C. 1872) 8 N. B. R. 562, Fed. Cas. No. 3,310.

The majority of the decisions hold that a creditor having a preference, which he does not surrender or disclaim, is not entitled to join in the petition, and that if his elimination reduces the number of creditors (or the amount of their claims) below what the statute requires, the defect is jurisdictional and the petition must be dismissed. In re Fishblate Clothing Co. (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 986, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 204; In re Schenkein (D. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 421; In re Burlington Malting Co. (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 777, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 369; In re Rogers Milling Co. (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 687, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 540; In re Gillette (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 769, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 119; Buckingham v. Schuylkill Plush & Silk Co. (1902) 38 Misc. Rep. 305, 77 N. Y. Supp. 857; In re Hunt (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 433, Fed. Cas. No. 6,882; In re Rado (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 11,522; Ecker v. McAllister (1876) 45 Md. 290. But a creditor will not be considered as preferred because he holds as security for his debt a life insurance policy having no surrender value. In re Blount (D. C. 1906) 142 Fed. 263, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 97.

Where a preferred creditor based his petition on a separate and distinct debt, as to which he had received no preference, held, that he was not qualified to join in the petition. In re Rogers Milling Co. (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 687, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 540.

A preferred creditor cannot proceed for adjudication against his debtor when he alleges as the act of bankruptcy on which his petition is founded the very act of preference to which he was a party, as he is estopped on every principle of equity, and the law should discourage a course of procedure which would amount to laying a trap for an embarrassed and unwary debtor. In re Currier (D. C. 1875) 13 N. B. R. 68, Fed. Cas. No. 3,492; In re Williams (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 132, Fed. Cas. No. 17,706.

If the preferred creditor, in his petition, disclaims or abjures the preference which he has received, or offers to surrender or vacate it, or to bring the money into court, if it was a payment in money, or if he will otherwise, according to its nature, renounce all benefit or advantage from it, then he may join in the petition as an ordinary creditor. In re Murphy (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 392; In re Vastbinder (D. C. 1903) 126 Fed. 417, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 118; Stevens v. Nave-McCord Mercantile Co. (C. C. A. 1906) 150 Fed. 71, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 609; In re Marcer (D. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 351, Fed. Cas. No. 9,060.

A creditor is not disqualified from petitioning, because of the receipt of a payment more than four months previously, which, if made within that time, would have been preferential, but under the actual circumstances is not. In re Girard Glazed Kid Co. (D. C. 1904) 129 Fed. 841, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 295.

9. —— Creditors estopped to petition.—Where the act of bankruptcy relied on in an involuntary petition is the making of a general assignment for the benefit of creditors, no creditors will be entitled to join in the petition who have recognized and assented to the assignment and participated in the proceedings under it, so as to make themselves parties to it, being estopped by the election between their rights under the assignment and those under the bankruptcy law. Despres v. Galbraith (1914) 213 Fed. 190, 129 C. C. A. 534; Utz & Dunn Co. v. Regulator Co. (1914) 213 Fed. 315, 130 C. C. A. 17; In re Lewis F. Perry & Whitney Co. (D. C. 1909) 172 Fed. 745, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 772; Moulton v. Coburn (1904) 131 Fed. 201, 66 C. C. A. 90, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 553; In re Romanow (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 510, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 461; Durham Paper Co. v. Seaboard Knitting Mills (D. C. 1903) 121 Fed. 179, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 29; In re Kraft (D. C. 1880) 3 Fed. 892.

This rule is applied as against creditors who have received and accepted dividends on their claims under the assignment. In re Brokaw (D. C. 1882) 11 Fed. 704. Or who have filed their claims and permitted the assignee to sell the property and collect the proceeds, involving delay and expense. Simonson v. Sinsheimer (1899) 95 Fed. 948, 37 C. C. A. 337. Or who have simply allowed four months to (without attempting to institute o in bankruptcy proceedings. In re is F. Perry & Whitney Co. (1909) 172 Fed. 752, 22 Am. I Rep. 780.

The rule does not apply to a cr who merely offered to assent to t signment if the assignee shou changed, which was not done. v. Ward (D. C. 1870) 3 N. B. R Fed. Cas. No. 13,241. Or who a to the state court to have the bo the assignee increased. Perry v. ley (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 559 Cas. No. 11,006. Or who merel his claim in the assignment pr ings but derived no benefit from i re Curtis (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. Am. Bankr. Rep. 440. Or wh his claim in ignorance of facts t to show that the assignment was ulent and that the debtor had di of property in fraud of his cre In re Curtis (1899) 94 Fed. 630, C. A. 430, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 2

Creditors were not estopped to tain a petition in involuntary ban cy on any or all of the foll grounds: (1) that, having kno of the assignment and of the acts assignee thereunder in conductin business and selling the stock on they delayed instituting proceedin two months; (2) that, pending a sition for compromise, they s such assignee for cash small b goods to replenish the stock and it more salable; (3) that they s ted to the assignee, at his reque verified statements of their clain the specific purpose of comparin same with the entries in the insol books; (4) that an order made state court for the sale of the a or's goods was submitted to the neys for the said creditors and b indorsed "seen." Sinsheimer v. S son (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 579, a Simonson v. Sinsheimer (1900 Fed. 426, 40 C. C. A. 474, 3 Am. Rep. 824.

Where the secretary and treasu a corporation, which was a credi the bankrupt, agreed to act a bankrupt's assignee in his capac an individual only, this did not the corporation from joining i bankruptcy petition. In re Winst C. 1903) 122 Fed. 187, 10 Am. Rep. 171.

A creditor should not be held ped who went into the state cour for the purpose of attacking cert leged preferences as fraudulent. the purpose of preventing a di tion of the assets until proceedi bankruptcy could be begun. Carriage Co. v. Stengel (1899) 9 637, 37 C. C. A. 210, 2 Am. Bank 383.

The rule does not apply to cr who were induced to assent to t signment by the debtor's fraud o representation. Canner v. Webster Tapper Co. (C. C. A. 1909) 168 Fed. 519, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 872. There is no estoppel where the act of bankruptcy relied on is a conveyance of property not included in the assignment nor drawn into the proceedings in the state court thereunder. In re Salmon & Salmon (D. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 395, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 122. Where a creditor would be thus estopped with respect to a particular debt or claim, it will not preclude him from joining in the petition in bankruptcy in respect to a different claim. Hays v. Wagner (1907) 150 Fed. 533, 80 C. C. A. 275, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 163; Johnson v. Rogers (D. C. 1876) 15 N. B. R. 1, Fed. Cas. No. 7,408.

The rule of estoppel does not apply where the state court in which the proceedings were had was entirely without jurisdiction, because operating under a statute annulled or suspended by the bankruptcy law. In re Weedman Stave Co. (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 948, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 460.

An arrangement effected between an insolvent debtor and his creditors for the conversion of his stock in trade and accounts into cash, through the agency of a trustee, and the proportional distribution of the proceeds among the creditors, to be accepted by them in full payment, will estop creditors who participated in the agreement from petitioning in bankruptcy, when the plan has been so far carried out that a sale of the property has been accomplished. Clark v. Henne & Meyer (1904) 127 Fed. 288, 62 C. C. A. 172, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 583. But otherwise where, after such a transfer and sale, the proceeds were diverted by the debtor to other purposes than that proposed. In re Gillette (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 769, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 119.

Creditors of a corporation who intervened in a suit against it in a state court and assisted in having receivers appointed are estopped to petition against it in bankruptcy. Lowenstein v. Henry McShane Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1904) 130 Fed. 1007, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 601; In re Gold Run Mining & Tunnel Co. (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 162, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 563.

Where an agreement of the creditors of an embarrassed debtor to grant him an extension of time for payment is not to be binding unless all the creditors will unite in it, an unequivocal dissent by any creditor will release others who had already signed, and remove any impediment to their petitioning in bankruptcy. Ex parte Potts (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 11,344.

It should probably be a defense to such a petition that the creditor maintaining it had previously agreed to compromise with his debtor on receiving a certain proportion of his claim; but not where the composition was not carried into effect, and it is not shown that such an agreement on the part of one creditor was made the basis for a similar agreement by another. Simonson v. Sinsheimer (1899) 95 Fed. 948, 37 C. C. A. 337; In re Simonson (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 904, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 197.

A release of his debt would put the creditor in a position where he would no longer be entitled to petition in bankruptcy; but a release obtained by fraud and deceit may be repudiated. Michaels v. Post (1874) 21 Wall. 398, 22 L. Ed. 520.

An estoppel against a creditor may be based on his having consented to the giving of a preference to another creditor, at least so far as to preclude him from alleging that preference as an act of bankruptcy. In re Massachusetts Brick Co. (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 9,259.

Obtaining the consent of an insolvent corporation to be thrown into bankruptcy (by a resolution declaring its inability to pay its debts and its willingness to be adjudged bankrupt) is not necessarily collusion such as to defeat the petition, where the object of the creditor was not to obtain an advantage for himself, but to secure the equal distribution of its property among all the creditors. In re C. Moench & Sons Co. (D. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 965, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 656, affirmed (1904) 130 Fed. 685, 66 C. C. A. 37, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 240.

Where the president and secretary of a corporation assigned a claim against it to another for the express purpose of creating a record condition which would sustain an involuntary bankruptcy petition against the corporation, such officer held estopped to file the petition and procure the adjudication. In re Taylor House Ass'n (D. C. 1913) 209 Fed. 924.

Since a proceeding in involuntary bankruptcy is not one for the recovery of a debt, but to secure an equitable division of the debtor's property, the fact that a particular creditor has brought suit for the recovery of his debt, or the pendency of such an action, is not a bar to his filing a petition in bankruptcy against the debtor. In re Henderson (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 196. At least where he bases the bankruptcy petition on a distinct and independent demand. Everett v. Derby (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 4,576. A creditor is not estopped from filing a petition in bankruptcy by the fact of his having levied execution on sufficient property to satisfy the debt, or of his having collected a portion of it by means of execution, if he will surrender the preference thus obtained, by releasing the levy or bringing into court the sum already realized. In re Sheehan (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 345, Fed. Cas. No. 12,737; In re Miller (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 764, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 140.

10. —— Requisites as to number and amount.—A petition in involuntary bankruptcy may be filed by a person who is the only creditor of the alleged bankrupt, if his claim amounts to the required sum. In re Alexander (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 161. But a petition presented by a single creditor who has ample security for his claim is not within the purpose of the statute and should not be entertained. Avery v. Johann (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 144, Fed. Cas. No. 675; In re Johann (D. C. 1869) 4 N. B. R. 434, Fed Cas. No. 7,331; In re Scammon (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 12,428. A single intervening creditor may carry on an involuntary petition in bankruptcy good on its face. In re Culgin-Pace Contracting Co. (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 245.

In computing the number of creditors, to determine whether enough have joined in the petition, or whether the total number is greater or less than twelve, the time to be taken is the date of the filing of the petition. Moulton v. Coburn (1904) 131 Fed. 201, 66 C. C. A. 90, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 553; Stroheim v. Lewis F. Perry & Whitney Co. (C. C. A. 1910) 175 Fed. 52, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 695; In re Coburn (D. C. 1903) 126 Fed. 218, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 212. CONTRA, see In re Plymouth Cordage Co. (1905) 135 Fed. 1000, 68 C. C. A. 434, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 665.

Creditors holding fraudulent or voidable preferences are not to be counted in computing the number of creditors. Stevens v. Nave-McCord Mercantile Co. (C. C. A. 1906) 150 Fed. 71, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 609; Clinton v. Mayo (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 39, Fed. Cas. No. 2,899; In re Currier (D. C. 1875) 13 N. B. R. 68, Fed. Cas. No. 3,492; In re Israel (C. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 204, Fed. Cas. No. 7,111; In re Jewett (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 7,305; In re Scrafford (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 12,556. Nor secured creditors unless their claims severally exceed the value of the securities which they hold. In re Blount (D. C. 1906) 142 Fed. 263, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 97; In re Crossette (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 208, Fed. Cas. No. 3,435; In re Bouton (D. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 1,706. Nor should any creditors be included who would be estopped to join in the petition, as, by having assented to a general assignment by the debtor. In re Miner (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 520, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 710. But see In re Coburn (D. C. 1903) 126 Fed. 218, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 212.

Relatives of the bankrupt, within the third degree, as well as others, may bring a proceeding in involuntary bankruptcy. Perkins v. Dorman (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 858.

All creditors must be counted, in making the computation as to the necessary number or proportion, even those whose claims are for merely nominal sums. In re Brown (C. C. 1901) 111 Fed. 979, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 102. CONTRA, Gage v. Bell (D. C. 1903) 124 Fed. 371, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 696. And see In re Blount (D. C. 1906) Fed. 263, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 97.

In estimating the number and am of claims on a petition against a ner, the partnership debts and itors must be considered. In re I (D. C. 1877) 15 N. B. R. 257, Cas. No. 8,429.

An insolvent debtor having more twelve creditors cannot defeat ruptcy proceedings against him transferring his property for the fit of some of his creditors, leaving than three unprovided for, but a same time leaving the preferred itors actually unpaid for the purpo requiring them to be counted, so those remaining will be insufficie number to maintain the petition. re Blount (D. C. 1906) 142 Fed. 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 97. But see L ton v. Kennedy (1904) 129 Fed. 64 C. C. A. 265, 12 Am. Bankr. 229.

Payments made by the bankru some of the petitioning creditors, the filing of the petition, so as to inate them from the count or r the aggregate amount of the petiti creditors' claims below the stat limit, will not defeat the jurisdicti the court, at least where enough creditors afterwards come in to the amount above the jurisdictiona it. In re Ryan (D. C. 1902) 114 373, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 562; V Gage & Co. v. Bell (D. C. 1903) Fed 371, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 696.

It is not necessary that the an due to the petitioning creditors s be exactly determined, if it clearl pears that it will amount to more $500. In re Hughes (D. C. 1910 Fed. 872, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 556 re Stern (1902) 116 Fed. 604, 54 A. 60, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 569; Manhattan Ice Co. (D. C. 1901) Fed. 399, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 408.

It is not necessary that the pri sum of the debts should equal the dictional amount, but accrued int evidently due on the face of the tion, may be added for this pur Sloan v. Lewis (1874) 22 Wall. 15 L. Ed. 832. But costs incurred paid by the petitioning creditors c be added. In re Skelley (D. C. Fed. Cas. No. 12,921. When a cre has received a conditional payment effect of which is to reduce his below the amount entitling him to tain a petition, he cannot bring pro ings in bankruptcy unless the con has failed, so as to make the pay nugatory. In re Ouimette (D. C. Fed. Cas. No. 10,622.

The petition should affirmatively that it is subscribed by the req number and amount of creditors. re Keeler (D. C. 1874) 10 N. B 419, Fed. Cas. No. 7,638; In re fornia Pac. R. Co. (D. C. 1874) Cas. No. 2,315.

A merchant who has refused, o demand of creditors, to give the formation about his affairs sufficient to enable them to know the number and amount of his debts, will not be heard to object that a sufficient number of his creditors did not join in the petition, at least if enough have come in before the trial. Perin & Gaff Mfg. Co. v. Peale (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 377, Fed. Cas. No. 10,981.

Petitioning creditors must be held to good faith in the matter of alleging and showing that they constitute the requisite quorum of creditors. They cannot "recklessly file a petition for the purpose of making the respondent file a statement of his creditors. It would be intolerable if any one or two creditors, upon either a real or pretended claim, could by a simple allegation in the words of the act compel a business man to spread upon the records a statement of his liabilities. Such a fishing petition cannot be entertained under the act." In re Scammon (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 12,429.

The petition will be dismissed on motion, without requiring the debtor to file a schedule, where it appears that the petitioning creditors knew that they did not constitute the requisite number. Id.

If the debtor wishes to contest the allegation that there are less than twelve creditors in all, he must do so by an answer accompanied by a sworn list of all his creditors with their addresses. Lastrapes v. Blanc (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 8,100; In re Steinman (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 13,357; In re Hymes (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 6,986. A creditor desiring to oppose the adjudication may suggest the insufficiency of the number of creditors or amount of claims joining in the petition, and require the bankrupt to file the list of creditors. Clinton v. Mayo (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 39, Fed. Cas. No. 2,899. Such opposing creditor may himself file the answer contemplated by the statute. Anonymous (D. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 441.

The petitioning creditors must be accorded a reasonable length of time to secure the concurrence of a sufficient number of other creditors to make up the jurisdictional quorum. In re California Pac. R. Co. (D. C. 1874) 11 N. B. R. 193, Fed. Cas. No. 2,315; In re Rebmeister (C. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 11,623; In re Bedingfield (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 190, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 355.

The joinder of the specified proportion of creditors, in number and amount, in a petition in involuntary bankruptcy is not a jurisdictional prerequisite. In re Plymouth Cordage Co. (1905) 135 Fed. 1000, 68 C. C. A. 434, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 665; In re Haff (1905) 136 Fed. 78, 68 C. C. A. 646, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 362; In re Henderson (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 196; Ex parte Jewett (D. C. 1875) 11 N. B. R. 443, Fed. Cas. No. 7,303; In re Duncan (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 18, Fed. Cas. No. 4,131. CONTRA, In re Scammon (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 12,427; In re Rosenfields (D. C. 1871) 11 N. B. R. 86, Fed. Cas. No. 12,061; Buckingham v. Schuylkill Plush & Silk Co. (1902) 38 Misc. Rep. 305, 77 N. Y. Supp. 857. If the petition does not appear to have been presented by the requisite number or proportion of creditors, it is an irregularity which the bankrupt may waive, by consenting to an adjudication. In re Williams (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 17,700. The judgment of the court of bankruptcy that the required number and amount of creditors have joined in the petition is final, and the question so adjudged is not thereafter re-examinable, except it may be in cases of fraud or imposition practised on the court. In re Duncan (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 18, Fed. Cas. No. 4,131; In re Funkenstein (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 213, Fed. Cas. No. 5,158; In re Lloyd (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 8,431.

11. —— Solicitation, procurement, or purchase of claims.—There is no legal fraud in an insolvent debtor's requesting his creditors to petition against him, or soliciting a sufficient number of creditors to join in the petition, when the court otherwise has jurisdiction and he has committed an act of bankruptcy. In re Ordway (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 171, Fed. Cas. No. 10,552; In re Duncan (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 18, Fed. Cas. No. 4,131; In re Bouton (D. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 1,706; In re Matot (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 485, Fed. Cas. No. 9,282. The fact that proceedings in involuntary bankruptcy were instigated by a promise on the part of the debtor that the petitioning creditor should be paid in full, while it would affect the right to a discharge, will not invalidate the proceedings in bankruptcy so as to make void a sale made by the bankrupt's assignee. Wallace v. Loomis (1877) 97 U. S. 146, 24 L. Ed. 895. But a bankrupt who procures a fraudulent petition to be filed by his creditors, with intent to procure a discharge, which he could not obtain by voluntary proceedings, is in contempt of court. In re Lalor (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 253, Fed. Cas. No. 8,001.

An agreement of a debtor to withdraw opposition to a proceeding in involuntary bankruptcy against him, and to consent and submit to an adjudication of bankruptcy, is not in fraud of the act. Sanford v. Huxford (1875) 32 Mich. 313, 20 Am. Rep. 647.

A creditor desiring to institute bankruptcy proceedings against his debtor may seek out other creditors of the common debtor and ask them to join in the petition, or to come in after the filing of the petition and join in it, when such intervention becomes necessary to save the proceeding. In re Smith (D.

C. 1910) 176 Fed. 426, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 864.

If other creditors than the one chiefly moving in the matter are unwilling to sign the petition, it is perfectly proper for other persons to purchase their claims, in order to be qualified to join, and so to make up the requisite number of petitioning creditors. In re Bevins (1908) 165 Fed. 434, 91 C. C. A. 302, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 344; In re Woodford (D. C. 1876) 13 N. B. R. 575, Fed. Cas. No. 17,972. CONTRA, Emerine v. Tarault (1915) 219 Fed. 68, 134 C. C. A. 606. If such a sale of a claim is void for fraud or want of consideration, the claim is to be considered as still belonging to the assignor, and it will be so treated in counting the number of creditors. In re Woodford (D. C. 1876) 13 N. B. R. 575, Fed. Cas. No. 17,972.

A creditor of a bankrupt may not split up his claim into portions and assign some of the parts to third persons for the purpose of qualifying them as joint petitioners in a proceeding in involuntary bankruptcy. In re Halsey Electric Generator Co. (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 118, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 738; Stroheim v. Lewis F. Perry & Whitney Co. (C. C. A. 1910) 175 Fed. 52, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 695; In re Tribelhorn (1905) 137 Fed. 3, 69 C. C. A. 601, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 491; In re Independent Thread Co. (D. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 998, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 704; In re Lewis F. Perry & Whitney Co. (D. C. 1909) 172 Fed. 745, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 772.

An agreement between creditors who have received preferences to contribute proportionally such sum as may be necessary to induce the other creditors to forbear to put the debtor into bankruptcy is not invalid. Perryman v. Allen (1874) 50 Ala. 573.

12. —— Withdrawal of petitioners.—A creditor who has joined in a petition in bankruptcy will not be permitted to withdraw his name from the proceedings, against the protest of the others, merely because he repents of his action or has obtained a settlement of his claim, when his withdraw reduce the number of creditor amount of debts below the juri minimum, and so require the of the petition. In re Beding C. 1899) 96 Fed. 190, 2 Am Rep. 355; In re Quincy Grani ries Co. (D. C. 1904) 147 Fed Am. Bankr. Rep. 823; In re C C. 1899) 98 Fed. 584, 3 Am. Ba 552; In re Vogel (D. C. 187 B. R. 165, Fed. Cas. No. 16 re Heffron (D. C. 1874) 10 213, Fed. Cas. No. 6,321; In enfields (D. C. 1871) 11 N. I Fed. Cas. No. 12,061; In re phia Axle Works (D. C. 1874) Notes Cas. 126, Fed. Cas. No In re Black Diamond Copper (1906) 10 Ariz. 42, 85 Pac.

But a creditor whose name w with others in the petition wi knowledge or consent may the proceeding, and if he doe petition will be dismissed as even though the result is to quorum. In re Rosenfields (D. 11 N. B. R. 86, Fed. Cas. N And it is in the discretion of to permit the withdrawal, at before an adjudication, of a who was induced to join by sentation or misunderstanding Sargent (D. C. 1875) 13 N. B Fed. Cas. No. 12,361. Or one so under a mistake of fact having previously assented to or's general assignment for th of creditors. In re Coburn (D. 126 Fed. 218, 11 Am. Ban 212. Or one whose qualific become a petitioning creditor to doubt or challenge. Moult burn (1904) 131 Fed. 201, 66 90, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 553.

Where two of the three p creditors brought about the pa a judgment on the claim of one and the latter's withdrawal a tioning creditor, it was held were estopped to complain of creditor's withdrawal from the ing. Cummins Grocer Co. (1911) 187 Fed. 507, 109 C. C 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 484.

§ 9644. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 60, as amended, Act 1903, c. 487, § 13, and Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, § 11.) ferred creditors.

Preferred Creditors.—a A person shall be deemed to hav a preference if, being insolvent, he has, within four months the filing of the petition, or after the filing of the petition fore the adjudication, procured or suffered a judgment to tered against himself in favor of any person, or made a tran any of his property, and the effect of the enforcement of suc ment or transfer will be to enable any one of his creditors to a greater percentage of his debt than any other of such cred the same class. Where the preference consists in a transfe period of four months shall not expire until four months a date of the recording or registering of the transfer, if by law such recording or registering is required.

b If a bankrupt shall have procured or suffered a judgment to be entered against him in favor of any person or have made a transfer of any of his property, and if, at the time of the transfer, or of the entry of the judgment, or of the recording or registering of the transfer if by law recording or registering thereof is required, and being within four months before the filing of the petition in bankruptcy or after the filing thereof and before the adjudication, the bankrupt be insolvent and the judgment or transfer then operate as a preference, and the person receiving it or to be benefited thereby, or his agent acting therein, shall then have reasonable cause to believe that the enforcement of such judgment or transfer would effect a preference, it shall be voidable by the trustee and he may recover the property or its value from such person. And for the purpose of such recovery any court of bankruptcy, as hereinbefore defined, and any state court which would have had jurisdiction if bankruptcy had not intervened, shall have concurrent jurisdiction.

c If a creditor has been preferred, and afterwards in good faith gives the debtor further credit without security of any kind for property which becomes a part of the debtor's estates, the amount of such new credit remaining unpaid at the time of the adjudication in bankruptcy may be set off against the amount which would otherwise be recoverable from him.

d If a debtor shall, directly or indirectly, in contemplation of the filing of a petition by or against him, pay money or transfer property to an attorney and counselor at law, solicitor in equity, or proctor in admiralty for services to be rendered, the transaction shall be reexamined by the court on petition of the trustee or any creditor and shall only be held valid to the extent of a reasonable amount to be determined by the court, and the excess may be recovered by the trustee for the benefit of the estate. (30 Stat. 562. 32 Stat. 799. 36 Stat. 842.)

In this section, as originally enacted, subdivisions a and b were as follows:

"a A person shall be deemed to have given a preference if, being insolvent, he has procured or suffered a judgment to be entered against himself in favor of any person, or made a transfer of any of his property, and the effect of the enforcement of such judgment or transfer will be to enable any one of his creditors to obtain a greater percentage of his debt than any other of such creditors of the same class.

"b If a bankrupt shall have given a preference within four months before the filing of a petition, or after the filing of the petition or before the adjudication, and the person receiving it, or to be benefited thereby, or his agent acting therein, shall have had reasonable cause to believe that it was intended thereby to give a preference, it shall be voidable by the trustee, and he may recover the property or its value from such person."

They were amended by Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 13, cited above, so as to make subdivision a read as set forth here, and subdivision b read as follows:

"b If a bankrupt shall have given a preference, and the person receiving it, or to be benefited thereby, or his agent acting therein, shall have had reasonable cause to believe that it was intended thereby to give a preference, it shall be voidable by the trustee, and he may recover the property or its value from such person. And, for the purpose of such recovery, any court of bankruptcy, as hereinbefore defined, and any State court which would have had jurisdiction if bankruptcy had not intervened, shall have concurrent jurisdiction."

Said subdivision b was further amended by Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, § 11, last cited above, to read as set forth here.

Section 19 of said first amendatory Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, 32 Stat. 801, provided that the act should not apply to bankruptcy cases pending when it took effect, but that such cases should be adjudicated and disposed of conformably to the provisions of the original act.

Section 14 of said second amendatory Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, 36 Stat.

842, also provided that the act should not apply to bankruptcy cases p when it took effect, but that such cases should be adjudicated and di of conformably to the provisions of the original act as previously amende

Notes of Decisions

1. Preferences in general.
2. Essentials of a voidable preference.
3. Transferee as creditor or person benefited.
4. —— Preference over other creditors of same class.
5. —— Guarantors, sureties, and indorsers.
6. Nature and form of transaction.
7. Procuring or suffering judgment.
8. —— Judgment by confession or consent.
9. Transfers of property.
10. —— Transfer of property in substitution or satisfaction of lien.
11. Restoration of specific property or funds.
12. —— Trust funds and money converted or embezzled.
13. Giving present consideration—Security for present loan or future advances.
14. Prior agreement to give security or make transfer.
15. Exchange or substitution of securities.
16. Payments by debtor.
17. Payment or transfer by third person.
18. Payments to attorneys for past or future services.
19. Set-off or adjustment of mutual accounts.
20. Partial payments on running accounts.
21. Time of giving preference.
22. —— Time of filing petition.
23. —— Time of recording or filing lien.
24. Insolvency of debtor.
25. Intention of debtor.
26. Creditor's knowledge or cause of belief.
27. —— Grounds of suspicion or doubt.
28. —— Facts putting on inquiry—Duty to investigate.
29. —— Circumstances constituting ground for belief.
30. —— Imputed knowledge of agent or attorney.
31. Solicitation, coercion, or threats by creditor.
32. Preference of partnership or individual creditors.
33. Rights of preferred creditors as to proving claims.
34. —— Creditor's knowledge of intent to prefer.
35. —— Surrender of preference.
36. —— Separate or independent claims.
37. Proceedings to recover preference—Jurisdiction.
38. —— Right of action.
39. —— Form of action or proceeding.
40. —— Pleading.
41. —— Defenses.
42. —— Set-off of amount of new credit.
43. —— Burden of proof and evidence.
44. —— Trial.
45. —— Measure of damages or recovery.

1. Preferences in general.—Where a mortgage was executed by the bankrupt to a creditor subsequent to June 25, 1910, the question whether it was a voidable preference is governed by this section as amended on that date. Ogden v. Reddish (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 977, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 931. Whether a transfer is a voidable preference must be determined by the evidence in each case. Cauthorn v. Burley State Bank (1914) 26 Idaho, 532, 14 1108.

The bankruptcy act does no hibit or annul all transfers of pr by an insolvent debtor, but only made under the special circums and conditions which it sets forth drews v. Kellogg (1907) 41 Co 92 Pac. 222; Godwin v. Murchiso Bank (1907) 145 N. C. 320, 59 154, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 935. veyance or security given to a cr made and operating as a pref may constitute an act of bank and yet be valid to the extent th property or security transferred be recovered from the creditor trustee in bankruptcy. Ashby v. (C. C. 1846) Fed. Cas. No. 576. an assignment of a cause of acti stitutes an unlawful preference i ruptcy, the assignment is voidabl Leonard v. Springer (1912) 1 App. 516. But a creditor recei preferential transfer has no title he can hold against the trustee i ruptcy subsequently appointed. Wolff Mfg. Co. v. Battreal Sh (Mo. App. 1915) 180 S. W. 396.

If a given transfer of propert not fraudulent in fact, the q whether it is voidable as a pref must be determined in accordanc the express provisions of the s In re Armstrong (D. C. 1906) 14 202, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 583. trustee in bankruptcy sues to se a transfer, alleging it to have be en as an illegal preference, he recover on showing that the c ance was void at common law o the law of the state. Cragin v. chael (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. 319. On the other hand, where tel mortgage was attacked as a v preference, it was no answer t that it was otherwise valid whet or off the record, whether agains parties or between the original thereto. Williams v. German-An Trust Co. (1915) 219 Fed. 50 C. C. A. 257.

2. Essentials of a voidable pref—The essentials of a voidable ence are insolvency of the debt giving of the preference withi months of bankruptcy, the secu the creditor of a greater percent his debt than others, and knowle the preferred creditor that he w ting a preference. Newman v. Campbell Dry Goods Co. (Mo 1913) 160 S. W. 825; Mayes v. (C. C. A. 1913) 208 Fed. 97; Wolff Mfg. Co. v. Battreal Sh (Mo. App. 1915) 180 S. W. 396; v. Blackwell Lumber Co. (191 Idaho, 642, 135 Pac. 742; Soule

Nat. Bank of Ashton (Idaho, 1914) 140 Pac. 1098.

All of the various elements necessary to constitute a voidable preference must be present or concur in order to give the trustee in bankruptcy a right to recover the payment or property or avoid the transfer as a preference. Clarion Bank v. Jones (1874) 21 Wall. 325, 22 L. Ed. 542; In re Starkweather & Albert (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 797, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 743; Sparks v. Marsh (D. C. 1910) 177 Fed. 739, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 280; In re Gesas (1906) 146 Fed. 734, 77 C. C. A. 291, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 872; Morgan v. First Nat. Bank (1906) 145 Fed. 466, 76 C. C. A. 236, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 639; Foster v. Hackley (C. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 406, Fed. Cas. No. 4,971; In re Palmer (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 283, Fed. Cas. No. 10,681; Woodsum v. Bray (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 17,-998; In re George (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 5,325; Baden v. Bertenshaw (1903) 68 Kan. 32, 74 Pac. 639; Summerville v. Stockton Milling Co. (1904) 142 Cal. 529, 76 Pac. 243; Whitwell v. Wright (1909) 115 N. Y. Supp. 48; Jackman v. Eau Claire Nat. Bank (1905) 125 Wis. 465, 104 N. W. 98, 115 Am. St. Rep. 955; M. Kahn & Bro. v. Bledsoe (1908) 22 Okl. 666, 98 Pac. 921; Stewart v. Hoffman (1904) 31 Mont. 184, 77 Pac. 689, 81 Pac. 3; Locke v. Winning (1807) 3 Mass. 325.

There must be an actual transaction, and a mere intent to give or to gain a preference amounts to nothing under the bankruptcy law if not accomplished by the execution of the purpose. In re Bousfield & Poole Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 489, Fed. Cas. No. 1,703. Although the bankrupt may have made a transfer of property intending that the creditor should receive it and thereby be preferred, this is not enough if the creditor does not receive the property. Aiello v. Crampton (C. C. A. 1912) 201 Fed. 891, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1; Engel v. Union Square Bank (1905) 182 N. Y. 544, 75 N. E. 1129. A creditor who has never accepted a deed of trust or mortgage which would give him a preference may disclaim all interest in it and prove his debt as unsecured. In re Saunders (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 12,371. A preference cannot be created by an attempted conveyance which was originally and remains a mere nullity. Rosenbluth v. De Forest & Hotchkiss Co. (1911) 85 Conn. 40, 81 Atl. 955.

Where a bank purchased with its own funds silk for certain bankrupts, taking title in its own name, and delivered the silk to the bankrupts under a trust receipt binding the latter to hold the goods or their proceeds for the bank until the price was paid, the title never passed to the bankrupts; and their agreement while insolvent to return the goods to the bank was not a preference. In re Killian Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1913) 209 Fed. 498, order affirmed (C. C. A. 1914) 215 Fed. 82. The act of one who simply retakes the possession of property of his own which is in the possession of the bankrupt does not make him a preferred creditor. In re Wright-Dana Hardware Co. (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 335, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 582. A contract for the consignment of goods for sale is not a preference to the consignor, which is avoided by the bankruptcy of the consignee less than four months thereafter. Ellet-Kendall Shoe Co. v. Martin (1915) 222 Fed. 851, 138 C. C. A. 277. A preference is not effected by the reclamation of property originally placed in the bankrupt's hands under a contract of conditional sale reserving title in the seller until payment. In re Farmers' Co-operative Co. (D. C. 1913) 202 Fed. 1005, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 187; In re Anson Mercantile Co. (D. C. 1911) 203 Fed. 871; In re Levin (D. C. 1909) 173 Fed. 119, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 665; John Deere Plow Co. v. Edgar Farmer Store Co. (Wis. 1913) 143 N. W. 194. An unpaid vendor of goods who exercises the right of stoppage in transitu does not thereby gain a preference, though it be with the consent of the debtor, for the latter cannot be considered as active in the creation of a preference merely because he assents to what he could not lawfully prevent. In re Foot (C. C. 1874) 11 N. B. R. 153, Fed. Cas. No. 4,907.

It is essential to constitute a preferential transfer that the bankrupt should have turned over to the creditor some portion of his own property. Mason v. National Herkimer County Bank (C. C. A. 1909) 172 Fed. 529, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 733. The property transferred must have been of such a nature that his creditors would have the right to subject it to the satisfaction of their claims. In re Leech (1909) 171 Fed. 622, 96 C. C. A. 424, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 599. Hence the transfer of an exempt homestead does not come within the denunciation of the act though every other element of a preference be present, except in so far as its value may exceed the statutory limit of the exemption. First Nat. Bank v. Lanz (C. C. A. 1913) 202 Fed. 117, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 247. And an assignment (as security for a loan) of something which does not constitute legal "property" but is no more than a mere revocable license or privilege, as, a newspaper agency or route, does not constitute a preference. In re Martin (C. C. A. 1912) 200 Fed. 940, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623. And mere fictitious book entries, though made through collusion between the creditor and the bankrupt, for the purpose of deceiving others, but which do not succeed in such purpose and do not affect the rights of other creditors, do not constitute a preference. In re Steam Vehicle Co. (D. C. 1903) 121 Fed. 939, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 385. And so of the mere giving of an indorsed note by the bankrupt, as the advantage secured by the creditor is not out of the bankrupt's estate. Dalrymple v. Hillenbrand (1875) 62 N. Y. 5.

It is immaterial to whom the transfer is made, if it is meant to pay the claim of one creditor in preference to others. Bank of Wayne v. Gold (1911) 146 App. Div. 296, 130 N. Y. Supp. 942. And a transfer by a bankrupt indirectly or through a third person may constitute a preference, if made with this purpose and intent. In re Harrison Bros. (D. C. 1912) 202 Fed. 244; Wickwire v. Webster City Sav. Bank (1911) 153 Iowa, 225, 133 N. W. 100.

The making of the preference and incurring its penalty are independent of any actual fraud. Wright v. Cotten (1905) 140 N. C. 1, 52 S. E. 141. And the result is the same whether or not the transfer is fraudulent at common law, or under the statute of fraudulent conveyances, or otherwise. Webb's Trustee v. Lynchburg Shoe Co. (1908) 107 Va. 807, 60 S. E. 130.

The mere failure to record a deed or mortgage given as security until after the bankruptcy of the grantor does not constitute the same an unlawful preference. In re McIntosh (1907) 150 Fed. 546, 80 C. C. A. 250, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 169; In re Watson (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 962.

A transfer by an insolvent person, to be a voidable preference in bankruptcy, must be on account of a pre-existing debt. Ernst v. Mechanics' & Metals Nat. Bank (1912) 201 Fed. 664, 120 C. C. A. 92, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 289; In re Watson (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 962. A contract between a bank making loans from day to day to a stockbroker and the broker, which stipulates that the day loans shall be used specifically for the release of the broker's pledged securities, that their proceeds or the proceeds of substituted securities shall be immediately deposited in the bank in repayment of the loan, and that the broker shall actually take up the pledged securities and deliver them to purchasers against payment of the price, does not create a voidable preference by the broker. Ernst v. Mechanics' & Metals Nat. Bank (1912) 201 Fed. 664, 120 C. C. A. 92, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 289.

It is essential that the effect of the preference should enable the creditor to obtain a larger proportion of his total claim than goes to other creditors of the same class. John S. Brittain Dry Goods Co. v. Bertenshaw (1904) 68 Kan. 734, 75 Pac. 1027; Sellers v. Hayes (1904) 163 Ind. 422, 72 N. E. 119. Hence there is no preference if the creditor accepts only that part of his debt to which he would be entitled if all the property liable to the debtor's debts should be apportioned among his creditors. Herzberg v. Riddle (1911) 171 Ala. 368, 54 South. 635. But the test is this actual receiving of a larger percentage than other creditors; it is not whether or not, in view of the obligation of sureties to pay the c the payment actually benefited the ferred creditor. Swarts v. Fourth Bank (1902) 117 Fed. 1, 54 C. 387, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 673. A payment is none the less a prefe because some other creditors have obtained larger payments on claims than they would have bee titled to in the bankruptcy proceed In re Mayo Contracting Co. (I 1907) 157 Fed. 469, 19 Am. B Rep. 551.

If all the creditors consented discrimination in the payment of cl no one can object that an unl preference was created, though creditor obtains more than his s Curran v. Munger (C. C. 1871) 6 R. 33, Fed. Cas. No. 3,487. An same is true where all the cre joined in the arrangement by whic transfer was made. Judson v. Co Co. (D. C. 1881) 8 Fed. 422.

If there is a surplus of the e after paying all the other creditor preferred creditor is entitled to he has secured, for as betwee bankrupt and himself the prefere not voidable. In re McGuire (1 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 8,813.

3. Transferee as creditor or p benefited.—To constitute a prefe the payment or transfer must have made to a "creditor" or "perso be benefited thereby," and nothi within the purview of this pro except with reference to debts may be proved for a dividend, but thing which may be so proved is in its purview. Clarke v. R (1910) 183 Fed. 518, 106 C. C. 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 413. It i necessary that the creditor's should be presently due, but it is cient if it exists as a fixed lia Moody v. Chicago Title & Trus (1907) 138 Ill. App. 233; Burp First Nat. Bank (C. C. 1873) B. R. 314, Fed. Cas. No. 2,185; v. Brookmire (C. C. 1870) 4 N. 196, Fed. Cas. No. 1,168. And a itor who receives property in s ment of a claim not yet matured be chargeable with accepting a p ence. Mathews v. Riggs (1888) 8 107, 13 Atl. 48. It is immaterial the creditor may be an officer o bankrupt corporation. Cooper v. (C. C. A. 1913) 203 Fed. 383, 30 Bankr. Rep. 194; Arnold v. Knapp Va. 1915) 84 S. E. 895. A ban who pays money to the creditors wife does not give a preference, t the effect is to reduce the perce which would otherwise be paid t own creditors. In re Kayser (177 Fed. 383, 100 C. C. A. 615, 24 Bankr. Rep. 174. A person wh contracted to purchase property the bankrupt and has made an ad payment thereon is not a "cre in any proper sense, and the ded of the amount of such advance fro price when payment was made on delivery is not the receiving of a preference. Templeton v. Kehler (D. C. 1909) 173 Fed. 575, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 41. The same is true of persons who may have a cause of action to charge the debtor with a statutory liability for the debts of a corporation. Cookingham v. Ferguson (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 3,182. And where one partner sells to the other his entire interest in the property of the firm, the transferee is not a creditor, and the transaction is not impeachable as a preference. In re Rudnick (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 750, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 531. Where the bankrupt feloniously or fraudulently got possession of personal property which was in the custody of a warehouseman as bailee of the owner, and, on being discovered, settled with the warehouseman by turning over money, property, or securities, this does not constitute the giving of a preference, because the warehouseman was not a creditor of the bankrupt. Keystone Warehouse Co. v. Bissell (C. C. A. 1913) 203 Fed. 652, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 213.

As to the meaning of the phrase "person to be benefited thereby," it is held that a transaction which has the purpose and effect of exonerating or releasing a surety for the bankrupt "benefits" the latter within the meaning of the statute. In re Sanderson (D. C. 1906) 149 Fed. 273, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 871. And so, a transfer of property by an insolvent debtor by means of which a note given by himself and a surety is paid, and the transferee, who had obligated himself to indemnify the surety against loss thereon, is released from his liability, is one by which such transferee is benefited. Huntington v. Baskerville (1911) 192 Fed. 813, 113 C. C. A. 137, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 219.

A conveyance of real estate within four months before bankruptcy, made by the bankrupt to a stockholder of a creditor company, who held the same for the company, and paid for it with money which was furnished by the company, and received back by it from the bankrupt, is a voidable preference. Golden & Co. v. Loving (1914) 42 App. D. C. 489.

This section has no application to owners of property who have no claim against a bankrupt contractor, on account of possible liens by a preferred subcontractor. Jump v. Bernier (1915) 108 N. E. 1027, 221 Mass. 241.

4. —— Preference over other creditors of same class.—To constitute a preference, it is necessary that the preferred creditor should be placed in position to collect a greater percentage of his claim than "any other creditor of the same class." If all the creditors of the same class are equally interested in and benefited by the transaction in question, there is no preference. Gill v. Bell's Knitting Mills (1908) 128 App. Div. 691, 113 N. Y. Supp. 90. And it is said that the test of the classification of creditors is the percentage of their claims which they are entitled to draw out of the estate of the bankrupt. If they are entitled to receive the same percentage, they are in the same class, but if different percentages, in different classes. Swarts v. Fourth Nat. Bank (1902) 117 Fed. 1, 54 C. C. A. 387, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 673. And the fact that a debt owing by an insolvent is secured does not prevent a transfer of property by the insolvent to pay it from being preferential as to creditors not secured. Horstman v. Little (Tex. Civ. App. 1905) 88 S. W. 286. At least, creditors whose claims are secured by indorsement or guaranty of one or more third persons are in the same class as those whose claims are not so secured. Swarts v. Fourth Nat. Bank (1902) 117 Fed. 1, 54 C. C. A. 387, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 673. See In re Harpke (1902) 116 Fed. 295, 54 C. C. A. 97, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 535.

Strictly speaking, there are only two general classes of creditors, those who have priority and are to be paid in full, and those who are entitled to equal dividends after the priority claims have been satisfied. Livingstone v. Heineman (1903) 120 Fed. 786, 57 C. C. A. 154, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 39.

Payments made by a bankrupt to a clerk within three months prior to the filing of the petition, in the absence of specific application to other debts, are to be applied in payment of the wages earned by the clerk during that time, but such payments, up to the amount of wages so earned, do not constitute a preference which must be surrendered before the clerk can prove his claim for the remainder due him, unless the bankrupt's assets are insufficient to pay all the priority claims. In re Flick (D. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 503, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 465.

5. —— Guarantors, sureties, and indorsers.—A guarantor or surety for the bankrupt, or an indorser of his notes, or the accommodation maker of a note for his use and benefit, is a "creditor" within the meaning of the bankruptcy act, and if he receives money or security or collateral from the bankrupt to meet the obligation when it shall mature, or to secure himself against loss, under such circumstances as would constitute it a preference in other cases, he is to be treated as a preferred creditor, and must surrender his preference before being admitted to prove his debt, or may be required to surrender it at the suit of the trustee. In re W. A. Silvernail Co. (D. C. 1914) 218 Fed. 979; Lazarus v. Eagan (D. C. 1912) 206 Fed. 518, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 207; Paper v. Stern (C. C. A. 1912) 198 Fed. 642, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 592; Kobusch v. Hand (1907) 156 Fed. 660, 84 C. C. A. 372, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 379; Stern v. Paper (D.

C. 1910) 183 Fed. 228, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 451; Huttig Mfg. Co. v. Edwards (1908) 160 Fed. 619, 87 C. C. A. 521, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 349; In re Christopher Bailey & Son (D. C. 1909) 166 Fed. 982, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 911; Swarts v. Siegel (1902) 117 Fed. 13, 54 C. C. A. 399, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 689; Crandall v. Coats (D. C. 1905) 133 Fed. 965, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 712; Thomas v. Woodbury (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 13,916; Smith v. Little (C. C. 1873) 9 N. B. R. 111, Fed. Cas. No. 13,072; Scammon v. Cole (C. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 257, Fed. Cas. No. 12,432; Ahl v. Thorner (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 118, Fed. Cas. No. 103; Sill v. Solberg (C. C. 1881) 6 Fed. 468; Goldberg v. Harlan (1872) 33 Ind. App. 465, 67 N. E. 707; Bank of Wayne v. Gold (1911) 146 App. Div. 296, 130 N. Y. Supp. 942; Platt v. Ives (1913) 86 Conn. 690, 86 Atl. 579; M. Kahn & Bro. v. Bledsoe (1908) 22 Okl. 666, 98 Pac. 921; Horstman v. Little (Tex. Civ. App. 1905) 88 S. W. 286. Compare Horton v. Bamford (1911) 79 N. J. Eq. 356, 81 Atl. 761.

Where an agreement for the indemnification of a contractor's surety assigned to the latter all the contractor's plant in the event of the contractor's being unable to complete the undertaking, and the contractor subsequently abandoned the contract and was adjudged bankrupt, the surety became a creditor from the date of the abandonment of the contract, within the provisions of the statute relating to preferences, although the amount of the surety's claim depended on contingencies and was not liquidated. Wood v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (D. C. 1905) 143 Fed. 424, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 21. So a surety for the bankrupt who has discharged the debt, either before or after the bankruptcy, is subrogated to the rights of the creditor, but is also affected by any preference received by the creditor before payment, which inheres in the claim. Livingston v. Heineman (1903) 120 Fed. 786, 57 C. C. A. 154, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 39; In re Schmechel Cloak & Suit Co. (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 64, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 719. But see In re New (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 116, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 566. But where an indorser receives from the maker of the note an amount sufficient to pay a part thereof, and loans him the balance required to pay it, he will not be chargeable with taking a preference beyond the amount actually paid to him by the maker. Thomas v. Woodbury (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 13,916.

A creditor who receives the debtor's note or check, indorses it, and procures it to be discounted at a bank, remains a creditor within the meaning of the bankruptcy act, and the payment of the note or check to the bank after the debtor's insolvency and within four months prior to his bankruptcy, constitutes a preferential transfer of erty to the indorser, which will him from the allowance of any in his favor, unless the amount is first surrendered. Swarts v. Nat. Bank (1902) 117 Fed. 1, 54 A. 387, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 673; Lyon (1903) 121 Fed. 723, 58 C. 143, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 25; Meyer (D. C. 1902) 115 Fed. Am. Bankr. Rep. 598; In re bury Furniture Co. (D. C. 190 Fed. 255, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 79 see In re Bullock (D. C. 190 Fed. 667, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep Thomas v. Woodbury (D. C. 1875 Cas. No. 13,916. The payment bank by an insolvent, within months prior to his bankrupt notes given to third persons, but have been indorsed to and are ow the bank, constitutes a preferen en to the bank, which it must sur before proving a claim against t tate. In re George M. Hill Co. 130 Fed. 315, 64 C. C. A. 561, 66 A. 68, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 221 a note discounted by a bank w knowledge of the insolvency maker and in due course of bu by crediting the payee with the a of the discount, which note in the of the payee and indorser would provable against the maker's est bankruptcy until certain preferen ceived were surrendered, is prova the bank as a bona fide holder. Levi (D. C. 1903) 121 Fed. 198, Bankr. Rep. 176; In re Wyly 1902) 116 Fed. 38, 8 Am. Bankr 604.

6. Nature and form of transac Whether or not a given tran amounts to a preference is to termined by its effect in giving due advantage to the particular itor, rather than by its form, f court will look to the result and the way in which it is accomp Rogers v. Fidelity Sav. Bank & Co. (D. C. 1909) 172 Fed. 735, 2 Bankr. Rep. 1; In re C. J. Mcl & Sons (D. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 446.

Any form of mortgage or oth which is meant to give to one or creditors an undue advantage ove ers will be a voidable preference Lean v. Lafayette Bank (C. C. Fed. Cas. No. 8,885. A contr conditional sale, by which the se allowed to retake possession goods in case of the buyer's defa bankruptcy, is not an unlawful p ence, as the bankrupt buyer do transfer any property or secur antecedent debt. John Deere Pl v. Edgar Farmer Store Co. (Wis. 143 N. W. 194; Big Four Imp Co. v. Wright (C. C. A. 1913) 20 535, 31 Am. Bankr. Rep. 125.

A chattel mortgage which is me and does give the secured credi advantage over other creditors preference. In re Hersey (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 1004, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 863; Matthews v. Westphal (C. C. 1880) 48 Fed. 664. And so is a deed of trust in the nature of a mortgage. May v. Le Claire (C. C. 1882) 18 Fed. 164. And an unrecorded bill of sale of furniture and fixtures given by a tenant as security for past-due rent. In re Eckenroth (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 4,265. And a bill of sale of property to a creditor who has attached it. Parsons v. Topliff (1876) 119 Mass. 245. And an assignment by an insolvent trader of his stock, book accounts, and other assets to one of his creditors, the latter in return agreeing to assume and pay certain debts, is a preference if it enables that creditor to secure his own debt in full or in a larger proportion than other creditors. North v. House (D. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 365, Fed. Cas. No. 10,310.

The assignment of a policy of life insurance may constitute a voidable preference. Barnes v. Vetterlein (D. C. 1882) 16 Fed. 218. And so also the assignment of a claim against a fire insurance company for a loss under its policy. Hanson v. W. L. Blake & Co. (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 342, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 325. And where a mortgage is given on property under circumstances such as to render it a voidable preference, and insurance is taken out on the mortgaged property in the name of the mortgagor, but at the instance and expense of the mortgagee, and, a loss occurring, the insurance is collected by the mortgagee, being less in amount than the mortgage debt, the insurance contract is no less a preference than the mortgage, and its proceeds are merely a substitute for the mortgage pro tanto, and therefore recoverable by the mortgagor's trustee in bankruptcy. Brown City Sav. Bank v. Windsor (C. C. A. 1912) 198 Fed. 28.

A lease of a manufacturing establishment, made by an insolvent debtor to one of his creditors as part of a fraudulent scheme to place his property within the exclusive control of such creditor, and accepted by the latter with knowledge of the lessor's insolvency, and with an intention of securing to himself an advantage over the other creditors, will be set aside as a preference. Carter v. Hobbs (D. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 108, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 224.

A preference is also involved (the other conditions being present) in the sale of a partner's interest in the business to his copartner and the taking of the latter's notes for the price. Crampton v. Jerkowski (C. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 489; Mattocks v. Rogers (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 9,300. And see Off v. Hakes (1905) 142 Fed. 364, 73 C. C. A. 464, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 696. And in the act of a creditor in appropriating property in his hands under a claim of a factor's lien. Nudd v. Burrows (1875) 91 U. S. 426, 23 L. Ed. 286. Or an alleged vendor's lien. In re Klingaman (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 691, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 254. Or an agreement between the debtor and creditor enabling the latter to enforce a lien by attachment. Samson v. Burton (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 12,285.

Where an unpaid vendor of merchandise accepts a return thereof, instead of payment, it may be regarded as a rescission of the contract of sale, rather than as a transfer of property. In re Aspinwall (D. C. 1882) 11 Fed. 136. Where a creditor obtains, in good faith, as security, a receipt for coal in the debtor's yard not separated from the common mass, he may take possession after discovering the insolvency of the debtor. Sherman v. Traders' Nat. Bank (C. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 12,770.

An insurance effected by an insolvent debtor upon the house he occupies in pursuance of covenants in the lease is not a preference. In re Rosenfeld (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 116, Fed. Cas. No. 12,057. Nor is the surrender of a policy of insurance under a stipulation giving such right, with a return of a part of the premium paid. In re Independent Ins. Co. (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 7,019. No preference is created by an equitable lien on funds or property arising from the acceptance of a bill of exchange. In re Baxter (C. C. 1886) 28 Fed. 452. And a deed of property executed by the bankrupt in pursuance of a decree of a state court, on a showing that he had misappropriated trust funds which had been finally invested in such property in his own name, is not voidable as a preference. In re Myers (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 9,984. But it would be otherwise in regard to a sale under a decree which was procured by fraud and imposition practised on the court. Stern v. Louisville Trust Co. (1901) 112 Fed. 501, 50 C. C. A. 367, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 305.

Where it appeared that the bankrupt was a member of a stock exchange, the rules of which provided that, when a member became insolvent, he should assign his seat to be sold, and that the proceeds should be first applied to the payment of his debts to the members of the exchange, to the exclusion of his other creditors, but the purchaser of the seat could not become a member, or enjoy any of the privileges of membership, unless elected by the exchange, held, a member who became insolvent, complied with this rule, and was afterwards adjudged a bankrupt, was not guilty of giving a preference to those creditors whose debts were in this manner paid first; for while his incorporeal right to his seat was indeed property, yet it was subject to certain vaid conditions and restrictions, including that of payment to members, and would not vest in his trustee in any event until those conditions had been complied with. Hyde v. Woods (1876) 94 U. S. 523, 24 L. Ed. 264.

A preference is none the less voidable because it was given in and as a part of a general assignment for the benefit of creditors, which assignment is annulled by the adjudication in bankruptcy. Stern v. Louisville Trust Co. (1901) 112 Fed. 501, 50 C. C. A. 367, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 305; Wilson v. Taylor (1911) 154 N. C. 211, 70 S. E. 286. And where a debtor enters upon a plan of composition and compromise with all his creditors, if one of them secures full payment while the others receive less, it is a voidable preference. In re Amory (D. C. 1843) Fed. (D. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 244, Fed. Cas. No. 6,139. A contract between a bankrupt and certain of its creditors, by which they agreed to contribute to the purchase of certain of the bankrupt's machinery only in case their debts against the bankrupt were fully satisfied, held preferential, and not to enable them to enforce a lien against the fund realized by the bankrupt's trustee on a sale of the machinery. In re Jacob Y. Shantz & Son Co. (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 425. A preference is created where the debtor compromises with all of his creditors except one, whom he promises to pay in full on a large extension of time, transferring to him property as security therefor. Ecfort v. Greely (D. C. 1873) 6 N. B. R. 433, Fed. Cas. No. 4,260.

But where, pursuant to a contemplated compromise settlement of a bankrupt's debts, defendant, a judgment creditor, was paid a stipulated amount to obtain a discharge of his lien, and he received the same in good faith, and it appeared that the settlement would have been completed but that the bankrupt became insane and it was then abandoned, it was held that the payment so received was not recoverable as a preference. Templeton v. Woollens (C. C. A. 1912) 200 Fed. 257, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 208. And see In re Folb (D. C. 1898) 91 Fed. 107, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 22. Several creditors may with the aid of their debtor conspire to gain an advantage over other creditors, by a voluntary preference, if the means used are not unlawful, and the preference is made more than four months before the bankruptcy of the debtor. Van Kleeck v. Miller (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 484, Fed. Cas. No. 16,860.

7. Procuring or suffering judgment.—Where a bankrupt, within four months prior to the filing of the petition, permitted two creditors to obtain judgments against him and to sell his stock of goods thereunder, such judgments constituted preferences, and the rupt's trustee was entitled to r the reasonable value of the goo sold. Moore v. John H. Smith & (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 431.

Something more than passive resistance on the part of an ins debtor is necessary to invalid judgment and levy on his pr when the debt is due and he has fense. But slight circumstances ing to show a desire on the part bankrupt to give a preference m sufficient to show that he "procu suffered" the judgment. Wils City Bank of St. Paul (1873) 17 473, 21 L. Ed. 723; Parsons v. well (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 74; H man v. Smith (1875) 42 Md. 1 N. B. R. 121; Sleek v. Turner (76 Pa. 142, 10 N. B. R. 580; Ke er v. Tool (1876) 81 Pa. 467, B. R. 334; Mason v. Warthens 7 W. Va. 532, 14 N. B. R. 346.

It is competent for a creditor stitute a suit against an insolvent or and to obtain judgment and execution, and unless the bankrup some act by which he has partic in some way in the action of the itor, the preference thereby ac is valid as against other credito far as it is affected by this part part of the statute. In re Run C. 1879) 3 Fed. 790.

A creditor may pursue his ins debtor to judgment and execution full knowledge of the insolvency withstanding the provisions o bankruptcy act, provided the does nothing to aid the pursui there be no collusion between the or and the creditor, the ordinary dies of the law are open to the Clark v. Iselin (1874) 21 Wall. 3 L. Ed. 568; Brown v. Jefferson ty Nat. Bank (C. C. 1881) 9 Fed.

A debtor does not procure or judgment who merely consents amicable action or revival, which the creditor no advantage whic could not at once have secured b versary process. Kemmerer v. (1876) 81 Pa. 467. Nor is it a of procuring or suffering jud where the debtor merely agrees t notice to a certain creditor when tion is issued against him, and d notify that creditor. Gaskill v. B (C. C. 1881) 8 Fed. 746. But a ment by default is prima facie fr lent, and one seeking to retain a erence secured thereby must ne all the circumstances under the ute making such a transfer void. Binns (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. And a judgment obtained by serv process on an absconding debtor secretly returns within the jurisd to permit such service, is procur suffered by him, within the meani the statute. Beattie v. Gardner (1871) Fed. Cas. No. 1,195. A preference is created if the debto tributes to the rendition of the judgment at an earlier date than, without his aid, it could have been entered. Rogers v. Palmer (1880) 102 U. S. 263, 26 L. Ed. 164. Or where a member of an insolvent firm delivers a message at the request of a creditor, although unwillingly, directing an attorney to enter judgment on a judgment note which the firm had previously given. In re Benton (C. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 75, Fed. Cas. No. 1,333. Or where a judgment debtor agrees that the sheriff shall place a cashier in charge of his store, and that the proceeds of each day's sales shall be paid over to the sheriff and applied on the execution. In re Metzger Toy & Novelty Co. (D. C. 1902) 114 Fed. 957, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 307.

An order in void receivership proceedings whereby the bankrupt's property was transferred to defendant may, when made within four months of bankruptcy, be vacated as a preference. Jones v. Schaff Bros. Co. (1915) 174 S. W. 177, 187 Mo. App. 597.

8. —— Judgment by confession or consent.—A confession of judgment, or the giving of a warrant of attorney to confess judgment, by an insolvent debtor, with the intention of preferring the particular creditor, may be a voidable preference, and especially where this course is taken for the purpose of enabling that creditor to levy his execution before other creditors can do so. First Nat. Bank v. Jones (1874) 21 Wall. 325, 22 L. Ed. 542; Buchanan v. Smith (1872) 16 Wall. 277, 21 L. Ed. 280; Benjamin v. Chandler (D. C. 1905) 142 Fed. 217, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 439; Haughey v. Albin (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 399, Fed. Cas. No. 6,222; Fitch v. McGie (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 531, Fed. Cas. No. 4,835; Zahm v. Fry (C. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 546, Fed. Cas. No. 18,198; Street v. Dawson (C. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 207, Fed. Cas. No. 13,533. And a debtor who voluntarily confesses judgment in favor of the creditor, and allows him to issue an execution and to make a levy and sale, resulting in the creditor becoming the purchaser, "transfers" his property. Grant v. National Bank of Auburn (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 581, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 712. And the same principles apply in the case of a decree entered by consent. In re Mayo Contracting Co. (D. C. 1907) 157 Fed. 469, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 551.

But an order or decree requiring a trustee to pay over money to his successor, made in a proceeding by the cestui que trust to have him removed on the ground of his insolvency, resulting in an adversary decree appointing a new trustee, is not a judgment "procured or suffered" by the insolvent. Fry v. Pennsylvania Trust Co. (1900) 195 Pa. 343, 46 Atl. 10. And the same is true of a judgment which merely confirms an award made more than four months before the bankruptcy of the debtor. In re Koslowski (D. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 823, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 723.

Although a judgment by confession may be entered under such circumstances as to make it a voidable preference, yet where it was intended merely as collateral security for the aggregate amount of several valid and existing judgments, its invalidity does not in any way affect the original judgments. Vogle v. Lathrop (C. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 439, Fed. Cas. No. 16,985.

9. Transfers of property.—The act does not permit an insolvent debtor to transfer any portion of his property in kind to a creditor in settlement of the debt, though it be an honest and valid one, if the effect will be to prefer that creditor over others, and the creditor has reasonable cause to believe that such result will follow. Sherman v. Luckhardt (1902) 96 Mo. App. 320, 70 S. W. 388; In re House (D. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 6,735.

The trustee stands in the shoes of the bankrupt and cannot recover in assumpsit the proceeds of a sale of property which was in the possession of a warehouseman when the petition was filed, and the receipts for which were held by bona fide creditors who became pledgees thereof without knowledge of insolvency and long before bankruptcy proceedings and without intention to defraud. Chicago Title & Trust Co. v. First Nat. Bank (1912) 174 Ill. App. 339.

A preferential "transfer" of property may include a mortgage or any other kind of lien voluntarily created by the debtor. Coder v. Arts (1907) 152 Fed. 943, 82 C. C. A. 91, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 513; In re Ed. W. Wright Lumber Co. (D. C. 1902) 114 Fed. 1011, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 345; In re Jones (D. C. 1902) 118 Fed. 673, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 262. Or a deed of land delivered with the understanding that it is not to be recorded but held as security. Ragan v. Donovan (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 138, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 311. Or a bill of sale of a stock of merchandise. W. B. Belknap & Co. v. Lyell (1907) 89 Miss. 197, 42 South. 799. Or an order drawn by the bankrupt on a third person and accepted by the latter. In re Hines (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 543, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 495. And an agreement to "transfer" property may be construed as an agreement to "deliver" it. Godwin v. Murchison Nat. Bank (1907) 145 N. C. 320, 59 S. E. 154, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 935.

Where the creditor simply takes possession of property of the debtor, meaning to satisfy his claim out of it, this may constitute a preference. Bailey v. Henderson (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 737. Especially where the debtor thereupon gives the creditor a written release. Coolidge v. Ayers (1904) 76 Vt. 405, 57 Atl. 970. But a preference is not created by the act of a creditor in taking possession of collaterals deposited as security, though within four months before the bankruptcy, where the collateral was set apart years before to secure the debtor's drawing credit. Sexton v. Kessler & Co. (1912) 225 U. S. 90, 32 Sup. Ct. 657, 56 L. Ed. 995.

A sum retained by a corporate creditor, with knowledge of the debtor's insolvency and within four months before his bankruptcy, which sum was due and owing to the bankrupt under an agreement by which the corporation, in paying its employés, was to deduct from their wages the amounts due from them to the bankrupt for supplies furnished by him to them, and was to remit to him the amount so deducted, irrespective of any indebtedness otherwise due by him to the corporation, is not a voidable preference. Western Tie & Timber Co. v. Brown (1905) 196 U. S. 502, 25 Sup. Ct. 339, 49 L. Ed. 571, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 447.

The performance of labor by an insolvent debtor for his creditor, for which he is given credit on his indebtedness, is not a transfer of property. In re Abraham Steers Lumber Co. (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 738, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 315.

A transfer may constitute a voidable preference under the act although the property is not conveyed directly to the preferred creditor, if the effect of the transaction is to enable him to secure a larger share of the debtor's estate than other creditors of the same class will receive in the bankruptcy. Western Tie & Timber Co. v. Brown (1904) 129 Fed. 728, 64 C. C. A. 256, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 111. But see this case on appeal (1905) 196 U. S. 502, 25 Sup. Ct. 339, 49 L. Ed. 571, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 447. Hence it is sufficient if the transfer is made to a third person for the creditor's benefit. National Bank of Newport v. National Herkimer County Bank (1912) 225 U. S. 178, 32 Sup. Ct. 633, 56 L. Ed. 1042, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 218. And a debtor cannot escape the effect of giving a preference by passing the conveyance through his wife and having her convey or mortgage it to the creditor. Gibson v. Dobie (C. C. 1871) 14 N. B. R. 156, Fed. Cas. No. 5,394. And a preference is created where the creditor induces and procures a third person to lend money to the bankrupt with which the creditor's claim is to be satisfied, taking a mortgage on the bankrupt's stock in trade as security. In re Beerman (D. C. 1901) 112 Fed. 663, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 431.

It makes no difference who the creditor may be. The officers of a corporation, for instance, may lawfully lend it money, but cannot take a preferential transfer of its property when it is insolvent. Atherton v. Emerson (1908) 199 Mass. 199, 85 N. E. 530; M
Chicago Title & Trust Co. (19
Ill. App. 68; Cullen v. Veas Super. 1915) 95 Atl. 655.

The act of a foreign creditor taining a lien on property of th in a foreign country may cons preference. In re Pollmann 1907) 156 Fed. 221, 19 Am.
Rep. 474.

Since property of the bankru is exempt under the laws of t will not in any event constitut of his estate in bankruptcy for pose of distribution among th itors, a conveyance or incumbr exempt property for the benefi particular creditor cannot be amount to a preference wit meaning of the statute. Hunti Baskerville (1911) 192 Fed. 8
C. C. A. 137, 27 Am. Bankr. R
In re Leech (D. C. 1908) 171 F
Vitzthum v. Large (D. C. 19
Fed. 685, 20 Am. Bankr. R
CONTRA, Lacy v. Chandler (T App. 1914) 163 S. W. 328.

10. —— Transfer of property stitution or satisfaction of l voidable preference is created debtor, though insolvent, tran surrenders to a creditor prop which the latter already has lien, in satisfaction and disch the debt and the lien securin property in substitution for which the lien attaches, provi property is of no greater val the amount of the lien, so t debtor's general estate is not depleted. Ashuelot Bank v. F
C. 1884) 19 Fed. 237; Coxe
(C. C. 1872) 8 N. B. R. 562, F
No. 3,310; Catlin v. Hoffman
1874) 9 N. B. R. 342, Fed. C
2,521; Boothe v. Brooks (D.
12 N. B. R. 398, Fed. Cas. No
Hallack v. Tritch (C. C. 1878
B. R. 293, Fed. Cas. No. 5,956
v. Garrison (1904) 36 Tex. C
574, 82 S. W. 800; Posey v. M
(1902) 28 Tex. Civ. App. 452, 6
792. See Silberstein v. Stahl (1
Misc. Rep. 353, 66 N. Y. Supp.

A transfer by a bankrupt to itor of property of no more va such creditor's lien thereon, amount of claim of other cred bankrupt, which he then, by ag with bankrupt, pays, is not a ence, though such other claims secured. Russell's Trustee v.
Lumber Co. (1914) 164 S. W.
Ky. 219.

But a preference is created value of the property transfe surrendered is in substantial e the creditor's claim. Waring chanan (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B.
Fed. Cas. No. 17,176. Or if th action puts the creditor in a n ly better position with referenc enforcement of his claim. In blee (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. N
Where defendant, with knowl

the insolvency of his brother-in-law, advanced money to take up notes of a bank which was pressing for payment and for such advancement took notes of the bankrupt and, on the maturity of the first of the series, procured a deed of trust of the bankrupt's property, of which the trustee immediately took possession, the deed constituted a preference. Dean v. Davis (C. C. A. 1914) 212 Fed. 88.

To justify a transaction of this kind, there must be an actual and valid lien of some kind, not a mere promise or unexecuted agreement to give security. Page v. Rogers (1909) 211 U. S. 575, 29 Sup. Ct. 159, 53 L. Ed. 332, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 496; Sharp v. Philadelphia Warehouse Co. (C. C. 1880) 19 N. B. R. 378, Fed. Cas. No. 12,709a. But if a creditor holds a valid and subsisting lien on the debtor's property, and the equity of redemption therein is released to him under such circumstances as to make it a fraudulent preference, though the conveyance is void, this will not divest the lien, but the parties will be remitted to their original position. Avery v. Hackley (1874) 20 Wall. 407, 22 L. Ed. 385.

11. Restoration of specific property or funds.—A transfer or surrender of property by an insolvent debtor will not constitute a voidable preference where the person receiving it was actually the owner of the property, and no title was vested in the bankrupt in any such sense that it could have been made available for his general creditors. Bradley, Clark & Co. v. Benson (1904) 93 Minn. 91, 100 N. W. 670; Sears v. Gilman (1908) 199 Mass. 384, 85 N. E. 466; In re Wright-Dana Hardware Co. (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 335, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 582. Where a broker buys stock for a customer on a margin, the title to the stock is in the customer, and not in the broker, the latter holding it merely as a pledgee to secure the advances made by him in the purchase. Hence the customer is not a creditor of the broker, and no preference is created by the transfer of the stock to the customer on the settlement of his account. Richardson v. Shaw (1906) 147 Fed. 659, 77 C. C. A. 643, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 876; In re Graff (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 343, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 744. Or by the broker's action in redeeming the stock (already pledged by him) and turning it over to the customer on demand. Richardson v. Shaw (1908) 209 U. S. 365, 28 Sup. Ct. 512, 52 L. Ed. 835, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 717.

A transfer of realty by an insolvent, though made within four months before his bankruptcy, is not a preference if made in good faith to his wife in replacement of her dotal property alienated by him, and the subject of the transfer does not exceed in value such dotal property. Gomila v. Wilcombe (1907) 151 Fed. 470, 81 C. C. A. 268, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 143.

Money, as well as other property, may be subject to this rule. Thus, the return of excessive margins by an insolvent stockbroker to a customer does not constitute a preference. Richardson v. Shaw (1908) 209 U. S. 365, 28 Sup. Ct. 512, 52 L. Ed. 835, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 717. So where money is placed in the hands of one who afterwards becomes bankrupt, but on the agreement that it shall be used for a particular purpose, and it is not so used, but is returned to the owner, this does not create a preference. Sharp v. Simonitsch (1909) 107 Minn. 133, 119 N. W. 790; Dressel v. North State Lumber Co. (D. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 531, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 541; In re W. W. Mills Co. (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 42, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 501. But the case is different where goods have passed to the bankrupt under a contract of sale. It is an unlawful preference if the seller accepts the return of the goods or a part of them in settlement of his claim, unless he has retained title in himself by some lawful reservation or agreement. Plummer v. Myers (D. C. 1905) 137 Fed. 660, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 805; West v. Fulling (1873) 36 Ind. App. 617, 76 N. E. 325.

12. —— Trust funds and money converted or embezzled.—If money stolen or embezzled by the bankrupt, or misappropriated to his own use while holding it in the character of a trustee, has been kept separate and apart from the bankrupt's own money, or if it is distinctly traceable into property or other funds into which it has been converted, the owner may follow it and reclaim it from the trustee in bankruptcy, on the theory that it does not constitute any part of the assets in bankruptcy. And if the fund (or its avails) is surrendered or restored to the owner before bankruptcy intervenes, it cannot be said to constitute the giving of a preference. Block v. Rice (D. C. 1909) 167 Fed. 693, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 691; McNaboe v. Columbian Mfg. Co. (1907) 153 Fed. 967, 83 C. C. A. 81, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 684; Goode v. Elwood Lodge (1903) 160 Ind. 251, 66 N. E. 742.

But if the person entitled to the fund, having knowledge of the embezzlement or conversion, and of the debtor's insolvency, accepts a payment out of the latter's general funds or a conveyance of property or a security offered, this is an election to treat the misappropriation as creating a debt, and consequently he will stand in no better position than any general creditor. Atherton v. Green (1910) 179 Fed. 806, 103 C. C. A. 298, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 650.

Under these circumstances, a payment or transfer of property, or the giving of a mortgage or other security, will constitute a voidable preference, supposing the other elements of a preference to be present. Clarke v. Rogers (1910) 183 Fed. 518, 106 C. C. A. 64, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 413; In re

Dorr (C. C. A. 1912) 196 Fed. 292, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 505; Burgoyne v. McKillip (C. C. A. 1910) 182 Fed. 452, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 387; In re Kearney (D. C. 1909) 167 Fed. 995, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 721; Smith v. Township of Au Gres (C. C. A. 1906) 150 Fed. 257, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 745.

Independently of his liability on any bond, there is an obligation of a contractual nature resting upon a defaulting testamentary trustee to restore to the trust estate the value of assets embezzled, and this obligation is a provable debt in bankruptcy. Hence, where one is a trustee in several trusts, and knowing himself to be insolvent, and within four months prior to his bankruptcy, he transfers his own property from himself individually to one of those trusts and to himself in the character of trustee therein, to make good a shortage, and the effect is to enable that trust to recover a larger share of its debt than the others, a voidable preference is given. Clarke v. Rogers (1913) 228 U. S. 534, 33 Sup. Ct. 587, 57 L. Ed. 953, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 39.

13. Giving present consideration—Security for present loan or future advances.—An unlawful preference is created, only when a transfer is made or security given for a pre-existing debt. In re Clifford (D. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 475, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 281; In re Busby (D. C. 1903) 124 Fed. 469, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 650; Marsh v. Walters (1915) 220 Fed. 805, 136 C. C. A. 409. At the time when a debt is created, the creditor has a right to dictate the terms on which he will part with his money or property, and he may therefore demand that he shall first be secured to such an extent as will satisfy him, and this does not constitute an unlawful preference. In re Busby (D. C. 1903) 124 Fed. 469, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 650.

A creditor who takes security, though the debtor is insolvent and though his bankruptcy follows within four months, does not receive a preference which is voidable under the act, if the consideration was a loan or advance of money to the bankrupt made at the same time with the giving of the security. Tiffany v. Boatmen's Sav. Inst. (1873) 18 Wall. 375, 21 L. Ed. 868; Lindley v. Ross (C. C. A. 1912) 200 Fed. 733, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 610; In re Empire Cork Co. (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 225; In re Sayed (D. C. 1910) 185 Fed. 962, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 444; Powell v. Gate City Bank (1910) 178 Fed. 609, 102 C. C. A. 55, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 316; In re Hersey (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 1004, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 863; In re Bartlett (D. C. 1909) 172 Fed. 679, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 891; In re Farmers' Supply Co. (D. C. 1909) 170 Fed. 502, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 460; McDonald v. Clearwater Shortline Ry. Co. (C. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 1007, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 182; Crim v. Woodford (1905) 136 Fed. 34, 68 C. C. A. 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 302; Far Bank of Edgefield v. C. D. Carr (1904) 127 Fed. 690, 62 C. C. A. 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 733; Young v son (C. C. 1902) 115 Fed. 192, 8 Bankr. Rep. 377; In re Little (1901) 110 Fed. 621, 6 Am. Bankr. 681; In re Davidson (D. C. 1901 Fed. 882, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 52 re Wolf (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. Am. Bankr. Rep. 555; In re Little er Lumber Co. (D. C. 1899) 92 585, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 483; Ex Ames (D. C. 1871) 7 N. B. R. Fed. Cas. No. 323; In re Stowe (1871) 6 N. B. R. 429, Fed. Cas. 13,513; Schulze v. Bolting (D 1878) 17 N. B. R. 167, Fed. Cas 12,489; In re Morrison (D. C. 1 10 N. B. R. 105, Fed. Cas. No. 9 In re Pierson (D. C. 1874) 10 N R. 107, Fed. Cas. No. 11,153; Pip Baldy (C. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. Fed. Cas. No. 11,179; In re M gomery (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B 321, Fed. Cas. No. 9,732; In re B field & Poole Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1 16 N. B. R. 489, Fed. Cas. No. 1 Campbell v. Waite (D. C. 1877) 1 B. R. 93, Fed. Cas. No. 2,374; Ne Barbaree (1911) 135 Ga. 771, 70 638; Crooks v. People's Nat. (1901) 34 Misc. Rep. 450, 70 N Supp. 271; Claridge v. Evans (1 137 Wis. 218, 118 N. W. 198, 80 L. R. A. (N. S.) 144; Eason v. G son (1904) 36 Tex. Civ. App. 57 S. W. 800. Advancement of mone brick manufacturers under agree that they would manufacture brick the lender held not a voidable pr ence, the lender having taken po sion before bankruptcy. Sieg v. Gr (C. C. A. 1915) 225 Fed. 955.

A mortgage made in good faith t cure future sales of goods to the m gagor is valid to the extent of the vances actually made, and to such tent is not defeated but protecte the bankruptcy act. Marvin v. Cl bers (C. C. 1875) 13 N. B. R. 77, Cas. No. 9,179; In re Watkinson C. 1906) 142 Fed. 782, 16 Am. Ba Rep. 38; Peterson v. Nash Bros. (1 112 Fed. 311, 50 C. C. A. 260, 55 I A. 344, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 181. where new sales succeed payments, the net result is to increase the v of the debtor's estate, payments r by an insolvent debtor on a running count are not to be considered pr ential. Joseph Wild & Co. v. Pr dent Life & Trust Co. (1907) 153 562, 82 C. C. A. 516, 18 Am. Ba Rep. 506. A mortgage given for r ey borrowed at the time to pay the chase price of the property mortga whether or not the same identical r ey is used to make the payment, i effect a purchase money mortgage, entitled to protection as such. I Franklin (D. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 218; Lindle

Ross (1912) 200 Fed. 733, 119 C. C. A. 177. A chattel mortgage, executed by an insolvent corporation under an agreement made at the time of the loan, though a few days thereafter, is not a security for a past debt, and is not invalidated by the Bankruptcy Act or by Stock Corporation Law N. Y. § 66. In re Metropolitan Dairy Co. (1915) 224 Fed. 444, 140 C. C. A. 646. A bank held to have a valid lien on collateral pledged to secure an indebtedness of a bankrupt for money borrowed within four months prior to the bankruptcy to redeem such collateral from a prior valid pledge. Dodge v. Harris (1915) 224 Fed. 434, 140 C. C. A. 128.

A person may sell or exchange his property, though he is insolvent at the time, if it is done in good faith and with no fraudulent design as against his creditors. And one who takes a conveyance of such property, acting in equal good faith, and who has already advanced the money therefor, or gives a present and adequate consideration for it, is not chargeable with receiving a preference. Ernst v. Mechanics' & Metals Nat. Bank (C. C. A. 1912) 201 Fed. 664, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 289; Mills v. Virginia-Carolina Lumber Co. (C. C. A. 1908) 164 Fed. 168, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 750; In re Rosenfeld (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 116, Fed. Cas. No. 12,057; Harrison v. McLaren (D. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 244, Fed. Cas. No. 6,139; Sparhawk v. Richards (C. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 74, Fed. Cas. No. 13,205; Weeks v. Spooner (1906) 142 N. C. 479, 55 S. E. 432. But see Kerr v. Melum (1911) 27 S. D. 208, 130 N. W. 83. And either in the case of a security or a conveyance, it is not necessary that the transfer and the giving of the consideration should be exactly contemporaneous. For an advance will be considered a present consideration for a conveyance made within a reasonable time thereafter and in pursuance of a prior agreement. Douglass v. Vogeler (D. C. 1881) 6 Fed. 53; Gattman v. Honea (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 493, Fed. Cas. No. 5,271.

If one lends money to an insolvent debtor (whose bankruptcy follows within four months), and knows at the time that the borrower's purpose is not to use the money in supporting his credit or carrying on his business, but to use it in paying off one of the creditors, thereby giving a preference, the lender is so far affected by the fraudulent purpose that any security given to him for the loan will be voidable at the suit of the trustee in bankruptcy. Bucknam v. Goss (D. C. 1877) 13 N. B. R. 337, Fed. Cas. No. 2,097. And it seems that actual knowledge on the part of the lender is not necessary to produce this result, if the circumstances were so unusual and suspicious as to lay upon him the duty of making reasonable inquiries concerning the destination of the money, which inquiries would have enlightened him as to the debtor's purpose. Ex parte Mendell (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 9,418.

If the consideration for a security or transfer, though contemporaneous with it, was illegal, as being contrary to law, to good morals, or to public policy, it will not support the lien or conveyance. Sharp v. Philadelphia Warehouse Co. (C. C. 1881) 10 Fed. 379; Adams v. Merchants' Nat. Bank (C. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 174.

Where it appears that the transfer or security was given in part to secure a pre-existing debt, and in part to secure a new advance of money made at the same time with it, and there was no actual fraud in the transaction as to the other creditors or upon the bankruptcy act, the creditor will be entitled to enforce his security against the estate of the debtor in bankruptcy to the extent of the money advanced at the time, although it is void as a preference so far as concerns the pre-existing debt. In re Wolf (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 84, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 555; In re Cobb (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 821, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 129; In re Sanderlin (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 857, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 384; In re Hull (D. C. 1902) 115 Fed. 858, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 302; In re Dismal Swamp Contracting Co. (D. C. 1905) 135 Fed. 415, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 175; In re First Nat. Bank (1907) 155 Fed. 100, 84 C. C. A. 16, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 766. But see Tuttle v. Truax (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 601, Fed. Cas. No. 14,277.

An increase in a mortgage lien on a bankrupt's property, supported by a new and adequate consideration, and not lessening his estate or impairing in any respect the fund available to pay general creditors, must be sustained, although made within four months prior to his bankruptcy. State Bank of Williamson v. Fish (1909) 120 N. Y. Supp. 365.

An assignment of collateral by an insolvent debtor with intent to give a preference to a creditor who has reasonable grounds to believe that a preference is intended, made a short time before an adjudication of bankruptcy, as security for a pre-existing debt, and also for a small additional loan, is void as to the whole. Grannis v. Beardsley (C. C. 1876 & D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 5,688.

14. Prior agreement to give security or make transfer.—Where an agreement is made or a promise given, at the time when money is loaned or advanced, that a transfer of property shall be made or a security given to the lender, the subsequent execution of the transfer or giving of security does not constitute an illegal preference, though it takes place at a time when the debtor is insolvent and within four months prior to his bankruptcy. In re Harvey (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 340; Tomlinson

v. Bank of Lexington (1906) 145 Fed. 824, 76 C. C. A. 400, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 632; Ryttenberg v. Schefer (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 313, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 652; Payne v. Solomon (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 162, Fed. Cas. No. 10,856; In re Wood (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 421, Fed. Cas. No. 17,937; Burdick v. Jackson (N. Y. 1876) 7 Hun, 488, 15 N. B. R. 318; M. & M. National Bank v. Brady's Bend Iron Co. (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 491, Fed. Cas. No. 9,018; Smoot v. Morehouse (1845) 8 Ala. 370, 42 Am. Dec. 644.

But there are decisions to the effect that a transfer of property to a creditor by an insolvent debtor four months prior to his bankruptcy, which would otherwise constitute a voidable preference, is not deprived of that character by the fact that it was made pursuant to a prior agreement made more than four months before the bankruptcy. Citizens' Trust Co. v. Tilt (1912) 200 Fed. 410, 118 C. C. A. 562, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 906; Lathrop Bank v. Holland (1913) 205 Fed. 143, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 62; In re Thomas (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 214, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 945; Tilt v. Citizens' Trust Co. (D. C. 1911) 191 Fed. 441, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 320; In re Smith (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 426, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 864; In re Great Western Mfg. Co. (1907) 152 Fed. 123, 81 C. C. A. 341, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 259; In re Dismal Swamp Contracting Co. (D. C. 1915) 135 Fed. 415, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 175; In re Mandel (D. C. 1903) 127 Fed. 863, affirmed (1905) 135 Fed. 1021, 68 C. C. A. 546; In re Ronk (D. C. 1901) 111 Fed. 154, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 31; Second Nat. Bank v Hunt (1870) 11 Wall. 391, 20 L. Ed. 190; In re Connor (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 3,118; Lloyd v. Strobridge (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 197, Fed. Cas. No. 8,435; In re Herman (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 594.

If the promise or agreement was of such a specific nature and related to such specific property as to give rise to an inchoate or equitable lien (in advance of its execution) then the creation of a specific lien at a later time, in accordance with the prior promise, will not violate the bankruptcy law. Sabin v. Camp (C. C. 1900) 98 Fed. 974, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 578; Stover v. Kennedy (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 13,510. And see Gage Lumber Co. v. McEldowney (C. C. A. 1913) 207 Fed. 255, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 251. But these conditions are not met by a general parol agreement, entered into when the debt was contracted, not pledging any specific property, but merely that security should be given when required. In re Connor (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 3,118; Southwick v. Whipple (D. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 770. Or if the debtor should become financially embarrassed. Sebring v. Wellington (1901) 63 App. Div. 498, 71 N. Y. Supp. 788. A mere promise by the debtor, at the t

debt was contracted, to give a n to secure it, but without specif nature of the mortgage or the p on which it was to be given, c create an equitable mortgage, execution of a mortgage on a quent renewal of the debt, at when the debtor is insolvent an in four months before his ban constitutes a transfer of prop secure an antecedent debt, and a preference. Pollock v. Jones
124 Fed. 163, 61 C. C. A. 555, Bankr. Rep. 616. The prior must contemplate the giving of cific and definite security, not "some" security; it must be agreement as could be enforce bill for specific performance.
Jackson Iron Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1
N. B. R. 438, Fed. Cas. No. 7,1 agreement that the creditor sh a general lien on the property debtor, a corporation, will not Mathews v. Hardt (1903) 79 A 570, 80 N. Y. Supp. 462. And a ment to pledge personal prop security for a debt is not where the goods are not deliv the creditor nor set apart and as his property, so that wh creditor takes possession of th erty shortly before the filing of tion in bankruptcy, the transa voidable as a preference. In r dan (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 406
Bankr. Rep. 554; In re Arkor
ric Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1907) 1
914, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 470. agreement, while negotiating a make repayment out of a certa does not create a lien on th and hence when repayment is n of it within four months before ceeding in bankruptcy, it will b ed to be preferential and voi the suit of the trustee. Tor
Winfield Nat. Bank (1903) 66 K
71 Pac. 235. An agreement, ma bankrupt more than four month to the bankruptcy, by which it to assign to a bank its future a receivable, and the bank ag make advances on the same, h to operate as an equitable ass of the accounts, which would assignments made within th months' period and otherwise p tial. In re Cotton Manufa Sales Co. (D. C. 1913) 209 Fed.

15. Exchange or substitution curities.—An exchange or subs of one valid security for anoth not create an unlawful pre though occurring when the de insolvent and within four month to his bankruptcy, provided t security is not of greater val the old and does not put the in better position with referenc forcing his claim, since, in th nothing is taken away from the creditors of the bankrupt. Sa

Turpin (1875) 91 U. S. 114, 23 L. Ed. 235; Cook v. Tullis (1873) 18 Wall. 332, 21 L. Ed. 933; Clark v. Iselin (1874) 21 Wall. 360, 22 L. Ed. 568; Douglass v. Vogeler (D. C. 1881) 6 Fed. 53; Brett v. Carter (D. C. 1875) 14 N. B. R. 301, Fed. Cas. No. 1,844; Albany Exchange Bank v. Johnson (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 133; Sawyer v. Turpin (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 12,409; Deland v. Miller & Chaney Bank (1903) 119 Iowa, 368, 93 N. W. 304; Hutchinson v. Murchie (1882) 74 Me. 187.

Transfer by bankrupt in trust to secure party who executed indemnity bond to bonding company, which gave a bond to secure the discharge of lien of an attachment obtained within four months before bankruptcy, held valid unless intended to create a preference or defraud creditors or unless the bonding company had reason to believe that such was its purpose. In re Federal Biscuit Co. (1914) 214 Fed. 221, 130 C. C. A. 635.

The giving of a mortgage or pledge is not a preference when it is executed upon a renewal of the debt or loan, which was originally secured by a like mortgage or pledge. In re Noel (D. C. 1905) 137 Fed. 694, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 715; Chattanooga Nat. Bank v. Rome Iron Co. (C. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 755, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 441; In re Doran (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 4,000. Nor is a preference created by the substitution and recording of a mortgage correcting a mistake in a prior unrecorded mortgage. Player v. Lippincott (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 11,223. Or in the place of one not formally executed. Stewart v. Hoffman (1904) 31 Mont. 190, 77 Pac. 689. Nor by the release of pledged property and the taking of a pledge on other property to secure the same debt. Perry v. Booth (1901) 67 App. Div. 235, 73 N. Y. Supp. 216. But see Anniston Iron & Supply Co. v. Anniston Rolling Mill Co. (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 974, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 200. Nor by the substitution of different collaterals for those already held by the creditor. In re Reese-Hammond Fire Brick Co. (C. C. A. 1910) 181 Fed. 641, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 323. Nor by the giving of a chattel mortgage in place of a prior valid bill of sale of the same property. Sawyer v. Turpin (1875) 91 U. S. 114, 23 L. Ed. 235. But a chattel mortgage is voidable as a preference, where the prior security was a conditional contract of sale, which was invalid because not recorded. L. A. Becker Co. v. Gill (C. C. A. 1913) 206 Fed. 36, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 429. But not where the chattel mortgage was substituted in place of valid collateral security. In re Davidson (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 882, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 528. A preference is not created by a confession of judgment for a debt already secured by a prior valid lien. Reber v. Gundy (D. C. 1882) 13 Fed. 53. Nor by the substitution of a deed of trust for a mechanic's lien on the same property. In re Weaver (D. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 132, Fed. Cas. No. 17,307. Nor by a mere change in the form of the obligation from an account to a note. O'Connor v. Parker (1871) 23 Mich. 22.

Where the bankrupt's debt consists of a sum of money with accumulated interest, some time overdue, secured by a valid mortgage, and the parties have an accounting and compute the amount due to date for both principal and interest, and a new mortgage is given for the sum so ascertained, upon the same property, the old mortgage being canceled, this is not to be regarded as an unlawful preference, though done within the time limited before the debtor's bankruptcy. Bernhisel v. Firman (1874) 22 Wall. 170, 22 L. Ed. 766. But see In re Jordon (D. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 416, Fed. Cas. No. 7,529; Forbes v. Howe (1869) 102 Mass. 427, 3 Am. Rep. 475. And a creditor who has obtained a valid lien by execution on property of greater value than the amount of the judgment may receive from the debtor bills receivable, accounts, and cash up to the amount of the execution, without violating the bankruptcy law, if the execution is thereupon released and the judgment satisfied. Clark v. Iselin (1874) 21 Wall. 360, 22 L. Ed. 568; Livingston v. Bruce (C. C. 1848) Fed. Cas. No. 8,410. And a broker who holds stocks of a customer as security for the money advanced in their purchase, does not gain a preference by selling the stocks and applying the proceeds on his claim. In re Filer (D. C. 1901) 125 Fed. 261, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 835.

Sellers of property held not entitled to insurance placed thereon by the buyers, the original agreement of sale having been superseded by a chattel mortgage, and hence, the buyers being insolvent, a payment of the insurance money to the sellers constituted a preference. Bunday v. Huntington (1915) 224 Fed. 847, 140 C. C. A. 415.

Where a loan of money is simply evidenced by an indorsed promissory note, the substitution for it of a bond and mortgage is not such an exchange of securities as will prevent the mortgage being considered a preference, the other elements being present. In re Hirschowitz (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 202, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 571; In re Wolf (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 84, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 555. And a preference may be created by the substitution of one note for another, where that last given is made by a different party or is indorsed with a better name or matures earlier. McAtee v. Shade (C. C. A. 1910) 185 Fed. 442, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 151; In re Lane (D. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 135, Fed. Cas. No. 8,044. Or enables the creditor more easily or quickly to obtain judgment and levy on the debtor's property. Loudon v. First Nat. Bank (D. C. 1877) 15 N. B. R. 476, Fed. Cas. No. 8,525.

Where a bankrupt executed a note for its indebtedness to a corporation, which the corporation transferred to claimant, its principal stockholder, the fact that the corporation thereafter received from the bankrupt certain notes of a third person in part payment of its claim was insufficient to show that claimant had received a preference. Aiello v. Crampton (1912) 201 Fed. 891, 120 C. C. A. 189.

It does not necessarily follow that the new security is voidable to its entire extent. Where a debtor gives a mortgage in exchange or substitution for an existing valid mortgage, but of greater value, it may be voidable by his trustee in bankruptcy, but only as to such excess of value. In re Manning (D. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 181, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 500.

16. Payments by debtor.—Payment of a debt in money is a "transfer," and if made under such circumstances as would constitute a preference in the case of a transfer of any other form of property, may be recovered by the debtor's trustee in bankruptcy. West Philadelphia Bank v. Dickson (1877) 95 U. S. 180, 24 L. Ed. 407; Pirie v. Chicago Title & Trust Co. (D. C. 1911) 182 U. S. 438, 21 Sup. Ct. 906, 45 L. Ed. 1171; Vollmar v. Plage (D. C. 1911) 186 Fed. 598, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 590; In re Rice (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 514, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 211; In re W. W. Mills Co. (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 42, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 501; Wright v. William Skinner Mfg. Co. (1908) 162 Fed. 315, 89 C. C. A. 23, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 527; Sargent v. Blake (1908) 160 Fed. 57, 87 C. C. A. 213, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 115; Wright v. Sampter (D. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 196, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 355; In re John Morrow & Co. (D. C. 1901) 134 Fed. 686, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 392; In re Colton Export & Import Co. (1903) 121 Fed. 663, 57 C. C. A. 417, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 14; Swarts v. Fourth Nat. Bank (1902) 117 Fed. 1, 54 C. C. A. 387, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 673; In re Fixen (1900) 102 Fed. 295, 42 C. C. A. 354, 50 L. R. A. 605, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 10; In re Sloan (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 116, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 356; In re Christensen (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 802, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 202; Strobel & Wilken Co. v. Knost (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 409, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 631; In re Ft. Wayne Electric Corp. (1900) 99 Fed. 400, 39 C. C. A. 582, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 634; In re Conhaim (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 923, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 249; In re Ft. Wayne Electric Corp. (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 803, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 186; In re Baxter (D. C. 1885) 25 Fed. 700; Metcalf v. Officer (C. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 640; Paige v. Loring (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 10,672; Andrews v. Kellogg (1907) 41 Colo. 35, 92 Pac. 222; Landry v. Andrews 22 R. I. 597, 48 Atl. 1036; C Citizens' Bank (1909) 77 Miss. South. 637; Sherman v. Lu (1902) 96 Mo. App. 320, 70 S. Wright v. Cotten (1905) 140 52 S. E. 141; West v. Bank of (1906) 16 Okl. 328, 85 Pac. C. Wise Coal Co. v. Small (19 Fed. 524, 140 C. C. A. 508.

Payment of a debt by the b after the filing of the petition i ruptcy against him is unaut and ordinarily the trustee is en recover the amount paid; but debt was one wholly or in part able against the trustee, it is a exercise of discretion for the deny such recovery, either in w pro tanto. Toof v. City Nat (C. C. A. 1913) 206 Fed. 250, Bankr. Rep. 79. But where a just before filing his voluntary in bankruptcy, went to two of h itors, whose debts were barred statute of limitations, and paid them one dollar, and did this purpose of taking their claims the statute, so that they migh with the other creditors in the ing bankruptcy, and they had no edge or cause to believe that h to give them any advantage oth the revival of their debts, it w that no preference was created Banks (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed.

As respects the creation of a ence, it is immaterial in what f payment is made, whether in by a certified check. Cannon v M. Bell Co. (1901) 34 Misc. R 70 N. Y. Supp. 1024. Or by the ance of a draft drawn on the de the creditor. Fox v. Gardner 21 Wall. 475, 22 L. Ed. 685. O der on a third person to pay to t itor money which is due to the In re The Leader (D. C. 1911) 1 624, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 668. giving a lien on property fron the creditor realizes his debt In re Belding (D. C. 1902) 1 1016, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 718. insurance was effected on mo property, and the proceeds ther ing been collected, a portion was surrendered to the mortgag had become bankrupt, that it m repaid to the mortgagee in liq of an unsecured debt, the am relinquished at once became th erty of the mortgagor, and when constituted a preference. Stea & Lumber Co. v. Hammond (19 Fed. 559, 133 C. C. A. 411. ceptance by a creditor of a po the insurance money, under an ment seeking to avoid bankrupt ceedings, is a waiver of the cr rights under an order by the de the insurance company, before edge of the creditor's insolven such order is no defense to an by the trustee in bankruptcy to the payment. Schuetz v. International Harvester Co. of America (Iowa, 1914) 149 N. W. 855.

It is immaterial on the question of a preference that the payment is not made directly into the creditor's hands, as, where the debtor's check passes through several banks and a clearing house and is finally credited to the creditor. In re Lyon (D. C. 1902) 114 Fed. 326, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 412. Where a creditor of the bankrupt assigns his account to a purchaser of the bankrupt's property, under an arrangement whereby such purchaser pays the claim, the legal effect is to appropriate out of the assets of the bankrupt the amount used in satisfying such claim by the purchaser assuming the liability, and an unlawful preference results therefrom. Hackney v. Hargreaves Bros. (1903) 68 Neb. 624, 94 N. W. 822; Rogers v. Fidelity Sav. Bank & Loan Co. (D. C. 1909) 172 Fed. 735, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1. This is also the case where the paying teller of a bank, claiming to be its creditor, draws his check and pays himself the amount out of the funds on hand, just before the bank closes its doors. In re Plant (D. C. 1906) 148 Fed. 37, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 272. And where a bank which acts as agent for another bank for clearing house purposes pays, upon the day of its failure, to the latter, which has knowledge of its insolvency, deposits which have been made on its general account to meet checks in the clearing house, such payment is an illegal preference. Phelan v. Iron Mountain Bank (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 11,069. Where check given by depositor in defendant's bank for amount of bond and mortgage executed by bankrupt was exchanged for a check on another bank, which was delivered to defendant in payment of an indebtedness, defendant held to have received a preferential transfer. Obermeier v. Kass (1914) 219 Fed. 529, 135 C. C. A. 279. And where the president and general manager of a bankrupt corporation acts for it in purchasing certain accounts against it, he can only charge the corporation for the amount actually paid by him for the accounts, and must account to the trustee in bankruptcy for all profits made. Atherton v. Emerson (1908) 199 Mass. 199, 85 N. E. 530. And a trustee in bankruptcy is not precluded from recovering, from the payee of a note, money paid by the bankrupt on the note within four months before his adjudication, by reason of the fact that there is a solvent indorser on the note. Harris v. Second Nat. Bank (1903) 110 Tenn. 239, 75 S. W. 1053; Bartholow v. Bean (1873) 18 Wall. 635, 21 L. Ed. 866.

There is no violation of the law against preferences where a debtor turns over money to his wife to be used, and which is in fact used, by her in defraying necessary household and family expenses, though she is also a creditor of his. Neumann v. Blake (1910) 178 Fed. 916, 102 C. C. A. 294, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 575.

Nor is the payment of house rent or rent of a store the giving of a preference where there is no intention to cheat other creditors or to evade the law. In re Locke (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 382, Fed. Cas. No. 8,439. But where an insolvent debtor, having a leasehold interest in a bakery where he carries on his business, pays the rent due on the same, as a means of enabling himself to continue the business, but with the purpose of defrauding his creditors, by hoarding and secreting the proceeds of the business so continued, and incurring new business debts without paying any old ones, the payment of the rent should be considered as a fraudulent preference under the bankruptcy law. In re Lange (C. C. A. 1899) 97 Fed. 107. Payments made by an insolvent to his landlord within four months of his adjudication in bankruptcy, and applied by the landlord, not to rent for the current year, but to rent in arrears, constitutes a preference. In re Louis J. Bergdoll Motor Co. (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 87. Where creditors of a bankrupt, with knowledge of its insolvency, placed a representative in charge and furnished goods on credit to replenish the stock, and would have succeeded in re-establishing the business, had not the issuance of an execution by another, precipitated bankruptcy, payments made for goods so furnished within four months prior to adjudication were preferential. In re Farmers' Store & Supply Co. (D. C. 1914) 214 Fed. 505.

A preference is not created by the payment of interest in advance to a bank to secure a renewal of a note held by it. In re Kellar (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 348, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 621. Nor by the payment of the salary of an officer of a bankrupt corporation, provided the amount does not exceed a fair compensation for his services. Atherton v. Emerson (1908) 199 Mass. 199, 85 N. E. 530. Nor by the payment of accrued interest on a statutory dower in real estate. In re Riddle's Sons (D. C. 1903) 122 Fed. 559, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 204.

A debt due to a railroad company for freight is not in any way privileged, and to pay it may constitute a preference, if the circumstances would produce that result in the case of any other creditor. Farrin v. Crawford (C. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 602, Fed. Cas. No. 4,686. Payment by insolvent makers to the holder of a note, for the purpose of relieving an indorser, is a preference under the statute. Landry v. Andrews (1901) 22 R. I. 597, 48 Atl. 1036.

Payments received by the president and manager of a bankrupt hotel company on money loaned to it to pay taxes, etc., while insolvent, held preferences, which were recoverable, and which precluded proof of the balance of the debt until returned. Cooper v. Miller (1913) 203 Fed. 383, 121 C. C. A. 567.

It is unnecessary, to constitute a preference, that the creditor should have been paid in full. The giving and acceptance of a partial payment may be equally within the statute. But a payment by an insolvent debtor of a percentage on claims of a part of his creditors, which does not lessen the percentage which his other creditors will receive, is not a preference nor forbidden by the bankruptcy law. In re Hapgood (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 6,044.

Where a solvent corporation as a going concern declares dividends which are paid out of the capital stock and are received by the shareholders in ignorance, the trustee in bankruptcy after the corporation's insolvency cannot recover such dividends. Carlisle v. Ottley (1915) 85 S. E. 1010, 143 Ga. 797.

If the payment was made in total or partial discharge of a valid existing lien on property of the bankrupt, which would not have been disturbed by the bankruptcy proceedings, it cannot be considered a preference, because the assets available for general creditors are not thereby diminished. Root Mfg. Co. v. Johnson (1914) 219 Fed. 397, 135 C. C. A. 139. This rule has been applied where the creditor merely held an inchoate lien. In re Lynn Camp Coal Co. (C. C. 1908) 168 Fed. 998, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 60. And it applies where the obligation is in the form of a valid mortgage. Stewart v. Hopkins (1876) 30 Ohio St. 502. Compare Shutts v. First Nat. Bank (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 705, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 492. But a mortgage or deed of trust never delivered as a subsisting obligation cannot excuse a payment by the mortgagor on the indebtedness covered thereby, which payment otherwise would be invalid as a preference. Page v. Rogers (1909) 211 U. S. 575, 29 Sup. Ct. 159, 53 L. Ed. 332, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 496. A creditor holding security for less than the amount of his claim cannot, if he knows the debtor to be insolvent, obtain a valid preferential payment of the unsecured part of his debt within four months before the adjudication in bankruptcy. Claridge v. Evans (1908) 137 Wis. 218, 118 N. W. 198, 25 L. R. A. (N. S.) 144.

That the proceeds of a transfer of property by a bankrupt were applied on a debt due the government did not prevent a recovery of the goods or their value, as there are four classes of payments to be made before the government is paid. Parker v. Sherman (1914) 212 Fed. 917, 129 C. C. A. 437, affirming decree (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 155.

17. Payment or transfer by th son.—A payment received by a of a bankrupt from a third which does not come out of th of the bankrupt, does not con preference. Dressel v. Nort Lumber Co. (D. C. 1902) 119 1 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 541; Maso tional Herkimer County Bank 172 Fed. 529, 97 C. C. A. 155, Bankr. Rep. 733. Thus, whe the bankrupt had made an as for the benefit of his credit just before bankruptcy pro were instituted against him, a which he was a member paid a claim against him on which was at most only partially liabl held that this payment did stitute a preference. In re H C. 1906) 144 Fed. 543, 16 Am Rep. 495. So, payments made wife of the bankrupt out of arate estate in settlement o against him, though made wit months before his bankruptcy, preferential. Goode v. Elwoo (1903) 160 Ind. 251, 66 N. E. 7 where directors of a corporat row money, which is used by poration, and thereafter, when poration is insolvent, pay the d money which they borrow b their individual notes, secured gage on their own property, no preference given by the cor Keegan v. Hamilton Nat. Bank 163 Ind. 216, 71 N. E. 647.

But where an insolvent tra veys his stock to certain pers are sureties on his note giv bank, and the sureties, in co tion of the transfer, agree to debt to the bank, the bank not pating in this arrangement, being paid by the sureties ou proceeds of the property, the preference as to the sureties, bu to the bank. Horstman v. Littl 99 Tex. 530, 90 S. W. 1095.

Payments made by a bank notes held not voidable pre which an indorser who paid the due was required to surrende terfield v. Woodman (1915) 2 956, 139 C. C. A. 436, modifyin In re National Boat & Engine C. 1914) 216 Fed. 208.

One of three interlocking tions, which received money from the sale of the bonds of company, held liable to it for su eys, where it loaned them wit thority to the third corporation Hunter Arms Co. (D. C. 1915) 866.

18. Payments to attorneys or future services.—It is not for a person who expects to voluntary petition in bankru expects that creditors will against him, to retain an atto the purpose of such proceedings, and to pay him in advance a reasonable fee for his services, or transfer property to him in compensation for such services or give him security for the payment of his fee. In re Cummins (D. C. 1912) 196 Fed. 224, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 385; Triplett v. Hanley (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 14,179; Williams v. Pultze (1877) 5 Ohio Dec. 503; Lyon v. Marshall (N. Y. 1851) 11 Barb. 241; Furth v. Stahl (1903) 205 Pa. 439, 55 Atl. 29. Compare In re Evans (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 261, Fed. Cas. No. 4,552. This does not constitute the giving of a preference, under the statute, to such attorney. Swartz v. Frank (1904) 183 Mo. 438, 82 S. W. 60. And the transaction will be valid as against the subsequent proceedings in bankruptcy, unless there was a fraudulent purpose to place assets out of the reach of the creditors. Goodrich v. Wilson (1876) 119 Mass. 429. Or unless some party in interest objects to it and petitions to have the transaction examined by the court, in which case the question of the reasonableness of the fee paid is to be determined and the excess, if any, refunded. In re Morris (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 841, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 145.

In a proceeding by a trustee against an attorney for a re-examination of the latter's fee, the question is whether the debtor, in making the transfer to the attorney, was acting in contemplation of the filing of a bankruptcy petition. As used in this section, authorizing re-examination of an attorney's fee where a debtor has contracted to pay same "in contemplation of the filing of a petition by or against him," the words quoted do not mean simply the consciousness by the debtor of a bankrupt condition, but it is essential that there be some relation between the knowledge of his condition and the transaction with the attorney. Where, in proceedings by a trustee in bankruptcy, to re-examine the payment of an attorney's fee by the debtor, the case turns upon the character of the attorney's service, such service must be of a kind relevant to the matter of bankruptcy, not one which would be necessary in the ordinary course of business, regardless of bankruptcy. A debtor's contract, made three days after a fire, with an attorney to collect insurance, where the insurers questioned their liability, was a proceeding in the usual course of business, having no necessary relationship to bankruptcy; and such contract could not of itself justify the conclusion that it was made "in contemplation of the filing of a petition" in bankruptcy, though a petition in bankruptcy was filed against the debtor five days after the transfer to the attorney. Tripp v. Mitschrich (C. C. A. 1914) 211 Fed. 424.

The provision of this section authorizing the re-examination by the bankruptcy court of fees paid by the bankrupt to an attorney in contemplation of bankruptcy, does not apply to fees paid to an attorney by assignees under a general assignment made by the bankrupt prior to the bankruptcy proceedings. In re Geller (D. C. 1914) 216 Fed. 558.

This part of the statute refers only to services rendered to the bankrupt prior to the commencement of the proceedings in bankruptcy. Pratt v. Bothe (1904) 130 Fed. 670, 65 C. C. A. 48, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 529.

The provisions of the statute on this subject refer only to such professional services as are rendered in aid of the bankruptcy proceedings and for the benefit of the creditors, or in the administration and distribution of the bankrupt's estate. Magee v. Fox (C. C. A. 1916) 229 Fed. 395. And they will not validate a transfer of an insolvent's property to an attorney in consideration of an agreement to negotiate with the creditors of the insolvent for a settlement of his difficulties without resort to the bankruptcy court, nor a payment or transfer of property for services to be performed in defending the bankupt against anticipated criminal proceedings which are not brought until after the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. In re Habegger (1905) 139 Fed. 623, 71 C. C. A. 607, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 198.

Although, in a case coming within the provisions of the statute, a transfer of property may be equally allowable as a payment of money, yet an agreement that the attorney shall take certain goods in payment for his services, where there is no actual delivery or change of possession, does not constitute a "transfer" of the property, and if the attorney takes possession of the goods after the adjudication, and therefore after they have passed into the custody of the law, he must restore them. In re Corbett (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 872, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 224.

As to a payment for legal services rendered in the past, and not relating to the bankruptcy proceedings, it stands on the same footing as a payment to any other creditor, and will be preferential in the same circumstances or under the same conditions. In re George W. Shiebler & Co. (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 545, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 777. Unless the attorney has a lien on a particular fund or an agreement which amounts to an equitable assignment of it. In re Coney Island Lumber Co. (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 803.

19. Set-off or adjustment of mutual accounts.—A bank which had issued margin certificates to a depositor to secure performance of dealings on the Board of Trade did not receive a preference, where the depositor afterwards transferred his open trades to a corporation which carried them out, substituting its own securities for his and turning over the margin certificates thus secured to the bank within four months of proceedings in bankruptcy against the original depositor, whereupon the bank applied the depositor's balance to his debt to the bank. Continental & Commercial Trust & Savings Bank v. Chicago Title & Trust Co. (1913) 33 Sup. Ct. 829, 229 U. S. 435, 57 L. Ed. 1268, reversing decree (1912) 199 Fed. 704, 118 C. C. A. 142.

The application by a bank of the amount standing to the credit of a depositor in his general account, subject to check, on a note of the depositor or other indebtedness to the bank, does not constitute a voidable preference, though made while the depositor was insolvent and within four months prior to his bankruptcy. Continental & Commercial Trust & Savings Bank v. Chicago Title & Trust Co. (1913) 229 U. S. 435, 33 Sup. Ct. 829, 57 L. Ed. 1268, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 624; Studley v. Boylston Nat. Bank (1913) 229 U. S. 523, 33 Sup. Ct. 806, 57 L. Ed. 1313, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 161; New York County Nat. Bank v. Massey (1904) 192 U. S. 138, 24 Sup. Ct. 199, 48 L. Ed. 380, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 42; Chicago Title & Trust Co. v. Federal Trust & Sav. Bank (D. C. 1911) 192 Fed. 967; In re Wright-Dana Hardware Co. (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 636; Tomlinson v. Bank of Lexington (1906) 145 Fed. 824, 76 C. C. A. 400, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 632; In re George M. Hill Co. (1904) 130 Fed. 315, 64 C. C. A. 561, 66 L. R. A. 68, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 221; In re Scherzer (D. C. 1904) 130 Fed. 631, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 451; Robinson v. Wisconsin, M. & F. Ins. Co. Bank (C. C. 1879) 18 N. B. R. 243, Fed. Cas. No. 11,969; Habegger v. First Nat. Bank (1905) 94 Minn. 445, 103 N. W. 216, 110 Am. St. Rep. 379; Cox v. First Nat. Bank (1910) 126 La. 88, 52 South. 227; Booth v. Prete (1904) 81 Conn. 636, 71 Atl. 938, 20 L. R. A. (N. S.) 863, 15 Ann. Cas. 306; West v. Bank of Lahoma (1906) 16 Okl. 328, 85 Pac. 469; American Bank & Trust Co. v. Coppard (C. C. A. 1915) 227 Fed. 597; In re Radley Steel Const. Co. (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 462; Parker v. First Nat. Bank (Vt. 1915) 94 Atl. 1. CONTRA, In re Kellar (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 348, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 621. And see Evans v. National Broadway Bank (1905) 48 Misc. Rep. 248, 96 N. Y. Supp. 789; In re Starkweather & Albert (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 797, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 743.

This rule does not apply if the bank knew or had reasonable cause to believe that a preference was intended to be given. Ernst v. Mechanics' & Metals Nat. Bank (C. C. A. 1912) 201 Fed. 664, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 289; Ridge Ave. Bank v. Studheim (1906) 145 Fed. 798, 76 C. C. A. 362, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 863; In re Warner (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 414, Fed. Cas. No. 17,177; Knoll v. Commercial Trust Co. (1915) 249 Pa. 197, 94 Atl. 750. That a debtor, while insolvent, paid unmatured notes to a bank in full, i that he might stand well with and be able to borrow from again went into business, he cient to show an intent to pr bank. Batchelder v. Home Na of Milford (1914) 105 N. E. 1 Mass. 420. Payment by a ban notes held by a bank on which indorser, a few days before th ruptcy and before their maturi check on his deposit in such ba not valid as a set-off but to tute a voidable preference un section. Heyman v. Third Na of Jersey City (D. C. 1914) 2
685. The rule allowing a s such cases does not apply if it that there was an intent on the the bank to accumulate funds bankrupt in its possession for ultimate security, or that th any restriction imposed by it bankrupt's withdrawal of such or an appropriation of such f the bank towards the paymen claim. In re Percy Ford Co.
1911) 199 Fed. 334, 28 Am.
Rep. 919. Where a bank, with edge of the bankrupt's insolve cumulated a fund in its deposit until the same was sufficient t note owing by the bankrupt bank, and two days before ban obtained payment by a check on the account, the transacti stituted a preference, notwith
the set-off authorized by § 96
In re National Lumber Co. (19
Fed. 928, 129 C. C. A. 448. T does not apply if the deposit w for a special purpose and there not create the relation of deb creditor, but that of bailor and Continental & Commercial T
Sav. Bank v. Chicago Title &
Co. (C. C. A. 1912) 199 Fe
But see this case on appeal (19
U. S. 435, 33 Sup. Ct. 829, 57
1268, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 624
the claim was assigned with kn of insolvency and for the expre pose of being used as a set-of pected bankruptcy proceedings.
Shults (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed.
Am. Bankr. Rep. 84. And so, bank, to which the bankrupt wa ly indebted on the day the la came insolvent, closed its acco credited the balance, including a just made, on the bankrupt's in ness to it, such deposit amount payment pro tanto of the loan, application an unlawful pre Ernst v. Mechanics' & Meta Bank (D. C. 1911) 200 Fed. 29 where a depositor's debt to th exceeds the amount standing credit, and he settles by giv bank a check for the amount credit balance and cash for the der of the debt, the payment will be a fraudulent preference, the giving of the check may not. Hough v. First Nat. Bank (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 6,721.

On the same principle it is held that a bank which receives from a clearing house association the proceeds of checks presented for clearing by a member shortly before suspending payment, cannot escape liability to account to the estate in bankruptcy of the defaulting member, where the clearing house, in revising the day's clearings because of such suspension, eliminated and returned the checks which had been debited against the defaulting member, on the theory that, under the doctrine of rescission and following of trust funds, the bank had the right to appropriate any property of the defaulting member and apply it to the reduction of an advance of currency made on that day, especially where such currency was paid out by such defaulting member over its counter to its customers; nor is the transaction any the less a preference because the clearing house, under its rules, might have called on its other members to pay pro rata the amount of the checks drawn upon the defaulting member, and might have treated the credits in favor of the defaulting member as belonging proportionally to the contributing members, since, even under these rules, a check which was the result of the clearings of the previous day would not be entitled to participation. Rector v. City Deposit Bank Co. (1906) 200 U. S. 405, 26 Sup. Ct. 289, 50 L. Ed. 527, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 336.

A bank which credits to the deposit account of certain stock brokers the amount of a clearance loan to be used to clear securities and to be repaid later in the day, and which does not require a separate account to be kept of money received from deliveries of the stock so released, obtains a preference voidable on the subsequent bankruptcy of the brokers, where after their suspension it receives securities to make good the brokers' obligation to the bank. National City Bank of New York v. Hotchkiss (1913) 34 Sup. Ct. 20, 231 U. S. 50, 58 L. Ed. 115, affirming decree Ernst v. Mechanics' & Metals Nat. Bank of City of New York (1912) 201 Fed. 664, 120 C. C. A. 92.

20. Partial payments on running accounts.—The provisions of the bankruptcy act relating to preferences are not so construed as to require a creditor to surrender partial payments received by him on account in the usual course of business where the transactions covered by the account between the parties, taken together, result in increasing the net indebtedness to the creditor and correspondingly increasing the bankrupt's estate. In re Dickson (1901) 111 Fed. 726, 49 C. C. A. 574, 55 L. R. A. 349, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 186; In re Sagor (1903) 121 Fed. 658, 57 C. C. A. 412, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 361; Kimball v. E. A. Rosenham Co. (1902) 114 Fed. 85, 52 C. C. A. 33, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 718; C. S. Morey Mercantile Co. v. Schiffer (1902) 114 Fed. 447, 52 C. C. A. 249, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 670. Compare In re Arndt (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 234, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 773.

Payments made on an open account, though within four months of the debtor's adjudication in bankruptcy, which are received in good faith and without the creditor having knowledge of the debtor's insolvency, and which are less in amount than the credit sales made by such creditor to the debtor during that period, do not constitute a preference within the meaning of the bankruptcy law. Jaquith v. Alden (1903) 189 U. S. 78, 23 Sup. Ct. 649, 47 L. Ed. 717, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 773; Yaple v. Dahl-Millikan Grocery Co. (1904) 193 U. S. 526, 24 Sup. Ct. 552, 48 L. Ed. 776, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 596; Jaquith v. Alden (1902) 118 Fed. 270, 55 C. C. A. 364, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 165.

A stockbroker, four months before his adjudication in bankruptcy, was indebted to a customer to the extent of $1,550, and afterwards he was employed to purchase and carry stocks on a margin, receiving considerable sums of money from the customer, and paying him considerable, but less, sums as profits on his operations. At the date of the adjudication, the bankrupt owed the customer $6,500. It was held that no injustice would be done in this case by treating the parties simply as debtor and creditor, and as the effect of the whole series of transactions was to increase the net indebtedness to the customer, and presumably to increase the bankrupt's estate, the customer was not in the position of one who had received a voidable preference. In re Topliff (D. C. 1902) 114 Fed. 323, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 141. Compare In re Gaylord (D. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 131, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 577.

Where a bankrupt corporation, while insolvent, made payments on notes indorsed for its accommodation by the mother of its secretary and treasurer, the effect of which was to relieve her from liability as indorser, they constituted preferences recoverable by the bankrupt's trustee. Platt v. Ives (1913) 86 A. 579, 86 Conn. 690.

21. Time of giving preference.—A preference given to a creditor, whether in the form of a payment, transfer of property, or security, is not contrary to the bankruptcy law unless given within four months before the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, or after the filing of the petition and before the adjudication. If it antedates that period, it is not impeachable in the subsequent bankruptcy of the debtor, nor can the creditor be required to surrender it. Sturdivant Bank v. Schade (C. C. A. 1912) 195 Fed. 188, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 763; Jackson v. Sedgwick (1911) 189 Fed. 508, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 836; In re Arden (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 475, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 684; In re Farrell (1910) 176 Fed. 505, 100 C. C. A. 63, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 826; Wood v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (D. C. 1905) 143 Fed. 424, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 21; In re Kindt (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 107, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 148; In re Terrill (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 778, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 145; In re Wise (D. C. 1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 151; Maurer v. Frantz, 4 N. B. R. 431; Ashby v. Steere (C. C. 1846) Fed. Cas. No. 576; Pratt v. Christie (1904) 95 App. Div. 282, 88 N. Y. Supp. 585; Joseph v. Raff (1903) 82 App. Div. 47, 81 N. Y. Supp. 546; Brown v. City Nat. Bank (1911) 72 Misc. Rep. 201, 131 N. Y. Supp. 92; McKay v. Weager (1911) 134 N. Y. Supp. 66; Hurlbutt v. Brown (1903) 72 N. H. 235, 55 Atl. 1046; Aretz v. Kloos (1903) 89 Minn. 432, 95 N. W. 216, 769; Hawes v. Bank of Elberton (1905) 124 Ga. 567, 52 S. E. 922; Beatty v. Dudley (1882) 80 Ky. 381. The bankruptcy act does not avoid a lien for labor preserved and enforced by legal proceedings, where it attached more than eight months before proceedings in bankruptcy. Tube City Min. & Mill. Co. v. Otterson (1915) 146 P. 203. Where a transfer by a bankrupt more than four months before bankruptcy was kept secret until within that period, it was subject to be declared preferential. Gill v. Ely-Norris Safe Co. (1913) 156 S. W. 811, 170 Mo. App. 478.

A preference given to a creditor by means of a note or bond with warrant of attorney to confess judgment, is given, not when the note and warrant are executed and delivered, but when the warrant is executed by the entry of a judgment thereon and the levy of an execution on the debtor's property. Hence if judgment is entered on such a warrant within four months before bankruptcy, under circumstances making it fraudulent or preferential, it is not saved by the fact that the warrant may have been given any length of time before. In re Moyer (D. C. 1899) 93 Fed. 188, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 577; Hood v. Karper (C. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 358, Fed. Cas. No. 6,664; Golson v. Niehoff (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 56, Fed. Cas. No. 5,524; In re Lord (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 318, Fed. Cas. No. 8,503; Ford v. Keys (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 4,933. CONTRA, Balfour v. Wheeler (C. C. 1884) 18 Fed. 893; Field v. Baker (C. C. 1875) 11 N. B. R. 415, Fed. Cas. No. 4,762; Shimer v. Huber (C. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 414, Fed. Cas. No. 12,787; Longergan v. Fenlon (C. C. 1866) No. 8,475.

Payment within four mor fund created more than four n fore the bankruptcy of contr payment of claims against c by contractor's sureties an company owing the contractor an unlawful preference. Root v. Johnson (1914) 219 Fed. C. C. A. 139.

A garnishment lien cannot to the lien of execution iss judgment against defendant, upon the indebtedness owing nishee, so as to make out month period. Marsh v. Wil (1914) 144 N. W. 959, 124 Mi

A mortgage, pledge, or bill chattels takes effect from the given, rather than from the t the mortgagee or pledgee take sion of the goods. Hence i curity was valid when given as between the parties), and more than four months befor stitution of bankruptcy pr against the mortgagor or pledg not be assailed as a preferenc because the act of the secured in taking possession occurred wi period, but such act will be c as relating back to the inceptio lien. Thompson v. Fairbank 196 U. S. 516, 25 Sup. Ct. 3 Ed. 577, 13 Am. Bankr. R Humphrey v. Tatman (1905) 1 91, 25 Sup. Ct. 567, 49 L. Ed Am. Bankr. Rep. 74; In re Mantel & Tile Co. (D. C. 1 Fed. 275, 29 Am. Bankr. R First Nat. Bank v. Lanz (C 1913) 202 Fed. 117, 29 Am Rep. 247; Fisher v. Zollinge 149 Fed. 54, 79 C. C. A. 76; I tional Valve Co. (D. C. 1905) 679, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 524 Rogers & Woodward (D. C. 1 Fed. 560, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep re Automobile Livery Service C. 1910) 176 Fed. 792, 23 Am Rep. 799; Thompson v. F (1903) 75 Vt. 361, 56 Atl. 11, St. Rep. 899; Woods v. Klei 223 Pa. 256, 72 Atl. 523; C Zehner (1905) 212 Pa. 188, 61 Farnham v. Friedmeyer (1903) App. 54. But see In re Ball 1903) 123 Fed. 164, 10 Am. Rep. 564; Landis v. McDonald 88 Mo. App. 335; In re Klinga C. 1900) 101 Fed. 691, 4 Am. Rep. 254. The effect of taki session of personal property wit months of bankruptcy by a mo according to the terms of th gage made prior to such four period, is to be determined by t law. Coggan v. Ward (1913) 1 336, 215 Mass. 13.

An agreement to pledge co as security, or to assign a claim a third person, a particular f the like, may constitute an equitable assignment thereof, and if so, will take effect, so far as regards this provision of the bankruptcy law, from the date of the agreement and not from the time of the actual delivery or formal pledge of the subject-matter. McDonald v. Daskam (1902) 116 Fed. 276, 63 C. C. A. 554, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 543; Godwin v. Murchison Nat. Bank (1907) 145 N. C. 320, 59 S. E. 154, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 935. Where complainant had an equitable lien on lumber manufactured and shipped to it by the bankrupt as late as the same month in which the bankruptcy intervened, complainant's right to the lumber having accrued under a contract of sale executed more than a year previous, such shipments did not constitute a preference. Gage Lumber Co. v. McEldowney (1913) 207 Fed. 255, 124 C. C. A. 641, reversing decree In re Clairfield Lumber Co. (D. C. 1911) 194 Fed. 181.

To constitute an equitable assignment within this rule there must be something more than a mere promise to assign upon a future contingency, something, in fact, sufficient to bind the parties in a court of chancery and to justify the application of the rule that equity will regard that as done which ought to have been done. Johnston v. Huff, Andrews & Moyler Co. (1904) 133 Fed. 704, 66 C. C. A. 534, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 287; Long v. Farmers' State Bank (1906) 147 Fed. 360, 77 C. C. A. 538, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 103. An agreement to give a mortgage, if definite and certain and relating to specific property, will be held in equity as equivalent to an actual mortgage, and may be sustained in the bankruptcy proceedings though actually executed within the four months period. Murray v. Beal (1901) 23 Utah, 548, 65 Pac. 726. CONTRA, In re Herman (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 594. So, also, where the mortgage first offered to the creditor was rejected by him because considered defective in form, a subsequent mortgage accepted and delivered will relate back to the former. In re Montgomery (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 321, Fed. Cas. No. 9,732. And where there was a valid transfer of goods by the bankrupt to a creditor in payment of the debt, sufficient to pass title, more than four months before the bankruptcy, the rights of the creditor will not be affected by the fact that the debtor, within the four months, entertaining a doubt as to the validity of the transaction, attempted to perfect it by filing a claim of exemption with reference to the goods transferred and then executing a bill of sale to the creditor. In re Ratliffe (D. C. 1910) 177 Fed. 587.

Where involuntary petition was filed by parties to assignment for benefit of creditors, and intervening petition subsequently filed by creditors not parties to the assignment, payments more than four months before the filing of the intervening petition, though within four months before the first petition, held not preferential; the first petition being void. Despres v. Galbraith (1914) 213 Fed. 190, 129 C. C. A. 534.

Property conveyed by wife of an insolvent to its beneficial owner, held not to be impressed with trust for benefit of insolvent's creditors under the national Bankruptcy Act, where he had worked a preference by putting his funds into such property more than four months before his adjudication as a bankrupt. Arbury v. De Niord (1915) 152 N. Y. S. 763.

A lien on part of the raw material used in a factory held not to support an assignment to the holder of all of the accounts for finished product sold, made within four months prior to bankruptcy of the manufacturer. Merchants' Nat. Bank of Baltimore v. Corr (1915) 221 Fed. 419, 137 C. C. A. 217.

A transfer of property by a corporation as security for a past indebtedness, within four months prior to its bankruptcy, when it was insolvent and the creditor had reason to believe it insolvent, is voidable as a preference, even though such transfer was made in ratification of an unauthorized transfer made by an officer of the corporation before the four months period. In re W. W. Mills Co. (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 42, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 501; In re Kansas City Stone & Marble Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1873) 9 N. B. R. 76, Fed. Cas. No. 7,610. All preferences made by the officers and directors of an insolvent corporation within four months of adjudication in bankruptcy held voidable, and recoverable by the trustee in bankruptcy after adjudication. Arnold v. Knapp (W. Va. 1915) 84 S. E. 895.

Where the bankrupt gave his note to a creditor, which he afterwards paid, the preference, if any, is in the payment and not in the giving of the note, and must be considered as having been given at the date of such payment. In re Wolf & Levy (D. C. 1903) 122 Fed. 127, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 153. But where a note of the bankrupt, payable at a bank, was presented to the bank for payment on the day of its maturity, and was duly certified, and subsequently paid by the bank, the time of certification is to be taken as the time of payment, in determining whether the payment was preferential. In re Frazin (C. C. A. 1912) 201 Fed. 86, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 214. A creditor of a bankrupt is not liable to his estate as for conversion, or money had and received, where, after bankruptcy, he accepted certified checks theretofore tendered and delivered by bankrupt; the matter having meantime been under consideration. Early v. Electro Bleaching Gas Co. (1915) 153 N. Y. S. 698, 90 Misc. Rep. 613. But the fact that accounts assigned by the bankrupt to a creditor as collateral security more than four months before the bankruptcy are collected within the four months period, does not entitle the trustee to recover such collections as preferences. Lowell v. International Trust Co. (1907) 158 Fed. 781, 86 C. C. A. 137, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 853; In re Bird (D. C. 1910) 180 Fed. 229, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 24.

A pledge of corporate stock by an insolvent debtor more than four months prior to his bankruptcy to secure an antecedent debt does not constitute a preference, although the stock is sold by the creditor within the four-months period. First Nat. Bank v. Lanz (1913) 202 Fed. 117, 120 C. C. A. 271. And where a debtor makes an absolute sale of property, under an agreement that the purchase money shall be applied by the vendee in paying the claims of certain creditors of the seller, the time of giving a preference, if any, is the time when the buyer takes possession of the property, and not the time when he pays those creditors. Fitch v. Bank of Grand Rapids (1911) 146 Wis. 439, 131 N. W. 1095.

A secret advantage given by a debtor to one creditor in a composition, made several years prior to the debtor's bankruptcy, cannot be reached and avoided as a preference under the present bankruptcy statute. Batchelder & Lincoln Co. v. Whitmore (1903) 122 Fed. 355, 58 C. C. A. 517, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 641. But compare In re Chaplin (D. C. 1902) 115 Fed. 162, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 121.

22. —— Time of filing petition.—The four months period within which preferences given by a bankrupt may be declared void is to be determined by computing four calendar months backward from the date of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, and not by computing the time by days. Kelly v. Skaggs (1900) 90 Ill. App. 543. And either the day on which the transfer or payment was made, or the day on which the petition was filed, must be excluded. Dutcher v. Wright (1876) 94 U. S. 553, 24 L. Ed. 130; Kelly v. Skaggs (1900) 90 Ill. App. 543; Whitley Grocery Co. v. Roach (1902) 115 Ga. 918, 42 S. E. 282.

Amendments to a petition in involuntary bankruptcy filed by a single creditor or by an insufficient number of creditors, whereby other creditors join in the petition and set out their claims, relate back to the original filing of the petition, and do not advance the date of its filing, with reference to reckoning the prohibited period for preferences, though such joinder of creditors was necessary to make it sufficient. First State Bank v. Haswell (1909) 174 Fed. 209, 98 C. C. A. 217, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 330; Manning v. Evans (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 106, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 217. See Witters v. Sowles (C. C. 1887) 32 Fed. 758.

A transfer of property made on the same day on which the petition in bankruptcy is filed will constitute an unlawful preference, if the other essentials of a preference are pres

ler v. Faickney (1906) 42
App. 483, 94 S. W. 103; Mor
frey (C. C. 1844) Fed. Cas. N

23. —— Time of recording lien.—The provision of Bankr § 3b (ante, § 9587), which dec if the act of bankruptcy is of a preference, the time sha pire until four months afte cording or registering there law such recording or registe quired or permitted, or, if from the date when the takes notorious, exclusive, o ous possession of the proper the petitioning creditors hav actual notice of such transf signment" has reference mer time of filing a petition in b and does not in any way lim trol the provisions of the pr tion. Little v. Holley-Broo ware Co. (1904) 133 Fed. 874
A. 46, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep.
see Murphy v. W. T. Murp (1904) 126 Iowa, 57, 101 N.
Asbury Park Building & Loa
Shepherd (N. J. Eq. 1901) 5

Where an alleged preferent fer by a bankrupt was exec than four months before b but was recorded as require St. Ohio 1908, § 4134, withir months' period, it was subjec tion by the bankrupt's trustee standing the four months' pro posed by this section. Carey hue (1913) 209 Fed. 328, 126 254.

The phrase "required by la recorded refers to the charac instrument of transfer, rathe the creditors or others who m not be affected by an unreco veyance. First Nat. Bank v
(1905) 142 Fed. 33, 73 C. C
15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 662; In Bunch Commission Co. (D.
225 Fed. 243. A state stat requires a conveyance or tr be recorded in order to be against any class or classes c is a law by which such rec
"required." Dulany v. Mor 39 App. D. C. 523; Loeser
ings Deposit Bank & Trust C
148 Fed. 975, 78 C. C. A. 59
Bankr. Rep. 628; Bowler v.
Bank (1907) 21 S. D. 449, 1
618, 130 Am. St. Rep. 725. A "require" a chattel mortgage corded and although it does an unrecorded mortgage void ly and under all circumstanc
Nat. Bank v. Connett (1905)
33, 73 C. C. A. 219, 15 Am
Rep. 662.

Where the local law is such ure to file or record a chattel or other such instrument doe fect its validity as between th or as against general credi only as against creditors hav or subsequent purchasers c

brancers in good faith, the mortgage is not one which is "required" to be recorded or filed. In re East End Mantel & Tile Co. (D. C. 1913) 202 Fed. 275; In re Boyd (1914) 213 Fed. 774, 130 C. C. A. 288; Deupree v. Watson (C. C. A. 1914) 216 Fed. 483; In re Roberts (D. C. 1915) 227 Fed. 177; In re Jacobson & Perrill (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 812, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 603; Rogers v. Paige (1905) 140 Fed. 596, 72 C. C. A. 164, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 502; Meyer Bros. Drug Co. v. Pipkin Drug Co. (1905) 136 Fed. 396, 69 C. C. A. 240, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 477; In re Hunt (D. C. 1905) 139 Fed. 283; In re Chadwick (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 674, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 528; Pew v. Price (Mo. 1913) 158 S. W. 338. Compare Loeser v. Savings Deposit Bank & Trust Co. (1906) 148 Fed. 975, 78 C. C. A. 597, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 628. And see First Nat. Bank v. Connett (1905) 142 Fed. 33, 73 C. C. A. 219, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 662; In re Montague (D. C. 1905) 143 Fed. 428, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 18.

This provision of the statute applies ordinarily to such instruments as deeds of conveyance. Ragan v. Donovan (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 138, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 311; In re Cahill (D. C. 1912) 208 Fed. 193, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 794. And to deeds of trust in the nature of mortgages. Dulany v. Morse (1913) 39 App. D. C. 523; Harris v. Exchange Nat. Bank (C. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 510, Fed. Cas. No. 6,119. A deed, given as security for a loan, executed more than four months previously, but withheld from record until the day preceding the filing of a petition in bankruptcy against the grantor, whose creditors had no notice of its existence, will be set aside as a voidable preference, irrespective of the sufficiency of the consideration or of the good faith of the parties, where the local statute makes a deed or mortgage effective as against creditors without notice only from the time of recording it. Dulany v. Morse (1913) 39 App. D. C. 523. The provision of the statute applies also to chattel mortgages. In re Mission Fixture & Mantel Co. (D. C. 1910) 180 Fed. 263, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 873; First Nat. Bank v. Johnson (1903) 68 Neb. 641, 94 N. W. 837, 4 Ann. Cas. 485.

Where a chattel mortgage by the bankrupt, securing $4,500, was recorded September 22, 1911, but no annual sworn statement was made or recorded as required by the state law, and the mortgagee took possession April 25, 1913, the four-month period began to run from the latter date. Williams v. German-American Trust Co. (C. C. A. 1915) 219 Fed. 507. The statute applies to bills of sale of chattels. Benner v. Scandinavian American Bank (Wash. 1913) 131 Pac. 1149; In re Reynolds (D. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 295, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 666. But see Coggan v. Ward (1913) 215 Mass. 13, 102 N. E. 336. But it does not apply to the lien given by an oral chattel mortgage. Mower v. McCarthy (1906) 79 Vt. 142, 64 Atl. 578, 7 L. R. A. (N. S.) 418, 118 Am. St. Rep. 942. Nor to a conveyance of real estate absolute on its face but intended as a security, where the local law prohibits such a deed from being reduced to a mortgage except by a defeasance in writing, signed, sealed, and delivered by the grantor at the same time and recorded within sixty days. English v. Ross (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 630, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 370. And the fact that a contract of conditional sale was not recorded until after the insolvency of the purchaser, or until within four months prior to his bankruptcy, does not constitute it a preferential transfer, nor deprive the seller of the right to reclaim the property if unpaid for. Bailey v. Baker Ice Mach. Co. (1915) 36 Sup. Ct. 50; In re Farmers' Co-operative Co. (D. C. 1913) 202 Fed. 1005; Big Four Implement Co. v. Wright (C. C. A. 1913) 207 Fed. 535.

Rev. Laws Minn. 1905, § 3502, providing for assignment of debts, does not require a "recording" or "registering," within this section, cls. "a," "b," as amended by Act Feb. 5, 1903, and Act June 25, 1910, so that a written assignment of a claim, made more than four months prior to bankruptcy, is not void as a preference, though never filed. Telford v. Henrickson (1913) 139 N. W. 941, 120 Minn. 427.

Where a contract providing for the execution of a trust deed to secure bonds of a corporation given for advances is not recorded, a trust deed executed pursuant to such contract within four months prior to the institution of bankruptcy proceedings cannot take effect by relation as of the date of the contract in order to sustain the same as against unsecured creditors. Morgan v. First Nat. Bank (1906) 145 Fed. 466, 76 C. C. A. 236, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 639.

Mortgages given and promised more than four months before bankruptcy for a present consideration held voidable preferences, where they were not acknowledged until within the four months. In re Caslon Press (C. C. A. 1915) 229 Fed. 133. Deeds placed in the possession of the grantee with the understanding that they are to be returned on the payment of the grantor's indebtedness to the grantee were not complete until recorded, at which time they were to be considered as having been executed for the purpose of determining whether they operated as a preference. In re Cahill (D. C. 1912) 208 Fed. 193.

The only effect of the provision concerning the recording or registering of a transfer is to carry forward the four months period within which a recordable transfer, which was in fact preferential, might be attacked as voidable, leaving the question whether or not the transfer constituted a voidable preference to be determined according to the conditions and intentions of the parties at the date when it was actually made; and a transfer which was then made for a present consideration, and was therefore not preferential, does not become so because of delay in recording it; in other words, delay in placing the instrument on the record does not warrant the court in treating it as if made as security for an antecedent debt. Martin v. Commercial Nat. Bank (C. C. A. 1916) 228 Fed. 651; In re Watson (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 962, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 871; Debus v. Yates (D. C. 1910) 193 Fed. 427, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 823; In re Jackson Brick & Tile Co. (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 636, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 915; In re Sturtevant (1911) 188 Fed. 196, 110 C. C. A. 68, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 574; Mattley v. Giesler (1911) 187 Fed. 970, 110 C. C. A. 90, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 116; In re Sayed (D. C. 1910) 185 Fed. 962, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 444; Seager v. Lamm (1905) 95 Minn. 325, 104 N. W. 1; Bradley, Clark & Co. v. Benson (1904) 93 Minn. 91, 100 N. W. 670; Farnham v. Friedmeyer (1903) 109 Ill. App. 54; Claridge v. Evans (1908) 137 Wis. 218, 118 N. W. 198, 803, 25 L. R. A. (N. S.) 144.

Under this section, as amended in 1910, unless transfer within four months before bankruptcy is required to be recorded, invalidating circumstances must exist at time of transfer. Martin v. Commercial Nat. Bank of Macon, Ga. (C. C. A. 1916) 228 Fed. 651. The rule stated above is not affected by the amendment of 1910, changing the wording of this section. In re Watson (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 962, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 871. Whether a mortgage executed by a bankrupt to his creditor after June 25, 1910, was a voidable preferential transfer was to be determined by Bankr. Act, § 60b, as amended by Act June 25, 1910. Ogden v. Reddish (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 977.

24. Insolvency of debtor.—In order that a judgment rendered against a debtor, or a transfer of property or payment of money made by him, should operate as a voidable preference, it is essential that he should have been insolvent, for if solvent he has the right to give voluntary satisfaction to any one or more of his creditors, leaving the others to their legal remedies. In re Kassel (C. C. A. 1912) 195 Fed. 492, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 233; Coleman v. Decatur Egg Case Co. (1911) 186 Fed. 136, 108 C. C. A. 248, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 248; In re Sayed (D. C. 1910) 185 Fed. 962, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 444; In re W. W. Mills Co. (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 42, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 501; In re Wittenberg Veneer & Panel Co. (D. C. 1901) 108 Fed. 593, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 271; In re Oregon Bulletin Printing & Publishing Co. (D. C.) 13 N. B. R. 503, Fed. Cas. No. Empire State Trust Co. v. Will Fisher Co. (1904) 67 N. J. Eq. Atl. 502; Blyth & Fargo Co. v. (1908) 17 Wyo. 180, 97 Pa To entitle a trustee in bankru recover money collected on a ju as creating a preference, he m lege and prove that the bankru insolvent when the judgment v tained. McNeel v. Folk (W. Va 83 S. E. 192. This section d invalidate the lien of a judgm tered within four months prior filing of a petition in ban against the judgment defendant, subsequently adjudicated a ba where he was not insolvent wl judgment was entered. Keyston ing Co. v. Schermer (1913) 88 241 Pa. 361.

But the amendatory act of 1 far changes this rule that, in t of a transfer required by law to corded, it is sufficient if the de insolvent either at the time of the transfer or at the time it corded. McElvain v. Hardesty 169 Fed. 31, 94 C. C. A. 399, Bankr. Rep. 320.

It is not necessary in any ca the insolvent condition of the de the time of making the transfer be perpetuated by the existence same debts as compared with th assets, up to the time the truste action to avoid the conveyance. tinuous insolvency is sufficient, none of the debts existing at t of the transfer may remain, if n have been contracted in their O'Neill v. Kilduff (1908) 81 Co 70 Atl. 640.

In the case of a partnership, be shown that both the firm individual partners are insolv were insolvent at the time, that the aggregate of the part and individual assets is not suffi pay the debts. Levor v. Seiter 34 Misc. Rep. 382, 69 N. Y. Sup Rodolf v. First Nat. Bank (19 Okl. 631, 121 Pac. 629, 41 L. R. S.) 204.

An assignment made by a corp to secure a pre-existing indeb when the assignor is insolvent contemplation of insolvency is v der the United States bankrup John Agnew Co. v. Board of Ed of City of Paterson (1914) 89 A decree affirmed (Err. & App. 1 A. 1135.

It is not enough to show t debtor was financially embarras hard pressed by his creditors condition may exist and yet he solvent. In re Farmers' Sup (D. C. 1909) 170 Fed. 502, Bankr. Rep. 460.

"Insolvency" must here be stood in the sense given to it bankruptcy act itself, that is, son shall be deemed insolven the aggregate of his property, exclusive of any property which he may have conveyed, transferred, concealed, or removed, or permitted to be concealed or removed, with intent to defraud, hinder or delay his creditors, shall not, at a fair valuation, be sufficient in amount to pay his debts." Ogden v. Reddish (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 977, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 531; Empire State Trust Co. v. William F. Fisher Co. (1904) 67 N. J. Eq. 88, 57 Atl. 502; Des Moines Sav. Bank v. Morgan Jewelry Co. (1904) 123 Iowa, 432, 99 N. W. 121; Summerville v. Stockton Milling Co. (1904) 142 Cal. 529, 76 Pac. 243; In re Chappell (D. C. 1901) 113 Fed. 545, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 608; Huttig Mfg. Co. v. Edwards (1908) 160 Fed. 619, 87 C. C. A. 521, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 349; Paper v. Stern (1912) 198 Fed. 642, 117 C. C. A. 346, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 592. Insolvency necessary to render a payment by a debtor a preference is not mere inability of the debtor to pay his debts in the usual course of business, but his inability to pay his debts out of the proceeds of his property at a fair valuation. Newman v. Tootle-Campbell Dry Goods Co. (Mo. App. 1913) 160 S. W. 825.

In making this estimate and comparison, all the property of the debtor which has value must be included, not omitting property exempt under the law of the state, and including property transferred in payment of or as security for a just debt, irrespective of whether or not it constitutes a preference, but not property transferred in fraud of creditors. Utah Ass'n of Credit Men v. Boyle Furniture Co. (1911) 39 Utah, 518, 117 Pac. 800. Property subject to a mortgage must be included if the mortgage is not shown to be fraudulent as against creditors. Posey v. McManis (1902) 28 Tex. Civ. App. 452, 67 S. W. 792. And accounts against third persons in favor of the debtor are to be included if they are not shown in any way to be uncollectible. Blyth & Fargo Co. v. Kastor (1908) 17 Wyo. 180, 97 Pac. 921. Where the principal asset consists of a plant or property which loses value if not kept in continuous operation—such as a hotel, a periodical publication, and some kinds of manufacturing establishments—the value assigned to it in making the estimate must be what it is worth as a going concern and not what it is worth as dead property after bankruptcy has intervened. In re Klein (C. C. A. 1912) 197 Fed. 241; J. W. Butler Paper Co. v. Goembel (1905) 143 Fed. 295, 74 C. C. A. 433, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 26; Chicago Title & Trust Co. v. John A. Roebling's Sons Co. (C. C. 1901) 107 Fed. 71, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 368. On the other hand, in adding up the bankrupt's debts, it is proper to include his liability as guarantor of the debt of a third person, the latter being insolvent, though the guaranty was oral and therefore within the statute of frauds. Huttig Mfg. Co. v. Edwards (1908) 160 Fed. 619, 87 C. C. A. 521, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 349.

The trustee in bankruptcy, assailing a judgment or transfer as preferential, must assume the burden of showing the insolvency of the debtor by satisfactory and sufficient evidence; in the absence of this, the transaction cannot be disturbed. Cleage v. Laidley (1906) 149 Fed. 346, 79 C. C. A. 284, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 598; In re Clifford (D. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 475, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 281; In re Alexander (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 464, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 376; Evans v. National Broadway Bank (1905) 48 Misc. Rep. 248, 96 N. Y. Supp. 789; Kimball v. Dresser (1904) 98 Me. 519, 57 Atl. 787; Deland v. Miller & Chaney Bank (1903) 119 Iowa, 368, 93 N. W. 304; Capital Nat. Bank v. Wilkerson (1905) 36 Ind. App. 467, 75 N. E. 837. The existence of unsatisfied judgments against the debtor does not necessarily prove his insolvency. Summerville v. Stockton Milling Co. (1904) 142 Cal. 529, 76 Pac. 243; Levor v. Seiter (1901) 34 Misc. Rep. 382, 69 N. Y. Supp. 987. But the fact that his paper has gone to protest may do so, in connection with other circumstances. In re Louis (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 8,527. Evidence showing that the debtor was not in possession of ready money with which to meet a particular debt, of which he obtained a renewal, falls short of what is required. In re Chappell (D. C. 1901) 113 Fed. 545, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 608. The fact that a corporation engaged in the performance of a contract which required a considerable expenditure before it was entitled to any payments, arranged with a bank for making overdrafts, is no evidence that it was insolvent. McDonald v. Clearwater Shortline Ry. Co. (C. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 1007, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 182.

25. Intention of debtor.—Prior to the amendment of 1910, it was held that there could be no voidable preference under the statute unless there was an actual intention, not merely an assumed or attributed intention, on the part of the debtor to give a preference to the creditor receiving it or to be benefited by it. Debus v. Yates (D. C. 1910) 193 Fed. 427, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 823; Kimmerle v. Farr (C. C. A. 1911) 189 Fed. 295, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 818; Germania Savings Bank & Trust Co. v. Loeb (C. C. A. 1911) 188 Fed. 285, 110 C. C. A. 263, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 238; In re Houghton Web Co. (D. C. 1910) 185 Fed. 213, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 202; In re Sayed (D. C. 1910) 185 Fed. 962, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 444; In re Salvator Brewing Co. (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 910, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 536; Tumlin v. Bryan (C. C. A. 1908) 165 Fed. 166, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 319; In re First Nat.

Bank (1907) 155 Fed. 100, 84 C. C. A. 16, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 766; In re Armstrong (D. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 202, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 583; Hardy v. Gray (1906) 144 Fed. 922, 75 C. C. A. 562, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 387; McNair v. McIntyre (1902) 113 Fed. 113, 51 C. C. A. 89, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 638; In re Smoke (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 289, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 434; Lynch v. Bronson (1908) 80 Conn. 566, 69 Atl. 538; Bradley, Clark & Co. v. Benson (1904) 93 Minn. 91, 100 N. W. 670; Parker v. Gates (1911) 97 Ark. 621, 135 S. W. 330; Webb's Trustee v. Lynchburg Shoe Co. (1908) 107 Va. 807, 60 S. E. 130; Bacon v. Merchants' Bank of Florence (1906) 146 Ala. 521, 40 South. 413; Harmon v. Feldheim (1902) 131 Mich. 470, 91 N. W. 744; Crooks v. People's Nat. Bank (1901) 34 Misc. Rep. 450, 70 N. Y. Supp. 271; Stern v. Mayer (1906) 113 App. Div. 181, 98 N. Y. Supp. 1028. CONTRA, Hotchkiss v. National City Bank (D. C. 1911) 200 Fed. 287; In re Doyle (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 247, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 102; Alexander v. Redmond (1910) 180 Fed. 92, 103 C. C. A. 446, 24 Bankr. Rep. 620; Parker v. Black (D. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 560, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 202; In re Hanyan (D. C. 1910) 180 Fed. 498, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 72; Gabriel v. Tonner (1902) 138 Cal. 63, 70 Pac. 1021; Schmidt v. Bank of Commerce (1910) 15 N. M. 470, 110 Pac. 613, 33 L. R. A. (N. S.) 558. Also it was held by many of the courts that if the necessary and inevitable result of a transfer was to give a preference to the creditor receiving it, it must be conclusively presumed that the intention of the debtor corresponded with the result, on the general principle that every man must be presumed to have foreseen and intended the necessary consequences of his own acts. First Nat. Bank v. Jones (1874) 21 Wall. 325, 22 L. Ed. 542; Toof v. Martin (1871) 13 Wall. 40, 20 L. Ed. 481; Collett v. Bronx Nat. Bank (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 111, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 454; In re Ball (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 682, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 609; In re Grant (D. C. 1901) 106 Fed. 496, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 837; In re McLam (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 922, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 245; Giddings v. Dodd (C. C. 1871) 4 N. B. R. 657, Fed. Cas. No. 5,405; Graham v. Stark (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 357, Fed. Cas. No. 5,676; Chism v. Citizens' Bank (1900) 77 Miss. 599, 27 South. 637; Benedict v. Deshel (1903) 177 N. Y. 1, 68 N. E. 999; Hume v. Brown Shoe Co. (1911) 33 Okl. 634, 126 Pac. 823; Lazarus v. Eagen (D. C. 1912) 206 Fed. 518, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 287.

The amendatory act of 1910 only requires that the debtor shall be insolvent, that the transfer shall operate as a preference, and that the creditor shall have reasonable cause to believe that the enforcement of the transfer will effect a preference; and since this amendment it is not necessary the existence of the debtor's prefer, or the cause for beli creditor's part that a prefer intended, or that the debtor his insolvency, the test being the creditor had reasonable believe that the bankrupt was solvent, and that, in acceptin taining the transfer, the credi receive a larger percentage of than any other creditor of class. In re Harrison Bros 1912) 202 Fed. 243; In re He C. 1913) 207 Fed. 594; V Mitchell-Woodbury Co. (19 Mass. 514, 102 N. E. 119; H Third Nat. Bank of Jersey Ci 1914) 216 Fed. 685; Covi Brigman (D. C. 1914) 210 Rogers v. American Halibut C 216 Mass. 227, 103 N. E. 689; son v. Baker Grocery Co. (144 Pac. 673; Soule v. First N of Ashton (Idaho, 1914) 140 P

26. Creditor's knowledge or belief.—To constitute a voidabl ence it is strictly essential person receiving it or to be by it, or his agent acting for h transaction, should have r cause to believe that a prefer be effected by the enforcemen judgment, transfer, security, ment, as the case may be. Fa it cannot be recovered from the trustee in bankruptcy, no be required to surrender it, standing that it was given by s ent debtor and within four prior to his bankruptcy, and it may actually result in the creditor's receiving full satisf a larger proportion of his d other creditors receive. Josep Co. v. Provident Life & T (1909) 214 U. S. 292, 29 Sup. 53 L. Ed. 1003; Mayes v. Pa C. A. 1913) 208 Fed. 97; L. A Co. v. Gill (1913) 206 Fed. C. C. A. 170; Stockgrower Bank v. Corker (C. C. A. 1 Fed. 614; In re Edwards (D. 217 Fed., 102; Sheppard-St Co. v. Black (C. C. A. 1914) 643; Reber v. Shulman (1 Fed. 564, 106 C. C. A. 110, Bankr. Rep. 475; Greenhall negie Trust Co. (D. C. 1910) 812, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 30 Peacock (C. C. 1910) 178 Fed Am. Bankr. Rep. 159; Nelson Pub. Co. (D. C. 1910) 178 In re Kullberg (D. C. 1909) 585, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 75 Evans Lumber Co. (D. C. 1 Fed. 643, 23 Am. Bankr. R In re Neill-Pinckney-Maxwell C. 1909) 170 Fed. 481, 22 An Rep. 401; In re Burlage Bro 1909) 169 Fed. 1006, 22 Am Rep. 410; Ohio Valley Ban Mack (1906) 163 Fed. 155, A. 605, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 9

v. Citizens' Trust Co. (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 880, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 39; Coder v. Arts (1907) 152 Fed. 943, 82 C. C. A. 91, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 513; In re Maher (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 503, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 340; McNair v. McIntyre (1902) 113 Fed. 113, 51 C. C. A. 89, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 638; In re Dundas (D. C. 1901) 111 Fed. 500, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 129; In re Blair (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 987, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 220; In re Eggert (D. C. 1900) 98 Fed. 843, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 541; Lindsey v. Lambert B. & L. Ass'n (D. C. 1880) 4 Fed. 48; Peckham v. Cozzens (D. C. 1880) 3 Fed. 794; Alleman v. Kneedler (C. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 671; In re Hoffman (1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 554; Rankin v. Third Nat. Bank (C. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 4, Fed. Cas. No. 11,568; Winsor v. Kendall (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 17,886; In re Black (D. C. 1874) 2 N. B. R. 171, Fed. Cas. No. 1,458; Lee v. Franklin Avenue German Sav. Inst. (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 218, Fed. Cas. No. 8,188; McLean v. Lafayette Bank (C. C. 1846) Fed. Cas. No. 8,888; Nash v. Le Clercq (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 10,021; Levor v. Seiter (1902) 69 App. Div. 33, 74 N. Y. Supp. 499; Capital Nat. Bank v. Wilkerson (1905) 36 Ind App. 467, 75 N. E. 837; Cullinane v. State Bank (1904) 123 Iowa, 340, 98 N. W. 887; Thompson v. First Nat. Bank (1904) 84 Miss. 54, 36 South. 65; Wilson v. Weighle (1905) 69 N. J. Eq. 561, 62 Atl. 458; Galveston Dry Goods Co. v. Frenkel (1905) 39 Tex. Civ. App. 19, 86 S. W. 949; Johnston v. George D. Witt Shoe Co. (1905) 103 Va. 611, 50 S. E. 153; Lampkin v. People's Nat. Bank (1902) 98 Mo. App. 239, 71 S. W. 715; Hawes v. Bank of Elberton (1905) 124 Ga. 567, 52 S. E. 922; Blankenbaker v. Charleston State Bank (1903) 111 Ill. App. 393; North v. Taylor (1901) 61 App. Div. 253, 70 N. Y. Supp. 339; Lewis v. First Nat. Bank (1904) 46 Or. 182, 78 Pac. 990; Townes v. Alexander (1904) 69 S. C. 23, 48 S. E. 214; Gamble v. Elkin (1903) 205 Pa. 226, 54 Atl. 782; Johnson v. Anderson (1903) 70 Neb. 233, 97 N. W. 339; Cummings v. Kansas City Wholesale Grocery Co. (1907) 123 Mo. App. 9, 99 S. W. 470; Herzberg v. Riddle (1911) 171 Ala. 368, 54 South. 635; Blyth & Fargo Co. v. Kastor (1908) 17 Wyo. 180, 97 Pac. 921; Stuart v. Farmers' Bank (1908) 137 Wis. 66, 117 N. W. 820, 16 Ann. Cas. 821; Brooks v. Bank of Beaver City (1910) 82 Kan. 597, 109 Pac. 409; Maxwell v. Davis Trust Co. (1911) 69 W. Va. 276, 71 S. E. 270; Russell's Trustee v. Mayfield Lumber Co. (1914) 158 Ky. 219, 164 S. W. 783; Soule v. First Nat. Bank of Ashton (Idaho, 1914) 140 Pac. 1098; Shuetz v. Walter Boyt Saddlery Co. (Iowa, 1914) 147 N. W. 897; Kentucky Bank & Trust Co. v. Pritchett (Okl. 1914) 143 Pac. 338.

The statute does not require that the preferred creditor should have any actual knowledge on the subject of the debtor's insolvency or the result of the transaction in giving a preference, nor even that he should have any actual belief on that point. What the law requires is "reasonable cause to believe," and if this exists it is enough, without regard to the actual state of the creditor's mind or opinion. Toof v. Martin (1871) 13 Wall. 49, 20 L. Ed. 481; In re The Leader (D. C. 1911) 190 Fed. 624, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 668; In re Hines (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 543, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 495; Sundheim v. Ridge Avenue Bank (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 951, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 132; In re Eggert (C. C. A. 1900) 102 Fed. 735, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 449; Graham v. Stark (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 357, Fed. Cas. No. 5,676; Wilson v. Taylor (1911) 154 N. C. 211, 70 S. E. 286; Utah Ass'n of Credit Men v. Boyle Furniture Co. (1911) 39 Utah, 518, 117 Pac. 800. The intent of a debtor making a transfer, or of the person receiving it, is immaterial if the creditor has reasonable cause to believe that the taking and enforcement thereof would give him a preference. In re Gaylord (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 234. Where a bankrupt in contemplation of insolvency mortgaged his assets to raise funds with which to pay preferred creditors, the mortgagee was entitled to enforce the lien of his mortgage, unless he not only knew of the mortgagor's plan to prefer creditors, but also that he intended to go into bankruptcy and thereby defraud his other creditors. In re Soforenko (D. C. 1913) 210 Fed. 562.

The creditor must have reasonable cause to believe that the debtor is insolvent, as, without this, there is no reason to suppose he is gaining a preference, and without such knowledge or belief the transaction will not be voidable though it actually results in a preference. Brigman v. Covington (1915) 219 Fed. 500, 135 C. C. A. 250; In re Gaylord (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 234; First Nat. Bank v. Orten (Okl. 1914) 142 Pac. 1096; Auffmordt v. Rasin (1880) 102 U. S. 620, 26 L. Ed. 262; In re Greenberger (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 583, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 117; Ogden v. Reddish (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 977, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 531; In re Pfaffinger (D. C. 1906) 154 Fed. 523, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 807; Wright v. Sampter (D. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 196, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 355; In re Oliver (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 784, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 626; In re Eggert (D. C. 1900) 98 Fed. 843, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 541; Stobaugh v. Mills (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 361, Fed. Cas. No. 13,461; Gillenwaters v. Miller (1873) 49 Miss. 150; Pearsall v. Nassau Nat. Bank (1902) 74 App. Div. 89, 77 N. Y. Supp. 11; Des Moines Sav. Bank v. Morgan Jewelry Co. (1904) 123 Iowa, 432, 99 N. W. 121; Wright v. Cotten (1905) 140 N. C. 1, 52 S. E. 141; Evans v. Claridge (1908) 137 Wis. 218, 118 N. W. 198, 803, 25 L. R. A. (N. S.) 144; Shelton v. First Nat. Bank (1912) 31 Okl. 217, 120 Pac. 959. The trustee need not show that the creditor had actual knowledge of the bankrupt's insolvency, but it is sufficient if the circumstances would have led to the conclusion that the bankrupt was insolvent and that the payment would operate as a preference. Rogers v. American Halibut Co. (1913) 216 Mass. 227, 103 N. E. 689. It does not follow that because a creditor knows of the insolvency of a firm, he has any cause to believe in the insolvency of one of the partners, who is his individual debtor. Jacobs v. Van Sickel (C. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 340, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 519. And neither the fact that a debtor's accounts are past due, nor the fact of his being financially embarrassed, is sufficient to impeach the good faith of a creditor in taking security, so as to render it voidable as a preference, where there were circumstances which tended to explain such embarrassment upon grounds other than insolvency. J. W. Butler Paper Co. v. Goembel (1905) 143 Fed. 295, 74 C. C. A. 433, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 26.

If the creditor knows or has reasonable ground to believe that the debtor is insolvent, then it may be inferred without further proof, that he has also reasonable ground to believe that the enforcement of the judgment or transfer which he takes will effect a preference, such being its natural and inevitable result. In re Lynden Mercantile Co. (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 713, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 444; Graham v. Stark (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 357, Fed. Cas. No. 5,676; In re Hauck (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 158, Fed. Cas. No. 6,219; In re Kingsbury (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 317, Fed. Cas. No. 7,816; Johnson v. Cohn (1902) 39 Misc. Rep. 189, 79 N. Y. Supp. 139; Hess v. Theodore Hamm Brewing Co. (1909) 108 Minn. 22, 121 N. W. 232; Hackney v. Raymond Bros. Clarke Co. (1903) 68 Neb. 624, 94 N. W. 822, 99 N. W. 675; In re Rockaway Soda Water Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1915) 226 Fed. 520; Gill v. Ely-Norris Safe Co. (1913) 170 Mo. App. 478, 156 S. W. 811.

The preference which a transferee must have reasonable cause to believe will be effected is not the preference over unsecured creditors necessarily obtained by a mortgagee, but one made and accepted to evade the rule for equal distribution to creditors. In re Chicago Car Equipment Co. (C. C. A. 1914) 211 Fed. 638. Where an offer of compromise is made, creditors are not bound to investigate the debtor's ability to pay the amount offered, and ascertain whether it is his intention to pay it to all creditors alike, but are entitled to believe that the c made in good faith and to creditors, unless something occ put them on inquiry. Smith v. I Robin Co. (1910) 178 Fed. 27 C. C. A. 576, 24 Am. Bankr. Re Where a mercantile company, before its bankruptcy, sent a c letter to its creditors, in which i ed that its last season's busine not been good and that it was to meet its payments; that about to make a special sale, strongly advertised, for the p of paying its bills, and would the receipts from the sale am creditors; and that it was solve hoped to pay in full within thirt it was held that creditors re such circulars, and a few days after small payments on their were not chargeable with rea cause to believe that they were ed as a preference, though the was in fact insolvent and did n tribute the proceeds of the sa rata. In re Varley & Bauman ing Co. (D. C. 1911) 191 Fed. Am. Bankr. Rep. 840. But see min v. Chandler (D. C. 1905) 14 217, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 439. sale by a debtor will not be avoi cause the purchaser was aware intention of the seller to pref tain of his creditors by the use proceeds of the sale. Van Kl Miller (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. Fed. Cas. No. 16,860. But w mortgagee of a bankrupt had able cause to believe that the m would "effect a preference," reasonable cause to believe would "operate as a preference," phrases, as used in the bankrupt being synonymous. Ogden v. (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 977, 2 Bankr. Rep. 531.

Whether an alleged preferred tor of a bankrupt had reasonabl to believe a preference was in when the payment was made, is tion of fact to be determined fr circumstances attending the pa Batchelder v. Home Nat. Bank ford (1914) 105 N. E. 1052, 218 420.

27. —— Grounds of suspici doubt.—To invalidate a payment, fer, or security, as a preference not enough that the creditor sho tertain doubts concerning the s of the debtor or the effect of the action as preferential, or that he have cause to regard the debto cumstances or the transaction i with suspicion. He must have a edge of such facts as will carry b yond this and furnish a reas ground to believe that the enfor of his transfer or security will gi a preference over other cre Rosenman v. Coppard (C. C. A. 228 Fed. 114; Nichols v. Elken

A. 1915) 225 Fed. 689; Beall v. Bank of Bowden (D. C. 1915) 219 Fed. 316; Brookheim v. Greenbaum (D. C. 1912) 225 Fed. 635; Batchelder v. Home Nat. Bank of Milford (1914) 218 Mass. 420, 105 N. E. 1052; Paper v. Stern (C. C. A. 1912) 198 Fed. 642, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 592; Stucky v. Masonic Sav. Bank (1883) 108 U. S. 74, 2 Sup. Ct. 219, 27 L. Ed. 640; Grant v. National Bank (1877) 97 U. S. 80, 24 L. Ed. 971; In re F. M. & S. Q. Carlile (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 612, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 373; First Nat. Bank v. Abbott (1908) 165 Fed. 852, 91 C. C. A. 538, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 436; Powell v. Gate City Bank (1910) 178 Fed. 609, 102 C. C. A. 55, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 316; In re Eggert (1900) 102 Fed. 735, 43 C. C. A. 1, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 449; Off v. Hakes (1905) 142 Fed. 364, 73 C. C. A. 464, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 696; May v. Le Claire (C. C. 1882) 18 Fed. 164; Claridge v. Kulmer (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 399; Mackel v. Bartlett (1907) 36 Mont. 7, 91 Pac. 1064; King v. Storer (1883) 75 Me. 62; Farmers' & Mechanics' Bank v. Wilson (1903) 4 Neb. (Unof.) 606, 95 N. W. 609: Suffel v. McCartney Nat. Bank (1906) 127 Wis. 208, 106 N. W. 837, 115 Am. St. Rep. 1004; Sirrine v. Stoner-Marshall Co. (1902) 64 S. C. 457, 42 S. E. 432; Gnichtel v. First Nat. Bank (N. J. Eq. 1904) 57 Atl. 508; Stevenson v. Milliken-Tomlinson Co. (1904) 99 Me. 320, 59 Atl. 472. But see Campbell v. Traders' Nat. Bank (D. C. 1871) 3 N. B. R. 498, Fed. Cas. No. 2,370; Guernsey v. Miller (1880) 80 N. Y. 181.

Knowledge of the fact that the debtor is not able to pay the creditor's debt in cash may raise a suspicion as to his solvency, but is not of itself reasonable cause to believe that a preference is intended. Andrews v. Kellogg (1907) 41 Colo. 35, 92 Pac. 222. Nor is knowledge of the fact that the debtor is offering to sell his business. Taft v. Fourth Nat. Bank (1900) 8 Ohio N. P. 59. Or that he has called his creditors together for the purpose of making terms with them. In re Kerr (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 388, Fed. Cas. No. 7,728. The general reputation of the debtor's solvency is not a safe test of the creditor's good faith. Carey v. Donohue (1913) 209 Fed. 328, 126 C. C. A. 254.

Foreign bankers having accepted and paid in due course and in entire good faith drafts with forged railroad bills of lading attached, covering alleged through shipments of cotton by rail and water to a foreign port, are not chargeable with knowledge that a preference was intended or given when the bankrupt consignors substituted in place of the fictitious bills of lading genuine bills of lading issued by an ocean carrier covering cotton subsequently shipped by such consignors to prevent the discovery of their dishonest methods, the physical possession of such cotton having passed during transit from a responsible railroad to a trustworthy steamship company, and the bankers having no actual knowledge of the fraud practiced upon them. Pyle v. Texas Transport & Terminal Co. (1915) 238 U. S. 90, 35 Sup. Ct. 667, 59 L. Ed. 1215.

28. —— Facts putting on inquiry—Duty to investigate.—Where a creditor, about to receive a payment or security from his debtor, has knowledge or notice of facts which would incite a man of ordinary prudence and business intelligence to inquire as to the debtor's solvency and the probable effect of the transaction as a preference, he is bound to prosecute a reasonably diligent inquiry to ascertain the truth; and if he fails to do so, he is chargeable with knowledge of the facts which such an inquiry would have disclosed; and if such ultimate knowledge would give him reasonable cause to believe that the transaction would result in giving him a preference, within the meaning of the bankruptcy law, then he cannot safely accept the payment, transfer, or security, for if the debtor's bankruptcy follows within four months, the transaction will be voidable at the suit of the trustee. Toof v. Martin (1871) 13 Wall. 49, 20 L. Ed. 481; R. H. Herron Co. v. Moore (C. C. A. 1913) 208 Fed. 134; Walters v. Zimmerman (D. C. 1913) 208 Fed. 62, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 780; Tilt v. Citizens' Trust Co. (D. C. 1911) 191 Fed. 441, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 320; Ragan v. Donovan (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 138, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 311; In re Thomas Deutschle & Co. (D. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 435, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 348; In re C. J. McDonald & Sons (D. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 487, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 446; Brewster v. Goff Lumber Co. (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 124, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 106; In re W. W. Mills Co. (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 42, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 501; In re Tindal (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 456, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 773; English v. Ross (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 630, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 370; In re Virginia Hardwood Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1905) 139 Fed. 209, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 135; In re Eggert (1900) 102 Fed. 735, 43 C. C. A. 1, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 449; National Exchange Bank v. Pepperdine (1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 675; Judson v. Courier Co. (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 541; Buchanan v. Smith (1872) 16 Wall. 277, 21 L. Ed. 280; Clark v. Skilton (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 2,834; Burpee v. First Nat. Bank (C. C. 1873) 9 N. B. R. 314, Fed. Cas. No. 2,185; In re Wright (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 490, Fed. Cas. No. 18,071; Capital Nat. Bank v. Wilkerson (1905) 36 Ind. App. 560, 76 N. E. 258; Bardes v. First Nat. Bank (1904) 122 Iowa, 443, 98 N. W. 284; Blyth & Fargo Co. v. Kastor (1908) 17 Wyo. 180, 97 Pac. 921; Wilson v. Taylor (1911) 154 N. C. 211, 70 S. E. 286; Andrews v.

Kellogg (1907) 41 Colo. 35, 92 Pac. 222; Whitwell v. Wright (1909) 115 N. Y. Supp. 48; Atherton v. Emerson (1908) 199 Mass. 199, 85 N. E. 530; Jackman v. Eau Claire Nat. Bank (1905) 125 Wis. 465, 104 N. W. 98, 115 Am. St. Rep. 955; Hackney v. Raymond Bros. Clarke Co. (1903) 68 Neb. 624, 94 N. W. 822, 99 N. W. 675; Walker v. Tenison Bros. Saddlery Co. (Tex. Civ. App. 1906) 94 S. W. 166; Christopherson v. Oleson (1905) 19 S. D. 176, 102 N. W. 685; Aronin v. Security Bank of New York (C. C. A. 1915) 228 Fed. 888; In re Gaylord (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 234; Utah Ass'n of Credit Men v. Boyle Furniture Co. (Utah, 1913) 136 Pac. 572; Newman v. Tootle-Campbell Dry Goods Co. (Mo. App. 1913) 160 S. W. 825; First Nat. Bank of Maysville v. Alexander (Okl. 1915) 153 Pac. 646.

"Reasonable cause to believe," in the bankruptcy act, covers substantially the same field as "notice" in determining whether a person is a bona fide purchaser of property. Stern v. Paper (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 228, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 451.

If the creditor knows that the debtor has lost his position because of a defalcation, that his principal indorser is dead, and that his notes are overdue and unpaid, it is sufficient to put him on inquiry. Sebring v. Wellington (1901) 63 App. Div. 498, 71 N. Y. Supp. 788. In a suit by a bankrupt's trustee to recover an alleged preference from a bank, evidence of the continued protest of the bankrupt's checks from March, 1910, until November, when the preferences were given, held sufficient to put the bank on inquiry as to the bankrupt's insolvency. In a suit by a bankrupt's trustee to recover certain alleged preferences, evidence of knowledge that the bankrupt had forged the name of certain indorsers to certain notes held by defendant bank, taken in connection with other facts concerning his financial standing, held sufficient to give the bank reasonable cause to believe that he was insolvent. Conners v. Bucksport Nat. Bank (D. C. 1914) 214 Fed. 847, decree affirmed Bucksport Nat. Bank v. Conners (C. C. A. 1914) 216 Fed. 990.

A creditor is put on inquiry by the fact that he holds unpaid protested paper of the bankrupt. Swan v. Robinson (C. C. 1881) 5 Fed. 287. Or that the debtor, on drawing up the mortgage in question, asked to be allowed to secure other creditors in the same instrument. Lloyd v. Strobridge (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 197, Fed. Cas. No. 8,435. Facts held to show that defendant, who purchased stock of goods from bankrupt, must have known of mortgage thereon, and that the proceeds were to be applied for the benefit of the mortgagee, thus hindering and delaying other creditors, and hence his purchase was not in good faith. Parker v. Sherman (1914) 212 Fed. 917, 129 C. C. A. 437, affirming decree (D. C. 19 Fed. 155.

Mere knowledge that the debt to meet his obligations promptl sufficient to put the creditor on Arkansas Nat. Bank v. Sparks 83 Ark. 324, 103 S. W. 626; v. Raymond Bros. Clarke Co. 68 Neb. 624, 94 N. W. 822. the fact that there are outstand unsatisfied judgments against t or. Summerville v. Stockton Co. (1904) 142 Cal. 529, 76 P Or that he is engaged in a busi a speculative character, and t creditor does not know of an property owned by the debtor his interest in certain contracts tiss v. Kingman (1908) 159 F 87 C. C. A. 60, 20 Am. Bankr.

Knowledge that money loane insolvent firm on security of b counts was to be used to pay a ing debt does not charge the tr with knowledge of any intent of rower to defraud so as to ent trustee in bankruptcy to set th fer aside as fraudulent. Van I v. National Discount Co. (19 Sup. Ct. 343, 227 U. S. 575, 57 652, affirming decree (1909) 1 518, 98 C. C. A. 300. A banke titled to transact business with er in the ordinary way, take notes, and receive partial pa and to assume that the custome vent, and not liable to restore p when bankruptcy intervenes. son v. Robertson (D. C. 1915) 2 985.

As to the kind of investigatio conducted by a creditor thus inquiry," his duty is not discha inquiries addressed to the debto at least if any better or more sources of information are open McGirr v. Humphreys Grocery C. 1911) 192 Fed. 55, 26 Am. Rep. 518; Singer v. Jacobs 1882) 11 Fed. 559. And his int avoidance of obvious and reliabl es of information will charge h the knowledge he could have from them. Pittsburgh Plate G v. Edwards (1906) 148 Fed. C. C. A. 191, 17 Am. Bankr. R At the same time, he is not ob trace to its ultimate source an mation of a suspicious nature may come to his knowledge. B baker v. Charleston State Bank 111 Ill. App. 393. And if the of the debtor's solvency is so to require an inventory and a debts to determine it, the failur this degree of diligence will not the creditor with knowledge. v. Carondelet Milling Co. (19 Mo. App. 275, 83 S. W. 764. he be charged with notice o which could be learned only fr mate and inaccessible sources, the books of the bankrupt, bu only responsible for such inf as could be obtained by open o

tion and reasonable inquiry. In re Wolf Co. (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 448, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 73.

At the same time, if the creditor is permitted to examine the books of the debtor, or does make an independent investigation of his business and affairs, especially through the medium of an expert or accountant, he may claim the benefit of the knowledge so acquired, and if the result is not such as to furnish reasonable ground to believe the debtor insolvent and a preference intended, the creditor will be safe from the attack of the trustee in bankruptcy. Stratton v. Lawson (1902) 27 Wash. 310, 67 Pac. 562; Brown v. Guichard (1902) 37 Misc. Rep. 78, 74 N. Y. Supp. 735; Hussey v. Richardson-Roberts Dry Goods Co. (1906) 148 Fed. 598, 78 C. C. A. 370, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 511; In re Mayo Contracting Co. (D. C. 1907) 157 Fed. 469, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 551; In re Bartlett (D. C. 1909) 172 Fed. 679, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 891; In re Gaylord (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 234. So, also, where he inquired about the condition of the debtor corporation, not only from its officers, but also from others who were in position to know, and was assured that it was solvent and that its embarrassment was only temporary. In re Wolf Co. (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 448, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 73.

The rule of constructive notice and diligent inquiry should not be applied with too great severity in the case of a young woman of no business experience whatever dealing with a banker, who was also a relative in whom she had confidence, she being "incapable of comprehending the significance of business facts which would have been more enlightening to men of the business world." Wright v. Sampter (D. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 196, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 355.

29. —— Circumstances constituting ground for belief.—What constitutes "reasonable ground to believe" that a debtor is insolvent or intends a preference must depend on the facts and circumstances of each case. Whitwell v. Wright (1910) 136 App. Div. 246, 120 N. Y. Supp. 1065. And although the general business transactions and condition of the bankrupt, at the time of giving a preference, may not have been sufficient to raise this reasonable ground of belief, yet if the special facts and circumstances passing between the particular parties, and out of which the preference grew, were such as to give a reasonable cause for such belief, the creditor is chargeable with notice. Alderdice v. State Bank of Virginia (C. C. & D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 154.

If there is reasonable cause to believe that, at the time of the bankrupt's transfer of property within the statutory period, he is insolvent, and payment is accepted of a debt overdue, it is immaterial, upon the issue of the validity of the transfer, whether the transferee believes that the bankrupt is insolvent; he being charged with what should be reasonably inferred from the circumstances. Hewitt v. Boston Straw Board Co. (1913) 101 N. E. 424, 214 Mass. 260.

The mere fact that the creditor's claim is past due when a payment is made on it or security given for it, is not alone sufficient to charge him with knowledge that the debtor is insolvent or that a preference will be effected. In re Goodhile (D. C. 1904) 130 Fed. 471, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 374; Lyon v. Clark (1902) 129 Mich. 381, 88 N. W. 1046. Nonpayment of a debt on demand and circumstances sufficient to create a suspicion or fear of insolvency are insufficient to charge the creditor with notice so as to make a payment subsequently made before bankruptcy recoverable as a preference. Arthur v. Harrington (D. C. 1914) 211 Fed. 215. Nor the mere fact that an adjudication in bankruptcy actually follows within four months afterwards. Laundy v. First Nat. Bank (1903) 66 Kan. 759, 71 Pac. 259. Though it is otherwise if the creditor at the time knew that the bankrupt's attorney was then engaged in preparing a petition in bankruptcy. In re Galvin (1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 146.

A creditor may know that his debtor is financially embarrassed, and may be insistent in his demands for settlement, and yet he may not have a reasonable cause to believe the debtor insolvent. Sharpe v. Allender (1909) 170 Fed. 589, 96 C. C. A. 104, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 431; Stackhouse v. Holden (1901) 66 App. Div. 423, 73 N. Y. Supp. 203. But see In re Kingsbury (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 317, Fed. Cas. No. 7,816; In re Hines (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 543, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 495. Nor is such reasonable cause to be deduced from the mere fact that the debtor had some time previously compromised with his creditors at 45 cents on the dollar. Warren v. Tenth Nat. Bank (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 17,-200.

Knowledge of a partnership creditor that the partnership is insolvent does not charge the creditor with knowledge that an individual partner is insolvent. In re Hull (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 796.

But the fact that suits are pending against the debtor on claims which he does not dispute, is a very suspicious circumstance, and, if coupled with other facts, may be enough to charge the creditor with notice. Crittenden v. Barton (1901) 59 App. Div. 555, 69 N. Y. Supp. 559; Empire State Trust Co. v. William F. Fisher Co. (1904) 67 N. J. Eq. 88, 57 Atl. 502.

Bank, which had protested notes and draft against insolvent corporation and pressed for payment of indebtedness to it, held to have cause to believe that it was receiving a preference when receiving payments. Grandison v. National Bank of Commerce of Rochester (D. C. 1915) 220 Fed. 981. And a business man who allows his paper to go to protest, suspends payment, and closes the door of his place of business, proclaims to the world that he is insolvent. Markson v. Hobson (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 9,099; Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Cook (1877) 95 U. S. 342, 24 L. Ed. 412.

In order to determine a debtor's insolvency within the bankruptcy act, all his salable property should be considered, including that exempt from execution, and if his creditor has reasonable cause to believe that the debtor is unable to meet his obligations as they mature in the ordinary course of business, he has notice of his insolvency. Patterson v. Baker Grocery Co. (Or. 1914) 144 P. 673.

Where the creditor learned that an account which the bankrupt had assigned as security was fictitious, and that his place of business was closed, and that it was rumored that he had absconded, and placed its claim in the hands of its attorney for collection, although it was not due, and the claim was paid shortly before the adjudication in bankruptcy, it was held that the creditor had reasonable cause to believe that a preference was intended by such payment. Pratt v. Columbia Bank (D. C. 1907) 157 Fed. 137, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 406.

The mere fact that a creditor demands security for a debt previously unsecured does not show that he has reasonable ground for believing the debtor to be insolvent. Perry v. Booth (1903) 80 App. Div. 373, 80 N. Y. Supp. 706; Congleton v. Schreihofer (N. J. Eq. 1903) 54 Atl. 144. But see In re Hickerson (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 345, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 682. This is especially the case where the security also covers a contemporary loan of money. Stedman v. Bank of Monroe (1902) 117 Fed. 237, 54 C. C. A. 269, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 4. But it is otherwise when it appears that the security given pledges substantially all of the debtor's unexempt property. Coder v. McPherson (1907) 152 Fed. 951, 82 C. C. A. 99, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 523; Roberts v. Johnson (1907) 151 Fed. 567, 81 C. C. A. 47, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 132. Or where the creditor knows that the property would be insufficient to satisfy the other creditors after paying his own debt. Robinson v. Tuttle (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 11,968.

Evidence that the creditor was investigating the financial standing of the bankrupt immediately prior to and continuously up to the time when the transfer was executed is admissible on this point. Capital Nat. Bank v. Wilkerson (1905) 36 Ind. App. 550, 76 N. E. 258. And it may be shown that he knew that the debtor was pressed and without credit, and th himself had been persistently pre his own claim for several mo Wright v. William Skinner Mfg. (1908) 162 Fed. 315, 89 C. C. A 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 527. And re able cause to believe a debtor vent may arise from the fact th conveyed his residence for the fit of an insistent creditor, stati the time that it was his only ava resource. Brewster v. Goff (I 1908) 164 Fed. 127, 21 Am. B Rep. 239.

Circumstances justifying such a may also be found in the fact tha debtor settled with creditors b turning goods bought from them re Andrews (D. C. 1905) 135 Fed 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 247. Or t creditor indirectly bought back from the debtor and sold them at a loss. Hardy v. Gray (1906 Fed. 922, 75 C. C. A. 562, 16 Bankr. Rep. 387. Or accepted fo of his claim goods for which h no use, or which were not of a that he dealt in or employed i business. In re Christopher Bai Son (D. C. 1909) 166 Fed. 98 Am. Bankr. Rep. 911; Fowler Bank v. White (C. C. A. 1912 Fed. 631, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. Or that the money to make a pa was obtained by the sale of the or's entire stock in trade, especi such sale was made secretly or any suspicious conditions. Thom Adelman (D. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 510. See Dun Thomas (1902) 28 Wash. 521, 6 909.

Where a grain company sells it vator and applies the proceeds to ing a debt due a bank, the bank c contend that, even if it knew the pany was insolvent at the time c payment, it was not an illegal erence if the company was ins when it began doing business wi bank some months prior th where the company had sustained losses and the sale of the elevato not in the usual course of busines a sale forced by the bank. Chish First Nat. Bank (1912) 176 Ill. 382.

Where it appears that over were made by a merchant in col with a defaulting teller in the for which a deed of preference given to the bank just before the ruptcy of the merchant, the de voidable, as such facts constitute sonable cause for the bank to b that the debtor was insolvent and a preference was intended. Ald v. State Bank of Virginia (C. C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 154.

30. —— Imputed knowledge of or attorney.—A preference will be able if reasonable cause to believe that the debtor is insolvent and a preference intended is brought home either to the creditor himself or to "his agent acting therein." If the agent has knowledge of facts which should have induced such a belief, or of facts which should have put him upon inquiry as to the debtor's financial condition, that knowledge is imputed to the principal and the effect is the same as if he himself had taken part in the transaction being in possession of such information. In re Nassau (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 912, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 828; Constam v. Haley (C. C. A. 1913) 206 Fed. 260, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 650; Sage v. Wynkoop (C. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 363, Fed. Cas. No. 12,215; Mathews v. Riggs (1888) 80 Me. 107, 13 Atl. 48. And it is no defense to the trustee's suit to recover the preference that the creditor had no personal knowledge of the debtor's insolvency. Plummer v. Myers (D. C. 1905) 137 Fed. 660, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 805. And it is immaterial how or when the agent obtained his knowledge, or that he had confidential relations with the bankrupt, or personal interests which prevented him from disclosing his knowledge to his principal. Campbell v. Balcomb (1910) 183 Fed. 766, 106 C. C. A. 474, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 538.

But the agent must be one acting for the creditor "therein," that is, in the particular transaction by which the preference was created, though a general financial agent may answer this description. Wright v. Cotten (1905) 140 N. C. 1, 52 S. E. 141. Where the holder of a note against a bankrupt is charged with an agent's knowledge of facts indicating the bankrupt's insolvency, such notice is not limited to its effect to convert into preferences payments obtained through the activities of the agent, but extends as well to subsequent payments made by the bankrupt direct to the holder. Constam v. Haley (C. C. A. 1913) 206 Fed. 260, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 650.

Notice cannot be imputed to a principal which was acquired by one who was the clerk or agent of the bankrupt at the time the preference was given, and who was not employed by the creditor until afterwards. Whitson v. Farber Bank (1904) 105 Mo. App. 605, 80 S. W. 327. Where an indorsee of a note executed by the bankrupt intrusted it to the payees' agent to collect or adjust, the indorsee was charged with notice of the facts discovered by such agent concerning the maker's insolvency as to render subsequent payments on account preferences. Constam v. Haley (1913) 206 Fed. 260, 124 C. C. A. 128.

If the holder of a note sends it to a bank for collection, the bank is his agent, and he is to be charged with whatever knowledge the bank possesses. Hooker v. Blount (1906) 44 Tex. Civ. App. 162, 97 S. W. 1083. But where a bank, being the holder of a note, and having no correspondent in the town where the maker lives, sends it to its correspondent in the nearest large city for collection, and the latter sends it to the local bank for collection, although the local bank may know facts about the maker which would render the payment of the note to it a preference under the bankruptcy act, that knowledge is not imputable to the creditor, for the collecting bank is not its agent. Balcomb v. Old Nat. Bank (C. C. A. 1912) 201 Fed. 679, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 329. If the creditor sends his claim to a collection agency, and the agency employs an attorney to collect it, and the latter procures a confession of judgment, knowing the debtor to be insolvent, this does not affect the validity of the preference so far as concerns the creditor, the attorney not being his agent. Hoover v. Wise (1875) 91 U. S. 308, 23 L. Ed. 392.

An attorney at law employed directly by the creditor to take proceedings for the enforcement of the claim, or to effect a settlement with the debtor, is the creditor's "agent," and his knowledge is imputable to the creditor. Rogers v. Palmer (1880) 102 U. S. 263, 26 L. Ed. 464; Wight v. Muxlow (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 17,629; Vogle v. Lathrop (C. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 439, Fed. Cas. No. 16,985; Mayer v. Hermann (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 9,-344; Hewitt v. Boston Straw Board Co. (1913) 214 Mass. 260, 101 N. E. 424. And it is immaterial that the attorney, unknown to the creditor employing him, has special and peculiar facilities for acquiring information, as, by being the professional adviser of the debtor also. So long as the disclosure of the knowledge acquired would not involve a breach of professional confidence, the creditor is chargeable with it. Brown v. Jefferson County Nat. Bank (C. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 258.

In the case of a corporation which is a creditor, the knowledge of any of its principal officers will be imputed to the corporation itself. Farmers' Bank of Edgefield v. C. D. Carr & Co. (1904) 127 Fed. 690, 62 C. C. A. 446, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 733; Arnold v. Knapp (W. Va. 1915) 84 S. E. 895. Where a bankrupt was treasurer of a corporation, the fact that he knew himself to be insolvent at the time he made a payment on his indebtedness to the corporation did not charge it with knowl- of such fact. Arthur v. Harrington (D. C. 1914) 211 Fed. 215. A corporation is not chargeable with knowledge possessed by an officer who resigned before the giving of the alleged preference, though he is also the principal stockholder of the bankrupt corporation. Benner v. Blumauer-Frank Drug Co. (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 362, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 798. A person will be held to have notice as an individual of what he does as the president of a corporation. Lancaster v. Collins (C. C. 1881) 7 Fed. 338.

Knowledge possessed by a township trustee as to the insolvency of his brother, a defaulting township treasurer, is imputable to the township itself. Painter v. Napoleon Tp. (D. C. 1910) 190 Fed. 637, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 324.

In the case of a banking corporation, either the president or the cashier may be regarded as the "agent" of the bank, so that if either has knowledge of circumstances which would furnish reasonable ground to believe that the debtor of the bank was insolvent and that a preference would result from any payment, transfer or security given to the bank, then the preference so given will be voidable. Nisbit v. Macon Bank & Trust Co. (C. C. 1882) 12 Fed. 686; Crooks v. People's Nat. Bank (1902) 72 App. Div. 331, 76 N. Y. Supp. 92, 495; Collett v. Bronx Nat. Bank (C. C. A. 1913) 205 Fed. 370, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 598.

31. Solicitation, coercion, or threats by creditor.—A preference is none the less voidable under the bankruptcy act because it was not yielded voluntarily, but was wrung from the debtor by the urgent solicitation of the creditor, by threats of prosecution, fear of exposure and disgrace, or any other form of coercion or pressure. First Nat. Bank v. Jones (1874) 21 Wall. 325, 22 L. Ed. 542; Strain v. Gourdin (C. C. 1874) 11 N. B. R. 156, Fed. Cas. No. 13,521; Van Kleeck v. Thurber (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 16,861; Campbell v. Traders' Nat. Bank (D. C. 1871) 3 N. B. R. 498, Fed. Cas. No. 2,370; In re Amory & Leeds (C. C. 1844) Fed. Cas. No. 336c; Atkinson v. Farmers' Bank (D. C. 1844) Fed. Cas. No. 609; Rison v. Knapp (D. C. 1868) 4 N. B. R. 349, Fed. Cas. No. 11,861; Foster v. Hackley (C. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 406, Fed. Cas. No. 4,971; Wilson v. Brinkman (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 468, Fed. Cas. No. 17,794; Graham v. Stark (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 357, Fed. Cas. No. 5,676.

32. Preference of partnership or individual creditors.—The purpose of the bankruptcy act with reference to the joint assets of a bankrupt partnership is that they shall be first applied, in good faith, to the payment of partnership debts, and that the individual property of the several partners shall first be applied in payment of their separate debts; and any scheme or device resorted to by persons contemplating bankruptcy for the purpose of charging partnership assets with individual debts, or vice versa, is in violation of the act and will be frustrated by the court, the law being administered in such a manner as to prevent preferences and secure the equitable distribution of the estate. In re Jones (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 781. And see Johnson v. ley-Hoye Co. (D. C. 1911) 188 752, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 748. if a creditor of a firm, knowing th to be insolvent, takes a mortgage individual property of one of the ners, it is an unlawful prefe Mayes v. Palmer (C. C. A. 1913 Fed. 97; In re Parker (D. C. 188 Fed. 397; Pollock v. Jones (1903 Fed. 163, 61 C. C. A. 555. Bu Sargent v. Blake (1908) 160 Fe 87 C. C. A. 213, 20 Am. Bankr. 115. And the rule is the same member of the firm, owing a p debt, gives the firm's note for it, own note indorsed by the firm. Jones (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 141. But if a so indorsed is paid by the firm, an individual partner becomes ban (but not the firm) his creditors c object to the payment as a prefe because the payee has not receive of the property of the bank Catchings v. Chatham Nat. Bank 180 Fed. 103, 103 C. C. A. 601, 24 Bankr. Rep. 843.

A partner's individual indorseme the firm's notes, while the firm w solvent, held to give the payee a erence. In re Frazer (D. C. 1915 Fed. 83. But, on the other ha mortgage given by a partner on h dividual property to secure his in ual debt is not voidable as a prefe in the subsequent bankruptcy o firm. Hewitt v. Northrup (N. Y. 9 Hun, 543, 16 N. B. R. 27, aff (1878) 75 N. Y. 506. Or at leas creditors of the firm will hav standing to object to it and see vacation. In re Lehigh Lumbe (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 216, 4 Bankr. Rep. 221. A preference firm to a firm creditor cannot b covered by the trustee in bankr of the continuing partner, the rig recover being a right of the cre of the firm, and not a right of the to which the continuing partner ceeds. Rubenstein v. Loftow 107 N. E. 718, 220 Mass. 156.

A mortgage given by a partnersh its property is not affected by s quent bankruptcy proceedings a one of the partners alone. In re derlin (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 384.

In a suit by a trustee in bankr of a partnership to recover pay made to a creditor as a preferen must be shown that both the firm the partners individually were inso when the payment was made. T v. Bryan (C. C. A. 1908) 165 Fed. 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 319; Worr Whitney (D. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 749; Forsai Merritt (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R Fed. Cas. No. 4,946.

As to transactions between the ners themselves, it is held that w one partner sells to his copartner his entire interest in the property of the firm, the transfer cannot be impeached as a preference, since the transferee is not a creditor, and the effect of the transfer is a loss to all the creditors of the firm alike. In re Rudnick (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 750, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 531; Barnes v. Vetterlein (C. C. 1883) 16 Fed. 759.

33. Rights of preferred creditors as to proving claims.—The provision of section 57g (ante, § 9641), that the claims of preferred creditors shall not be allowed "unless such creditors shall surrender such preferences," is not a penal requirement in such sense that it must be construed strictly. Pirie v. Chicago Title & Trust Co. (1901) 182 U. S. 438, 21 Sup. Ct. 906, 45 L. Ed. 1171. It applies only to transactions which constitute preferences within the meaning of other provisions of the act, where preferences are defined and declared to be voidable. In re Peacock (C. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 851, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 159. A claim by a chattel mortgagee to the proceeds of a sale of mortgaged property is not such a claim as will be disallowed until the surrender of an illegal preference. In re Johnson (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 180. A provision in bonds of a bankrupt corporation giving holders a contingent right to share in surplus at maturity of the bonds held not to defeat their right to prove as general creditors. In re Interborough Realty Co. (1915) 223 Fed. 646, 139 C. C. A. 300.

Where a creditor files proof of his claim and asks its allowance, and it is opposed on the ground of his having received a preference, and this is found to be the fact, allowance of the claim will be refused or withheld until he shall surrender the preference. In re Flynn & Co. (D. C. 1903) 126 Fed. 422, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 318; In re Graff (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 343, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 744; In re Keller (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 118, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 334; In re Hoffman (1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 554; Cookingham v. Morgan (C. C. 1870) 5 N. B. R. 16, Fed. Cas. No. 3,183; Bingham v. Richmond (D. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 127, Fed. Cas. No. 1,415. The referee has jurisdiction to determine whether or not a preference has been received when the creditor offers to prove his claim as an unsecured debt. In re Keystone Press (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 710, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 715. If the claim has been proved and allowed, and it is afterwards discovered that the creditor had been preferred, the claim may be expunged on motion of the trustee and at the cost of the creditor. In re Forsyth (D. C. 1873) 7 N. B. R. 174, Fed. Cas. No. 4,948; In re Wise (1899) 2 Nat. Bankr. News. 151.

A creditor who has received partial satisfaction of his debt, by means of a preference, cannot retain it and prove a claim for the unsatisfied balance. The amount of the preference cannot be treated as a set-off, either to reduce the amount of his claim, or against the dividend to be received thereon, but the amount must be surrendered to the trustee. In re Chaplin (D. C. 1902) 115 Fed. 162, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 121; In re Sumner (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 224, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 123; In re Colton Export & Import Co. (D. C. 1902) 115 Fed. 158, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 257; In re Keller (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 306, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 487; Batchelder & Lincoln Co. v. Whitmore (1903) 122 Fed. 355, 58 C. C. A. 517, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 641. And a creditor having both a claim entitled to priority and a common claim cannot so apply a preferential payment received as to reduce or extinguish the common claim and then prove the priority claim in full. In re Henry C. King Co. (D. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 110, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 619.

Where it was doubtful whether servants of the bankrupt were entitled to a preference to the amount of $300, under section 64b, cl. 4 (post, § 9648), they could file their claim for a preference to that amount, and for the balance as a general claim. In re Crawford Wollen Co. (D. C. 1915) 218 Fed. 951.

If the creditor will surrender his preference, all taint of fraud arising out of it is removed and he is restored to an equality with all other creditors, and may then prove his entire claim as unsecured. In re Richard (D. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 633, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 506; In re Israel (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 7,112; In re Huntenberg (D. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 768, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 697; In re Nathan (1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 611. In fact, a creditor in this position has his option either to make the surrender and take his place in the ranks of the unsecured creditors, or to retain and rely upon the preference received. In re Privett (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 592, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 151. A secured creditor of a bankrupt, who proves his debt as unsecured, waives his security. In re Burr Mfg. & Supply Co. (1914) 217 Fed. 16, 133 C. C. A. 126, reversing order (D. C. 1913) 209 Fed. 138. A secured creditor of a bankrupt is only required by § 57g (ante, § 9641), to surrender a preference as a condition to the allowance of his claim in case he attempts to have it allowed as an unsecured claim for any sum in excess of the value of his security. In re Keystone Press (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 710.

If a creditor comes into the court of bankruptcy to claim a fund which has been paid into court subject to the rights of conflicting claimants, yet if he does not seek to prove his claim as a general creditor, the fund must be paid over to him intact, on his title to it being decided, and without deducting a preference which he had received.

In re West Norfolk Lumber Co. (D. C. 1902) 112 Fed. 759, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 648.

If allowance of the claim is opposed on this ground, it is incumbent upon the trustee to show the actual receipt by the creditor of money, goods, or other property or security which, if retained, will diminish the assets available for general creditors and give the preferred creditor an advantage over the rest. In re Hickey (D. C. 1901) 112 Fed. 287, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 282; In re George M. Hill Co. (1904) 130 Fed. 315, 64 C. C. A. 561, 66 L. R. A. 68, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 221; In re Christensen (1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 695. But if the property preferentially transferred was a note of a third person, the creditor must be charged with the face value of it, without regard to the amount he actually realized on it. In re Chaplin (D. C. 1902) 115 Fed. 162, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 121. But the return of unsalable goods to the unpaid vendor of them, under an agreement that they may be exchanged for new and salable stock does not constitute the giving of a preference such that he must account for their value before being allowed to prove his claim. In re Nicholas (D. C. 1903) 122 Fed. 299, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 291. If the bankrupt's estate proves sufficient to pay in full the claims of all unpreferred creditors, and leave a surplus, then a creditor who had received a preference, and had been excluded from participation in the division of the estate in bankruptcy because of his refusal to surrender it, will be entitled, as against the bankrupt, to share in such surplus. In re Morton (D. C. 1902) 118 Fed. 908, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 508.

34. —— Creditor's knowledge of intent to prefer.—Prior to the amendatory act of 1903, the claim of a preferred creditor could not be proved and allowed without surrender of the preference, irrespective of the question whether or not such creditor had reasonable cause to believe that the debtor was insolvent and that a preference was intended or would result. Pirie v. Chicago Title & Trust Co. (1901) 182 U. S. 438, 21 Sup. Ct. 906, 45 L. Ed. 1171, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 814; In re Abraham Steers Lumber Co. (1901) 112 Fed. 406, 50 C. C. A. 310, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 332; In re Dickson (1901) 111 Fed. 726, 49 C. C. A. 574, 55 L. R. A. 349, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 186; Mills v. Lewis (1901) 110 Fed. 512, 49 C. C. A. 131, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 612; In re Keller (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 118, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 334; In re Bashline (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 965, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 194; In re Seckler (D. C. 1901) 106 Fed. 484, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 579; In re Flick (D. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 503, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 465; In re Alexander (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 464, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 376; In re Fixen (1900) 102 Fed. 295, C. C. A. 354, 50 L. R. A. 605, 4 Bankr. Rep. 10; In re Sloan (D. 1900) 102 Fed. 116, 4 Am. Bankr. 356; Strobel & Wilken Co. v. K (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 409, 3 Am. Ba Rep. 631; In re Fort Wayne Elec Corp. (1900) 99 Fed. 400, 39 C. C 582, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 634; In Conhaim (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 92 Am. Bankr. Rep. 249; In re Jour (1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 581; I Wise (1899) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 1 Harris v. Second Nat. Bank (1903) Tenn. 239, 75 S. W. 1053.

But the act of 1903 makes the render of a preference, as a conditio the allowance of the creditor's cl depend upon the preference b "voidable" under the other provis of the act, and hence the claim creditor cannot be disallowed or punged after proof, unless it is sh that the preference would be void in a suit by the trustee, that is, it n be shown that the bankrupt was solvent at the time and that the c itor had reasonable cause to bel that the enforcement of the trans payment, or security would effec preference. In re Frazin (C. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 86, 29 Am. Bankr. 214; In re Sam Z. Lorch & Co. (D 1912) 199 Fed. 944, 28 Am. Ba Rep. 784; Hardy v. Gray (1906) Fed. 922, 75 C. C. A. 562, 16 Bankr. Rep. 387; In re Bloch (1 142 Fed. 674, 74 C. C. A. 250, Am. Bankr. Rep. 748; In re penheimer (D. C. 1905) 140 51, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 267; In Pettingill & Co. (D. C. 1905) Fed. 218; In re Ratliff (D. C. 1 107 Fed. 80, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. But if a given payment received creditor without knowledge of in vency need not be surrendered be proof, not being a preference within bankruptcy act because the resul the whole transaction was to incr the net indebtedness to the cred the same payment, received with kn edge of insolvency, is not a prefer and need not be surrendered. In Henry C. King Co. (D. C. 1902) Fed. 110, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 619.

35. —— Surrender of preference.— entitle a preferred creditor to p his claim, the "surrender" of the p erence must be voluntary or in sponse to the trustee's mere dem and not forced by litigation. In Greth (D. C. 1902) 112 Fed. 97 Am. Bankr. Rep. 598; In re Ow (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 623, 6 Bankr. Rep. 454; In re Israel (C 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 7,112; In re vidson (D. C. 1870) 3 N. B. R. Fed. Cas. No. 3,599; In re Richt Estate (C. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. Fed. Cas. No. 11,803; In re To (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 52, Fed. No. 14,094; In re Ayers (D. C. 1 Fed. Cas. No. 685; In re Leland (D 1874) 9 N. B. R. 209, Fed. Cas. No. 8,230; In re Montgomery (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 374, Fed. Cas. No. 9,728; In re Stephens (D. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 533, Fed. Cas. No. 13,365; In re Graves (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 816; In re Drummond (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 4,094; Phelps v. Sterns (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 34, Fed. Cas. No. 11,080; In re Scott (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 414, Fed. Cas. No. 12,518; In re Forsyth (D. C. 1873) 7 N. B. R. 174, Fed. Cas. No. 4,948; In re Cramer (D. C. 1875) 13 N. B. R. 225, Fed. Cas. No. 3,345; Burr v. Hopkins (C. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 211, Fed. Cas. No. 2,192; In re Riorden (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 332, Fed. Cas. No. 11,852. This rule applies in cases where the transaction is tainted by fraud, but a creditor who has in good faith received a preference, which is voidable under the bankruptcy law only because given within four months prior to the filing of the petition, and who has in good faith retained the preference until deprived thereof by the judgment of a court in a suit by the trustee, may still prove the debt so voidably preferred, notwithstanding the statutory provision concerning the "surrender" of preferences. Keppel v. Tiffin Sav. Bank (1905) 197 U. S. 356, 25 Sup. Ct. 443, 49 L. Ed. 790, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 552; Page v. Rogers (1909) 211 U. S. 575, 29 Sup. Ct. 159, 53 L. Ed. 332, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 496; Streeter v. Jefferson County Nat. Bank (1893) 147 U. S. 36, 13 Sup. Ct. 236, 37 L. Ed. 68; In re Elletson Co. (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 84, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 434; In re John A. Baker Notion Co. (D. C. 1910) 180 Fed. 922, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 808; In re Clark (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 955, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 388; In re Otto F. Lange Co. (D. C. 1909) 170 Fed. 114, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 414; In re Baker (1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 195; In re Newcomer (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 85, Fed. Cas. No. 10,148; In re Cadwell (D. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 693; In re Currier (D. C. 1875) 13 N. B. R. 68, Fed. Cas. No. 3,492; In re Cahill (D. C. 1912) 208 Fed. 193; Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Drake (C. C. A. 1914) 214 Fed. 536.

If the preference given consisted of a payment of money, it must be paid over to the trustee in bankruptcy, and an offer by the creditor to allow the amount of the preference from any dividend payable to him on his claim is not sufficient. In re Flick (D. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 503, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 465. The costs of legal proceedings to vacate the preference may be charged against the preferred creditor if the circumstances of the case make it equitable to do so. In re Moyer (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 324. Where a conveyance of land is surrendered as having been preferential, the creditor is entitled to be reimbursed for money expended in paying off incumbrances on the property. Crandall v. Coats (D. C. 1905) 133 Fed. 965, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 712. Where the property transferred was a note of a third person, the statute is satisfied by a return of the note itself, and the trustee cannot refuse to receive it and demand its face value in cash. Dickinson v. Security Bank of Richmond (1901) 110 Fed. 353, 49 C. C. A. 84, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 551.

Where the court in a bankruptcy proceeding found that the application of a deposit by the bankrupt on a debt due a bank constituted a preference, its decree properly authorized the bank, upon payment of the deposit, to file a new or amended claim for the sums found to be preferences. In re Wright-Dana Hardware Co. (1914) 212 Fed. 397, modifying decree (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 636. The surrender of a chose in action must be completed by such indorsements or other forms of assignment as may be necessary to pass title. Traders' Ins. Co. v. Mann (1903) 118 Ga. 381, 45 S. E. 426.

Where petitioner's claim against a bankrupt was disallowed because it had received a preference of a $1,500 automobile, and a claim against M., and the $1,500 having been recovered and paid, and petitioner having offered to surrender the claim against M. as worthless, a petition to amend and prove its claim should thereafter be considered on the basis of a creditor who had received and surrendered a preference. In re Hamilton Automobile Co. (1913) 209 Fed. 596, 126 C. C. A. 418. A written waiver of a lien may be a sufficient surrender of it. In re Bolinger (D. C. 1901) 108 Fed. 374, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 171. If the creditor has instituted proceedings in a state court to establish or enforce a lien, they must be abandoned or dismissed as a part of the surrender of his preference. In re Heinsfurter (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 198, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 113; Buckingham v. Schuylkill Silk & Plush Co. (1902) 38 Misc. Rep. 305, 77 N. Y. Supp. 857.

The surrender of a preference must be made to the trustee in bankruptcy, and not to the bankrupt or any other person. In re Bailey (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 990, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 201; In re Currier (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 3,492. Pending the appointment and qualification of a trustee, the proof of debt must be postponed, and the preferred creditor cannot vote in the election for trustee. In re Parham (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 300, Fed. Cas. No. 10,712. Ordinarily it is intended that the surrender shall be made by the creditor himself. But where the preference consisted in a deed of trust in the nature of a mortgage, it is sufficient if the trustee therein surrenders the property covered. In re Clarke (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 2,843.

Where the question of preference has been contested, and decided by the referee in bankruptcy adversely to the creditor, the referee should fix a reasonable time within which the creditor may surrender his preference and have his claim allowed. In re Oppenheimer (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 51, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 267. And where the creditor, on demand of the trustee in bankruptcy, has promised and agreed to pay over to him the amount of a preferential payment received by him, which promise he afterwards fulfills, he is not debarred from having his proof of claim allowed by the fact that, for the convenience of counsel, the actual payment of the money was delayed for a few days beyond the close of a year after the adjudication in bankruptcy. Hutchinson v. Otis, Wilcox & Co. (1903) 190 U. S. 552, 23 Sup. Ct. 778, 47 L. Ed. 1179, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 135.

36. —— Separate or independent claims.—The provision of the bankruptcy act relating to the surrender of preferences, as a condition to the allowance of claims, is aimed at the preferred creditor, rather than the particular debt sought to be proved; and the sum total of the bankrupt's indebtedness to that creditor at the time the preference was given is affected by it, no matter what may be the nature and number of the items of that indebtedness, so that, although the preference was given in discharge of or as security for one particular debt, yet the creditor cannot be allowed to prove a claim upon any other debt, existing at that time, however separate and distinct, unless he will surrender the preference. In re Mayo Contracting Co. (D. C. 1907) 157 Fed. 469, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 551; Dunn v. Gans (1904) 129 Fed. 750, 64 C. C. A. 278, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 316; In re Delling (D. C. 1903) 124 Fed. 852, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 688; Livingstone v. Heineman (1903) 120 Fed. 786, 57 C. C. A. 154, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 39; In re E. O. Thompson's Sons (D. C. 1903) 121 Fed. 607; In re Lyon (1903) 121 Fed. 723, 58 C. C. A. 143, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 25; Swarts v. Fourth Nat. Bank (1902) 117 Fed. 1, 54 C. C. A. 387, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 673; In re Dickson (1901) 111 Fed. 726, 49 C. C. A. 574, 55 L. R. A. 349, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 186; In re Rogers Milling Co. (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 687, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 540; In re Teslow (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 229, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 757; In re Flick (D. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 503, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 465; In re Gillette (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 769, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 119; In re Conhaim (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 923, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 249; In re Beswick (1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 808; In re Myers (1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 765; In re Richter's Estate (C. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 221, Fed. Cas. No. 11,803; In re Kingsbury (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 317, Fed. Cas. No. 7,816; In re Barnes (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 1,013; State Nat. Bank v. Monroe Cotton Press Co. (1887) 39 La. Ann. 834, 2 South. 605. CONTRA, In re Hurst (D. C.) 188 Fed. 707, 26 Am. Rep. 781; In re Wise (1899) Bankr. News, 151; In re Co (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 110 Cas. No. 3,079; Whiston v. Smi C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 17,52 re Stephens (D. C. 1872) 6 N. 533, Fed. Cas. No. 13,365; Cor Woodward (C. C. 1879) Fed. Ca 3,223; Cramton v. Tarbell (1878) Fed. Cas. No. 3,349. creditor having several claims the same debtor, who receives ment on account without speci propriation, under circumstances ing it a preference, cannot app payment to the extinguishment o of the claims, and then prove th ers as unsecured. Kimball v. Rosenham Co. (1902) 114 Fed. C. C. A. 33, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep C. S. Morey Mercantile Co. v. S (1902) 114 Fed. 447, 52 C. C. A. Am. Bankr. Rep. 670; Dunn v. (1904) 129 Fed. 750, 64 C. C. A 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 316; In re haim (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 923, Bankr. Rep. 249; In re Kingsbu C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 317, Fed No. 7,816. And the same princip plies where part of the original edness has been transferred or ed by the creditor to a third p no part of it can be allowed as a against the estate in bankruptcy the preference has been surre Swarts v. Fourth Nat. Bank (190 Fed. 1, 54 C. C. A. 387, 8 Am. Rep. 673. But this applies only state of the accounts between th ties at the time the preference w en. A creditor who has rece preference is not thereby debarre proving a claim in bankruptcy on arate and new debt created aft giving of the preference, and to the preference could have no re In re Wolf & Levy (D. C. 190 Fed. 127, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1 re Abraham Steers Lumber Co. 112 Fed. 406, 50 C. C. A. 310, Bankr. Rep. 332; In re Weissn C. 1902) 115 Fed. 421, 8 Am. Rep. 177; In re Jourdan (1900) Bankr. News, 581; In re Arnold 1868) 2 N. B. R. 160, Fed. Cas. N But where notes given by a deb close an account are still held creditor and unpaid at the time ther indebtedness on account i tracted, both the notes and the a will constitute the indebtedness due, and a payment of the notes after, when the debtor is insolve within four months prior to his ruptcy, will constitute the givin preference, which must be surre before the account can be prove allowed. In re Jones (D. C. 190 Fed. 128, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 5 re Meyer (D. C. 1902) 115 Fed. Am. Bankr. Rep. 598.

37. Proceedings to recover ence—Jurisdiction.—When a c who is alleged to have received a preference submits himself to the jurisdiction of the court of bankruptcy, the question of his rights and liabilities may be determined summarily. In re Black (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 353, Fed. Cas. No. 1,457. And see Giveen v. Smith (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 5,467. But the trustee cannot require a creditor in this situation, who has not in any way become a party to the bankruptcy proceedings, to appear before the referee and litigate the question of preference, but he must proceed by plenary suit against the creditor in a proper court. In re Keystone Press (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 710, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 715; In re F. M. & S. Q. Carlile (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 612, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 373. Proceedings of a secured creditor to subject the mortgaged property of the bankrupt to the payment of its secured debt held not a general appearance authorizing a referee to determine whether a secured creditor had received a preference unless the creditor claimed to prove an unpaid balance remaining after applying the proceeds of the mortgaged property to the secured debt as an unsecured claim. In re Keystone Press (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 710.

The court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction of an action at law for the purpose of determining the question of an alleged preference. Kraver v. Abrahams (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 782, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 365; Fenlon v. Lonergan (1857) 29 Pa. 471; In re Mallory (D. C. 1871) 6 N. B. R. 22, Fed. Cas. No. 8,991. And an action by a trustee against a creditor to recover an alleged preference, begun by summons and complaint, is an action at law within the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court, notwithstanding an allegation in the complaint of the conversion of the property by the creditor. Grant v. National Bank of Auburn (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 581, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 712. The federal court is not prevented from taking jurisdiction by the fact that the alleged preference consisted of a confessed judgment, under which there has been a levy and sale and a distribution of the proceeds to lien creditors. First Nat. Bank v. Jones (1874) 21 Wall. 325, 22 L. Ed. 542. But if the proceeds of a sale remain in the custody of the state court, the proper course for the trustee is to file an intervening petition, asking that such proceeds should be ordered delivered over to him. Bear v. Chase (C. C. A. 1900) 99 Fed. 920, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 746. And in any case the fund, if recovered, must be turned over to the bankruptcy court and administered by it as a part of the bankrupt's estate. Lovell v. Latham & Co. (C. C. 1911) 186 Fed. 602, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 599.

38. —— Right of action.—Since a trustee in bankruptcy represents the whole body of creditors, and not merely lien claimants or the bankrupt, it is his right and duty to contest the validity of any conveyance, mortgage, payment, or other transfer of property by which one creditor has obtained a preference over others, and he is the only proper party to bring the necessary action. In re Metzger (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 355, Fed. Cas. No. 9,510; Balfour v. Wheeler (D. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 229. Such an action cannot be brought by a creditor who has not made himself a party to the bankruptcy proceedings. Smith v. Brainerd (1887) 37 Minn. 479, 35 N. W. 271. An attack by a bankruptcy trustee on a transfer as a voidable preference, if made within the four-month period, is not affected by state laws or decisions which apply only to attacks on other grounds. Williams v. German-American Trust Co. (1915) 219 Fed. 507, 135 C. C. A. 257. The amendment of 1910 to section 47 (ante, § 9631), authorizes the trustee to challenge any security or conveyance that a lien or judgment creditor might have challenged had bankruptcy not intervened. Corey v. Blackwell Lumber Co. (1913) 135 P. 742, 24 Idaho, 642.

The proper defendant in such an action is the party receiving the alleged preference or who is to be benefited by it. Gray v. Brunold (1903) 140 Cal. 615, 74 Pac. 303. It is immaterial that such party is a municipal corporation. Painter v. Napoleon Tp. (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 289, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 412.

It is not necessary to the trustee's right of action that the creditor should have actually received money or property, but a preference, voidable at the suit of the trustee, is given by the creation of a security, or by a release of the debtor's equity of redemption in property. Jackman v. Eau Claire Nat. Bank (1905) 125 Wis. 465, 104 N. W. 98, 115 Am. St. Rep. 955. Or by a transfer of a claim against a third person, which is credited upon the price of the bankrupt's stock in trade when bought by the preferred creditor. Hackney v. Raymond Bros. Clarke Co. (1903) 68 Neb. 624, 94 N. W. 822. Where the trustee, alleging that a sale by the bankrupt just prior to his adjudication, was fraudulent, brings an action against the purchaser for the value of the goods, and receives money in settlement of such claim, he is not thereby precluded from following the money received by the bankrupt for the goods into the hands of preferred creditors. Lampkin v. People's Nat. Bank (1902) 98 Mo. App. 239, 71 S. W. 715.

A previous demand for the return or surrender of a preference is not a condition precedent to the trustee's right to sue for its recovery or annulment. Eau Claire Nat. Bank v. Jackman (1907) 204 U. S. 522, 27 Sup. Ct. 391, 51 L. Ed. 596, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 675; Boonville Nat. Bank v. Blakey (1906) 166 Ind. 427, 76 N. E. 529; Capital Nat. Bank v. Wilkerson (1905) 36 Ind.

App. 467, 75 N. E. 837; Chicago Title & Trust Co. v. Moody (1908) 233 Ill. 634, 84 N. E. 656; Bowler v. First Nat. Bank (1907) 21 S. D. 449, 113 N. W. 618, 130 Am. St. Rep. 725.

39. —— Form of action or proceeding.—Where a trustee in bankruptcy seeks to recover a preference, but without showing the need of an injunction or discovery or accounting, or of specific performance or the reformation or cancellation of any instrument, but merely asks a decree for the amount of the preference, he has an adequate remedy at law. Detroit Trust Co. v. Old Nat. Bank (1908) 155 Mich. 61, 118 N. W. 729; Boonville Nat. Bank v. Blakey (1906) 166 Ind. 427, 76 N. E. 529; Allen v. Gray (1911) 201 N. Y. 504, 94 N. E. 652, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 123. But if it is necessary to his case that he should avoid a conveyance, transfer, or incumbrance apparently good, or a judgment valid on its face, his proper course is to sue in equity, and it is none the less an equitable action because the ultimate relief sought is a money judgment. Dyer v. Kratzenstein (1905) 103 App. Div. 404, 92 N. Y. Supp. 1012; Lesser v. Bradford Realty Co. (1906) 116 App. Div. 212, 101 N. Y. Supp. 571; Andrews v. Mather (1902) 134 Ala. 358, 32 South. 738; In re Swenk (C. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 643. A trustee's suit to recover a prohibited preference is analogous to a suit by a judgment creditor to set aside a fraudulent conveyance, and hence its maintenance as a suit in equity is not objectionable on the ground of the existence of an adequate remedy at law. Pond v. New York Nat. Exch. Bank (D. C. 1903) 124 Fed. 992, 10 Am. Bankr. 343; Johnson v. Hanley (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 752, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 748; Goodenow v. Milliken (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 5,535; Houghton v. Stiner (1904) 92 App. Div. 171, 87 N. Y. Supp. 10. CONTRA, Baden v. Bertenshaw (1903) 68 Kan. 32, 74 Pac. 639; Brock & Spight v. Oliver (1907) 149 Ala. 93, 43 South. 357. But where a suit in equity is brought by a trustee to avoid an alleged preferential transfer, and to recover a fund to be administered by the bankruptcy court, one claiming a lien on the fund if recovered cannot intervene and enforce such lien by cross-bill, for the rule is that the subject-matter of a cross-bill must be a defense to the original bill, or essentially connected with and necessary to a complete determination of the original suit. Lovell v. Latham & Co. (C. C. 1911) 186 Fed. 602, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 599.

Where the action is maintained in the bankruptcy court, it must be a plenary suit, and not a mere summary hearing, unless the defendant will consent; but if he is properly brought into court, it is competent for him to waive an objection of this kind, and in that case the issue may be determined in any appropriate form of proceeding. In (D. C. 1905) 137 Fed. 694, Bankr. Rep. 715; In re Ulrich 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 14,327.

40. —— Pleading.—In the t bill or complaint to avoid or re preference, it is not necessary t facts sufficient to constitute a c action to set aside a fraudulent ance of real estate, all that is sary being sufficient allegation preference given by an insolven four months of the filing of the in bankruptcy. Marion State Gossett (1911) 175 Ind. 211, 9 996; Lesser v. Bradford Rea (1906) 116 App. Div. 212, 10 Supp. 571. The plaintiff must n show his own capacity to sue, is done by alleging the filing petition in bankruptcy, the adju of the bankrupt, and the appo and qualification of the plaintiff tee, together with an allegatio mand and refusal of surrender preference. Lesser v. Bradford Co. (1906) 116 App. Div. 212, Y. Supp. 571; Capital Nat. Wilkerson (1905) 36 Ind. App. N. E. 837. Aside from this, t essential allegations of the c are (1) that the bankrupt wa vent when the alleged prefere given; (2) that it was with months prior to the bankrupt that the effect of the enforce the judgment or transfer will b able the defendant to obtain a percentage of his debt than a creditor of the same class; defendant had reasonable groun lieve that a preference woul from the transaction. The omi any one of these allegations v der the complaint demurrable. v. Napoleon Tp. (D. C. 1907) 1 289, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 412; son v. Lederer, Strauss & Co. 128 Iowa, 286, 103 N. W. 794.

The allegation of the debtor' vency must be specific; it is n cient to state that he was in fai cumstances and unable to m debts in full. Martin v. Bigelow 36 Misc. Rep. 298, 73 N. Y. Su And it is necessary to show, e or by necessary allegation, t payment was made or propert ferred out of the estate of th rupt. Richter v. Nimmo (19 App. Div. 422, 71 N. Y. Supp. 5

As to the allegation that the ence, if permitted to stand, wil the defendant to obtain a larg centage of his claim than othe tors of the same class, this is necessary. Schreyer v. Citize Bank (1902) 74 App. Div. 47 Y. Supp. 494; West v. Bank homa (1906) 16 Okl. 329, 469; Lesser v. Bradford Re (1906) 116 App. Div. 212, 10 Supp. 571; Crooks v. Peopl Bank (1899) 46 App. Div. 33

Y. Supp. 604. To show this, it is necessary to insert allegations disclosing the existence of other creditors, general unsecured creditors who are entitled to participate in the distribution of the estate. Gering v. Leyda (1911) 186 Fed. 110, 108 C. C. A. 222, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 137. And it has been held that the bill is demurrable if it fails to allege that there are not sufficient assets to pay all the creditors who have filed claims against the estate. Lesser v. Bradford Realty Co. (1905) 47 Misc. Rep. 463, 95 N. Y. Supp. 933. Or that if the complaint alleges that the schedules of the bankrupt show a certain amount of unsecured claims, it must also show the amount of preferred and secured claims. Grant v. National Bank of Auburn (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 581, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 712. But later and perhaps better considered decisions are to the effect that the trustee need not allege that the assets of the estate are not sufficient to pay the creditors in full. Kraver v. Abrahams (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 782, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 365. Or even that any creditor has filed a claim in the bankruptcy proceeding or any fact showing the necessity for recovering the alleged preference. Jackman v. Eau Claire Nat. Bank (1905) 125 Wis. 465, 104 N. W. 98, 115 Am. St. Rep. 955. And the value of the debtor's property and the extent of his indebtedness need not be set out, as these are matters of evidence. Crooks v. People's Nat. Bank (1899) 46 App. Div. 335, 61 N. Y. Supp. 604.

It is strictly necessary to aver that the defendant had reasonable cause to believe that the enforcement of the judgment or transfer would result in giving him a preference. Greene v. Montana Brewing Co. (1903) 28 Mont. 380, 72 Pac. 751; Johnson v. Anderson (1903) 70 Neb. 233, 97 N. W. 339; Peck v. Connell (1902) 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 22. But it is not necessary to aver a reason why he had such cause of belief or to state the evidence of it. Crooks v. People's Nat. Bank (1899) 46 App. Div. 335, 61 N. Y. Supp. 604.

It is not sufficient to allege that the transaction in question was fraudulent, or that there was a fraudulent intent on the part of the debtor or of the creditor; this kind of allegation cannot take the place of specific statements of the insolvency of the debtor and of the effect of the transaction as a preference. In re Leech (1909) 171 Fed. 622, 96 C. C. A. 424, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 599; Severin v. Robinson (1901) 27 Ind. App. 55, 60 N. E. 966; Hallack v. Tritch (C. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 293, Fed. Cas. No. 5,956.

But on the other hand, if all the elements of a voidable preference are pleaded, no allegation of fraud is needed, as the statute does not require the presence of any other fraud than such as is implied in the particular kind of transactions which it denounces as preferential. Chism v. Bank of Friars Point (Miss. 1900) 27 South. 610; Thompson v. First Nat. Bank (1904) 84 Miss. 54, 36 South. 65.

In an action at law by a trustee in bankruptcy to recover a preference, the complaint is not demurrable merely because it demands judgment for too large a sum. Grant v. National Bank of Auburn (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 581, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 712.

41. —— Defenses.—Ignorance of the law is no defense to a creditor who is sued for the recovery of an illegal preference. Martin v. Toof (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 9,167. Nor a decree of a land court granting registration of title to the property in question under the conveyance assailed as preferential, especially if the defendant is not a bona fide purchaser taking in reliance on the registered title. Morris v. Small (C. C. 1908) 160 Fed. 142, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 138. Nor can the preferred creditor resist the trustee's action on the ground that he has expended money in the custody and care of the property in question, his claim for compensation being one which must be presented for allowance against the estate in bankruptcy. In re Nechamkus (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 867, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 189.

The defendant in a suit to recover an alleged preference may defend on the ground that his taking of the property was merely in pursuance of his rescission of a contract by which he had sold it to the bankrupt. Blyth & Fargo Co. v. Kastor (1908) 17 Wyo. 180, 97 Pac. 921. Or he may escape liability by repudiating all claim to the property or its proceeds. Giveen v. Smith (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 5,-466. Or he may show that the payment or transfer was not received from the bankrupt, but from a third person. North v. Taylor (1901) 61 App. Div. 253, 70 N. Y. Supp. 339.

42. —— Set-off of amount of new credit.—The provision of subdivision "c" of this section, with reference to the set-off of new credits, entitles a preferred creditor to a deduction of the amount of the new credit from a preference which he is required to surrender before proving his claim, and is not limited in its application to cases where the trustee sues to recover the preference. Kahn v. Cone Export & Commission Co. (1902) 115 Fed. 290, 53 C. C. A. 92, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 157; Gans v. Ellison (1902) 114 Fed. 734, 52 C. C. A. 366, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 153; McKey v. Lee (1901) 105 Fed. 923, 45 C. C. A. 127, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 267; Peterson v. Nash Bros. (1901) 112 Fed. 311, 50 C. C. A. 260, 55 L. R. A. 344, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep.

181; In re Southern Overalls Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1901) 111 Fed. 518, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 633; In re Ryan (D. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 760, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 396; In re Seckler (D. C. 1901) 106 Fed. 484, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 579; In re Soldosky (D. C. 1901) 111 Fed. 511, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 123. CONTRA, see In re Keller (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 118, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 334; In re Christensen (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 802, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 202; In re Abraham Steers Lumber Co. (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 738, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 315.

It is the intention of this provision that the preference shall have been given in settlement and discharge of an existing debt, and that a new and unconnected transfer of property on credit shall have ensued. In re John Morrow & Co. (D. C. 1901) 134 Fed. 686, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 392; In re Bailey (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 928, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 26. Where a mortgagee surrendered a portion of the proceeds of certain insurance to the mortgagor, that it might be repaid to the mortgagee and credited on an unsecured debt, the transaction was not such that, on the repayment being declared a preference, the mortgagee could claim the right then to credit it against the mortgage debt. Stearns Salt & Lumber Co. v. Hammond (1914) 217 Fed. 559, 133 C. C. A. 411. Deposits of an insolvent customer after the bank cashier has forbidden payment of checks against the deposit, and but a few hours before an involuntary petition in bankruptcy against the customer, constitute a voidable preference, and cannot be allowed by way of set-off against the customer's debt to the bank. Mechanics' & Metals Nat. Bank of City of New York v. Ernst (1913) 34 Sup. Ct. 22, 231 U. S. 60, 58 L. Ed. 121, affirming decree Ernst v. Mechanics' & Metals Nat. Bank of City of New York (1912) 201 Fed. 664, 120 C. C. A. 92.

Where preferential payments have been made on an account for goods sold, and the trustee demands their surrender before the claim shall be allowed, the creditor cannot set off the unpaid balance. In re Christensen (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 802, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 202; In re Ryan (D. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 760, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 396. Payments made by a bankrupt, who was general manager of defendant, to it on overdrafts, which were retained, held voidable preferences, subject to defendant's right to set off subsequent credits made in good faith to the bankrupt and without security. Rogers v. American Halibut Co. (1913) 103 N. E. 689, 216 Mass. 227.

It is necessary that the property for which the credit was given should have been acquired by the bankrupt from the preferred creditor himself. Carleton Dry Goods Co. v. Rogers (190 Fed. 14, 57 C. C. A. 34, 9 Am. Rep. 787. But it is not necessa the property should remain a p the debtor's estate until his ad tion in bankruptcy, or that it be used in payment of preferred Kaufman v. Treadway (1904) S. 271, 25 Sup. Ct. 33, 49 L. E The creditor claiming this right off must allege and show all th essential to entitle him to it, th as if he sought to maintain a se action on his claim. In re Oliv C. 1901) 109 Fed. 784, 6 Am. Rep. 626.

43. —— Burden of proof an dence.—In an action to set aside cover a transfer, incumbrance, c ment, alleged to constitute an u preference, the burden of proof the trustee in bankruptcy to es the existence of each of the st elements of a voidable pref Carey v. Donohue (1913) 209 Fe 126 C. C. A. 254; Northern Neck Bank v. Smith (1913) 205 Fe 124 C. C. A. 207; Mayes v. Paln C. A. 1913) 208 Fed. 97; No Neck State Bank v. Smith (191 Fed. 894, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 5 re Dorr (C. C. A. 1912) 196 Fe 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 505; Kimm Farr (C. C. A. 1911) 189 Fed. 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 818; Bro Streicher (D. C. 1910) 177 Fe 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 267; Cr Penny (D. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 187 sons v. Topliff (1876) 119 Mas 14 N. B. R. 547; Burnham v. Ft. Grocery Co. (1909) 144 Iowa, 5 N. W. 220; Getman v. Second Bank (1882) 89 N. Y. 136; St v. Gebo (1905) 48 Misc. Rep. 3 N. Y. Supp. 781; Keith v. Gett Nat. Bank (1903) 23 Pa. Super. Wickwire v. Webster City Sav. (1911) 153 Iowa, 225, 133 N. W Hackney v. First Nat. Bank (19 Neb. 588, 94 N. W. 805, 98 N. W Kentucky Bank & Trust Co. v. ett (Okl. 1914) 143 Pac. 338.

To show the fact that the bank law has become applicable to the action in question, by reason debtor's having been adjudged rupt as of a certain date, a p certified copy of the adjudicat bankruptcy is admissible. Cal Farmers' & Mechanics' Bank 99 Mo. App. 509, 73 S. W. 1098; son v. Farber Bank (1904) 10 App. 605, 80 S. W. 327. And proper to show that the defe attorney was present when the ruptcy proceedings were had, as ing notice thereof. Calkins v. ers' & Mechanics' Bank (1903) App. 509, 73 S. W. 1098. But t that the particular transactio which the trustee's suit is base alleged as an act of bankruptcy petition in bankruptcy, and th adjudication was based on it, is not conclusive proof against the defendant that it constituted an illegal preference, because the issues in the two proceedings are not the same. Hussey v. Richardson-Roberts Dry Goods Co. (1906) 148 Fed. 598, 78 C. C. A. 370, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 511; In re Dunkle (D. C. 1870) 7 N. B. R. 72, Fed. Cas. No. 4,-160. But on the other hand, a decree of a state court adverse to the creditor, in a suit between the trustee and himself, is a conclusive estoppel upon the creditor if he seeks afterwards to prove his claim in the bankruptcy proceedings. In re Dakin (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 181, Fed. Cas. No. 3,539.

One thing absolutely essential to constitute a voidable preference is that the debtor should have been insolvent at the time it was given, and the trustee has the burden of proving this fact. In re Gaylord (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 234; Shuetz v. Walter Boyt Saddlery Co. (Iowa, 1914) 147 N. W. 897; In re F. M. & S. Q. Carlile (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 612, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 373; In re Arkonia Fabric Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 914, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 470; Edwards v. Carondelet Milling Co. (1904) 108 Mo. App. 275, 83 S. W. 764; J. W. Crancer & Co. v. Wade (1910) 26 Okl. 757, 110 Pac. 778. But in an action by the trustee to recover money paid by the bankrupt prior to his adjudication in alleged satisfaction of a debt, where the question at issue is whether any such debt existed in fact, it is not necessary to show that there were unsatisfied creditors at the time the payment was made, or at the time of bringing suit or of the trial. Breckons v. Snyder (1905) 211 Pa. 176, 60 Atl. 575.

The mere fact that the debtor was afterwards adjudged bankrupt raises no presumption that he was insolvent at any given time within four months prior to the filing of the petition. In re Chappell (D. C. 1901) 113 Fed. 545, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 608; Swartz v. Frank (1904) 183 Mo. 438, 82 S. W. 60. And the giving of a confession of judgment does not of itself raise a presumption of insolvency. In re Dibblee (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 617, Fed. Cas. No. 3,884. But the verified schedules of the bankrupt, containing a presumptively complete list of his assets and liabilities, are admissible in evidence on the question of his insolvency at the time of the transaction in suit, at least if it occurred not very long before the bankruptcy and without opportunity for any great change in either property or debts. In re Mandel (1905) 135 Fed. 1021, 68 C. C. A. 546; Lynch v. Bronson (1908) 80 Conn. 566, 69 Atl. 538; Summerville v. Stockton Milling Co. (1904) 142 Cal. 530, 76 Pac. 243; Hackney v. Raymond Bros. (1903) 68 Neb. 624, 94 N. W. 822, 99 N. W. 675; Utah Ass'n of Credit Men v. Boyle Furniture Co. (1911) 39 Utah, 518, 117 Pac. 800. But see, CONTRA, Halbert v. Pranke (1904) 91 Minn. 204, 97 N. W. 976; Hibbs v. Marpe (1901) 84 Minn. 10, 86 N. W. 612; Batchelder v. Home Nat. Bank (1914) 218 Mass. 420, 105 N. E. 1052.

The admission in evidence, in an action by a trustee in bankruptcy to recover an alleged preferential payment, of the inventory and appraisement made in the bankruptcy proceeding, held not prejudicial to defendant, where the testimony of a witness also introduced by plaintiff placed a much higher valuation on the property than that shown by the appraisement. Bergdoll v. Harrigan (1914) 217 Fed. 943, 133 C. C. A. 615. The bankrupt's books of account are competent evidence on this issue, to which either party may have recourse, and while their showing as to the debtor's solvency or insolvency is not conclusive, yet it is ordinarily important evidence and entitled to much weight. Grandison v. National Bank of Commerce (D. C. 1915) 220 Fed. 981; Ernst v. Mechanics' & Metals Nat. Bank (D. C. 1911) 200 Fed. 295; In re Docker-Foster Co. (D. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 190, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 584; Utah Ass'n of Credit Men v. Boyle Furniture Co. (1911) 39 Utah, 518, 117 Pac. 800.

The bankrupt may also be called as a witness in the trustee's suit, and his testimony may be received concerning his financial condition at the date in question; and if the giving of a preference excites a suspicion of collusion between the bankrupt and the preferred creditor, or of a desire on the part of the former to aid and shield the latter, this only goes to the bankrupt's credibility, not his competency. Supplee v. Hall (1902) 75 Conn. 17, 52 Atl. 407, 96 Am. St. Rep. 188; Blyth & Fargo Co. v. Kastor (1908) 17 Wyo. 180, 97 Pac. 921; Otis v. Hadley (1873) 112 Mass. 100. And it is proper and permissible for the trustee in bankruptcy to testify as to the value of the assets of the bankrupt coming into his hands, the amount of debts proved, the amount he realized at a sale at auction of the bankrupt's assets, and other like matters, as all these matters have a tendency to show the bankrupt's solvency or insolvency at the time of the alleged preference, although of course they must be considered in connection with any changes in his financial condition which may be shown to have occurred in the interval. Ridge Ave. Bank v. Studheim (1906) 145 Fed. 798, 76 C. C. A. 362, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 863; Capital Nat. Bank v. Wilkerson (1905) 36 Ind. App. 467, 75 N. E. 837; Lynch v. Bronson (1908) 80 Conn. 566, 69 Atl. 538; Coolidge v. Ayers (1905) 77 Vt. 448, 61 Atl. 40. But see Cullinane v. State Bank (1904) 123 Iowa, 340, 98 N. W. 887.

Where a grain company used the proceeds of a sale of its elevator to pay a debt to a bank, in an action by its trustee in bankruptcy to recover such amount from the bank as an unlawful preference, evidence by farmers who had sold grain to the company that their checks had not been honored by such bank when presented after the sale is incompetent to show that the payment of the debt was an illegal preference, and does not show that the bank had knowledge of the transactions with the farmers, but such evidence is competent as against payments to the bank after the checks were presented, if such payments were not made in the usual course of business, or were made for the purpose of giving the bank a preference. Chisholm v. First Nat. Bank (1912) 176 Ill. App. 382. Where the validity of a mortgage is in issue, it is proper to show that, on the day following its execution, the mortgagor made a voluntary conveyance to his son of substantially all his property. Supplee v. Hall (1902) 75 Conn. 17, 52 Atl. 407, 96 Am. St. Rep. 188.

Where defendant permitted a bankrupt's goods to be sold under execution for an amount less than defendant's claim, evidence of what the goods brought at the sale was admissible in a suit by the debtor's trustee in bankruptcy to recover the preference thereby obtained by defendant as bearing on the question whether defendant knew the debtor was insolvent at the time of the attachment. Patterson v. Baker Grocery Co. (Or. 1914) 144 P. 673.

The burden is on the trustee to establish the fact that the intention of the debtor in the transaction was to give a preference. Debus v. Yates (D. C. 1910) 193 Fed. 427, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 823; Stevens v. Oscar Holway Co. (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 90, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 399; Whitwell v. Wright (1910) 136 App. Div. 246, 120 N. Y. Supp. 1065; Jackman v. Eau Claire Nat. Bank (1905) 125 Wis. 465, 104 N. W. 98, 115 Am. St. Rep. 955. Such intention may be proved by circumstantial evidence, all the circumstances which go to to show the intent being considered. Little v. Alexander (1874) 21 Wall. 500, 22 L. Ed. 625; Atherton v. Emerson (1908) 199 Mass. 199, 85 N. E. 530; Wills v. Venus Silk Glove Mfg. Co. (1915) 156 N. Y. Supp. 115. The declarations of the bankrupt at and prior to the time of the transaction in question may also be shown. Nudd v. Barrows (1875) 91 U. S. 426, 23 L. Ed. 286. Failure of the defendant to produce the testimony of the bankrupt or of the creditor alleged to have been preferred, is strongly corroborative of such evidence in the case as tends to show an intent to prefer. Darling v. Townsend (D. C. 1880) 5 Fed. 176. But the testimony of the parties to an alleged preferential transfer is entitled to little weight as against proof of the transaction itself. Oxford Iron Co. v. Slafter (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 10,637.

If the natural and inevitable the payment or transfer is preference, the intention of t in that behalf need not be p will be conclusively presume
Nat. Bank v. Jones (1874)
325, 22 L. Ed. 542; Kimmerl
(C. C. A. 1911) 189 Fed. 29
Bankr. Rep. 818; Brewster
Lumber Co. (D. C. 1908) 164
21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 106; In r
(D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 922, 3 A
Rep. 245; Galveston Dry Goo Frenkel (Tex. Civ. App. 190
W. 224; Blyth & Fargo Co.
(1908) 17 Wyo. 180, 97 Pac. er v. McAllister (1876) 45
Lazarus v. Eagen (D. C. 1
Fed. 518; Utah Ass'n of Cred Boyle Furniture Co. (Utah, Pac. 572.

The trustee must also as burden of proving that the p ceiving the alleged preference benefited by it, or his agent him in the transaction had "r cause to believe that the en of the judgment or transfer fect a preference;" this is essential and there can be no without it. Barbour v. Prie 103 U. S. 293, 26 L. Ed. 478;
v. Tredway (1904) 195 U. S
Sup. Ct. 33, 49 L. Ed. 190
Bankr. Rep. 682; Ogden v. Re
C. 1912) 200 Fed. 977, 29 A
Rep. 531; Tilt v. Citizens'
(D. C. 1911) 191 Fed. 441
Bankr. Rep. 320; Alexander
mond (1910) 180 Fed. 92,
A. 446, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 6
Houghton Web Co. (D. C. 1
Fed. 213, 26 Am. Bankr.
Reber v. Louis Shulman & Br
1910) 179 Fed. 574, 24 Am
Rep. 782; Sparks v. Marsh
1910) 177 Fed. 739, 24 Am
Rep. 280; McElvain v. Hardes
169 Fed. 31, 94 C. C. A. 39
Bankr. Rep. 320; Getts v.
Wholesale Grocery Co. (D.
163 Fed. 417, 21 Am. Bankr
Calhoun County Bank v. Ca
152 Fed. 983, 82 C. C. A. 11
Bankr. Rep. 509; Parker
(1907) 151 Fed. 18, 80 C. C.
Am. Bankr. Rep. 15; Harder
(1910) 66 Misc. Rep. 584, 1
Supp. 1102; Matthews v. Joan
Co. (1909) 156 Mich. 663, 1
272; Couturie v. Crespie ( App. 1911) 134 S. W. 257; W
Wright (1909) 115 N. Y. 8
Atherton v. Emerson (1908)
199, 85 N. E. 530; Lynch v.
(1908) 80 Conn. 566, 69 Atl. drews v. Kellogg (1907) 41
92 Pac. 222; Arkansas Nat.
Sparks (1907) 83 Ark. 324, 1
626; Walker v. Tenison Bros.
Co. (Tex. Civ. App. 1906)
166; Blyth & Fargo Co. v
(1908) 17 Wyo. 180, 97 Pac.
ter v. Clark (D. C. 1911)
153; Galbraith v. Whitake

119 Minn. 447, 138 N. W. 772, 43 L. R. A. (N. S.) 427; Hewitt v. Boston Straw Board Co. (1913) 214 Mass. 260, 101 N. E. 424; Burnes v. Epstein (D. C. 1913) 201 Fed. 393; Owens v. Farmers' Bank of Abbeville (C. C. A. 1915) 228 Fed. 508; Covington v. Brigman (D. C. 1914) 210 Fed. 499; In re Chicago Car Equipment Co. (C. C. A. 1914) 211 Fed. 638; Patterson v. Baker Grocery Co. (Or. 1914) 144 Pac. 673; Continental & Commercial Trust & Savings Bank v. Breen & Kennedy (1914) 188 Ill. App. 467; Voorheis v. National Shawmut Bank (1914) 218 Mass. 69, 105 N. E. 382; Cauthorn v. Burley State Bank (1914) 26 Idaho, 532, 144 Pac. 1108; Soule v. First Nat. Bank of Ashton (Idaho, 1914) 140 Pac. 1098. In an action by a trustee in bankruptcy to recover as an unlawful preference an amount received by a bank in payment of a debt, an instruction that the law presumes that the bank had no reasonable cause to believe a preference would be created by the payment of the debt, and the jury should act on such presumption unless it is overcome by a preponderance of evidence, states the law correctly, and is not covered by an instruction informing the jury what the plaintiff must prove by a preponderance of evidence, but not informing the jury what the presumption of law is in such a case. Chisholm v. First Nat. Bank (1912) 176 Ill. App. 382.

The burden of showing that the creditor had reasonable cause to believe that a preference was intended is sufficiently sustained by showing facts and circumstances with respect to the debtor's financial condition such as would put an ordinarily prudent man on inquiry, which would have disclosed the debtor's insolvency and the consequent fact that the transfer would effect a preference. Capital Nat. Bank v. Wilkerson (1905) 36 Ind. App. 467, 75 N. E. 837. The existence of reasonable cause to believe that a preference was intended may be shown by circumstantial evidence. In re Baker (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 433, Fed. Cas. No. 763. The test of the sufficiency of the evidence to warrant the submission of the question to the jury does not rest on the assertions of either party as to his intent or belief, but on inferences which may fairly arise from the facts in evidence. Hamilton Nat. Bank v. Balcomb (1910) 177 Fed. 155, 100 C. C. A. 575, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 338. Such cause of belief is not shown by circumstantial evidence where the circumstances are as consistent with the theory of innocence and good faith on the part of the creditor as with the theory of a fraudulent purpose. Burnham v. Ft. Dodge Grocery Co. (1909) 144 Iowa, 577, 123 N. W. 220. Proof that the bankrupt, while insolvent, paid or secured the defendant creditor in full, without making adequate compensation to his other creditors, raises a presumption that the defendant knew that he was being preferred and that the debtor was insolvent, and casts upon him the burden of showing the contrary. Stobaugh v. Mills (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 361, Fed. Cas. No. 13,461; Crawford v. Rumpf (1903) 205 Pa. 154, 54 Atl. 709. The treasurer of a corporation, to whom it made a preferential payment while insolvent, will be presumed to have known its true financial condition. In re W. A. Silvernail Co. (D. C. 1914) 218 Fed. 979.

It is likewise necessary, in order to establish a voidable preference, to show that the preferred creditor actually received as a result of the transaction a greater percentage of his debt than that payable to the other creditors. Engel v. Union Square Bank (1905) 182 N. Y. 544, 75 N. E. 1129; Gering v. Leyda (1911) 186 Fed. 110, 108 C. C. A. 222, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 137. And the burden is on the trustee to show that the transaction took place within four months prior to the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. Allen v. Gray (1909) 63 Misc. Rep. 219, 115 N. Y. Supp. 928. And that the relation of debtor and creditor then subsisted between the parties, and not a a trust relation or other situation which would take the case out of the statute. Ferguson v. Bauernfeind (1909) 140 Wis. 42, 121 N. W. 647. And that the transaction was not a mere exchange or substitution of securities. State Bank of Williamson v. Fish (1909) 120 N. Y. Supp. 365.

Decisions on weight and sufficiency of evidence, see Grandison v. Robertson (D. C. 1915) 220 Fed. 985; In re Mosher (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 739; Harris v. Dodge (1915) 224 Fed. 432, 140 C. C. A. 126; Brookheim v. Greenbaum (D. C. 1912) 225 Fed. 635; Aronin v. Security Bank of New York (C. C. A. 1915) 228 Fed. 888; Cardozo v. Brooklyn Trust Co. (C. C. A. 1915) 228 Fed. 333; Newman v. Tootle-Campbell Dry Goods Co. (Mo. App. 1913) 160 S. W. 825; Rubenstein v. Lottow (1915) 220 Mass. 156, 107 N. E. 718; Kendall v. Kroeger-Amos-James Grocer Co. (1912) 173 Ill. App. 504.

44. —— Trial.—On the trial of an action to recover an unlawful preference, disputed issues of fact must be submitted to the jury, if there is sufficient evidence to warrant or require it, and not taken from them by binding instructions. Clingman v. Miller (1908) 160 Fed. 326, 87 C. C. A. 278, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 360; Utah Ass'n of Credit Men v. Boyle Furniture Co. (1911) 39 Utah, 518, 117 Pac. 800; Blake v. Third Nat. Bank (1909) 219 Mo. 644, 118 S. W. 641.

The question whether or not the defendant had "reasonable cause to believe" that a preference would result from the transaction in question or from the enforcement of the security obtained by him is a question of fact, and ordinarily he has the right to have the jury pass upon and decide it. Coleman v. Decatur Egg Case Co. (1911) 186 Fed. 136, 108 C. C. A. 248, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 248; Wetstein v. Franciscus (1904) 133 Fed. 900, 67 C. C. A. 62, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 326; Ridge Ave. Bank v. Studheim (1906) 145 Fed. 798, 76 C. C. A. 362, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 863; Andrews v. Kellogg (1907) 41 Colo. 35, 92 Pac. 222; Brown v. Pelonsky (1912) 210 Mass. 502, 96 N. E. 1102; Hastings v. Fithian (1905) 71 N. J. Law, 311, 60 Atl. 350; Marden v. Sugden (1902) 71 N. H. 274, 52 Atl. 74; Jackman v. Eau Claire Nat. Bank (1905) 125 Wis. 465, 104 N. W. 98, 115 Am. St. Rep. 955; Upson v. Mt. Morris Bank (1905) 103 App. Div. 367, 92 N. Y. Supp. 1101; Hackney v. Raymond Bros. Clarke Co. (1903) 68 Neb. 624, 94 N. W. 822, 99 N. W. 675; Landis v. McDonald (1901) 88 Mo. App. 335; Harmon v. Walker (1902) 131 Mich. 540, 91 N. W. 1025; Deland v. Miller & Chaney Bank (1903) 119 Iowa, 368, 93 N. W. 304. But where the undisputed facts unmistakably show the existence of such reasonable cause of belief, it is not error to direct a verdict. Shale v. Farmers' Bank of Morrill (1910) 82 Kan. 649, 109 Pac. 408; Christopherson v. Oleson (1905) 19 S. D. 176, 102 N. W. 685. Where the only thing that would prevent a trustee in bankruptcy from recovering property sold under a mortgage foreclosure as a preference was the fact that he had taken possession under arrangement of the parties, a verdict for defendant was improperly directed where a portion of such property was not turned over to him. Clifford v. Dalton-Ingersoll Mfg. Co. (1913) 101 N. E. 373, 214 Mass. 302. Where there is no evidence in the case from which the jury could draw the conclusion that the creditor had reasonable cause to believe a preference was intended, binding instructions in favor of the defendant are proper. Keith v. Gettysburg Nat. Bank (1903) 23 Pa. Super. Ct. 14.

The instructions on matters of law, such as the meaning of "insolvency," the nature of a voidable preference, what constitutes reasonable cause to believe a preference was intended, and the like, must be framed with careful regard to the language of the statute and its accepted interpretation. Lynch v. Bronson (1908) 80 Conn. 566, 69 Atl. 538; Galveston Dry Goods Co. v. Frenkel (Tex. Civ. App. 1907) 103 S. W. 224; Johnston v. George D. Witt Shoe Co. (1905) 103 Va. 611, 50 S. E. 153; Wilkinson v. Anderson-Taylor Co. (1904) 28 Utah, 346, 79 Pac. 46; Forbes v. Howe (1869) 102 Mass. 427, 3 Am. Rep. 475; Blyth & Fargo Co. v. Kastor (1908) 17 Wyo. 180, 97 Pac. 921. But a charge in regard to the d having "ground to believe" ence was intended, instead to believe," in the languag statute, is not objectionable. v. Carondelet Milling Co. (Mo. App. 275, 83 S. W. 7 where the trustee's suit proce on the ground of the defend ing received an unlawful pre request to charge on the elem fraudulent conveyance is pr fused. Johnston v. George Shoe Co. (1905) 103 Va. 611 153. Where an assignment b rupt was attacked as a prefe not on the ground of actual finding that it was not give faith would not be regarded firmative finding of fraud. Henrickson (1913) 139 N. W. Minn. 427. In an action a creditor of a bankrupt pers cover preferential payments a tion on the "net result rul omits the elements of oper knowledge of insolvency and in the regular course of busi properly refused. Chisholm Nat. Bank of Le Roy (1915) 657, 269 Ill. 110, reversing (1914) 190 Ill. App. 354.

45. —— Measure of damag covery.—Where a transfer b rupt is found to be a voidab ence, the trustee is entitled the value of the property f istration in accordance with sions of the bankruptcy la some of the bankrupt's debts tracted subsequent to the Covington v. Brigman (D. C. Fed. 499.

If an unlawful preference c a payment of money, the tr vailing in a suit to annul i tled to a judgment for an equ Jones v. Kinney (D. C. 1871) No. 7,473. If it consisted of of personal property, he is a return of the specific pro still remains in the credito Cookingham v. Morgan (C. Fed. Cas. No. 3,183; Clarid mer (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. where he left the disposition ties transferred by the bank bank to the absolute discret bank, the proceeds if sold t the place of the securities, t entitled to avoid the transfer erence under the bankruptcy a entitled to a return of the and an accounting as to any or interest collected in the he cannot hold the bank liabl preciation in the market va securities. Ernst v. Mechani als Nat. Bank (C. C. A. 1912 664. A trustee in bankruptc sued to recover securities a red by way of preference, c to recover damages instead of a return of the securities, where they have depreciated in value and where defendant authorized to sell the securities in its discretion had exercised its judgment not to sell. National City Bank of New York v. Hotchkiss (1913) 34 Sup. Ct. 20, 231 U. S. 50, 58 L. Ed. 115, affirming decree Ernst v. Mechanics' & Metals Nat. Bank of City of New York (1912) 201 Fed. 664, 120 C. C. A. 92.

If the property transferred to the preferred creditor has been sold by him, or it is otherwise out of his power to return it, the trustee is entitled to a judgment for its value. McElvain v. Hardesty (1909) 169 Fed. 31, 94 C. C. A. 399, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 320; Andrews v. Kellogg (1907) 41 Colo. 35, 92 Pac. 222; Claridge v. Kulmer (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 399; Cookingham v. Morgan (C. C. 1870) 5 N. B. R. 16, Fed. Cas. No. 3,183; Drummond v. Smith (1909) 118 N. Y. Supp. 718. And where the bankrupt had given two mortgages on his stock of goods, both preferential, and the first mortgagee took possession, sold enough to pay his claim, and turned over the rest to the second mortgagee, and was then sued by the trustee in bankruptcy and his mortgage held void as a preference, it was held that he was liable for the value of the entire stock, and not merely for the value of the goods sold while the stock was in his possession. Whitson v. Farber Bank (1904) 105 Mo. App. 605, 80 S. W. 327.

If the preference consisted in a sale of the bankrupt's property to a creditor for less than half its value, but the amount received by the bankrupt has been turned over to the trustee, the latter is entitled to recover from the preferred creditor the difference between the amount so received and the value of the property. Stern v. Louisville Trust Co. (1901) 112 Fed. 501, 50 C. C. A. 367, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 305. For the purposes of a judgment in such cases, the value of the property preferentially transferred is to be taken as its actual market value at the time of the transfer, and not the sum which it brought on a sale of it by the preferred creditor or under process issued at his suit. First Nat. Bank v. Jones (1874) 21 Wall. 325, 22 L. Ed. 542. But if it appears that he sold the property to as good advantage as the trustee could have done, the creditor should not be held to account for more than he received. Allen v. McMannes (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 615, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 276. And if the parties, at the trial, stipulate the market value of the property at the time of the transfer, the sum so fixed will be the measure of the defendant's liability. Gering v. Leyda (1911) 186 Fed. 110, 108 C. C. A. 222, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 137. Where one to whom a brick plant was transferred by a bankrupt, within four months before his bankruptcy, made large expenditures in putting in new machinery and otherwise improving the plant, any property thus added was no part of the estate in bankruptcy. Sieg v. Greene (C. C. A. 1915) 225 Fed. 955.

If the preference consisted in a judgment procured or suffered by the bankrupt, under which the creditor issued execution and sold property, he may be allowed credit for the actual expenses of the sale, but not including the officer's fees. Sedgwick v. Millward (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 347, Fed. Cas. No. 12,618.

The preferred creditor should also be charged with interest, but only from the time when demand was made on him for the surrender of the preference, as, after that time, he holds the property or fund as a trustee ex maleficio. Benjamin v. Chandler (D. C. 1905) 142 Fed. 217, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 439; Ommen v. Talcott (D. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 261, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 572; Cookingham v. Morgan (C. C. 1870) 5 N. B. R. 16, Fed. Cas. No. 3,183. According to some of the authorities, he should be charged with interest from the commencement of the action. Capital Nat. Bank v. Wilkerson (1873) 36 Ind. App. 467, 75 N. E. 837; Utah Ass'n of Credit Men v. Boyle Furniture Co. (Utah, 1913) 136 Pac. 572.

In the case where the money or property preferentially transferred would have been more than sufficient to pay in full all the remaining creditors of the bankrupt, only so much may be recovered by the trustee as is necessary for that purpose and for the costs and expenses of the bankruptcy proceedings. Rogers v. Page (1905) 140 Fed. 596, 72 C. C. A. 164, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 502.

Where the suit is brought and judgment recovered in the bankruptcy court, the bill containing a prayer for general relief, the court is not limited to the entry of a money judgment against the preferred creditor, but may issue an order commanding him to pay the amount of the judgment to the trustee in bankruptcy, and may commit him for contempt until compliance. In re Plant (D. C. 1906) 148 Fed. 37, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 272. And the defendant is not entitled to have judgment withheld until he has proved his claim and a dividend in his favor has been declared, and to have the amount thereof deducted from the judgment. Templeton v. Kehler (D. C. 1909) 173 Fed. 574, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 39. The court of bankruptcy, possessing the full powers of a court of equity, may also enforce equities of the defendant as against any other creditor who would be entitled otherwise to share in the recovery. Allen v. McMannes (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 615, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 276. On the other hand, the dismissal of a bill by the trustee to set aside an alleged fraudulent preference, where the construction of the statute was doubtful, should be without costs. Collins v. Gray (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 3,-013.

The right to dower in land revives, where a conveyance of such set aside as an illegal preferen the bankruptcy law, or is sur by the preferred creditor. In tert (D. C. 1875) 11 N. B. R. 2 Cas. No. 3,829.

CHAPTER SEVEN

Estates

Sec.
9645. Depositories for money.
9646. Expenses of administering estates.
9647. Debts which may be proved.
9648. Debts which have priority.
9649. Declaration and payment of dividends.
9650. Unclaimed dividends.
9651. Liens.
9652. Set-offs and counterclain 9653. Possession of property.
9654. Title to property.
9655. Bankruptcy records; clerks to keep; inspec 9656. Restriction of compens referees, receivers, and trustees.

§ 9645. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 61.) Depositories for Depositories for Money.—a Courts of bankruptcy shall nate, by order, banking institutions as depositories for the of bankrupt estates, as convenient as may be to the reside trustees, and shall require bonds to the United States, sul their approval, to be given by such banking institutions, a from time to time as occasion may require, by like order incr number of depositories or the amount of any bond or chan depositories. (30 Stat. 562.)

Notes of Decisions

Depositories and their bonds.—Where a trustee in bankruptcy, depositing the bankrupt's money to his own account or his firm's account, paid to the bankrupt the amount set apart as exempt under Civ. Code Ga. 1910, § 3413, as soon as set apart by the referee, creditors of the bankrupt, holding waivers, could not compel the trustee to redeposit in a bankruptcy depository the money paid to the bankrupt. In re Barnett (D. C. 1914) 214 Fed. 263.

Under this section, the beneficiaries of the bond of a designated depository of the money of bankrupt estates include all depositing trustees and receivers of bankrupt estates. A surety on a depository's bond has no rigl rogation until all the creditor payment of the depository's en gation. An action may be br such a bond in the name of th States on behalf and for the the interested parties. Id. T of trustees and receivers i bankruptcy proceedings, thou on a single obligation, are se as the United States is not empowered to represent the as equitable beneficiaries, the law furnishes no remedy, and equity could alone afford an remedy. Illinois Surety Co. (C. C. A. 1915) 226 Fed. 665

§ 9646. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 62.) Expenses of admin estates.

Expenses of Administering Estates.—a The actual and sary expenses incurred by officers in the administration of shall, except where other provisions are made for their pa be reported in detail, under oath, and examined and appr disapproved by the court. If approved, they shall be pai lowed out of the estates in which they were incurred. (3 562.)

Notes of Decisions

Expenses of administration.—It is the policy of the bankruptcy act, manifest in all its provisions regarding expenses and fees, to reduce to a minimum the cost of administering estates, courts are bound to give th such a construction and appli will fulfill the intention of Co

this respect. In re Harrison Mercantile Co. (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 123, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 419.

A deputy marshal appointed to take charge of a bankrupt's store and the stock of goods therein, and responsible on his bond for the value of the property, may hire a competent person as watchman if he has any reason to apprehend danger to the property, and charge in his accounts a reasonable sum as compensation for the services of such watchman. In re Scott (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 404, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 625. Compare In re Pickhardt (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 879, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 524. But the creditors are not officers; and hence, for instance, the expenses of the creditors in attending meetings will not be allowed out of the estate. In re Ward (D. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 349, Fed. Cas. No. 17,145.

§ 9647. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 63.) Debts which may be proved.

Debts which may be Proved.—a Debts of the bankrupt may be proved and allowed against his estate which are (1) a fixed liability, as evidenced by a judgment or an instrument in writing, absolutely owing at the time of the filing of the petition against him, whether then payable or not, with any interest thereon which would have been recoverable at that date or with a rebate of interest upon such as were not then payable and did not bear interest; (2) due as costs taxable against an involuntary bankrupt who was at the time of the filing of the petition against him plaintiff in a cause of action which would pass to the trustee and which the trustee declines to prosecute after notice; (3) founded upon a claim for taxable costs incurred in good faith by a creditor before the filing of a petition an action to recover a provable debt; (4) founded upon an open account, or upon a contract express or implied; and (5) founded upon provable debts reduced to judgments after the filing of the petition and before the consideration of the bankrupt's application for a discharge, less costs incurred and interest accrued after the filing of the petition and up to the time of the entry of such judgments.

b Unliquidated claims against the bankrupt may, pursuant to application to the court, be liquidated in such manner as it shall direct, and may thereafter be proved and allowed against the estate. (30 Stat. 562, 563.)

Notes of Decisions

1. Construction of this section.
2. Creditors entitled to prove claims.
3. Estoppel to prove claim.
4. Fraud barring proof of claim.
5. Nature of claims provable.
6. Amount of claim provable.
7. Effect of payment or satisfaction.
8. Time of accrual of claims.
9. Claims on contracts.
10. —— Contracts of employment.
11. Promissory notes.
12. Judgments.
13. Equitable claims and demands.
14. Contingent demands and liabilities.
15. Unliquidated demands.
16. Assigned claims.
17. Debts payable in the future.
18. Interest accrued and accruing.
19. Costs, expenses, and collection fees.
20. Liability of bankrupt as indorser, guarantor, or surety.
21. Rights of bankrupt's surety or indorser.
22. Rights of creditor where several parties liable.
23. Claims of bankrupt's wife.
24. Claims for alimony.
25. Unpaid subscriptions to stock and stockholder's statutory liability.
26. Debts created by bankrupt's fraud.
27. Taxes and interest and penalties thereon.
28. Breaches of real covenants.
29. Claims for torts.
30. Fines, penalties, and forfeitures.
31. Debts barred by limitations.
32. —— Acknowledgment or part payment.
33. —— Dormant judgments.
34. Claims founded on illegal or immoral consideration.
35. Ultra vires and unlawful contracts of corporations.
36. Landlord's rights and remedies.
37. —— Landlord's lien.
38. —— Rent to accrue after adjudication.
39. —— Occupation and use of premises by trustee.
40. —— Damages for breach of contract or covenant.

1. Construction of this section.—The several subdivisions of this section are not to be regarded as an enumeration of a group of characteristics all of which are essential to a provable claim, but as a classification, each specifying a separate class of provable claims independently of the others; and hence the provision of the first clause, limiting the claims provable thereunder to those which were a fixed liability absolutely owing at the time of the filing of the petition, does not impose the same limitation upon claims which fall within the other classes. In re Smith

(D. C. 1906) 146 Fed. 923, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 112.

This whole section should be so construed as to make all debts fairly within its meaning provable debts, in order to effectuate the purpose of the act in relieving insolvent debtors, and any doubt whether a debt is provable, or whether it is an unliquidated demand which may be made provable, should be resolved in favor of its provability. Dycus v. Brown (1909) 135 Ky. 140, 121 S. W. 1010, 28 L. R. A. (N. S.) 190.

2. Creditors entitled to prove claims. —The court may permit the bankrupt himself, acting in a representative capacity as the administrator of an estate, to prove an equitable debt, arising from a loan of funds borrowed from the estate of his intestate, whether such loan was lawful or not. Warner v. Spooner (C. C. 1880) 3 Fed. 890. One to whom the bankrupt had previously made a general assignment for the benefit of his creditors may be permitted to prove a claim. In re Rudd (D. C. 1910) 180 Fed. 312, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 35. A surety for the bankrupt may prove a claim. Sessler v. Paducah Distilleries Co. (C. C. 1909) 168 Fed. 44, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 723. A committee representing the bondholders of a bankrupt corporation may prove a claim against its estate. In re Medina Quarry Co. (D. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 929, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 769. But a corporation which is a mere agent of another corporation cannot prove claims against the estate of the latter in bankruptcy. Clere Clothing Co. v. Union Trust & Savings Bank (1915) 224 Fed. 363, 140 C. C. A. 49.

Mere accommodation paper, not based on any actual consideration does not constitute a provable claim in bankruptcy. Merchants' & Manufacturers' Nat. Bank v. Galbraith (1907) 157 Fed. 208, 84 C. C. A. 653, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 319. One who has dealt with a bankrupt corporation, but has agreed to accept shares of its stock in satisfaction of his claim, has no demand provable in bankruptcy. In re Le Sueur County Co-operative Co. (C. C. A. 1912) 195 Fed. 926, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 882.

A claim cannot be allowed where it is shown that the money in question was not advanced by the claimant personally, but by a corporation in which he was a stockholder. In re Watkinson (D. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 602, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 245. Where a bank furnished money or credit with which certain imported wool was purchased in a foreign country, taking bills of lading and trust receipts in its own name, and, when the wool was sold by the importer, became the owner of the account, it alone was entitled to prove the claim against the estate of the purchaser in bankruptcy. Assets Realization Co. v. Sovereign Bank of Canada (1914) 210 Fed. 156, 126 C. C. A. 662, affirming judgment In re Dunlap Carpet C. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 726.

It is no objection to the allow a claim against a bankrupt cor for money lent that it passed several hands, where the claim nished the money with the i that it should be a loan to the ration, and the latter received used it as such. In re Americ cialty Co. (C. C. A. 1911) 191 F 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 463. But nishing materials to a subco of a general contractor of the States, who gave bond in co with the act of Congress of 1905, will be required to pur remedy prescribed by that act, not prove a claim under the ban law against the estate of th rupt contractor. In re Hawley 1912) 194 Fed. 751, 28 Am. Rep. 58.

Where a new company is o to take over and carry on the of a failing corporation, whic wards becomes bankrupt, one ing a director in both the old new company, takes an active organizing the new concern, a scribes and pays for some of i in cash, may be considered as itor of the bankrupt corporatio extent. In re Holbrook Shoe & er Co. (D. C. 1908) 165 Fed. Am. Bankr. Rep. 511. An the court in bankruptcy pro against a company owning th of another company held to aut creditor to establish his claim the proceeds of the latter c Carroll v. Stern (1915) 223 F 139 C. C. A. 253. Nor can a who lent money to the bankrup barred from proving his claim fact that he himself borrowed t ey from a bank, pledging as c the note and security given hin bankrupt. Ohio Valley Bank Mack (1906) 163 Fed. 155, 89 605, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 40.

One who sells property on c a third person, who turns it o corporation which does not b party to the contract of sale, thereby become a creditor of poration so as to be entitled to claim against its estate in ban In re Builders' Lumber Co. (D. 148 Fed. 244, 17 Am. Bankr. R

The rule that one may take ad of a contract to which he wa party, but which was made for efit between two other persons effective in bankruptcy, but hi to the agreement must have be effective before the bankruptcy promisor. Blake v. Atlantic N (1912) 33 R. I. 464, 82 Atl. 22 R. A. (N. S.) 874.

It is also a rule that a credi bankrupt, who is also his deb larger amount, will not be perm prove his claim against the e long as his own debt remains unpaid. In re Gerson (D. C. 1901) 105 Fed. 893, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 850; In re Wiener & Goodman Shoe Co. (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 949, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 200.

Where the father of a bankrupt, to whom the bankrupt was indebted, died after his adjudication, the right of the executor to prove the full indebtedness against the estate in bankruptcy is not affected by the fact that the father, by his will, left the bankrupt a share of his estate, from which any indebtedness due from the bankrupt was directed to be deducted. In re Woods (D. C. 1904) 133 Fed. 82, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 240.

3. Estoppel to prove claim.—The ordinary principles of estoppel apply to a creditor seeking to prove a claim in bankruptcy. Sledge v. Denton (Tex. Civ. App. 1912) 147 S. W. 281. The rule that a creditor having his choice between two inconsistent remedies must make his election and cannot pursue both, applies to a proof of debt in bankruptcy. Du Vivier & Co. v. Gallice (C. C. A. 1906) 149 Fed. 118, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 557. Lender of money to corporation, who received stock under an agreement that he might elect to retain the stock or demand repayment of the loan, but who had not elected prior to bankruptcy, held estopped from demanding his rights as creditor. In re W. A. Silvernail Co. (D. C. 1914) 218 Fed. 977. One cannot rescind a contract and recover the original consideration, and at the same time prove a claim in bankruptcy upon the contract itself. In re Kenyon (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 863, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 194; Scott v. Abbott (1908) 160 Fed. 573, 87 C. C. A. 475, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 335. And see In re Hirschman (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 69, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 715; In re Howard (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 630, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 69. But where, prior to the bankruptcy, a claimant sought to replevin the balance of a bill of goods remaining in the bankrupt's possession unsold, in which he was unsuccessful, it was held that he was entitled to file against the bankrupt's estate for his whole claim. In re Venstrom (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 325, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 569. And see Boden & Haac v. Lovell (C. C. A. 1913) 203 Fed. 234, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 353, where certain foreign attachment litigation was held unavailable to sustain an estoppel preventing claimants from asserting claims not involved in such litigation against the bankrupt.

A creditor of a bankrupt who, after the bankruptcy, has taken a new promise based on the original debt, is not thereby precluded from maintaining his proof against the estate in bankruptcy and receiving dividends thereon, and at the same time proceeding against the bankrupt on the new obligation, so long as he receives but a single satisfaction of his debt. In re Sweetser (D. C. 1904) 128 Fed. 165, affirmed, Dowse v. Hammond (1904) 130 Fed. 103, 64 C. C. A. 437. And the fact that a creditor, prior to the bankruptcy, had begun a suit to set aside a deed as fraudulent does not estop him, on the determination of the suit against him, from claiming the benefit of a lien reserved by such deed for his benefit. Maxwell v. McDaniels (C. C. A. 1912) 195 Fed. 426, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 692. So where the bankrupt commenced a suit before his bankruptcy, which was tried after the adjudication, and the defendant in that action set up in defense a particular claim as a distinct cause of action, but offered no evidence in support of it, and judgment went in favor of the bankrupt, this does not estop such defendant from proving his claim in the bankruptcy proceedings. In re People's Safe Deposit & Sav. Inst. (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 10,971. Where, subsequent to bankruptcy, creditor recovered judgment against bankrupt and surety, such creditor's release and waiver of right to participate in dividends held not to prevent surety's proof of claim. Kilpatrick v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (C. C. A. 1916) 228 Fed. 587. And though one named as assignee in a general assignment for the benefit of creditors, which is voided by the bankruptcy of the assignor, has accepted the trust, this does not preclude him from proving a bona fide debt which he has against the bankrupt. In re Horton (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 6,707. So a mere covenant by a creditor not to sue an accommodation acceptor does not prevent such creditor from proving against the drawer's estate in bankruptcy. Downing v. Traders' Bank (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 4,046.

Where the president of a bankrupt corporation had loaned money to it on notes, he is not estopped to claim the allowance thereof against the corporation's estate in bankruptcy because of statements of assets and liabilities made at various times, which did not include the notes, in the absence of any evidence that he had knowledge of their contents, or that credit was extended to the corporation, and the position of creditors changed, on the faith thereof. Spencer v. Lowe (C. C. A. 1912) 198 Fed. 961, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 876. Claimant, having contributed $50,000 to a bankrupt corporation, which was thereafter represented as an increase in capital, and held himself out as connected with the business, held estopped, as to creditors who relied thereon, to claim that he was a creditor and not a stockholder. In re Desnoyers Shoe Co. (D. C. 1914) 210 Fed. 533. In bankruptcy proceedings against K. Co., the principal stockholder of D. Co., a seller of goods to D. Co. held not estopped from establishing his claim against proceeds of D.

Co.'s assets. Carroll v. Stern (1915) 223 Fed. 723, 139 C. C. A. 253.

Although the bankrupt's bookkeeper prepared a financial statement which was submitted to a bank as a basis for credit, and the statement did not show that the bankrupt was indebted to the bookkeeper for his salary, this does not estop the latter to file a claim for unpaid salary, in the absence of evidence that credit was extended on the faith of the statement. In re Cox (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 952, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 456.

Where the only claim filed by a brother of the bankrupt against his estate was based on notes and a mortgage which were clearly fraudulent, he was held bound by such action, and not permitted to prove the claim as one for wages of labor and so entitled to priority. In re Hemstreet (D. C. 1903) 139 Fed. 958, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 823.

4. Fraud barring proof of claim.—To constitute such fraud as will estop a creditor from sharing with other creditors in the distribution of the estate of his debtor in bankruptcy, he must have been guilty of some moral turpitude or breach of duty whereby the other creditors were deceived to their damage. No fiduciary or confidential relation exists between creditors of an insolvent debtor such as will preclude the allowance, against the estate of the debtor in bankruptcy, of the claim of a creditor who, though knowing of the debtor's insolvency, fails to inform the other creditors thereof. Crowder v. Allen-West Commission Co. (1914) 213 Fed. 177, 129 C. C. A. 521, affirming decree In re Hawks (D. C. 1913) 204 Fed. 309.

Where a creditor of a bankrupt actively participates or assists him in the execution of a scheme to delay or defraud his other creditors, and in furtherance thereof advances money or incurs expense, the entire transaction is contaminated by the fraud, and the court of bankruptcy will not aid the conspirators by allowing claims for such advances or expenses against the estate. Butcher v. Werksman (D. C. 1913) 204 Fed. 330, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 332; In re Friedman (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 131, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 213; In re L. M. Alleman Hardware Co. (D. C. 1909) 172 Fed. 611, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 871; In re Lansaw (D. C. 1902) 118 Fed. 365, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 167; In re Knox (D. C. 1900) 98 Fed. 585, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 371; In re Hugill (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 616, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 686; In re Hatje (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 548, Fed. Cas. No. 6,215. But see In re Medina Quarry Co. (D. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 929, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 769. And compare In re L. M. Alleman Hardware Co. (C. C. A. 1910) 181 Fed. 810, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 331. So also, where money is loaned or advances made for the purpose of establishing a fictitiou

for the bankrupt and so enab to cheat others. In re Fried
C. 1908) 164 Fed. 131, 21 Am
Rep. 213; In re Royce, Dry G
(D. C. 1904) 133 Fed. 100, Bankr. Rep. 257. And so creditor has attempted to gai vantage over other creditors b ing in his proof fictitious item aggerated amounts, or by fraudulent or illegal and non-claims, his proof will not be even to the extent of an hon which may be included in it, bu rejected as an entirety. In r man (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed.
Am. Bankr. Rep. 213; In re K
C. 1900) 105 Fed. 503, 5 Am
Rep. 465; In re Elder (D. C.
N. B. R. 670, Fed. Cas. No
Marrett v. Atterbury (C. C. 1
N. B. R. 225, Fed. Cas. No. 9,

Fraudulent conduct barring a claim in bankruptcy occurre a creditor holding collateral under a pledge, took the opp as soon as a petition in bankru been filed, to sell the security self at a pretended auction at fraction of its face value, and notice to any party in interest
Mertens (D. C. 1905) 134 F
14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 226.
Turner v. Metropolitan Trust
C. A. 1913) 207 Fed. 495, wher chase of pledged collateral pledgee was held, under the p circumstances, not to preven against the estate in bankrupt

There is nothing illegal in e ing to buy up all the claims ag estate of a bankrupt, for the of staying the bankruptcy pro altogether; and if the purcha in this, he should nevertheless ed to prove such claims as he quired as though he were an creditor. In re Pease (D. C.
N. B. R. 173, Fed. Cas. No. 10
re Strachan (D. C. 1872) Fed.
13,519. An agreement by one solvent's creditors to advanc with which to make a composit his creditors, on consideration insolvent would pay such credit in full, held not fraudulent, preclude the creditor from subs proving its whole debt against solvent's estate in bankruptcy.
Hawks (D. C. 1913) 204 F
That a person adjudged a ban 1910 made a composition ag with his creditors in 1899, and secret agreement with A., one to pay his claim in full in consi of a loan of the money require the other creditors the com percentage, held not ground f lowance of A.'s claim against t rupt's estate, where the credit er rescinded the composition, debtor, after execution of the tion, had voluntarily paid A. t

ey loaned. That one creditor who had advanced money to the debtor, knowing him to be insolvent, but believing that such money would enable him to become sufficiently prosperous to pay his debts, failed to notify the other creditors of the debtor's insolvency held not to constitute a breach of duty, fraud, or deceit on the other creditors or to authorize disallowance of such creditor's claim against the estate of such debtor in bankruptcy. Crowder v. Allen-West Commission Co. (1914) 213 Fed. 177, 129 C. C. A. 521, affirming decree In re Hawks (D. C. 1913) 204 Fed. 309.

The act of a creditor in withholding from record a chattel mortgage securing his debt, by agreement with the mortgagor, until the latter's bankruptcy, while it may render the mortgage invalid as a lien as against subsequent creditors without notice, does not of itself affect his right to prove his debt in bankruptcy, nor subordinate it to the claims of subsequent creditors. In re Ewald & Brainard (D. C. 1905) 135 Fed. 168, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 267; In re Abell (1912) 198 Fed. 484, 117 C. C. A. 243. But see In re Thweatt (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 319, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 84.

Such fraudulent conduct on the part of a creditor as will forfeit his right to prove against the bankrupt estate may also operate to the disadvantage of others who, though not directly implicated, are still bound by his acts, as in the case of a partner who, though innocent himself, cannot disavow fraudulent acts of his copartner done in the firm name. Capelle v. Hall (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 1, Fed. Cas. No. 2,391. And where the holder of a note has forfeited his claim against the estate of the bankrupt maker by taking a preference, the guarantors of the note have no right to prove it against the estate, their liability having been discharged by the principal. In re Ayers (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 685.

5. Nature of claims provable.—Any debt which is recoverable either at law or in equity is provable in bankruptcy. In re Jordan (D. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 319; In re H. V. Keep Shirt Co. (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 80, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 765. See In re Hawks (D. C. 1913) 204 Fed. 309, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 365. "Provable" debts and "allowable" debts in bankruptcy are not necessarily equivalent terms. On the distinction, see R. P. Williams & Co. v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1912) 11 Ga. App. 635, 75 S. E. 1067. Claims which are entitled to priority under the statute (such as claims for wages of labor) are provable and must be proved. But the fact that a father employed his minor son to work as his chief clerk, while the son paid board to his mother, does not establish an emancipation of the son, so as to entitle him to prove a claim for wages against his father's estate. In re Riff (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 406, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 594. Where a bankrupt prior to the bankruptcy promised to pay his minor children for their services in his store, with intent to relinquish his claim to their services, their claims for services were provable in bankruptcy. In re Kanter (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 276.

Any debt which may be proved by complying with any of the provisions of the statute is provable in bankruptcy. Rankin v. Florida, A. & G. C. R. Co. (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 647, Fed. Cas. No. 11,567. The fact that a claim arises as a consequence of the bankruptcy is sufficient to render it provable as a fixed liability absolutely owing at the date of the petition. In re Neff (1907) 157 Fed. 57, 84 C. C. A. 561, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 23.

A claim against the bankrupt for money loaned is liquidated and provable in bankruptcy. In re Halsey Electric Generator Co. (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 118, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 738. A claim upon an open account or account current is provable in bankruptcy. In re Stanton (C. C. 1845) Fed. Cas. No. 13,295.

It is no objection to the proof and allowance of a claim that it is of such a character as not to be barred or released by the bankrupt's discharge, as in the case of a debt created by him by fraud or while acting in a fiduciary capacity. In re Tebbetts (C. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 13,817; Bourne v. Maybin (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 1,700. A debt evidenced by a note or other writing is provable notwithstanding the fact that it is expressed to be payable in a particular species of currency or in gold coin. In re Whittaker (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 160, Fed. Cas. No. 17,598; In re Elder (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 4,326. Such a debt is provable though it was stipulated to be paid in labor and merchandise. In re Spot Cash Hooper Co. (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 861, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 546; McMullin v. Bank of Penn Tp. (1845) 2 Pa. 343.

An attorney may file and prove a claim against the bankrupt for professional services rendered to him before the bankruptcy and in matters not connected therewith, although there was no express contract fixing the amount of his fees. In re Coney Island Lumber Co. (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 803. At least where his services conduced to the benefit of the estate or to its more prompt administration, as where they resulted in obtaining a reduction of taxes assessed against the property or stopping the prosecution of an attachment suit. In re Duran Mercantile Co. (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 961, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 450. So a ward may prove his claim against his guardian's estate in bankruptcy, notwithstanding the fact that the accounts of the guardian are in course of settlement in the probate court of the state. Bourne v. Maybin (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 1,700. The government if it holds a claim against a debtor in bankruptcy, may and should file proof of the same. U. S. v. Murphy (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 589. In the case of a bankrupt insurance company, under the former statute, it was held that a claim founded on a covenant to repay part of the premium paid for insurance on cancellation of the policy was provable. In re Independent Ins. Co. (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 7,019. But see In re Western Ins. Co. (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 17,435. And although money advanced to the bankrupt was purely in the form of a bonus, to induce him to erect and operate a manufacturing plant in a given locality, yet on his failure to do so and his ensuing bankruptcy, the amount so paid constitutes a provable claim. Sturgiss v. Meurer (1911) 191 Fed. 9, 111 C. C. A. 551, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 851. Where a subscriber for an increase of stock paid in advance the price thereof, under the agreement that such payment should be treated as loan until issuance of the stock, and before that the corporation was adjudged a bankrupt, the subscriber was entitled to have his claim allowed as a general claim against the bankrupt. Clark v. Hamilton (1914) 217 Fed. 229, 133 C. C. A. 223. Where claimant advanced money to a corporation on its agreement to pay dividends as on regular stock, to pay interest, to educate claimant's son in the business, and to issue stock therefor when the corporation's capital should be increased, the elements of the consideration except the last were valid and sufficient; and hence claimant could not prove his claim for the whole amount advanced on the theory that the contract was invalid for want of mutuality of obligation. In re Desnoyers Shoe Co. (D. C. 1914) 210 Fed. 533.

Although the debt was not originally contracted by the bankrupt, yet if he assumed and agreed to pay it (as in the case of one buying a going business and taking the assets and liabilities together, or buying mortgaged land with an assumption of the mortgage), it will be provable against his estate. In re Baumblatt (D. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 485, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 720; Begein v. Brehm (1890) 123 Ind. 160, 23 N. E. 496. So where a sale by an insolvent person, the proceeds of which were used to pay certain creditors in full, was set aside as constructively fraudulent as to other creditors, the vendee has a valid claim against the vendor's trustee in bankruptcy for the amount of the money he paid, less the expenses of setting aside the sale. Barber v. Coit (1906) 144 Fed. 381, 75 C. C. A. 319, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 419.

In those states where the separate property of a married woman is liable in equity for her business obli though under the local law sh technically a free trader, if gages in business on her own her obligations contracted in t ness are provable debts in ban MacDonald v. Tefft-Weller Co. 128 Fed. 381, 63 C. C. A. 123, A. 106, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 80

The amount contributed by ner to the capital of the par cannot, on the bankruptcy of t be proved as a debt entitled t ratably with the claims of the creditors. In re W. J. Floyd & C. 1907) 156 Fed. 206, 19 Am. Rep. 438.

Where one induces others with him in a purchase of prop representations as to its valu prove to be incorrect, but with express promise to reimburse t any loss which they may sust law will not raise such a pro implication, so as to create a as on an implied contract against his estate in bankruptcy zer v. Henking (1908) 158 F 86 C. C. A. 140, 15 L. R. A. 1151, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 300.

Owelty of partition is a legal on the land, but not created by tract of the parties but by t and therefore is not provable i ruptcy. Ex parte Walker (18 N. C. 340, 12 S. E. 136.

Where one institutes a suit his debtor and against another nishee, and the latter goes int ruptcy before the recovery of a ment, the creditor has no claim against the garnishee's Ex parte Columbian Ins. Co. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 3,037. A c an account of profits against an er of a patent-right is not against his estate in bankrup re Boston & F. Iron Works 1885) 23 Fed. 880, citing Root way Co. (1881) 105 U. S. 189, L. Ed. 975.

Where a bankrupt's agent authority exchanged certain of for bonds, which the bankrupt's sold without knowledge of the lack of authority, the trustee c pudiate the transfer on return bonds, if possible, or to per other party to file an amende for their value. In re Charles ridge Lumber Co. (D. C. 1914) 973.

A pledgee of the bonds of a b corporation pledged to secure note, which purchased the bon sold at public auction, held, u facts shown, entitled to prove t against the estate. Turner v. politan Trust Co. of City of N (C. C. A. 1913) 207 Fed. 495.

6. Amount of claim provable claim by one member of a synd banking firms against the esta bankrupt member, the court will examine into the accounts of all the members, in order to make a definite allowance against the bankrupt's estate. In re Cooke (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 30, Fed. Cas. No. 3,170.

Where a corporation gave its note to a bank for the indebtedness of a third party, for which it was not responsible, and also for its own debt, the note was invalid in the hands of the bank (having knowledge of the facts) to the extent of the amount of the debt of the third party, and it was held that the bank's claim against the estate of the corporation in bankruptcy must be reduced to the amount which the corporation itself owed when the note was given. Mapes v. German Bank of Tilden (1910) 176 Fed. 89, 99 C. C. A. 609, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 713.

Where a manufacturer consigned goods to factors, who advanced him their notes to an amount larger than was ultimately realized on the goods, which notes were indorsed by him and discounted, and both parties became bankrupt, and the factors, employing the goods then in their possession, made a composition with their creditors, including the holders of the notes, who reserved the right to prove in full against all other parties to them, it was held that such creditors, in proving against the estate of the manufacturer, would not be required to give credit for the full amount received by them on the composition, but would be required to abate their proof by giving credit for the property of such manufacturer so employed by the factors, which might, upon their application, have been applied towards paying their debts. Ex parte Harris (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 6,109.

An indorsee before maturity of a negotiable note, without notice of existing equities, can only prove against the estate of the maker the amount paid therefor. In re Shelbourne (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 359, Fed. Cas. No. 12,745. And so, where a mortgage is given to indemnify the mortgagee for his advances, and he loans his acceptances to the mortgagor, and after the bankruptcy of the latter, buys up the paper at a discount, he can charge against the mortgaged property only what he paid in cash to take up the acceptances. Ex parte Ames (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 323. But the pledgee of notes held to secure a debt in a smaller amount may prove them against the maker's estate to their full amount, and receive dividends to the extent of his debt. In re Anger Baking Co. (C. C. A. 1915) 228 Fed. 181; Bailey v. Nichols (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 478, Fed. Cas. No. 741. Where, prior to bankruptcy, claimant sought to replevin the balance of a bill of goods remaining in the bankrupt's possession unsold, in which it was unsuccessful, it was entitled to file against the bankrupt's estate for its whole claim. In re Venstrom (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 325.

In a case where the fund to be distributed among the creditors of a bankrupt storage company consisted entirely of the proceeds of insurance on the property of such creditors, burned while in storage, the amount of which had been determined by an agreement between the insurers and the respective owners as to the value of the property of each, it was held that the creditors were bound by such valuations as between themselves, and one cannot be permitted to prove a larger claim. In re Reliance Storage & Warehouse Co. (D. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 351, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 249. So, where the bankrupt's brokers were carrying stocks on a margin, and, at the commencement of the bankruptcy proceedings, could have sold them out at a profit, but carried the stocks until a decline and finally sold them at a loss, all without application to the court, it was held that they could not prove their claim for differences against the estate. In re Daniels (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 3,566.

Where the general manager of a trading corporation (who was also a stockholder and director) had been allowed a salary for his services at a fixed monthly rate, but by the mere agreement of the board of directors without any by-law or resolution or entry of record, it was held that he was not entitled to prove a claim against the estate of the corporation in bankruptcy for arrears of salary at the rate so fixed, but only for the reasonable value of his services as determined by the court. In re Grubbs-Wiley Grocery Co. (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 183, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 442.

For a buyer's breach of a contract for the manufacture and sale of certain articles of merchandise, the measure of the seller's damage, on the allowance of his claim against the bankrupt estate of the buyer, is the difference between the cost of manufacture and the contract price, notwithstanding the entire lot of goods were not manufactured or ready for delivery. In re Duquesne Incandescent Light Co. (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 785, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 419; Pratt v. Auto Spring Repairer Co. (1912) 196 Fed. 495, 116 C. C. A. 261, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 483.

Where an agreement indemnifying a contractor's surety, containing an assignment of the contractor's plant on the work in case he should be unable to carry out the contract, was executed more than four months before the contractor became bankrupt and while he was solvent, the amount of the surety's claim against the bankrupt is not the amount which the latter might have paid by reason of his liability on the bonds, independent of the plant so assigned, but the amount of the loss the surety might sustain in completing the contract with such aid as he might gain by taking and using the plant. Wood v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (D. C. 1905) 143 Fed. 424, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 21.

7. Effect of payment or satisfaction.— A note which is subject to an offset for a larger amount is not a provable debt in bankruptcy. In re Ford (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 426, Fed. Cas. No. 4,932. A creditor cannot prove a claim which he has expressly waived or released to the bankrupt. In re Howard (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 630, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 69. Nor a claim which he had previously settled by an accord and compromise, receiving the consideration then agreed on, though less than the amount of the debt. In re Decker (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 3,723; In re Lathrop (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 8,103. Nor one which has been adjusted by accepting from the trustee in bankruptcy a surrender of the property in dispute or a quitclaim deed. Kenyon v. Mulert (C. C. A. 1911) 184 Fed. 825, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 184; In re Davis (D. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 871, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 667. Proof will not be permitted upon so much of a claim as has previously been satisfied by a payment in cash, or by a transfer and acceptance of property. In re Carpenter (D. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 743. See Haas-Baruch & Co. v. Portuondo (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 949, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 130. A vendor of goods under a conditional sale to the bankrupt may affirm the sale and enforce a claim on the notes given by the bankrupt, or he may retake the property, but he cannot do both, and if he chooses the latter course, he cannot prove the notes as a claim against the estate. In re Norton (D. C. 1910) 181 Fed. 901, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 794; In re Heinsfurter (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 198, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 113.

Merely taking a note, without any payment on it, does not discharge an original debt having any privileges under the bankruptcy law, and either may be proved. In re Worcester County (1900) 102 Fed. 808, 42 C. C. A. 637, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 496; Dowse v. Hammond (1904) 130 Fed. 103, 64 C. C. A. 437.

The acceptance of shares of stock in a corporation in lieu of payment of a debt may cancel the debt so that it will no longer be provable in bankruptcy, if the creditor expressly releases the debtor from liability. In re Norris (D. C. 1911) 190 Fed. 101, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 945. But this is not the case if there is no sufficient proof that the creditor ever accepted the stock. In re Blumer (D. C. 1882) 11 Fed. 700. Or if it was merely given as a substitute for collateral security held by the creditor and is not of value. In re Lorrilard (1901) 107 Fed. 677, 46 C. C. A. 535, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 602.

Where a creditor has received tial payment on his debt under eral assignment for the benefit itors, made before the bankrup cannot prove for the whole of t but only for the balance remain satisfied. In re Folb (D. C. 18 Fed. 107, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. re Hamilton (D. C. 1880) 1 F

Where the holder of a note n a partnership and indorsed by the partners, both maker and i having been adjudicated ban proves his claim against the p ship estate after a dividend h declared and paid to other cr his right to a preference in futu idends cannot be considered eq to a dividend actually declared favor, or to an actual part pay his note by the maker, and h is entitled to prove his claim the estate of the indorser for amount of the note. In re Sw C. 1901) 106 Fed. 65, 5 Am. Rep. 415. Generally, the hold note who has received a divide the estate in bankruptcy of the can prove only the balance agai estate of the bankrupt indorser. Howard (D. C. 1871) 4 N. B. Fed. Cas. No. 6,750; In re (D. C. 1880) 14 Fed. 247. But other hand, a creditor whose cl been partly paid by an accomm indorser may prove the claim to amount without giving the est benefit of such part payment. Noyes Bros. (1903) 127 Fed. C. C. A. 218, 11 Am. Bankr. Re Swarts v. Fourth Nat. Bank 117 Fed. 1, 54 C. C. A. 387, Bankr. Rep. 673. Where a has received partial payment debt from a surety of the bankr right to prove the claim for its amount, against the estate in ba cy, is in the creditor in prefer the surety. In re Heyman 1899) 95 Fed. 800, 2 Am. Bank 651.

8. Time of accrual of claim provability of a claim depends u status at the time of the filing petition in bankruptcy, which date when the right of credi share in the estate becomes fixe any claim which is not then a p debt, as defined in the act, ca proved although it may thereaft within such definition. Zav Reeves (1913) 227 U. S. 625, Ct. 365, 57 L. Ed. 676, 29 Am. Rep. 493; Sexton v. Dreyfus 219 U. S. 339, 31 Sup. Ct. 256 Ed. 244, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 3 re American Vacuum Cleaner C. 1911) 192 Fed. 939, 26 Am. Rep. 621; Swarts v. Fourth Na (1902) 117 Fed. 1, 54 C. C. A. Am. Bankr. Rep. 673; In re P & Co. (D. C. 1905) 137 Fed. Am. Bankr. Rep. 728. A debt o which did not accrue or come i istence until after the filing of the petition is not provable. Colman Co. v. Withoft (C. C. A. 1912) 195 Fed. 250, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 328; In re Walker (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 455, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 805; In re Reading Hosiery Co. (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 195, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 562; In re Rome (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 971, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 820; In re Black Diamond Copper Mining Co. (1908) 11 Ariz. 415, 95 Pac. 117; In re Riker (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 393, Fed. Cas. No. 11,833; In re Merrell (D. C. 1884) 19 Fed. 874; In re Ward (D. C. 1882) 12 Fed. 325; Phenix Nat. Bank v. Waterbury (1908) 123 App. Div. 453, 108 N. Y. Supp. 391. And it is immaterial that the claim was for money loaned to the bankrupt to be used in complying with the terms of a composition agreement. Zavelo v. J. S. Reeves & Co. (1911) 171 Ala. 401, 54 South. 654. And it is immaterial that the debt accrued or came into existence before any adjudication was made upon the petition, if it did not exist when the petition was filed; for the statute is explicit in fixing the date of filing the petition, and not the date of the adjudication, as the decisive time. In re Burka (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 326, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 12; In re Merrill (D. C. 1884) 21 Fed. 120. Compare Spalding v. Dixon (1848) 21 Vt. 45.

Where the filing of a petition in bankruptcy operates as a breach of an executory contract, because equivalent to a refusal to perform, the filing of the petition and the accrual of a claim for damages are contemporaneous, and the creditor may prove his claim for damages as one existing at the time of the filing of the petition. In re Swift (1901) 112 Fed. 315, 50 C. C. A. 264, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 374.

A claim founded upon an open account or a contract is not provable in bankruptcy unless it existed at the time of the filing of the petition. Colman Co. v. Withoft (C. C. A. 1912) 195 Fed. 250, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 328; In re Roth & Appel (1910) 181 Fed. 667, 104 C. C. A. 649, 31 L. R. A. (N. S.) 270, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 588; In re Swift (1901) 112 Fed. 315, 50 C. C. A. 264, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 374; In re Adams (D. C. 1904) 130 Fed. 381, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 368; In re Burka (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 326, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 12. A debt, to be provable in bankruptcy, must continue to exist in the same condition after as at the time of the commencement of the proceedings; and proof of a claim as indorser upon a note made by the bankrupt will be disallowed where it appears that, after the adjudication of bankruptcy, a new note had been given and the first note taken up. In re Montgomery (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 426, Fed. Cas. No. 9,730. On this principle also, a claim against a bankrupt for work done under a contract after the filing of the petition cannot be proved as a debt against the estate, although the contract was entered into before the commencement of the proceedings, but was then wholly executory. In re Adams (D. C. 1904) 130 Fed. 381, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 368. Where an assignor held a bond secured by mortgage against the bankrupt at the time the petition was filed, and the property was sold and a judgment for a deficiency was entered a month after the bankruptcy, the assignor had a claim which was provable though not yet recoverable at the time of the filing of the petition. In re Fitzgerald (D. C. 1911) 191 Fed. 95, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 773.

9. Claims on contracts.—The provision of this section for the proof of claims founded on an "open account or upon a contract express or implied" is not limited by the provision that debts may be proved and allowed which are a "fixed liability, evidenced by a judgment or instrument in writing, absolutely owing." In re Lyons Beet Sugar Refining Co. (D. C. 1911) 192 Fed. 445, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 610. CONTRA, In re D. C. Clark Shoe Co. (D. C. 1913) 211 Fed. 341. An account for the balance due for goods sold and delivered is a provable debt. Standard Sewing Machine Co. v. Kattell (1909) 132 App. Div. 539, 117 N. Y. Supp. 32. So is the amount due on a conditional sale of property, provided such sale is not invalid under the laws of the state. In re Gray (D. C. 1908) 170 Fed. 638, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 375. So is a fixed sum due for subscriptions to a mercantile agency. In re Glick (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 967, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 871. So is a claim for damages for breach of an appeal bond. Coe v. Waters (1901) 16 Colo. App. 311, 64 Pac. 1054. Where a bankrupt, on full consideration paid before bankruptcy, contracted to absolutely pay the claimant $3 per day during the remainder of his life, the claim was fixed and provable. In re Miller (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 331.

A claim for damages for the breach of an executory contract is a claim "founded upon a contract" within the meaning of the statute, and is provable in bankruptcy, equally as in the case where the contract itself is for the payment of a fixed sum. In re Frederick L. Grant Shoe Co. (1904) 130 Fed. 881, 66 C. C. A. 78, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 349; In re Adams (D. C. 1904) 130 Fed. 381, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 368; In re Stern (1902) 116 Fed. 604, 54 C. C. A. 60, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 569; In re Swift (1901) 112 Fed. 316, 50 C. C. A. 264, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 374; Ex parte Pollard (D. C. 1875) 17 N. B. R. 228, Fed. Cas. No. 11,252; Forest City Steel & Iron Co. v. Detroit & T. S. L. R. Co. (1908) 154 Mich. 182, 117 N. W. 645; Lothrop v. Reed (Mass. 1866) 13 Allen, 294. Compare Watson v. Merrill (1905) 136 Fed. 359, 69 C. C. A. 185, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 453. And if the bankrupt, at the time of the bankruptcy, by disenabling himself from performing his part of a particular contract, and by repudiating its obligation, could give to the other party the right to maintain at once a suit in which damages could be assessed at law or in equity, then such other party may prove as a creditor in the bankruptcy proceedings, on the ground that bankruptcy is the equivalent of disenablement and repudiation or is an anticipatory breach of the contract. In re Pettingill & Co. (D. C. 1905) 137 Fed. 143, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 728; In re Swift (D. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 493, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 335; In re Saxton Furnace Co. (D. C. 1905) 142 Fed. 293, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 445; Pratt v. Auto Spring Repairer Co. (C. C. A. 1912) 196 Fed. 495, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 483; In re Duquesne Incandescent Light Co. (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 785, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 419; In re Spittler (D. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 942, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 425; In re Neff (1907) 157 Fed. 57, 84 C. C. A. 561, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 911; In re National Wire Corp. (D. C. 1909) 166 Fed. 631, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 186; Wood v. Fisk (1913) 156 App. Div. 497, 141 N. Y. Supp. 342; Board of Commerce of Ann Arbor, Mich., v. Security Trust Co. (1915) 225 Fed. 454, 140 C. C. A. 486; In re Frank E. Scott Transfer Co. (C. C. A. 1914) 216 Fed. 308. CONTRA, In re Imperial Brewing Co. (D. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 579, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 110; In re Inman & Co. (D. C. 1910) 175 Fed. 312, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 566. But this rule does not apply if the claimant was himself in default, for if he failed to carry out his own part of the contract, he cannot file a claim for damages. In re Morgantown Tin Plate Co. (1911) 184 Fed. 109, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 836. And such a claim cannot be allowed for more than the amount of damages actually sustained; the court will not allow the creditor to take this means of enforcing a mere penalty. In re Bevier Wood Pavement Co. (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 583, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 462. The claim cannot include a sum named in the contract as liquidated damages, where it is not shown that the claimant has sustained any actual damage by the bankrupt's breach of the contract. Northwest Fixture Co. v. Kilbourne & Clark Co. (1904) 128 Fed. 256, 62 C. C. A. 638, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 725.

A claim for breach of contract may be proved in bankruptcy, though the time for performance had not arrived when the petition in bankruptcy was filed. Wood v. Fisk (1913) 141 N. Y. S. 342, 156 App. Div. 497. Where a contract by a bankrupt to furnish livery and baggage service to a hotel provided that it was subject to revocation by the hotel on six months' notice, such provision rendered the contract mutually obligatory for that term only, which limited the term for which the association was entitled to recover damages on termination of the contract b ruptcy. In re Frank E. Scott Co. (C. C. A. 1914) 216 Fed.

In a case where one holdin ent for an invention had gran corporation an exclusive lic manufacture the product, and poration had thereupon contr pay to the patentee a bonus o on the patented articles sold guaranty of a minimum numbe the year, and the corporation bankrupt before the end of t it was held that the patentee titled to prove a claim for the of royalty which had accrued u time of the bankruptcy at the rate, irrespective of the numb ticles actually sold, but that not prove a claim for future accruing during the remainde term, although he was entitled a claim for damages for the b the contract, to be estimated of the fact that, the licens fallen in, he was at liberty to of it again. In re Dr. Voorhe ing Hood Co. (D. C. 1911) 611.

The provision of this sectio allows proof of debts founded "contract express or implied," given a construction sufficient to include quasi contracts aris a conversion of property, wh tort has been waived. Reynold York Trust Co. (1911) 188 F 110. C. C. A. 409, 26 Am. Ban 698.

10. —— Contracts of emplo One employed as a salesman, tendent, manager, secretary, e regard his contract of employ dissolved by the employer's tion in bankruptcy (especially case where the bankrupt is a tion or a partnership) and may claim for the unpaid balance of ary to the time of the filing of tition. Ex parte Pollard (D. Fed. Cas. No. 11,252. See I H. Gladding Co. (D. C. 1903) 709, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 700. salary was not fixed by a writ tract or other instrument, he m the reasonable value of his In re Grubbs-Wiley Grocery C. 1899) 96 Fed. 183, 2 Am Rep. 442. And see In re M Portable Elevator Co. (D. C. 1 Fed. 247, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep has been ruled that the measu employé's damages in such a ca be the amount which he wou received under the contract for mainder of the term fixed, l amount as he would be able during that time from other In re Silverman (D. C. 1899) 219, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 83. preponderance of authority is effect that the employé cannot claim for any salary beyond of the filing of the petition i ruptcy, on the theory that his tion of receiving a salary during the remainder of the term, if it can be called a debt or a claim for damages, is no more than a contingent liability, and the present statute has made no provision for the proof or allowance of claims of that character. In re Inman & Co. (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 185, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 524; In re American Vacuum Cleaner Co. (D. C. 1911) 192 Fed. 939, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 621; In re Dr. Voorhees Awning Hood Co. (D. C. 1911) 187 Fed. 611; Orr v. Ward (1874) 73 Ill. 318; In re D. Levy & Sons Co. (D. C. 1913) 208 Fed. 479, 31 Am. Bankr. Rep. 25; In re Montague & Gillet (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 452.

The rule is substantially the same where the contract required the payment of commissions to a salesman in addition to his salary. Such commissions as were actually earned before the date of bankruptcy constitute a provable debt, but a claim for commissions on sales which possibly or probably might have been made if the contract had continued to its appointed term is top speculative and remote to be available as a provable debt in bankruptcy. See Clairemonte v. Napier Motor Co. (1909) 11 Cal. App. 265, 104 Pac. 712; In re Silverman (D. C. 1899) 101 Fed. 219, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 83.

11. Promissory notes.—A promissory note is a provable debt in bankruptcy as being a "fixed liability evidenced by an instrument in writing," and may be proved by the payee or indorsee as the case may be. In re Shelbourne (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 359, Fed. Cas. No. 12,745. Notes made by a corporation are provable against its estate in bankruptcy, if duly executed under proper authority and for a legitimate corporate purpose. In re New York Car Wheel Works (D. C. 1905) 141 Fed. 430, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 571.

Where a loan was in fact made to a bankrupt corporation, the claim was provable against it, though evidenced by the individual notes of the corporation's executive officers. Hogin v. Central Nat. Bank (1915) 223 Fed. 325, 138 C. C. A. 587.

A claim on a note may be proved against the estate of the bankrupt indorser. In re Bruce (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 2,044.

A claim founded on a promissory note will not be allowed where it appears that it was not founded upon a good and valid consideration. In re Hook (D. C. 1874) 11 N. B. R. 282, Fed. Cas. No. 6,672. And a renewal note, which is not supported by any fresh consideration, is not provable where the original note was without consideration. In re Stanford Clothing Co. (D. C. 1911) 187 Fed. 172, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 124; In re Cornwall (D. C. 1871) 4 N. B. R. 400, Fed. Cas. No. 3,251. See In re New York Car Wheel Works (D. C. 1905) 139 Fed. 421, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 595. But a note given by a bankrupt corporation to a stockholder for money borrowed with which to effect a composition, and which was so used, is not without consideration and may be proved as a debt in a second bankruptcy proceeding. In re C. H. Bennett Shoe Co. (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 691, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 704.

Further it is necessary that the claimant offering to prove on the note should be a holder in good faith and for value or at least (in the case of a remote indorsee) that he should prove affirmatively that his immediate indorser was a bona fide holder for value. In re Hopper-Morgan Co. (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 525, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 518, affirmed (1909) 166 Fed. 1020, 91 C. C. A. 37. A person to whom notes are sent for discount, and who fails to pay drafts drawn against the proceeds in favor of an indorser of the notes, cannot prove his claim on the notes against the bankrupt payee of the drafts, for, having failed to pay the drafts, he has no right to retain the notes and is not a holder for value. In re Howard (D. C. 1873) 6 N. B. R. 372, Fed. Cas. No. 6,751.

The cashier of a national bank had discounted notes for the maker of them, far in excess of the amount which the bank could legally loan to one person, and beyond the ability of the maker and indorser of the notes to pay, and this was done without the knowledge or consent of the other officers of the bank. A criminal prosecution was instituted against the cashier and he was sentenced to imprisonment for misapplying the funds of the bank, and criminal proceedings against the maker of the notes for aiding him in so doing likewise resulted in a conviction. The bank having become insolvent, its receiver sued on the cashier's bond and recovered judgment for the amount of the penalty of such bond. But it was held that these facts did not affect the validity of the notes, nor the bank's ownership of them, and the receiver might prove the same in bankruptcy against the estate of the indorser. In re Edson (D. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 487, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 505.

A pledgee in good faith and for value of a promissory note, transferred to him before maturity, may prove it for its full amount against the estate in bankruptcy of the maker, whatever may have been the equities between the maker and the pledgor; but if there are such equities as would prevent the pledgor from proving, then the pledgee can receive in dividends only the amount for which he holds the note in pledge. Ex parte Kelty (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 7,681.

12. Judgments.—A verdict, not followed by the entry of judgment before the institution of bankruptcy proceedings, is not a provable debt. In re Ostrom (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 988, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 273; Black v. McClelland (C. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 481, Fed. Cas. No. 1,462.

A judgment recovered before the filing of a petition in bankruptcy against the debtor is a provable debt. Johnson v. Joslyn (1907) 45 Wash. 310, 88 Pac. 324; Graham v. Pierson (N. Y. 1843) 6 Hill, 247; People's Nat. Bank of Independence v. Maxson (Iowa, 1915) 150 N. W. 601. The provability of such a judgment does not depend on the nature of the cause of action, and the judgment is provable although the cause of action by itself would not have constituted a provable claim. Howland v. Carson (1876) 28 Ohio St. 625. Compare Turner v. Turner (D. C. 1901) 108 Fed. 785, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 289.

A judgment in an action for a tort, such as fraud, conspiracy, or deceit, is provable in bankruptcy. Landgraf v. Griffith (1875) 41 Ind. App. 372, 83 N. E. 1021. Judgment for damages for plaintiff in trover to recover goods purchased when insolvent, where no fraudulent misrepresentations are shown, is a provable debt, within Bankr. Act July 1, 1898, § 63a(4). Kreitlein v. Ferger (1915) 35 Sup. Ct. 685, 238 U. S. 21, 59 L. Ed. 1184, reversing judgments (1879) 97 N. E. 819, 52 Ind. App. 199, and (1875) 98 N. E. 1005, 52 Ind. App. 199. Judgment against city marshal for paying attached rents to attaching creditor with notice of assignee's claim held provable in bankruptcy. Ulner v. Doran (1915) 152 N. Y. S. 655, 167 App. Div. 259. A claim may be proved on a judgment for damages for negligence causing death. In re Putnam (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 464, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 923. Or a judgment for breach of promise of marriage. In re Fife (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 880, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 258; In re Sidle (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 220, Fed. Cas. No. 12,844. Or a judgment recovered by a woman for seduction. In re McCauley (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 223, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 122. Or a judgment fixing the liability of a stockholder in an insolvent corporation for a contribution equal to the amount of his stock to pay its debts. Dight v. Chapman (1904) 44 Or. 265, 75 Pac. 585, 65 L. R. A. 793.

A judgment, proved as a debt in bankruptcy, is conclusive of the validity and amount of the claim. McKinsey v. Harding (D. C. 1869) 4 N. B. R. 38, Fed. Cas. No. 8,866. The conclusiveness of the judgment and its availability as a provable claim are not impaired by the fact that an appeal is pending or a writ of error with supersedeas of execution. In re Leszynsky (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 8.278; In re Sheehan (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 345, Fed. Cas. No. 12,737. Under Code Civ. Proc. Cal. § 942, a judgment for damages for personal injuries, from which an appeal had been taken without bond, is a final judgment, on which a claim against a bankrupt's estate can be based. In re Berlin Dye Works

dry Co. (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed

The liability of a bankrupt on the bond of an administrat a fixed liability absolutely owi to be provable against his estat no final judgment or decree rendered in the probate cour state adjudging the liability of cipal, but only a decree nisi, w der the law of the state, is me liminary, requiring a further make it final, and where suc had been suspended prior to t ruptcy. In re Wiseman (D.
123 Fed. 185, 10 Am. Bankr.

For the purpose of proving a bankruptcy, a debt is not so n a judgment recovered upon it judgment must be proved inste debt. Hence where a credit provable claim and has bro upon it before the adjudication ruptcy, and recovers a judgm the adjudication and before the application for discharge, he m the original debt, although the was for a less sum than the de ed and offered for proof. In r 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 138; In
(D. C. 1870) 3 N. B. R. 584,
No. 1,975; In re Crawford 1870) 3 N. B. R. 698, Fed.
3,363; In re Stansfield (D.
16 N. B. R. 268, Fed. Cas. N
In re Vickery (C. C. 1870) 3
696, Fed. Cas. No. 16,930;
Carter (1884) 78 Va. 621. A re Smith (D. C. 1910) 176
23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 864.

Where a creditor holding a provable debt against a ban the date of the adjudication t brings suit in a state court covers judgment, he may pr judgment as an unsecured clai the bankrupt's estate, less co red and interest accrued after of the petition up to the entry ment. In re McBryde (D. C.
Fed. 686, 3 Am. Bankr. R
Compare Hackett v. Supreme
A. L. H. (1910) 206 Mass. 13
E. 133.

A creditor holding a promiss valid and enforceable against t at the date of the latter's adj in bankruptcy, but against w statute of limitations has ne may reduce the same to judg suit brought in a state court a adjudication, and the judgment tablish the claim and stop the of the statute, though it will the creditor a lien or priority him to levy on the bankrupt's
In re McBryde (D. C. 1899)
686, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 729.

A claim for damages for n causing personal injuries is no able debt, and it is not made by the recovery of a judgme after the filing of the petition ruptcy. In re Crescent Lun

(D. C. 1907) 154 Fed. 724, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 112.

It has been held, in a case where the trustee, eighteen months after the adjudication, brought an action in a state court against a supposed debtor of the estate, but was defeated, and the defendant recovered a judgment on a counterclaim against the bankrupt, that the trustee was liable for the costs of the action, but that the creditor, having filed no claim within the time allowed, could not prove his judgment against the estate. In re Havens (D. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 367, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 116.

13. Equitable claims and demands.—As courts of bankruptcy have jurisdiction in equity as well as at law, equitable claims against a bankrupt are provable if within the purview of the general rules of equity, even though they have no status at law. In re Putman (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 464, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 923; In re Upson (D. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 807, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 602; Sigsby v. Willis (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 207, Fed. Cas. No. 12,849; In re Blandin (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 39, Fed. Cas. No. 1,527; In re Buckhause (D. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 206, Fed. Cas. No. 2,086; In re Coney Island Lumber Co. (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 803.

In equity, and therefore in bankruptcy, a married woman can contract with her husband in respect to her separate estate and sue him in regard to it, and hence a claim in bankruptcy in favor of the wife of the bankrupt, for money loaned to a partnership of which he was a member, may be proved. In re James (1904) 131 Fed. 401, 65 C. C. A. 385, 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 321, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 573. And see In re Batchelder & Lincoln Co. (1903) 122 Fed. 355, 58 C. C. A. 517, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 641; In re Jordan & Blake (D. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 319.

A mere claim in equity to rescind a contract is not a debt which is provable in bankruptcy. Doggett v. Emerson (C. C. 1846) Fed. Cas. No. 3,962.

14. Contingent demands and liabilities.—Contingent demands and liabilities are not provable as debts in bankruptcy. Dunbar v. Dunbar (1903) 190 U. S. 340, 23 Sup. Ct. 757, 47 L. Ed. 1084, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 139; In re American Vacuum Cleaner Co. (D. C. 1911) 192 Fed. 939, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 621; In re Inman & Co. (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 185, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 524; In re Wilson (D. C. 1912) 194 Fed. 564, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 867; In re Hartman (D. C. 1909) 166 Fed. 776, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 610; Phenix Nat. Bank v. Waterbury (1908) 123 App. Div. 453, 108 N. Y. Supp. 391; Leader v. Mattingly (1904) 140 Ala. 444, 37 South. 270.

A contingent claim in this sense is one where all the facts necessary to be shown to establish the bankrupt's liability to the claimant had not occurred before the petition in bankruptcy was filed. Colman Co. v. Withoft (C. C. A. 1912) 195 Fed. 250, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 328. A contingent claim is one the valuation or estimation of which it is substantially impossible to prove because of the uncertain or fortuitous elements which may enter into it. Dunbar v. Dunbar (1903) 190 U. S. 340, 23 Sup. Ct. 757, 47 L. Ed. 1084. The liability of an indorser of the bankrupt's promissory note, is not a contingent demand, although the note is not due at the time of the filing of the petition. Colman Co. v. Withoft (C. C. A. 1912) 195 Fed. 250, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 328.

The liability of a bankrupt on a guaranty executed by him of the payment by a corporation of dividends at a certain rate on its stock, owned by another, with respect to dividends not due or payable at the time of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, is so far contingent that a claim based thereon is not a provable debt. In re Pettingill (D. C. 1905) 137 Fed. 143, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 728. The same rule has been applied to an agreement by the bankrupt to pay an annuity to his divorced wife "during her life or until she remarries." Dunbar v. Dunbar (1903) 190 U. S. 340, 23 Sup. Ct. 757, 47 L. Ed. 1084. And so of a claim against the bankrupt by his lessee for prospective profits of the business conducted at a stand on the bankrupt's premises, on breach of the lease by the bankrupt. In re Leland (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 8,233. Nor can a claim be proved on a covenant in a lease permitting the lessor, on default, to re-enter and relet the premises at the risk of the lessee, the latter to remain liable for the rent and be credited with the sums actually realized. Ex parte Lake (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 497, Fed. Cas. No. 7,991; Bowditch v. Raymond (1888) 146 Mass. 109, 15 N. E. 285. And see In re Gallacher Coal Co. (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 183, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 766. Bonds of a corporation which by their terms were payable only out of funds created from the surplus earnings of the company held not provable in bankruptcy against the company, where there never had been any surplus earnings, and such funds had therefore never been created. Synnott v. Tombstone Consol. Mines Co. (C. C. A. 1913) 208 Fed. 251, denying rehearing (C. C. A. 1913) 207 Fed. 544. But a contract liability of the bankrupt, contingent at the time the petition was filed, but liquidated within the year allowed for making proof, is a provable debt. In re James Dunlap Carpet Co. (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 541, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 882.

15. Unliquidated demands.—The provision of this section that unliquidated claims may be liquidated in such manner as the court may direct, and may thereafter be proved and allowed against the estate, covers only such claims as, when liquidated, will be provable debts under the specifications of the preceding paragraph and does not enlarge the class of provable debts nor permit the proof of claims for damages for torts not reduced to certainty by judgment. Dunbar v. Dunbar (1903) 190 U. S. 340, 23 Sup. Ct. 757, 47 L. Ed. 1084, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 139; In re Southern Steel Co. (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 498, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 358; In re New York Tunnel Co. (1908) 159 Fed. 688, 86 C. C. A. 556, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 25; In re Hirschman (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 69, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 715; Brown & Adams v. United Button Co. (1906) 149 Fed. 48, 79 C. C. A. 70, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 565. A claim which is both unliquidated and contingent is not a provable debt. Cotting v. Hooper, Lewis & Co. (1915) 220 Mass. 273, 107 N. E. 931.

A claim for damages for breach of a contract, where the amount of damage is to be ascertained by proof and not by mere calculation, is an unliquidated demand. In re Erie Lumber Co. (D. C. 1906) 150 Fed. 817, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 689. And so is the liability arising upon a written guaranty to pay the future indebtedness of another person upon an open account. Hargroves v. Cooke (1854) 15 Ga. 321. And the liability of a bankrupt broker for stock purchased by him for a customer and converted to his own use, the exact time of the conversion not being shown. In re Graff (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 343, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 744. So where plaintiff was a partner with defendant in a transaction involving the purchase and sale of a certain commodity, and plaintiff knew, when defendant filed his petition in bankruptcy, that the venture would result in a loss, leaving the defendant indebted to him, though the exact amount was not then known and could not be ascertained until the rest of the stock on hand was disposed of, it was held that plaintiff had an "unliquidated claim" against defendant at the date of the bankruptcy. Dycus v. Brown (1915) 135 Ky. 140, 121 S. W. 1010, 28 L. R. A. (N. S.) 190. In this classification also are included losses suffered by a broker in disposing of goods purchased for the bankrupt which he failed or refused to receive. In re Smith (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 12,975. And a claim against a testamentary trustee for negligence and mismanagement. In re Griffin (D. C. 1910) 188 Fed. 389.

A claim against the estate of a bankrupt for sums of money obtained by him from the claimants, while in their employment, by means of forged indorsements, pilfering of cash, and inducing them to purchase stocks on false and fictitious orders, cannot be denied allowance, on the ground being an unliquidated demand, the amounts taken from and p by the claimants are certain. Filer (D. C. 1901) 125 Fed. Am. Bankr. Rep. 835.

When a creditor's claim agai bankrupt is unliquidated he ca once proceed to make proof of have it allowed. He must firs an application to the court to h claim "liquidated," and it will liquidated in such manner as th shall direct, or it must be liq by suit or in some other manne the court will allow or accept, a previous application to it, and after he may prove the claim manner prescribed by law, and its allowance for the amount f such liquidation. In re Rubel 1908) 166 Fed. 131, 21 Am. Rep. 566; In re Silverman (D. 101 Fed. 219, 4 Am. Bankr. R In re Heinsfurter (D. C. 18 Fed. 198, 3 Am. Bankr. Re In re Clough (D. C. 1868) 2 N 151, Fed. Cas. No. 2,905. Th dation may be effected by a hea fore the referee, by a plenary a court of competent jurisdic by permitting an action pending court to proceed to judgment. Buchan's Soap Corp. (D. C. 19 Fed. 1017, 22 Am. Bankr. Re In re Duquesne Incandescent Co. (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. Am. Bankr. Rep. 419; In re Button Co. (D. C. 1906) 140 F 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 390. against a bankrupt for breach o ise to marry, on which suit wa ing in a state court, held an unl ed claim, which the court prop dered liquidated by trial in th court. In re Martin (C. C. A 228 Fed. 184. Where an actio unliquidated claim is pending in court when bankruptcy occurs, trustee does not apply for a s permits the case to go to judgm claim is thereby liquidated, a judgment affords proper proof amount of the claim. In re B Soap Corp. (D. C. 1909) 16 1017, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 382. a claim secured by a mortgage bankrupt's stock in trade was by the trustee as a preferen thereupon the creditor sued in court to establish the validity mortgage, and in that action th gage was held to be invalid as erence, it was held that the c claim was thereby "liquidate was provable as an unsecure Powell v. Leavitt (C. C. A. 19 Fed. 89.

16. Assigned claims.—Where able claim against the bankrupt at the time the petition was f subsequent assignment of it wi with it all the rights and which the assignor had, including the right to intervene in the bankruptcy proceedings. In re Fitzgerald (D. C. 1911) 191 Fed. 95, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 773. Except in the case of negotiable paper, the assignee will take the claim in the same condition in which his assignor held it, and will acquire no stronger or higher rights. In re Wiener & Goodman Shoe Co. (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 949, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 200; Humphreys v. Blight's Assignee (C. C. 1803) Fed. Cas. No. 6,870. He may prove the claim for its full amount, although he purchased it at a discount. In re Houghton (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 6,728. He may prove the claim and receive dividends on it, notwithstanding that the assignment was intended only as collateral security. In re American Specialty Co. (C. C. A. 1911) 191 Fed. 807, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 463. Compare In re Eagles (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 695, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 733.

Where various creditors have all assigned their claims to a committee, with a view to purchasing the bankrupt's property and selling it for the benefit of the assignors, the right to prove the claims in the bankruptcy is in the committee, and not in the individual creditors. In re E. T. Kenney Co. (D. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 451, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 611.

The form by which a claim against a bankrupt is transferred is immaterial, and cannot affect the right of the assignee to prove the claim, provided only that it is sufficient to estop the original holder from asserting any right to it. In re Miner (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 953, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 100.

One taking an assignment of a proved claim as security for an antecedent liability of the person in whose name it is proved, who is apparently though not really the owner thereof, is not a purchaser for value, and cannot hold the claim against the true owner. In re Sime (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 12,861.

It is not unlawful to buy up claims against an insolvent person for the purpose of preventing or stopping proceedings in bankruptcy against him. In re Strachan (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 13,519. And it has been held that the allowance of a claim, in favor of an assignee who acquired it after the adjudication, but from an innocent and bona fide holder in whose hands it was valid and provable, will not be set aside upon an allegation by other creditors that the assignee bought the claim for the purpose of acquiring a majority interest in the estate, of controlling the bankruptcy proceedings in the interest of the bankrupt and himself, and of hindering and defrauding the other creditors, when it does not appear that such fraudulent purpose has actually been carried out to the injury of other creditors. In re Headley (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 765, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 272. But where a person intending to go into bankruptcy procured a friend to buy up a large part of his indebtedness at a small fraction of its nominal value, by disseminating false and discouraging statements as to the amount of dividends his estate would pay, it was remarked that no court of bankruptcy would hesitate to hold that claims thus tinctured with fraud should not be proven against the estate. In re State Ins. Co. (D. C. 1883) 16 Fed. 756. Where an insolvent, in contemplation of bankruptcy, executed a mortgage on real estate for $1,000 to his brother-in-law, which was fraudulent, and the mortgagee, after bankruptcy, assigned the mortgage to L., it was not provable as a claim against the bankrupt's estate. Butcher v. Werksman (D. C. 1913) 204 Fed. 330.

If the trustee has assets in hand more than sufficient to pay all other claims, debts purchased by agents for the bankrupt may be allowed to the extent of the sums paid therefor by the purchasers. In re Lathrop (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 8,104.

17. Debts payable in the future.—A claim which constitutes a fixed liability and is absolutely owing at the time of filing a petition in bankruptcy is provable as a debt against the estate, though not yet matured. De Long v. Mechanics & Metals Nat. Bank (1915) 168 App. Div. 525, 153 N. Y. Supp. 1010. If one owing a debt has procured an extension of time for its payment and becomes bankrupt, the creditor has a provable claim, even before the expiration of the time agreed on. Ecfort v. Greely (D. C. 1873) 6 N. B. R. 433, Fed. Cas. No. 4,260. A promissory note made by the bankrupt is a provable debt in bankruptcy, although not due at the time of the filing of the petition. In re Percy Ford Co. (D. C. 1911) 199 Fed. 334, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 919.

A penal bond, executed by a person who is thereafter adjudged a bankrupt, to secure the payment to the obligee of an annuity during life, is an instrument creating a fixed liability absolutely owing at the time of the filing of the petition, payable in the future, and is provable as a debt against the bankrupt's estate for the amount of the penalty stated therein, where the value of the annuity, computed on the life tables, exceeds such penalty. Cobb v. Overman (1901) 109 Fed. 65, 48 C. C. A. 223, 54 L. R. A. 369, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 324 (overruling Bray v. Cobb [D. C. 1900] 100 Fed. 270, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 788); Haywood v. Shreve (1882) 44 N. J. Law, 94; Roosevelt v. Mark (N. Y. 1822) 6 Johns. Ch. 266.

A claim for attorney's fees under a stipulation in a mortgage which was not due when the petition was filed and no services had been rendered is not allowable against the bankrupt's estate.

British & American Mortgage Co. v. Stuart (C. C. A. 1914) 210 Fed. 425.

18. Interest accrued and accruing.—To entitle himself to interest on his claim proved in bankruptcy, the creditor must show either a debt entitled to interest by operation of law or else a mutual agreement of the parties that interest should be charged. In re Stevens (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 323, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 9. The right to claim interest in bankruptcy proceedings may depend upon the making of a previous demand for payment. In re North Carolina Car Co. (D. C. 1903) 127 Fed. 178, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 488. Where a claimant sent a bankrupt annual statements, showing that the bankrupt was charged interest at 8 per cent. compounded annually, the bankrupt never having objected, the statements constituted accounts stated as against the bankrupt's trustee. In re Hawks (D. C. 1913) 204 Fed. 309. Even though the parties may have agreed that no interest should be payable on a loan of money, yet where this stipulation was based on the performance of certain acts on the part of the borrower, his failure to observe the contract may entitle the lender to claim interest as against his estate in bankruptcy. In re Fenn (D. C. 1909) 172 Fed. 620, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 833. But interest should not be allowed where the debt is one which would have been barred by the statute of limitations if it had not been saved by a new promise. In re Reed (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 11,635. In the case of a debt put into judgment before the petition in bankruptcy was filed, interest may be proved with the debt. Ex parte O'Neil (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 10,-527.

If, by the law of the state, the taking of usury causes a forfeiture of all interest, when the debt is put in suit, the same consequence attends the presentation in bankruptcy of a claim on which usury has been exacted. In re Prescott (D. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 385, Fed. Cas. No. 11,389.

In the case of all ordinary debts, interest accruing subsequent to the time of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy is not provable. In re Haake (D. C. 1872) 7 N. B. R. 61, Fed. Cas. No. 5,883; In re Bugbee (D. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 258, Fed. Cas. No. 2,115. But interest may run on a valid debt secured by a mortgage or other specific lien up to the time of its payment out of the proceeds of a sale of the property. In re Torchia (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 576, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 188.

Where an estate in bankruptcy proves to be solvent, that is, where all proved claims are paid in full and there remains a balance in the hands of the trustee, the proving creditors are entitled to an additional allowance of interest, from the date of filing the petition to the date when the last payment on their debts was made, before any par surplus shall be returned to th rupt. Johnson v. Norris (19 Fed. 459, 111 C. C. A. 291, Bankr. Rep. 107; In re John (Sons & Co. (1910) 177 Fed. 1 C. C. A. 392, 24 Am. Bankr. I Bromley v. Goodere, 1 Atkyns, parte Mills, 2 Ves. Jr. 295; Cle Clemons (1896) 69 Vt. 545, 38 A 19. Costs, expenses, and c fees.—The provision of this sec lowing proof of a claim for ' costs" includes costs incurred attachment proceeding prior to ing of the petition in ban though the lien of the attach dissolved by the adjudication. Allen (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 512 Bankr. Rep. 38; In re Preston 1871) 5 N. B. R. 293, Fed. C 11,393. Compare In re Hatje 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 6,215. especially the case if the att proceedings had the effect of ing the property for the benefi general creditors. In re Heller 1910) 176 Fed. 656, 23 Am. Rep. 792. Costs incurred by ment creditor in obtaining th ment and in defending an appea from are provable against the e the surety on the appeal bond. Waters (1901) 16 Colo. App. Pac. 1054. Although the costs able are ordinarily only those under the law of the state wh action was maintained, and n limited to the amounts fixed law, yet it is competent for t ties to a litigation to stipulate payment to such officers as a or master in chancery, and al stenographer, of fees in excess statutory rate, and when the done so, the amount agreed up be proved and allowed in ban In re J. B. Brewster & Co. (19 Fed. 109, 103 C. C. A. 42, Bankr. Rep. 838.

Costs, to be allowable at al have been incurred in an ac recover a provable debt, and he costs of an attachment laid by t of the bankrupt in a libel for are not provable in the bankrup re Foye (D. C. 1875) Fed. C 5,021. A creditor who sues, ers judgment, and levies execu fore the filing of the petition i ruptcy cannot be charged wi faith merely because he ma known or believed that the deb in financial straits when he be suit. In re Harnden (D. C. 19 Fed. 172, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 50 expenses and disbursements i by a creditor in endeavoring to the bankruptcy act and to obtain erence over other creditors ca allowed as a claim against the In re Archenbrown (D. C. 1876) R. 429, Fed. Cas. No. 503.

Where the creditor's claim is based upon a note which contains a stipulation for the payment of an attorney's fee, in addition to principal and interest, in case the note is "placed in the hands of an attorney for collection," the right to add the attorney's fee to the amount of the claim, in proving it in bankruptcy will depend upon the concurrence of two things, the maturity of the note and the placing it in an attorney's hands for collection, both before the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. If the note fell due and was so placed for collection, and the bankruptcy of the maker occurred after both these events, then the creditor will be entitled to prove his claim for the stipulated attorney's fee in addition to the face of the note. In re Edens Co. (D. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 940, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 643. But if the note did not mature until after the institution of the bankruptcy proceedings, no such fee can be claimed, although it may have been given to an attorney for collection when due. In re T. H. Thompson Milling Co. (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 314, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 454; In re Edens Co. (D. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 940, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 643; In re Garlington (D. C. 1902) 115 Fed. 999, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 602. And on the other hand, although the note fell due before the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, yet if it was not placed in the hands of an attorney for collection until after the institution of the bankruptcy proceedings, the claim for an attorney's fee cannot be proved, because not a "fixed liability absolutely owing" at the commencement of the proceedings. In re Keeton, Stell & Co. (D. C. 1903) 126 Fed. 426, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 367; In re V. & M. Lumber Co. (D. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 231; In re Gebhard (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 571, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 381. Compare Merchants' Bank v. Thomas (1903) 121 Fed. 306, 57 C. C. A. 374, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 299. Further, where the law of the state regards a stipulation of this kind as merely a contract of indemnity—that is, as creating a liability for reasonable fees for services rendered, not exceeding the amount stipulated—a creditor will not be entitled to the allowance of such a fee unless he gives proof of collection services actually rendered and entitling him to indemnification. McCabe v. Patton (1909) 174 Fed. 217, 98 C. C. A. 225, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 335. Nor should an attorney's fee be allowed where the payee of the note, filing it for proof, is himself an attorney. In re Hersey (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 1004, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 863. In the case of an attorney's fee stipulated for in a mortgage, its allowance or rejection in bankruptcy will depend upon the wording of the particular instrument. Where the mortgagee proves his claim as a secured creditor, and the property is sold by the trustee in bankruptcy at private sale under orders of the court, a fee for the mortgagee's attorney cannot be claimed where the instrument only stipulated for such a fee in case it became "necessary to foreclose" the mortgage "by suit or proceedings in court." In re Roche (1900) 101 Fed. 956, 42 C. C. A. 115, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 369. But otherwise where it provided for an attorney's fee "in case legal services should become necessary to protect the interests" of the mortgagee. In re Holmes Lumber Co. (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 178, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 119. Although a state statute provides that a mortgagee may recover attorneys' fees on foreclosure, provided he will previously give a certain notice of his intention to foreclose, yet such fees do not constitute a provable claim in bankruptcy, where the bankruptcy of the mortgagor intervened after the giving of such notice, but before any foreclosure was had. In re Weiland (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 116, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 620.

As to the allowance of fees to the attorneys of creditors, independently of the agreement of the parties or of any statutory provisions, the rule is that such an allowance may be made on equitable considerations for services from which the estate in bankruptcy has derived benefit, and to the extent only that such services were beneficial in fact. In re Zier & Co. (1905) 142 Fed. 102, 73 C. C. A. 326, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 646. See In re Crave & Martin Co. (1910) 183 Fed. 769, 106 C. C. A. 180; In re Duran Mercantile Co. (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 961, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 450; In re Coney Island Lumber Co. (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 803. Thus, attorneys who filed a petition in involuntary bankruptcy for creditors, which was defective and insufficient to warrant an adjudication, a second petition presented by other creditors resulting in an adjudication, are not entitled to an allowance of fees from the estate. In re Fischer (C. C. A. 1910) 175 Fed. 531, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 427. Where an adjudication of bankruptcy was made against a corporation which was already in the hands of a receiver appointed by a state court, and the attorneys for the receiver antagonized the bankruptcy proceedings and instigated litigation which delayed and obstructed such proceedings and caused a large amount of expense to the estate, it was held that they were not entitled to the allowance of any fees from the estate, and their belief that they were within their legal rights, and that the state court had prior jurisdiction of the case, was considered immaterial; and it was further held that they could not be allowed compensation for any services which were actually beneficial to the estate, where it appeared that, as a whole, their services cost the estate and the general creditors several times the amount, in increased expenses of administration. In re Zier & Co. (1905) 142 Fed. 102, 73 C. C. A. 326, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 646; In re M. Zier & Co. (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 399, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 527.

20. Liability of bankrupt as indorser, guarantor, or surety.—The liability of a bankrupt as an indorser of commercial paper is a debt provable against his estate. In re Letchworth (D. C. 1884) 19 Fed. 873; Hunt v. Taylor (1871) 108 Mass. 508, 4 N. B. R. 683; In re Morse (D. C. 1875) 11 N. B. R. 482, Fed. Cas. No. 9,853; Ex parte Farnsworth (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 4,-672. And where a note has matured at the time of the filing of the petition, and there have been presentation, demand of payment, and protest, the liability of an indorser thereon is a "fixed liability absolutely owing." Whitwell v. Wright (1910) 136 App. Div. 246, 120 N. Y. Supp. 1065. But some of the cases have maintained that no provable claim on an indorsement can be said to have arisen unless dishonor, protest, and notice have preceded the institution of the proceedings in bankruptcy. In re Loder (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 190, Fed. Cas. No. 8,457; In re Schaefer (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 973; Stowell v. Richardson (Mass. 1861) 3 Allen, 64. Compare Ex parte Russell (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 476, Fed. Cas. No. 12,148. Notice of non-payment of a note is not necessary to bind the estate in bankruptcy of an indorser, where the estates of the maker and the indorser are both represented by the same trustees. In re T. A. McIntyre & Co. (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 579, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 459. In the case of a promissory note payable on demand, and which must therefore be presented for payment within a reasonable time in order to charge the indorser, it has been said that where such a note is not presented nor any demand made within four years, a protest made after that lapse of time does not fix any liability on the indorser, and a claim founded on the note cannot be proved against his estate in bankruptcy. In re Crawford (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 301, Fed. Cas. No. 3,364. But the prevailing opinion is that the liability of a bankrupt indorser of negotiable paper, though it does not become absolute by (dishonor and protest) until after the filing of the petition, is nevertheless a "debt" within the meaning of the statute, which enumerates debts on contract, express or implied, among those provable in bankruptcy; and it may be proved against his estate after such liability has become fixed, if within the time limited for proving claims. Moch v. Market Street Nat. Bank (1901) 107 Fed. 897, 47 C. C. A. 49, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 11; In re Phillip Semmer Glass Co. (1905) 135 Fed. 77, 67 551, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 2 Smith (D. C. 1906) 146 Fe Am. Bankr. Rep. 112; In (D. C. 1901) 105 Fed. 89 Bankr. Rep. 89; McNeil (1852) 11 Ga. 142; In re N (D. C.) 3 N. B. R. 230, Fed 10,254. It has been held that er of a note might prove a cla the estate of the bankrupt notwithstanding the fact that would not be due for more th after the adjudication in b In re Buzzini & Co. (D. C. Fed. 827. Even where the question is rendered nonneg the insertion of a restrictive in regard to the mode of its a proof against the bankrupt dorser of it will not be expun it is shown that it was nego his sole benefit. In re Grang 1873) 8 N. B. R. 30, Fed. Ca 684. But on the other hand, rupt cannot be held liable w shown that his indorsement note was forged and that he ceived any benefit from the p it. In re Lamon (D. C. 1909) 516, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 635.

A provable claim may be the liability of the bankrupt a on a replevin bond. Choate chett (Tenn. 1873) 12 Heisk. his liability as surety on the guardian. Davis v. McCurdy Wis. 569, 7 N. W. 665. A not teed by a corporation is provab its estate in bankruptcy. In r ka Bros. Co. (D. C. 1913) 206 But the bankruptcy act does mit proof of a claim against until there has been a forf breach of condition or failure formance, or, in the case of a nity bond, some actual loss or the obligee. Loeser v. A (1910) 176 Fed. 265, 100 C. 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 75; Ki Fowle (Mass. 1862) 5 Allen, 1 bett v. Woodward (C. C. 18 Cas. No. 3,223; Loring v. (Mass. 1854) 1 Gray, 305. A the bankrupt is a guarantor, is nothing presently due or c liquidation at the time of the b cy, and no certainty that anyt ever be due or that any liab arise, no claim can be prove the bankrupt's estate. In re N Baker (1911) 186 Fed. 312, 1 A. 390; In re Pettingill & Co 1905) 137 Fed. 143, 14 Am. Ba 728.

21. Rights of bankrupt's sure dorser.—A surety on a bond, made the payment or discha obligation for which the princ liable, has a provable claim ag latter's estate in bankruptcy. Lyons Beet Sugar Refining Co 1911) 192 Fed. 445, 27 Am

Rep. 610; Liddell v. Wiswell (1887) 59 Vt. 365, 8 Atl. 680.

The bankrupt's surety has no provable claim, to be set up in his own name, until he has paid the debt or damages or liquidated the obligation called for by the bond. Insley v. Garside (1903) 121 Fed. 699, 58 C. C. A. 119, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 52; R. P. Williams & Co. v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1912) 11 Ga. App. 635, 75 S. E. 1067; Hester v. Baldwin (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 6,438; Steele v. Graves (1880) 68 Ala. 21; Ecker v. Bohn (1876) 45 Md. 278, 16 N. B. R. 544. Compare Lipscomb v. Grace (1870) 26 Ark. 231, 7 Am. Rep. 607. And a partial payment is not sufficient to give him a provable claim pro tanto. Unless and until the debt or claim is paid in full, the right to prove it as a debt in bankruptcy is in the original creditor and not in the surety. In re Heyman (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 800, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 651; In re Hollister (D. C. 1880) 3 Fed. 452. But a surety need not necessarily pay in cash. If his individual note is expressly received and accepted in payment, he may then prove against the bankrupt principal. In re Morrill (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 9,821. A surety on a bond to dissolve a garnishment, against whom judgment was recovered after the adjudication in bankruptcy of the principal, has a provable claim. Kilpatrick v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (C. C. A. 1916) 228 Fed. 587.

Where the surety holds collateral securities, for his own indemnity, and pays the debt of the principal, he can prove only the difference between the debt and the amount realized on the securities. In re Baldwin (D. C. 1878) 19 N. B. R. 52, Fed. Cas. No. 796.

The provision of the statute that "whenever a creditor, whose claim against a bankrupt is secured by the individual undertaking of any person, fails to prove such claim, such person may do so in the creditor's name, and if he discharge such undertaking in whole or in part, he shall be subrogated to that extent to the rights of the creditor," does not give to a surety who has not taken up the obligation the right to institute proceedings in involuntary bankruptcy against the principal, but only to prove the claim, if the creditor fails to do so, after an adjudication of bankruptcy has been made. Phillips v. Dreher Shoe Co. (D. C. 1902) 112 Fed. 404, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 326. And see Insley v. Garside (1903) 121 Fed. 699, 58 C. C. A. 119, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 52; In re Carter (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 846, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 126; Rosenthal v. Nove (1900) 175 Mass. 559, 56 N. E. 884, 78 Am. St. Rep. 512.

An indorser of the bankrupt's paper may prove a claim for the amount, in his own name, against the estate, after he has paid the note, but not before. In re Salvator Brewing Co. (1912) 193 Fed. 989, 113 C. C. A. 626, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 56; In re Dr. Voorhees Awning Hood Co. (D. C. 1911) 187 Fed. 611; In re Morse (D. C. 1875) 11 N. B. R. 482, Fed. Cas. No. 9,853; Marks v. Barker (C. C. 1804) Fed. Cas. No. 9,096. See In re Elletson Co. (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 84, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 434. Though such an indorser may have become absolutely liable to the holder of the note, by due notice of its dishonor, before the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, this does not make him a creditor of the bankrupt. In re Riker (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 393, Fed. Cas. No. 11,833. When the holder of a note fails to prove the same against the maker's estate, thus showing that he looks to the indorser alone for payment, the indorser may prove it and receive dividends, though he has not proved the note. In re Ellerhorst (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 144, Fed. Cas. No. 4,381. Where indorsers of notes of the bankrupt paid a portion of the debt and secured their release as indorsers and the holders proved the notes for the entire amount against the bankrupt's estate, the indorsers were not entitled to prove the amount paid by them as claims against the estate, since under section 9641 (i), ante, they were only entitled to receive from the holders any overplus, after crediting dividends received from the bankrupt's estate and the amount paid by the indorsers. In re Manhattan Brush Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1913) 209 Fed. 997. An accommodation indorser of a note for the accommodation of a corporation not fully organized for want of the filing of a certificate of organization, as required by state statute, held entitled, on paying the note, to an allowance against the corporation, becoming a bankrupt, for the amount thereof. In re Halsey W. Kelley & Co., Inc. (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 155.

Under a state statute providing that, where a party to a negotiable instrument has been adjudged bankrupt, notice may be given either to the party himself or to his trustee, and that notice of dishonor is not necessary where the drawer and drawee are the same person, or to an indorser where he is the person to whom an instrument is presented for payment, where the maker and indorser of notes were partners, and were adjudged bankrupts, both as partners and individually, before the notes matured, and the same trustees were appointed for all the estates, it was held that notice of nonpayment on the maturity of the notes was not necessary to bind the estate of the indorser. In re T. A. McIntyre & Co. (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 579, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 459.

22. Rights of creditor where several parties liable.—The holder of a claim upon which several parties are personally liable may prove his claim against the estates of any of them who become bankrupt, and may at the same time pursue the others at law, and notwithstanding partial payments after the bankruptcy, received from the nonbankrupts or from the estates of those in bankruptcy, the creditor may recover dividends from each estate in bankruptcy upon the full amount of his claim, as it stood at the time the petition in bankruptcy was filed therein, until, from all sources, he has received full payment of his claim. Board of Com'rs of Shawnee County v. Hurley (1909) 169 Fed. 92, 94 C. C. A. 362, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 209; In re Simon (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 105, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 611; In re Girvin (D. C. 1908) 160 Fed. 206, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 320; Downing v. Traders' Bank (C. C. 1873) 11 N. B. R. 371, Fed. Cas. No. 4,046; In re Hicks (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 299, Fed. Cas. No. 6,456; In re Howard (D. C. 1871) 4 N. B. R. 571, Fed. Cas. No. 6,750. Thus, the holder of a bill of exchange is entitled to prove his debt in bankruptcy against the drawer, the acceptor, and the payee, and to receive dividends from all their estates until his debt is paid in full; and if only one of the parties is in bankruptcy, he may prove his claim against that one, and also proceed against the others at law. In re Babcock (C. C. 1844) Fed. Cas. No. 696. So, when the holder of a note proves his debt in bankruptcy against the maker of the note for the full amount thereof, as an unsecured claim, this does not affect or release an indorser from his liability on the note. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Comstock (1873) 55 N. Y. 24.

The estate of the bankrupt is entitled to the benefit of a partial payment of the debt made, before the bankruptcy, by any of the other parties liable for it, and in this case the creditor can prove against the bankrupt only the unpaid balance of his claim after crediting the payment. In re Pulsifer (D. C. 1880) 14 Fed. 247; Ex parte Harris (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 432, Fed. Cas. No. 6,109; In re Weeks (D. C. 1875) 13 N. B. R. 263, Fed. Cas. No. 17,349; Sohier v. Loring (1850) 6 Cush. (Mass.) 537. Where the maker of a note becomes bankrupt after the holder has received part payment from the indorser, the creditor should prove a claim in the bankruptcy proceedings for the entire face of the note, because he is in the position of a trustee for the indorser, and if he receives, in dividends, more than enough to satisfy the unpaid balance of his claim, he will hold the surplus for the indorser, who will be entitled to reimbursement. In re Souther (D. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 502, Fed. Cas. No. 13,184; In re Ellerhorst (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 144, Fed. Cas. No. 4,381. And see In re Baxter (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 497, Fed. Cas. No. 1,120. But in other cases, nothing short of actual payment, or a present right to receive a dividend from an estate in bankruptcy, will operat vent the creditor from provin against the estates of the ot sons liable; the fact that on debtors, being in bankruptcy, fered notes for composition will not have this effect. In (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 299,
No. 6,456. So where a credi had sold goods to the bank which a third person became afterwards received from the s security, a note of the bankrup upon a separate transaction, it that such note, being the pro the surety, did not inure to t rupt's interest, but to that of ty, and was a separate debt, the creditor was entitled to both claims. In re H. V. Ke Co. (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 80
Bankr. Rep. 765. But where a of a bankrupt has a lien on t erty of a third party, as par security for his debt, he canno his lien for a consideration crediting the amount of the c tion on his claim. Seay v. W
C. 1881) 9 Fed. 589.

23. Claims of bankrupt's bankruptcy a wife may be a cr her husband, and may prove tain a claim against his estate ey which was her separate and which she loaned to him, to his keeping and managemen lowed him to use in his busin clearly appears that no gift wa ed, but only a loan or trust
Remmerde (D. C. 1913) 206
30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 707; In re son (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 100
Neiman (D. C. 1901) 109 F
Tucker v. Curtin (1906) 148
78 C. C. A. 557, 17 Am. Ban 354; Clark v. Hezekiah (D. C.
Fed. 663; In re Bigelow (D. C
N. B. R. 556, Fed. Cas. No. 1,38
Blandin (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R.
Cas. No. 1,527. The failure o ried woman to register a clain her husband as her separate under the laws of Oregon, affect her right to prove t against his estate in bankrup re Miner (D. C. 1902) 117 Fe Am. Bankr. Rep. 100. This plies notwithstanding the fact law of the particular state give to husband and wife any contract with each other or to other, and for this reason a ment to repay the wife's mon not be enforced by a suit
James v. Gray (1904) 131 Fed
C. C. A. 385, 1 L. R. A. (N.
12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 573; In re
C. 1911) 190 Fed. 390, 27 Am
Rep. 146; In re Domenig (D.
128 Fed. 146, 11 Am. Bankr. R
In re Nickerson (D. C. 1902)
1003. Compare In re Talbo 1901) 110 Fed. 924, 7 Am. Ban
29. But the wife's claim ag bankrupt husband must be supported, like any other, by a valid consideration, and she cannot prove a claim where she has already received satisfaction of the debt in the form of a conveyance of property. In re Carpenter (D. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 743. Or where she had no valid title to the property placed in her husband's hands, having previously received the same from him as a gift under circumstances which rendered the transfer invalid. In re Tucker (D. C. 1905) 148 Fed. 928, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 247. And where a wife allows her husband to appropriate the income of her separate estate in the support of the family, this does not create such a debt on his part as is provable in bankruptcy against his estate. In re Jones (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 7,444.

The wife of a bankrupt is entitled to the allowance of a claim for money lent to her husband, which she procured by mortgaging her own realty. In re Foss (D. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 790, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 439. She is entitled to prove a claim on a note given to her by the bankrupt, regardless of the consideration therefor, if it is not shown that the bankrupt was indebted at the time the note was made. In re Kyte (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 302, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 110. See In re Chapman (D. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 901, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 570.

Under the civil law prevailing in Louisiana, a husband's debt to his wife for paraphernal property is provable against him in bankruptcy. Fleitas v. Richardson (1893) 147 U. S. 550, 13 Sup. Ct. 495, 37 L. Ed. 276.

As to a wife's claim of payment for services rendered to her husband in his business, as, in the capacity of a clerk, bookkeeper, or the like, a claim may be proved in bankruptcy for the value of such services if the law of the state has removed the disabilities of married women. In re Domenig (D. C. 1904) 128 Fed. 146, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 552; In re Cox (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 952, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 456. But not where the common law in this respect still prevails. In re Suckle (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 828, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 861; In re Winkels (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 590, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 696.

Under a state statute providing that a wife who is granted a divorce from her husband shall be entitled to one-third of his personal property absolutely, the interest of a wife in the personal property of her husband, after the commencement of an action for divorce, but before decree, is not such a claim as is provable against his estate in bankruptcy. Hawk v. Hawk (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 679, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 463.

24. Claims for alimony.—Alimony awarded to a divorced wife by the decree of a competent court does not constitute a debt or claim which is provable against the estate of the husband in bankruptcy, whether the claim be for arrears remaining unpaid at the date of the bankruptcy or for installments to accrue thereafter. Audubon v. Shufeldt (1901) 181 U. S. 575, 21 Sup. Ct. 735, 45 L. Ed. 1009, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 829; In re Hubbard (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 710, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 528; Turner v. Turner (D. C. 1901) 108 Fed. 785, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 289; In re Shepard (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 187; In re Anderson (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 321, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 858; In re Nowell (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 931, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 837; In re Smith, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 471; In re Lawrie (D. C. 1899) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 77; In re Garrett (D. C. 1875) 11 N. B. R. 493, Fed. Cas. No. 5,252; In re Lachemeyer (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 270, Fed. Cas. No. 7,966; Beach v. Beach (1883) 29 Hun (N. Y.) 181; Barclay v. Barclay (1900) 184 Ill. 375, 56 N. E. 636, 51 L. R. A. 351; Welty v. Welty (1901) 96 Ill. App. 141; Maisner v. Maisner (1901) 62 App. Div. 286, 70 N. Y. Supp. 1107; Lemert v. Lemert (1903) 25 Ohio Cir. Ct. Rep. 253. CONTRA, In re Challoner (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 82, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 442; In re Houston (D. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 119, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 107; In re Van Orden (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 86, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 801; Arrington v. Arrington (1902) 131 N. C. 143, 42 S. E. 554, 92 Am. St. Rep. 769.

But where a wife, after securing a decree of divorce granting alimony, removes into another state, and there sues to recover unpaid arrears of alimony and obtains a judgment, and the husband lists the said judgment as an indebtedness in his schedules in bankruptcy, it constitutes a provable debt against his estate. In re Williams' Estate (1909) 118 N. Y. Supp. 562.

25. Unpaid subscriptions to stock and stockholder's statutory liability.—The liability of a stockholder in a corporation to make good the difference between the face value of stock for which he has subscribed and the amount he has actually paid on it is a debt founded on contract, and is therefore provable against his estate in bankruptcy, at the instance of a judgment creditor of the corporation, although no assessment or call has yet been made by the corporation. In re Putman (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 464, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 923; Carey v. Mayer (1897) 79 Fed. 926, 25 C. C. A. 239; Glenn v. Abell (C. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 10; Marr v. Bank of West Tennessee (1880) 4 Lea (Tenn.) 578. See In re Watkinson (D. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 602, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 245. But some decisions hold that such a liability is not a provable debt until the corporation itself has been required to make the necessary assessment upon its stockholders, so that the extent of the liability of each may be determined. Gibson v. Lewis (C. C. 1875) 11 N. B. R. 247, Fed. Cas. No. 5,398; Sayre v. Glenn (1888) 87 Ala. 631, 6 South. 45; Glenn v. Howard (1886) 65 Md. 40, 3 Atl. 895. Receivers of an insolvent insurance company cannot prove a claim against the estate of a bankrupt subscriber to the stock of the company, where it did not appear that the subscription was necessary to pay debts, or that in an equalization between stockholders the bankrupt would be in the debtor, instead of the creditor, class. In re Bass (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 275.

As to the liability imposed by statute upon the stockholders of certain classes of corporations to be personally answerable for the debts of their company, to an extent proportioned to their holdings, even though their stock has been paid in full, it is generally held that this is not such a claim as can be proved in bankruptcy against a stockholder. James v. Atlantic Delaine Co. (C. C. 1875) 11 N. B. R. 390, Fed. Cas. No. 7,179; Bristol v. Sanford (C. C. 1874) 13 N. B. R. 78, Fed. Cas. No. 1,893; Bangs v. Lincoln (1858) 10 Gray (Mass.) 600. At least if his personal responsibility remains uncertain and contingent, or the amount for which he may become liable has not been ascertained. Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (C. C. 1886) 27 Fed. 591. But otherwise if it is liquidated and ascertained by a judgment or a decree in equity before the expiration of the time limited for proving debts. Garrett v. Sayles (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 371. Or if the receiver of the corporation can certainly determine the amount of it by ascertaining the amount of the assets and liabilities of the corporation, and thus determining how much will be needed from the stockholders to make up the deficiency of the assets of the corporation. Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 308.

26. Debts created by bankrupt's fraud.—A debt or liability is a provable claim against the estate of a bankrupt if essentially of a contractual character, although induced by the fraud of the bankrupt, or if the circumstances are such that the claimant may waive the tort and sue as upon an implied contract. Crawford v. Burke (1904) 195 U. S. 176, 25 Sup. Ct. 9, 49 L. Ed. 147, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 659; In re Filer (D. C. 1901) 125 Fed. 261, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 835; In re Schwartz (C. C. 1877) 15 N. B. R. 330, Fed. Cas. No. 12,502. Under the former bankruptcy law, it was held that a debt or liability created by the fraud of the bankrupt could be proved and allowed against his estate, notwithstanding the fact that it would not be released by his discharge, the result being that any dividend received on it would be merely a payment on account, leaving the bankrupt liable for the unpaid balance. In re Wright (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 41, Fed. Cas. No. 18,070; In re Rosenberg (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 236, Fed. Cas. No. 12,054; In re Rundle (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 113, Fed. Cas. No. 12,138; In re Clews (D. C. 1878) 19 N. B. R. 109, Fed. Cas. No. 2 re Eureka Mfg. Co. (D. C. 18 Cas. No. 4,550.

A claim arising out of the co by stockbrokers of shares p and held by them on a custon count is provable on this Crawford v. Burke (1904) 19 176, 25 Sup. Ct. 9, 49 L. Ed. Am. Bankr. Rep. 659. And in bankruptcy proceedings ma the principle that money proc fraud may be recovered back ing a demand for money had ceived by the bankrupt to their re E. J. Arnold & Co. (D. C. 1 Fed. 789, 13 Am. Bankr. R There is an obligation resting defaulting testamentary trust pendently of his bond, to res value of the assets embezzled, of a contractual character, an a basis for proof of a claim ag estate in bankruptcy therefor successor in the trust. Clarke ers (1910) 183 Fed. 518, 106 64, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 413, (1913) 228 U. S. 534, 33 Sup. 57 L. Ed. 953. Where a bank was in the employ of a firm of caused them to purchase st false and fictitious orders purp have been given by custome purchases being in fact intende own benefit, the firm will have to treat him as the principa transactions, and to prove against him in bankruptcy, as money paid at his request an use. In re Filer (D. C. 1901) 261, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 835.

A creditor who advanced n the bankrupt on the strength latter's false and fraudulent r tations concerning his credit sources may prove a claim in b cy for the amount, for though was induced by fraud, there v the less a contract for its re In re E. J. Arnold & Co. (D. 133 Fed. 789, 13 Am. Bankr. R Compare In re Schuchardt (D. 15 N. B. R. 161, Fed. Cas. No So where the creditor has by means been induced to part wi he may affirm the contract a claim for the value of the g stead of electing to claim for sustained by the fraud. In r brant (D. C. 1903) 120 Fed. 992 Bankr. Rep. 184.

27. Taxes and interest and thereon.—State and municipal t from a bankrupt do not cons claim against his estate to be like those of creditors, and the interest will not be allowed after the filing of the petition application thereto, but it is of the court of bankruptcy to d payment of such taxes, togeth such penalties or interest as crued thereon under the laws state to the time of actual Stanard v. Dayton (C. C. A. 1915) 220 Fed. 441; In re Kallak (D. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 276, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 414; In re Scheidt Bros. (D. C. 1908) 177 Fed. 599, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 778. See In re Duryee (D. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 68; Warren R. Co. v. Belvidere (1871) 35 N. J. Law, 584. Taxes accruing after the institution of the proceeding in bankruptcy are to be paid out of the estate. Stanard v. Dayton (C. C. A. 1915) 220 Fed. 441. Additional customs duties levied on reappraisement of coke imported into Alaska are not penal in their nature and may be collected from a bankrupt. U. S. v. Brown-Alaska Co. (1910) 4 Alaska, 89. Where a bankrupt, having sold certain orchard tracts, transferred the contracts and agreed that, in case of forfeiture, it would deed the tract or tracts to whom the assignee of the contract might elect, the bankrupt still held title to the land, and taxes assessed thereon were payable by the trustee, though the taxes were enforceable only against the land. In re Wenatchee Heights Orchard Co. (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 787.

Taxes which have been actually paid, though irregularly, are not a liability of the estate nor a provable debt, as where the bankrupt, being a deputy tax collector, has settled with his principal for the taxes on his own property, though the latter remains personally liable for the amount to the municipality. Moore v. Green (1906) 145 Fed. 480, 76 C. C. A. 250, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 607. Where taxes have been deducted from the value of property taken by creditors under attachments valid against the trustee, they are not a charge upon the estate. Foster v. Inglee (D. C. 1876) 13 N. B. R. 239, Fed. Cas. No. 4,973. Where a certified check for taxes against mortgaged property of the bankrupt was given to the city tax collector in payment of the taxes, and was received by him as such to prevent his bidding at a foreclosure sale, it constituted a satisfaction of the taxes, and precluded the city from establishing a claim therefor against the bankrupt's personal assets. City of Pittsburgh v. South Side Trust Co. (1913) 208 Fed. 984, 126 C. C. A. 72.

The provisions for the payment of taxes by the trustee in bankruptcy do not apply to an annual license fee imposed by the state law on corporations, which has been held by the courts of the state not to be a tax, but an arbitrary imposition laid on corporations as a condition of their continued existence; and neither is it a contractual obligation attaching by implication from the inception of the company, so as to be provable as a debt founded on contract, at least against the estate of a corporation becoming bankrupt before the fee for the year is assessed or collectible. In re Danville Rolling Mill Co. (D. C. 1903) 121 Fed. 432, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 327.

28. Breaches of real covenants.—A claim for damages for breach of the covenants in a deed, such as those of warranty of title, of possession, of quiet enjoyment, and against incumbrances, constitutes a provable debt in bankruptcy. Parker v. Bradford (1876) 45 Iowa, 311; Reed v. Pierce (1853) 36 Me. 455, 58 Am. Dec. 761; Abbott v. Rowan (1878) 33 Ark. 593; Jemison v. Blowers (1849) 5 Barb. (N. Y.) 686. CONTRA, Riggin v. Magwire (1872) 15 Wall. 549, 21 L. Ed. 232; Murray v. De Rottenham (1822) 6 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 52; Burrus v. Wilkinson (1856) 31 Miss. 537; Magwire v. Riggin (1869) 44 Mo. 512. See Bates v. West (1857) 19 Ill. 134; Bailey v. Moore (1859) 21 Ill. 165.

A lessee cannot prove a claim for damages for breach of a covenant for quiet enjoyment in the lease against the estate of his lessor in bankruptcy because of an eviction which did not take place until after the commencement of the proceedings in bankruptcy. In re Pennewell (1902) 119 Fed. 139, 55 C. C. A. 571, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 490.

29. Claims for torts.—A claim for damages for a tort, not connected with any contractual liability, and not reduced to judgment before the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, is not a provable debt. Brown & Adams v. United Button Co. (1906) 149 Fed. 48, 79 C. C. A. 70, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 565, affirming In re United Button Co. (D. C. 1906) 140 Fed. 495, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 390; In re Bailey (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 729; Bever v. Swecker (1908) 138 Iowa, 721, 116 N. W. 704; Newman v. Goodard (1880) 20 Hun (N. Y.) 563; Lomax v. Spear (1874) 51 Ala. 532.

A claim of damages for a tort is not made provable by that clause of the section which provides that "unliquidated claims" may be liquidated in such manner as the court shall direct and may thereafter be proved and allowed; for this relates only to a matter of procedure, and does not enlarge the class of claims provable under the preceding paragraph, and contemplates only the liquidation of claims founded on contracts or on open accounts. Nor are the debts which may be proved in bankruptcy enlarged by the fact that it is assumed in the seventeenth section of the act (regulating the effect of a discharge) that liabilities for torts are provable and therefore released by a discharge, certain specified torts being thereupon excepted from the effect of a discharge. For this section, as originally enacted, referred only to judgments already recovered in actions for torts of the specified kinds, and was therefore not inconsistent with the sixty-third section of the statute, relating to provable debts. And the present want of harmony between the two sections is the result of the amendment of 1903, and therefore, in case of conflict, the sixty-third section, being specifically devoted to the enumeration and description of the classes of provable debts, must control. Brown & Adams v. United Button Co. (1906) 149 Fed. 48, 79 C. C. A. 70, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 565. See Biela v. Urbanczyk (1905) 38 Tex. Civ. App. 213, 85 S. W. 451.

A claim for unliquidated damages for negligence resulting in personal injuries is not a provable debt. Imbriani v. Anderson (1912) 76 N. H. 491, 84 Atl. 974. Nor a cause of action for negligence causing the death of a human being. In re New York Tunnel Co. (1908) 159 Fed. 688, 86 C. C. A. 556, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 25. Or for negligence or nuisance resulting in injury to goods. Brown & Adams v. United Button Co. (1906) 149 Fed. 48, 79 C. C. A. 70, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 565; Dusar v. Murgatroyd (C. C. 1803) Fed. Cas. No. 4,199. Or for trespass to land. Weisfield v. Beale (1911) 231 Pa. 39, 79 Atl. 878; Kellogg v. Schuyler (1846) 2 Denio (N. Y.) 73; Gilman v. Cate (1884) 63 N. H. 278. Or for deceit. In re Schuchardt (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 12,483. Or for assault and battery and false imprisonment. Beers v. Hanlin (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 695, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 745; In re Hennocksburgh (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 6,-367. But a claim for the wrongful repledge of collateral is one founded upon a contract and therefore a provable debt. Wood v. Fisk (N. Y. 1915) 109 N. E. 177.

In all those cases where the tort can be waived and a recovery had as upon a quasi contract, the claim may be provable, if the amount is definitely fixed, or after being liquidated as the court may direct. In re Griffin (D. C. 1910) 188 Fed. 389; In re Southern Steel Co. (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 498, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 358; Burgoyne v. McKillip (C. C. A. 1910) 182 Fed. 452, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 387; Clingman v. Miller (1908) 160 Fed. 326, 87 C. C. A. 278, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 360; In re Filer (D. C. 1901) 125 Fed. 261, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 835; In re Hirschman (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 69, 4 Am. Bankr. Fed. 715; Reinhardt v. Friederich (Ind. App. 1915) 108 N. E. 258; First Nat. Bank of Enosburg Falls v. Bamforth (Vt. 1916) 96 Atl. 600. A claim for the conversion of personal property is a provable debt. Weaver v. Voils (1879) 68 Ind. 191; Cole v. Roach (1873) 37 Tex. 413, 10 N. B. R. 288.

30. Fines, penalties, and forfeitures. —A judgment imposing a fine as a punishment for a crime or misdemeanor or any violation of a state statute is not a debt provable against the estate of the defendant in bankruptcy. In re Sutherland (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 13,639; In re Moore (D. C. 1901) 111 Fed. 145, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 590. CONTRA, In re Alderson (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 588, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 544. A fine imposed on the bankrupt by a state court, as a punishment for a civil contempt in disobeying its ord a provable debt. People v. Kings County (D. C. 1913) 566, 31 Am. Bankr. Rep. 84. ment or sentence in a bastardy ing, condemning the defendar a fixed sum for the maintenan child, is not a debt provable ruptcy. In re Baker (D. C. Fed. 954, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. re Cotton (D. C. 1843) Fed. 3,269; Hawes v. Cooksey (Ohio, 242; Commonwealth v. 21 Pittsb. Leg. J. O. S. (Pa.) liability of a bankrupt for the penalty for cutting trees, imp state statute, is not a debt fo an implied contract, such a proved against his estate in ba In re Southern Steel Co. (D. 183 Fed. 498, 25 Am. Bankr. A claim in favor of the Unit for fines or penalties incurre bankrupt for violations of th revenue laws is a provable bankruptcy. In re Rosey (D. Fed. Cas. No. 12,066. A cla United States against a ban recover as a penalty the value imported and entered contrar is a provable debt against the the bankrupt. In re Vetterle 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 16,929. of the United States on a for cognizance for bail in a crim is one for a penalty or forfei though provable in bankruptc be allowed for more than the ary loss actually sustained. ponigri (D. C. 1912) 193 Fe Am. Bankr. Rep. 513. The applies to a penalty imposed law on a corporation for failu port and pay the prescribed f nus to the state on an incre capital stock. Commonwealth Silk Mfg. Co. (1911) 192 Fed. C. A. 613, 27 Am. Bankr. A judgment for penalties rec the state against bankrupts f ing Agricultural Law N. Y. not a debt that can be proved ed as such against the bank tate under Bankr. Act. §§ 57j re Abramson (C. C. A. 1914) 878.

Where the government has a judgment against the bankr penalty incurred by a violati revenue laws and has proved as a creditor of the bankrup former by whose procurement action was prosecuted has n come into the bankruptcy cou petition asking for a summar cation of his right to a share o alty as against the United Sta court has no jurisdiction to e an adjustment in a proceeding ruptcy against the debtor. Th the informer is not against rupt but against the governm it must be worked out in th prescribed by the revenue l not in a bankruptcy proceeding. In re Jayne (D. C. 1886) 28 Fed. 419.

31. Debts barred by limitations.—A debt or claim, once valid and which otherwise would be provable in bankruptcy, but which is barred by the statute of limitations of the state in which the bankrupt resides and where the proceeding in bankruptcy is pending, at the time of the filing of the petition, cannot be proved or allowed. In re Putman (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 464, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 923; Nicholas v. Murray (C. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 469, Fed. Cas. No. 10,223; In re Doty (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 202, Fed. Cas. No. 4,017; In re Kingsley (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 329, Fed. Cas. No. 7,819; In re Hardin (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 395, Fed. Cas. No. 6,048; In re Reed (D. C. 1874) 11 N. B. R. 94, Fed. Cas. No. 11,635; In re Noesen (D. C. 1875) 11 N. B. R. 422, Fed. Cas. No. 10,288; In re Cornwall (C. C. 1871) 6 N. B. R. 305, Fed. Cas. No. 3,250; Pace's Trustee v. Pace (1915) 162 Ky. 457, 172 S. W. 925. The rule is not altered by the fact that the debt is not barred under the statutes of the state in which the creditor resides, or of the state in which both parties lived when the contract was made. Hargadine-McKittrick Dry Goods Co. v. Hudson (1903) 122 Fed. 232, 58 C. C. A. 596, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 225; In re Resler (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 804, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 602; In re Hardin (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 395, Fed. Cas. No. 6,048; In re Kingsley (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 329, Fed. Cas. No. 7,819.

A debt which was not barred by the statute of limitations at the time when the petition was filed will remain valid against the trustee throughout the bankruptcy proceedings, and will be provable at any time within a year after the adjudication, notwithstanding the whole term fixed by the statute of limitations has expired when the claim is offered for proof, for the institution of bankruptcy proceedings stops the running of the statute. In re McKinney (D. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 912; In re Graves (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 816; In re Wright (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 18,068; In re Maybin (D. C. 1876) 15 N. B. R. 468, Fed. Cas. No. 9,337; Wofford v. Unger (1880) 53 Tex. 634; Minot v. Thacher (1844) 7 Metc. (Mass.) 348, 41 Am. Dec. 444.

32. —— Acknowledgment or part payment.—Payment on a barred debt by the debtor immediately before bankruptcy and the filing of his petition, to renew an outlawed debt to enable the creditor to come in and share in the distribution, the creditor having no reasonable cause to believe that it would appear as a preference held not fraudulent as to creditors nor as against the bankruptcy law. In re Banks (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 662. Acknowledgment by a bankrupt of a barred debt to his sister in contemplation of bankruptcy held not a fraud on his other creditors, or on the bankruptcy act. In re Blankenship (D. C. 1915) 220 Fed. 395. If a debtor, within four months before the filing of his petition in bankruptcy, gives a bond and mortgage to a creditor whose claim is outlawed under the state statute of limitations, the bond will revive the debt, even though the mortgage is voidable as a preference. In re Stendts, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 509. A note extended after it was barred by limitation under the statute of Texas, unless the extension was in writing and signed by the maker and contains an acknowledgment of the debt, as required by Rev. St. Tex. 1911, art. 5705, is not provable against his estate in bankruptcy. Wood v. Ledgerwood (C. C. A. 1913) 210 Fed. 163.

The mere fact that the bankrupt includes in his schedule of debts a claim already barred by the statute of limitations does not revive it so as to make it a provable claim against his estate, to the prejudice of his other creditors, but it is the duty of the trustee in bankruptcy to oppose the allowance of the claim, on the ground of limitations, in behalf of the creditors in general. In re Banks (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 662; In re Resler (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 804, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 602; In re Lipman (D. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 353, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 46; In re Wooten (D. C. 1902) 118 Fed. 670, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 247; In re Kingsley (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 329, Fed. Cas. No. 7,819; In re Ray (D. C. 1867) 1 N. B. R. 203, Fed. Cas. No. 11,589; In re Hardin (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 395, Fed. Cas. No. 6,048. Compare In re Hertzog (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 526, Fed. Cas. No. 6,433. If the estate proves sufficient to pay all the expenses of administration and all the other proved and allowed claims, the creditor whose debt was outlawed, but was included in the bankrupt's list of debts, should be entitled to satisfaction out of the surplus, because, as between the bankrupt and himself, the listing of the debt was a sufficient acknowledgment to take it out of the statute. In re Currier (D. C. 1912) 192 Fed. 695, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 597.

33. —— Dormant judgments.—A judgment is not a provable debt in bankruptcy if it has become dormant, or if it has not been kept alive in such manner as the law of the state prescribes, by suit or scire facias upon it, by the issue or levy of execution, or otherwise according to the local law, within the time limited by that law before the bankruptcy. In re Rebman (1906) 150 Fed. 759, 80 C. C. A. 594, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 767; In re Farmer (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 763, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 19; In re Lipman (D. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 353, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 46; In re Morris (D. C. 1837) Fed. Cas. No. 9,825.

34. Claims founded on illegal or immoral consideration.—A claim arising on a contract which is illegal or contrary to morality is not provable in bankruptcy. Forsyth v. Woods (1870) 11 Wall. 484, 20 L. Ed. 207; Bailey v. Milner (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 413, Fed. Cas. No. 740; Buckner v. Street (C. C. 1871) 7 N. B. R. 255, Fed. Cas. No. 2,098.

A claim for money alleged to be due under a stock-gambling transaction, or other form of wagering contract, is not provable in bankruptcy. In re Ætna Cotton Mills (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 994, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 629; Hill v. Levy (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 94, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 374; In re Chandler (D. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 514, Fed. Cas. No. 2,590; In re Green (D. C. 1877) 15 N. B. R. 198, Fed. Cas. No. 5,751. But money placed in the bankrupt's hands for the purpose of being used in a gambling transaction, since it could be recovered in an action at law, may likewise support a claim in bankruptcy. Streeter v. Lowe (1911) 184 Fed. 263, 106 C. C. A. 405, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 774; In re E. J. Arnold & Co. (D. C. 1904) 133 Fed. 789, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 320; Ex parte Young (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 18,-145. And even if a contract to purchase stock was originally invalid as a gambling transaction on margins, in violation of a state statute, still the illegality cannot be asserted by the broker's trustee in bankruptcy against a claim by the purchaser, where the contract was executed by the broker purchasing the stock, and where he disposed of it without the claimant's knowledge or consent, and misappropriated the proceeds. In re Dorr (1911) 186 Fed. 276, 108 C. C. A. 322, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 408. And see In re Norris (D. C. 1911) 190 Fed. 101, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 945.

A claim founded upon a sale of intoxicating liquors, illegal and void under the laws of the state where made, is not provable in bankruptcy. Jacobs v. Ballantine Breweries Co. (1912) 193 Fed. 393, 113 C. C. A. 389, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 918; In re Town (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 38, Fed. Cas. No. 14,-111; In re Paddock (D. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 132, Fed. Cas. No. 10,657. But a claim for the price of spirituous liquors lawfully sold in New York to a citizen of Maine, who intended them for sale in Maine in violation of law, is provable in bankruptcy in Maine, though it could not be recovered in the courts of that state. In re Murray (D. C. 1870) 3 N. B. R. 765, Fed. Cas. No. 9,954.

A note which was given in part for a valid consideration, and in a consideration against publ if the two portions are distin may be proven in bankrupt much as was originally valid elder & Lincoln Co. v. (1903) 122 Fed. 355, 58 C. 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 641.

Where the laws of the sta for the forfeiture of the e where it is tainted with usur the creditor could not recove tion of it by action in a state part of such debt will be p bankruptcy. In re Pittoch 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 11,189. given by the bankrupt for the bonus over the legal interes provable. Shaffer v. Fritche 1871) 4 N. B. R. 548, Fed. 12,697. But if the statute m vides for the forfeiture of a reserved, in case of usury, th prevent the proof and allowa principal sum. National Bank v. Moore (D. C. 1868) No. 10,041.

Where a state statute pro no property transported by should be delivered except o der and cancellation of the lading, and a carrier delive without requiring surrender bills of lading, and the con posited some of the bills as security for loans, and some were held by the original ven the consignee became bank the carrier took assignment drafts secured by the bills and open accounts, and bills owned by the original vendors cured the bills of lading, though the carrier had vio statute, it could recover ag bankrupt's trustee on the as In re T. H. Bunch Co. (D. 180 Fed. 519. A transfer of stock not stamped as require Law N. Y. § 270, as re-enacte 1910, c. 38, is not void, altho section 278 no action can tained thereon, and notes giv stock are valid and provable ruptcy. In re Wylly (D. C. Fed. 954.

Corporate bonds issued to ter, in violation of a state st voluntary obligations not e in bankruptcy to the prejudic actual creditors. In re Wyo ley Ice Co. (D. C. 1907) 153

35. Ultra vires and unla tracts of corporations.—A c has no power to purchase stock, where the transaction der it insolvent and so ope fraud on its creditors, and done, notes given by it for the price are invalid and cannot ed against its estate in b at least in the hands of t stockholder. In re S. P. Smit

Co. (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 618, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 123, affirmed, Menefee v. Phelan (1906) 140 Fed. 988, 72 C. C. A. 682. So, a company chartered for the purpose of buying and selling building materials has no power to bind itself as guarantor for the performance of a building contract by another, and such a contract, being ultra vires and void, affords no basis for a claim against its estate in bankruptcy. In re S. P. Smith Lumber Co. (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 620, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 118. So where a savings bank, in violation of its charter and the laws of the state, discounts notes of the bankrupt, neither the notes nor a claim for money loaned thereon can be proved. In re Jaycox (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 7,237. The same rule applies where the charter of a manufacturing corporation limits the amount of indebtedness which it may lawfully incur to one-half the amount of its paid-up capital stock; debts contracted in excess of this limit are not provable. Cunningham v. German Insurance Bank (C. C. A. 1900) 101 Fed. 977, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 363. And so, a claim cannot be proved in bankruptcy against a corporation on a note which it gave to cover the indebtedness of a third party, for which it was in no way responsible. Mapes v. German Bank (1910) 176 Fed. 89, 99 C. C. A. 609, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 713. Or on notes which were authorized by the stockholders, but which were issued by the managing officer direct to his personal creditors as collateral security for a prior indebtedness of his own. American Woodworking Machinery Co. v. Norment (C. C. A. 1908) 157 Fed. 801, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 679.

Where the law of a state forbids all foreign corporations to do business within its limits until they have complied with certain requisites (such as appointing a resident agent upon whom process may be served, or the like) a foreign corporation which has not complied with the statute has no power to make contracts or to bring suits within the state. Consequently a contract made by the corporation, under such circumstances, with a citizen of the state is illegal, and is not provable against the estate of such citizen in bankruptcy. As the bankrupt himself might have avoided it, his trustee may object to its being proved. In re Comstock (D. C. 1874) 11 N. B. R. 169, Fed. Cas. No. 3,078; In re Montello Brick Works (D. C. 1909) 174 Fed. 498, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 375. But the holder of special stock of a corporation, which was illegally issued, may prove against the estate of the corporation a claim for the amount paid by him for the stock, deducting any dividends received, although he did not rescind the contract before the insolvency. Reed v. Boston Machine Co. (1886) 141 Mass. 454, 5 N. E. 852.

36. Landlord's rights and remedies.—Upon the bankruptcy of a tenant, his possession of the leased premises becomes the possession of the court of bankruptcy, and thereafter the rights and claims of the landlord must be worked out through the bankruptcy proceedings, and not by independent action. In re Steadman (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 319, Fed. Cas. No. 13,330. So also the right of the bankrupt tenant to remove machinery or other fixtures from the building passes to his trustee in bankruptcy. In re Breck (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 1,822.

The landlord may prove a claim in bankruptcy for rent accrued up to the commencement of the proceedings, if he has a written lease or a valid oral agreement, or even an implied promise to pay rent. In re Sherwoods (C. C. A. 1913) 210 Fed. 754; In re Scruggs (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 673; In re Miller (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 414, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 87. And he may claim his rent out of the proceeds of goods which were specifically liable for it while on the demised premises and which have been sold by the trustee in bankruptcy. In re Bowne (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 529, Fed. Cas. No. 1,741. Or out of money paid to the tenant in eminent domain proceedings on the basis of his obligation to pay rent. In re Clancy (D. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 215, Fed. Cas. No. 2,782. So, also, the landlord may prove a claim for rent accruing during a period when the premises stood vacant, having been surrendered by the tenant, the latter having agreed to account for the rent until they were relet. In re Bruce (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 2,044. And where the original tenant assigned the lease or sublet the premises, the landlord, having agreed to the transfer, may prove his claim in bankruptcy against the estate of the assignee or sublessee. Witherow v. South Side Trust Co. (C. C. A. 1910) 181 Fed. 753; Wylie v. Smith (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 18,-110.

It is also competent for a landlord to require the tenant to pay current taxes on the leased premises, and municipal assessments, and water rates, and to stipulate that they shall constitute a part of the rent reserved, and when this is done, he may include the amount thereof, remaining unpaid at the date of the bankruptcy, in his claim against the estate of the bankrupt tenant. Ellis v. Rafferty (1912) 199 Fed. 80, 117 C. C. A. 592, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 192; McCann v. Evans (C. C. A. 1911) 185 Fed. 93, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 47. And see In re Criblier (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 338, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 765; In re Sherwoods (C. C. A. 1913) 210 Fed. 754. But a state statute providing that, where a tenant unlawfully withholds possession of rented premises from his landlord, judgment shall go against such tenant "for double the rent reserved or stipulated to be paid," relates merely to the measure of the amount for which the tenant shall be liable, and does not characterize the landlord's demand for double rent during the period of unlawful detention as a debt springing out of the original contractual relation; and hence such demand, not arising ex contractu, is not provable in bankruptcy. Hamilton v. McCroskey (1901) 112 Ga. 651, 37 S. E. 859. Where a lease provided that the tenant might make alterations in the premises, he agreeing to restore the property at the expiration of the lease to its former condition, and before the end of the term the tenant became bankrupt, and the landlord resumed possession of the premises and leased them to the trustee in bankruptcy afterwards seeking to prove a claim against the estate for the estimated cost of restoring the property, it was held that the claim was not provable, as the clause in the lease contemplated the expiration of the lease by its own terms, and not by re-entry by the landlord. In re Arnstein (D. C. 1899) 101 Fed. 706, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 246. And see In re O'Malley & Glynn (D. C. 1911) 191 Fed. 999, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 143.

Under lease of shoe manufacturing machinery providing for termination at lessor's option and payment of specified sums by lessee upon termination, where lessee became bankrupt and lessor terminated the lease, claim for such specified payments held provable in bankruptcy as a fixed liability. In re D. C. Clark Shoe Co. (D. C. 1913) 211 Fed. 341.

37. —— Landlord's lien.—A landlord to whom rent is due for the use of the premises by the bankrupt will not be required to bring an action in a state court for the establishment of his lien, as provided by the state statute, as a condition precedent to the assertion of his rights against the bankrupt's property in the hands of the trustee, but be may at once prove his debt and be heard in the court of bankruptcy in support of his claim to priority of payment. In re Byrne (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 762, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 268. But under the laws of some of the states, a landlord who takes from his tenant a mortgage on the personalty used or kept on the demised premises, covering not only arrears of rent but also other debts, is deemed to have waived his statutory lien on such property for rent due, and he will not be entitled to enforce such a lien against the property in the hands of the tenant's trustee in bankruptcy. In re Wolf (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 74, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 558. Up to the time of the commencement of the proceedings in bankruptcy, the landlord may enforce his lien by distress, if allowed by the laws of the state, and the security thus acquired is not invalidated by the adjudication of the tenant in bankruptcy, thou in four months thereafter. M Knox (1872) 16 Wall. 551, 2 481; Goodwin v. Sharkey (Pa. 149, 15 N. B. R. 526. the filing of the petition in ba the whole estate comes into structive custody and possessi bankruptcy court, and there landlord will not be permitted the goods on a distress war must proceed against the t bankruptcy. In re Bishop (D. 153 Fed. 304, 18 Am. Bankr. Buckey v. Snouffer (1856) 10 69 Am. Dec. 129; Noe v. Gibs 7 Paige (N. Y.) 513.

38. —— Rent to accrue aft cation.—A landlord cannot m claim in bankruptcy against t of his tenant for any rent ac to accrue under the terms of after the commencement of ceedings in bankruptcy. In Bros. Grocery Co. (1915) 219 135 C. C. A. 521; In re Galla Co. (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 18 Bankr. Rep. 766; South Side v. Watson (1912) 200 Fed. 5 C. A. 278, 29 Am. Bankr. In re Abrams (D. C. 1913) 1005, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 59 Scruggs (D. C. 1913) 205 Fe Am. Bankr. Rep. 94; In r Drug Co. (D. C. 1913) 204 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 398; Co v. Withoft (C. C. A. 1912) 250, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 32 Roth & Appel (1910) 181 104 C. C. A. 649, 31 L. R. A 270, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 58 Rubel (D. C. 1908) 166 Fed Am. Bankr. Rep. 566; Watso rill (1905) 136 Fed. 359, 69 185, 69 L. R. A. 719, 14 An Rep. 453; In re Roth & App 1909) 174 Fed. 64, 22 Am. Ba 504; In re Hays, Foster & (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 87 Bankr. Rep. 144; Atkins v (1900) 105 Fed. 595, 44 C. 53 L. R. A. 118, 5 Am. Ba 313; In re Mahler (D. C. 1 Fed. 428, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep re Arnstein (D. C. 1899) 101 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 246; Bra (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 27 Bankr. Rep. 788; In re Jeff C. 1899) 93 Fed. 948, 2 An Rep. 206; In re Collignon (D. 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 660; In stein (D. C. 1900) 2 Nat. Ban 106; In re Frankel (D. C. 190 Bankr. News, 840; In re Mah 1899) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 7 Shilliday, 1 Nat. Bankr. News re May (D. C. 1874) 9 N. B Fed. Cas. No. 9,325; Bailey (C. C. 1875) 11 N. B. R. 271, No. 739; In re Commercial Co. (C. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. Cas. No. 3,060; In re Lynch 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 8,634; v. Marden (1877) 123 Mass.

Am. Rep. 108; Scott v. Demarest (1912) 75 Misc. Rep. 289, 135 N. Y. Supp. 264. CONTRA, In re Miller Bros. Grocery Co. (D. C. 1913) 208 Fed. 573; In re Caswell-Massey Co. (D. C. 1910) 208 Fed. 571. Under lease of a cash carrier system, the lessor held entitled to enter and claim a forfeiture only for breach of the lease, and not for bankruptcy of the lessee; and hence such an entry and seizure on the intervention of bankruptcy waived a forfeiture and effected a surrender of the lease, precluding a claim for accruing rent after adjudication. In re Quaker Drug Co. (D. C. 1913) 204 Fed. 689. It is immaterial that the tenant may have given notes for the installments of rent to accrue in the future; they cannot be proved as debts against his estate. Atkins v. Wilcox (1900) 105 Fed. 595, 44 C. C. A. 626, 53 L. R. A. 118, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 313; In re Hays, Foster & Ward Co. (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 879, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 144.

As to the effect of a covenant in the lease that, on default in the payment of any installment of rent, the rent for the entire term shall at once become due and payable, it has been held that the bankruptcy of the lessee, while so in default, will give the landlord a right to prove a claim for the entire rent so far as it is definitely fixed by the terms of the lease. In re Pittsburg Drug Co. (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 482, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 227. But he must take the position of an ordinary general creditor, and will not be entitled to priority of payment. In re Cronson, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 474. But if the tenant is not in default at the time of his bankruptcy, the filing of the petition will not cause the rent for the whole term to become exigible or mature notes given for future installments. Atkins v. Wilcox (1900) 105 Fed. 595, 44 C. C. A. 626, 53 L. R. A. 118, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 313. Where a lease to a bankrupt of a store service system for a term of 10 years provided that, on a breach by the lessee or its bankruptcy, the lessor might enter and take possession of the property, which it did after the bankruptcy, a further provision that in such case the rent for the entire term should immediately become due and payable held one for a penalty, and a claim therefor against the bankrupt estate disallowed. In re Merwin & Willoughby Co. (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 116.

A provision in the lease that, in case the tenant shall be adjudicated a bankrupt, the lessor may re-enter and terminate the lease, and that the lessee will then pay to the lessor "as damages" a sum representing the difference between the rental value of the premises and the rent reserved for the residue of the term, does not create a liability which can be proved as a debt against the estate. Slocum v. Soliday (1910) 183 Fed. 410, 106 C. C. A. 56, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 460; In re Rhoads (D. C. 1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 179. Compare In re Goldstein, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 422. See In re Merwin & Willoughby Co. (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 116, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 485. So a state statute giving to the lessor a lien on the tenant's property on the premises, to secure the payment of one year's rent due or to become due, does not entitle the landlord, when the tenant becomes bankrupt during the term, to priority of payment out of his estate for a year's rent from the date of the adjudication. In re Jefferson (D. C. 1899) 93 Fed. 948, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 206.

39. —— Occupation and use of premises by trustee.—Where there is a leasehold estate among the assets of the bankrupt, the trustee may accept it if it is salable and has a money value, but he is not bound to do so unless it appears to be for the interest of the creditors. White v. Griffing (1877) 44 Conn. 437. If the trustee accepts the term, for the purpose of realizing its value as an asset, he is bound by the covenants of the lease, including that for the payment of rent at the stipulated rate. Ex parte Faxon (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 4,704; White v. Griffing (1877) 44 Conn. 437. But there must be some positive and unequivocal act of acceptance by the trustee before he will be held liable on the lease. In re Washburn (D. C. 1874) 11 N. B. R. 66, Fed. Cas. No. 17,211. And he does not accept the premises and become responsible for the rent merely by leaving some goods there. In re Yeaton (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 18,133. And occupation of the leased premises by the trustee independently of the lease, where he pays for such occupation, is not evidence of an election to accept the lease. In re Ten Eyck (D. C. 1872) 7 N. B. R. 26, Fed. Cas. No. 13,829.

If the trustee, without accepting or assuming the lease (or holding over after the expiration of the bankrupt's term), continues to occupy and use the demised premises for purposes connected with the administration of the estate, the landlord will be entitled to compensation for the reasonable value of the use of the premises by the trustee, from the date of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy until the possession is surrendered to him. In re Abrams (D. C. 1913) 200 Fed. 1005, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 590; In re Hunter (D. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 904, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 477; In re Hinckel Brewing Co. (D. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 942, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 484; Bray v. Cobb (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 270, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 788; In re Chambers (D. C. 1900) 98 Fed. 865, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 537; In re Grimes (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 529, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 730; In re McGrath (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 254, Fed. Cas.

No. 8,808; In re Walton (D. C. 1873) 1 N. B. R. 557, Fed. Cas. No. 17,131; In re Ives (D. C. 1879) 18 N. B. R. 28, Fed. Cas. No. 7,116; In re Metz (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 9,509; In re Croney (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 3,411; In re Hamburger (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 277, Fed. Cas. No. 5,975; In re Hufnagel (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 554, Fed. Cas. No. 6,837. In ordinary circumstances, this may be fairly measured by the rent which the bankrupt was paying, and compensation to the lessor will be allowed at the rate of the rent reserved in the lease, if this appears fair and reasonable to the court. In re Breck (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 215, Fed. Cas. No. 1,822; In re Appold (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 621, Fed. Cas. No. 499; In re Cronson, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 474. If the trustee continues to occupy and use the premises only for the purpose of storing the goods of the bankrupt therein until they can be sold, he should pay rent to the landlord only to the extent to which the estate in bankruptcy has been benefited by the use of the premises. That is, the landlord cannot recover the amount which would be a proper rental for the premises if used as a place of business by a merchant in trade, but only what they were worth as a mere storehouse. In re Fowler (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 4,997; In re Lucius Hart Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 459, Fed. Cas. No. 8,592; In re Wheeler (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 385, Fed. Cas. No. 17,490; In re Dunham (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 4,145. And even to this extent, the trustee is chargeable only for the time he actually used the place. In re Merrifield (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 98, Fed. Cas. No. 9,465. See Longstreth v. Pennock (C. C. 1872) 7 N. B. R. 449, Fed. Cas. No. 8,488. And if he surrenders the keys immediately after he receives them, he incurs no liability for rent which accrued before he took possession. In re Criblier (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 338, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 765. And in a case where the premises had been used by the bankrupt for the purpose of storing his goods, under a lease, and the trustee knew nothing of the lease until two or three months after his appointment, when he was applied to for the rent, whereupon he denied his liability and removed the goods, it was held that, as he had not accepted the lease and in fact derived no benefit from the premises, he was not liable to the landlord for any sum. In re Washburn (D. C. 1874) 11 N. B. R. 66, Fed. Cas. No. 17,211.

Whatever may be the sum to which the landlord is entitled for the use of his premises by the trustee, he is not required to prove it as a debt in the bankruptcy proceedings and share with other creditors. It should be settled by the court, paid as a part of the expenses of administering the estate, and entered as a credit item on the trustee's accounts. In re Jefferson (I 93 Fed. 948, 2 Am. Bankr. In re Butler (C. C. 1871) 501, Fed. Cas. No. 2,236; I (D. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 302 No. 17,315; In re Rose (D 3 N. B. R. 265, Fed. Cas. N In re Hoagland (D. C. 1878 R. 530, Fed. Cas. No. 6,54 the trustee has no cash in which to pay the landlord's may be ordered to sell sufficie al property for that purpos will take precedence of the claim to have his exemption out of such personalty. In (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 529, 2 Rep. 730.

40. —— Damages for brea tract or covenant.—A land bankrupt tenant cannot pro for the rent which would ha under the lease during the re the term, on the theory that is recoverable as damages f ant's breach of his contract o to pay the stipulated rent. Merrill (1905) 136 Fed. 359 A. 185, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep re Arnstein (D. C. 1899) 10 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 246; Houghton (D. C. 1871) Fed 6,725; In re Croney (D. C. Cas. No. 3,411; In re Hufn 1875) 12 N. B. R. 554, Fed 6,837. Compare In re Calori (D. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 72 Bankr. Rep. 609. And see (C. C. 1882) 12 Fed. 779.

Where the lease contains covenant that, upon the ban the lessee, the lessor may ter lease and re-enter, and that shall thereupon be liable for damage sustained by the les count of the premises rema or being let for the remain term for a less rent than th in the lease, a claim for the such a covenant does not c "fixed liability absolutely ow time of the filing of the petiti ruptcy," but the liability is contingent, because of the as to whether the lessor wi and terminate the lease, and, whether there will be any lo amount; nor is such a clai as a debt "founded upon ex tract," under the clause of relating thereto, because this construed as permitting the claims which are contingent liability and amount at the ment of the proceedings. In (D. C. 1903) 124 Fed. 11 Bankr. Rep. 633; In re R pel (C. C. A. 1910) 181 Fe Am. Bankr. Rep. 588; In r C. 1900) 98 Fed. 967, 3 A Rep. 564. And for similar has been held that a claim f against a lessee for aband premises, a dwelling house, was wrongfully entered, and burned and destroyed, is not a provable claim in bankruptcy proceedings. Winfree v. Jones (1905) 104 Va. 39, 51 S. E. 153, 1 L. R. A. (N. S.) 201. A claim of the lessor of a coal mine for the cost of pumping the mine after abandonment of the lease, due to the bankruptcy of the lessee, in view of stipulations in the lease, held for a contingent liability, dependent on continuance of the term, and not provable against the estate. In re Gallacher Coal Co. (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 183. Where lease of machinery, authorizing termination at lessor's option upon bankruptcy of lessee, was not terminated until after the adjudication, claims for repairs, freight, and return charges, payable under the lease upon its expiration, held not provable. In re Jorolemon-Oliver Co. (1914) 213 Fed. 625, 130 C. C. A. 217. Obligation under leases of machinery to pay certain charges and expenses upon termination held provable, where leases were terminated by the bankruptcy. In re Desnoyers Shoe Co. (C. C. A. 1915) 227 Fed. 401.

§ 9648. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 64, as amended, Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 14, Act June 15, 1906, c. 3333.) Debts which have priority.

Debts which have Priority.—a The court shall order the trustee to pay all taxes legally due and owing by the bankrupt to the United States, State, county, district, or municipality in advance of the payment of dividends to creditors, and upon filing the receipts of the proper public officers for such payment he shall be credited with the amount thereof, and in case any question arises as to the amount or legality of any such tax the same shall be heard and determined by the court.

b The debts to have priority, except as herein provided, and to be paid in full out of bankrupt estates, and the order of payment shall be (1) the actual and necessary cost of preserving the estate subsequent to filing the petition; (2) the filing fees paid by creditors in involuntary cases, and, where property of the bankrupt, transferred or concealed by him either before or after the filing of the petition, shall have been recovered for the benefit of the estate of the bankrupt by the efforts and at the expense of one or more creditors, the reasonable expenses of such recovery; (3) the cost of administration, including the fees and mileage payable to witnesses as now or hereafter provided by the laws of the United States, and one reasonable attorney's fee, for the professional services actually rendered, irrespective of the number of attorneys employed, to the petitioning creditors in involuntary cases, to the bankrupt in involuntary cases while performing the duties herein prescribed, and to the bankrupt in voluntary cases, as the court may allow; (4) wages due to workmen, clerks, traveling or city salesmen, or servants which have been earned within three months before the date of the commencement of proceedings, not to exceed three hundred dollars to each claimant; and (5) debts owing to any person who by the laws of the States or the United States is entitled to priority.

c In the event of the confirmation of a composition being set aside, or a discharge revoked, the property acquired by the bankrupt in addition to his estate at the time the composition was confirmed or the adjudication was made shall be applied to the payment in full of the claims of creditors for property sold to him on credit, in good faith, while such composition or discharge was in force, and the residue, if any, shall be applied to the payment of the debts which were owing at the time of the adjudication. (30 Stat. 563. 32 Stat. 800. 34 Stat. 267.)

In this section, as originally enacted, in subdivision b thereof, clause 2 was as follows:

"(2) the filing fees paid by creditors in involuntary cases;"

It was amended by Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 14, cited above, by adding to said clause the further provisions beginning with the words "and where property of the bankrupt," etc., to the end of the clause as set forth here.

Section 19 of said amendatory Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, 32 Stat. 801, provided that the act should not apply to bankruptcy cases pending when it took effect, but that such cases should be adjudicated and disposed of c to the provisions of the original act.

In this section, as originally enacted, also, in said subdivision clause 4 was as follows:

"(4) wages due to workmen, clerks, or servants which have be within three months before the date of the commencement of proce to exceed three hundred dollars to each claimant;"

It was amended by Act June 15, 1906, c. 3333, last cited above, by after the words "wages due to workmen, clerks," the words "travel salesmen," making the clause read as set forth here.

The United States is entitled to priority of payment of all debts an insolvent or bankrupt debtor, by R. S. § 3466, ante, § 6372.

Notes of Decisions

1. Construction of this section.
2. Rights of creditors entitled to priority.
3. Relative rank of priority claims.
4. Assignment of priority claims.
5. Priority of taxes.
6. —— Effect of sale of land by trustee.
7. —— Determination of amount or legality of tax.
8. —— What taxes included.
9. Costs and expenses of administration.
10. Receivers' certificates.
11. Attorney's claim for services.
12. Wages of workmen, clerks, and servants.
13. —— Who are workmen, clerks, and servants.
14. —— Managers, superintendents, and officers of companies.
15. —— Traveling salesmen.
16. —— Limitation of three months.
17. —— Advance of money to pay labor claims.
18. Claims of United States.
19. —— Subrogation to rights of United States.
20. Claims of state or municipality.
21. Claims to priority under state laws.
22. Landlord's claim for rent.
23. Trust creditors and trust funds.

1. Construction of this section.—This section was not repealed or in any way altered or affected by the amendatory act of June 25, 1910, which gives to the trustee in bankruptcy the rights of a creditor holding a lien. In re Lausman (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 647, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 186. This section does not merely prescribe the order of distribution of assets after satisfaction of liens against the property, but it creates prior liens to the extent stated in favor of the classes of debts specified, and is enforceable without reference to state statutes relating to the same subject. In re McDavid Lumber Co. (D. C. 1911) 190 Fed. 97, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 39. This section must not be extended by an unduly liberal construction, as it is contrary to the general policy of the bankruptcy act, which contemplates the equal distribution of the estate among all the creditors. In re Nounnan (Utah) 7 N. B. R. 15.

2. Rights of creditors entitled to priority.—Where a priority creditor votes his whole claim at a creditors' meeting in the election of a trustee, this will not amount to a waiver of his right of priority, and will not estop him from claiming the same, where no other creditor is shown to have been prejudiced. In re Ashland Steel Co. (1909) 168 Fed. 679, 94 C. C. A. 16
Bankr. Rep. 834. Taking t
note does not discharge a debt entitled to priority n the creditor from claiming hi
In re Worcester County
1900) 102 Fed. 808, 4 Am. B
496. Creditors entitled unde law to priority for a part of t are entitled to prove the general or unsecured credi crediting the amount realize priority. In re Floyd & Bo
C. 1912) 200 Fed. 1016, 29 A
Rep. 149. Where a bankru been discharged by perform composition agreement, prom his creditors to pay the full his debt, and the debtor is judged bankrupt, there is no quiring such creditor to be to others who have become since the first bankruptcy p on the faith of the former In re Merriman (D. C. 1878
587, Fed. Cas. No. 9,479.

3. Relative rank of priorit Claims entitled to priority by this section of the stat outrank claims secured by A mortgage or other lien giv cepted in good faith and for consideration, and which is able as a preference or ot fraud of the act, is recogni bankruptcy proceedings and i ment permitted as against t property to which it attac property cannot be taken fr cured creditor and distribu the claims entitled to prior right of priority applies o general assets of the estate right of priority as against unsecured creditors. In re
Co. (1903) 121 Fed. 706, 5
126, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 2
Yoke Vitrified Brick Co. (D
180 Fed. 235, 25 Am. Bank
In re Proudfoot (C. C. 1909
733, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1
Cramond (D. C. 1906) 145
17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 22; In 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 214;
Connell (D. C. 1874) 9 N.
Fed. Cas. No. 8,712. CON
In re Blackstaff Engineerin
C. 1912) 200 Fed. 1019, 29 A
Rep. 663; In re Erie Lumb

C. 1906) 150 Fed. 817, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 689; In re Tebo (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 419, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 235.

Claims for wages, being enumerated in the fourth clause of the section, will take precedence over claims enumerated in the fifth clause, that is, "debts owing to any person who, by the laws of the states or the United States, is entitled to priority." Hence such labor claims must be paid in full in preference to a landlord's statutory lien for rent of the premises in which the bankrupt's business was carried on. In re Byrne (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 762, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 268. Wages and labor claims must be paid in full in preference to debts or claims due to the United States. Guarantee Title & Trust Co. v. Title Guaranty & Surety Co. (1912) 224 U. S. 152, 32 Sup. Ct. 457, 56 L. Ed. 706, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 873. The actual and necessary cost of preserving the bankrupt's estate subsequent to filing the petition, which is an expense necessary to enable the court to exercise its jurisdiction is entitled to priority of payment over taxes due to the state. State of New Jersey v. Lovell (1910) 179 Fed. 321, 102 C. C. A. 505, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 562. Where a state statute creates a lien in favor of employés performing labor in the manufacture of lumber, but provides that the debt or claim shall not remain a lien on the product, unless a statement thereof is filed within thirty days and an action begun within three months, holders of such claims, perfected according to the statute, against the estate of the employer in bankruptcy, are entitled to payment in full out of the proceeds of the property affected, in preference to claims for labor of the same kind which have not been preserved as the statute directs, and this although both classes of claims are equally claims for "wages" within the bankruptcy law. In re Kerby-Dennis Co. (1899) 95 Fed. 116, 36 C. C. A. 677, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 402.

Where the estate of a bankrupt is insufficient to pay in full the claims entitled to preference, the court may, where equity requires it, scale a claim which would ordinarily be entitled to priority over others. In re Grignard Lithographing Co. (D. C. 1907) 158 Fed. 557, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 743.

A bank which is not shown to have had constructive notice of a fraudulent agreement between a corporation and its director not to record a mortgage securing a note assigned to the bank as collateral security, does not lose its priority against unsecured creditors after the corporation became bankrupt. Hicks v. Second Nat. Bank of Cincinnati, Ohio (1915) 224 Fed. 53, 139 C. C. A. 615.

4. Assignment of priority claims.—A claim which is accorded priority by the bankruptcy law itself, such as a claim for wages, or one which is given priority by the laws of the state, does not lose its right to be satisfied in full in advance of distribution to general creditors by the fact of its having been assigned to a third person before the commencement of the proceedings in bankruptcy. Shropshire, Woodliff & Co. v. Bush (1907) 204 U. S. 186, 27 Sup. Ct. 178, 51 L. Ed. 436, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 77; In re Bennett (1907) 153 Fed. 673, 82 C. C. A. 531, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 847; In re Fuller & Bennett (D. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 538, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 443; In re Brown (D. C. 1870) 3 N. B. R. 720, Fed. Cas. No. 1,974. But see In re Westlund (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 399, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 646. Nor is its priority lost by its assignment after the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. In re Campbell (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 686, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 535. And where as the statute speaks of debts for wages "due to" workmen, clerks, etc., it is satisfied if the debt was originally so due, and does not mean that it must continue to be so due until bankruptcy proceedings are begun or until the claim is proved and allowed. Shropshire, Woodliff & Co. v. Bush (1907) 204 U. S. 186, 27 Sup. Ct. 178, 51 L. Ed. 436, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 77. The fact that a large number of laborers holding claims for labor performed for the bankrupt assigned such claims to two of their number, who were also laborers and who held claims of their own, in order to save costs in prosecuting suits against the bankrupt to recover such wages, the assignees agreeing to account to their assignors for the amounts due each when collected, does not deprive the claims so assigned of their right to priority. In re Harmon (D. C. 1903) 128 Fed. 170, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 64. But where one holding an assignment of claims for wages exchanges them with the bankrupt for the latter's note or other obligation, this operates as a novation of the wage claims and extinguishes the right of priority given to them by the statute. In re Fuller & Bennett (D. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 538, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 443.

5. Priority of taxes.—A state need not prove its claim in bankruptcy in order to recover taxes due to it on property of the bankrupt. Stokes v. State (1872) 46 Ga. 412, 12 Am. Rep. 588.

A claim for taxes due either to the United States or a state is entitled to priority over all other claims. In re Brand (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 1,809. It is entitled to priority even over the trustee's commissions and his necessary expenses. In re Weiss (D. C. 1908) 159 Fed. 295, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 247. It is immaterial that, through the negligence of the officers charged with the collection of taxes, they have accumulated until the aggregate amount with interest will absorb all or a large part of the estate.

In re Weissman (D. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 115, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 150. It makes no difference that the taxes in question were levied on property which never passed into the hands of the trustee in bankruptcy. City of Chattanooga v. Hill (1905) 139 Fed. 600, 71 C. C. A. 584, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 195; City of Waco v. Bryan (1904) 127 Fed. 79, 62 C. C. A. 79, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 481. Nor that they were levied upon the exempt property of the bankrupt. In re Tilden (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 500, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 300. The priority right of a county or municipality in respect to taxes due to it is not lost by the fact that the property assessed has been struck off to it at a tax sale for want of other bidders. Hecox v. Teller County (C. C. A. 1912) 198 Fed. 634, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 525. Or that the property has been sold for less than the amount due as taxes, as the county or municipality will in that case be entitled to priority of payment for the balance due. In re Stalker (D. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 961, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 709.

If there is any statute of limitations applicable to the tax in question, such as a municipal tax, it may be invoked by the trustee in bankruptcy as a protection against being required to pay the tax. In re Stalker (D. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 961, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 709.

This provision of the bankruptcy law is to be construed in accordance with equitable principles, such as that of the marshaling of assets; and where taxes due to a county are a lien on property of the bankrupt, the greater portion of which has been taken to satisfy a mortgage, leaving no more than enough to pay the costs and expenses of administration, it is within the power of the court to require the county to resort to the mortgaged property. In re Oxley (D. C. 1913) 204 Fed. 826, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 406.

Where the bankrupt is not the owner of the property, but a lessee of it, the state or municipality cannot come upon his estate in bankruptcy with a preferential claim for payment of the taxes, though he covenanted in the lease to pay all taxes assessed upon the property. For such a covenant is not made for the benefit of the state or municipality and cannot be enforced by it. In re Broom (D. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 639, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 427; In re Siegel-Hillman Dry Goods Co. (D. C. 1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 856; In re William A. Harris Steam Engine Co. (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 609. And if the owner pays the taxes, which the bankrupt lessee had covenanted to pay, he may prove a claim therefor as a general creditor in the bankruptcy proceedings, but is not entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the state or municipality so as to occupy the position of a creditor entitled to priority. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Bryan (1904) 127 Fed. 815, 62 C. C. A. 495, 11 Am. Ba 734; In re Parker (D. C. 18
Cas. No. 10,719.

Where the bankrupt had be ty tax collector, his indebtedne county for taxes collected an counted for, or for taxes whic have been collected and for is liable under the laws of the not a debt for "taxes legally owing by the bankrupt" to th and therefore is not entitled ity. In re Waller (D. C. 1
Fed. 883, 15 Am. Bankr. Re

6. —— Effect of sale of land tee.—A sale of the land by th in bankruptcy does not divest of the state for taxes due upo though the sale was made fr cumbrances. Stokes v. Stat
46 Ga. 412, 12 Am. Rep. 588, 9
191; Mesker v. Koch (1881)
68; Meeks v. Whatley (1873)
337, 10 N. B. R. 498. Comp
Stalker (D. C. 1903) 123 Fed Am. Bankr. Rep. 709. But in the taxes are to be paid by the er at the sale, rather than o funds of the estate in bankr least if the amount realize more than enough to dischar
In re Brinker (D. C. 1904)
634, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 12
Conhaim (D. C. 1900) 100 F
4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 58; In r
(D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 251
Bankr. Rep. 112. See In re
(D. C. 1903) 122 Fed. 745, Bankr. Rep. 567. And the p paying the taxes, is not subr the rights of the taxing power claim priority. In re M. I. Hil chine Supply Co. (D. C. 1912)
741, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 612.

7. —— Determination of a legality of tax.—A trustee of rupt corporation is not bound b termination of the comptroller a license or franchise tax on poration, but the amount and l the tax is reviewable by the b cy court. In re Heffron Co 1914) 216 Fed. 642. The cou thorized to decide amount or l tax presented as preferred c not limited to such question bankrupt might have raised ag tax. In re E. C. Fisher Cor 1915) 229 Fed. 316. In such ry, the finding of a state boa sessors as to the amount of ou capital stock of a corporati for the purpose of fixing the of the annual license fee or tax imposed by a law of the not conclusive on the court ruptcy. New Jersey v.
(1906) 203 U. S. 483, 27 Sup.
51 L. Ed. 284, 17 Am. Bankr.
Where the claim of a city against a bankrupt for unpaid supported by sworn valuation unjust nor illegal, the claim must be allowed as preferred, without reference to the hardship worked on general creditors. In re Bushnell (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 651. The court is authorized to refuse to allow a claim for personal taxes on the ground that the property supposed to be taxed did not actually exist. In re Otto Freund Arnold Yeast Co. (D. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 305, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 458. State held not entitled to allowance of tax in bankruptcy, where it was based upon bankrupt's padded and false return, when, if real facts had been disclosed, no assessment could properly have been made. In re E. C. Fisher Corp. (D. C. 1915) 229 Fed. 316.

8. —— What taxes included.—The provision of the bankruptcy act requiring the trustee to pay all taxes legally due and owing by the bankrupt intends that, while the estate is in the hands of the trustee, his custody of it shall not operate as a bar to the collection of taxes which would be collectible under the law if the property had remained in the possession and control of the bankrupt himself. In re Conhaim (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 268, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 58. Compare In re Booth (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 232, Fed. Cas. No. 1,645. The funds of the estate in the hands of the trustee are subject to state and local taxation in that taxing district where the values might have been assessed for taxation if the bankruptcy had not supervened, and on proper application the court will order the payment of such taxes by the trustee, as coming within the spirit, if not the letter, of the bankruptcy act. In re Sims (D. C. 1902) 118 Fed. 356, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 162. Since the statute makes no distinction, taxes are entitled to priority of payment whether they were assessed before the commencement of the bankruptcy proceedings or during their pendency. In re Prince & Walter (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 546, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 675; In re Flynn (D. C. 1905) 134 Fed. 145, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 720.

The word "tax," as used in this section, will include all obligations imposed by the state and general governments under their respective taxing or police powers for governmental or public purposes; and hence it will include a license fee or tax imposed on the privilege of carrying on certain lines of business supposed to require regulation under the police power, such as dealing in intoxicating liquors or cigarettes. In re Otto F. Lange Co. (D. C. 1908) 159 Fed. 586, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 478. But see In re Ott (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 274, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 637. The term will also include an annual license fee or franchise tax imposed on a corporation by the state which granted its charter, though it does no business and has no property in that state. New Jersey v. Anderson (1906) 203 U. S. 483, 27 Sup. Ct. 137, 51 L. Ed. 284, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 63; In re Halsey Electric Generator Co. (D. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 825, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 401. But a bonus required by the state law to be paid to the state by any corporation on increasing its capital stock, is not a tax. Commonwealth of Pennsylvania v. York Silk Mfg. Co. (1911) 192 Fed. 81, 112 C. C. A. 613, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 525.

An obligation imposed by state statute on corporations doing business within the state to collect from resident holders of its bonds or other obligations the state tax on such bonds, by the process of having the treasurer of the corporation withhold the amount of such tax from the interest due the bondholders, is not a tax on the corporation, though it is liable to the state therefor, and hence is not entitled to priority of payment out of the estate of the corporation in bankruptcy. In re York Silk Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 735, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 650; In re Wyoming Valley Ice Co. (D. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 267, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 594. An assessment levied on an employer of labor under Workmen's Compensation Act (Laws Wash. 1911, p. 345) held not a tax entitled to a preferred payment. In re Farrell (D. C. 1914) 211 Fed. 212.

Water rents due to a municipality, which are levied annually on property as tax is levied and made a lien in like manner, are "taxes" within the meaning of the bankruptcy law. In re Industrial Cold Storage & Ice Co. (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 390, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 904; In re Moller (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 9,700. But not a charge for water furnished by a city, as shown by a meter. In re Hills (1915) 221 Fed. 260, 137 C. C. A. 150.

Assessments levied for local improvements are entitled to priority of payment as "taxes," if the law of the particular state regards and treats them as taxes, and gives the same remedies for their enforcement. In re Stalker (D. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 961, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 709.

9. Costs and expenses of administration.—Where property of the estate is turned over to the admiralty court to be sold for the satisfaction of maritime liens, the proceeds of the sale are subject to the payment of the necessary costs incurred by the bankruptcy court in preserving the property until it was so turned over. In re Hughes (D. C. 1909) 170 Fed. 809, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 303.

Among the "costs of administration," after the trustee takes charge of the estate, may be included the expense of storage of the property and the pay of a watchman or keeper. In re Allen (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 512, 3 Am. Bankr.

Rep. 38; In re Mitchell (1914) 212 Fed. 932, 129 C. C. A. 452. And rent of the store or other building occupied by the bankrupt as his place of business. In re Abrams (D. C. 1913) 200 Fed. 1005. Though not the rent of such portion of the building as he occupies as a residence. In re Hersey (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 1001, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 860. An expert employed by the bankrupt, after the commencement of the proceedings and before the adjudication, with the consent of the creditors, to make certain surveys and calculations having an important bearing on the collection of the bankrupt's claims against third persons, and who renders services which inure largely to the benefit of the creditors, may have a preferred claim for his compensation. In re Nounnan & Orr (1871) 1 Utah, 44. But one who has paid the premium on a policy of fire insurance held by him under a pledge, and which is afterwards assigned to the receiver of the assured in bankruptcy, is not entitled to a preference for the payment of such claim, and the payment of the same by the receiver is not authorized. In re Hamilton (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 683, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 543.

The fees paid by voluntary bankrupts on filing their papers are not returnable to them, but it has been held that a person advancing money to the bankrupt to pay the fees, has a first lien on the estate for its repayment. Whiston v. Smith (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 17,523.

The "costs of administration" are next entitled to satisfaction, and these will include the commissions of the referee and trustee. In re Cramond (D. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 966, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 22. And ordinary and necessary expenses incurred in caring for and collecting the estate of the bankrupt, but not usually the cost of continuing the bankrupt's business. Nor expenditures made by the receiver or trustee, for the sole benefit of general creditors, in carrying out contracts of the bankrupt which were thought to be profitable. In re Bourlier Cornice & Roofing Co. (D. C. 1905) 133 Fed. 958, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 585.

A claim for taxable costs incurred by a creditor in good faith before the filing of the petition in an action to recover a provable debt, is a claim which may be proved and allowed in the bankruptcy proceedings, but it is not a debt entitled to priority of payment. In re The Copper King (D. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 649, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 148; In re Daniels (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 745, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 699; In re Beaver Coal Co. (D. C. 1901) 107 Fed. 98, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 787; In re Allen (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 512, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 38. Unless there is some provision of the local law under which such costs may claim a preference. In re Daniels (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 745, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 699; In
(D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 935, 4 A
Rep. 51.

An assignee for the benefi itors, whose functions are by the institution of bankru ceedings against the assign lien on the assets and a prefe for his necessary disburse for the reasonable value of es and those of his counsel, as such services increased o the estate of the bankrupt.
v. Scruggs (1903) 190 U. S
Sup. Ct. 710, 47 L. Ed. 116
Bankr. Rep. 1; In re Chase
Fed. 753, 59 C. C. A. 629.
Stearns v. Flick (D. C.
Fed. 919, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep.
Peter Paul Book Co. (D. C.
Fed. 786, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep to compensation of a receive ed by a state court, see In Alison Lumber Co. (D. C.
Fed. 643, 14 Am. Bankr. Re attorney for whom another is ed upon his client's bankrup in the same position as any itor respecting services not r the action, except that he to a charging lien upon the his hands. Kraus v. Centu Electric Fixture Co. (1914)
S. 1086, 161 App. Div. 916.

The holder of a lien on spe erty of the bankrupt, the which is not disputed, is payment in full from the p the property, when it is s trustee, with interest to th payment, and cannot be r contribute anything to the g penses of the bankruptcy
In re Allert (D. C. 1908) 173
23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 101; In Coal & Coke Co. (D. C.
Fed. 658, 23 Am. Bankr.
But see In re Tebo (D. C.
Fed. 419, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep.
ing v. Moore (1911) 37 App.
But a secured creditor who of the bankruptcy court and to realize on his security may ed to contribute his proport costs of the proceedings, and for the preservation of the during their pendency, wher not sufficient unincumbered the purpose. In re J. H. Al ber Co. (D. C. 1905) 137 F
Am. Bankr. Rep. 78.

10. Receivers' certificate amount of an issue of receive cates authorized by a court ruptcy, to raise the money re the care and preservation of erty of the estate, represents diture for the benefit of all interest, and such certificate titled to priority of payment proceeds of such property.
ka Fishing & Development 1909) 167 Fed. 875, 21 A
Rep. 685. The receiver had thorized to borrow the sum of $10,000, and began by borrowing half of that amount, for which he issued certificates. These were purchased by a company which was the surety on the bankrupt's bond guaranteeing the performance of the contracts which the receiver expected to complete. He also incurred other indebtedness of the same character, for which no certificates were issued, to an amount in excess of the authorized limit, all of which was done with the knowledge of the surety company, to which the receiver paid $1,000 on account of the certificates which it held. It was held that the holders of the debts incurred by the receiver, for which no certificates were issued, to the amount of $6,000, were entitled to participate in the bankrupt's assets in the hands of the receiver on the same footing with the remaining $4,000 of the certificates. In re Restein (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 986, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 832.

11. Attorney's claim for services.—Where the bankrupt's attorney includes his fee in the bankrupt's list of debts as an unsecured claim, it will not be entitled to priority as a part of the costs of administration. In re Morris (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 841, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 145. Where the purchaser of property subject to a mortgage, while a foreclosure suit was pending in a state court, filed his voluntary petition in bankruptcy, with the manifest intention of acting adversely to the interests of the mortgagee, it was in the discretion of the court to reject a claim of the bankrupt's attorney for compensation for professional services rendered. Liddon & Bro. v. Smith (1905) 135 Fed. 43, 67 C. C. A. 517, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 204.

Compensation of attorneys employed by a trustee in bankruptcy is properly included in the costs of administration, the allowance of a fee to the attorney for the petitioning creditors not being exclusive of the right to allow a priority claim to the attorneys for the trustee. In re Standard Fullers' Earth Co. (D. C. 1911) 186 Fed. 578, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 562; In re Grignard Lithographing Co. (D. C. 1907) 158 Fed. 557, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 743. Where an attorney is retained by the trustee in a suit to recover a voidable or fraudulent preference made by the bankrupt, his reasonable fee should be allowed as part of the expenses of administration, and accorded priority of payment. Page v. Rogers (1906) 149 Fed. 194, 79 C. C. A. 153, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 854.

12. Wages of workmen, clerks, and servants.—Laborers, whose services contributed to enhance the assets of the bankrupt, held to have a lien for wages due, and to be entitled to priority of payment. In re Blackstaff Engineering Co. (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 1019.

A claimant who comes within the statute does not lose his right of priority by reason of the fact that, within four months before the bankruptcy and while the employer was insolvent, he recovered a judgment against him for the wages due. In re Haskell (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 819; In re Anson (D. C. 1899) 101 Fed. 698, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 231. But see In re Burton Bros. Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1905) 134 Fed. 157, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 218. And the claim of a father for the wages due to his minor son, employed by the bankrupt, is entitled to the same priority. In re Harthorn (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 103, Fed. Cas. No. 6,162. Wages earned by the wife and daughter of a bankrupt within three months prior to the bankruptcy, under contracts with him, held provable against his estate as preferred claims. In re Strauch (D. C. 1913) 208 Fed. 842. But a claim for wages for an unexpired term of employment, the employé having been wrongfully discharged, is not entitled to priority, because in reality the demand is for damages for breach of the contract, and not for "wages which have been earned," etc. In re Pevear (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 461, Fed. Cas. No. 11,053. And where, by agreement, a clerk permits his employer to retain a certain portion of his wages each week to form a fund which is to be paid to the clerk or used for his benefit later, and the employer becomes bankrupt, the clerk cannot claim priority for the sums so retained during the preceding three months as "wages," because the fund has become, by the contract between the parties, a debt of a different class. In re Flick (D. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 503, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 465. Where trustee was authorized to continue under bankrupt's contract and to borrow money, the lender to have a lien subject only to costs of administration, laborers, and materialmen, held entitled to priority. Unpaid laborers, employed by trustee, in continuing under bankrupt's contract, held entitled to no priority of payment over materialmen, having perfected no lien. In re John W. Farley & Co. (C. C. A. 1915) 227 Fed. 378.

A state statute cannot enlarge the class of persons to whom the bankruptcy law gives priority in the character of "workmen, clerks, or servants." Though a person not a workman, clerk, or servant might come under the description of "employé," or similar comprehensive term, in a state statute giving priority of payment, this would not entitle him to priority in bankruptcy. For the clause specifically relating to labor claims is not affected or enlarged by that relating to claims entitled to priority under the laws of a state. In re Crown Point Brush Co. (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 882, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 638; In re Slomka (1903) 122 Fed. 630, 58 C. C. A. 322, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 635; In re Shaw (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 782, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 501; that purpose. Bell v. Arledge (1912) 192 Fed. 837, 113 C. C. A. 161, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 773; United Surety Co. v. Iowa Mfg. Co. (1910) 179 Fed. 55, 102 C. C. A. 623, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 726; In re St. Louis Ice Mfg. & Storage Co. (D. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 752, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 194; In re North Carolina Car Co. (D. C. 1903) 127 Fed. 178, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 488; In re Paulson (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 10,849. An assignee of workmen employed by a bankrupt is entitled to the same priority to which the assignors were entitled. In re Dutcher (D. C. 1914) 213 Fed. 908.

Orders for goods drawn by a manufacturing company in favor of its employés are not preferred claims in the hands of the drawees against the estate of the company in bankruptcy. In re Erie Rolling Mill Co. (D. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 585.

Claimants, holding undated time checks issued by bankrupt to laborers, for which they exchanged goods under an arrangement with bankrupt, without any assignment or contract with the laborers, held not subrogated to the laborers' right to preference. In re McGowin Lumber Co. (D. C. 1915) 223 Fed. 553; J. C. Stewart & Co. v. McLeod (1915) 222 Fed. 253, 138 C. C. A. 75; Bell v. Arledge (1914) 219 Fed. 675, 135 C. C. A. 347; J. P. Browder & Co. v. Hill (1905) 136 Fed. 821, 69 C. C. A. 499, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 619. One who cashes checks given by a bankrupt to his workmen for wages is entitled to a preference as an assignee of the claims for wages; the checks unpaid not discharging the debts for which they were given. In re Stultz Bros. (D. C. 1915) 226 Fed. 989.

Under the law of Massachusetts, laborers working on a state building have an equitable lien on funds remaining in the hands of the state's officers, which is superior to any interest of the contractor's trustee in bankruptcy. Burr v. Com. (1912) 212 Mass. 534, 99 N. E. 323.

18. Claims of United States.—In all cases of insolvency or bankruptcy of one indebted to the United States, the government is entitled to priority of payment out of the debtor's property. U. S. v. Fisher (1805) 6 U. S. (2 Cranch) 358, 2 L. Ed. 304.

The provision of this section that claims of the United States against the bankrupt shall be entitled to priority of payment, and be paid in full, is in pari materia with R. S. §§ 3466, 3467, ante, §§ 6372, 6373, providing for priority of debts due the United States in cases of insolvency, and requiring every assignee or other person to first pay the debts of the United States, and therefore entitles the United States to priority, whether it prove its debt in the bankruptcy proceedings or not. In re Stoever (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 394.

This right of priority in favor of the United States no longer exists under the bankruptcy act of 1898, so far as regards labor claims, but since the section of the act relating to priority claims not only specifies such claims but also prescribes the order of their payment, and since, in that enumerated order, labor claims are named before "debts entitled to priority under the laws of the United States," it follows that labor claims must be paid in full before payment of any debt due to the United States, except for taxes. Guarantee Title & Trust Co. v. Title Guaranty & Surety Co. (1912) 224 U. S. 152, 32 Sup. Ct. 457, 56 L. Ed. 706, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 873.

The United States, not being bound by the bankrupt acts, and not being compelled to proceed under them to recover a claim against a bankrupt, is entitled to allowance from the bankrupt estate of its full claim, regardless of the rights of the creditors. In re Huddell (D. C. 1891) 47 Fed. 206. By the Revised Statutes the right of priority in payment of debts due the United States is established, inter alia, in cases where an act of bankruptcy has been committed, and every assignee and other person who pays debts due by the person or estate from whom or for which he acts before he has discharged all that may be owing the United States by such person or estate is made personally answerable for whatever may be needed to satisfy the unpaid claims of the government. U. S. v. Murphy (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 589. The United States, by omitting to prove its claim in the bankruptcy proceedings until after the distribution is made, does not lose its right to proceed against the trustee personally, as the doctrines of waiver, laches, and estoppel cannot be invoked against the government. U. S. v. Barnes (C. C. 1887) 31 Fed. 705.

A claim founded upon the indorsement of a bill of exchange, of which the government is the holder, is entitled to priority. U. S. v. Fisher (1805) 2 Cranch, 358, 2 L. Ed. 304. And so is a claim for breach of condition of a bond given under the internal revenue laws. In re Webb (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 614, Fed. Cas. No. 17,313. And for a penalty incurred by a violation of the internal revenue laws. In re Rosey (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 12,066. The claim of the United States against an agent importing goods for his principal for the duties has priority, and, on the agent becoming a bankrupt, the trustee failing to pay the debt is personally liable. Walkof v. Fox (1915) 153 N. Y. S. 27, judgment affirmed Walkoff v. Same (1915) 155 N. Y. S. 1146. The government is entitled to payment out of the estate of the bankrupt debtor whether he is principal or surety, or solely or jointly liable with others. Lewis v. U. S. (1875) 92 U. S. 618, 23 L. Ed. 513. Where a bankrupt firm, through fraudulent undervaluations of goods entered at the custom house, has incurred a forfeiture of their value to the United States, the claim of the latter against the firm for the tort is joint and several; and upon proof of the debt, containing a statement of the facts, the United States is entitled, under R. S. §§ 3466, 5501, ante, § 6372, and post, § 10287, to priority of payment out of any of the proceeds of either the joint or several estates, without reference to what may be the particular claim of priority in its proof of debt. In re Vetterlein (D. C. 1884) 20 Fed. 109.

In the distribution of a bankrupt's effects in this country, the United States is entitled to a preference, although the debt was contracted by a foreigner in a foreign country; and although the United States had proved its debt under the commission of bankruptcy, and had voted for an assignee. Harrison v. Sterry (1809) 5 Cranch, 289, 298, 3 L. Ed. 104. An agent of the United States in England cannot, by conforming to the bankrupt laws there, lessen the priority of the United States established here. Harrison v. Sterry (D. C. 1807) Fed. Cas. No. 6,144.

The right of priority is not in the nature of a lien, but only a preferential right of payment out of the general estate, and the government has no right of preference over the holders of valid liens. U. S. v. Hooe (1805) 3 Cranch, 73, 2 L. Ed. 370; U. S. v. Mechanics' Bank (D. C. 1829) Fed. Cas. No. 15,756; The Thomas Scattergood (D. C. 1828) Fed. Cas. No. 11,106; U. S. v. Griswold (C. C. 1881) 8 Fed. 496. The government is not bound by the general equity rule for marshaling assets, nor by any rule prescribed by the bankruptcy law in conformity thereto, any further than as that rule is founded, in the particular case, on the liens of the several parties inter sese. In re Strassburger (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 13,526. And hence the government may enforce its right of priority without first exhausting securities which it may hold. U. S. v. Lewis (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 15,595, affirmed (1875) 92 U. S. 618, 23 L. Ed. 513.

After an execution had been issued by the proper officers of the government on certain real estate of one of several joint judgment debtors of the United States, another of the judgment debtors was adjudicated bankrupt and the defendant appointed his trustee. During the entire course of the administration of the latter's estate, the real estate exceeded in value the amount of the whole debt, the execution of it continued in force, and the officers of the government, with full knowledge of the facts, never even intimated the right of priority for the claim, nor demanded its payment. Acting on a belief, induced by these circumstances that the government relied for satisfaction exclusively on the property so levied on, the assignee withheld only his bankrupt's full contributive portion of the judgment, on proper demand paid this to the United States, and distributed all the assets according to law. Held that the officers of the government having received its quota of the debt, and having executed a release to the debtor whose property had been taken in execution, the trustee of the debtor was not personally liable. U. S. v. Murphy (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 589.

The United States is not bound by the rule for the division of an estate as between partnership and separate creditors; that is, though the claim of the government is against an individual partner, it is entitled to priority of payment out of the partnership funds, and vice versa. U. S. v. Lewis (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 15,595, affirmed (1875) 92 U. S. 618, 23 L. Ed. 513; In re Strassburger (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 13,526.

Under former bankruptcy acts it was held that the general government, not being specifically named in such statutes, was not bound by them, and therefore was not compelled to proceed against a bankrupt debtor under and in accordance with such acts, but was entitled to an allowance of its full claim out of the estate in bankruptcy, without regard to the rights of other creditors. In re Huddell (D. C. 1891) 47 Fed. 206; Lewis v. U. S. (1875) 92 U. S. 618, 23 L. Ed. 513; Mott v. Maris (C. C. 1808) Fed. Cas. No. 9,880; U. S. v. Fisher (1805) 2 Cranch, 358, 2 L. Ed. 304; Harrison v. Sterry (1809) 5 Cranch, 289, 3 L. Ed. 104; In re Bousfield & Poole Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 153, Fed. Cas. No. 1,704.

Voting for an assignee, and proving the debt before the commissioners, did not deprive the United States of their right to priority of payment. Harrison v. Sterry (1809) 9 U. S. (5 Cranch) 289, 3 L. Ed. 104. The government is not bound to go into a bankruptcy court, nor is its debt barred by a certificate of discharge; but, to secure priority in payment out of funds upon which such court is administering under the act, the right must be asserted in that court, and worked out through that act. Failure of the government, with full knowledge of the adjudication of bankruptcy, to make this claim before final settlement of the estate, waives such right, and leaves it no ground on which to hold the assignee responsible out of his own means. Having done all he had undertaken to do when he had distributed the estate according to the terms of the act, the orders of the court, and the directions of a committee of creditors, the assignee would not be liable on an express or an implied assumpsit. U. S. v. Murphy (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 589.

The provisions of R. S. § 3466, ante, § 6372, and the provisions of the national banking law being, as applied to demands against national banks, inconsistent and repugnant, the former law must yield to the latter, and is, to the extent of the repugnancy, superseded by it; hence, the provisions of the national banking act protecting the United States by requiring national banks to deposit satisfactory security, withdraws national banks, which have failed, from that class of insolvent persons out of whose estates demands of the United States are, under this section to be paid in preference to the claims of other creditors. This view of the banking law is not affected by the subsequent enactment in 1867 of the bankrupt act, giving priority to the demands of the United States against the estates of bankrupts. That act dealt only with the estates of persons adjudged insolvent under that law, and covers only the distribution of their estates. Cook County Nat. Bank v. U. S. (1882) 2 S. Ct. 561, 563, 107 U. S. 445, 27 L. Ed. 537. Banking Law N. Y. (Consol. Laws, c. 2) § 19, declares that dividends to be paid by the superintendent of banks out of the assets of institutions in his charge for administration shall be paid to such persons and in such amounts and upon such notice as may be directed by the supreme court in the judicial district in which the principal office of such corporation or individual banker is located. Held, that where a New York trust company, prior to failure, had been appointed a depositary for bankruptcy funds, whether deposits made by trustees in bankruptcy were entitled to preference under R. S. § 3466, ante, § 6372, giving preference to debts due the United States, was solely within the jurisdiction of the state supreme court, and could not be determined on a motion in bankruptcy for orders requiring the superintendent of banks to pay out such deposits. In re Bologh (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 825.

19. —— Subrogation to rights of United States.—A surety for the bankrupt on a bond executed to the United States, who pays a judgment recovered against him on the bond, is entitled to be subrogated to the claim and right of priority of the government. Title Guaranty & Surety Co. v. Guarantee Title & Trust Co. (1909) 174 Fed. 385, 98 C. C. A. 603, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 340. Where a contract for government work provided for the retention of percentages until the work was completed, and, the contractor having become a bankrupt, its surety satisfied unpaid claimants to an amount larger than the percentages retained, such surety was entitled to receive the amount so retained in preference to the contractor's general creditors, without reference to whether the complainants had an enforceable right thereto under Act Aug. 13, 1894 (ante, § 6923), authorizing a suit under certain circumstances on a contractor's bond. In re Scofield Co. (C. C. A. 1914) 215 Fed. 45.

A surety who has paid money for a bankrupt in discharge of a customs duty bond is entitled to subrogation to the rights and priority of the United States. Kerr v. Hamilton (C. C. 1809) Fed. Cas. No. 7,731. But see Pollock v. Pratt (C. C. 1811) Fed. Cas. No. 11,256. And so is one who purchased imported goods, and who was compelled, in order to obtain possession of them, to pay the duties which the importer should have paid. In re Kirkland (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 7,843. And so is an internal revenue officer who has paid to the government the amount of a dishonored check received by him from a debtor to the government. In re McBride (D. C. 1878) 19 N. B. R. 452, Fed. Cas. No. 8,662. But see Wilkinson v. Babbitt (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 17,668.

20. Claims of state or municipality.—A state is a "person" within the meaning of that provision of the bankruptcy act which gives priority to "debts owing to any person who by the laws of the states or the United States is entitled to priority," and hence is a preferred claimant against a bankrupt if its own laws so provide. In re Western Implement Co. (D. C. 1909) 166 Fed. 576, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 167. And if the insolvency law of the state makes the municipal corporations of the state preferred creditors of an insolvent, a county having a claim against a bankrupt is entitled to priority of payment out of his estate. In re Worcester County (1900) 102 Fed. 808, 42 C. C. A. 637, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 496; In re Wright (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 807, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 592. But not unless some state law so provides. In re Waller (D. C. 1905) 142 Fed. 883, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 753; In re Manistee Watch Co. (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 455, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 316. And if the state law regulating assignments for creditors or the administration of insolvents' estates declares that it shall be for the equal and common benefit of all creditors, and supersedes the common-law rule that debts due the crown were entitled to priority as against general creditors, the state itself can claim no priority in bankruptcy proceedings against its debtor. In re Devlin (D. C. 1910) 180 Fed. 170, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 863.

But assuming the state to be entitled to priority, this right will attach to a claim upon a contract for the hire of convict labor. In re Worcester County (1900) 102 Fed. 808, 42 C. C. A. 637, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 496; In re Dodge (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 3,949; In re Southwestern Car Co. (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 404, Fed. Cas. No. 13,192. And for the price of goods made in the state prison and sold to the bankrupt, or any other property of the state so sold. In re Mercer (1909) 171 Fed. 81, 96 C. C. A. 185, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 413; In re Mellor (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 402, Fed. Cas. No. 9,401. And a judgment rendered in favor of the state against a surety on a bail bond given for the appearance of a person under indictment for a crime. In re Chamberlin (D. C. 1877) 17 N. B. R. 49, Fed. Cas. No. 2,580. But the state has no claim to priority against a bankrupt bank in which the warden of a penitentiary had deposited funds in his own name, as he is liable to the state on his bond. In re Corn Exchange Bank (C. C. 1877) 15 N. B. R. 431, Fed. Cas. No. 3,242.

21. Claims to priority under state laws.—While a state law could not, of its own force, grant or determine priorities of payment in the distribution of a bankrupt's estate, yet that clause of the national bankruptcy law which accords priority to "debts owing to any person who, by the laws of the states or the United States, is entitled to priority" adopts the law of the state for this purpose and makes it applicable as federal law in determining the question of priorities. In re Bennett (1907) 153 Fed. 673, 82 C. C. A. 531, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 847. And see In re New Galt House Co. (D. C. 1911) 199 Fed. 533; Bean v. Orr (C. C. A. 1910) 182 Fed. 599, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 400; In re Bazemore (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 236, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 494; Central Trust Co. of Illinois v. George Lueders & Co. (1915) 221 Fed. 829, 137 C. C. A. 387. And the controlling principle is that the creditor shall be allowed the same priority under the bankruptcy act as he would have had under the state law governing the distribution of the estates of insolvent debtors, if that law had not been superseded by the bankruptcy act. In re Jones (D. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 108, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 206. For a state insolvency law, though its operation upon insolvents is suspended while the national bankruptcy law is in force, still remains a "law of the state" within the meaning of this clause. In re Wright (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 807, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 592. And a creditor may claim a right of priority in payment which the law of the state gives him, though he does not set up such claim until more than a year after the adjudication in bankruptcy, when the question of the distribution of assets first arises. In re Ashland Steel Co. (1909) 168 Fed. 679, 94 C. C. A. 165, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 834. But this provision does not operate to place all preferred debts of this class upon a plane of equality; but liens created by the laws of the state will attach to the property of a bankrupt in the hands of his trustee in the same relative rank and order in which they are fixed by the state statutes. In re Falls City Shirt Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 592, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 437. Under Rem. & Bal. Code Wash. § 1162, liens of laborers removing timber from land sold to a bankrupt held prior in right to a lien on the logs reserved in the vendor's conveyance, to secure payment of the balance due on the price. In re Little Elk Logging Co. (D. C. 1914) 218 Fed. 142.

Priority of payment in bankruptcy may be claimed under a statute providing that persons who shall have furnished materials or supplies for the carrying on of the business of any manufacturing company shall have a lien on its property and effects involved in the business, superior to any mortgage or other incumbrance thereon. Louisville Woolen Mills v. Johnson (C. C. A. 1916) 228 Fed. 606; Central Trust Co. of Illinois v. George Lueders & Co. (1915) 221 Fed. 829, 137 C. C. A. 387; In re Bennett (1907) 153 Fed. 673, 82 C. C. A. 531, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 847. And see In re I. Rheinstrom & Sons Co. (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 119. So the laws of some states give a preferential right of payment to the holders of mechanics' liens, and this will be recognized and enforced in bankruptcy. In re Clark Coal & Coke Co. (D. C. 1909) 173 Fed. 658, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 273. See In re Cramond (D. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 966, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 22.

Where the civil law prevails, community property is primarily a fund for the payment of community debts, and will be so applied in bankruptcy, the law postponing the claim of an antenuptial creditor. In re Chavez (C. C. A. 1906) 149 Fed. 73. 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 641. In some states also, the statutes give a preference to debts due from an insolvent person in the character of a guardian, to his ward, which will furnish the rule for distribution in bankruptcy. In re Crow (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 110, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 545. Compare In re Jones (D. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 108, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 206. And if the local law gives priority to the legal costs and expenses of an attachment suit against an insolvent, as is the case in several states, such items will be accorded a like priority in bankruptcy proceedings. In re Amoratis (1910) 178 Fed. 919, 102 C. C. A. 297; In re Iroquois Mach. Co. (D. C. 1909) 166 Fed. 629, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 183; In re Goldberg & Bros. (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 566; In re Lewis (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 935, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 51. But compare In re The Copper King (D. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 649, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 148.

Right of antecedent creditors under Ky. St. § 1907, to set aside a conveyance valid as to subsequent creditors, is not a debt given priority by state law. Globe Bank & Trust Co. of Paducah, Ky., v. Martin (1915) 35 Sup. Ct. 377, 236 U. S. 288, 59 L. Ed. 583, denying certiorari In re Martin (1912) 193 Fed. 841, 113 C. C. A. 627.

22. Landlord's claim for rent.—Where the law of the state gives priority of payment to the claim of a landlord for rent due and unpaid, in case of the insolvency of the tenant or a levy on his goods, it will be applicable in bankruptcy proceedings against the tenant, and the lessor will be entitled to claim such priority of payment. In re Mt. Winans Lumber Co. (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 831; In re Grovenstein-Bishop Co. (D. C. 1915) 223 Fed. 878; Longstreth v. Pennock (1874) 20 Wall. 575, 22 L. Ed. 451; In re Bayley (D. C. 1909) 177 Fed. 522, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 249; In re Burns (D. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 633, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 640; In re V. D. L. Co. (D. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 635, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 643; In re West Side Paper Co. (D. C. 1908) 159 Fed. 241, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 289; In re Morris (D. C. 1908) 159 Fed. 591, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 781; In re Bishop (D. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 304, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 635; In re Renda (D. C. 1906) 149 Fed. 614, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 521; In re Gerson, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 315; In re Cronson, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 474; In re Shilliday, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 475. And he is not required to bring an action in a state court for the establishment of his lien, or to levy on the property, but may at once prove his debt and be heard in the court of bankruptcy in support of his claim to priority. In re Byrne (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 762, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 268; In re Pittsburg Drug Co. (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 482, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 227. Unless the local statute requires him to levy a distress as a condition precedent to claiming a lien. In re Chaudron & Peyton (D. C. 1910) 180 Fed. 841, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 811; In re Southern Co. of Baltimore City (D. C. 1904) 180 Fed. 838.

Where the landlord permits the receiver or trustee in bankruptcy to make a sale in bulk of the entire equipment of the bankrupt's business, including some assets which would be subject to his claim for rent and some which would not, making no objection and interposing no claim, he cannot ask the court to apportion the proceeds of the sale so as to give him priority of payment out of any part of the fund. In re McFadgen (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 715, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 481. But see In re Federal Biscuit Co. (1914) 218 Fed. 753, 134 C. C. A. 431.

Where the state law limits the right of priority to such rent as may be due for not more than one year last past, the landlord cannot gain a preferred right to more than a year's rent by distraining on the property after the adjudication in bankruptcy, though before the appointment of a trustee. In re Duble (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 794, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 121. Priority can be given only to such rent as is past due at the date of the adjudication, which fixes the rights of priority creditors as well as others, so that the landlord can gain no advantage from a provision in the lease (or even in the state statute) that the rent for the entire unexpired portion of the term shall become due and payable upon the bankruptcy of the tenant. In re Abrams (D. C. 1913) 200 Fed. 1005, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 590; Wilson v. Pennsylvania Trust Co. (1902) 114 Fed. 742, 52 C. C. A. 374, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 169; In re Jefferson (D. C. 1899) 93 Fed. 948, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 206; In re Winfield Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 185, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 257. Compare In re Keith-Gara Co. (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 585, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 466; Ludlow v. Pugh (1914) 213 Fed. 450, 130 C. C. A. 96. Where it was agreed between the landlord and the bankrupt that the counter indebtedness of the landlord to the bankrupt should be applied as it arose to other indebtedness of the bankrupt to the landlord than rent, it would be so applied, though such application resulted in a larger claim for rent, entitled to priority. In re Bell Engraving Co. (D. C. 1914) 214 Fed. 510. Where the bankrupt occupied a part of the leased premises as a storeroom, and the remainder for living quarters, the landlord will have a preferred claim on the goods in the storeroom for the amount due as rent for the entire premises. In re Hersey (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 1001, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 860.

If the statute gives the landlord a preferential claim on goods and chattels of the tenant "liable to distress," he cannot claim priority of payment out of the proceeds of the bankrupt's liquor license sold by the trustee. In re Myers (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 869, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 536.

The claim will be restricted to rent properly so called, and will not be allowed to include the amount of an unpaid city water tax. In re Family Laundry Co. (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 297, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 517. Or a sum which the landlord was compelled to pay to discharge a lien for repairs made by the municipal health department. In re Schomacker Piano Forte Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 413, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 899. The bankruptcy law does not entitle a landlord's claim to priority over all other claims whatever, but only over those not specified in the bankruptcy act as being higher in rank or right. In re Consumers' Coffee Co. (D. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 933, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 500. Under Civ. Code La. art. 2705 et seq., the lien of a landlord who distrained property of a lessee before bankruptcy held superior to the claims of wage-earners. In re Mock (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 94.

23. Trust creditors and trust funds. —The right of a creditor to recover or reclaim property of his which was held by the bankrupt in trust for him, or to receive payment in full out of trust funds in the hands of the trustee in bankruptcy, does not depend upon the insolvency laws of the states or laws giving priority to favored claims. Smith v. Mottley (1906) 150 Fed. 266, 80 C.

C. A. 154, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 863. A trust creditor of a bankrupt is not entitled to any preference over the general creditors merely because of the character of his claim. But he is entitled to satisfaction of his claim if he can show that the trust fund, or property into which it was converted, came into the hands of the trustee in bankruptcy and increased the assets of the estate, even though the property cannot be exactly identified. In re Brunsing, Tolle & Postel (D. C. 1909) 169 Fed. 668, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 129; In re J. M. Acheson Co. (1909) 170 Fed. 427, 95 C. C. A. 597, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 338; In re Smith, Thorndyke & Brown Co. (D. C. 1908) 159 Fed. 268, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 312; Smith v. Mottley (1906) 150 Fed. 266, 80 C. C. A. 154, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 863; In re North Carolina Car Co. (D. C. 1903) 127 Fed. 178, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 488; John Deere Plow Co. v. McDavid (1905) 137 Fed. 802, 70 C. C. A. 422; In re Tracy (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 844; In re Gaskill (D. C. 1904) 130 Fed. 235, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 251. But first, the trust must be distinctly established, and a contract or transaction which merely creates the relation of debtor and creditor between the parties, without impressing a trust on any fund or property, will not be sufficient to support a claim to payment in full. In re Meyer (D. C. 1901) 106 Fed. 828, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 596; Smith v. Mottley (1906) 150 Fed. 266, 80 C. C. A. 154, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 863; Block v. Shaw (1906) 78 Ark. 511, 95 S. W. 806. But subject to this condition, the general rule may apply to special deposits in a bank or trust company. Riley v. Pope (D. C. 1911) 186 Fed. 857, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 618; In re Smart (D. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 974, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 672; Binghampton Trust Co. v. Gregory (1911) 148 App. Div. 520, 132 N. Y. Supp. 950; In re Smith, Thorndyke & Brown Co. (1909) 170 Fed. 900, 96 C. C. A. 76, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 350.

§ 9649. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 65, as amended, Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 15.) Declaration and payment of dividends.

Declaration and Payment of Dividends.—a Dividends of an equal per centum shall be declared and paid on all allowed claims, except such as have priority or are secured.

b The first dividend shall be declared within thirty days after the adjudication, if the money of the estate in excess of the amount necessary to pay the debts which have priority and such claims as have not been, but probably will be, allowed equals five per centum or more of such allowed claims. Dividends subsequent to the first shall be declared upon like terms as the first and as often as the amount shall equal ten per centum or more and upon closing the estate. Dividends may be declared oftener and in smaller proportions if the judge shall so order: Provided, That the first dividend shall not include more than fifty per centum of the money of the estate in excess of the amount necessary to pay the debts which have priority and such claims as probably will be allowed: And provided further, That the final dividend shall not be declared within three months after the first dividend shall be declared.

c The rights of creditors who have received dividends, or in whose favor final dividends have been declared, shall not be affected by the proof and allowance of claims subsequent to the date of such payment or declarations of dividends; but the creditors proving and securing the allowance of such claims shall be paid dividends equal in amount to those already received by the other creditors if the estate equals so much before such other creditors are paid any further dividends.

d Whenever a person shall have been adjudged a bankrupt by a court without the United States and also by a court of bankruptcy, creditors residing within the United States shall first be paid a dividend equal to that received in the court without the United States by other creditors before creditors who have received a dividend in such court shall be paid any amounts.

e A claimant shall not be entitled to collect from a bankrupt estate any greater amount than shall accrue pursuant to the provisions of this Act. (30 Stat. 563. 32 Stat. 800.)

In this section, as originally enacted, subdivision b thereof did not contain the two provisos annexed to the subdivision as set forth here. Said provisos, beginning with the words "Provided, That the first dividend," etc., to the end of the subdivision as set forth here, were added by amendment by Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 15, cited above.

Section 19 of said amendatory Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, 32 Stat. 801, provided that the act should not apply to bankruptcy cases pending when it took effect, but that such cases should be adjudicated and disposed of conformably to the provisions of the original act.

Notes of Decisions

1. Meaning of "dividend" in bankruptcy.
2. Funds for distribution as dividends.
3. Time for declaration of dividends.
4. Declaration and payment of dividends.
5. Opening and setting aside order.
6. Payment of dividends.
7. Recovery of dividends paid on rejected claims.
8. Claims proved after dividend.
9. Interest on dividends.

1. Meaning of "dividend" in bankruptcy.—As used in this section, the term "dividend" applies only to payments made on the claims of the general and unsecured creditors, and not to disbursements by the trustee in discharge of taxes, claims entitled to priority, or valid liens, and not to the claims of secured creditors at all, except in so far as the amount of the claim may exceed the value of the security. Hawthorne v. Hendrie & Bolthoff Mfg. & Supply Co. (1911) 50 Colo. 342, 116 Pac. 122; In re Utt (1901) 105 Fed. 754, 45 C. C. A. 32, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 383; In re Hinckel Brewing Co. (D. C. 1903) 124 Fed. 702, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 692; In re Mammoth Pine Lumber Co. (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 731, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 651; In re Gardner (D. C. 1900) 103 Fed. 922, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 420; In re Ft. Wayne Electric Corp. (D. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 109, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 706. Compare In re Barber (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 547, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 306.

Upon the filing of a petition in bankruptcy, there vests in each creditor as a cestui que trust an equitable estate in such a part of the property of the bankrupt as the amount of his provable claim at that time bears to the entire amount of the provable claims against the estate. Board of County Com'rs of Shawnee County v. Hurley (1909) 169 Fed. 92, 94 C. C. A. 362, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 209. If the creditor had an action pending on his claim at the time of the adjudication in bankruptcy, and the debtor fails to obtain a discharge, then dividends in the bankruptcy proceedings received by the plaintiff will merely reduce his cause of action pro tanto. American Woolen Co. v. Maaget (1912) 86 Conn. 234, 85 Atl. 583. A demand proved in bankruptcy is not merged in the judgment of allowance, but the creditor may sue thereon in the state court, where the bankrupt was refused a discharge and no dividend was paid on the demand. Valente v. Cosentino (1914) 105 N. E. 551, 218 Mass. 125.

2. Funds for distribution as dividends.—If the bankrupt misappropriated trust funds in his hands, and the money has come into the possession of the trustee, the defrauded cestui que trust may follow and reclaim the fund by appropriate proceedings; but it is on the theory of its being his property and not a part of the estate in bankruptcy. In re Wilkes-Barre Furniture Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1904) 130 Fed. 796, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 472. But one acquiescing in an order of the court for the sale of his own property and property of the bankrupt in one lot, and who thereafter prays for preference in payment out of the proceeds of the sale, is estopped from receiving a larger proportion of such proceeds than the ratio which the value of his property bore to the value of the lot sold at the time of the sale. In re Great Western Mfg. Co. (1907) 152 Fed. 123, 81 C. C. A. 341, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 259. Money contributed by relatives and friends of the bankrupt, to increase his estate, under an agreement with creditors, may constitute a fund for dividends, but not where its payment was induced by a bargain which was contrary to law or to public policy, such as an agreement not to prosecute the bankrupt criminally. In re Rosenblatt (D. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 335, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 663.

Where property or its value is recovered by the trustee in bankruptcy by means of a suit to vacate a fraudulent conveyance or a voidable preference, or to dissolve attachment or other liens which are not preserved in bankruptcy, the proceeds constitute a fund available for dividends, that is, for distribution among all the general creditors proportionally, and are not for the benefit of those alone who began an attack on the fraudulent transaction or who held provable claims at that time. In re Martin (1912) 193 Fed. 841, 113 C. C. A. 627, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 545; In re Kohler (1908) 159 Fed. 871, 87 C. C. A. 51, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 89; Treseder v. Burgor (1906) 130 Wis. 201, 109 N. W. 957.

Where a person buys up claims against a bankrupt partnership, and agrees to pay any amount in excess of five per cent. of the claims received from the estate of the partnership, a dividend on the partnership claims is received from the bankrupt estate of the partnership, though the funds therefor were derived from the estate in bankruptcy of one of the partners, and though the assets of that partner were not formally transferred to the assets of the firm estate; for the only way in which a firm creditor could share in the surplus of a partner's estate is by its transfer, actual or constructive, to the partnership estate, and hence a constructive transfer by operation of law must be held to have been made. Frame v. Attermeier (1911) 147 Wis. 485, 133 N. W. 603.

3. Time for declaration of dividends.—When all the known assets of the bankrupt have been collected and reduced to money, and the estate is ready to be closed, a final dividend may be declared at any time after the expiration of three months from the declaration of the first dividend. In re Bell Piano Co. (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 272, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 183; In re Eldred (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 686, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 52; In re Mills (D. C. 1874) 11 N. B. R. 117, Fed. Cas. No. 9,610. And this may be done notwithstanding the fact that the period of one year from the date of the adjudication, within which time creditors may prove their claims, has not yet expired, and creditors proving thereafter will only be entitled to subsequently discovered assets and unclaimed dividends. In re Stein (D. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 124, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 662.

4. Declaration and payment of dividends.—The declaration and payment of a dividend may be stayed by the court, when a motion is pending to expunge certain claims, the allowance or disallowance of which will materially affect the result and the amount of the shares of other creditors. In re Jaycox (D. C. 1872) 7 N. B. R. 303, Fed. Cas. No. 7,240.

The distribution of the bankrupt's estate is strictly governed by the provisions of this section. In re York Silk Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 735, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 650. An order entered by consent of all known creditors, in proceedings against an insolvent corporation, for the settlement of the estate and distribution of the proceeds as therein provided, but not in accordance with any express provision of the bankruptcy act, must be held subject to the rights of any unknown creditors who may appear within the time allowed by law and present their claims. In re Lockwood (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 794, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 731. So where a trustee in bankruptcy has paid to a lien creditor of the bankrupt his distributive share of the estate, but without any order or warrant of the referee or the court so to do, and the court afterwards determines that such creditor's attorney is entitled to a lien on the fund for his services in securing its allowance, the money must be regarded as still in the hands of the trustee, and he will be required to satisfy the claim of the attorney. In re Rude (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 805, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 319.

Rate of the dividend to be distributed among creditors depends upon the amount of proved claims, the amount of assets, and the fixing of the rate of distribution by the bankruptcy court. Bausman v. Mead (1913) 182 Ill. App. 35.

It is competent to postpone the claim of one creditor to that of another, when the fraudulent conduct of the one, as compared with the innocence and good faith of the other, demands that such a course should be taken. In re Paris Modes Co. (C. C. A. 1912) 196 Fed. 357, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 470. The court is not authorized to postpone payment of dividends on a claim which has been allowed, because the creditor had received a voidable preference or fraudulent conveyance of property which had been surrendered to the trustee. Wells v. Lincoln (1914) 214 Fed. 227, 130 C. C. A. 641, modifying judgment In re Wenatchee Heights Orchard Co. (D. C. 1913) 209 Fed. 84. An alleged indebtedness from one creditor of the bankrupt to another, growing out of transactions not connected with the bankruptcy proceedings, cannot be litigated in such proceedings or adjusted in the distribution of dividends. In re Girard Glazed Kid Co. (D. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 511, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 485.

The trustee in bankruptcy cannot be permitted to make a profit out of his trust; and where he has purchased a claim against the estate for less than its face value, dividends will be allowed thereon only to the extent of the amount he actually paid for it, with interest, and even though he has transferred the claim to another. In re Sweetser (C. C. 1907) 157 Fed. 567.

5. Opening and setting aside order.—A motion to reopen or vacate an order for a dividend may be made by any person interested, on proper papers and notice, and on the showing of a sufficient case, the referee and trustee will be forbidden to take steps for the payment of the dividend until the further orders of the court. In re New York Mail S. S. Co. (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 280, Fed. Cas. No. 10,212. An order for a dividend, when made pursuant to proper notice and filed in court, becomes virtually a judgment of the court, and cannot be disturbed except for some error committed by the referee and apparent from his memoranda and papers on file in the case. In re Smith (D. C. 1876) 15 N. B. R. 97, Fed. Cas. No. 12,989. The correctness of an order declaring a dividend is to be determined with reference to the time when it was made, and if proper at that time the subsequent filing of further claims does not afford ground for subjecting it to review. Whether an order declaring a dividend, which was right when made, should be revoked because of the subsequent filing of a new and large claim, is a matter within the discretion of the referee, the exercise of which is not reviewable, except so far as it proceeds on erroneous principles of law. In re Henry Siegel Co. (D. C. 1914) 216 Fed. 943.

After a dividend has been not only declared but actually paid out to the creditors entitled, it cannot be set aside, notwithstanding the fact that it was erroneously made so large as not to leave sufficient money in the trustee's hands for an equal dividend to creditors afterwards perfecting their proofs, in addition to the costs of administration. In re Scott (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 607, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 324; In re Smith (D. C. 1876) 15 N. B. R. 97, Fed. Cas. No. 12,989.

6. Payment of dividends.—Checks issued by a trustee in payment of dividends, if made payable to attorneys, should designate them as such, and they must also, in compliance with the rules, state the account on which they are drawn, to constitute proper vouchers corresponding with the dividend sheet. Checks payable to persons whose names do not appear on the dividend sheet, or which do not show what claims are covered thereby, or the authority of the payee to receive them, will not be approved as proper vouchers. In re Carr (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 556, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 635.

The trustee may withhold the payment of a dividend, if its declaration, so far as regards the particular claim concerned was unauthorized. In re Herrick (D. C. 1876) 13 N. B. R. 312, Fed. Cas. No. 6,420. He may withhold payment if the creditor is also a debtor to the bankrupt firm or a member of it, until the determination of a suit by the trustee to recover the debt. Atkinson v. Kellogg (D. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 535, Fed. Cas. No. 613. If the trustee withholds payment of a dividend without a sufficient legal reason, the creditor may have an order requiring him to pay it. In re Augusta Pottery Co. (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 1011, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 64. Any court of general jurisdiction, including a state court, has jurisdiction of an action against the trustee to recover a dividend declared and which the trustee has fraudulently converted to his own use. Berford v. Barnes (1887) 45 Hun (N. Y.) 253.

A dividend declared, but unpaid, may be assigned, and the assignee may take proper steps to enforce its payment. Rockland Sav. Bank v. Alden (1907) 103 Me. 230, 68 Atl. 863, 14 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1220, 13 Ann. Cas. 806. See Stires v. First Nat. Bank (1909) 83 Neb. 193, 119 N. W. 258. But a dividend declared and due to a particular creditor, but not yet paid to him, cannot be attached or garnished in the hands of the trustee. In re Hollander (D. C. 1910) 181 Fed. 1019, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 48; In re Argonaut Shoe Co. (1911) 187 Fed. 784, 109 C. C. A. 632, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 584; Cowart v. W. E. Caldwell Co. (1910) 134 Ga. 544, 68 S. E. 500, 30 L. R. A. (N. S.) 720; In re Bridgman (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 252, Fed. Cas. No. 1,867; Gilbert v. Quimby (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 111; In re Chisholm (D. C. 1880) 4 Fed. 526. The bankruptcy court, in the absence of statutory authority, has no jurisdiction to permit the garnishment of a declared dividend. In re American Electric Telephone Co. (C. C. A. 1914) 211 Fed. 88. Dividends declared by a bankrupt's trustee, while still in his possession and unpaid to the claimants, are in the custody of the court, and cannot be reached by attachment or garnishment from a State court. In re Argonaut Shoe Co. (1911) 187 Fed. 784, 109 C. C. A. 632, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 584; Gilbert v. Quimby (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 111; Cowart v. W. E. Caldwell Co. (1910) 134 Ga. 544, 68 S. E. 500, 30 L. R. A. (N. S.) 720. A bill in equity will not lie in favor of a partnership creditor, to restrain the application of a dividend in the hands of an assignee in bankruptcy to the debt of an individual creditor, where both of the creditors have attached such dividend under process issued by a state court. Gilbert v. Quimby (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 111, 114.

A creditor of the creditor, claiming a specific lien on the fund, may assert his rights in the court of bankruptcy, or if he has a suit pending in a state court, that court may appoint a receiver who will represent him in the bankruptcy proceeding and receive the money coming to the defendant as a dividend, and then account to the court appointing him for the same. In re Hollander (D. C. 1910) 181 Fed. 1019, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 48; Jackson v. Miller, 9 N. B. R. 143.

7. Recovery of dividends paid on rejected claims.—Where a dividend has been paid on an allowed claim, and afterwards the claim is reconsidered and rejected, in whole or in part, the trustee may recover from the creditor the amount of the dividend so paid or a proportional part. For the purposes of such recovery a plenary suit is not necessary, at least where the creditor has contested the reconsideration and rejection of his claim, as he thereby submits himself to the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court, and in such a case it may simply make an order requiring him to pay to the trustee in bankruptcy a designated amount. Pirie v. Chicago Title & Trust Co. (1901) 182 U. S. 438, 21 Sup. Ct. 906, 45 L. Ed. 1171. Prior to a direct or indirect allowance of a claim, it is not necessary for the trustee to move for a reconsideration of the claim, as the statute directs, in order to recover dividends paid. In re Two Rivers Woodenware Co. (1912) 199 Fed. 877, 118 C. C. A. 325, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 518. Where a judgment of the state court against a bankrupt pending bankruptcy proceedings was reversed on an appeal taken after the time within which the bankruptcy court required an order to suspend payment of dividends, the bankrupt's trustee was entitled to recover the dividends paid on such claim. Nelson v. Heckscher (1914) 219 Fed. 679, 135 C. C. A. 351.

8. Claims proved after dividend.—Where the trustee reserves money sufficient to pay a like dividend on claims which had previously been disallowed for want of sufficient proof, but with leave to the creditors to amend, the latter have no lien on the money so reserved, nor is the referee bound to distribute it to them; so that if, thereafter, a claim for an attorney's fee is presented, which is entitled to priority of payment as part of the costs of administration, it must be paid out of such reserved fund, in preference to the general creditors. In re Scott (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 607, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 324. And where all the assets of the estate have been collected and reduced to money and a final dividend declared, any creditor who has not then proved his claim is debarred from participating in the fund. In re Bell Piano Co. (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 272, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 183; In re Miller (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 9,556; In re Coulter (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 906, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 75.

9. Interest on dividends.—A trustee in bankruptcy is not bound to pay interest upon dividends which may be declared upon debts which have been fairly and reasonably disputed, from the time that like dividends were declared upon undisputed debts. Hersey v. Fosdick (C. C. 1884) 20 Fed. 44. But where the payment of a dividend to a particular creditor has been withheld, in consequence of delays attributable to the trustee or to other creditors, interest should be allowed from the time it became payable; and this interest will be reckoned at the rate of legal interest in the state, where the trustee has not applied to have the money set aside or invested pending an investigation or re-examination of the claim; and where, upon appeal from an order allowing interest at seven per cent. upon a creditor's dividend, the creditor procures an order directing the trustee to deposit the money with a trust company pending the appeal, it does not constitute a waiver of his right to full interest, but is merely a change of investment by the trustee for the greater security of the creditor. In re Kitzinger (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 307, Fed. Cas. No. 7,863.

§ 9650. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 66.) Unclaimed dividends.

Unclaimed Dividends.—a Dividends which remain unclaimed for six months after the final dividend has been declared shall be paid by the trustee into court.

b Dividends remaining unclaimed for one year shall, under the direction of the court, be distributed to the creditors whose claims have been allowed but not paid in full, and after such claims have been paid in full the balance shall be paid to the bankrupt: Provided, That in case unclaimed dividends belong to minors such minors may have one year after arriving at majority to claim such dividends. (30 Stat. 564.)

Notes of Decisions

Unclaimed dividends.—The object of inserting this provision in the statute has been thus explained: "To those familiar with the incidents following the administration of the bankruptcy act of 1867, the purpose of the provisions of said section 66 is quite obvious. It occurred under that act, elsewhere, no doubt, as in this district, that dividends declared in favor of general creditors of the bankrupt, which were covered into the court registry or depository remained uncalled for by the distributees for a great number of years, and this fund in some of the depositories was quite large. As this fund had not for so long a period been called for by the designated distributees, the question arose as to whether or not the courts ought not to hold that this seemingly abandoned fund, in equity, should either be distributed pro rata among the creditors who had not been paid in full, or returned to the bankrupt. But the better opinion seemed to be that such a contingency was a casus omissus of the bankruptcy act, which section 66 of the act of 1898 sought to remedy. In re Fielding (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 800, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 135. It was held that unclaimed dividends on the bankrupt's estate would not be awarded to his administrator, after many years, when opposed by creditors whose claims had not been paid in full. In re Blight's Estate (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 1,540.

§ 9651. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 67, as amended, Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 16, and Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, § 12.) Liens.

Liens.—a Claims which for want of record or for other reasons would not have been valid liens as against the claims of the creditors of the bankrupt shall not be liens against his estate.

b Whenever a creditor is prevented from enforcing his rights as against a lien created, or attempted to be created, by his debtor, who afterwards becomes a bankrupt, the trustee of the estate of such bankrupt shall be subrogated to and may enforce such rights of such creditor for the benefit of the estate.

c A lien created by or obtained in or pursuant to any suit or proceeding at law or in equity, including an attachment upon mesne process or a judgment by confession, which was begun against a person within four months before the filing of a petition in bankruptcy by or against such person shall be dissolved by the adjudication of such person to be a bankrupt if (1) it appears that said lien was obtained and permitted while the defendant was insolvent and that its existence and enforcement will work a preference, or (2) the party or parties to be benefited thereby had reasonable cause to believe the defendant was insolvent and in contemplation of bankruptcy, or (3) that such lien was sought and permitted in fraud of the provisions of this Act; or if the dissolution of such lien would militate against the best interests of the estate of such person the same shall not be dissolved, but the trustee of the estate of such person, for the benefit of the estate, shall be subrogated to the rights of the holder of such lien and empowered to perfect and enforce the same in his name as trustee with like force and effect as such holder might have done had not bankruptcy proceedings intervened.

d Liens given or accepted in good faith and not in contemplation of or in fraud upon this Act, and for a present consideration, which have been recorded according to law, if record thereof was necessary in order to impart notice, shall, to the extent of such present consideration only, not be affected by this Act.

e That all conveyances, transfers, assignments, or incumbrances of his property or any part thereof, made or given by a person adjudged a bankrupt under the provisions of this Act subsequent to the passage of this Act and within four months prior to the filing of the petition, with the intent and purpose on his part to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors, or any of them, shall be null and void as against the creditors of such debtor, except as to purchasers in good faith and for a present fair consideration; and all property of the debtor conveyed, transferred, assigned, or encumbered as aforesaid shall, if he be adjudged a bankrupt, and the same is not exempt from execution and liability for debts by the law of his domicile, be and remain a part of the assets and estate of the bankrupt and shall pass to his said trustee, whose duty it shall be to recover and reclaim the same by legal proceedings or otherwise for the benefit of the creditors. And all conveyances, transfers, or incumbrances of his property made by a debtor at any time within four months prior to the filing of the petition against him, and while insolvent, which are held null and void as against the creditors of such debtor by the laws of the State, Territory, or District in which such property is situate, shall be deemed null and void under this Act against the creditors of such debtor if he be adjudged a bankrupt, and such property shall pass to the assignee and be by him reclaimed and recovered for the benefit of the creditors of the bankrupt. For the purpose of such recovery any court of bankruptcy as hereinbefore defined, and any State court which would have had jurisdiction if bankruptcy had not intervened, shall have concurrent jurisdiction.

f That all levies, judgments, attachments, or other liens, obtained through legal proceedings against a person who is insolvent, at any time within four months prior to the filing of a petition in bankruptcy against him, shall be deemed null and void in case he is adjudged a bankrupt, and the property affected by the levy, judgment, attachment, or other lien shall be deemed wholly discharged and released from the same, and shall pass to the trustee as a part of the estate of the bankrupt, unless the court shall, on due notice, order that the right under such levy, judgment, attachment, or other lien shall be preserved for the benefit of the estate; and thereupon the same may pass to and shall be preserved by the trustee for the benefit of the estate as aforesaid. And the court may order such conveyance as shall be necessary to carry the purposes of this section into effect: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall have the effect to destroy or impair the title obtained by such levy, judgment, attachment, or other lien, of a bona fide purchaser for value who shall have acquired the same without notice or reasonable cause for inquiry. (30 Stat. 564. 32 Stat. 800. 36 Stat. 842.)

In this section, as originally enacted, subdivision e thereof did not contain the provision at the end thereof as set forth here, beginning with the words "For the purpose of such recovery," etc. Said provision was added at the end of said subdivision by amendment by Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 16, cited above.

In this section, as originally enacted, also, subdivision d thereof was as follows:

"d Liens given or accepted in good faith and not in contemplation of or in fraud upon this Act, and for a present consideration, which have been recorded according to law, if record thereof was necessary in order to impart notice, shall not be affected by this Act."

It was amended by Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, § 12, last cited above, by inserting therein, after the words "in order to impart notice, shall," the words "to the extent of such present consideration only," making said subdivision d read as set forth here.

Section 19 of said first amendatory Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, 32 Stat. 801, provided that the act should not apply to bankruptcy cases pending when it took effect, but that such cases should be adjudicated and disposed of conformably to the provisions of the original act.

Section 14 of said second amendatory Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, 36 Stat. 842, also provided that the act should not apply to bankruptcy cases pending when it took effect, but that such cases should be adjudicated and disposed of conformably to the provisions of the original act as previously amended.

Transfers, etc., constituting preferences, within section 60 of this act, ante, § 9644, are voidable by the trustee, and he may recover the property or its value, by the provisions of that section.

The trustee may avoid any transfer by the bankrupt of his property which any creditor of such bankrupt might have avoided, by section 70 of this act, post, § 9654.

Notes of Decisions

I. Effect of bankruptcy on existing liens

1. Construction of this section.
2. Validity of liens as against trustee.
3. Equitable liens.
4. Liens invalid as against creditors.
5. Mortgages of real property.
6. Chattel mortgages.
7. —— Filing or recording.
8. —— Right of trustee to impeach.
9. —— After-acquired property.
10. Pledges and assignments of collateral.
11. Maritime liens.
12. Attorney's lien for services.
13. Vendors' liens.
14. Statutory liens.
15. Landlord's lien for rent.
16. Mechanics' and laborers' liens.
17. Liens acquired by legal proceedings before bankruptcy.
18. Lien of attachment.
19. —— Effect of dissolution of attachment.
20. Lien by garnishment.
21. Date of attachment or garnishment.
22. Judgment or execution.
23. Dissolution of liens by adjudication.
24. Insolvency of debtor.
25. Date of attaching of lien as affecting dissolution.
26. Rights of bona fide purchasers.
27. Rights of trustee as to property affected by liens.
28. Conveyance or surrender of property under order of court.
29. Subrogation of trustee to rights of lienholder.
30. Rights and remedies of creditor on dissolution of lien.
31. Costs and fees under dissolved lien.

II. Proceedings to establish or enforce liens

32. Remedies in general.
33. Jurisdiction of court of bankruptcy.
34. Jurisdiction of state courts.
35. Conflicting jurisdiction of federal and state courts.
36. Permission of bankruptcy court to sue in state court.
37. Restraining proceedings in state courts.
38. —— Priority of jurisdiction in state court.
39. —— Protecting interest of general creditors.
40. Foreclosure of mortgages.
41. —— Restraining foreclosure in state court.
42. —— Protecting interests of general creditors.
43. —— Power of sale in mortgage or trust deed.
44. —— Abandonment of property by trustee.

II. Proceedings to establish or enforce liens—Cont'd

45. Proceedings out of court.
46. Redemption of property by trustee.
47. Sale of property by order of bankruptcy court.
48. Marshalling assets.

III. Fraudulent conveyances voidable by trustee

49. Construction of this section.
50. Rights of trustee as to transfers.
51. Election by trustee.
52. Trustee's right of action exclusive.
53. Conditions precedent to trustee's action.
54. —— Proof of debts and insufficiency of assets.
55. Nature and form of transaction.
56. —— Sale and transfer of property.
57. —— Transfers to bankrupt's wife.
58. —— Fraudulent incorporation.
59. —— Mortgage or other lien or security.
60. —— Payment or transfer of money.
61. —— Judgment or execution.
62. Sales of merchandise in bulk.
63. Preference and fraudulent transfer distinguished.
64. Transfers void under state laws.
65. —— Chattel mortgages.
66. —— Conditional sales.
67. Transfers fraudulent as to partnership or individual creditors.
68. Property or rights transferred.
69. Time of conveyance or transfer.
70. Insolvency of debtor.
71. Intention of debtor.
72. —— Intention as to future creditors.
73. Consideration.
74. —— Nature of consideration.
75. —— Past debts and present advances.
76. —— Adequacy of consideration.
77. —— Want or invalidity of consideration.
78. Knowledge, bad faith, or participation of transferee.
79. Rights and liabilities of transferees.
80. Rights of bona fide purchasers.
81. Jurisdiction of trustee's suit.
82. Form of action or proceeding.
83. Parties.
84. Pleading and practice.
85. Burden of proof and evidence.
86. Nature and extent of trustee's recovery.
87. Rights of creditors in property or fund recovered.

I. EFFECT OF BANKRUPTCY ON EXISTING LIENS

1. Construction of this section.—Although clause "f" of this section relates in terms only to liens on property of a person "against" whom a petition in bankruptcy is filed, it is held that it applies to cases of voluntary bankruptcy as well as to involuntary cases. In re Richards (1899) 96 Fed. 935, 37 C. C. A. 634, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 145; In re Dobson (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 86, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 420; In re Beals (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 530, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 639; In re Vaughan (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 560, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 362; In re Lesser (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 433, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 815; In re Rhoads (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 399, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 380; In re McCartney (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 621, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 367; Gabriel v. Tonner (1902) 138 Cal. 63, 70 Pac. 1021; McKenney v. Cheney (1903) 118 Ga. 387, 45 S. E. 433; Jones v. Stevens (1901) 94 Me. 582, 48 Atl. 170; Stickney & Babcock Coal Co. v. Goodwin (1901) 95 Me. 246, 49 Atl. 1039, 85 Am. St. Rep. 408; Brown v. Case (1901) 180 Mass. 45, 61 N. E. 279; Cavanaugh v. Fenley (1905) 94 Minn. 505, 103 N. W. 711, 110 Am. St. Rep. 382; National Bank & Loan Co. v. Spencer (1900) 53 App. Div. 547, 65 N. Y. Supp. 1001; Wallace v. Camp (1901) 200 Pa. 220, 49 Atl. 942; Mencke v. Rosenberg (1902) 202 Pa. 131, 51 Atl. 767, 90 Am. St. Rep. 618; Rothermel v. Moyer (1904) 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 325; Gardiner v. Ross (1905) 19 S. D. 497, 104 N. W. 220; Farrell v. W. B. Lockett & Co. (1905) 115 Tenn. 494, 91 S. W. 209. CONTRA, In re De Lue (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 510, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 387; In re O'Connor (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 943; In re Easley (D. C. 1898) 93 Fed. 419, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 715. And see In re Kemp (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 689, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 242. Although this clause may apply to proceedings on debts contracted before the passage of the act, it is not objectionable as impairing the obligation of contracts, since it affects only the remedy and not the contract itself. In re Rhoads (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 399, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 380. This provision is not intended solely for effect in the courts of bankruptcy, but is equally binding on the state courts. Thompson v. Ragan (1904) 117 Ky. 577, 78 S. W. 485. And it overrides and is superior to all state laws on the same subject. Atkinson v. Purdy (D. C. 1844) Fed. Cas. No. 616.

Clause "f" of this section is merely carrying out the general purposes of the bankruptcy act to secure to creditors the bankrupt's entire property. Corey v. Blackwell Lumber Co. (1913) 135 P. 742, 24 Idaho, 642.

The two clauses "c" and "f" of this section are irreconcilable and repugnant, and in case of conflict between them, clause "c" must give way, and clause "f" must prevail, as being the latest expression of the legislative will. Cook v. Robinson (C. C. A. 1912) 194 Fed. 785, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 182; In re Richards (1899) 96 Fed. 935, 37 C. C. A. 634, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 145; In re Rhoads (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 399, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 380. The two clauses must be read together for the light they may throw on each other, in construing the act as a whole. Folger v. Putnam (1912) 194 Fed. 793, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 173. It has been held that the particular or special provisions in clause "c" are to be taken as exceptions to the general provisions of clause "f." Ex parte

Chase (1901) 62 S. C. 353, 38 S. E. 718.

2. Validity of liens as against trustee. —Except as to the classes of liens expressly declared by the bankruptcy act to be dissolved by an adjudication within four months after they attached, and except also in cases of fraud or attempted preference, the rule is that proceedings in bankruptcy do not interfere with existing valid liens, but the trustee takes the property of the bankrupt subject to all such liens as would have been enforceable against it in the hands of the bankrupt himself. Rode & Horn v. Phipps (1912) 195 Fed. 414, 115 C. C. A. 316, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 827; Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hurley (1907) 153 Fed. 503, 82 C. C. A. 453, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 396; Tucker v. Curtin (1906) 148 Fed. 929, 78 C. C. A. 557, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 354; In re Boschelli (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 864, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 528; In re Columbia Fireproof Door & Trim Co. (D. C. 1909) 168 Fed. 159, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 714; In re Platteville Foundry & Machine Co. (D. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 828, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 291; In re Clifford (D. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 475, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 281; Schoenthaler v. Rosskam (1903) 107 Ill. App. 427; Mattocks v. Baker (D. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 455; Robinson v. Tuttle (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 11,968; Presbyterian Board, etc., v. Gilbee (1905) 212 Pa. St. 310, 61 Atl. 925. The rule that the filing of a petition in bankruptcy is in effect an attachment and injunction has no application to those holding substantial claims, antedating the filing, to liens upon property of the bankrupt. In re Rathman (1910) 183 Fed. 913, 106 C. C. A. 253, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 246.

As the trustee does not occupy the technical position of a purchaser for value, he is supposed to take with notice of any given lien. State v. Superior Court of King County (1911) 63 Wash. 312, 115 Pac. 307, Ann. Cas. 1913D, 1119; Clason v. Morris (1812) 10 Johns. (N. Y.) 524.

As to liens which are protected and preserved by this section, the bankruptcy law makes no distinction between them, as to the manner in which they originated, or whether they are enforceable at law or in equity. Reed v. Bullington (1873) 49 Miss. 223. The law will preserve them all and direct their payment in the relative order of their rank and priority. McLean v. Lafayette Bank (C. C. 1846) Fed. Cas. No. 8,888; In re Longfellow (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 8,486. If the trustee in bankruptcy does not undertake the administration of the property affected, and the lien creditor does not prove his debt in the bankruptcy proceeding, the lien will survive that proceeding. Clanton v. Estes (1887) 77 Ga. 352, 1 S. E. 163.

In order to be preserved and protected by this section of the bankruptcy law, the lien claimed by a creditor must be valid under the laws of the particular state. In re United States Lumber Co. (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 236, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 682; In re Hersey (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 1004, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 863; Platt v. Preston (D. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 11,219. Though the rights of a trustee in bankruptcy and those of an assignee in insolvency under a state statute are defined in similar language, yet a state statute making a certain transfer void as against an assignee eo nomine does not make it void as against a trustee in bankruptcy. In re Loveland (1907) 155 Fed. 838, 84 C. C. A. 72, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 18.

Where the question is purely between the trustee in bankruptcy and the lien creditor, the rights of the former are measured by those of the bankrupt. If the contract or arrangement by which the lien was created was binding on the bankrupt, it will be binding on his trustee. In re Greek Mfg. & Enterprising Co. (D. C. 1909) 167 Fed. 424, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 717. An agreement under which a creditor claims a lien on property, while good as between the parties, may not be good as against a trustee, under section 8 of the amendatory act of June 25, 1910. Scandinavian-American Bank v. Sabin (C. C. A. 1915) 227 Fed. 579. But if it was not binding as between the immediate parties —as, for instance, in the case of an agreement for a lien on personal property, but without change of possession—it will not affect the property in the hands of the trustee. In re Faulhaber Stable Co. (1909) 170 Fed. 68, 95 C. C. A. 344, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 381; Bank of Leavenworth v. Hunt (1870) 11 Wall. 391, 20 L. Ed. 190. But if the circumstances were such that the bankrupt would be estopped to take advantage of a defect or irregularity, the estoppel may also be set up against his trustee. Allen v. Whittemore (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 241. Where a corporation, before becoming bankrupt, had given a mortgage on its property, but without complying with the state law requiring such a mortgage to be authorized by a vote of the stockholders in meeting, it was held that its trustee in bankruptcy could not take advantage of the defect, in view of the fact that the courts of the state had construed that provision of the statute as being for the exclusive benefit of the stockholders. In re V. & M. Lumber Co. (D. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 231. But the trustee is not so far in privity with the bankrupt as to be prohibited from attacking judgments against him collaterally, as, in the case of a judgment obtained on a debt not due. Partridge v. Dearborn (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 10,785.

It is necessary that the lien should be in full force and vitality at the date of the adjudication. If it has been in any way released or relinquished before that time, it cannot be revived as against the trustee. Sage v. Wynkoop (C. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 363, Fed. Cas. No. 12,215, affirmed (1881) 104 U. S. 319, 26 L. Ed. 740. But see Crane v. Penny (D. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 187, as to the right of a trustee in bankruptcy to plead that an execution was dormant at the time of the adjudication. Where defendant accepted a bankrupt's notes for a transfer of right to cut timber from certain land, such acceptance and renewal of the notes worked a suspension of the right to enforce his lien until the notes were due or the bankrupt's inability to pay them became manifest. Cullen v. Armstrong (D. C. 1913) 209 Fed. 704. The filing of an ordinary claim against the estate of a bankrupt by one who sold him property by a contract of conditional sale was not inconsistent with the assertion of a lien on the insurance proceeds of the property, and not a waiver of the lien. In re Zitron (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 79.

After the adjudication it is too late to fasten any lien upon the property of the bankrupt however far the debt or claim may antedate it. In re York Silk Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 735, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 650; In re Badenheim (C. C. 1876) 15 N. B. R. 370, Fed. Cas. No. 716.

Liens which may follow the specific property into the hands of the trustee in bankruptcy and be preserved by the bankruptcy law include the lien of a state for taxes. In re Brand (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 1,809. And the lien of a factor for advances to his principal and for his commissions. Boise v. Talcott (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 268; Ommen v. Talcott (1911) 188 Fed. 401, 112 C. C. A. 239, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 689; In re Roseberry (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 340, Fed. Cas. No. 12,052; Nisbet v. Sigel-Campion Live Stock Commission Co. (1912) 21 Colo. App. 494, 123 Pac. 110. And the lien of a municipal corporation on a stock of goods belonging to one of its public officers which was purchased wholly or in part with public moneys misappropriated by him. Smith v. Township of Au Gres (C. C. A. 1906) 150 Fed. 257, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 745. And the lien of a private corporation, created by its by-laws, on the stock of each stockholder to cover his indebtedness to the corporation. In re Dunkerson (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 4,156; In re Bigelow (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 1,395. And the lien created by the filing of a judgment creditor's bill to set aside a fraudulent conveyance and subject the property conveyed to the satisfaction of the judgment, after the service of process thereon. Bradley v. United Wireless Telegraph Co. (1911) 79 N. J. Eq. 458, 81 Atl. 1107; In re Beadle (D. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 1,155. Compare In re Pitts (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 542. And see Blick v. Nimmo (1913) 121 Md. 139, 88 Atl. 116. At least, such a lien will be good after the service of an injunction or the appointment of a receiver. In re Smith (C. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 12,997; Johnson v. Rogers (D. C. 1876) 15 N. B. R. 1, Fed. Cas. No. 7,408. A customer of bankrupt brokers, whose stocks had been loaned by them and sold by the borrowers on their insolvency, held not entitled by subrogation to a lien on the proceeds of the sale of their seat in the stock exchange. In re Van Schaick & Co. (C. C. A. 1915) 228 Fed. 465.

3. Equitable liens.—A merely personal claim against a bankrupt's estate does not constitute a lien. Eason v. Garrison (1904) 36 Tex. Civ. App. 574, 82 S. W. 800; Hotchkiss v. National City Bank (D. C. 1911) 200 Fed. 287. That a bankrupt bank converted and dissipated the proceeds of a note sent it for collection held not to give the owner a lien upon, or right to priority of payment from, the general assets of the bankrupt. Macy v. Roedenbeck (C. C. A. 1915) 227 Fed. 346.

The bankruptcy act will save and protect equitable liens, as well as those given by statute or raised by the explicit agreement of the parties, and the court of bankruptcy will recognize a lien of this character wherever a court of equity would do so. Gage Lumber Co. v. McEldowney (C. C. A. 1913) 207 Fed. 255, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 251; In re Hoffman (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 448, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 680; Parker v. Bates (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 294, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 198; Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hurley (1907) 153 Fed. 503, 82 C. C. A. 453, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 396; Smith v. Township of Au Gres (C. C. A. 1906) 150 Fed. 257, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 745; Hanson v. W. L. Blake & Co. (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 342, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 325; In re J. F. Grandy & Son (D. C. 1906) 146 Fed. 318, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 206; In re MacDougall (D. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 400, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 762; Loving v. Moore (1911) 37 App. D. C. 214; Crosby v. Ridout (1906) 27 App. D. C. 481; Kelly-Buckley Co. v. Cohen (1907) 195 Mass. 585, 81 N. E. 297; Smith v. Godwin (1907) 145 N. C. 242, 58 S. E. 1089; Gardner v. Planters' Nat. Bank (1909) 54 Tex. Civ. App. 572, 118 S. W. 1146; Newlin v. McAfee (1879) 64 Ala. 357; Fletcher v. Morey (C. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 4,864; Ex parte General Assignee (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 5,305. See also the following cases, where the circumstances were held not sufficient to create an equitable lien: Elmore v. Symonds (1903) 183 Mass. 321, 67 N. E. 314; Ross v. Saunders (C. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 737; Moore v. Green (1906) 145 Fed. 472, 76 C. C. A. 242, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep.

648; In re Teter (D. C. 1909) 173 Fed. 798, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 223; Ernst v. Mechanics' & Metals Nat. Bank (C. C. A. 1912) 201 Fed. 664, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 289. Where a mortgagor, after having paid a part of the mortgage debt, borrowed further sums from the mortgagee, and indorsements were made on the mortgage note to the effect that such sums should be added to the amount previously remaining due thereon, it was held that the mortgage was a valid lien in equity for the full amount as so increased, as against the mortgagor's trustee in bankruptcy. In re Loveland (1907) 155 Fed. 838, 84 C. C. A. 72. Where a loss under an insurance policy taken out by the receiver in bankruptcy occurs before the appointment of a trustee, the money paid on the policy stands in place of the realty, and is impressed with an equitable lien in favor of the mortgagees. Reilley v. Buffalo German Ins. Co. (1914) 147 N. Y. S. 1086, 86 Misc. Rep. 69. The mother of a bankrupt held entitled to a lien on his home, which was built with money advanced by her, as against his trustee. Parker v. Bates (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 294.

A written agreement whereby specific property or a fund is made security for a debt creates an equitable lien. Root Mfg. Co. v. Johnson (1914) 219 Fed. 397, 135 C. C. A. 139. And an equitable lien on personal property may be created by a verbal agreement, provided the intention is clear to charge some particular property. Goodnough Mercantile & Stock Co. v. Galloway (D. C. 1906) 156 Fed. 504, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 244. An oral agreement by a mortgagor to insure the property for the benefit of the mortgagee, whose money was used in its purchase, will give the mortgagee an equitable lien on the proceeds of the insurance after the property has been destroyed by fire, as against the mortgagor or his trustee in bankruptcy. Hanson v. W. L. Blake & Co. (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 342, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 325. A purchaser of drafts drawn by a bankrupt on a London bank, which were refused payment because of the intervening bankruptcy, held entitled to an equitable lien on securities deposited by the bankrupt in New York to protect such drafts, pursuant to an agreement with the drawee. In re Hollins (C. C. A. 1914) 215 Fed. 41, affirming order In re H. B. Hollins & Co. (D. C. 1914) 210 Fed. 965. One whose money or property was held by the bankrupt in the capacity of a trustee, and was converted or misappropriated by the latter, the proceeds going to swell his general estate, may claim a lien on the assets of the bankrupt to the extent of his loss, provided he is able to trace his property, either in its original shape or in a substituted form, into the hands of the trustee in bankruptcy. In re Brown (1912) 193 Fed. 24, 113 C. C. A. 348; In re A. O. Brown & Co. (1912) 193 Fed. 30, 113 C. C. A. 354.

4. Liens invalid as against creditors.—Since a trustee in bankruptcy is the representative of the creditors, no one can successfully assert against him a lien on property of the bankrupt which, though it might have been good as against the bankrupt himself, would be invalid as against his creditors. First Nat. Bank v. Staake (1906) 202 U. S. 141, 26 Sup. Ct. 580, 50 L. Ed. 967, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 639; McHarg v. Staake (1906) 202 U. S. 150, 26 Sup. Ct. 584, 50 L. Ed. 971, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 646; Casey v. Cavaroc (1877) 96 U. S. 467, 24 L. Ed. 779; Receivers of Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co. v. Staake (1904) 133 Fed. 717, 66 C. C. A. 550; In re Thomas (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 214, 232, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 945; In re Cramond (D. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 966, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 22; Hanson v. W. L. Blake & Co. (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 342, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 325; In re I. S. Vickerman & Co. (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 589, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 298; In re Booth (D. C. 1900) 98 Fed. 975; Skilton v. Codington (1906) 185 N. Y. 80, 77 N. E. 790, 113 Am. St. Rep. 885; Moore v. Young (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 9,782; In re Wynne (C. C. 1868) 4 N. B. R. 23, Fed. Cas. No. 18,117; Odell v. Flood (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 10,428; Todd v. Townsend (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 14,075; Johnson v. Rogers (D. C. 1876) 15 N. B. R. 1, Fed. Cas. No. 7,408; Edmondson v. Hyde (C. C. 1872) 7 N. B. R. 1, Fed. Cas. No. 4,-285; In re Morrill (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 117, Fed. Cas. No. 9,821; In re Dunn (D. C. 1877) 11 N. B. R. 270, Fed. Cas. No. 4,172; Benner v. Scandinavian American Bank (1913) 73 Wash. 488, 131 Pac. 1149. It is immaterial in this respect whether the invalidity arises from failure to record the instrument creating the alleged lien or from any other cause. Security Warehousing Co. v. Hand (1907) 206 U. S. 415, 27 Sup. Ct. 720, 51 L. Ed. 1117, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 291, affirming (1906) 143 Fed. 32, 74 C. C. A. 186, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 49. See In re Thackara Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 126, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 258, holding the lien of an outstanding execution invalid because it had been allowed to lie dormant in the hands of the sheriff for several months. So, a creditor who sold machinery to the bankrupt with the understanding that it was to be used in a vessel being built under contract for the United States was held to have no lien upon the machinery, nor upon the contract or its proceeds, because an act of congress makes void the assignment of any interest in government contracts. In re Waters-Colver Co. (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 845, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 763. The provision of this section which makes invalid as liens against the estate of a bankrupt claims which for want of record would not have been valid liens against the claims of creditors, applies only to claims which are required by the state law to be recorded. In re Lane Lumber Co. (1914) 217 Fed. 550, 133 C. C. A. 402; Id., 555, 133 C. C. A. 407, affirming judgments (D. C. 1913) 210 Fed. 82. But it must be shown that general creditors were misled to their injury, or induced to give credit to the bankrupt, by reason of the concealment or other irregularity which they allege as a ground for rejecting the alleged lien. In re MacDougall (D. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 400, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 762; In re Gerstman (C. C. A. 1907) 157 Fed. 549, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 145.

Prior to the amendatory act of 1910, it was generally held that the trustee in bankruptcy represents only the general creditors, and hence, if none of them is in position at the time of the adjudication in bankruptcy to attack the validity of an alleged lien, in virtue of having fastened a lien on the property involved or of holding an execution or attachment or other similar process, neither can the trustee in bankruptcy attack it, notwithstanding fraud, concealment, or other cause of impeachment. In re New York Economical Printing Co. (1901) 110 Fed. 514, 49 C. C. A. 133, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 615; In re Burnham (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 926, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 548; In re Lausman (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 647, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 186; Skilton v. Codington (1903) 86 App. Div. 166, 83 N. Y. Supp. 351. And if the lien was invalid as to one creditor, but valid as against others, or if only one creditor was in position to enforce his rights against it, the trustee could avoid it only to the extent of the claim of that creditor. In re New York Economical Printing Co. (1901) 110 Fed. 514, 49 C. C. A. 133, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 615. This rule was changed by the amendment of 1910, giving to the trustee in bankruptcy the rights of a creditor holding a lien or an unsatisfied execution. Niagara Falls Hydraulic Power & Mfg Co. v. Schermerhorn (1908) 60 Misc. Rep. 209, 111 N. Y. Supp. 576; In re Werner (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 17,416; Beers v. Place (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 459, Fed. Cas. No. 1,233. The trustee is not now in the situation of a general creditor, but occupies the more favorable position of a judgment or execution creditor, and can resist the enforcement of any lien which would be invalid as against a creditor of that class. In re Hammond (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 1020, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 336; Sturdivant Bank v. Schade (C. C. A. 1912) 195 Fed. 188, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 673.

5. Mortgages of real property.—Where a mortgage on real property of the bankrupt is not invalidated by the provisions of this section, the trustee takes the property charged with the mortgage and has no greater interest or higher rights than the bankrupt himself. In re Stewart (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 791, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 529; In re Dunavant (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 542, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 41. The trustee is entitled only to the equity of redemption or the surplus proceeds of the property. Lyall v. Miller (C. C. 1855) Fed. Cas. No. 8,613; In re Erie Lumber Co. (D. C. 1906) 150 Fed. 817, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 689. Erroneous stipulation by mortgagor as to amount due at the time of an assignment held not to increase the lien of the mortgage as against the mortgagor's trustee in bankruptcy and creditors. In re Howard (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 402. The trustee is bound by the mortgagor's covenant to keep the premises insured for the benefit of the mortgagee. In re Sands Ale Brewing Co. (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 12,307.

Where a bill is filed by a junior mortgagee for the foreclosure and sale of the equity of redemption, the trustee in bankruptcy of the mortgagor has no standing to object to the order in which the priority of valid and subsisting liens on the mortgaged property is fixed by the decree of foreclosure, as he can get nothing in any event until all valid liens have been satisfied. Jerome v. McCarter (1876) 94 U. S. 734, 24 L. Ed. 136. And see In re Times Pub. Co. (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 603.

A security otherwise valid is not avoided merely because taken in the form of an absolute deed instead of a mortgage. Gaffney's Assignee v. Signaigo (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 5,169; Alter v. Clark (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 153. Nor because it covers all of the bankrupt's property, if given to secure bona fide debts and liabilities. Sidener v. Klier (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 12,843. Nor because, being a partnership obligation, it in terms adopts a debt incurred by one of the partners in behalf of the firm and includes it in the mortgage. Wait v. Bull's Head Bank (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 500, Fed. Cas. No. 17,043. A deed of trust executed in the name of a bankrupt corporation by its officers, without authority or ratification by the directors, held not to create a valid lien as against its unsecured creditors. Bernard v. Lea (C. C. A. 1913) 210 Fed. 583. Under Bal. Ann. Codes & St. Wash. §§ 4535, 4536, providing for the execution and record of real estate mortgages, a mortgage of a corporation's real property, though defectively acknowledged, having been properly recorded, held to create a valid lien on such property as against the corporation's trustee in bankruptcy entitled only to the rights of a lien creditor. Pacific State Bank v. Coats (1913) 205 Fed. 618, 123 C. C. A. 634.

A mortgage which was valid when executed and entirely free from fraud is not invalidated in the bankruptcy proceedings simply because it was not placed on the record until after the debtor had become insolvent or until shortly before the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, provided it is not shown that there was any fraudulent purpose in so withholding it from the record, and if the law of the state is such that recording is not necessary to its vadidity as between the parties. Martin v. Commercial Nat. Bank (C. C. A.) 228 Fed. 651; In re Brown (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 533; Sturdivant Bank v. Schade (1912) 195 Fed. 188, 115 C. C. A. 140, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 673; In re Doran (1907) 154 Fed. 467, 83 C. C. A. 265, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 760; In re Adams (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 188, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 415; In re Wright (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 187, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 364; Stewart v. Hopkins (1876) 30 Ohio St. 502; Clark v. Hezekiah (D. C. 1885) 24 Fed. 663; Curry v. McCauley (C. C. 1884) 20 Fed. 583; Seaver v. Spink (1872) 8 N. B. R. 218, 65 Ill. 441; Folsom v. Clemence (1873) 111 Mass. 273. But see Bostwick v. Foster (C. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 123, Fed. Cas. No. 1,682; In re Lukens (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 188, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 683; In re Randolph (D. C. 1911) 187 Fed. 186, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623. A deed of trust on certain of bankrupts' assets, neither filed nor recorded as required by Rev. St. Tex. 1911, art. 6824, created no lien enforceable against the bankrupts' trustee, though mentioned in the bankrupts' voluntary petition. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Park (1914) 218 Fed. 42, 134 C. C. A. 64. A mortgage on lands in Georgia, executed in Florida, which was attested in accordance with Civ. Code Ga. 1910, § 4203, held to entitle the mortgagee to priority upon bankruptcy of the mortgagor. In re Williams (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 984.

The trustee cannot recover the value of the mortgaged property if the mortgagee took possession before the commencement of the proceedings in bankruptcy, although the mortgage was not properly recorded. Miller v. Jones (C. C. 1876) 15 N. B. R. 150, Fed. Cas. No. 9,576.

In the case of an indemnity mortgage given to a surety, the holder can enforce it to the extent of the indemnity contracted for, but not to any greater extent, although he may have paid debts or incurred liabilities to a larger amount. Whatever might be his equities as against the mortgagor himself in this case, he can claim no more than the face of the mortgage as against the trustee in bankruptcy. Courier-Journal Job Printing Co. v. Schaefer-Meyer Brewing Co. (1900) 101 Fed. 699, 41 C. C. A. 614, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 183. And see In re Stoddard Bros. Lumber Co. (D. C. 1909) 169 Fed. 190, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 435. If the surety in such a case, has not paid the creditors to whom he became bound as surety, the mortgage may be held by the court of bankruptcy to inure to their benefit. In re Pierce (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 11,140.

In the case of a valid mortgage, the discharge of the debtor in bankruptcy does not extinguish the mortgage debt so far as the same is necessary to uphold the mortgage. Chamberlain v. Meeder (1844) 16 N. H. 381; Sosnowski v. Rape (1882) 69 Ga. 548; Thaxton v. Roberts (1881) 66 Ga. 704; Carlisle v. Wilkins (1874) 51 Ala. 371.

6. Chattel mortgages. — A chattel mortgage is a valid form of security and gives a lien which may be enforced as against the trustee in bankruptcy of the mortgagor, if free from fraud, based on an actual consideration, and recorded or filed as required by local law. In re Baar (1914) 213 Fed. 628, 130 C. C. A. 292; Title Guaranty & Surety Co. v. Witmire (1912) 195 Fed. 41, 115 C. C. A. 43, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 235; Davis v. Turner (1903) 120 Fed. 605, 56 C. C. A. 669, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 704; In re Durham (D. C. 1902) 114 Fed. 750, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 115; Simmons v. Greer (1909) 174 Fed. 654, 98 C. C. A. 408, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 443; Long v. Gump (1906) 144 Fed. 824, 75 C. C. A. 554, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 501; In re Collins (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 3,004; Ex parte Ames (D. C. 1871) 7 N. B. R. 230, Fed. Cas. No. 323; In re Gregg (D. C. 1868) 3 N. B. R. 529, Fed. Cas. No. 5,796. But it is always open to the trustee to question the validity of the mortgage. Carlsbad Water Co. v. New (1905) 33 Colo. 389, 81 Pac. 34; In re Hartman (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 196, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 76. Or to show that its lien has been lost by delay on the part of the mortgagee in taking possession after default. Knapp v. Milwaukee Trust Co. (1910) 216 U. S. 545, 30 Sup. Ct. 412, 56 L. Ed. 610; Hanson v. W. L. Blake & Co. (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 342, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 325; In re Forbes (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 4,922; Stewart v. Hoffman (1905) 31 Mont. 184 77 Pac. 689, 81 Pac. 3; Schaupp v. Miller (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 575, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 699. A mortgagee who is in possession of the mortgaged property at the time of the adjudication in bankruptcy against the mortgagor is entitled to retain such possession as against the trustee in bankruptcy and the general creditors. In re Howard (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 402; Coggan v. Ward (Mass. 1913) 102 N. E. 336. But compare Cornelius v. Boling (1907) 18 Okl. 469, 90 Pac. 874. The trustee may show that the lien of the mortgage has been lost by the mortgagee's allowing the mortgaged goods to be inextricably commingled with other property not covered by it. In re Holmes Lumber Co. (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 178, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 119.

If, for any reason, a chattel mortgage is null and void as against the other creditors of the mortgagor, it is not valid against his trustee in bankruptcy. Harvey v. Crane (C. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 218, Fed. Cas. No. 6,178; Kane v. Rice (D. C. 1873) 10 N. B. R. 469, Fed. Cas. No. 7,609. Under a state statute providing that "any chattel mortgage securing notes which do not state upon their face the fact of such security shall be absolutely void," the holder of such a note and mortgage has no lien, as against the trustee in bankruptcy, even though he has taken possession. In re Birck & Co. (1905) 142 Fed. 438, 73 C. C. A. 554, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 694. But where the state law provides that mortgages may be made only on certain enumerated kinds of personal property, yet provides that mortgages of other kinds of chattels shall be valid between the parties, and their heirs, legatees, personal representatives, and persons who, before parting with value, have actual notice thereof, a chattel mortgage of property other than that specified, if executed in good faith and for a good consideration, is valid against the mortgagor's trustee in bankruptcy and the general creditors. In re Grainger (1908) 160 Fed. 69, 87 C. C. A. 225, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 166.

A chattel mortgage upon a stock of goods which allows the mortgagor to remain in possession and sell the goods and buy others in their place, is fraudulent and void as against his creditors, at least in the absence of a provision for an accounting, and therefore may also be avoided by his trustee in bankruptcy. In re Noethen (C. C. A. 1912) 201 Fed. 97, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 234; In re Marine Construction & Dry Dock Co. (1906) 144 Fed. 649, 75 C. C. A. 451, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 325; In re First Nat. Bank (1905) 135 Fed. 62, 67 C. C. A. 536, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 180; In re Antigo Screen Door Co. (1903) 123 Fed. 249, 59 C. C. A. 248, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 359; Stroud v. McDaniel (1901) 106 Fed. 493, 45 C. C. A. 453, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 695; In re Hawks (D. C. 1913) 204 Fed. 309, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 365; In re Tucker (D. C. 1908) 161 Fed. 584, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 404; Mitchell v. Mitchell (D. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 280, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 382; In re Standard Telephone & Electric Co. (D. C. 1907) 157 Fed. 106, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 491; Marden v. Phillips (D. C. 1900) 103 Fed. 196, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 566; In re Leigh (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 806; In re Forbes (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 4,922; Smith v. Ely (C. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 553, Fed. Cas. No. 13,044; In re Manly (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 291, Fed. Cas. No. 9,-031; Benner v. Scandinavian American Bank (1913) 73 Wash. 488, 131 Pac. 1149. Under the law of Oregon, as settled by decisions, where it appears either from the face of the mortgage or by evidence aliunde that a chattel mortgage has given the mortgagor unlimited power and authority to dispose of the property in the usual course of trade, without accounting therefor, the mortgage is void as to attaching creditors, though there was no actual fraudulent intent, and it is equally void as to the trustee in bankruptcy of the mortgagor. Scandinavian-American Bank v. Sabin (C. C. A. 1915) 227 Fed. 579.

The security must be based upon a real, present, and sufficient consideration, and failing this, it creates no lien which will be preserved in the bankruptcy proceedings. In re Builders' Lumber Co. (D. C. 1906) 148 Fed. 244, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 449; In re Levine (D. C. 1912) 196 Fed. 589, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 481. See Stedman v. Bank of Monroe (1902) 117 Fed. 237, 54 C. C. A. 269, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 4. And if the circumstances suggest a fraudulent transaction or an attempt to give a preference, the burden may be on the mortgagee to show both his good faith in the matter and the existence of a good consideration. In re Sims (D. C. 1878) 19 N. B. R. 57, Fed. Cas. No. 12,889; In re Ewald v. Brainard (D. C. 1905) 135 Fed. 168, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 267. A chattel mortgage given by a bankrupt on payment of a present consideration in cash and also to cover an antecedent indebtedness is valid, in the absence of actual fraud shown, though made within four months prior to the filing of the petition, in so far as it secures alleged advances at the time it was made, which were used for the benefit of his creditors. In re Mahland (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 743. 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 81. If the alleged debt is purposely exaggerated for the sake of deceiving a creditor and hiding the property from execution, and the mortgagee knows the fact and records the mortgage with an affidavit that the entire amount is justly due, the whole transaction is so vitiated with fraud that the mortgage cannot be enforced in bankruptcy even to the extent of the sum really due. In re Hugill (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 616, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 686. But a renewal chattel mortgage given to a bankrupt's creditor may be good so far as the renewal debts were previously validly secured, although the renewal mortgage be otherwise invalid. In re Endlar (1911) 192 Fed. 762, 113 C. C. A. 48. As to the validity of a curative chattel mortgage, given in place of one technically defective, and for that reason not recorded, see In re International Mahogany Co. (1906) 147 Fed. 147, 78 C. C. A. 58, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 797.

7. —— Filing or recording.—Where the law of the state makes a chattel mortgage invalid as against the creditors of the mortgagor, if it is not filed or recorded, it is also invalid, for the same cause, as against his trustee in bankruptcy. Mattley v. Giesler (1911) 187 Fed. 970, 110 C. C. A. 90, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 116; In re Beckhaus

(1910) 177 Fed. 141, 100 C. C. A. 561, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 380; In re Southern Textile Co. (1909) 174 Fed. 523, 98 C. C. A. 305, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 172; Simmons v. Greer (1909) 174 Fed. 654, 98 C. C. A. 408, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 443; In re McDonald (D. C. 1908) 173 Fed. 99, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 51; In re Shiebler (D. C. 1908) 165 Fed. 363, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 309; In re Burlage Bros. (D. C. 1909) 169 Fed. 1006, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 410; In re Shaw (D. C. 1906) 146 Fed. 273, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 196; In re H. G. Andrae Co. (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 561, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 135; In re Jones (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 431, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 626; In re Tatem (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 519, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 426; In re Wright (D. C. 1900) 107 Fed. 428; In re Booth's Estate (D. C. 1900) 98 Fed. 975; In re Leigh (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 806; Goodrich v. Dore (1907) 194 Mass. 493, 80 N. E. 480; Clark v. Williams (1906) 190 Mass. 219, 76 N. E. 723. But where, as under the law in Wisconsin, the failure of a chattel mortgagee to file his mortgage or take possession of the property, without fraud or collusion, renders the mortgage voidable only as to subsequent creditors or those who acquire a lien, the taking possession by the holder of an unrecorded chattel mortgage, after the filing of a petition in bankruptcy against the mortgagor, validates the mortgage as against the general creditors, so that it cannot be attacked in their behalf by the trustee. In re Antigo Screen Door Co. (1903) 123 Fed. 249, 59 C. C. A. 248, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 359. And see In re Chadwick (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 674, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 528. It is stated to be the settled law in Georgia (which will be recognized by the courts of bankruptcy sitting within that state) that recording is not essential to the validity of a chattel mortgage, and under this rule, a chattel mortgage given to a bank to secure a present loan, made by the bank in good faith and without knowledge of the borrower's insolvency, although unrecorded, will create a valid lien as against the trustee in bankruptcy, provided that the withholding of the mortgage from record was not for any fraudulent purpose nor pursuant to any agreement between the parties. In re Josephson (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 404, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 423. Where the mortgage is recorded or filed, but not until a considerable time after its execution, or just before the commencement of the bankruptcy proceedings, this does not necessarily invalidate it. In re Roberts (D. C. 1915) 227 Fed. 177; In re Perrin (D. C. 1873) 7 N. B. R. 283, Fed. Cas. No. 10,995; In re Barman (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 125, Fed. Cas. No. 999. Except as to creditors of the bankrupt who became such between the time of the execution and the filing of the mortgage. In re Jacobson & Perrill (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 812, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 603; In re Harnden (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 175, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 507; Detroit Trust Co. v. Pontiac Sav. Bank (1912) 196 Fed. 29, 115 C. C. A. 663, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 821; Post v. Berry (1910) 175 Fed. 564, 99 C. C. A. 186, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 699; In re Wade (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 664, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 169; Mattley v. Wolfe (D. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 619, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 673; In re J. C. H. Claussen & Co. (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 300, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 34; In re Doran (D. C. 1906) 148 Fed. 327, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 799; In re Beede (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 441, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 697; In re Adams (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 188, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 415; In re Kauffman, 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 778. Where an unfiled chattel mortgage, void as to subsequent creditors under the state law, is set aside in bankruptcy proceedings against the mortgagor, the mortgagee will be entitled to share in the proceeds of the mortgaged property with the mortgagor's subsequent creditors. In re Huxoll (1912) 193 Fed. 851, 113 C. C. A. 637, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 579. But see In re Cannon (D. C. 1902) 121 Fed. 582, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 64, holding that both the mortgagee and the antecedent creditors must be excluded from the distribution. See Detroit Trust Co. v. Pontiac Sav. Bank (1915) 237 U. S. 186, 35 Sup. Ct. 509, 59 L. Ed. 907. Plaintiff, who held a chattel mortgage on the property of a bankrupt, delayed filing his mortgage. In the meantime others extended credit. There was a second chattel mortgage, which was expressly subject to that of plaintiff, and likewise there were general unsecured creditors whose debts were incurred before plaintiff's mortgage was given. Held, that subsequent creditors had priority; that plaintiff then had priority to the extent of his mortgage above the claim of such creditors; that next came the second mortgagee; and that after the bankrupt claimed his exemptions plaintiff and the other general creditors were entitled to the remainder. Hollenbeck v. Louden (1915) 152 N. W. 116, 35 S. D. 320.

Where, by a secret agreement between a bankrupt and one of his creditors, who held a chattel mortgage on the bankrupt's stock, the mortgage was withheld from record in order that the bankrupt might obtain credit to which he was not entitled, the mortgage was fraudulent and void, not only as to subsequent creditors, but as to all those interested in the bankrupt's estate. Fourth Nat. Bank of Macon v. Willingham (1914) 213 Fed. 219, 129 C. C. A. 563; In re Duggan (D. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 252, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 105; In re Hickerson (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 345, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 682; In re Noel (D. C. 1905) 137 Fed. 694, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 715; Texas Brewing Co. v. Mallette (1902) 28 Tex. Civ. App. 461, 67 S. W. 441; Deland v. Miller &

Rep. 291; Guarantee Title & Trust Co. v. First Nat. Bank (C. C. A. 1911) 185 Fed. 373, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 85; Fourth St. Nat. Bank v. Millbourne Mills Co.'s Trustee (1909) 172 Fed. 177, 96 C. C. A. 629, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 442. An agreement to give and deliver a pledge, made in good faith, to secure a present loan or consideration protected by state law, is valid. In re Harvey (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 340.

Where a coal company had contracted with a railway company to supply it with coal, and was unable to go on with its deliveries for lack of funds, and the railway company advanced money for this purpose, it was held that the transaction amounted to a pledge, in favor of the railway company, of such a quantity of coal thereafter to be mined, and as fast as mined, as the moneys so advanced would pay for, and that this pledge was enforceable as a preferential claim against the assets of the bankrupt estate of the coal company in the hands of its trustees, who assumed and continued the performance of the contract. Hurley v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. (1909) 213 U. S. 126, 29 Sup. Ct. 466, 53 L. Ed. 729, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 17, affirming Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hurley (1907) 153 Fed. 503, 82 C. C. A. 453, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 396. A pledge of insurance policies to secure an indebtedness by assigning the same to the creditor is not invalidated by their redelivery to the pledgor, especially where the assignment covers also renewals. J. M. Radford Grocery Co. v. Powell (C. C. A. 1915) 228 Fed. 1. Persons paying drafts drawn for the price of goods shipped to the drawer, under an agreement that the goods should be pledged as security therefor, have a lien as against the trustee in bankruptcy of the purchaser. Fletcher v. Morey (C. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 4,864.

11. Maritime liens.—Maritime liens are among the classes of securities preserved and protected by the bankruptcy law, if valid and free from fraud and preferential features. The Home (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 557, Fed. Cas. No. 6,657; The Loulie Dole (C. C. 1882) 14 Fed. 862; The Ironsides (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 7,069. Where a maritime lien exists, a court of bankruptcy will enforce such lien with the same effect as would a court of admiralty. In re New England Transp. Co. (D. C. 1914) 220 Fed. 203. And such a lien which, by the law of the admiralty, would take precedence over charges of an earlier date, may be accorded a similar preference in a court of bankruptcy. In re Scott (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 742, Fed. Cas. No. 12,517. A maritime lien, existing at the time when the petition in bankruptcy was filed, may be enforced by process in admiralty against the vessel after the filing of the petition, and while the trustee in bankruptcy, in such a case, has the right to appear and be heard, the court of bankruptcy will accept the determination of the admiralty court as to the validity and amount of the lien. The Ironsides (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 7,069. But compare In re People's Mail S. S. Co. (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 10,970. And a court of admiralty, which has obtained full jurisdiction over a vessel in a suit to enforce maritime liens thereon, before the institution of bankruptcy proceedings against the owner, is not deprived of such jurisdiction by the adjudication in bankruptcy, but will retain jurisdiction and determine all questions with respect to such liens. The Philomena (D. C. 1911) 200 Fed. 859; The Bethulia (D. C. 1911) 200 Fed. 862.

12. Attorney's lien for services.—The institution of proceedings in bankruptcy will not displace or invalidate an attorney's lien on securities belonging to the bankrupt in the possession of the attorney, or on funds collected for the bankrupt or a judgment recovered for him, or (as the law is in some states) upon his cause of action. In re Eurich's Ft. Hamilton Brewery (D. C. 1908) 158 Fed. 644, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 798; In re Baxter & Co. (1907) 154 Fed. 22, 83 C. C. A. 106, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 450; Kneeland v. Pennell (1907) 54 Misc. Rep. 43, 104 N. Y. Supp. 498; Clarke v. Clarke (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 18,279; Hartman v. Swiger (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 986; Schoenherr v. Van Meter (1915) 215 N. Y. 548, 109 N. E. 625. The fact that an attorney, in drawing up the bankrupt's schedule of assets, includes certain notes or securities in his possession does not estop him from claiming a lien thereon for his professional services. In re Brown (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 1,984. So when a suit in which the bankrupt is the plaintiff, and which is pending and undetermined at the time of the bankruptcy, is taken up and prosecuted by the trustee, an attorney's lien for compensation for services rendered in the suit prior to the adjudication in bankruptcy is preserved and is binding upon the trustee. In re Wilson (D. C. 1882) 12 Fed. 235. Attorneys for bankrupts were not entitled to a lien for fees for services rendered to the bankrupts subsequent to the institution of the proceedings in an ancillary suit by the receiver to recover moneys belonging to the estate. Musica v. Prentice (C. C. A. 1914) 211 Fed. 326, affirming decree In re A. Musica & Son (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 413. Appeal dismissed Lazarus, Michel & Lazarus v. Prentice (1914) 34 S. Ct. 851, 234 U. S. 263, 58 L. Ed. 1305.

13. Vendors' liens.—A vendor's lien on real property is not divested by the bankruptcy of the purchaser. In re

Lane Lumber Co. (1914) 217 Fed. 550, 133 C. C. A. 402; Ex parte Drewry (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 4,081; Deaton v. Southern Irr. Co. (Tex. Civ. App. 1912) 144 S. W. 294; Stewart v. Mercantile Co. (Tex. Civ. App. 1912) 147 S. W. 1166. Compare Bernard v. Lea (C. C. A. 1913) 210 Fed. 583. Where a trustee in bankruptcy seeks to quiet title to land the bankrupt had contracted to purchase, the vendor is entitled to a lien for the balance of the purchase price with the agreed interest. Whalen v. Wolford (1915) 150 P. 608, 96 Kan. 211. The holder of a note given for the price of land had a purchase-money lien on the land paramount to all other demands against it, and which was not affected by the purchaser's bankruptcy. Sheridan State Bank v. Rowell (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 529. A trustee in bankruptcy of a vendee held not a purchaser or incumbrancer in good faith and for value within Rev. Codes Idaho, §§ 3441, 3443, though entitled to the rights, remedies, and powers of a creditor holding a lien by legal or equitable proceedings under § 47a, ante, § 9631, as amended, and hence a vendor's lien for the unpaid portion of the price was valid against the vendee's trustee in bankruptcy though not recorded. Where vendors of real property had a valid lien against the bankrupt vendee for the unpaid portion of the price, such lien was not affected by the vendors' failure to commence suit to foreclose the lien prior to the institution of bankruptcy proceedings. In re Lane Lumber Co. (D. C. 1913) 210 Fed. 82.

Where a claimant had sold goods to the bankrupt, taking his notes as conditional payment, but retained possession of the property until after the adjudication in bankruptcy and after the notes fell due and remained unpaid, it was held that he had a lien for the unpaid portion of the price, which the trustee in bankruptcy must recognize. In re Manuel J. Portuondo Co. (D. C. 1905) 135 Fed. 592, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 337. A statute providing that property shall not be exempt from claims for its purchase money and for the seizure and sequestration of the property in a suit for the purchase money, does not give the seller of personalty a lien arising at the time of the sale, and such as to be protected by the bankruptcy act, but only a right to gain a lien by attachment, and a lien so acquired will be divested by the adjudication in bankruptcy of the purchaser within four months thereafter. In re Wilkes (D. C. 1902) 112 Fed. 975, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 574. A vendor's lien may also be reserved by the contract of the parties, and will be preserved in bankruptcy on the same terms and under the same conditions as other liens. In re Muncie Pulp Co. (1907) 151 Fed. 732, 81 C. C. A. 116, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 56; National Bank of Commerce v. Williams (1907) 159 Fed. 615, 86 C. C. A. 605, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 79.

A contract of conditional sale, in which the seller attempts to reserve for himself a lien, to secure payment of the price, on so much of the property as may remain in the buyer's hands and on the proceeds of what he has sold, is generally held invalid in bankruptcy, unless the contract is filed or recorded like a chattel mortgage. Pontiac Buggy Co. v. Skinner (D. C. 1908) 158 Fed. 858, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 206. Compare American Woodworking Machinery Co. v. Norment (C. C. A. 1908) 157 Fed. 801, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 679. But failure to file or record such a contract will not defeat the lien in bankruptcy, where all the creditors of the bankrupt had actual notice of the sale and its conditions, because in that case the trustee would represent no class as to which the condition would be void, actual notice removing the necessity of showing constructive notice. In re Bazemore (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 236, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 494. But in some states, a contract of this kind is valid only from the time of its record, as against creditors even with actual notice, and where this is the law, it would be of course be void as against the trustee in bankruptcy. In re Builders' Lumber Co. (D. C. 1906) 148 Fed. 244, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 449.

14. Statutory liens.—It is entirely within the power of a state legislature to create classes of liens by statutory enactment, in respect to property within the state, and such liens, being otherwise valid, will be protected in the bankruptcy courts. In re Burt (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 2,209; Moore v. Green (1906) 145 Fed. 472, 76 C. C. A. 242, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 648. But before a creditor can claim a lien given by a state statute on property of a bankrupt, he must perfect the same as required by such statute. In re Franklin (D. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 642, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 218. A lien which derives its existence wholly from a state statute, and the continuance of which is by such statute made dependent upon the commencement of a suit in a state court within a prescribed time, is not preserved as a valid incumbrance on the bankrupt's estate when no suit has been instituted in the state court, and no step taken in the bankruptcy proceedings equivalent to such suit, within the time limited by the law, the mere commencement of bankruptcy proceedings not being a sufficient compliance with the statute. In re Brunquest (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 2,055. Filing of petition in bankruptcy held equivalent to issuance of execution, within Act Pa. June 16, 1836, § 83 (P. L. 777), relative to payment of rent out of property taken on execution and subject to distress. In re W. R. Kuhn Co. (1915) 225 Fed. 13, 140 C. C. A. 473.

If the lien springs directly from the statute, or from the acts, transactions, or relations specified in the statute as the ground of it, and not from the steps prescribed by the statute as necessary to perfect or enforce it—such as filing or recording a claim in a state court, or beginning a suit—then it is not a lien "obtained through legal proceedings" in such sense as to be avoided by the subsequent bankruptcy of the debtor within four months, notwithstanding that some sort of legal proceedings may be necessary to perfect or secure it. Moore v. Green (1906) 145 Fed. 472, 76 C. C. A. 242, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 648; Tube City Min. & Mill Co. v. Otterson (Ariz. 1915) 146 Pac. 203. A lien on personal property to secure purchase money under Code Miss. 1906, § 3079, held a lien created by statute and not by judicial proceedings, where a suit was brought to enforce the same within four months prior to bankruptcy. Norris v. Trenholm (1913) 209 Fed. 827, 126 C. C. A. 551.

Among the kinds of liens thus preserved in the bankruptcy proceedings and following the property into the hands of the trustee, may be mentioned a lien given by statute for materials and supplies furnished to carry on the business of a manufacturing corporation. In re Bennett (1907) 153 Fed. 673, 82 C. C. A. 531, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 847; In re Starks-Ullman Saddlery Co. (1909) 171 Fed. 834, 96 C. C. A. 506, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 596. Also a lien given by statute for the protection of keepers of livery and boarding stables. In re Pratesi (D. C. 1903) 126 Fed. 588, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 319; In re Mero (D. C. 1904) 128 Fed. 630, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 171. And the lien of a state or municipality for taxes. City of Waco v. Bryan (1904) 127 Fed. 79, 62 C. C. A. 79, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 481.

15. Landlord's lien for rent.—A common-law or statutory lien of a landlord for rent is of a nature to be preserved and enforced in bankruptcy proceedings against the tenant. Courtney v. Fidelity Trust Co. (C. C. A. 1914) 219 Fed. 57, 134 C. C. A. 595; In re Floyd-Scott Co. (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 987; In re City Drug Store (D. C. 1913) 224 Fed. 132; In re J. Sapinsky & Sons (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 523; In re Southern Hardware & Supply Co. (D. C. 1913) 210 Fed. 381; I. Trager & Co. v. Cavaroc Co. (1909) 124 La. 611, 50 South. 598; Shapiro v. Thompson (1909) 160 Ala. 363, 49 South. 391. This includes rent reserved under a ground rent deed. Large v. Bosler (Pa. 1844) 2 Clark, 29. The trustee in bankruptcy cannot defeat the landlord's claim for rent to become due during the remainder of the term by vacating the premises and surrendering possession. Mitchell Storebuilding Co. v. Carroll (1912) 193 Fed. 616, 113 C. C. A. 484, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 894; Friedman v. Murphey (Ariz. 1912) 124 Pac. 654; In re J. Sapinsky & Sons (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 523, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 416; In re Meyer (D. C. 1912) 195 Fed. 653, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 17; In re Mitchell (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 87, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 324; Martin v. Orgain (1909) 174 Fed. 772, 98 C. C. A. 246, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 454; I. Trager Co. v. Cavaroc Co. (1909) 124 La. 611, 50 South. 598; Shapiro v. Thompson (1909) 160 Ala. 363, 49 South. 391; McLean v. Klein (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 8,884; Austin v. O'Reilly (C. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 329, Fed. Cas. No. 665; In re Trim (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 23, Fed. Cas. No. 14,174; Ex parte Morrow (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 665, Fed. Cas. No. 9,850; In re Wynne (C. C. 1868) 4 N. B. R. 23, Fed. Cas. No. 18,117; In re Hoagland (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 530, Fed. Cas. No. 6,545; In re Dunham (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 4,145; In re Eckenroth (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 4,265; Watson v. Lemar (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 17,287; Loudon v. Blandford, 56 Ga. 150. See In re Gallacher Coal Co. (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 183, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 766. A provision in a coal mine lease, giving the lessor a lien to secure all amounts that might become due under the lease, did not extend to a claim for damages caused by the bankruptcy of the lessee and consequent abandonment of the lease. In re Gallacher Coal Co. (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 183. The validity of a lien for rent reserved in an unrecorded lease, as against a trustee in bankruptcy, was governed by the local law. Dellinger v. Waite-Thresher Co. (C. C. A. 1915) 228 Fed. 506.

Where the lease had terminated, but the tenant remained in possession under a contract to purchase, and was so holding at the time of his bankruptcy, the relation of landlord and tenant no longer existed, and the landlord had no lien on the tenant's personal property for subsequently accruing rent on the nonperformance of the contract of purchase. Des Moines Nat. Bank v. Council Bluffs Sav. Bank (C. C. A. 1906) 150 Fed. 301, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 108. A landlord has no priority under a lease containing a covenant constituting the rent a lien or mortgage on all goods on the premises, where such lease is void as against the creditors of the tenant for not having been recorded as a chattel mortgage under the state laws. In re Dyke (D. C. 1873) 9 N. B. R. 430, Fed. Cas. No. 4,227. So, where the leasehold interest of the bankrupt tenant is sold by the trustee, the landlord has no lien on the proceeds of the sale for rent overdue at the time of the bankruptcy. In re Ruppel (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 778, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 233.

Where the state law is such that the landlord's lien attaches to goods and chattels on the demised premises when the same are levied on under an execution, it has been held that the landlord cannot claim a lien in the bankruptcy proceedings against the tenant by reason of the levy of an execution on the goods within four months prior to the bankruptcy proceedings, as the lien of the execution would be dissolved thereby. In re Whealton Restaurant Co. (D. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 921, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 294; In re Butler (C. C. 1871) 6 N. B. R. 501, Fed. Cas. No. 2,236; Appeal of Barnes (1874) 76 Pa. 50, 13 N. B. R. 543. But, on the other hand, if the court of bankruptcy takes possession of the chattels which would be liable to the lien and orders them sold, its process may be regarded as an equitable execution, for the purpose of preserving the landlord's lien, such a case being clearly within the equity of the statute. Longstreth v. Pennock (1874) 20 Wall. 575, 22 L. Ed. 451; In re Hoover (D. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 136, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 330. But a landlord to whom rent is due for the use of the premises by the bankrupt as a store will not be required to bring an action in a state court for the establishment of his lien, as provided by the state statute, as a precedent step to the assertion of his rights against the bankrupt's property in the hands of the trustee, but he may at once prove his debt and be heard in the court of bankruptcy in support of his claim to priority. In re Byrne (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 762, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 268. But where the statute gives the lien, not upon mere default in the payment of rent, but upon the levy of a distress warrant, the landlord will have no lien available in the bankruptcy proceedings unless he has levied his distraint before the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. In re Grovenstein-Bishop Co. (D. C. 1915) 223 Fed. 878; In re Potee Brick Co. (D. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 525; Morgan v. Campbell (1874) 22 Wall. 381, 22 L. Ed. 796; In re Joslyn (D. C. 1870) 3 N. B. R. 473, Fed. Cas. No. 7,550. But see In re Rose (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 265, Fed. Cas. No. 12,043. The fact that a distraint is necessary to perfect the inchoate lien does not make it a lien "obtained through legal proceedings" in such sense as to be dissolved by the adjudication in bankruptcy of the tenant within four months. In re West Side Paper Co. (1908) 162 Fed. 110, 89 C. C. A. 110, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 660 (reversing [D. C. 1908] 159 Fed. 241), 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 289; In re Potee Brick Co. (D. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 525; Henderson v. Mayer (1912) 225 U. S. 631, 32 Sup. Ct. 699, 56 L. Ed. 1233, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 387.

16. Mechanics' and laborers' liens.—The liens given by statute to mechanics, subcontractors, and materialmen are not dissolved by the adjudication in bankruptcy of the owner, contractor, or other person liable, but on the contrary are preserved and may be enforced against the trustee in bankruptcy. In re Grissler (1905) 136 Fed. 754, 69 C. C. A. 406, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 508; In re Cramond (D. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 966, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 22; Hastings v. Thompson (1911) 47 Pa. Super. Ct. 424; National Fire Proofing Co. v. Daly (1910) 77 N. J. Eq. 583, 78 Atl. 1135; Clifton v. Foster (1869) 103 Mass. 233, 4 Am. Rep. 539; In re Wilkinsburg Borough School Dist. (1912) 234 Pa. 373, 83 Atl. 410; Felin v. Conway (1906) 32 Pa. Super. Ct. 171; Grainger & Co. v. Riley (C. C. A. 1913) 201 Fed. 901, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 114; Hildreth Granite Co. v. City of Watervliet (1914) 161 App. Div. 420, 146 N. Y. Supp. 449. Persons furnishing material to a contractor for use in the construction of a building have no claim to the amount due the contractor in preference to his general creditors, where they are not entitled to a lien under the mechanics' lien laws. In re Fowble (D. C. 1914) 213 Fed. 676. This rule applies also to the statutory liens existing in some states for the wages of labor. In re Kerby-Dennis Co. (1899) 95 Fed. 116, 36 C. C. A. 677, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 402; In re Laird (1901) 109 Fed. 550, 48 C. C. A. 538, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1; In re Lowensohn (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 776, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 79. In the case last cited, it appeared that a clothier gave out garments in lots, to different tailors, to be made up by the piece and returned in whole or broken lots for examination, and to be paid for at stated intervals if approved, and the tailors employed other workmen in making up the goods. It was held that, as against the estate of the clothier in bankruptcy, the tailors had a lien upon all articles remaining in their hands, not only for the work done upon those articles, but also for work done upon any portions of the same specific lot which had been returned for examination and not yet paid for, and also that, where the whole of a particular lot had been returned for examination, this was not such an unqualified delivery of the goods as to deprive the workmen of their lien for labor bestowed on that lot, unless there had been such a delay in afterwards demanding payment as would amount to a waiver of the lien. Selling agents for a bankrupt manufacturing company on commission held not entitled to a lien for their services as "workmen, laborers or other persons performing labor" by contract, under Code W. Va. 1913, c. 75, § 7 (sec. 3848). In re Crawford Wollen Co. (D. C. 1915) 218 Fed. 951.

Liens of these kinds are not opposed to either the terms or the policy of the bankruptcy law, since they do not in any way prefer one creditor at the expense of another, nor diminish the general assets of the debtor otherwise applicable to the payment of his general creditors. In re Coulter (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 64, Fed. Cas. No. 3,276. On the bankruptcy of a construction company under contract with the city and the appointment of an ancillary receiver, held, that no liens could be filed, under Municipal Improvements Liens Act, against the fund due the construction company from the city. John Agnew Co. v. Board of Education of City of Paterson (1914) 89 A. 1046, decree affirmed (Err. & App. 1914) 90 A. 1135.

Although the local law requires that a mechanic's or materialman's lien shall be perfected by the filing or recording of a claim, or even the institution of a suit, within a limited time, yet this does not make it a lien "obtained through legal proceedings," in such sense that it will be dissolved by the subsequent adjudication in bankruptcy of the debtor within four months thereafter. In re West Norfolk Lumber Co. (D. C. 1902) 112 Fed. 759, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 648; In re Kerby-Dennis Co. (1899) 95 Fed. 116, 36 C. C. A. 677, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 402; Id. (D. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 818, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 218; In re Emslie (1900) 102 Fed. 291, 42 C. C. A. 350, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 126; In re Beck, 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 532; Holland v. Cunliff (1902) 96 Mo. App. 67, 69 S. W. 737.

If, by the local law, the lien of a mechanic or materialman arises from the doing of the work and attaches to the building from that time, upon the condition subsequent that the lien creditor shall file or record a certain notice within a given time, the lien is not affected or impaired by the commencement of bankruptcy proceedings between the doing of the work and the filing of the notice, but the notice may be filed, and the lien thereby perfected, after the adjudication in bankruptcy, provided it is done within the time prescribed by the state statute. In re Coulter (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 64, Fed. Cas. No. 3,276; In re McAllister-Newgord Co. (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 265, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 459; In re Grissler (1905) 136 Fed. 754, 69 C. C. A. 406, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 508; In re Georgia Handle Co. (1901) 109 Fed. 632, 48 C. C. A. 571, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 472; In re Lillington Lumber Co. (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 886, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 153; Crane Co. v. Smythe (1904) 94 App. Div. 53, 87 N. Y. Supp. 917; Sabin v. Connor (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 12,197; Clifton v. Foster (1869) 103 Mass. 233, 4 Am. Rep. 539, 3 N. B. R. 656; In re Dey (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 3,871; Church E. Gates & Co. v. Jno. F. Stevens Const. Co. (1915) 169 App. Div. 221, 154 N. Y. Supp. 605; Moreau Lumber Co. v. Johnson (N. D. 1914) 150 N. W. 563. But if the statute gives the lien only from the time of filing the notice, this must be done before the institution of the proceedings in bankruptcy, and if not, the trustee in bankruptcy will take the property free from any claims of mechanics or materialmen, and they cannot thereafter raise a lien by filing their notices. In re Roeber (1902) 121 Fed. 449, 57 C. C. A. 565, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 303; In re Cramond (D. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 966, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 22; Lazzari v. Havens (1902) 39 Misc. Rep. 255, 79 N. Y. Supp. 395; Garretson v. Clark (N. J. Eq. 1904) 57 Atl. 414; In re Sabin (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 142, Fed. Cas. No. 12,194; Hildreth Granite Co. v. City of Watervliet (1913) 82 Misc. Rep. 243, 143 N. Y. Supp. 867. Relative to the question of certain creditors of a bankrupt contractor being entitled to priority as having filed notices of lien within 30 days of completion of a building, the bankrupt's trustee is bound by the agreement of the contractor and building owner in extending time for the completion. Harrison v. Knaffl (Tenn. 1913) 161 S. W. 1003.

Where a bank advanced money to a building contractor to enable him to complete his contract, in consideration of an assignment of the amount due him from the owner, it was held that the bank could not claim a lien in the character of a laborer or a materialman. Though property is charged with valid liens of this kind, it cannot be withheld from the control of the court of bankruptcy, but must be turned over to the trustee to be administered for the benefit of all concerned, due recognition being given to the liens. In re Cramond (D. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 966, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 22. The lien claimants must discontinue any proceedings they may have begun in the state courts. In re Cook (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 3,151. Nor can the claimant insist upon his lien in the bankruptcy proceedings if he has previously waived it by accepting security for his debt, unless, indeed, the security proves to have been entirely void. In re Lynn Camp Coal Co. (D. C. 1908) 168 Fed. 998, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 60.

If the state law is such that the liens of mechanics relate back to the commencement of the building, there can be no priority among the mechanics in the bankruptcy proceedings, but they all stand upon the same footing and are to be paid in full or pro rata as the funds may suffice. In re Hoyt (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 6,805.

17. Liens acquired by legal proceedings before bankruptcy.—Under subdivision "c" of this section, if the enforcement of the lien will work a preference, it is not necessary that the creditor should have known, or had reasonable cause to believe, that the debtor was insolvent, or that the lien should have been sought and permitted in fraud of the act. In re Burrus (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 926, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 296. Under the construction given to this provision, an attaching creditor "obtains" his lien when proceedings instituted by him result in its attaching to an insolvent's estate in such manner as to effect a preference, and the debtor "permits" it when he allows a state of facts to exist rendering such lien possible, and cannot and does not in good faith resist it. In re Arnold (D. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 1001, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 180; In re Burrus (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 926, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 296.

But under the wider provisions of clause "f" of this section, all liens obtained through legal proceedings against an insolvent debtor, within four months prior to the filing of a petition in bankruptcy by or against him, are annulled by his adjudication, irrespective of the question whether the debtor suffered or permitted the lien to be obtained, and irrespective of any knowledge by the creditor of the debtor's insolvency. In re Richards (1899) 96 Fed. 935, 37 C. C. A. 634, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 145. But this provision of the statute does not apply to property set apart by the bankruptcy court as exempt. Burcell v. Goldstein (1912) 23 N. D. 257, 136 N. W. 243. It is strictly necessary, that the lien should have been created within four months before the filing of the petition and that the debtor should have been insolvent at the time it was created. Gay v. Ray (1907) 195 Mass. 8, 80 N. E. 693; W. S. Danby Millinery Co. v. Dogan (1907) 47 Tex. Civ. App. 323, 105 S. W. 337.

If a valid lien upon particular property or a fund has been acquired more than four months before bankruptcy proceedings, its enforcement within that time is not an illegal preference under the bankruptcy act. Wood v. Kerkeslager (1909) 225 Pa. 296, 74 Atl. 174. An order of a referee in bankruptcy, directing that a receiver take charge of and administer as part of the assets certain property on which a valid judicial lien had been obtained in state court more than four months prior to filing of petition in bankruptcy, held erroneous. In re Pilcher & Son (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 139. The time and manner in which a lien attaches to property through legal proceedings begun before bankruptcy depends wholly upon the law of the state in which the property is located. In re Schow (D. C. 1914) 213 Fed. 514. A money judgment rendered in a state court pending bankruptcy proceedings does not impose a lien on lands forming a part of the bankrupt's nonexempt property. Chambers v. Kirk (Okl. 1914) 139 P. 986.

This section does not apply to a lien obtained by a landlord by a levy of a distress warrant for past-due rent under a lease entered into in good faith and giving him the right to resort to that remedy. In re Robinson & Smith (1907) 154 Fed. 843, 83 C. C. A. 121, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 563; Schall v. Kinsella (1906) 117 La. 687, 42 South. 221. This provision of the statute applies to a seizure of property on a writ of replevin. In re Hymes Buggy & Implement Co. (D. C. 1904) 130 Fed. 977, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 477; In re Weinger, Bergman & Co. (D. C. 1913) 126 Fed. 875, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 424; In re Haynes (D. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 1001, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 715. And it applies to the lien secured by the filing of a creditor's bill. In re Potee Brick Co. (D. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 525. Where a receiver of a corporation appointed by a state court did not take possession nor qualify until less than four months prior to bankruptcy of the corporation, the bankruptcy court will control. Stacey v. McNicholas (Or. 1915) 148 P. 67. The taking possession of property of a corporation by a court through receivers in a creditor's suit constitutes a "levy," and the jurisdiction of the court over the property is not affected by bankruptcy proceedings against the corporation instituted more than four months thereafter. Blair v. Brailey (1915) 221 Fed. 1, 136 C. C. A. 524, certiorari denied (1915) 35 S. Ct. 938, 238 U. S. 634, 59 L. Ed. 1499. This section applies to a suit to reach and subject the surplus income of an estate held in trust for the debtor. In re Tiffany (D. C. 1914) 133 Fed. 799, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 310. And it applies to a suit to vacate a chattel mortgage, as being invalid against creditors. Dunn Salmon Co. v. Pillmore (1907) 55 Misc. Rep. 546, 106 N. Y. Supp. 88. A creditor who sues on behalf of all creditors to set aside a fraudulent conveyance by the debtor does not thereby acquire a lien, within the meaning of this section, providing that liens acquired within four months prior to the filing of the petition in bankruptcy are void. Blick v. Nimmo (1913) 88 A. 116, 121 Md. 139.

A mortgage creditor does not lose his lien by suing for and obtaining a decree of foreclosure and an advertisement of the property for sale, within four months prior to the debtor's bankruptcy, for the lien is not one created by the decree, but by the mortgage itself. In re Gerdes (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 318, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 346.

Where property of a bankrupt, at the time of the bankruptcy, is in the lawful custody of a state court under seizure in a pending suit begun within four months, the court of bankruptcy has power to stay such suit and to direct the property to be turned over for administration in the bankruptcy proceedings. Orr v. Tribble (D. C. 1907) 158 Fed. 897, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 849.

18. Lien of attachment.—The lien acquired by an attachment of the property of an insolvent debtor is a lien "obtained through legal proceedings," both on general principles and by the explicit description of it as such in the bankruptcy law, and is dissolved by the filing of a petition in bankruptcy by or against the debtor, if that occurs within four months after its date. Bear

v. Chase (C. C. A. 1900) 99 Fed. 920, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 746; In re Tune (C. C. 1902) 115 Fed. 906, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 285; Zeiber v. Hill (D. C. 1870) 8 N. B. R. 239, Fed. Cas. No. 18,206; Lindner v. Brock (1879) 40 Mich. 618; Howe v. Union Ins. Co. (1872) 42 Cal. 528; Tootle v. Sheldon (1880) 10 Neb. 44, 4 N. W. 358; Peck v. Jenness (1845) 16 N. H. 516, 43 Am. Dec. 573; Ingraham v. Phillips (Conn. 1803) 1 Day, 117; Reed v. Bullington (1873) 49 Miss. 223; Dyke v. Farmersville Mill & Light Co. (Tex. Civ. App. 1915) 175 S. W. 478.

No valid lien can be obtained by an attachment issued after the commencement of the bankruptcy proceedings. Phillips v. Helmbold (1875) 26 N. J. Eq. 202. Where an attachment was discharged on the giving of a surety undertaking for which defendant had deposited indemnifying securities, and defendant became a bankrupt within four months, the attachment will be vacated on motion by the bankrupt's trustee. C. Tennant Sons & Co. v. New Jersey Oil & Meal Co. (1912) 139 N. Y. S. 1023, 78 Misc. Rep. 497. The statute does not apply to cases where the property seized under the attachment is exempt property of the bankrupt. Robinson v. Wilson (1875) 15 Kan. 595, 22 Am. Rep. 272, 14 N. B. R. 565; Burcell v. Goldstein (1912) 23 N. D. 257, 136 N. W. 243; First International Bank v. Lee (N. D. 1913) 141 N. W. 716. Or where the person or corporation proceeded against in bankruptcy is not amenable to the bankruptcy law. In re New Amsterdam Motor Co. (D. C. 1910) 180 Fed. 943, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 757. In other cases, the effect of the statute in dissolving attachment liens is not confined to those issuing from courts of the United States, but applies as well to the process of the state courts. Wood v. Carr (1903) 73 S. W. 762, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 2144; Bank of Columbia v. Overstreet (Ky. 1873) 10 Bush, 148, 13 N. B. R. 157. And the appointment by the state court of a receiver of the property of the debtor, and a transfer to him of the attached property, prior to the appointment of the trustee in bankruptcy, does not so alter the rights of the parties as to entitle the attaching creditor to preference in the payment of any judgment he may obtain. Miller v. Bowles (1874) 58 N. Y. 253.

19. —— Effect of dissolution of attachment.—The effect of the dissolution of an attachment by the commencement of proceedings in bankruptcy is to release the attached property. Bank of Garrison v. Malley (1910) 103 Tex. 562, 131 S. W. 1064; Lehman, Stern & Co. v. E. Martin & Co. (1913) 132 La. 231, 61 South. 212. This result follows though no order of dissolution may be entered in the court where the action is pending. Sullivan v. Rabb (1888) 86 Ala. 433, 5 South. 746. See King v. Will J. Block Amusement Co. (1908) 193 N. Y. 608, 86 N. E. 1126. A purchaser of the property under the attachment has no standing to maintain a bill to clear his title or set aside conveyances. Hatfield v. Moller (C. C. 1880) 4 Fed. 717. Further proceedings in the suit in which the attachment was issued may be enjoined by the court of bankruptcy. In re Bellows (C. C. 1844) Fed. Cas. No. 1,278; C. Tennant Sons & Co. v. New Jersey Oil & Meal Co. (1912) 78 Misc. Rep. 497, 139 N. Y. Supp. 1023; Pope v. Title Guaranty & Surety Co. (1913) 152 Wis. 611, 140 N. W. 348; In re Federal Biscuit Co. (C. C. A. 1913) 203 Fed. 37, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 393. The attached property must be surrendered to the trustee in bankruptcy. New Orleans Acid & Fertilizer Co. v. Grissom (1902) 79 Miss. 662, 31 South. 336. But if the property attached has already been sold and the proceeds paid over to the attaching creditor, it is doubtful whether he can be made to refund them at the suit of the trustee. Botts v. Hammond (C. C. A. 1900) 99 Fed. 917, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 775.

20. Lien by garnishment.—The rendition of a judgment against the garnishee creates a lien on the fund or property, and even the service of the writ, before judgment, if it does not create a lien, at least raises a specific right to a lien and in either case the right or preference secured by the creditor is "obtained through legal proceedings," in such sense as to be dissolved by the subsequent adjudication of the debtor within four months. In re Ransford (C. C. A. 1912) 194 Fed. 658, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 78; Longley Bros. v. McCann (1909) 90 Ark. 252, 119 S. W. 268; Fairlamb v. Smedley Const. Co. (1908) 36 Pa. Super. Ct. 17; Hobbs v. Thompson (1909) 160 Ala. 360, 49 South. 787, 18 Ann. Cas. 381; Cavanaugh v. Fenley (1905) 94 Minn. 505, 103 N. W. 711, 110 Am. St. Rep. 382; Wilbur v. Wilson (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 17,637; Howe v. Union Ins. Co. (1872) 42 Cal. 528; In re Peck (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 43, Fed. Cas. No. 10,886. See London Guarantee & Accident Co. v. Mossness (1903) 108 Ill. App. 440. Where an attachment is sued out against a defendant within four months of his bankruptcy, and is dissolved, a garnishment in aid of such attachment falls with it. Hobson-Starnes Coal Co. v. Alabama Coal & Coke Co. (Ala. 1914) 66 So. 622. The effect is to vest in and transfer to the trustee in bankruptcy the indebtedness of the garnishee to the bankrupt, and he alone has the right to claim and collect it. Wright-Dalton-Bell-Anchor Store Co. v. Sanders (1910) 142 Mo. App. 50, 125 S. W. 517; Peck Lumber Co. v. Mitchell, 1 Nat. Bankr. News,

262. Where a garnisher has notice of a prior lien on the money which he attempts to garnish, such lien will prevail against his rights, and also against a trustee in bankruptcy to whom the money was subsequently transferred, the latter also having notice of the prior lien. Gardner v. Planters' Nat. Bank (1909) 54 Tex. Civ. App. 572, 118 S. W. 1146. No judgment can thereafter be properly rendered against the garnishee in the suit of the creditor. Wright-Dalton-Bell-Anchor Store Co. v. Sanders (1910) 142 Mo. App. 50, 125 S. W. 517. And if, nevertheless, a judgment is so rendered, it is void, and must be treated as a nullity whenever drawn in question whether directly or collaterally. In re Beals (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 530, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 639.

And the decree of the federal court adjudicating the principal debtor a bankrupt will constitute a complete defense to any attempt to enforce a judgment rendered by the state court against the garnishee. Hall v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. (1910) 88 Neb. 20, 128 N. W. 645.

21. Date of attachment or garnishment.—A lien by attachment or garnishment secured more than four months before the filing of the petition in bankruptcy is not dissolved by the adjudication, but remains a valid charge on the property or fund, which must be recognized and allowed in the bankruptcy proceedings. Doe v. Childress (1874) 21 Wall. 642, 22 L. Ed. 549; Crowe v. Reid (1876) 57 Ala. 281; Martin v. Lile (1879) 63 Ala. 406; Daggett v. Cook (1870) 37 Conn. 341; Carr v. Thomas (1882) 18 Fla. 736; Bowman v. Harding (1869) 56 Me. 559; Currier v. King (1908) 81 Vt. 285, 69 Atl. 873; Stickney & Babcock Coal Co. v. Goodwin (1901) 95 Me. 246, 49 Atl. 1039, 85 Am. St. Rep. 408; Francis Batchelder & Co. v. Wedge (1907) 80 Vt. 353, 67 Atl. 828; Bloch Bros. v. Moore (Ala. 1905) 39 South. 1025; Allen v. Ingalls (1911) 33 Nev. 281, 111 Pac. 34, 114 Pac. 758; In re Albrecht (D. C. 1877) 17 N. B. R. 287, Fed. Cas. No. 145; In re Maher (D. C. 1909) 169 Fed. 997, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 290; Holladay v. Hare (1886) 69 Cal. 515, 11 Pac. 28; Ressmeyer v. Norwood (1912) 117 Md. 320, 83 Atl. 347; In re J. L. Philips & Co. (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 628; Light v. Hunt (Ga. App. 1916) 87 S. E. 763; Pelton v. Sheridan (Or. 1914) 144 Pac. 410.

To constitute an attachment of personal property, the officer must actually take it into his custody and control, and the mere taking of a receipt for certain property, followed by a return that he had attached it more than four months before the bankruptcy proceedings, though it would estop the receiptor from denying that there was an attachment, is not enough to create a lien as against the trustee in bankruptcy. In re Ashley (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 237, Fed. Cas. No. 581. See Merceline State Bank v. Smith (1906) 122 Mo. App. 61, 98 S. W. 104; In re Schow (D. C. 1914) 213 Fed. 514.

Having a valid lien, accruing more than four months before the bankruptcy, the creditor will be entitled to prosecute his action to judgment, at least so far as to obtain a decree in rem against the specific property attached, and to proceed to a sale of the property thereunder. In re Snell (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 154, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 35; May v. Courtnay (1872) 47 Ala. 185; Hill v. Harding (1886) 116 Ill. 92, 4 N. E. 361; Gillett v. McCarthy (1880) 23 Kan. 668; Stoddard v. Locke (1870) 43 Vt. 574, 5 Am. Rep. 308, 9 N. B. R. 71; Bates v. Tappan (1868) 99 Mass. 376, 3 N. B. R. 647. See Ray v. Wight (1876) 119 Mass. 426, 20 Am. Rep. 333, 14 N. B. R. 563. If the proceeds are not sufficient to satisfy his whole claim against the debtor, he may come into the bankruptcy proceedings with a claim for the balance, after crediting the amount realized under the attachment. In re Knight, Yancey & Co. (D. C. 1911) 190 Fed. 893, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 787.

22. Judgment or execution.—A creditor holding an unsatisfied judgment, or an execution levied on property of the debtor, can claim no preference or advantage over other creditors if the debtor is adjudged bankrupt within four months after its date. The judgment may remain as a provable debt against the bankrupt, but its lien is lost. In re Harrington (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 1010, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 666; Severin v. Robinson (1869) 27 Ind. App. 55, 60 N. E. 966; L. Mohr & Sons v. Mattox (1904) 120 Ga. 962, 48 S. E. 410; Burgett v. Paxton (1881) 99 Ill. 288. Compare Doyle v. Hall (1899) 86 Ill. App. 163. As merging the original cause of action, as an obligation, as an evidence of debt, as the basis for a new suit, as evidence in the courts of another state, as subject to revival by scire facias, and in all other respects save only the question of lien, the judgment is not affected. See Pope v. Title Guaranty & Surety Co. (1913) 152 Wis. 611, 140 N. W. 348. Where a judgment is rendered within four months of an adjudication of bankruptcy, it becomes a lien on real estate which the trustee does not elect to take, in spite of subdivision "f" of this section, although not effective as against the trustee, or persons claiming under him, or the insolvent personally. McCarty v. Light (1913) 139 N. Y. S. 853, 155 App. Div. 36. CONTRA, People's Nat. Bank of Independence v. Maxson (Iowa, 1915) 150 N. W. 601. The provision of this section applies to judgment liens on exempt property. People's Nat. Bank of Independence v. Maxson (Iowa, 1915) 150 N. W. 601. Where a grantee takes subject to the lien of a judgment against the grantor, who is subsequently declared a bankrupt, the rights of judgment creditors to enforce their lien against the grantee cannot be effected by any action of the trustee in bankruptcy to which they are not parties, or by the fact that the trustee elects to confirm the sale and collect the balance of the purchase money. Keystone Brewing Co. v. Schermer (1913) 88 A. 657, 241 Pa. 361. Where a partner sold his interest in the firm to his partner more than four months before the bankruptcy of the latter, and in the meantime firm creditors recovered judgments against it, they could not enforce the same against the partnership property in the possession of the bankruptcy court, but were only entitled to establish their claims in such proceedings. In re Suprenant (D. C. 1914) 217 Fed. 470.

Questions as to whether a lien arises from the delivery of an execution to the sheriff before levy, or whether it covers property held under a contract of conditional sale, will be controlled by the law of the state, and the federal courts will be governed by the decisions of its highest tribunal. Reardon v. Rock Island Plow Co. (1909) 168 Fed. 654, 94 C. C. A. 118, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 26; Pence v. Cochran (D. C. 1881) 6 Fed. 269.

The bankruptcy act is held applicable in this particular, not only to judgments rendered in contested actions, but also to judgments by confession. In re Weeks (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 364, Fed. Cas. No. 17,350; Jordan v. Downey (1874) 40 Md. 401, 12 N. B. R. 427; Hoover v. Greenbaum (1874) 61 N. Y. 305. And to judgments entered by consent. In re Richard (D. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 633, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 506. A judgment imposing a fine for a violation of a state law or a municipal ordinance is not excepted. In re Green (D. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 870, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 665. A judgment lien on property for its purchase price obtained within four months prior to the bankruptcy of the debtor held not protected from avoidance by the adjudication by a state statute (2 Comp. St. N. J. 1910, p. 2245, § 10) providing that as against the debtor there should be no exemptions from such a judgment. In re O'Brien (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 129.

It is not the judgment which the bankruptcy law annuls or avoids, but the lien or preference springing from it, and hence it applies only to judgments of which a lien on property is a necessary result or concomitant. Metcalf v. Barker (1902) 187 U. S. 174, 23 Sup. Ct. 67, 47 L. Ed. 122; In re Kavanaugh (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 928, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 832. A decree foreclosing a mortgage, entered within four months before the bankruptcy of the mortgagor, is not a judgment creating a lien, such as to be rendered void by the adjudication, but merely a decree for the enforcement of a prior lien, which is not affected by the proceedings in bankruptcy. In re McKane (D. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 733. And so, a judgment dispossessing a tenant, rendered shortly before his bankruptcy, is not one which creates a lien on his estate. Plaut v. Gorham Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1909) 174 Fed. 852, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 42.

Where a judgment has been recovered, an execution issued and levied, and a sale of the property made thereunder, all within four months prior to the bankruptcy, the title of the execution purchaser is expressly saved by the statute in case he bought in good faith and for value and without notice, and as to the proceeds of the sale, they may perhaps be recovered by the trustee in bankruptcy if they yet remain in the hands of the sheriff, but not after they have been paid over to the judgment creditor, saving questions as to preference or fraud. Nelson v. Svea Pub. Co. (D. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 136; In re Bailey (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 214, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 289; In re Franks (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 635, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 634; In re Francis-Valentine Co. (D. C. 1899) 93 Fed. 953, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 188; In re Kenney (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 427, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 494; Dyson v. Harper (1875) 54 Ga. 282; Clement v. King (1910) 152 N. C. 456, 67 S. E. 1023. Compare In re Breslauer (D. C. 1903) 121 Fed. 910, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 33.

If a lien was gained by the recovery of a judgment, or by the levy of an execution thereunder, more than four months before the institution of bankruptcy proceedings, it is not dissolved or affected by the adjudication of the debtor, but the creditor is entitled to claim and enforce the advantages of his position. In re Bruce (D. C. 1907) 158 Fed. 123, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 770; United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Murphy (1908) 4 Ga. App. 13, 60 S. E. 831; Tucker v. Denico (1905) 27 R. I. 239, 61 Atl. 642; Meirkord v. Helming (1908) 139 Iowa, 437, 116 N. W. 785; Kaminsky v. Horrigan (1907) 2 Ga. App. 332, 58 S. E. 497; In re Fuller (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 115, Fed. Cas. No. 5,148; Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co. v. Rylee (1913) 139 Ga. 669, 78 S. E. 27; In re L'Hommedieu (1906) 146 Fed. 708, 77 C. C. A. 134, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 850; In re Zeis (D. C. 1916) 229 Fed. 472; Robinson & Co. v. Cosner (1915) 136 La. 595, 67 South. 468. Bankruptcy proceedings do not discharge vested equitable liens of judgment creditors acquired more than four months before the bankruptcy proceedings, on property fraudulently kept from creditors in such proceedings. Robinson v. Tischler (Fla. 1915) 67 So. 565. An execution levied on property under a judgment in a state court, recorded more than four months prior to filing of a voluntary petition in bankruptcy by the judgment debtor, held to give a valid preferential lien, in view of Code Ala. 1907, § 4157, though the judgment was not recorded in a county to which the property was removed. In re Pilcher & Son (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 139. Where personal property has been levied on under a mortgage fi. fa. more than four months prior to the adjudication of the defendant in execution as a bankrupt, and a forthcoming bond has been given, the seizure by the bankruptcy court of the property levied on will not release the surety on the forthcoming bond. Kinney v. Avery & Co. (Ga. App. 1914) 80 S. E. 663. The statute does not affect the lien of an execution levied within the four months, but founded on a judgment recovered two years before. In re Easley (D. C. 1898) 93 Fed. 419, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 715. A creditor who obtained a judgment against the debtor after the filing of a petition in bankruptcy by other creditors against the debtor, but nearly a year before the adjudication of bankruptcy, and who filed and recorded the judgment over four months before the adjudication, did not thereby obtain a preferred claim under the bankruptcy law. In re Octave Mining Co. (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 457.

If the lien of a judgment has been lost by lapse of time, and the judgment has become dormant by the laws of the state, there is no lien which is enforceable in bankruptcy. In re Cozart (D. C. 1870) 3 N. B. R. 508, Fed. Cas. No. 3,313. Where sale under execution issued more than four months before bankruptcy was repeatedly adjourned, and would not have been adjourned without consent of execution creditor, held, that it had become dormant as against trustee in bankruptcy. In re Zeis (D. C. 1916) 229 Fed. 472; In re Monarch Acetylene Co. (D. C. 1916) 229 Fed. 474. Where an execution has been returned "nulla bona," there is no lien enforceable in the bankruptcy proceedings. In re E. Matthews & Sons (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 127, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 570. But this is not necessarily the case because a sale under the execution has been enjoined by strangers. In re Randolph (D. C. 1911) 187 Fed. 186, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623. An execution levied upon property after the filing of a petition in bankruptcy, while not rendered void by subdivision "f" of this section, which applies only to liens prior to the filing of the petition, creates no lien which will be recognized by the bankruptcy court. In re Schow (D. C. 1914) 213 Fed. 514.

The validity of a levy which is valid under the state law, being a matter of record, is conclusive and cannot be enquired into in the bankruptcy proceedings, and if the recital of a levy is false, the officer may be held to answer for it to the proper party, but this does not entitle the trustee in bankruptcy to claim or hold the proceeds of sale. Armstrong v. Rickey (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 473, Fed. Cas. No. 546.

A judgment creditor of a bankrupt, having a lien on his real estate, has no better claim than any other creditor to the proceeds of a fire insurance policy taken by the bankrupt for his own benefit. In re Balsier (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 134.

23. Dissolution of liens by adjudication.—Although the filing of the petition in bankruptcy fixes the date from which the period of four months preceding is to be calculated, with reference to the dissolution of liens obtained within that period, it is not the filing of the petition which vacates the lien but the adjudication of the debtor as a bankrupt, and hence if an adjudication is denied and the petition dismissed, the lien remains in full force. Sullivan v. King (1903) 31 Tex. Civ. App. 432, 72 S. W. 207. And even where the adjudication is duly made, it does not affect valid liens on such of the debtor's property as is exempt by law. In re Snyder (D. C. 1914) 216 Fed. 989; First International Bank of Portal v. Lee (N. D. 1913) 141 N. W. 716; Jewett Bros v. Huffman (1905) 14 N. D. 110, 103 N. W. 408. Compare In re Forbes (1911) 186 Fed. 79, 108 C. C. A. 191, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 355; In re Tune (D. C. 1902) 115 Fed. 906, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 285.

It is within the jurisdiction of the court of bankruptcy to order that the rights obtained under the levy, attachment, or other lien shall be preserved for the benefit of the estate. But if no such order is made, the lien is dissolved without the necessity of any judgment to that effect on the part of the court of bankruptcy. Goodnough Mercantile & Stock Co. v. Galloway (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 940, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 803; Thompson v. Fairbanks (1903) 75 Vt. 361, 56 Atl. 11, 104 Am. St. Rep. 899; Goodnough Mercantile Co. v. Galloway (1906) 48 Or. 239, 84 Pac. 1049; Watschke v. Thompson (1901) 85 Minn. 105, 88 N. W. 263. But it is entirely proper practice for the trustee in bankruptcy to apply to the state court where the proceeding is pending for an order discharging the attachment or other lien. Hardt v. Schuylkill Plush & Silk Co. (1902) 69 App. Div. 90, 74 N. Y. Supp. 549; Kent v. Downing (1871) 44 Ga. 116, 10 N. B. R. 538; Louden v. King (1873) 50 Ga. 302; King v. Loudon (1874) 53 Ga. 64; Dickerson v. Spaulding (N. Y. 1876) 7 Hun, 288, 15 N. B. R. 313. And for this purpose he need not make himself formally a party of record. Louden v. King (1873) 50 Ga. 302; King v. Loudon (1874) 53 Ga. 64. But laches of the trustee in failing to move for the dissolution of an attachment which is avoided by the adjudication in bankruptcy will not validate it. Hardt v. Schuylkill Plush & Silk Co. (1902) 69 App. Div. 90, 74 N. Y. Supp. 549. The rights of the parties are not altered by the fact that a receiver of the debtor's estate had been appointed by the state court and the attached property turned over to him. Miller v. Bowles (1874) 58 N. Y. 253. But if the property has already been sold under the process of the state court, the title of the purchaser is not impeachable in the bankruptcy proceedings, if he bought in good faith, for value, and without notice. Zahm v. Fry (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 18,198.

This section relates merely to levies, judgments, attachments, and liens acquired through legal proceedings, and not to contractual or quasi contractual liens. Gray v. Arnot (N. D. 1915) 154 N. W. 268. The statute does not operate upon and dissolve liens obtained by execution, levy, attachment, or other process, as against all the world, but only as against the trustee in bankruptcy and those claiming under him. McKenney v. Cheney (1903) 118 Ga. 387, 45 S. E. 433; Frazee v. Nelson (1901) 179 Mass. 456, 61 N. E. 40, 88 Am. St. Rep. 391. And a court will not presume the appointment and qualification of a trustee, merely because the bankruptcy act provides for such appointment, when the question is as to the discharge of a lien alleged to be invalidated by the adjudication of the debtor. Schoenthaler v. Rosskam (1903) 107 Ill. App. 427. In effect, this statutory dissolution of liens is for the benefit of creditors, not for the benefit of the bankrupt, and as to him all such liens remain in force notwithstanding his adjudication in bankruptcy, as, for instance with reference to his exempt property or property which the trustee disclaims or which never comes into his possession. Miller v. Barto (1910) 247 Ill. 104, 93 N. E. 140; Rochester Lumber Co. v. Locke (1903) 72 N. H. 22, 54 Atl. 705. And although a sale of land on execution within four months before the defendant's adjudication in bankruptcy, may be avoided by his trustee, its nullity cannot be pleaded by a former grantee of the same property. Hutchins v. Cantu (Tex. Civ. App. 1902) 66 S. W. 138. Nor does the adjudication of the principal debtor release the sureties on a replevin bond or forthcoming bond. Kaminsky v. Horrigan (1907) 2 Ga. App. 332, 58 S. E. 497; Ehrlich v. Sklamberg (Mun. Ct. 1909) 116 N. Y. Supp. 602; In re Federal Biscuit Co. (1914) 214 Fed. 221, 130 C. C. A. 635. Compare Kaiser v. Richardson (N. Y. 1874) 5 Daly, 301. After nullification of the lien of attachment by the filing of a petition in bankruptcy, the sheriff holds merely as an involuntary bailee for the benefit of the trustee. Gray v. Arnot (N. D. 1915) 154 N. W. 268.

24. Insolvency of debtor.—Reasonable cause to believe a person to be insolvent means knowledge of a state of facts which would put a prudent man upon inquiry as to the condition of the person with whom he is dealing. Rison v. Knapp (D. C. 1868) 4 N. B. R. 349, Fed. Cas. No. 11,861; In re McDonough (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 221, Fed. Cas. No. 8,775; Webb v. Sachs (D. C. 1877) 15 N. B. R. 168, Fed. Cas. No. 17,325; Scammon v. Cole (C. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 257, Fed. Cas. No. 12,432. Reasonable cause to believe the debtor insolvent may be imputed to a creditor when he knows that the debtor cannot pay his debts in the ordinary course of his business. Wilson v. Brinkman (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 468, Fed. Cas. No. 17,794; In re Forsyth (D. C. 1873) 7 N. B. R. 174, Fed. Cas. No. 4,948. Or that the debtor has been embarrassed for two years, had made small payments on overdue debts, has unavailingly applied for extensions of time, has been pressed by his creditors, and has declined to give a mortgage on the ground that it would injure his credit. Hall v. Wager (C. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 181, Fed. Cas. No. 5,951. So the debtor's repeated failure to fulfill promises in regard to paying the claim, the creditor also having knowledge of other debts, charges him with notice of insolvency, or reasonable cause for belief. In re Armstrong (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 275, Fed. Cas. No. 539. And so also, where creditors have to sue for the collection of accounts long overdue, and the debtor submits to suits on claims against which he has no defense. Stranahan v. Gregory (D. C. 1871) 4 N. B. R. 427, Fed. Cas. No. 13,522; Mayer v. Hermann (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 9,344; Dunning v. Perkins (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 4,180. Again, where a creditor takes a check, the fact that payment of it is refused puts him upon inquiry. Warren v. Tenth Nat. Bank (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 479, Fed. Cas. No. 17,200. And it is said that the existence of a financial crisis or panic constitutes of itself reasonable cause to believe persons otherwise in doubtful circumstances to be insolvent. In re Clarke (D. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 21, Fed. Cas. No. 2,843.

Under the definition of insolvency as accepted in the application of former bankruptcy laws (inability to meet debts as they mature in the ordinary course of trade), it was held that a creditor who has knowledge of any transactions by the debtor out of the ordinary course of trade is put upon inquiry as to his solvency. Scammon v. Hobson (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 12,434. And the giving of a mortgage to secure prior advances or a pre-existing debt is out of the usual course of business, and is therefore a circumstance to put the creditor upon inquiry. In re Holland (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 6,603; Wager v. Hall (1872) 16 Wall. 584, 21 L. Ed. 504. But compare Ex parte Packard (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 10,650; McLean v. Lafayette Bank (C. C. 1846) Fed. Cas. No. 8,888. But on the other hand, the creditor is not to be charged with knowledge of his debtor's insolvency, or reasonable cause to believe in it, merely from the fact that he knows that the debtor is embarrassed in carrying on his business for want of means. In re Wynne (C. C. 1868) 4 N. B. R. 23, Fed. Cas. No. 18,117. Or that the debtor was short of funds on the particular occasion, and wished the creditor to take a note and mortgage in substitution for a check on a bank. Collins v. Bell (D. C. 1870) 3 N. B. R. 587, Fed. Cas. No. 3,010. So the fact that a person doing a large business obtains renewals of his commercial paper, or under special circumstances pays a large discount, is not notice of insolvency where it appears that such commercial paper was selling at equal rates in the market. Golson v. Niehoff (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 56, Fed. Cas. No. 5,524. And in a rural community, the mere non-payment of a note at maturity is not sufficient evidence of insolvency to put a creditor on inquiry. Shaffer v. Fritchery (D. C. 1871) 4 N. B. R. 548, Fed. Cas. No. 12,697.

As to the meaning of the phrase "contemplation of bankruptcy," some of the decisions under the former statutes applied the strict rule that this could only mean the debtor's contemplation of the commission of an act denounced by the statute as an act of bankruptcy, or his contemplation of a decree adjudicating him a bankrupt either on his own petition or in involuntary proceedings. Buckingham v. McLean (1851) 13 How. 151, 14 L. Ed. 91; In re Craft (C. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 111, Fed. Cas. No. 3,317; In re Goldschmidt (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 164, Fed. Cas. No. 5,520. But other decisions held that the phrase means contemplation on the debtor's part of a state of insolvency such as to involve a thorough breaking up of his business, and hence something more than insolvency in the sense of mere inability to pay debts promptly and as they mature. Everett v. Stone (C. C. 1844) Fed. Cas. No. 4,577; McLean v. Lafayette Bank (C. C. 1846) Fed. Cas. No. 8,888; Hutchins v. Taylor (C. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 6,953; In re Dibblee (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 617, Fed. Cas. No. 3,884; Atkinson v. Farmers' Bank (D. C. 1844) Fed. Cas. No. 609. Payments made or securities given by a party who knew himself to be insolvent, were not considered as being "in contemplation of bankruptcy" if, at the time, he fully expected to continue his business and retrieve his losses. Atkinson v. Farmers' Bank (D. C. 1844) Fed. Cas. No. 609.

Insolvency of persons against whom liens specified in subdivision "f" of this section are obtained, held indispensable to their avoidance under that section, and to the jurisdiction of the court of bankruptcy to order conveyance or make other orders to that effect thereunder. Stone-Ordean-Wells Co. v. Mark (C. C. A. 1915) 227 Fed. 975. To satisfy the statute, it is necessary that the debtor should have been insolvent at the time the lien attached or was obtained. If he was then solvent, the lien is not dissolved by his subsequent adjudication in bankruptcy, though it be within four months. Newberry Shoe Co. v. Collier (1910) 111 Va. 288, 68 S. E. 974; Jackson v. Valley Tie & Lumber Co. (1908) 108 Va. 714, 62 S. E. 964; D. C. Wise Coal Co. v. Columbia Zinc & Lead Co. (1911) 157 Mo. App. 315, 138 S. W. 67; W. S. Danby Millinery Co. v. Dogan (1907) 47 Tex. Civ. App. 323, 105 S. W. 337. And his insolvency must be alleged in any proceeding to avoid or discharge the lien, and proved by satisfactory evidence. Simpson v. Van Etten (C. C. 1901) 108 Fed. 199, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 204; Hardt v. Schuylkill Plush & Silk Co. (1902) 69 App. Div. 90, 74 N. Y. Supp. 549; Kellogg-Mackay-Cameron Co. v. William Schmidt Baking Co. (1902) 101 Ill. App. 209; In re Crafts-Riordon Shoe Co. (D. C. 1910) 185 Fed. 931, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 449.

25. Date of attaching of lien as affecting dissolution.—After the filing of a petition in bankruptcy no creditor can gain an advantage over others by fastening any kind of a lien upon property of the bankrupt. Cox v. State Bank (C. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 654, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 112; In re Engle (D. C. 1901) 105 Fed. 893, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 372; Morgan v. Campbell (1874) 22 Wall. 381, 22 L. Ed. 796; Kinmouth v. Braeutigam (1902) 63 N. J. Eq. 103, 52 Atl. 226.

Certain classes of liens acquired within four months prior to the filing of the petition are expressly avoided by the statute upon the subsequent adjudication of the debtor, such as the lien of an execution and levy on personal property. Rothermel v. Moyer (1904) 24 Pa. Super. Ct. 325. And the lien acquired by an attachment. In re Federal Biscuit Co. (1914) 214 Fed. 221, 130 C. C. A. 635; Ernest Wolff Mfg. Co. v. Battreal Shoe Co. (Mo. App. 1915) 180 S. W. 396. And the lien of a distress warrant. In re D. H. Dougherty Co. (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 480, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 457; In re United Motor Chicago Co. (1915) 220 Fed. 772, 136 C. C. A. 378. And the statutory lien acquired by proceedings against a manufacturing corporation by a laborer in its employment. In re Monroe Lumber Co. (D. C. 1910) 186 Fed. 252, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 371.

Where four months or more have intervened between the attaching of the lien and the institution of the bankruptcy proceedings, the lien is not annulled but preserved. In re Louisell Lumber Co. (1913) 209 Fed. 784, 126 C. C. A. 508. This is the case in regard to the lien of an attachment. Hurlbutt v. Brown (1903) 72 N. H. 235, 55 Atl. 1046; Tucker v. Denico (1905) 26 R. I. 560, 59 Atl. 920. And the lien of a garnishment. Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Dasher (Ga. App. 1915) 84 S. E. 482. And the lien acquired by the rendition and entry of a final judgment. In re Harrington (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 1010; Hillyer v. Le Roy (1904) 179 N. Y. 369, 72 N. E. 237, 103 Am. St. Rep. 919. And the lien obtained by levy of an execution on land. Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co. v. Rylee (1913) 139 Ga. 669, 78 S. E. 27. Or by the docketing of a judgment in the county where the debtor's land lies. In re Dunavant (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 542, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 41. As applied to judgments, the provisions of this section relate only to the lien of the judgment, and do not render unenforceable against a surety a judgment rendered against a bankrupt principal within four months before the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. Pope v. Title Guaranty & Surety Co. (1913) 152 Wis. 611, 140 N. W. 348.

A deed takes effect from its delivery, if there are no restrictions upon the right of the grantee to record it, and it will give a title available as against a trustee in bankruptcy if delivered more than four months before the beginning of the bankruptcy proceedings, though not recorded until later. National Bank of Fredericksburg v. Conway (C. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 513, Fed. Cas. No. 10,037. The lien of an attachment is not dissolved by the bankruptcy of the debtor if the writ was issued more than four months before the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, though it was amended within that period to cure a formal defect. Harrington v. Fire Ass'n (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 6,106.

An attachment made on February 8th will be dissolved by an adjudication in bankruptcy on a petition filed on June 8th following, and the time of day when the attachment was made or the petition filed is immaterial. In re Warner (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 987, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 519; Jones v. Stevens (1901) 94 Me. 582, 48 Atl. 170. The maxim that the law does not take account of fractions of a day has no application to transactions in bankruptcy, as the time thereof is made certain by record. Westbrook Mfg. Co. v. Grant (1872) 60 Me. 88, 11 Am. Rep. 181.

A creditor who brings suit against his debtor and secures the issue and levy of an attachment, more than four months before the filing of a petition in bankruptcy against the debtor, acquires a lien which will not be dissolved by the adjudication in bankruptcy, notwithstanding the fact that the judgment in the action, which enforces the lien, was rendered within the four-months period. Metcalf v. Barker (1902) 187 U. S. 165, 23 Sup. Ct. 67, 47 L. Ed. 122, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 36; In re Crafts-Riordon Shoe Co. (D. C. 1910) 185 Fed. 931, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 449; In re United States Graphite Co. (D. C. 1908) 161 Fed. 583, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 573; In re Beaver Coal Co. (1902) 113 Fed. 889, 51 C. C. A. 519, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 542; In re Blair (D. C. 1901) 108 Fed. 529, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 206; Jackson v. Valley Tie & Lumber Co. (1908) 108 Va. 714, 62 S. E. 964; Pepperdine v. Bank of Seymour (1903) 100 Mo. App. 387, 73 S. W. 890; Wakeman v. Throckmorton (1902) 74 Conn. 616, 51 Atl. 554; Hurlbutt v. Brown (1903) 72 N. H. 235, 55 Atl. 1046; Kittredge v. Warren (1844) 14 N. H. 509; Rowe v. Page (1874) 54 N. H. 190, 13 N. B. R. 366; Hudson v. Adams (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 102, Fed. Cas. No. 6,832. CONTRA, see In re Johnson (D. C. 1901) 108 Fed. 373, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 202; Duffield v. Horton (N. Y. 1877) 10 Hun, 140, 16 N. B. R. 59; In re Cook (C. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 3,152.

The equitable lien arising from a creditor's bill to set aside a fraudulent conveyance, having its date from the filing of the bill, and not from the date of the decree rendered in the suit, is not avoided by the bankruptcy proceedings, where the bill is filed more than four months prior to the petition in bankruptcy, though the decree is rendered within such four months. Metcalf v. Barker (1902) 187 U. S. 165, 23 Sup. Ct. 67, 47 L. Ed. 122, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 36; Doyle v. Heath (1900) 22 R. I. 213, 47 Atl. 213; Snyder v. Smith (1904) 185 Mass. 58, 69 N. E. 1089; Schoenthaler v. Rosskam (1903) 107 Ill. App. 427; Taylor v. Taylor (1900) 59 N. J. Eq. 86, 45 Atl. 440; Iselin v. Goldstein (1901) 35 Misc. Rep. 489, 71 N. Y. Supp. 1069; Ninth Nat. Bank v. Moses (1903) 39 Misc. Rep. 664, 80 N. Y. Supp. 617; In re O'Connor (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 943. Compare In re Lesser (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 433, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 815. So, also, the title of a receiver appointed in proceedings supplementary to execution relates back to the date of the service of the order, and will be superior to that of the trustee in bankruptcy, if the order was served more than four months before the beginning of the bankruptcy proceedings, regardless of the fact that the receiver was appointed within that period. Arnold v. Greene Gold-Silver Co. (1910) 68 Misc. Rep. 449, 125 N. Y. Supp. 29; Wrede v. Clark (1909) 132 App. Div. 293, 117 N. Y. Supp. 5; Smith v. Meisenheimer (1898) 104 Ky. 753, 47 S. W. 1087. But see In re O'Connor (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 943.

Where the law of the state gives a lien to an award of arbitrators, it is valid against the trustee in bankruptcy if the award was made more than four months before the bankruptcy, though the judgment confirming it was obtained within that time. In re Koslowski (D. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 823, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 723. The lien of a chattel mortgage depends upon the date of its execution, and not upon the subsequent act of the mortgagee in taking possession of the goods. Thompson v. Fairbanks (1903) 75 Vt. 361, 56 Atl. 11, 104 Am. St. Rep. 899. But see Bank of Leavenworth v. Hunt (1870) 11 Wall. 391, 20 L. Ed. 190. But the merely provisional or inchoate lien acquired by the service of garnishment process, which under the law of the state can be made effective only through the recovery of a judgment and a levy or demand thereunder, is not of a kind to be preserved in the bankruptcy proceedings where the judgment was given within the four months, irrespective of the time when the process was served. In re Lesser (D. C. 1901) 108 Fed. 201, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 326. But compare Albany & Northern Ry. Co. v. Dunlap Hardware Co. (1910) 8 Ga. App. 171, 68 S. E. 868.

Although the statute speaks of the dissolution of liens obtained through a suit or proceeding which was "begun" against a person within four months before his bankruptcy, this does not necessarily refer to the beginning of the suit or action itself, but to the beginning of that part or branch of the proceedings whose special object is to secure a lien on property. In re Higgins (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 775, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 364. It is competent for a state to provide by law that the lien of a judgment, in a certain class of cases, shall relate back to the institution of the suit, and the bankruptcy law will preserve such lien. Voyles v. Parker (C. C. 1880) 4 Fed. 210. The revival of a judgment by amicable scire facias and confession, though within four months thereafter the debtor is adjudged bankrupt, is not in fraud of the bankruptcy law. Kemmerer v. Tool (1876) 81 Pa. 467, 12 N. B. R. 334. The lien obtained by the levy of an execution on property newly purchased or acquired by the debtor, within four months prior to the bankruptcy, will be dissolved by the adjudication, though the judgment was entered more than four months previously. In re Darwin (1902) 117 Fed. 407, 54 C. C. A. 581, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 703; In re Spacht (1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 238. And so will the lien obtained on land in another county within the four-months period, by the transfer to that county of an older judgment. Mencke v. Rosenberg (1902) 202 Pa. 131, 51 Atl. 767, 90 Am. St. Rep. 618. So, although a judgment may have been standing for several years, yet if garnishment proceedings founded on it were begun within four months before the bankruptcy of the debtor, the lien thereby acquired will be dissolved. Armour Packing Co. v. Wynn (1904) 119 Ga. 683, 46 S. E. 865. And so of an attachment sued out within the prescribed period, no matter how long the original action may have been pending. In re Higgins (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 775, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 364, disapproving In re De Lue (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 510, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 387. Where a creditor holding a note with warrant of attorney to confess judgment enters up judgment thereon and levies on the debtor's property, the latter being then insolvent, and within four months thereafter a petition in bankruptcy is filed by or against the debtor, the lien is dissolved, notwithstanding the fact that the note was given more than four months before and at a time when the debtor was solvent. In re Richards (1899) 96 Fed. 935, 37 C. C. A. 634, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 145; In re Rhoads (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 399, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 380; In re Engle (D. C. 1901) 105 Fed. 893, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 372; Ferguson v. Greth (1900) 195 Pa. 272, 45 Atl. 735, 78 Am. St. Rep. 812.

26. Rights of bona fide purchasers.—An adjudication in bankruptcy does not affect the title acquired by a bona fide purchaser at a sale under a levy, judgment, attachment, or other lien, provided he bought without notice of the debtor's insolvency or of his intention to prefer a creditor or work a fraud upon the act, and without reasonable cause for inquiry into the circumstances in this respect. In re Alabama Coal & Coke Co. (D. C. 1913) 210 Fed. 940; Dreyer v. Kicklighter (D. C. 1916) 228 Fed. 744; In re Kenney (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 427, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 494; State Bank v. Munroe (1902) 109 Ill. App. 34; Jones v. Springer (1909) 15 N. Mex. 98, 103 Pac. 265. Where a bank took an assignment of certain accounts receivable from the bankrupt to secure a present loan, within four months prior to bankruptcy, in good faith and without notice or reasonable cause for inquiry, it was entitled to the benefit of its lien as against a subsequent attachment sought to be preserved for the benefit of the estate. In re Alabama Coal & Coke Co. (D. C. 1913) 210 Fed. 940.

The provision of this section saving the rights of bona fide purchasers is intended only for their benefit, and affords no protection to the creditor in the execution or attachment. In re Kaupisch Creamery Co. (D. C. 1901) 107 Fed. 93, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 790. Nor to one acting in concert or collusion with the creditor. In re Goldberg (D. C. 1903) 121 Fed. 578, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 97. Nor to the officer making the sale or who holds the proceeds thereof. Jones v. Stevens (1901) 94 Me. 582, 48 Atl. 170; In re Kenney (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 427, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 494.

Surrounding circumstances, leading an ordinarily prudent business man to conclude that execution debtor is insolvent, will deprive purchaser at execution sale of status of bona fide purchaser. Dreyer v. Kicklighter (D. C. 1916) 228 Fed. 744. A person is not to be considered a bona fide purchaser, who, in addition to knowledge of suspicious circumstances, is aware that he is purchasing a large and valuable amount of property at a grossly inadequate consideration. In re Goldberg (D. C. 1903) 121 Fed. 578, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 97. Where, a few days before an execution sale, one who became the purchaser was handed a copy of the debtor's assignment for the benefit of creditors, and the debtor was present at the sale and publicly announced that he was insolvent, and the assignee exhibited the assignment and forbade the sale, the purchaser had reasonable cause to believe that the sale would not stand, and he cannot hold his purchase against the trustee in bankruptcy of the debtor. Brown v. Case (1901) 180 Mass. 45, 61 N. E. 279. And the same rule has been applied against the purchaser at an execution sale who merely had heard rumors that the debtor had already been adjudged bankrupt, this being sufficient to put him upon inquiry. Wallace v. Camp (1901) 200 Pa. 220, 49 Atl. 942.

27. Rights of trustee as to property affected by liens.—Where the lien of an attachment, execution, or other writ is dissolved by the adjudication of the debtor as a bankrupt within four months, it is the right and duty of the trustee in bankruptcy to demand and recover the property affected from the possession of the officer holding it under the writ. In re Walsh Bros. (D. C. 1908) 159 Fed. 560, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 472; In re Francis-Valentine Co. (C. C. A. 1899) 94 Fed. 793, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 522; In re Fellerath (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 121; In re Richards (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 258, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 518; In re Francis-Valentine Co. (D. C. 1899) 93 Fed. 953, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 188; In re Benedict (1902) 37 Misc. Rep. 230, 75 N. Y. Supp. 165; Smith v. Godwin (1907) 145 N. C. 242, 58 S. E. 1089; Ansonia Brass & Copper Co. v. Pratt (N. Y. 1877) 10 Hun, 443, 16 N. B. R. 170. And the pendency of an action of replevin in a state court against the officer by a stranger claiming ownership of the property is no justification for his refusal to surrender it. In re Francis-Valentine Co. (C. C. A. 1899) 94 Fed. 793, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 522. And the trustee has sufficient title to maintain trover against the officer, after demand and refusal, and is not required to apply first to the court from which the process issued for an order for its delivery to him. Cooley v. Cook (1878) 125 Mass. 406. And the same course may be pursued against one who holds attached property under a receipt to the sheriff or a forthcoming bond. Parks v. Sheldon (1870) 36 Conn. 466, 4 Am. Rep. 95; Towle v. Robinson (1844) 15 N. H. 408. Even if the property is in the possession of a receiver appointed by a state court, it should be surrendered to the trustee in bankruptcy, on his petition to the state court for an order to that effect. In re English (1904) 127 Fed. 940, 62 C. C. A. 572, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 674; Ballin v. Ferst (1874) 55 Ga. 546; Rodgers v. Forbes (1902) 23 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 438. It is proper, but not necessary, for the trustee formally to move the state court for the discharge or vacating of the judgment or other lien in question. Thompson v. Ragan (1904) 117 Ky. 577, 78 S. W. 485; Gage v. Bates Machine Co. (1902) 71 N. H. 384, 52 Atl. 457.

After the trustee in bankruptcy has asserted, under the sanction of the court with the assent of a debtor to the bankrupt estate, the power to take legal possession of the debtor's stock which he had agreed to hold as security for the debt, it is too late for the creditors of the bankrupt under an agreement with such debtor thereafter made to raise the question whether the original agreement between the debtor and the bankrupt was ineffective to operate as a lien as to creditors for want of delivery. Merchants' Nat. Bank of the City of New York v. Sexton (1913) 33 Sup. Ct. 725, 228 U. S. 634, 57 L. Ed. 998, affirming decree In re Kessler (1911) 186 Fed. 127, 108 C. C. A. 239. A receiver or trustee in bankruptcy may retain property purchased conditionally and pay the balance due with the court's approval. In re Wegman Piano Co. (D. C. 1915) 221 Fed. 128.

If property has already been sold for the enforcement of a lien upon it, before the filing of a petition in bankruptcy, the bankruptcy proceedings will not affect the title acquired by a purchaser at such sale taking without notice and in good faith. In re Weitzel (D. C. 1911) 191 Fed. 463, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 370; In re Goldman (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 122, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 100. Where an attachment lien has been nullified by the filing of a petition in bankruptcy, the trustee may recover the property, though it has been sold under the attachment after the filing of the petition. Gray v. Arnot (N. D. 1915) 154 N. W. 268. The officer holding the proceeds of a sale made under a lien which is dissolved by the proceedings in bankruptcy may be enjoined from paying over the money to the lien creditor, and may be compelled, by order of the court of bankruptcy, to surrender it to the trustee. Clark v. Larremore (1903) 188 U. S. 486, 23 Sup. Ct. 363, 47 L. Ed. 555, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 476; Bear v. Chase (1900) 99 Fed. 920, 40 C. C. A. 182, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 746; In re Duguid (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 274, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 794; In re Kenney (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 554, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 353; In re Richards (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 258, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 518; In re Fellerath (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 121, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 40; In re Franks (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 635, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 634; Pennington v. Lowenstein (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 570, Fed. Cas. No. 10,938; In re Benedict (1902) 37 Misc. Rep. 230, 75 N. Y. Supp. 165; Schmilovitz v. Bernstein (1901) 22 R. I. 330, 47 Atl. 884; Kosches v. Libowitz (Tex. Civ. App. 1900) 56 S. W. 613. But if the money arising from the sale has been paid over to the lien creditor, it cannot be reclaimed from him by the trustee. For the statute does not apply to the case of a lien which has been satisfied and discharged by sale and the application of the proceeds to the debt before the filing of a petition in bankruptcy. Farrell v. W. B. Lockett & Co. (1905) 115 Tenn. 494, 91 S. W. 209; Levor v. Seiter (1902) 69 App. Div. 33, 74 N. Y. Supp. 499; Greene v. Montana Brewing Co. (1903) 28 Mont. 380, 72 Pac. 751; Davis v. Jewett Bros. (1903) 17 S. D. 410, 97 N. W. 16. Compare McCord v. McNeil (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 8,714. If a sheriff levies an execution on property of the debtor and sells it, after the filing of a petition in bankruptcy (which is said to have the effect of a caveat and an injunction to all the world), he is liable to the trustee in bankruptcy for the proceeds of the sale, though he has paid them over to the creditor before receiving any notice of the bankruptcy. Miller v. O'Brien (C. C. 1871) 9 N. B. R. 26, Fed. Cas. No. 9,586; In re Grinnell (D. C. 1873) 9 N. B. R. 29, Fed. Cas. No. 5,830. And see Balms v. Hutton, 9 Bing. 471; Garland v. Carlisle, 10 Bing. 452.

The rule that the trustee is entitled to the possession of property covered by a lien which is dissolved by the adjudication in bankruptcy is subject to this limitation, that due recognition must be given to, and provision made for, other liens which are valid and unaffected by the bankruptcy and which affect the same property, for the trustee is only the representative of the general or unsecured creditors, and his right to the property is measured by the interest which they may have in it. In re Torchia (1911) 188 Fed. 207, 110 C. C. A. 248, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 579; Stewart v. Platt (1879) 101 U. S. 731, 25 L. Ed. 816; Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Fuller (1901) 26 Tex. Civ. App. 239, 63 S. W. 1048; McElvain v. Hardesty (1909) 169 Fed. 31, 94 C. C. A. 399, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 320; In re Sink, 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 645. Expenses of operating vessels of bankrupt shipowner by trustee after adjudication held not chargeable to proceeds of vessels as against holders of maritime liens, where there were general funds of the estate. In re New England Transp. Co. (D. C. 1914) 220 Fed. 203. Where the legal title and the mortgagee's title vested in a trustee in bankruptcy there was no merger of the mortgage lien, as it was to the advantage of the trustee to keep the lien alive to defeat a junior mortgage. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Albrecht (Tex. Civ. App. 1914) 171 S. W. 819.

28. Conveyance or surrender of property under order of court.—Where a claim to the possession of property of a bankrupt's estate, as against the trustee's right of possession, is based solely on the lien of an execution, attachment, or other writ or process, the lien of which is avoided by the adjudication in bankruptcy, the person or officer so in possession is not an adverse claimant, but holds as bailee for the trustee, and must deliver the property on a proper demand, and he may be required to do so by a summary order of the court of bankruptcy. Staunton v. Wooden (1910) 179 Fed. 61, 102 C. C. A. 355, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 736. So the court may receive from one indebted to the bankrupt the amount of the debt, although it was garnished within four months before the adjudication in bankruptcy, and judgment entered therefor against such debtor in a state court, and may make such order as may be necessary to protect the garnishee. In re McCartney (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 621, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 367.

29. Subrogation of trustee to rights of lienholder.—The word "prevented," as used in clause "b" of this section, providing that when a creditor is prevented from enforcing his lien by his debtor, who afterwards becomes a bankrupt, the trustee shall be subrogated to the creditor's rights, means "prevented" by bankruptcy proceedings. In re Schweitzer (D. C. 1914) 217 Fed. 495.

The preservation of a lien and subrogation of the trustee are proper in cases where, if this course were not pursued, the property affected would not come into the hands of the trustee at all, but would be claimed by the holder of a valid and undissolved lien, with a possible loss to the estate of its value over and above the amount of the incumbrance. Thompson v. Fairbanks (1903) 75 Vt. 361, 56 Atl. 11, 104 Am. St. Rep. 899. And see Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Sexton (1913) 228 U. S. 634, 33 Sup. Ct. 725, 57 L. Ed. 998, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 278. These provisions of the statute were only designed to preserve some interest acquired by virtue of the invalid or dissolvable lien which would not otherwise pass to the trustee in bankruptcy. Goodnough Mercantile & Stock Co. v. Galloway (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 940, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 803. To construe them as referring only to liens on property which, if such liens were annulled, would vest in the trustee, would restrict their application to a contingency already provided for in the statute. First Nat. Bank v. Staake (1906) 202 U. S. 141, 26 Sup. Ct. 580, 50 L. Ed. 967, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 639.

A lien acquired by an attaching creditor on real property which, but for such attachment, would have passed to a subsequent purchaser under an unrecorded deed, should be preserved by order of the court of bankruptcy for the benefit of the bankrupt's estate, although it would be liable to dissolution as having been acquired within four months before the bankruptcy. Receivers of Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co. v. Staake (1904) 133 Fed. 717, 66 C. C. A. 547, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 281; First Nat. Bank v. Staake (1906) 202 U. S. 141, 26 Sup. Ct. 580, 50 L. Ed. 967, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 639; In re Baird (D. C. 1904) 126 Fed. 845, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 435. Where the debtor has sold personal property, but under circumstances such as to make the sale void as against attaching creditors, and an attachment has been levied within four months before the bankruptcy, its lien will not be dissolved, but will be preserved for the benefit of the estate. Love v. Hill (1908) 21 Okl. 347, 96 Pac. 623. Where a chattel mortgage given by the insolvent is void as against judgment creditors because not filed as required by law, but would be valid as to general creditors and would, as to them, entitle the mortgagee to the possession of the property, judgment liens which have attached (though within four months before the bankruptcy) will be preserved by subrogating the trustee to the rights of the judgment creditors. In re Beede (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 441, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 697; Dunn Salmon Co. v. Pillmore (1907) 55 Misc. Rep. 546, 106 N. Y. Supp. 88. And so as to the liens of execution creditors on property held by the insolvent debtor under a contract of conditional sale. Rock Island Plow Co. v. Reardon (1912) 222 U. S. 354, 32 Sup. Ct. 164, 56 L. Ed. 231, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 492. And on the same principle, any advantage which a creditor may have gained by taking the proper steps to subject to his claim property apparently belonging to the bankrupt or standing in his name, but claimed by a third party, should be preserved and transferred to the trustee in bankruptcy. In re Hammond (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 845; Patten v. Francis D. Carley & Co. (1902) 69 App. Div. 423, 74 N. Y. Supp. 993; In re Merrow (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 993, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 615. The trustee in bankruptcy, whose bankrupts had assigned to their creditors to secure loans certain notes held by the bankrupts secured by the stock in trade and accounts, is entitled under the rule of subrogation and under this section to participate in the collaterals to the extent that the funds of the bankrupt estate have been used to discharge a secured debt and acquire the collateral notes, including a deposit to the bankrupt's credit which the secured creditor set off against the debt. Merchants' Nat. Bank of the City of New York v. Sexton (1913) 33 Sup. Ct. 725, 228 U. S. 634, 57 L. Ed. 998, affirming decree In re Kessler (1911) 186 Fed. 127, 108 C. C. A. 239. A referee held to have power under section 67f of the bankruptcy act to order an attachment lien on a bankrupt's homestead, valid under the state law, preserved for the benefit of the estate. In re Malone's Estate (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 566.

This authority and discretion on the part of the court of bankruptcy with reference to the preservation of liens otherwise voidable, when an advantage is thereby to be gained for the benefit of the general estate, is not confined to liens which would be void as creating a preference. In re Baird (D. C. 1904) 126 Fed. 845, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 435. It extends to all classes of liens, including liens of judgments. In re Beede (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 441, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 697; Wills v. E. K. Wood Lumber & Mill Co. (Cal. App. 1915) 154 Pac. 613. And to liens of executions. Reardon v. Rock Island Plow Co. (1909) 168 Fed. 654, 94 C. C. A. 118, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 26; In re Schweitzer (D. C. 1914) 217 Fed. 495. The title or lien acquired by an assignee under a general assignment, valid according to the law of the state where made, if it would be to the advantage of the estate when it has subsequently passed into bankruptcy, is not necessarily destroyed by the supersession of the assignment proceeding, but, if the court of bankruptcy will so order, may be retained by the trustee for the benefit of the creditors. In re Fish Bros. Wagon Co. (C. C. A. 1908) 164 Fed. 553, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 149. So, the trustee has such an interest in mortgaged land of the bankrupt as will entitle him to pay the mortgage debt and have the mortgage assigned to himself, although it is not in process of foreclosure, where such a course will benefit the estate by enabling him to sell the property to better advantage. In re Bacon (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 157, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 730. But the statute does not transfer to the trustee the right of a judgment creditor to enforce an equitable lien acquired by the filing of a creditor's bill before bankruptcy proceedings were begun. Taylor v. Taylor (1900) 59 N. J. Eq. 86, 45 Atl. 440. Nor will the preservation of the lien and the subrogation of the trustee be ordered merely to enable him to defeat another lien on the same property which is valid and which possesses at least equal claims to the consideration of a court of equity. In re Sentenne & Green Co. (D. C. 1903) 120 Fed. 436, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 648; In re Moore (D. C. 1901) 107 Fed. 234, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 175; Thompson v. Fairbanks (1905) 196 U. S. 516, 25 Sup. Ct. 306, 49 L. Ed. 577, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 437. And in any event, if the substitution of the trustee is desired, proper steps must be taken to that end before the lien is discharged. In re Walsh Bros. (D. C. 1912) 195 Fed. 576, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 243. And where a sheriff is holding property of the bankrupt under a levy, voidable because made within the four months, and the trustee in bankruptcy takes possession of the property, the lien of the levy is wholly discharged, and the trustee cannot thereafter assert any rights under it as against an adverse claimant. Davis v. Crompton (1907) 158 Fed. 785, 85 C. C. A. 633, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 53.

30. Rights and remedies of creditor on dissolution of lien.—If a lien obtained through legal proceedings is dissolved by the adjudication of the debtor in bankruptcy within four months thereafter, it is extinguished for any and all purposes, and cannot afterwards be made effective, even though the bankrupt fails to obtain his discharge. St. Cyr v. Daignault (D. C. 1900) 103 Fed. 854, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 638. The only remedy of the creditor in such a case is to prove his claim as a general creditor, and as such to share in the distribution of the estate. In re Brand (D. C. 1867) 3 N. B. R. 324, Fed. Cas. No. 1,809; Cole v. Duncan (1871) 58 Ill. 176. He should apply to the court of bankruptcy for an application in his favor of the proceeds of the sale of the property by the trustee in bankruptcy if he has any superior claim on them. D. C. Wise Coal Co. v. Columbia Zinc & Lead Co. (1911) 157 Mo. App. 315, 138 S. W. 67. If he has paid off other liens or charges on the property affected by his lien, in order to preserve it, he is entitled to be repaid the amount thereof out of the general funds of the estate, though his own lien is dissolved by the bankruptcy proceedings, since his discharge of liens which otherwise would have bound the property in the hands of the trustee has pro tanto increased the assets of the estate. In re Baker (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 762. A creditor in this situation is not required to execute an assignment to the trustee of his lien, as a condition precedent to his sharing in the distribution of the estate (unless its preservation for the benefit of the estate is ordered by the court), where he has refrained from enforcing his lien in obedience to an injunction from the bankruptcy court. In re Carrier (D. C. 1892) 51 Fed. 900.

The dissolution of a lien on particular property, as having been obtained within the four-months period, does not enlarge other liens on the same property or affect their rank and priority. In re Nelson (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 10,100.

Where an attachment upon property of the bankrupt for its full value is dissolved by the adjudication, a judgment creditor who has made a levy of execution subsequent to such attachment is not entitled to priority of payment. All the right which the judgment creditor acquired was by a levy on property already incumbered to its full value, and such a levy does not give him security. In re Klancke (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 7,864; In re Steele (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 13,345.

31. Costs and fees under dissolved lien.—Where a lien acquired by attachment, execution, or other process is dissolved by an adjudication in bankruptcy, the sheriff or other officer holding the property under his writ is entitled to his fees for services rendered up to the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. Platt v. Stewart (D. C. 1875) 11 N. B. R. 191, Fed. Cas. No. 11,221; In re Welch (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 17,367. But he has no lien on the property itself for such fees or his costs, unless such a lien is expressly given by the state statute. If it is, he must be paid his fees and expenses before being ordered to deliver up the property to the trustee in bankruptcy. Wilkinson v. Raymond (1903) 80 App. Div. 378, 81 N. Y. Supp. 82; In re Housberger (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 92, Fed. Cas. No. 6,734. His fees are taxable in the court from which the writ issued, and when there taxed and allowed, may be made the basis of a claim in the court of bankruptcy, but the property must be surrendered forthwith. In re Francis-Valentine Co. (1899) 94 Fed. 793, 36 C. C. A. 499, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 522; In re Stevens (D. C. 1870) 5 N. B. R. 298, Fed. Cas. No. 13,392. On the other hand, if he applies first to the court of bankruptcy for an allowance of his fees, and is dissatisfied with its decision, his only remedy is by appeal, and he cannot recur to the state court. Johnson v. Woodend (1901) 44 Misc. Rep. 524, 90 N. Y. Supp. 43.

After the adjudication in bankruptcy the officer can make no fees or charges, except it may be for the preservation of the property as a temporary custodian. At that time he becomes a simple bailee of the property, holding the same for the use of the trustee to be subsequently appointed, and is not entitled to make additional costs in his official character. In re Preston (D. C. 1873) 6 N. B. R. 545, Fed. Cas. No. 11,394; Barker v. McLeod (1879) 14 Nev. 148.

As for the creditor whose lien is dissolved by the bankruptcy proceedings, his claim for costs and disbursements incurred by him and for attorneys' fees is a provable debt in bankruptcy, but is not entitled to priority of payment, and is not a lien on the property affected or on the proceeds of the trustee's sale of it. In re Allen (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 512, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 38; In re Young (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 606, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 673; Hanson v. Stephens (1902) 116 Ga. 722, 42 S. E. 1028; In re Davis (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 3,616; In re Preston (D. C. 1873) 6 N. B. R. 545, Fed. Cas. No. 11,394; In re Ward (D. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 349, Fed. Cas. No. 17,145. But if a lien creditor successfully prosecutes his claim to priority of payment, his attorney is entitled to a fee, which becomes a lien on the fund so secured for his client, and may be fixed and enforced by the court of bankruptcy. In re Rude (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 805, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 319. But he may claim such a lien if it is expressly given by the law of the state. Gardner v. Cook (D. C. 1872) 7 N. B. R. 346, Fed. Cas. No. 5,226. A more liberal rule is applied in cases where the lien is ordered to be preserved for the benefit of the estate. Here the court may direct the payment out of the general funds, not only of the sheriff's costs and the disbursements of the lien creditor, but also a reasonable compensation to attorneys for professional services previously rendered. Receivers of Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co. v. Staake (1904) 133 Fed. 717, 66 C. C. A. 547, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 281; In re Jenks (D. C. 1877) 15 N. B. R. 301, Fed. Cas. No. 7,276; In re Ward (D. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 349, Fed. Cas. 17,145; Ex parte Holmes (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 493, Fed. Cas. No. 6,631.

Where a third person having possession of goods of the bankrupt, refuses to surrender them to the trustee on the latter's demand, on the mistaken theory that he has a lien on them for storage, though this claim is rejected, he will be entitled to suitable compensation for the storage and care of the goods from the time of the commencement of the proceedings in bankruptcy up to the time of the demand and refusal. In re Kelly (D. C. 1883) 18 Fed. 528.

II. PROCEEDINGS TO ESTABLISH OR ENFORCE LIENS

32. Remedies in general.—An adjudication of bankruptcy brings the bankrupt's assets into the custody of the court of bankruptcy for administration, and a creditor of the bankrupt, having a lien on such property at that time, is not bound to follow the course of procedure prescribed by the state statute under which the lien arises, requiring certain action to be taken within a limited time for its preservation, but only to prove his claim in the character of a secured creditor as the bankruptcy law directs. In re Falls City Shirt Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 592, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 437; In re Rude, 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 498; McFarland Carriage Co. v. Solanes (C. C. 1901) 108 Fed. 532, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 221. The provision of the bankruptcy act, that valid liens shall not be affected, relates only to the obligation of the contract, and not to the remedies for its enforcement, which may be changed without impairing the contract. In re Hasie (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 789, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 83.

Where the rules of a stock exchange give to members of the exchange a lien for debts due them from a defaulting member upon the proceeds of the sale of his seat, by proving their claims before a committee while the fund remains in their hands, but do not expressly assume to make this remedy exclusive, a court of bankruptcy, when equity requires it, may properly recognize and enforce such lien after the fund has come under its control. Hutchinson v. Otis (1902) 115 Fed. 937, 53 C. C. A. 419, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 382, affirmed Hutchinson v. Otis, Wilcox & Co. (1903) 190 U. S. 552, 23 Sup. Ct. 778, 47 L. Ed. 1179, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 135.

For the purpose of asserting his lien, a secured creditor or pledgee of property is always entitled to intervene in the bankruptcy proceedings against his debtor. Fisher v. Cushman (1900) 103 Fed. 860, 43 C. C. A. 381, 51 L. R. A. 292, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 646; Ward v. First Nat. Bank (C. C. A. 1913) 202 Fed. 609, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 312. And even where one has waived or relinquished his lien, through oversight or a mistake of fact not operating to the prejudice of any one else, he may come into the court of bankruptcy and ask to be restored to his lien, which relief will be granted if he shows himself entitled to it. Hutchinson v. Otis (1902) 115 Fed. 937, 53 C. C. A. 419, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 382, affirmed Hutchinson v. Otis, Wilcox & Co. (1903) 190 U. S. 552, 23 Sup. Ct. 778, 47 L. Ed. 1179, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 135.

In any petition for the recognition and enforcement of a lien, the facts should be clearly and fully set forth, and the appropriate measure of relief asked for. Teter v. Viquesney (1910) 179 Fed. 655, 103 C. C. A. 213, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 242; In re Gosch (D. C. 1903) 121 Fed. 604, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 613; In re George W. Shiebler & Co. (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 545, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 777. Such petition may be opposed by the trustee in bankruptcy without formal pleadings. In re Mulligan (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 715, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 8. Where the facts rest in parol, they may be established by the evidence of the parties to the transaction, if credible and uncontradicted, without further testimony. Union Trust Co. v. Bulkeley (1907) 150 Fed. 510, 80 C. C. A. 328, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 35. If the validity of the lien is contested on the ground that the debtor was insolvent at the time it was created, the burden of proving such insolvency is on the party asserting it. Jackson v. Valley Tie & Lumber Co. (1908) 108 Va. 714, 62 S. E. 964.

33. Jurisdiction of court of bankruptcy.—The court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction to inquire into and determine the validity, extent, and priority of liens asserted upon any property of the bankrupt which has come into its actual or constructive possession, in a summary manner, or at any rate without the formalities attending a plenary suit, on the petition of the trustee desiring to contest the alleged lien or to settle any question in regard to it. In re Kligerman (D. C. 1915) 219 Fed. 758; Courtney v. Fidelity Trust Co. (1914) 219 Fed. 57, 134 C. C. A. 595; Ex parte Christy (1845) 3 How. 292, 11 L. Ed. 603; In re Eppstein (1907) 156 Fed. 42, 84 C. C. A. 208, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 89; In re Hobbs & Co. (D. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 211, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 544; In re Lemmon & Gale Co. (1901) 112 Fed. 296, 50 C. C. A. 247, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 291; In re Kellogg (D. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 120, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623; In re Ellis Bros. Printing Co. (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 430, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 472; Wakeman v. Throckmorton (1902) 74 Conn. 616, 51 Atl. 554; Jungbecker v. Huber (1907) 101 Tex. 148, 105 S. W. 487; In re Logan (D. C. 1912) 196 Fed. 678, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 543; Bear Gulch Placer Mining Co. v. Walsh (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 351, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 724; In re Hooven-Owens-Rentschler Co. (C. C. A. 1912) 195 Fed. 424, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 135. Or on the petition of the lien claimant, without regard to the possession of the property, if the latter voluntarily comes into court asserting a lien on the property and seeking to have it established, protected, or enforced as against the trustee. In re MacDougall (D. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 400, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 762; In re Platteville Foundry & Machine Co. (D. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 828, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 291; Goodnough Mercantile & Stock Co. v. Galloway (D. C. 1906) 156 Fed. 504, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 244; Reeve v. Kernan (N. J. 1914) 90 Atl. 285. But if the property is in the possession of the claimant (as, for instance, a chattel mortgagee) his claims upon it cannot be determined in a summary proceeding at the instance of the trustee, unless with the consent of the lienor. In re Buntrock Clothing Co. (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 886, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 454; Goodnough Mercantile & Stock Co. v. Galloway (D. C. 1906) 156 Fed. 504, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 244: In re L. B. Pickens & Bro. (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 954, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 6; In re Munro (D. C. 1912) 195 Fed. 817, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 369. A chattel mortgagee, having failed to object to certain preliminary proceedings in the bankruptcy court, by which it acquired jurisdiction of the property, sold the same, and obtained the proceeds, held not entitled thereafter to object that the bankruptcy court had no jurisdiction to determine the validity of its lien. T. E. Wells & Co. v. Sharp (1913) 208 Fed. 393, 125 C. C. A. 609, affirming decree In re Plymouth Elevator Co. (D. C. 1911) 191 Fed. 633. And where the question to be determined is a matter in controversy between third persons, the test of jurisdiction to hear and decide it is the necessity of so doing in order to administer the estate of the bankrupt. In re Hobbs & Co. (D. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 211, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 544; In re Graves (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 358, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 818; Spears v. Frenchton & B. R. Co. (1914) 213 Fed. 784, 130 C. C. A. 442; In re Traunstein (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 317. A court of bankruptcy being vested with exclusive jurisdiction to administer estates of insolvents when such jurisdiction is properly invoked cannot refuse to exercise it by determining the validity of indebtedness created by a state receiver for a bankrupt. In re Benwood Brewing Co. (D. C. 1913) 202 Fed. 326.

Where a fund is in an equity court, and an issue is made as to its ownership, between a surety company asserting a lien against it and a trustee in bankruptcy, the court will adjudicate the issue with regard to the bankruptcy act and the rights of the respective parties under it, and to that end protect the estate of the bankrupt. Lyttle v. National Surety Co. (1915) 43 App. D. C. 136.

The court of bankruptcy will not undertake to determine or adjust liens upon property of the bankrupt, unless it appears that the trustee has at least a probable interest in it for the general creditors. In re Gibbs (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 627, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 485. But compare Chauncey v. Dyke Bros. (1902) 119 Fed. 1, 55 C. C. A. 579, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 444.

34. Jurisdiction of state courts.—The jurisdiction of a state court over a proceeding to establish and enforce a valid lien on property is not taken away by the mere fact of the intervening bankruptcy of the debtor; but unless its hand is stayed by the order of the court of bankruptcy, or the parties have placed themselves in a position where they can no longer invoke its jurisdiction, it may proceed, without regard to the bankruptcy proceedings, to render such judgment as may be appropriate in the case. Hobbs v. Head & Dowst Co. (1911) 184 Fed. 409, 106 C. C. A. 519, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 63;

Frazier v. Southern Loan & Trust Co. (1900) 99 Fed. 707, 40 C. C. A. 76, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 588; In re Maaget (D. C. 1909) 173 Fed. 232, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 14; In re Platteville Foundry & Machine Co. (D. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 828, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 291; In re Major (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 8,981; Kimberling v. Hartly (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 571; Thames v. Miller (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 13,860; Mattocks v. Farrington (D. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 9,298; Kritzer v. Tracy Engineering Co. (1911) 16 Cal. App. 287, 116 Pac. 700; Mass v. Kuhn (1909) 130 App. Div. 68, 114 N. Y. Supp. 444; Murphey v. Brown (1909) 12 Ariz. 268, 100 Pac. 801; Linthicum v. Fenley (Ky. 1875) 11 Bush, 131; Vance v. Lane's Trustee (1904) 82 S. W. 297, 26 Ky. Law Rep. 619; Reed v. Equitable Trust Co. (1902) 115 Ga. 780, 42 S. E. 102; Dyson v. Harper (1875) 54 Ga. 282; South End Imp. Co. v. Harden (N. J. Eq. 1902) 52 Atl. 1127; Douglas v. St. Louis Zinc Co. (1875) 56 Mo. 388; Davis v. Lumpkin (1879) 57 Miss. 506; Bradley v. United Wireless Telegraph Co. (1911) 79 N. J. Eq. 458, 81 Atl. 1107, affirmed (1914) 83 N. J. Eq. 688, 93 Atl. 1084. Compare Goodnough Mercantile Co. v. Galloway (1906) 48 Or. 239, 84 Pac. 1049; Clifton v. Foster (1869) 103 Mass. 233, 4 Am. Rep. 539.

Bankruptcy proceedings against a corporation do not stand in the way of a resort to a method prescribed by Rev. Laws Minn. 1905, §§ 3184–3190, of enforcing the liability of a stockholder for corporate debts. Selig v. Hamilton (1914) 34 S. Ct. 926, 234 U. S. 652, 58 L. Ed. 1518, affirming judgment Hamilton v. Selig (D. C. 1912) 195 Fed. 153.

A chattel mortgagee, notwithstanding the mortgagor's bankruptcy, may sue a sheriff levying on the property without complying with Civ. Code Cal. §§ 2968, 2969, and recover the damages fixed by section 3336. Lackenbach v. Finn (1915) 147 P. 471, 26 Cal. App. 482.

A judgment so rendered by a state court will be conclusive and binding on the trustee in bankruptcy, if he was heard in the case or had an opportunity to intervene. In re Van Alstyne (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 929, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 42; Frazier v. Southern Loan & Trust Co. (1900) 99 Fed. 707, 40 C. C. A. 76, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 710; Jackson v. Valley Tie & Lumber Co. (1908) 108 Va. 714, 62 S. E. 964; O'Reilly v. Pietri (La. 1914) 64 South. 922. Where the original contractor is adjudged a bankrupt during the construction of the building, his trustees should be made a party defendant in actions by subcontractors or materialmen, and the judgment taken against him should be made the basis of the liens claimed against the property. Eberle v. Drennan (Okl. 1913) 136 P. 162. Failure to take proper steps to secure a hearing on the merits in the highest state court of the exceptions to a judgment enforcing a mechanics' lien against a bankrupt's estate is not ground for going behind the state court's judgment at the instance of the trustee in bankruptcy to defeat the lien, where the failure to get the exceptions considered was due solely to the conduct of those then representing the estate. Hobbs v. Head & Dowst Co. (1914) 34 S. Ct. 253, 231 U. S. 692, 58 L. Ed. 440, affirming decrees (1911) 184 Fed. 409, 106 C. C. A. 519, and (1911) 185 Fed. 1006, 107 C. C. A. 663. Where a purchaser of land from an assignee in bankruptcy is put in possession, and is made a party to subsequent foreclosure proceedings in a state court which has jurisdiction of the parties and of the foreclosure of liens, he cannot maintain ejectment against one who purchases the land on such proceedings, and is put in possession, on the ground that the state court had no jurisdiction by reason of the bankruptcy proceedings, but the error, if any, can be corrected by appeal from the decree in foreclosure only. Adams v. Conner (1890) 10 S. Ct. 304, 133 U. S. 296, 33 L. Ed. 623.

A judgment so rendered by a state court cannot be reviewed, reversed, or modified by the court of bankruptcy. In re Eash (D. C. 1907) 157 Fed. 996, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 738. But see D. C. Wise Coal Co. v. Columbia Lead & Zinc Co. (1907) 123 Mo. App. 249, 100 S. W. 680, as to a judgment enforcing a lien dissolved by the adjudication in bankruptcy.

The jurisdiction of a state court to establish and enforce a lien is not taken away by the fact that the lien in question is one which would be voidable under the bankruptcy act at the instance of the trustee in bankruptcy, if he does not seek to annul it or assert any right to the property in controversy. Rochester Lumber Co. v. Locke (1903) 72 N. H. 22, 54 Atl. 705. And see Davis v. Planters' Trust Co. (D. C. 1912) 196 Fed. 970, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 495. A garnishee against whom judgment has been entered has no standing, after both the plaintiff and the defendant in the suit have been adjudicated bankrupts, to move the court to dissolve the garnishment and strike off the judgment, as only the trustee in bankruptcy of the defendant can take such action. Lamorelle v. Nass (1906) 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 190. But see Armour Packing Co. v. Wynn (1904) 119 Ga. 683, 46 S. E. 865.

Jurisdiction of state courts to foreclose vendor's lien under Act La. No. 63 of 1890, on agricultural products in hands of a third person, was lost on dissolution of attachment under subdivision "f" of this section, where bankruptcy proceedings were begun within four months of the attachment. Lehman, Stern & Co. v. S. Gumbel & Co. (1915) 35 S. Ct. 307, 236 U. S. 448, 59

L. Ed. 666, affirming judgment Same v. E. Martin & Co. (1913) 61 So. 212, 132 La. 231.

A creditor will not be enjoined from prosecuting a pending suit to enforce a lien, where this would result in injury to other lien claimants. In re Grissler (1905) 136 Fed. 754, 69 C. C. A. 406, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 508. Where prior to bankruptcy proceedings the state court had foreclosed loggers' liens and adjudged the proceeds of the sale of the logs to the lien claimants, the entry of a formal judgment would not be enjoined, nor would the fund be transferred to the bankruptcy court for distribution among the lien claimants. In re Bach (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 575. A state court will not grant an injunction, at the instance of a general creditor of an insolvent debtor, to tie up the assets of the debtor, which have come into the hands of another creditor by execution on the latter's judgment, until the former creditor can institute bankruptcy proceedings against the debtor. Vietor v. Lewis (1898) 24 Misc. Rep. 515, 53 N. Y. Supp. 944. Again, if the court of bankruptcy has assumed jurisdiction of a controversy respecting an alleged lien, the state court will naturally not attempt to interfere with the full exercise of that jurisdiction. Ball v. Walker (1885) 26 W. Va. 741. And again, if the lien creditor has made himself a party to the proceedings in bankruptcy, he is subject to the jurisdiction of the court of bankruptcy and must work out his rights in that forum alone. Francisco v. Shelton (1889) 85 Va. 779, 8 S. E. 789; Reed v. Bullington (1873) 49 Miss. 223.

35. Conflicting jurisdiction of federal and state courts.—A court of equity may decree an equitable lien on a bankrupt's property, though the fund should be administered by the bankruptcy court. Robinson v. Tischler (Fla. 1915) 67 So. 565. A state court acquired jurisdiction to foreclose a mortgage by the filing of the suit and the granting of an order for executory process before the filing of petitions in bankruptcy, though the land was not seized until after the filing of the petition. McLoughlin v. Knop (D. C. 1913) 214 Fed. 260. The state courts have concurrent jurisdiction to sell the property of a bankrupt for the purpose of foreclosing a mortgage, and, where their jurisdiction has attached prior to bankruptcy, it should not be disturbed. McLoughlin v. Knop (D. C. 1913) 214 Fed. 260.

Property in the possession of a bankrupt's trustee cannot be taken on replevin without the consent of the bankruptcy court. In re Brockton Ideal Shoe Co. (D. C. 1912) 212 Fed. 764. An order directing receivers to appear in a bankruptcy proceeding and oppose the adjudication of defendant held not a surrender by the court of its jurisdiction over the property to the bankruptcy court. Blair v. Brailey (1915) 221 Fed. 1, 136 C. C. A. 524, certiorari denied (1915) 35 S. Ct. 938, 238 U. S. 634, 59 L. Ed. 1499. Issuance of an order authorizing a state receiver to apply to the bankruptcy court for restoration of possession of land surrendered to a receiver of the bankruptcy court held not error. Luxury Fruit Co. v. Harris (Ga. 1914) 83 S. E. 1093, 142 Ga. 866. Application of state court receiver for possession of property voluntarily surrendered to receiver in bankruptcy, pursuant to order of the superior court, reversed by the supreme court, held to be denied. Wright v. Harris (D. C. 1915) 221 Fed. 736.

The act of a bankrupt in voluntarily dismissing a cross-action in insolvency proceedings, under which a receiver had taken possession of land, held not to deprive the state court of its power to restore the status, so far as possession of the land was concerned. Luxury Fruit Co. v. Harris (1914) 83 S. E. 1093, 142 Ga. 866.

Attachment by writ of garnishment does not place the possession of the property in the court or the one who has obtained the writ, and the attachment does not create any lien in favor of attaching creditors which is recognized by the bankruptcy law; and attaching creditors must assert their rights against the debtor in the bankruptcy court. Lehman, Stern & Co. v. E. Martin & Co. (1913) 61 So. 212, 132 La. 231.

36. Permission of bankruptcy court to sue in state court.—A creditor holding a valid lien on property of a bankrupt, which is not dissolved by the adjudication in bankruptcy, is entitled to perfect his title and enforce his rights as though no proceeding in bankruptcy had been commenced, and it is not necessary that he should first apply to the court of bankruptcy for leave to do so. Eyster v. Gaff (1875) 91 U. S. 521, 23 L. Ed. 403; Jerome v. McCarter (1876) 94 U. S. 734, 24 L. Ed. 136; In re Mertens (1906) 144 Fed. 818, 75 C. C. A. 548, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 362. CONTRA, In re Emslie (C. C. A. 1900) 102 Fed. 291, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 126. A state court has no jurisdiction to foreclose a mortgage after bankruptcy has intervened without leave of the bankruptcy court and making the trustee a party. McLoughlin v. Knop (D. C. 1913) 214 Fed. 260. A court of bankruptcy may, in the exercise of its discretion, grant permission to lien claimants of the bankrupt to sue in state courts to enforce their liens, and it may modify its order permitting suits in the state courts, provided that, in so doing, it does not deprive the claimants of any right to which they may be entitled in the bankruptcy proceedings. Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co. v. Olcott (1912) 197 Fed. 730, 117 C. C. A. 124, 28 Am.

Bankr. Rep. 321. If the property in question is in the custody of the court of bankruptcy, no one can proceed in a state court for the purpose of enforcing a lien on it, unless with the permission of the bankruptcy court. Owen v. Potter (1898) 115 Mich. 556, 73 N. W. 977.

37. Restraining proceedings in state courts.—An adjudication of bankruptcy draws the property and assets of the bankrupt within the exclusive jurisdiction of the court of bankruptcy for the purposes of administration and distribution, and it may defend that jurisdiction by all appropriate means. In re Lines (D. C. 1903) 133 Fed. 803, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 318; In re Vastbinder (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 718, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 148.

The court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction to assume the entire administration of the estate of the debtor, to determine all questions touching the existence of liens thereon, and to ascertain and settle the amount of such liens, and make provision for the liquidation and settlement thereof; and as incidental to this, it has ample power to restrain a claimant of such lien from proceeding elsewhere to enforce his lien. In re Clark (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 2,801.

If any creditor brings an action in a state court to establish or enforce a lien on any property of the bankrupt, at least without the permission of the bankruptcy court first obtained, it is an unwarrantable interference with its jurisdiction and control over the property, and the creditor will be enjoined from the further prosecution of his action. In re Emslie (1900) 102 Fed. 291, 42 C. C. A. 350, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 126; Beall v. Walker (1885) 26 W. Va. 741; In re Tune (D. C. 1902) 115 Fed. 906, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 285; In re Roger Brown & Co. (C. C. A. 1912) 196 Fed. 758, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 336; In re Tomlinson (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 101, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 780; In re Trayna & Cohn (C. C. A. 1912) 195 Fed. 486, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 594. And it is generally proper so to enjoin the secured creditor when the value of the property exceeds the amount secured by the mortgage or other lien, or where the validity or amount of the lien is disputed, or there is danger that the property may be sacrificed, or where the course taken by the secured creditor would be prejudicial to the interests of the general body of creditors. In re San Gabriel Sanatorium Co. (C. C. A. 1900) 102 Fed. 310, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 197; In re Pittelkow (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 901, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 479; In re Snedaker (Utah) 3 N. B. R. 629; In re Iron Mountain Co. (C. C. 1872) 4 N. B. R. 645, Fed. Cas. 7,065; The Skylark (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 12,929; McLean v. Lafayette Bank (C. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 8,885; Platt v. Dickenson (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 11,216a; In re Kerosene Oil Co. (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 528, Fed. Cas. No. 7,725; In re Hanna (D. C. 1871) 4 N. B. R. 411, Fed. Cas. No. 6,026; Getz v. First Nat. Bank (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 5,374; In re Kerosene Oil Co. (C. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 125, Fed. Cas. No. 7,726; Foster v. Ames (C. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 455, Fed. Cas. No. 4,965; In re Brinkman (D. C.) 7 N. B. R. 421, Fed. Cas. No. 1,884; Whitman v. Butler (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 487, Fed. Cas. No. 17,579; Markson v. Heaney (C. C. 1871) 4 N. B. R. 510, Fed. Cas. No. 9,098; McKay v. Funk (1873) 37 Iowa, 661, 13 N. B. R. 334; Markson v. Haney (1874) 47 Ind. 31, 12 N. B. R. 484. A trustee in bankruptcy by applying to a state court to set aside an order granting executory process for the foreclosure of a mortgage could not impair or affect the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court to enjoin the foreclosure. George B. Matthews & Sons v. Joseph Webre Co. (D. C. 1914) 213 Fed. 396.

Although the action in the state court may have been pending at the time of the adjudication in bankruptcy, yet its further prosecution may be stayed or enjoined when it affects property which is in the actual custody or possession of the bankruptcy court through its trustee, receiver, or other officer. In re Dana (C. C. A. 1909) 167 Fed. 529, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 683; In re Whitener (1900) 105 Fed. 180, 44 C. C. A. 434, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 198; In re Neely (D. C. 1901) 108 Fed. 371. Or where the lien, if enforced, would constitute a preference voidable under the bankruptcy law. Bear v. Chase (1900) 99 Fed. 920, 40 C. C. A. 182, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 746; In re Kimball (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 29, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 161. Compare Heath v. Shaffer (D. C. 1899) 93 Fed. 647, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 98. Under section 70, subd. "e" (post, § 9654), where state court had obtained jurisdiction of land to foreclose mortgage before the intervention of bankruptcy, held, that the trustee, who claimed it was fraudulently transferred by the bankrupt, should obtain any protection by injunction or stay of proceedings to which he might be entitled in the state court, though he had intervened in the state court and his prayer for injunction had been denied. McLoughlin v. Knop (D. C. 1913) 214 Fed. 260. Prosecution of a suit to enforce a lien may be stayed where the lien is of such a character as to be dissolved by the adjudication in bankruptcy, as having been acquired within four months prior thereto. In re Lesser (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 433, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 815; In re Pruschen, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 526; In re Ransford (C. C. A. 1912) 194 Fed. 658, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 78. Or even where the continuance of the action in the state court would embarrass the administration of the estate in bankruptcy. In re

Gutman (D. C. 1902) 114 Fed. 1009, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 252; In re Munro (D. C. 1912) 195 Fed. 817, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 369; In re Roger Brown & Co. (1912) 196 Fed. 758, 116 C. C. A. 386, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 336; Virginia Iron, Coal & Coke Co. v. Olcott (1912) 197 Fed. 730, 117 C. C. A. 124, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 321. Subdivision "a" of section 9595, ante, does not authorize a court of bankruptcy to stay a suit to foreclose a valid mortgage on property of a bankrupt pending in a state court when the petition was filed. In re Wagner's Estate (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 364. Where general creditors claimed an interest in the mortgaged property of an alleged bankrupt, it was proper to stay a sale on foreclosure until 20 days after adjudication and the appointment of a trustee. In re Morse (D. C. 1914) 210 Fed. 900. Where mortgage and foreclosure judgment were more than four months old before bankruptcy petition was filed, and sheriff had seized the property, sale under state court process held not to be enjoined. Broach v. Mullis (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 551.

The jurisdiction of the federal court in these cases is not affected by the fact that the creditor's cause of action is such as would not be affected by the discharge of the debtor in bankruptcy. Bear v. Chase (1900) 99 Fed. 920, 40 C. C. A. 182, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 746. See In re Van Buren (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 883, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 896. Or the fact that the bankrupt may already have received his discharge. Southern Loan & Trust Co. v. Benbow (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 514, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 9; In re Driggs (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 897, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 621. Or the fact that the claim of the particular creditor is not mentioned in the bankrupt's schedules, at least where he has knowledge of the bankruptcy proceedings. In re Beerman (D. C. 1901) 112 Fed. 662, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 434. See In re Bluestone Bros. (D. C. 1909) 174 Fed. 53, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 264.

A trustee in bankruptcy cannot have an injunction against a foreclosure in a state court of a mortgage against the bankrupt, where he appeared and permitted the proceedings to advance to a final adjudication, and no injury is done thereby to the estate of the bankrupt. Augustine v. McFarland (D. C. 1876) 13 N. B. R. 7, Fed. Cas. No. 648.

An injunction issued by a court of bankruptcy restraining litigants from prosecuting a suit in a state court against a bankrupt should not be extended to the court or the judge thereof, unless in case of imperative necessity, assuming that the court has power so to extend it. In re Dana (C. C. A. 1909) 167 Fed. 529, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 683. The state court should respect the purpose of the injunction, and refuse to sanction any further proceedings in the case by any of the parties. Levi v. Goldberg (1902) 76 App. Div. 210, 78 N. Y. Supp. 367.

On ancillary application, trustee under mortgage on bankrupt's property held to be restrained from foreclosing until it applied for and obtained leave from the court having jurisdiction of the mortgaged premises. In re Patterson Lumber Co. (D. C. 1916) 228 Fed. 916. A federal district court has ancillary jurisdiction over a petition by a bankrupt's trustee, appointed and qualified in another district, to restrain the prosecution of distress proceedings by a landlord against property of the bankrupt within the district. In re Printograph Sales Co. (D. C. 1914) 210 Fed. 567.

Where there is no dispute as to the title to the property but only a question as to the enforcement of a lien upon it, a formal or plenary proceeding is not necessary, but the petition to enjoin the creditor from foreclosing may be heard and determined in a summary manner. In re Clark (C. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 403, Fed. Cas. No. 2,801. The court of bankruptcy has no jurisdiction to enjoin the plaintiff in a suit against the bankrupt in a state court from collecting his judgment from the surety on the bankrupt's bail bond. Jaquith v. Rowley (1903) 188 U. S. 620, 23 Sup. Ct. 369, 47 L. Ed. 620. Where a bankrupt corporation within four months prior to adjudication conveyed certain real property to a director in trust to indemnify him as surety on an indemnifying bond to a surety company to obtain an undertaking to discharge an attachment, the conveyance to the director being valid, the trustee was entitled to have the attachment suit stayed. In re Federal Biscuit Co. (1913) 203 Fed. 37, 121 C. C. A. 373.

38. —— Priority of jurisdiction in state court.—If a state court of competent jurisdiction has taken cognizance of an action to establish or enforce a lien on property of a debtor, and the action is pending at the time of his adjudication in bankruptcy, but the lien is not dissolved thereby, because it attached more than four months previously, the jurisdiction of the state court is not divested by the bankruptcy proceedings, and the federal court has no rightful authority to enjoin the creditor from the further prosecution of his action. Metcalf v. Barker (1902) 187 U. S. 165, 23 Sup. Ct. 67, 47 L. Ed. 122, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 36; Pickens v. Roy (1902) 187 U. S. 177, 23 Sup. Ct. 78, 41 L. Ed. 128, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 47; In re Wagner's Estate (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 364, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 396; Pickens v. Dent (1901) 106 Fed. 653, 45 C. C. A. 522, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 644; In re United Wireless Telegraph Co. (D. C. 1911) 192 Fed. 238, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1; In re Shinn (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 990, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 833; Ex parte Donaldson (D. C. 1867) 1 N. B. R. 181, Fed. Cas. No. 3,981; Clarke v. Rist (C. C. 1844) Fed. Cas. No. 2,861. Compare New River Coal Land Co. v. Ruffner Bros. (1908) 165 Fed. 881, 91 C. C. A. 559, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 100; In re Baughman (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 742, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 23. This rule applies with special force where the property to be affected is in the actual custody and possession of the state court. Tennessee Producer Marble Co. v. Grant (1905) 135 Fed. 322, 67 C. C. A. 676, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 288; In re Seebold (1901) 105 Fed. 910, 45 C. C. A. 117, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 358; White v. Thompson (1903) 119 Fed. 868, 56 C. C. A. 398, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 653; In re Shoemaker (D. C. 1902) 112 Fed. 648, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 437; Downer v. Brackett (D. C. 1842) 21 Vt. 599, Fed. Cas. No. 4,043. Or where it is in the possession of a receiver appointed by the state court. In re Sterlingworth Ry. Supply Co. (D. C. 1908) 165 Fed. 267, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 342.

39. —— Protecting interest of general creditors.—The fact that a trustee in bankruptcy may be interested in the result of a litigation which is pending between third parties in a state court does not entitle him to have the proceedings in such action stayed, as between such third parties, and to have the controversy transferred for adjudication to the bankruptcy court. In re Horton (1900) 102 Fed. 986, 43 C. C. A. 87.

A creditor will not be enjoined from proceeding to enforce a valid lien, except where this is necessary to protect an equity of the bankrupt, or to prevent a sacrifice of, or serious injury to, the interests of the creditors at large. In re Davis (D. C. 1870) 8 N. B. R. 167, Fed. Cas. No. 3,620; Blake v. Francis-Valentine Co. (D. C. 1898) 89 Fed. 691, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 372; Pennington v. Sale (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 572, Fed. Cas. No. 10,939; In re Wilbur (D. C. 1867) 3 N. B. R. 276, Fed. Cas. No. 17,633. A pending suit will not ordinarily be stayed unless the trustee in bankruptcy shows that he has some interest in it as the representative of the general creditors, or that such a course may result in securing for them some surplus over the claims of the lien creditor. In re Mercedes Import Co. (1908) 166 Fed. 427, 92 C. C. A. 179, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 648; In re Arden (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 475, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 684. If it is clearly shown that the property affected is of no value beyond the admitted incumbrances upon it, so that there is nothing to be gained for the general creditors, an injunction will be refused, or, if issued, will be dissolved. In re O'Malley (D. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 10,507a; In re Iron Mountain Co. (C. C. 1872) 4 N. B. R. 645, Fed. Cas. No. 7,065; McLean v. Rockey (C. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 8,891.

40. Foreclosure of mortgages.—A mortgage creditor of a bankrupt has a right to institute proceedings in the court of bankruptcy to enforce his lien and to reach other assets. Owen v. Potter (1898) 115 Mich. 556, 73 N. W. 977. And where the mortgagee of property has proved his debt in the bankruptcy proceedings, and the court of bankruptcy has made an order for the sale of the property, in a proceeding to which he was a party, he cannot then go into a state court and sue for foreclosure. Levy v. Haake (1878) 53 Cal. 267.

A mortgagee may prosecute a suit in a state court for the establishment and enforcement of his lien without regard to the pendency of proceedings in bankruptcy against the debtor, provided that he has not made himself a party to those proceedings and subjected himself to the jurisdiction of the court of bankruptcy by proving his claim or otherwise, and provided that no action is taken by the trustee in bankruptcy to interfere with such suit, nor any order to that effect issued by the bankruptcy court. Jerome v. McCarter (1876) 94 U. S. 734, 24 L. Ed. 136; In re Roseberry (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 340, Fed. Cas. No. 12,052; Sedgwick v. Grinnell (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 12,612; In re Davis (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 715, Fed. Cas. No. 3,620; In re Smith (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 599, Fed. Cas. No. 12,973; Swope v. Arnold (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 148, Fed. Cas. No. 13,702; Yeadon v. Planters' & Mechanics' Bank (D. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 18,130; Brown v. Gibbons (1873) 37 Iowa, 654, 13 N. B. R. 407; Hayes v. Dickinson (N. Y. 1876) 9 Hun, 277, 15 N. B. R. 350; Barber v. Terrell (1875) 54 Ga. 146; Cumming v. Clegg (1874) 52 Ga. 605, 14 N. B. R. 49; Winship v. Phillips (1874) 52 Ga. 593, 14 N. B. R. 50; Hall v. Bliss (1875) 118 Mass. 554, 19 Am. Rep. 476, 14 N. B. R. 329; Hatcher v. Jones (1874) 53 Ga. 208, 14 N. B. R. 387; Biddle's Appeal (1871) 68 Pa. 13, 9 N. B. 144; Green v. Arbuthnot (Pa. 1876) 4 Wkly. Notes Cas. 357.

The jurisdiction of a state court over a pending foreclosure suit is not divested by the adjudication of the mortgagor in bankruptcy, and if the mortgage was given more than four months before the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, and its validity is not assailed on any other ground under the bankruptcy law, the state court may proceed to foreclosure and sale, and the mortgagee should not be stayed by injunction from either the court of bankruptcy or the state court. Jerome v. McCarter (1876) 94 U. S. 734, 24 L. Ed. 136; In re Rohrer (1910) 177 Fed. 381, 100 C. C. A. 613, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 52; Clark v. Norwalk Steel & Iron Co. (C. C. 1908) 188 Fed. 999; In re Lattimer (D. C. 1909) 174 Fed. 824, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 388; In re McKane (D. C. 1907) 158 Fed. 647, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 594; In re

Gerdes (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 318, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 346; Wikle v. Jones (1909) 133 Ga. 266, 65 S. E. 577; Parks v. Baldwin (1905) 123 Ga. 869, 51 S. E. 722; Harvey v. Smith (1901) 179 Mass. 592, 61 N. E. 217; Furth v. Stahl (1903) 205 Pa. 439, 55 Atl. 29; Carter v. People's Nat. Bank (1900) 109 Ga. 573, 35 S. E. 61; Merrill v. Jordan (1880) 60 N. H. 425; Lenihan v. Hamann (1873) 55 N. Y. 652; Cutter v. Dingee (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 294, Fed. Cas. No. 3,518; In re Irving (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 289, Fed. Cas. No. 7,073; Getz v. First Nat. Bank (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 5,374. Compare Carpenter v. O'Connor (1898) 16 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 526; In re Doran (1907) 154 Fed. 467, 83 C. C. A. 265, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 760.

Where, prior to the commencement of the proceedings in bankruptcy, a receiver is appointed in an action in a state court to foreclose a mortgage, property in his possession cannot be taken by the trustee in bankruptcy without discharging the mortgage debt. Davis v. Railroad Co. (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 3,648. But after the appointment of the trustee, a receiver will not be appointed for the bankrupt's mortgaged land, as the trustee is clothed with like functions as a receiver. In re Bennett (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 1,313.

The trustee in bankruptcy is a proper party to the suit in the state court, where he must appear and assert his rights, and he should apply for leave to intervene, or he may be directed by the bankruptcy court so to apply. Eyster v. Gaff (1875) 91 U. S. 521, 23 L. Ed. 403; In re Gerdes (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 318, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 346; Heath v. Shaffer (D. C. 1899) 93 Fed. 647, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 98; In re Porter (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 111, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 259. In such an action, the defense of usury is available to the trustee in bankruptcy. In re Kellogg (1903) 121 Fed. 333, 57 C. C. A. 547, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 7; In re Miller (D. C. 1901) 118 Fed. 360, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 274. If the trustee does not ask to be joined as a party in the suit, it is not necessary to stay the proceedings and compel him to come in. Oliver v. Cunningham (C. C. 1881) 6 Fed. 60. The trustee in bankruptcy will not be barred or in any way affected by a decree of foreclosure if he was not joined as a party in the suit in which it was rendered, since he succeeds in title to the equity of redemption of the bankrupt. Barron v. Newberry (C. C. 1857) Fed. Cas. No. 1,056; Townshend v. Thomson (1892) 60 N. Y. Super. Ct. 454, 18 N. Y. Supp. 870; Griffin v. Hodshire (1889) 119 Ind. 235, 21 N. E. 741; Cobleigh v. Spitznagle (1905) 120 Ill. App. 110; Leary v. Shaffer (1881) 79 Ind. 567. But this rule does not apply where the trustee has disclaimed any interest in the property. Scott v. Gordon (1904) 109 Mo. App. 695, 83 S. W. 550.

Instead of a decree of foreclosure, the state court may, in proper circumstances make its order giving the trustee in bankruptcy the right to redeem, or if he has no funds in hand for that purpose, it may order a sale under the mortgage, with directions that the surplus shall be paid into court for the benefit of the trustee. Jobbins v. Montague (1872) 23 N. J. Eq. 182. But no deficiency decree can be rendered against the mortgagor, at least until the question of his discharge has been determined. Scott v. Ellery (1892) 142 U. S. 381, 12 Sup. Ct. 233, 35 L. Ed. 1050; McKay v. Funk (1873) 37 Iowa, 661.

If foreclosure proceedings have proceeded in a state court so far as the rendition of a judgment or decree before any adjudication in bankruptcy is made, the whole matter is then within the exclusive jurisdiction of the state court, and the execution of the decree will not be stayed or enjoined. In re Gerdes (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 318, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 346; In re Holloway (D. C. 1899) 93 Fed. 638, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 659.

The adjudication in bankruptcy is no bar to an ejectment by a mortgagee against a third person, not connected with the trustee in bankruptcy, though such suit is brought without permission of the court of bankruptcy, where the trustee never assumed possession of nor intermeddled with the estate affected. Eyster v. Gaff (1873) 2 Colo. 228.

41. —— Restraining foreclosure in state court.—The court of bankruptcy may stop the prosecution of a foreclosure suit in a state court, where such suit was not begun until after the institution of the bankruptcy proceedings. In re San Gabriel Sanatorium Co. (1900) 102 Fed. 310, 42 C. C. A. 369, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 197. Or where the validity of the mortgage is denied on common-law grounds. In re Duryea (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 495, Fed. Cas. No. 4,196. Or where it is claimed that the lien of the mortgage was dissolved by the adjudication in bankruptcy following within four months after it was given. In re Oxley (D. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 1019, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 656. Or where the giving of the mortgage was the act of bankruptcy on which the adjudication was based. In re Donnelly (D. C. 1910) 188 Fed. 1001, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 304. Or where the proceedings taken by the holder of a chattel mortgage were not such as to bring the property within the jurisdiction of the state court. In re Brooks (D. C. 1898) 91 Fed. 508. But an adjudication that a mortgage is invalid as an illegal preference does not prevent the mortgagee from suing in a state court to foreclose the mortgage, so far as the same affects exempt property. Morris v. Covey (1912) 104 Ark. 226, 148 S. W. 257.

The court of bankruptcy will, in general, interfere with the creditor's proceedings only where the interests of the general creditors will be materially affected or where there is controversy as to the validity of the alleged lien. Goddard v. Weaver (C. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 440, Fed. Cas. No. 5,495. In the absence of such circumstances, it may permit the creditor to proceed in his own way and allow him to make a sale of the property. In re Lesser (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 433, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 815; In re Grinnell (D. C. 1873) 9 N. B. R. 29, Fed. Cas. No. 5,830; In re Sacchi (C. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 497, Fed. Cas. No. 12,200. If any fraud is discoverable in the sale, the bankruptcy court will not hesitate to interfere, as was done in a case where a pledgee of valuable collateral sold it to himself at a pretended auction sale for about one-sixth its nominal value, after the filing of a petition in bankruptcy against the pledgor, and without any other authority than the contract of pledge, and without notice to the pledgor or any other party in interest. In re Mertens (D. C. 1905) 134 Fed. 101, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 226. Where there was a growing crop on the mortgaged real property of a bankrupt which the trustee had been directed by the creditors to cultivate and harvest, the mortgagee would not be permitted to foreclose, though he might have any relief to which he would be entitled in equity, and, when the property was eventually sold, he could not suffer any diminution of right or be subjected to any greater expense than by a foreclosure in the state court. George B. Matthews & Sons v. Joseph Webre Co. (D. C. 1914) 213 Fed. 396. But where the whole property of the bankrupt, including that affected by the lien of a mortgage, has been sold in the bankruptcy proceedings, the secured creditor can enforce his lien upon the proceeds by proper application to the court of bankruptcy, and in these circumstances a foreclosure suit in a state court is unnecessary. Owen v. Potter (1898) 115 Mich. 556, 73 N. W. 977.

42. —— Protecting interests of general creditors.—Where it appears that it would be for the interest of the creditors at large to have mortgaged real estate taken by the trustee and administered with the remainder of the assets, preserving the lien of the secured creditor, the court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction to order the trustee to take possession of the property, and to enjoin the secured creditor from selling it or otherwise interfering with it. In re Booth (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 943, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 770; In re Zehner (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 787, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 536. As where it appears that its value greatly exceeds the amount of the incumbrance and that the surplus is more likely to be realized by a sale made by the trustee. In re Ball (D. C. 1902) 118 Fed. 672, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 276; In re Zehner (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 787, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 536. Or that the mortgagee is endeavoring to delay the sale unreasonably and to prevent the property from bringing a fair price. In re Holloway (D. C. 1899) 93 Fed. 638, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 659. Or where a large and valuable tract of land is incumbered by numerous mortgages, the separate foreclosure of which would involve heavy expense and leave little or nothing for the general creditors, while such a result could be avoided by administering the property in the bankruptcy proceeding. In re Pittelkow (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 901, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 472.

Since the trustee in bankruptcy when appointed, will be under the duty of investigating the security and the property which it is alleged to cover, and of determining whether there is any equity which can be made available for the general creditors, a sale made before he is qualified will be at least voidable as against him. In re Brooks (D. C. 1898) 91 Fed. 508, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 531; Taylor v. Robertson (C. C. 1884) 21 Fed. 209.

Another course open to the court of bankruptcy is to permit the mortgage creditor to continue his action in the state court, making the trustee a party, in order that all questions as to its validity under the state laws may be there determined, but at the same time to reserve to the trustee the right to sell the property in the bankruptcy proceedings and hold the proceeds to await the decision of the state court. In re Johnson (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 618, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 544. As to the mortgagee's claim on rents and profits of the property collected by the trustee while in possession, see In re Chase (D. C. 1904) 133 Fed. 79, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 294; In re Hollenfeltz (D. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 629, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 499.

43. —— Power of sale in mortgage or trust deed.—A power of sale given in a mortgage is not a power coupled with an interest, and therefore it is revoked by the bankruptcy of the mortgagor. Lockett v. Hill (C. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 167, Fed. Cas. No. 8,443: Morris v. Davidson (1873) 49 Ga. 361. But in the case of a deed of trust by which the legal title is vested in one or more trustees for the benefit of the lawful holder of the obligation secured, nothing comes within the scope of the bankruptcy proceedings but the grantor's reversionary or equitable title. McGready v. Harris (1873) 54 Mo. 137. See In re Davis (D. C. 1874) 2 N. B. R. 391, Fed. Cas. No. 3,618.

44. —— Abandonment of property by trustee.—If the trustee is satisfied that the secured creditor's claim is valid and that the property covered is of no greater value than will be sufficient to pay it, he may abandon the property to the creditor. Second Nat. Bank v. National State Bank (Ky. 1873) 10 Bush, 367; In re Moller (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 9,699. And when this is done it is perfectly permissible for the creditor to proceed as if no proceeding in bankruptcy were pending, and for a state court to take and exercise jurisdiction without regard to such proceeding. Stoddard v. Locke (1870) 43 Vt. 574, 5 Am. Rep. 308, 9 N. B. R. 71; Second Nat. Bank v. National State Bank (Ky. 1873) 10 Bush, 367. And such abandonment may be presumed when the trustee takes no steps to bring the property within the jurisdiction of the court of bankruptcy for administration. Crowe v. Reid (1876) 57 Ala. 281. Or when he permits a pending foreclosure suit to proceed without objection or intervention. In re Stansfield (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 268, Fed. Cas. No. 13,294.

45. Proceedings out of court.—As to property which comes to the trustee for administration, a landlord cannot enforce his claim for rent by distress, but is only entitled to proceed against the trustee in the bankruptcy court. In re Bishop (D. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 304, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 635. A creditor cannot levy execution on real property on which his judgment is a lien, unless permitted by the court of bankruptcy. In re Lesser (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 433, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 815. It must not be understood that the creditor, even if his judgment lien is perfect, will have the right to issue and levy an execution and cause a sale of the property, after it has passed into the control of the trustee in bankruptcy. While he has the advantageous position of a secured creditor, he will not be allowed to interfere, at will, with property in the custody of the bankruptcy court. Pennington v. Sale (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 572, Fed. Cas. No. 10,939; Davis v. Anderson (D. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 145, Fed. Cas. No. 3,623; Russell v. McCord (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 508, Fed. Cas. No. 12,157. Distress proceedings by a landlord against a bankrupt tenant not instituted until after adjudication in bankruptcy in the court of primary jurisdiction are unsustainable as against the bankrupt's trustee, who, under section 70a (post, § 9654), acquires title to the bankrupt's assets as of the date of adjudication. In re Printograph Sales Co. (D. C. 1914) 210 Fed. 567. Tax sales of a bankrupt's property made after the adjudication in bankruptcy may be avoided. Stanard v. Dayton (C. C. A. 1915) 220 Fed. 441. And a pre-existing tax lien cannot be converted into a full title by taking out a tax deed, without the sanction of the court. In re Eppstein (1907) 156 Fed. 42, 84 C. C. A. 208, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 89. A creditor may be restrained from proceeding to sell property under the power contained in a chattel mortgage or a deed of trust. Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. v. Kemper (1915) 220 Fed. 847, 136 C. C. A. 593; In re Hasie (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 789, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 83; In re Nathan (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 590; In re Jersey Island Packing Co. (1905) 138 Fed. 625, 71 C. C. A. 75, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 560, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 689. The holder of a chattel mortgage cannot take possession of the property covered after the appointment of a trustee in bankruptcy, without the consent of such trustee. In re Gutman (D. C. 1902) 114 Fed. 1009, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 252; In re Rosenberg (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 12,055; Hutchings v. Muzzy Iron Works (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 458, Fed. Cas. No. 6,952.

A pledgee, acting fairly, has the right to sell the property in accordance with the terms of the contract and apply the proceeds in payment of his debt, accounting to the trustee for any surplus, and he will not be enjoined from so doing. Hiscock v. Varick Bank (1907) 206 U. S. 28, 27 Sup. Ct. 681, 51 L. Ed. 945, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1; John Mathews, Inc., v. Knickerbocker Trust Co. (1911) 192 Fed. 557, 113 C. C. A. 29, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 627; In re Ironclad Mfg. Co. (C. C. A. 1912) 192 Fed. 318; In re Peacock (C. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 851, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 159; In re Mertens (1906) 144 Fed. 818, 75 C. C. A. 548, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 362; In re Mayer (C. C. A. 1907) 157 Fed. 836, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 356; In re Browne (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 762, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 220. Compare In re Cobb (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 821, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 129. But where bonds deposited as collateral to a corporation's note were simple promises to pay, not secured, and had never been issued by the bankrupt until delivery to secure the bankrupt's note, the creditor was held not entitled to sell the bonds to realize funds with which to pay the note, since to do so would simply increase the corporation's indebtedness, to the prejudice of other creditors. In re Matthews (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 445, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 19. Where one is employed in the capacity of a factor to purchase goods for a bankrupt, and the goods so bought are not shipped and sold under the bankrupt's instructions because of his bankruptcy, the factor is entitled to sell the property for the best price obtainable and charge the bankrupt with the loss in satisfaction of his lien. Couturie v. Roensch (Tex. Civ. App. 1911) 134 S. W. 413.

46. Redemption of property by trustee.—A trustee in bankruptcy is vested with such an interest in the mortgaged real estate of the bankrupt as entitles him to pay off the mortgage debt and have the mortgage assigned to himself or to a person designated by him, although it is not in process of foreclosure, where it is shown that such a course will be for the benefit of the estate, by enabling him to sell the property to better advantage; and the court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction, on his petition, to compel the mortgagee to accept payment and execute the assignment. In re Bacon (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 157, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 730; In re Straub (D. C. 1908) 158 Fed. 375, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 808; Foster v. Ames (C. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 455, Fed. Cas. No. 4,965. Where payment of an alleged specific lien is made by a bankrupt's trustee after notice to all creditors and without objection, a general judgment creditor claiming a prior lien cannot thereafter object, the rule being that lien creditors who are not prompt and persistent in asserting their rights may lose them. In re Torchia (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 576, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 188.

47. Sale of property by order of bankruptcy court.—The court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction and power to dispose of incumbered property of the bankrupt in any manner deemed best for the interests of all concerned. It may order such property to be sold by the trustee in bankruptcy, and may direct the sale to be made subject to a particular lien, admitted to be valid, or free of all liens and incumbrances, and in the latter case the proceeds of the sale will be brought into court for distribution to those entitled, and any valid lien will be transferred from the property to the fund in court. In re Booth (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 943, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 770; In re Pittelkow (D. C. 1891) 92 Fed. 901, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 479; In re Schnepf (D. C. 1867) 1 N. B. R. 190, Fed. Cas. No. 12,471; In re Bowie (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 628, Fed. Cas. No. 1,728; In re Hambright (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 498, Fed. Cas. No. 5,973; Davis v. Anderson (D. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 145, Fed. Cas. No. 3,623; In re Salmons (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 56, Fed. Cas. No. 12,268; Second Nat. Bank v. National State Bank (Ky. 1873) 10 Bush, 367, 11 N. B. R. 49. It is within the jurisdiction of the court, admitting the validity of a lien claimed on property of the bankrupt, to order the sale of the property and the payment of the lien creditor out of the proceeds, preserving the remainder for the general creditors. In re Arden (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 475, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 684; In re Vastbinder (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 718, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 148. And this action may be taken not only at the instance of the trustee in bankruptcy, but the lien creditor himself may petition the court to take charge of the property and order its sale, or for leave to conduct the sale himself, in either case first proving his debt and making at least a prima facie showing as to the validity and priority of his lien. In re Stewart (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 278, Fed. Cas. No. 13,418; In re Bigelow (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 632, Fed. Cas. No. 1,396.

An order of the bankruptcy court so made will oust the jurisdiction of the state courts to foreclose the lien in the ordinary way. In re Devore (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 56, Fed. Cas. No. 3,847.

If it is quite clear that the property is not worth anything more than the amount of the mortgage or other incumbrance upon it, the court will not order its sale, but will leave the creditor to deal with it in his own way. In re Lambert (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 426, Fed. Cas. No. 8,026; Foster v. Ames (C. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 4,965.

If a sale has been ordered and made and the proceeds brought into court, all questions concerning the right of the creditor to payment out of the fund, or the amount to which he is entitled, must be determined by the bankruptcy court on a petition for distribution, not by a suit at law. In re Masterson (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 553, Fed. Cas. No. 9,268. And if the property does not bring as much as the amount of the lien, the creditor is not entitled to be paid in full out of the estate as holding a privileged debt; in other words, he cannot come upon the general funds of the estate for the deficiency in the character of a lien creditor, though he may prove a claim for such deficiency as a general or unsecured creditor. In re Purcell (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 11,469. And even ahead of the claim of the lien creditor, the proper costs and expenses of the sale must be paid out of the proceeds. In re Baughman (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 669, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 81; In re Ellerhorst (C. C. 1872) 7 N. B. R. 49, Fed. Cas. No. 4,380; In re Dummont (D. C. 1871) 4 N. B. R. 17, Fed. Cas. No. 4,127. Where property incumbered by a valid lien is sold, and more is realized than is required to satisfy the lien, the surplus will be available for creditors. But if the bankrupt had a right to compel contribution from a person jointly interested with him in the property, the claim of creditors to be subrogated to this right can only be considered and determined in ancillary proceedings instituted for that purpose. In re Straub (D. C. 1908) 158 Fed. 375, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 808.

48. Marshalling assets.—As among the various secured creditors of a bankrupt, the general equitable principle of marshalling securities will be applied, so that a creditor having security on two or more funds or properties will be required to exhaust that on which his lien stands alone, before proceeding against that on which other creditors beside himself have liens. In re Sauthoff (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 364, Fed. Cas. No. 12,379; In re Bowler (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 1,735; McLean v. Lafayette Bank (C. C. 1848) Fed. Cas. No. 8,889. Where a creditor held several judgment notes against a debtor and also some mortgages and two insurance policies as collateral, and caused judgment to be entered on the notes and execution issued thereon, and shortly afterwards a petition was filed against the debtor and he was adjudged bankrupt, it was held that the court had power so to marshall the assets as to require such creditor to foreclose a mortgage before resorting to the general fund. In re Sauthoff (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 364, Fed. Cas. No. 12,379. Where the purchaser of a tract of land gave a mortgage back covering the entire property and afterwards divided it into lots, and sold some of them, and others remained on his hands at the time of his adjudication in bankruptcy, and these were sold by the trustee in bankruptcy discharged of incumbrances, thus displacing the lien of a second mortgage which covered these lots only, it was held that the fund belonged to the first mortgagee and not to the second. In re Carothers (D. C. 1882) 12 Fed. 692.

III. FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES VOIDABLE BY TRUSTEE

49. Construction of this section.—The conveyances or transfers intended by subdivision "e" of this section are only such as are fraudulent either at common law or under the statutes of the state, as distinguished from those which are in fraud of the bankruptcy act itself. Bailey v. Wood (1912) 211 Mass. 37, 97 N. E. 902, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 950; Allen v. Montgomery (1873) 48 Miss. 101.

Prior to the filing of a voluntary bankruptcy petition, the bankrupt is the owner of all his property and may sell and incumber it except in fraud of creditors or in violation of law, and after filing and prior to adjudication he retains title though holding as trustee for creditors. In re Banks (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 662.

With subdivision "e" of this section should be compared section 70e (post, § 9654). In consequence of the latter provision, it is held that, if there be any kind of transfer of property which a creditor of the grantor might have avoided, though it was neither made with intent to delay or defraud creditors nor is denounced as void by the laws of the state, then the trustee in bankruptcy may avoid it, and without any regard to the time when it was made as compared with the date of bankruptcy. Joseph v. Raff (1903) 176 N. Y. 611, 68 N. E. 1118; Treseder v. Burgor (1906) 130 Wis. 201, 109 N. W. 957; Friedman v. Verchofsky (1903) 105 Ill. App. 414; Sharp v. Fitzhugh (1905) 75 Ark. 562, 88 S. W. 929; Boyd v. Arnold (1912) 103 Ark. 105, 146 S. W. 118; Thomas v. Fletcher (D. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 226, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623; In re Toothaker Bros. (D. C. 1904) 128 Fed. 187, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 99; In re Schenck (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 554, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 727. Notwithstanding these specific provisions, the whole act must be read in the light of the predominating purpose of congress with reference to the distribution of the assets, which was to prevent any inequality of payment among the unsecured creditors. Sellers v. Hayes (1904) 163 Ind. 422, 72 N. E. 119.

50. Rights of trustee as to transfers.—With respect to the ownership of property in general, and so far as regards valid sales, liens, and incumbrances, the trustee merely succeeds to the title of the bankrupt and has no stronger rights than he. In re Great Western Mfg. Co. (1907) 152 Fed. 123, 81 C. C. A. 341, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 259.

By the express terms of the act, the trustee represents creditors, succeeds to their rights, and is invested with the same rights of action which they would have had (if bankruptcy had not intervened) concerning any such conveyances or transfers. In re Lukens (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 188, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 683; Fourth Street Nat. Bank v. Millbourne Mills Co.'s Trustee (1909) 172 Fed. 177, 96 C. C. A. 629, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 442; In re Rodgers (1903) 125 Fed. 169, 60 C. C. A. 567, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 79; Pfeiffer v. Roe (1905) 108 App. Div. 54, 95 N. Y. Supp. 1014; Beasley v. Smith (Ga. 1915) 87 S. E. 293. A trustee in bankruptcy holds not only the legal title to the bankrupt's estate, but he also represents the creditors of the bankrupt, and has such rights as the creditors possessed, and he can avoid any transfer which the creditors could have avoided, and the trustee has plenary power to take all steps necessary to subject the bankrupt's property to the satisfaction of his debts. Benner v. Scandinavian American Bank (Wash. 1913) 131 P. 1149. The trustee in bankruptcy may, by proper proceedings, avoid or annul any transfer made by the bankrupt which any creditor might have attacked by similar proceedings. Thomas v. Roddy (1907) 122 App. Div. 851, 107 N. Y. Supp. 473; Cox v. Wall (1903) 132 N. C. 730, 44 S. E. 635; Landis v. McDonald (1901) 88 Mo. App. 335; Studebaker Bros. Mfg. Co. v. Elsey-Hemphill Carriage Co. (1911) 152 Mo. App. 401, 133 S. W. 412; Earle v. National Metallurgic Co. (1910) 77 N. J. Eq. 17, 76 Atl. 555; Hunt v. Doyal (1907) 128 Ga. 416, 57 S. E. 489; In re Mullen (D. C. 1900)

101 Fed. 413, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 224; Everett v. Stone (C. C. 1844) Fed. Cas. No. 4,577; Bradshaw v. Klein (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 542, Fed. Cas. No. 1,-790; In re Metzger (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 355, Fed. Cas. No. 9,510; In re Leland (D. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 209, Fed. Cas. No. 8,230; Id. (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 8,234. The trustee occupies exactly as strong a position, and especially since the amendment of 1910, as a creditor who has levied an attachment or one who holds a judgment or an unsatisfied execution. In re Rodgers (1903) 125 Fed. 169, 60 C. C. A. 567, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 79; Bunnell v. Bronson (1906) 78 Conn. 679, 63 Atl. 396; Putnam v. Southworth (1908) 197 Mass. 270, 83 N. E. 887; In re Carpenter (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 831, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 147. Since an execution creditor may maintain an action of trespass on the case against persons who have fraudulently conspired to secrete and transfer the property of the debtor, such an action may be maintained by the debtor's trustee in bankruptcy subsequently appointed, by virtue of the amendment of 1910 giving him the rights and remedies of an execution creditor. Sattler v. Slonimsky (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 592, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 729. The trustee in bankruptcy may maintain a suit to set aside any fraudulent conveyance made within four months before the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, which could have been attacked by creditors holding an attachment or an unsatisfied execution. Allen v. Massey (1872) 17 Wall. 351, 21 L. Ed. 542; Schmitt v. Dahl (1903) 88 Minn. 506, 93 N. W. 665, 67 L. R. A. 590; Adams' Assignee v. Branch (1880) 3 Ky. Law Rep. 178; McMaster v. Campbell (1879) 41 Mich. 513, 2 N. W. 836. A corporation's trustee in bankruptcy has capacity to contest the validity of a mortgage covering the bankrupt's real and personal property. Pacific State Bank v. Coats (C. C. A. 1913) 205 Fed. 618, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 655. It is immaterial to the trustee's right of action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance or transfer that the particular transaction would have been valid and binding as between the immediate parties to it. Dulany v. Morse (1913) 39 App. D. C. 523; Adams v. Merchants' Nat. Bank (C. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 174; Crooks v. Stuart (C. C. 1881) 7 Fed. 800; Mann v. Flower (1879) 25 Minn. 500. It is immaterial that the bankrupt himself could not have sustained an action to recover the money or property, vacate the conveyance, or otherwise annul his own act. Elmore v. Symonds (1903) 183 Mass. 321, 67 N. E. 314; Bennett v. Ætna Ins. Co. (1909) 201 Mass. 554, 88 N. E. 335, 131 Am. St. Rep. 414; Carr v. Gale (C. C. 1847) Fed. Cas. No. 2,435.

As to property conveyed in fraud of creditors, the trustee is not merely a successor to the rights of defrauded creditors, but he is invested with the title. Hillyer v. Le Roy (1903) 84 App. Div. 129, 82 N. Y. Sup. 80; Annis v. Butterfield (1904) 99 Me. 181, 58 Atl. 898; Starks v. Curd (1889) 88 Ky. 164, 10 S. W. 419; In re Wynne (C. C. 1868) 4 N. B. R. 23, Fed. Cas. No. 18,117; Mann v. Flower (1879) 25 Minn. 500. And he may sue to vacate or avoid any fraudulent transfer of the bankrupt's property, whether or not there is any creditor armed with a lien or otherwise in position to attack such transfer. Sheldon v. Parker (1902) 66 Neb. 610, 92 N. W. 923. And see Faulkner v. Kaplon (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 114. CONTRA, Coleman v. Hughey (Mo. 1913) 158 S. W. 829.

A bill by the trustee to vacate a fraudulent conveyance should be maintained in his own name as trustee, and not in the name of the bankrupt or of any creditor. Exchange Nat. Bank v. Stewart (1909) 158 Ala. 218, 48 South. 487. As it is the duty of the trustee to represent the unsecured creditors, he is not entitled to sue to annul a conveyance merely as given in fraud of a creditor who has a lien on the property. Cowan v. Staggs (Ala. 1912) 59 South. 153. A suit by a trustee in bankruptcy to divest from defendants title to property of the bankrupt corporation claimed to have been fraudulently conveyed to defendants is brought on the theory that the transfer of the property was in fraud of the corporate creditors, and, if it was not fraudulent, the suit cannot be maintained. Coleman v. Hagey (Mo. 1913) 158 S. W. 829. The trustee cannot complain of the fraudulent character of a mortgage given by a purchaser from the bankrupt to a third person, unless he can impeach the sale from the bankrupt to the purchaser on other grounds. Sellers v. Hayes (1904) 163 Ind. 422, 72 N. E. 119.

51. Election by trustee.—Where property is alleged to have been conveyed in fraud of creditors, but it appears that it could only be recovered by costly and doubtful litigation, with probable small benefit to the estate, the trustee is not bound to claim the property, but he may elect either to do so, and to proceed for its recovery, or not to claim it, and if he does not elect to take it within a reasonable time, it is deemed an election to reject it. Nash v. Simpson (1886) 78 Me. 142, 3 Atl. 53. If the trustee has once elected not to attempt to set aside a conveyance or transfer by the bankrupt, he cannot afterwards come into equity to attack it. Laughlin v. Calumet & C. Canal & Dock Co. (1895) 65 Fed. 441, 13 C. C. A. 1. And see Greenhall v. Carnegie Trust Co. (D. C. 1910) 180 Fed. 812, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 300. Where a debtor, within four months before his bankruptcy, sold and assigned certain accounts to a third person, and his trustee, with full knowledge of the facts, applied for and obtained an order from the court of bankruptcy requiring the bankrupt to turn over a part of the proceeds of the sale which had not been accounted for, such action of the trustee was held an election to affirm the sale and he could not thereafter maintain a petition against the assignee to recover the accounts, on the ground that the sale was fraudulent. Thomas v. Sugerman (1907) 157 Fed. 669, 85 C. C. A. 337, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 509.

52. Trustee's right of action exclusive.—Before the appointment of a trustee in bankruptcy, creditors may, if necessary to preserve their rights, sue to set aside fraudulent transfers or conveyances. Guaranty Title & Trust Co. v. Pearlman (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 550, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 461.

After the adjudication in bankruptcy and the appointment of a trustee, no creditor has the right to institute legal proceedings to set aside a transfer or conveyance alleged to have been fraudulent, as that right pertains to the trustee alone. Trimble v. Woodhead (1880) 102 U. S. 647, 26 L. Ed. 290; Glenny v. Langdon (1878) 98 U. S. 20, 25 L. Ed. 43; Barnes Mfg. Co. v. Norden (1902) 67 N. J. Law, 493, 51 Atl. 454; In re Gray (1900) 47 App. Div. 554, 62 N. Y. Supp. 618; Elder's Ex'rs v. Harris (1882) 76 Va. 187; Bolling v. Munchus (1877) 59 Ala. 482; Thurmond v. Andrews (Ky. 1893) 10 Bush, 400, 13 N. B. R. 157; Anderson v. Anderson (1883) 80 Ky. 638; Allen v. Montgomery (1873) 48 Miss. 101, 10 N. B. R. 503; Goodwin v. Sharkey (N. Y. 1868) 5 Abb. Prac. N. S. 64, 3 N. B. R. 558; Scott v. Devlin (D. C. 1898) 89 Fed. 970; In re Lowe (D. C. 1884) 19 Fed. 589; New Orleans Nat. Banking Ass'n v. Le Breton (C. C. 1882) 14 Fed. 646; Allen v. Massey (C. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 248, Fed. Cas. No. 231; McMahon v. Pithan (Iowa, 1914) 147 N. W. 920. CONTRA, Robinson v. Tischler (Fla. 1915) 67 South. 565. As to suits begun by creditors more than four months before the bankruptcy, the right to continue them after the appointment of a trustee, and the preference gained by the suing creditors, see Boyd v. Arnold (1912) 103 Ark. 105, 146 S. W. 118; Hillyer v. Le Roy (1904) 179 N. Y. 369, 72 N. E. 237, 103 Am. St. Rep. 919. Where a bankrupt's creditors, seeking equitable relief on the ground of fraud by reason of equitable liens acquired prior to the bankruptcy proceedings, do not purposely violate the bankruptcy law or seek an unlawful preference, they are entitled to equitable relief. Robinson v. Tischler (Fla. 1915) 67 So. 565. The adjudication in bankruptcy and appointment of a trustee constitute a complete defense to a creditor's bill filed for such a purpose in a state court. Leseure v. Weaver (1902) 108 Ill. App. 616.

The refusal or failure of the trustee in bankruptcy to sue for the avoidance of an alleged fraudulent conveyance within the time prescribed by law, or at all, does not transfer the right to any creditor or to the creditors generally, nor authorize them to sue in their own behalf. Moyer v. Dewey (1880) 103 U. S. 301, 26 L. Ed. 394; Ruhl-Koblegard Co. v. Gillespie (1907) 61 W. Va. 584, 56 S. E. 898, 10 L. R. A. (N. S.) 305, 11 Ann. Cas. 929. Compare Bates v. Bradley (N. Y. 1881) 24 Hun, 84. CONTRA, Casey v. Baker (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 247. The remedy of creditors who are dissatisfied with the refusal or inactivity of the trustee is to apply to the court of bankruptcy for an order directing the trustee to institute the necessary proceedings. If the court is satisfied that such action should be taken and will probably result in benefit to the estate, it has power to require the trustee to proceed. Glenny v. Langdon (1878) 98 U. S. 20, 25 L. Ed. 43; McMaster v. Campbell (1879) 41 Mich. 513, 2 N. W. 836; Freelander v. Holloman (D. C. 1873) 9 N. B. R. 331, Fed. Cas. No. 5,081.

53. Conditions precedent to trustee's action.—Since the bankruptcy law vests the trustee with title to all property conveyed by the bankrupt in fraud of creditors, he may proceed to recover such property notwithstanding the fact that there may be, at the time, no creditor who has put his claim in judgment and thus placed himself in a position to assail the transfer as fraudulent. The trustee's title "accrues by force of the act, and not through the right of the creditor to assert the fraud." Platt v. Matthews (D. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 280. The bankruptcy law makes it impossible for creditors to reduce their claims to judgment after the adjudication, although this is usually necessary as a condition precedent to the right to avoid a fraudulent conveyance, or even that the creditor should hold an execution returned unsatisfied. Thomas v. Roddy (1907) 122 App. Div. 851, 107 N. Y. Supp. 473; Riker v. Gwynne (Sup. 1908) 116 N. Y. Supp. 10. But the trustee occupies the position of an execution creditor, and hence it is not a prerequisite to his right to institute proceedings for such purpose, nor a condition to his action, that judgments at law should have been obtained upon the claims of the creditors in whose behalf the equitable remedy is invoked. Mitchell v. Mitchell (D. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 280, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 382; Mueller v. Bruss (1901) 112 Wis. 406, 88 N. W. 229; Thomas v. Roddy (1907) 122 App. Div. 851, 107 N. Y. Supp. 473; Crary v. Kurtz (1906) 132 Iowa, 105, 105 N. W. 590, 109 N. W. 452, 119 Am. St. Rep. 549; Beasley v. Coggins (1904) 48 Fla. 215, 37 South. 213, 5 Ann. Cas. 801; Hobbs v. Frazier (1911) 61 Fla. 611, 55 South. 848; Hood v. Blair State Bank (1902) 3 Neb. (Unof.) 432, 91 N. W. 701; Ryan v. Rogers (1908) 14 Idaho, 309, 94 Pac.

427; Cragin v. Carmichael (C. C. 1873) 11 N. B. R. 511, Fed. Cas. No. 3,319. Compare Earle v. National Metallurgic Co. (1910) 77 N. J. Eq. 17, 76 Atl. 555. Nor is any demand necessary before the commencement of an action by the trustee to recover property unlawfully transferred by the bankrupt. Goldberg v. Harlan (1903) 33 Ind. App. 465, 67 N. E. 707. Neither is he bound to tender to the purchaser the amount which the latter may have paid to the bankrupt. Johnston v. Forsyth Mercantile Co. (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 845, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 669. The trustee is bound to show some actionable injury to the estate which he represents, and therefore an action will not lie to avoid an alleged fraudulent sale of personal property, where the goods have already been seized under a warrant in bankruptcy and turned over to the trustee, whose possession is undisputed. Smith v. Claflin (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 523, Fed. Cas. No. 13,026.

54. —— Proof of debts and insufficiency of assets.—In a suit to set aside a fraudulent conveyance or transfer, the trustee must be prepared to show that there were creditors of the bankrupt at the time of the alleged fraud, except in those cases where the transaction may be regarded as fraudulent with respect to subsequent creditors. Union Trust Co. v. Amery (1912) 67 Wash. 1, 120 Pac. 539; Coleman v. Hagey (Mo. 1913) 158 S. W. 829. Also he must allege and show that there are proved and allowed claims against the estate in bankruptcy, or at least provable debts, at the time of bringing the suit, for otherwise there would be no one for him to represent and a recovery would simply inure to the benefit of the bankrupt himself, which is not the purpose of the act. Crary v. Kurtz (1906) 132 Iowa, 105, 105 N. W. 590, 109 N. W. 452, 119 Am. St. Rep. 549; Leavengood v. McGee (1907) 50 Or. 233, 91 Pac. 453; Nicholas v. Murray (C. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 469, Fed. Cas. No. 10,223. See Treseder v. Burgor (1906) 130 Wis. 201, 109 N. W. 957. Compare Donegan v. Davis (1880) 66 Ala. 362. Hence, if the creditors purporting to be represented in the action by the trustee have failed to present their claims for allowance within the time required by the statute, and are therefore barred from participation in the estate, the action cannot be maintained. Cartwright v. West (1911) 173 Ala. 198, 55 South. 917. Such a suit may be prosecuted for the sole benefit of one person, if he is the only creditor of the bankrupt. Level Land Co. v. Sivyer (1901) 112 Wis. 442, 88 N. W. 317. But not where that creditor has so conducted himself with reference to the transaction in suit as to estop himself from alleging its fraudulent character. Parker v. Travers (1908) 74 N. J. Eq. 812, 71 Atl. 612.

Further, and to put himself in a position analogous to that of a creditor holding an execution returned unsatisfied, the trustee must aver that the assets of the estate in his hands are not sufficient to satisfy the claims filed against it. Knapp v. Milwaukee Trust Co. (1910) 216 U. S. 545, 30 Sup. Ct. 412, 54 L. Ed. 610; Prescott v. Galluccio (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 618, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 229; Mueller v. Bruss (1901) 112 Wis. 406, 88 N. W. 229; Flint v. Chaloupka (1908) 81 Neb. 87, 115 N. W. 535; Shelly v. Nolen (1905) 38 Tex. Civ. App. 343, 88 S. W. 524; McKey v. Smith (1912) 255 Ill. 465, 99 N. E. 695. Compare Entwisle v. Cohen (1910) 141 App. Div. 834, 125 N. Y. Supp. 935. It is not necessary for the trustee to allege and show an insufficiency of assets where the bankrupt states in his petition or schedule that he has no assets. In re Schoenfield (D. C. 1911) 190 Fed. 53, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 64.

55. Nature and form of transaction.—Any disposition of real or personal property by a debtor which would have been void as against his creditors, as being fraudulent at common law or under the statutes of the state, if no petition in bankruptcy had been filed against him, will be equally void as against creditors represented by his trustee in bankruptcy. Union Trust & Sav. Bank v. Amery (1913) 72 Wash. 648, 131 Pac. 199; In re Wynne (C. C. 1868) 4 N. B. R. 23, Fed. Cas. No. 18,117; In re Morrill (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 117, Fed. Cas. No. 9,821; Smith v. Ely (C. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 553, Fed. Cas. No. 13,044. This section applies to an act by which bankrupt surrenders his property for the benefit of a particular creditor. Bailey v. Baker Ice Mach. Co. (1915) 36 S. Ct. 50. An indorser or guarantor of a note of a bankrupt is a creditor within section 60b (ante, § 9644), so as to charge him with a preferential payment made to the holder of the note, and he and the owner of the note may be charged for the receipt of a preferential payment, but only the amount by which the assets of the estate have thereby been depleted must be returned. Continental & Commercial Trust & Savings Bank v. Breen & Kennedy (1914) 188 Ill. App. 467. Where the evidence showed that the defendant and another conspired with the bankrupt in the conveyance of property of the bankrupt to the defendant for the purpose of defrauding creditors of the former, the principles governing constructive fraud are inapplicable. Blake v. Thwing (1914) 185 Ill. App. 187. A general assignment by a debtor, available at common law or made pursuant to a state statute, not providing for the debtor's release, and hence not an insolvent law, is upheld if not attacked by federal bankruptcy proceedings within the time limited therefor. Pelton v. Sheridan (Or. 1914) 144 P. 410. Deposit just before bankruptcy of all one's assets, to be paid to creditors pro rata, is a general assignment for creditors, void against the trustee in bankruptcy, as regards right to administer them. Gill v. Farmers' & Manufacturers' Bank (1915) 176 S. W. 1111, 189 Mo. App. 401. Bankrupt having made assignments for the benefit of creditors, sales of his stocks of goods by the assignee to his daughter and his wife's nephew held fraudulent, and for the benefit of bankrupt. Faulkner v. Kaplon (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 114.

56. —— Sale and transfer of property.—One may lawfully sell any part of his property for a present fair consideration, even though he is insolvent, and the transfer will not be voidable in bankruptcy, if the laws of the state were complied with in respect to delivery and other such requisites, and there was no intent to place the property beyond the reach of creditors. In re Ozark Cooperage & Lumber Co. (1910) 180 Fed. 105, 103 C. C. A. 603, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 835; Burnes v. Epstein (D. C. 1913) 201 Fed. 393. And see Meyer v. Perkins, 20 Cal. App. 661, 130 Pac. 206. The mere fact that the defendant, having purchased property from the bankrupt, got it at a bargain price or for much less than its actual value, is not enough to warrant setting aside the sale as fraudulent, since mere inadequacy of price is not alone a proof of fraud. Klein v. Gallin (1913) 141 N. Y. Supp. 831. Selection, separation, weighing, and marking of certain hop bales by the buyer on the seller's ranch, and transportation thereof to the station for shipment to a consignee, held a sufficient delivery and change of possession to render the transfer valid under Civ. Code Cal. § 3440. Williamson v. Richardson (1913) 205 Fed. 245, 123 C. C. A. 427.

A transfer of property for a past consideration, or in discharge of an unsecured debt, will generally be voidable either as a preference or as a fraud on the creditors. In re Webb Co. (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 258; Carpenter v. Karnow (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 762, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 21; Greenhall v. Carnegie Trust Co. (D. C. 1910) 180 Fed. 812, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 300; In re Connelly (D. C. 1913) 204 Fed. 479, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 340; Raley v. Raymond Bros. Co. (1905) 73 Neb. 496, 103 N. W. 57; In re Ansley Bros. (D. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 983, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 457. But where a debtor, shortly before his bankruptcy, conveys real and personal property which he had previously sold and for which he had received payment, but had not yet conveyed, the conveyance is not void, although the debtor knew that he was insolvent, as the title to such property was merely held by him in trust for the purchaser. Steadman v. Caswell (D. C. 1880) Fed. Cas. No. 13,330a. A contract of conditional sale of machinery to a bankrupt, duly filed in accordance with Gen. St. Kan. 1909, § 5237, though within four months prior to bankruptcy, held not a "transfer" by the bankrupt to the claimant, but a retention of title in him and enforceable against the bankrupt's trustee. Baker Ice Mach. Co. v. Bailey (1913) 209 Fed. 603, 126 C. C. A. 425. Where defendant received certain notes of third persons and a check from a bankrupt after having delivered to him a car load of metal, which became a part of the bankrupt's estate, but which was not paid for, defendant was entitled to retain the notes and check regardless of his knowledge of the bankrupt's insolvency. Burnes v. Epstein (D. C. 1913) 201 Fed. 393. Where W. sold an automobile truck to a bankrupt, without reserving a lien for the unpaid portion of the price, and later, with knowledge of impending bankruptcy, accepted a return of the truck, and sold it to another, and appropriated the proceeds, he was properly required to surrender such proceeds to the bankrupt's trustee. In re Cónnelly (D. C. 1913) 204 Fed. 479.

The trustee in bankruptcy may avoid a pretended sale which is merely colorable, and amounts to no more than a device to put the apparent title in a third person while the debtor remains the real owner. In re Siegel (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 559, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 154; Visanska v. Cohen (D. C. 1908) 165 Fed. 552, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 350. And a transaction whereby a chose in action is assigned to a third person, without any consideration, but merely that he may collect the money and hand it to the bankrupt. O'Sullivan's Trustee v. Douglass (1907) 30 Ky. Law Rep. 366, 98 S. W. 990. Or where the sale includes the fixtures and furniture and the lease of the debtor's place of business, and so deprives him of the means of continuing his business. Brooks v. D'Orville (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 1,951. Or where a voluntary settlement by a debtor effects the payment of debts and contingent liabilities existing at the time, but by means of contracting other obligations, which result afterwards in his insolvency. Spaulding v. McGovern (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 13,218. A transaction by which a bankrupt transferred accounts receivable receiving advances thereon of a certain per cent. of their face held a pledge and not a sale of the accounts, and the contracts under which the pledges were made held usurious. Home Bond Co. v. McChesney (C. C. A. 1914) 210 Fed. 893, affirming order In re American Fibre Reed Co. (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 309. Where persons who subsequently became stockholders of a corporation placed property in the hands of a bankrupt, on the faith of which money was loaned to her, a subsequent transfer of the property to the corporation for the benefit of such stockholders was fraudulent and subject to vacation at the instance of the bankrupt's trustee. Osborn v. Peace (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 181. Advancement to enable bankrupt to keep in business long enough to prevent avoidance of prior preferences is a fraud on the bankruptcy act, so that the trustee can recover property assigned in consideration of the advancement. Rubenstein v. Lottow (1915) 107 N. E. 718, 220 Mass. 156.

57. —— Transfers to bankrupt's wife.—A transfer of property by a debtor to his wife, either directly or through an intermediary, should be carefully scrutinized, and it will be voidable at the instance of his trustee in bankruptcy if found to have been without consideration and in contemplation of insolvency, or merely colorable, the wife taking the record title, but the husband retaining all the fruits of ownership and the power of disposition. Henkel v. Seider (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 553, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 773; In re Smith (D. C. 1899) 100 Fed. 795, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 95; In re Wood (D. C. 1881) 5 Fed. 443; Fisher v. Henderson (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 175, Fed. Cas. No. 4,820; Lawrence v. Graves (C. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 279, Fed. Cas. No. 8,138; Saxton v. Sebring (1904) 96 App. Div. 570, 89 N. Y. Supp. 372; Breschemier v. Houston (Iowa, 1903) 96 N. W. 756; In re Eldred (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 256, Fed. Cas. No. 4,328; Jackson v. Jetter (Iowa, 1913) 142 N. W. 431. Use of bankrupt's money by his brother in creating a trust for the bankrupt's wife for the purpose of concealing bankrupt's money held a transfer avoidable by the trustee, as one which a creditor might have avoided. Milkman v. Arthe (D. C. 1914) 213 Fed. 642. A trustee in bankruptcy may recover from the bankrupt's wife property purchased by her savings from money given her for the maintenance of the household, which was not a valid gift by the husband. Milkman v. Arthe (D. C. 1914) 221 Fed. 134, decree reversed (1915) 223 Fed. 507, 139 C. C. A. 55.

58. —— Fraudulent incorporation.—Where an embarrassed merchant or manufacturer procures the organization of a corporation, to which he transfers his stock and property, ostensibly as his successor in business, but which is really conducted thereafter solely for his own benefit, the purpose being to delay and defraud his creditors by interposing an apparently new ownership between the property and their claims, such a transfer is voidable in bankruptcy. In re Berkowitz (D. C. 1908) 173 Fed. 1013, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 233; In re Holbrook Shoe & Leather Co. (D. C. 1908) 165 Fed. 973, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 511; In re Medina Quarry Co. (D. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 929, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 769; Ludvigh v. American Woolen Co. (D. C. 1907) 159 Fed. 796, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 795; Foster v. Hip Lung Ying Kee & Co. (1909) 243 Ill. 163, 90 N. E. 375. See In re L. M. Alleman Hardware Co. (D. C. 1907) 158 Fed. 119, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 765; In re Jamaica Slate Roofing & Supply Co. (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 460. Bankrupt's wife held to have received voidable preference, where bankrupt assigned lease of dancing academy to her, and organized corporation, transferring the bulk of the stock to her. Block v. Academy Ball Room, Inc. (D. C. 1915) 221 Fed. 1004. But it is otherwise where the creditors themselves engineer the formation of the corporation, or cause it to be operated for their benefit, rather than for that of the debtor. In re A. L. Robertshaw Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1904) 133 Fed. 556, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 409.

59. —— Mortgage or other lien or security.—One may take a mortgage or other security upon the property of an insolvent or failing debtor, and maintain it as against his trustee in bankruptcy, provided full and present consideration was given and there was no knowledge of an intent to defraud or to give a preference. In re Mosher (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 739; Grinstead v. Union Savings & Trust Co. (1911) 190 Fed. 546, 111 C. C. A. 398, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 123; Lindley v. Ross (C. C. A. 1912) 200 Fed. 733, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 610; First Nat. Bank v. Haverkampf (1911) 16 N. M. 497, 121 Pac. 31. A conveyance of property by a bankrupt to a mortgagee in payment of that and other valid liens is not voidable in the bankruptcy proceedings. Meservey v. Roby (1912) 198 Fed. 844, 117 C. C. A. 486, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 529. Nor is the enforcement of an existing mechanic's lien necessarily invalid as against subsequent proceedings in bankruptcy. Fehling v. Goings (1904) 67 N. J. Eq. 375, 58 Atl. 642. Nor a transaction the effect of which is merely to render specific a previously existing general lien. Duplan Silk Co. v. Spencer (1902) 115 Fed. 689, 53 C. C. A. 321, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 367. An antecedent agreement by a debtor to execute a mortgage to a particular creditor to secure its claim did not render the mortgage, when executed, fraudulent as to the mortgagor's other creditors. In re Hawks (D. C. 1913) 204 Fed. 309. It is not necessarily fraudulent in bankruptcy to convert alimony due and accruing under a decree of court into an annuity for life secured by a duly recorded mortgage of specific property. Savage v. Savage (1905) 141 Fed. 346, 72 C. C. A. 494, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 599.

But a mortgage or other security newly given for a debt past due is generally voidable in bankruptcy, either as a preference or as a fraud on the other creditors. In re Salvator Brewing Co. (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 910, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 536; Bradley v. Farwell (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 1,779; Bradley v. Converse (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 1,776; Durack v. Wilson (1905) 46 Misc. Rep. 237, 94 N. Y. Supp. 232; Mathews v. Hardt (1903) 79 App. Div. 570, 80 N. Y. Supp. 462. That a renewal of a chattel mortgage may be invalid as against the trustee in bankruptcy of the debtor, see Scott v. One Thousand Island Boat & Engine Co. (Sup. 1911) 134 N. Y. Supp. 150. Adjudication in bankruptcy held to avoid assignment of mortgaged property for payment of the mortgages and payment of any balance to unsecured creditors, and the property, subject to the mortgages, passed to the trustee. In re Cutler & John (D. C. 1916) 228 Fed. 771. A deed of trust executed to secure a present advancement by the beneficiary with knowledge of the bankrupt's insolvency in order to take up notes held by a pressing creditor with knowledge that foreclosure would result in the reduction of the value of the bankrupt's assets, the payment of a preferred debt, and failure to pay other debts, was constructively fraudulent and invalid. Dean v. Davis (C. C. A. 1914) 212 Fed. 88.

A temporary loan upon exorbitant interest, upon the conveyance of the insolvent borrower's whole assets, is a fraud on the bankruptcy law and is void. Brooks v. Davis (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 1, 950. A mortgage of all the bankrupt's stock of goods to claimant to secure a loan of $6,000, the proceeds of which was paid to favored creditors and which precipitated bankruptcy, held fraudulent and void as to creditors. Johnson v. Dismukes (C. C. A. 1913) 204 Fed. 382, affirming decree In re Thweatt (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 319.

A mortgage given by a corporation to secure the personal indebtedness of its principal stockholder is voidable in bankruptcy. American Wood Working Machinery Co. v. Norment (C. C. A. 1908) 157 Fed. 801, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 679. Mortgage bonds, issued by a bankrupt corporation and pledged for an invalid consideration, held not entitled to share in the lien of the mortgage. In re National Boat & Engine Co. (D. C. 1914) 216 Fed. 208. A mortgage by a bankrupt to secure advances to be made to a corporation of which he was an officer and stockholder, and on whose paper he was indorser, to be used in carrying out contracts in which he was vitally interested, held not fraudulent nor preferential, but valid and enforceable. Angle v. Bankers' Surety Co. (D. C. 1913) 210 Fed. 289. A mortgage made by a corporation which lacks the consent of the necessary proportion of the stockholders, as provided by the state statute, is voidable in bankruptcy. In re Eagle Steam Laundry Co. (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 740, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 859.

A mortgage given by a bankrupt, although for a valid consideration and valid as between the parties, if withheld from record by agreement or understanding between them, so as not to affect the mortgagor's credit, may be set aside at the suit of his trustee. National Bank of Athens v. Shackelford (1913) 208 Fed. 677, 125 C. C. A. 575. Failure to record a second real estate mortgage given by a bankrupt is only relevant as to the intention of the parties, and is corroborative of fraud in case the mortgage is otherwise shown to be without consideration or in fraud of creditors. Butcher v. Werksman (D. C. 1913) 204 Fed. 330. Failure to record a New York mortgage is not, as to general creditors, a badge or indicia of fraud, the statute authorizing recordation not being for their protection. In re Mosher (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 739.

A chattel mortgage comes within the terms of the bankruptcy law, and may be avoided by the trustee, if fraudulent and void as against creditors, whether for failure to record, or because there was no change of possession, or the mortgagor was not bound to account for sales, or for other reasons. In re Geiver (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 128, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 413; Egan State Bank v. Rice (1902) 119 Fed. 107, 56 C. C. A. 157, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 437; In re Platts (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 126, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 568; Kappner v. St. Louis & St. J. R. Ass'n (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 7,612; In re Leland (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 8,234; In re Jacobson & Perrill (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 812, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 603; Johnson v. Dismukes, 204 Fed. 382, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 686; In re Raney (D. C. 1912) 202 Fed. 996. Compare In re Durham (D. C. 1902) 114 Fed. 750, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 115. Where a chattel mortgage was valid as between the parties under the law of the state where made, and the rights of any creditor did not attach prior to the time of the mortgagee taking possession, the trustee in bankruptcy of the mortgagor, was not entitled to the mortgaged chattels. In re East End Mantel & Tile Co. (D. C. 1913) 202 Fed. 275. The provisions of this section do not affect the validity of a chattel mortgage recorded prior to bankruptcy. In re Virgin (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 128. A chattel mortgage executed by a bankrupt to claimant held to have been given for a valid consideration, and not to hinder, delay, or defraud creditors, or to have been withheld from record with a fraudulent intent, and, having been recorded prior to the attachment of the lien of the trustee in bankruptcy, was enforceable against him. Anderson v. J. O. & N. B. Chenault (C. C. A. 1913) 208 Fed. 400. A mortgage executed by a bankrupt corporation held not fraudulent as to the mortgagor's creditors as permitting it to sell off the mortgaged property without accounting for the proceeds to the mortgagee. In re Haywood Wagon Co. (1914) 219 Fed. 655, 135 C. C. A. 391. Where a bankrupt in good faith and for present consideration executed a chattel mortgage on all its property, which mortgage provided that the bankrupt might sell a portion of the property without liability to account therefor to the mortgagee, the mortgage was not thereby rendered void as against the trustee, except as to the property the bankrupt was so authorized to sell. Peterson v. Sabin (1914) 214 Fed. 234, 130 C. C. A. 608.

A pledge of personal property as security for the payment of an existing debt, disguised as a bill of sale with a separate instrument of defeasance, without change of possession, is voidable in bankruptcy. In re Groezinger (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 935, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 732. See In re American Fibre Reed Co. (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 309, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 223. Successive assignments of accounts by way of security under contract for advances to enable the assignor to get the goods without knowledge of the assignor's insolvency and without fraudulent intent, were good as against the bankrupt assignor's general creditors. Greey v. Dockendorff (1913) 34 Sup. Ct. 166, 231 U. S. 513, 58 L. Ed. 339, affirming decree In re Schwab-Kepner Co. (1913) 203 Fed. 475, 121 C. C. A. 597.

60. —— Payment or transfer of money.—Where property is purchased by a man with his own money, but, by his direction or procurement, the conveyance is made to his wife and the title vested in her, it may properly be said, within the meaning of the bankruptcy law, that the money so paid by him is "transferred," and if this is done in fraud of his creditors, the title to the fund will pass to his trustee in bankruptcy, and the land, as representing it, may be subjected to the administration of the estate. Platt v. Mead (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 91; In re Meyers (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 581, Fed. Cas. No. 9,518; In re Schonberg (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 12,477. The rule is the same when any third person, other than the bankrupt's wife, is made the cover to receive the title, the bankrupt furnishing the money. Hyde v. Cohen (D. C. 1874) 11 N. B. R. 461, Fed. Cas. No. 6,967; Parker v. Travers (1908) 74 N. J. Eq. 812, 71 Atl. 612. Payment on a debt within four months of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, with insurance money received for the destruction of a building exempt as a homestead under Rev. Laws Okl. 1910, §§ 3342, 3343, held not a preference. First Nat. Bank of Cleveland v. Orten (1914) 142 P. 1096.

Where a majority stockholder of a corporation, with knowledge of its precarious financial condition, agreed to sell to the corporation its stock of a par value of $5,100 for $2,000, receiving $500 cash and notes secured by a deed of trust covering all the corporation's assets for the balance, the transaction was fraudulent as against the corporation's creditors and void as against its trustee in bankruptcy. M. V. Moore & Co. v. Gilmore (C. C. A. 1914) 216 Fed. 99. On purchase of shares of its own, outstanding stock by a corporation and payment therefor without diminishing capital stock, resulting in injury to creditors, held its trustee in bankruptcy could recover the payments. Union Trust & Savings Bank v. Amery (1913) 131 P. 199, 72 Wash. 648. Under § 70, post, § 9654, a trustee in bankruptcy of a corporation may not recover corporate funds used to pay for purchase of stock without showing that the payment was in fraud of creditors. Coleman v. Dana (1915) 178 S. W. 256, 191 Mo. App. 370.

One may loan money to his wife to enable her to purchase real estate, and if the loan is repaid before the institution of bankruptcy proceedings against the husband, the land cannot be taken from the wife or impressed with a trust for the husband's creditors. Clark v. Else (1906) 21 S. D. 112, 110 N. W. 88.

It may also be a fraudulent "transfer" of property, within the meaning of the statute, when funds are diverted by an insolvent debtor from the claims of his creditors and invested in a homestead. Painter v. Napoleon Township (D. C. 1910) 190 Fed. 637, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 324; Johnson v. May (C. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 425, Fed. Cas. No. 7,397. But see In re Letson (1907) 157 Fed. 78, 84 C. C. A. 582, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 506. Or when a payment to a creditor covers not only existing debts but also the amount of a note not yet due. Irish v. Citizens' Trust Co. (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 880, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 39. But a set-off by a bank of a deposit account due to a bankrupt against his liability to the bank on a note is not a "transfer of property" by the bankrupt. Booth v. Prete (1909) 81 Conn. 636, 71 Atl. 938, 20 L. R. A. (N. S.) 863, 15 Ann. Cas. 306.

A gift of money or property of considerable value by a husband to his wife is in fraud of his creditors, and recoverable by his trustee in bankruptcy, if made while he was insolvent and in contemplation of the bankruptcy which shortly followed. Wiley v. McBride (1905) 74 Ark. 34, 85 S. W. 84; In re Friedman (D. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 939. And this includes payments made by him on policies of insurance on his own life for the wife's benefit. In re Bear

(D. C. 1875) 11 N. B. R. 46, Fed. Cas. No. 1,178.

61. —— Judgment or execution.—A debtor may "transfer" his property to another by voluntarily confessing judgment in favor of such other and allowing him to issue execution and make a levy and sale resulting in his becoming the purchaser. Grant v. National Bank of Auburn (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 581, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 712. But the plaintiff in a pending suit has the right to abandon or settle the contest at any stage, at his election, and on his subsequent adjudication as a bankrupt his trustee has no cause of action growing out of the settlement of the case, unless in the direction of pursuing the proceeds of a compromise actually received by the bankrupt. Edington v. Masson (1910) 177 Fed. 209, 101 C. C. A. 379, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 183. Where property of the debtor is sold under execution in coercive adversary proceedings, in which he made an active though unsuccessful defense, it cannot be said that the sale is in any sense a fraud on his creditors. Nelson v. Svea Pub. Co. (D. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 136.

62. Sales of merchandise in bulk.—Where a merchant sells his entire stock in trade at one time to one purchaser, it is such an unusual occurrence and so far out of the ordinary course of business as to be presumptive evidence of fraud and to charge the purchaser with knowledge of the facts and with bad faith, so that the burden is on him to sustain the validity of his purchase by showing that he took all reasonable and proper steps to ascertain the seller's financial condition and that he bought in good faith and for a present fair consideration. Walbrun v. Babbitt (1872) 16 Wall. 577, 21 L. Ed. 489; In re Calvi (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 642, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 206; Dokken v. Page (1906) 147 Fed. 438, 77 C. C. A. 674, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 228; In re Knopf (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 245, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 432; In re Hemstreet (D. C. 1903) 139 Fed. 958, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 823; Norton v. Billings (C. C. 1880) 4 Fed. 623; Main v. Glen (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 8,973; In re Dean (D. C. 1874) 2 N. B. R. 89, Fed. Cas. No. 3,700; Foster v. Hackley (C. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 406, Fed. Cas. No. 4,971; Parker v. Sherman (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 155; In re Lipman (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 169, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 139. Compare Shelton v. Price (D. C. 1909) 174 Fed. 891, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 431. And if it is shown that the sale was made secretly, or with an evident desire to conceal it, that it was made at night, or made hurriedly and with little or no preliminary negotiation, that it was made after a superficial examination of the goods or without taking an inventory, and particularly if the price paid was considerably less than the value of the goods, these are indicia of fraud counting heavily against the purchaser in the trustee's suit to set aside the sale as fraudulent. Dokken v. Page (1906) 147 Fed. 438, 77 C. C. A. 674, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 228; In re Knopf (D. C. 1906) 146 Fed. 109, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 48; Johnston v. Forsyth Mercantile Co. (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 268, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 48; In re Lipman (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 169; Godwin v. Tuttle (Or. 1914) 141 Pac. 1120.

If the state law is construed as available only in favor of those creditors whose claims arose from the sale of the stock of merchandise or some part of it, and only as giving such a creditor a lien, analogous to a vendor's lien, which may be enforced by appropriate legal proceedings in the event of a sale in violation of the provisions of the act, but not as enabling any creditor to treat the sale as a nullity and proceed with the collection of his entire debt, then a sale made in defiance of the statute is not such a one as may be impeached by the trustee in bankruptcy of the seller, for the general estate of the seller can derive no benefit from such impeachment. Sellers v. Hayes (1904) 163 Ind. 422, 72 N. E. 119. And see Gorham v. Buzzell (D. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 596, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 440. Further, where personal property, part of the bankrupt merchant's stock in trade, was sold to the same defendant, but at three different times, shortly before bankruptcy, the goods not comprising the entire stock in trade, it was not a sale in bulk. Carpenter v. Karnow (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 762, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 21. Substantially the same rules apply to the case of a mortgage covering an entire stock in trade or the whole assets of a partnership or corporation. Pollock v. Jones (1903) 124 Fed. 163, 61 C. C. A. 555, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 616; Zartman v. First Nat. Bank (1907) 189 N. Y. 267, 82 N. E. 127, 12 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1083.

63. Preference and fraudulent transfer distinguished.—A transfer or conveyance to a creditor is not voidable under this section of the act merely because it gives that creditor a larger percentage of his debt than other creditors will obtain, and because given and received with that intention. These circumstances may make the transaction voidable as a preference, but it is not voidable as a fraudulent conveyance unless there was an actual fraudulent intent and a purpose to secure some advantage to the bankrupt himself. Coder v. Arts (1909) 213 U. S. 223, 29 Sup. Ct. 436, 53 L. Ed. 772; In re Maher (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 503, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 340. And see Meservey v. Roby (1912) 198 Fed. 844, 117 C. C. A. 486, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 529; In re Doyle (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 247, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 102; Van Iderstine v. National Discount Co. (1909) 174 Fed. 518, 98 C. C. A. 300, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 345; Githens v. Shiffler (D. C. 1902) 112 Fed. 505, 7

Am. Bankr. Rep. 453; In re Doyle (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 247, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 102; Ex parte Stubbins, L. R. 17 Ch. Div. 58; Kingsbury v. First Nat. Bank (1905) 71 Kan. 570, 81 Pac. 187; Studebaker Bros. Mfg. Co. v. Elsey-Hemphill Carriage Co. (1911) 152 Mo. App. 401, 133 S. W. 412. Compare In re Hill (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 984, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 499; Allen v. French (1901) 178 Mass. 539, 60 N. E. 125.

If, in a case of payments made to certain creditors to the exclusion of others, there is any substantial evidence of an intent to delay or defraud the unpaid creditors, it is properly submitted to the consideration of the jury. Webb's Trustee v. Lynchburg Shoe Co. (1907) 106 Va. 726, 56 S. E. 581.

A payment of money or a transfer of property by an insolvent debtor, for the purpose of discharging or securing a bona fide existing debt, in good faith and without any intent to affect other creditors injuriously beyond what must necessarily result from the corresponding diminution of the debtor's assets, is not in itself a "fraudulent transfer," nor evidence of an intent to delay or defraud creditors, and is not voidable by the trustee in bankruptcy unless violative of those provisions of the statute which relate specifically to preferences. Coder v. Arts (1907) 152 Fed. 943, 82 C. C. A. 91, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 513; Manning v. Evans (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 106, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 217; Congleton v. Schreihofer (N. J. Eq. 1903) 54 Atl. 144; Maffi v. Stephens (Tex. Civ. App. 1906) 93 S. W. 158. If the debtor intended to give a preference, and the creditor knew it or had reasonable cause to believe it, the transfer is voidable in the character of a preference, without regard to an actual fraudulent intent on either part. Ferguson v. Lederer, Strauss & Co. (1905) 128 Iowa, 286, 103 N. W. 794. To make a conveyance voidable under this section of the act it is not enough to show that the debtor intended to give a preference, or that he had a fraudulent design to hinder, delay, or exclude his other creditors. Sargent v. Blake (1908) 160 Fed. 57, 87 C. C. A. 213, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 115; Blakey v. Boonville Nat. Bank (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 267, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 459; Townes v. Alexander (1904) 69 S. C. 23, 48 S. E. 214.

A mortgage given by an insolvent debtor, subsequently and within four months adjudged a bankrupt, to secure money borrowed at the time for the purpose of preferring certain of his creditors, is voidable, provided the lender knew or had reason to believe that such was his purpose. In re Pease (D. C. 1902) 129 Fed. 446, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 66. Where a corporation executed mortgages covering all its property, to certain favored creditors, who were not pressing it for payment nor asking to be secured, intending thereby to force indulgence from its other creditors and further advances from those secured, held, that the mortgages were intended to "hinder, delay, and defraud" creditors, and were on that ground voidable in bankruptcy. In re Steininger Mercantile Co. (1901) 107 Fed. 669, 46 C. C. A. 548, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 68.

64. Transfers void under state laws.—All transfers, conveyances, or incumbrances of property made by an insolvent debtor, within four months before his bankruptcy, are voidable at the suit of the trustee in bankruptcy, if held null and void as against creditors by the law of the state, whether or not they would be voidable at common law, and whether or not within the specific denouncements of the bankruptcy act. Allen v. Massey (1872) 17 Wall. 351, 21 L. Ed. 542; Pew v. Price (1913) 251 Mo. 614, 158 S. W. 338; In re Bement (C. C. A. 1909) 172 Fed. 98, 96 C. C. A. 412, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 616; Wright v. Sampter (D. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 196, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 355; In re Broome (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 343, Fed. Cas. No. 1,966; In re J. S. Appel Suit & Cloak Co. (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 322, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 818; Pew v. Price (Mo. 1913) 158 S. W. 338. Where an action is brought to set aside a conveyance alleged to be fraudulent and void under the state law, actual fraud or an actual fraudulent intent is not necessary to be made out unless the state law requires it. If that law avoids, as to creditors, transactions only presumptively fraudulent, or attended by "legal" as distinguished from "actual" fraud, the same will be void at the suit of the trustee in bankruptcy. In re Geiver (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 128, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 413. In determining the validity of any transfer or incumbrance alleged to be voidable under the law of the state, and assailed distinctly on that ground, the courts of bankruptcy will follow and be governed by the applicable decisions of the courts of the state. Allen v. Massey (1872) 17 Wall. 351, 21 L. Ed. 542; Chicago Bank v. Kansas Bank (1890) 136 U. S. 223, 10 Sup. Ct. 1013, 34 L. Ed. 341; Etheridge v. Sperry (1891) 139 U. S. 266, 11 Sup. Ct. 565, 35 L. Ed. 171; Dooley v. Pease (1901) 180 U. S. 126, 21 Sup. Ct. 329, 45 L. Ed. 457; Thompson v. Fairbanks (1905) 196 U. S. 516, 25 Sup. Ct. 306, 49 L. Ed. 577, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 437; Humphrey v. Tatman (1905) 198 U. S. 91, 25 Sup. Ct. 567, 49 L. Ed. 956, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 74; Swager v. Smith (C. C. A. 1912) 194 Fed. 762, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 660; Howard v. Prince (D. C. 1874) 11 N. B. R. 322, Fed. Cas. No. 6,762; Sieg v. Greene (C. C. A. 1915) 225 Fed. 955; Holbrook v. International Trust Co. (1915) 220 Mass. 150, 107 N. E. 665.

The trustee in bankruptcy may avoid a mortgage which is invalid under the laws of the state because made by a corporation while insolvent. Empire State Trust Co. v. Trustees of Wm. F. Fisher & Co. (1905) 67 N. J. Eq. 602, 60 Atl. 940. The trustee in bankruptcy, as the representative of creditors, may resist adverse claims to property or liens thereon on the ground of failure of compliance with a state statute providing that every sale of goods in the possession of the vendor, not accompanied by immediate delivery and change of possession, shall be presumed fraudulent as to creditors. Skillen v. Endelman (1902) 39 Misc. Rep. 261, 79 N. Y. Supp. 413; In re Waite-Robbins Motor Co. (D. C. 1911) 192 Fed. 47, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 541; Benner v. Scandinavian American Bank (Wash. 1913) 131 Pac. 1149; In re Colonial Mill & Lumber Co. (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 640; Parker v. Sherman (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 155. The trustee in bankruptcy may take advantage of a state statute prohibiting any corporation, while incurring debts and liabilities, from giving to a stockholder and director for the benefit of another stockholder or director any part of its capital. Hazard v. Wight (1911) 201 N. Y. 399, 94 N. E. 855. A transfer or mortgage of property, which is invalid under the law of the state because made to one having knowledge or reasonable cause to suspect that it was made with the intention of hindering or defrauding creditors, will be voidable by the trustee in bankruptcy. In re Walden Bros. Clothing Co. (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 315, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 80. Where a state statute provides that certain transfers of property shall be declared void "at the suit of any creditor," it cannot be invoked in a case where bankruptcy proceedings were instituted before any such suit was commenced. In re Chadwick (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 674, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 528. And see Mayhew v. Todisman (1912) 246 Mo. 288, 151 S. W. 436. And though the rights of a trustee in bankruptcy and those of an assignee in insolvency under the state statute are defined in similar terms, yet it does not follow that a state statute making a certain transfer void as against an assignee eo nomine will also make it void as against a trustee in bankruptcy. In re Loveland (1907) 155 Fed. 838, 84 C. C. A. 72; Stellwagen v. Clum (1914) 218 Fed. 730, 134 C. C. A. 408.

65. —— Chattel mortgages.—In the case of a chattel mortgage, aside from any question of actual fraud or of an intention to contravene or defeat the bankruptcy law, the validity of such an instrument is to be tested by the law of the state; and if that law prescribes certain conditions as essential to its validity when attacked by other creditors —such as registration or filing for record, change of possession, accountability for sales out of stock, or the like,— the trustee in bankruptcy may assail and avoid it for lack of compliance with those conditions. Holt v. Crucible Steel Co. (1912) 224 U. S. 262, 32 Sup. Ct. 414, 56 L. Ed. 756; Pacific State Bank v. Coats (1913) 205 Fed. 618, 123 C. C. A. 634; Millikin v. Second Nat. Bank (1913) 206 Fed. 14, 124 C. C. A. 148; Toof v. City Nat. Bank (1913) 206 Fed. 250, 124 C. C. A. 118; Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. v. Kemper (1915) 220 Fed. 847, 136 C. C. A. 593; In re Cooper's Estate (D. C.) 226 Fed. 317; In re Palmer (D. C. 1914) 218 Fed. 74; In re Marriner (D. C. 1915) 220 Fed. 542; Davis v. Hanover Savings Fund Soc. (C. C. A. 1913) 210 Fed. 768; Schaupp v. Miller (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 575; In re Virgin (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 128; In re Bolstad (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 283; In re Mosher (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 739; In re Jacobson & Perrill (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 812; In re Nuckols (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 437; In re Watson (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 962; In re Pittsburgh-Big Muddy Coal Co. (C. C. A. 1914) 215 Fed. 703; Deupree v. Watson (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 962; Coggan v. Ward (1913) 215 Mass. 13, 102 N. E. 336; Gill v. Ely-Norris Safe Co. (1913) 170 Mo. App. 478, 156 S. W. 811; In re Noethen (D. C. 1912) 195 Fed. 573, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 910; In re Jules & Frederic Co. (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 533, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 136; Alter v. Clark (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 153; In re Geiver (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 128, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 413; In re Jackson Brick & Tile Co. (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 636, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 915; Mishawaka Woolen Mfg. Co. v. Teasdale (1911) 145 Wis. 73, 129 N. W. 671; Low v. Taylor (1907) 73 N. J. Eq. 406, 68 Atl. 128; In re Walden Bros. Clothing Co. (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 315, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 80; L. A. Becker Co. v. Gill (C. C. A. 1913) 206 Fed. 36, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 429; In re United States Lumber Co. (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 236, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 682.

The rule in some of the states that chattel mortgages upon changeable stocks of merchandise of which the mortgagor is in possession, with liberty to sell in the ordinary course of business and apply the proceeds to his own use, are fraudulent and void, must be given effect in the bankruptcy court. In re Thorson Bros. (D. C. 1913) 209 Fed. 961; In re Noethen (1912) 201 Fed. 97, 119 C. C. A. 435; In re Raney (D. C. 1912) 202 Fed. 996. A chattel mortgage on a stock of merchandise, given to secure payment of a part of the purchase price, and allowing the mortgagor to sell but did not require him to apply the proceeds to the payment of the mortgage debt or to the purchase of new stock, held fraudulent as to the mortgagor's creditors and unenforceable in bankruptcy proceedings against the mortgagor. In re Purtell (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 191. Under the laws of Arkansas, a merchandise mortgage permitting the mortgagor to remain in possession and sell the merchandise without accounting to the mortgagee is absolutely void; but one permitting him to retain possession, sell the property, and account for all receipts to the mortgagee, less the expense of carrying on the business and the mortgagor's living expenses, is valid. In re Hawks (D. C. 1913) 204 Fed. 309. Under Civ. Code Ga. 1910, § 3349, relating to crop mortgages, a crop mortgage, though not recorded until after action brought against the mortgagor on a note, held prior to the claim of the holder of the note in bankruptcy; the mortgagor having been declared a bankrupt before recovery of judgment on the note. In re Beard (D. C. 1913) 204 Fed. 129.

The trustee in bankruptcy may take advantage of decisions in the courts of the state against the validity of a chattel mortgage where the principal part of the property covered consists of articles perishable in their nature, or which would ordinarily be consumed in the use before sale on foreclosure could be made. Swager v. Smith (C. C. A. 1912) 194 Fed. 762, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 660.

A mining lease, reserving a lien for royalties, held not a conveyance to secure a debt, which was required to be recorded by Code Ala. 1907, §§ 3376, 3386, but valid and enforceable, on the bankruptcy of the lessee, for past-due royalties. In re Gallacher Coal Co. (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 183.

66. —— Conditional sales.—Where a contract of conditional sale of goods to the bankrupt is voidable under the laws of the state, because not duly filed or recorded as required by statute, it may be avoided by the trustee in bankruptcy for the same reason. L. A. Becker Co. v. Gill (1913) 206 Fed. 36, 124 C. C. A. 170; In re Johnson (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 666; In re O'Brien (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 129; In re White's Express Co. (C. C. A. 1914) 215 Fed. 894; In re Zephyr Mercantile Co. (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 576; In re M. L. B. Sturkey Co. (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 251; In re Pacific Electric & Automobile Co. (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 220; In re Wall (D. C. 1910) 207 Fed. 994; In re United States Lumber Co. (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 236; In re Johnson (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 311; In re Vandewater & Co. (D. C. 1915) 219 Fed. 627. Where a contract for the sale of fertilizers on credit to the bankrupt provided that the proceeds of sales made by him should be held for the seller to be applied on the price, such debts constituted personal property and required the contract to be recorded, under Civ. Code S. C. 1912, § 3542, and the seller as against the bankrupt's trustee was not entitled to a lien thereon on failure to record. Townsend v. Ashepoo Fertilizer Co. (C. C. A. 1914) 212 Fed. 97.

67. Transfers fraudulent as to partnership or individual creditors.—The trustee of a bankrupt partnership can sue to set aside fraudulent transfers of its property or assets on the same grounds and under the same conditions as in the case of an individual bankrupt. Barker v. Franklin (1902) 37 Misc. Rep. 292, 75 N. Y. Supp. 305; Shainwald v. Lewis (D. C. 1881) 6 Fed. 753; Hull v. Hudson (1911) 9 Del. Ch. 205, 80 Atl. 674. The validity of a mortgage given by the partnership as such is not affected by bankruptcy proceedings within four months thereafter against one of the partners alone. McNair v. McIntyre (1902) 113 Fed. 113, 51 C. C. A. 89, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 638. Where an insolvent partnership, within four months prior to its bankruptcy, incumbers its property to secure the individual debt of one partner, or pays such debt with firm assets, the transfer is voidable by the trustee. In re W. J. Floyd & Co. (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 206, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 438. CONTRA, Crawford v. Sternberg (1915) 220 Fed. 73, 135 C. C. A. 641. Unless in the case where all who were creditors of the firm at the time consented to the transaction or were paid off before the bankruptcy. Merchants' Bank v. Thomas (1903) 121 Fed. 306, 57 C. C. A. 374, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 299; Thompson v. First Nat. Bank (1904) 84 Miss. 54, 36 South. 65.

The dissolution of a partnership while insolvent, and the division of the firm property among the partners, to be held as their individual property, thus giving individual creditors a more advantageous position than firm creditors, the latter being justly and equitably entitled to priority of payment from such property, is contrary to the whole theory of the bankruptcy law; and where such dissolution takes place within four months before the firm is adjudged bankrupt, it will be treated as a void transfer, and the property in the hands of both partners will be treated as firm property, without regard to any actual fraudulent intention on their part. In re Head (D. C. 1902) 114 Fed. 489, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 556; In re Terens (D. C. 1910) 175 Fed. 495, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 680. See Hodgskin v. Heim (1901) 33 Misc. Rep. 548, 67 N. Y. Supp. 876. A pretended dissolution of a partnership, with a fraudulent intention to place the continuing partner in a position where he can claim individual exemptions in bankruptcy out of the firm's assets, is ineffectual as against partnership creditors. In re Abrams (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 271. Where one of the partners of an insolvent firm sells and transfers his entire interest in the firm and its business to his co-partner, the latter agreeing to assume the firm debts, the transaction is not necessarily fraudulent and voidable under the bankruptcy law. In re Rudnick (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 750, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 531. But it is so if made in contemplation of the bankruptcy of the continuing partner, and with no bona fide expectation of continuing the business. In re Byrne (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 464, Fed. Cas. No. 2,270. Or if the sale was fictitious, the money paid being covertly returned to the buyer and afterwards used in the firm's business. Burrill v. Lawry (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 2,199. A chattel mortgage taken by the retiring partner and covering all the goods in stock and to be acquired, and which is by agreement kept from the record, is fraudulent and void as to subsequent creditors. In re Stephens (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 13,365.

Where a firm which became bankrupt paid a substantial sum of money to one of the partners in return for his investment in the business, after he saw that it was not going to be profitable, and when the partners knew that the financial condition of the firm was precarious, it was held that this constituted a withdrawal of the partner's interest before the firm's debts were paid, and he was therefore bound to repay the amount to the firm's trustee in bankruptcy. In re Rosenthal (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 190, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 515.

68. Property or rights transferred.—Under the provisions of this section relating to fraudulent transfers of "property," that term may include the furniture and other belongings of the debtor's own house, when given to his wife without consideration and while he is insolvent. In re Pierce (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 11,139. It will include a lease or leasehold interest if it has value. Jones v. Slauson (C. C. 1888) 33 Fed. 632. And a claim for money or other chose in action. O'Sullivan's Trustee v. Douglass (1907) 30 Ky. Law Rep. 366, 98 S. W. 990. See Williamson v. Colcord (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 17,752. And the salary of a city official, when assigned by him in fraud of his creditors. O'Sullivan's Trustee v. Douglass (1907) 30 Ky. Law Rep. 366, 98 S. W. 990. And a policy of life insurance having a cash surrender value. Kirkpatrick v. Johnson (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 235, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 291. And a paid-up endowment life policy taken out by the bankrupt, the insured, and transferred to his wife. Bailey v. Wood (1909) 202 Mass. 549, 89 N. E. 147, 25 L. R. A. (N. S.) 722.

Since creditors can be defrauded only by the transfer of something to which they might have had recourse for the satisfaction of their claims, the statute does not apply to a transfer of real property in which the bankrupt had no beneficial interest though he held the legal title, such title being held merely in trust for his wife. Phillipps v. Kleinman (1911) 232 Pa. 571, 81 Atl. 648. And the trustee in bankruptcy cannot maintain an action to recover property which never stood in the bankrupt's name, although he paid the price of it, when it was transferred directly from the seller to a third person, notwithstanding this course was taken in pursuance of a purpose, on the part of the bankrupt and the person taking the title, to hinder and defraud creditors, since the property cannot be said to have been transferred by the bankrupt. London v. Epstein (1910) 138 App. Div. 513, 123 N. Y. Supp. 399. Any mortgage or conveyance of a homestead or other exempt property which would be good against the debtor under the state law will also be good against his trustee in bankruptcy. In re National Grocer Co. (C. C. A. 1910) 181 Fed. 33, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 360; Cowan v. Burchfield (D. C. 1910) 180 Fed. 614, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 293; Hackney v. First Nat. Bank (1903) 68 Neb. 588, 94 N. W. 805, 98 N. W. 412. See Bohannon v. Clark (1904) 78 S. W. 479, 25 Ky. Law Rep. 1710. The use of money or of the proceeds of nonexempt property by an insolvent debtor to purchase a homestead, or to discharge a lien thereon, is not fraudulent and does not invalidate his claim to the homestead exemption, or give his trustee in bankruptcy the right to subject the homestead to a lien for the amount so diverted from his creditors. In re Wilson (1903) 123 Fed. 20, 59 C. C. A. 100, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 522; Gray v. Brunold (1903) 140 Cal. 615, 74 Pac. 303. CONTRA, In re Boston (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 587, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 388.

69. Time of conveyance or transfer.—If no petition in bankruptcy is filed by or against the debtor until more than four months have elapsed after a sale or other transfer of property by him, or the giving of a mortgage thereon, or a gift or a preferential payment or an assignment for creditors, the transaction will remain valid so far as the bankruptcy law is concerned, and cannot be impeached by a trustee in bankruptcy subsequently appointed. In re Mosher (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 739; Johnson v. Wilson (D. C. 1914) 217 Fed. 99; First Nat. Bank v. Exchange Nat. Bank (1915) 153 N. Y. Supp. 818; Sturdivant Bank v. Schade (C. C. A. 1912) 195 Fed. 188, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 673; In re Shinn (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 990, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 833; Little v. Holley-Brooks Hardware Co. (1904) 133 Fed. 874, 67 C. C. A. 46, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 422; In re Kindt (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 107, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 148; Joseph v. Raff (1903) 176 N. Y. 611, 68 N. E. 1118; Murphy v. W. T. Murphy & Co. (1904) 126 Iowa, 57, 101 N. W. 486; McIntire v. Jennings (1905) 38 Wash. 119, 80 Pac. 278; Eason v. Garrison (1904) 36 Tex. Civ. App. 574, 82 S. W. 800; Watson v. Taylor (1874) 21 Wall. 378, 22 L. Ed. 576. See In re Taylor (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 956; Merrill v. Hussey (1906) 101 Me. 439, 64 Atl. 819. The transfer must have been made, or the lien given, more than four months before the bankruptcy. If made or given within that period, it will not be saved by the fact that it merely carried into effect an agreement entered into at an earlier date. Vitzthum v. Large (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 685, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 666. But compare Goodnough Mercantile & Stock Co. v. Galloway (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 940, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 803. And see Belding-Hall Mfg. Co. v. Mercer & Ferdon Lumber Co. (C. C. A. 1909) 175 Fed. 335, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 595, holding that property delivered by a bankrupt in good faith within four months prior to the bankruptcy on a previous contract of sale does not vest in the trustee, even though the transfer may be voidable as a preference. Facts held insufficient to constitute a constructive trust of the proceeds of bankrupts' tobacco crop, so that an order for payment of claimant's debt out of such proceeds, having been given within four months before the debtors were declared bankrupts, was invalid as against the bankrupts' trustee. Maltbie v. Olds (1914) 92 A. 403, 88 Conn. 633. A purchase from a bankrupt within four months prior to the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, which is not based on good faith and a present fair consideration, constitutes actual fraud, and under the bankruptcy act, the sale is void in toto as to creditors of the bankrupt. Blake v. Thwing (1914) 185 Ill. App. 187.

It is the date when the transfer or incumbrance is executed, not the date when it is recorded, which fixes the question of its validity in bankruptcy. Davis v. Hanover Savings Fund Soc. (C. C. A. 1913) 210 Fed. 768; Underleak v. Scott (1912) 117 Minn. 136, 134 N. W. 731; Dean v. Plane (1901) 96 Ill. App. 428, affirmed (1902) 195 Ill. 495, 63 N. E. 274. CONTRA, In re Tysor-Cheatham Mercantile Co. (D. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 733, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 434; Arnold v. Eastin's Trustee (1903) 116 Ky. 686, 76 S. W. 855; Cartwright v. West (Ala. 1914) 64 South. 293.

These provisions of the statute did not enable the trustee in bankruptcy to set aside a fraudulent conveyance or transfer made before the passage of the bankruptcy act. In re Brown (D. C. 1898) 91 Fed. 358; Gardner v. Haines (1905) 19 S. D. 514, 104 N. W. 244. Compare Shelley v. Nolen (1905) 39 Tex. Civ. App. 307, 88 S. W. 524.

Although the statute makes no specific provision covering the case of a sale or transfer of property by the bankrupt after the filing of the petition against him, yet such an attempt to control the disposition of his assets is of course a fraud upon the law itself, and is clearly voidable by the trustee in bankruptcy, at least when made to a party chargeable with knowledge of the facts. In re Denson (D. C. 1912) 195 Fed. 854, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 158.

Another section of the bankruptcy act (post, § 9654, subd. "e"), provides that "the trustee may avoid any transfer by the bankrupt of his property which any creditor of such bankrupt might have avoided," and if a trustee in bankruptcy bases his suit distinctly on this provision of the statute—that is, on his statutory right to avoid any transfer of property which any creditor of the bankrupt might have avoided—then it is immaterial whether the transfer or conveyance which he attacks was made more or less than four months before the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. Thomas v. Fletcher (D. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 226, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623; In re Toothaker Bros. (D. C. 1904) 128 Fed. 187, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 99; In re Schenck (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 554, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 727; Cartwright v. West (1908) 155 Ala. 619, 47 South. 93; Commercial State Bank & Trust Co. v. Bates (1910) 96 Miss. 386, 51 South. 599; Joseph v. Raff (1903) 176 N. Y. 611, 68 N. E. 1118; Treseder v. Burgor (1906) 130 Wis. 201, 109 N. W. 957; Friedman v. Verchofsky (1903) 105 Ill. App. 414; Sharp v. Fitzhugh (1905) 75 Ark. 562, 88 S. W. 929; Boyd v. Arnold (1912) 103 Ark. 105, 146 S. W. 118; Underleak v. Scott (1912) 117 Minn. 136, 134 N. W. 731; Cookingham v. Ferguson (C. C. 1871) 4 N. B. R. 635, Fed. Cas. No. 3,182; Cady v. Whaling (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 2,285; In re Herpich (C. C. 1877) 15 N. B. R. 426, Fed. Cas. No. 6,418; Knowlton v. Moseley (1870) 105 Mass. 136. Except as prohibited by the bankruptcy act, a husband may legally prefer his wife as a creditor, in the absence of fraud, actual or constructive, to which she is a party. Weld v. McKay (1914) 218 Fed. 807, 134 C. C. A. 495.

70. Insolvency of debtor.—A conveyance or incumbrance of property made at a time when the debtor was solvent is not voidable at the suit of his trustee, although bankruptcy follows within four months. Adams v. Collier (1887) 122 U. S. 382, 7 Sup. Ct. 1208, 30 L. Ed. 1207; Milkman v. Arthe (1915) 223 Fed. 507, 139 C. C. A. 55; Butcher v. Cantor (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 945, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 424; Metropolitan Nat. Bank v. Rogers (1893) 53 Fed. 776, 3 C. C. A. 666; Richardson v. Winnissimmet Nat. Bank (1905) 189 Mass. 25, 75 N. E. 97; Mercer's Trustee v. Mercer (1903) 74 S. W. 285, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 2469; Dutton v. Cloar (1901) 26 Tex. Civ. App.

547, 65 S. W. 70; Schilling v. Curran (1904) 30 Mont. 370, 76 Pac. 998; In re Cornwall (C. C. 1871) 6 N. B. R. 305, Fed. Cas. No. 3,250; Sedgwick v. Wormser (D. C. 1872) 7 N. B. R. 186, Fed. Cas. No. 12,626; Sedgwick v. Lynch (D. C. 1872) 8 N. B. R. 289, Fed. Cas. No. 12,615. CONTRA, Holbrook v. International Trust Co. (1915) 220 Mass. 150, 107 N. E. 665; Buttz v. James (N. D. 1916) 156 N. W. 547. If the trustee, in a suit to set aside a conveyance or incumbrance of property by the bankrupt, does not allege insolvency at the date of the transfer, or offer evidence to show that fact, the court will presume that the bankrupt was solvent at that time. Schilling v. Curran (1904) 30 Mont. 370, 76 Pac. 998.

Some decisions hold that a transfer is voidable by the trustee if the remaining assets of the debtor would be insufficient to pay his debts, that is, although he may have been solvent before making the transfer, yet if it left him insolvent the statute is satisfied. National Bank & Loan Co. v. Spencer (1900) 53 App. Div. 547, 65 N. Y. Supp. 1001; Hamlin v. Arbolino (1911) 72 Misc. Rep. 190, 131 N. Y. Supp. 45. But other decisions hold that the debtor must be insolvent both before and at the making of the transfer, since the statute avoids transfers made by the bankrupt "while insolvent." Upson v. Mt. Morris Bank (1905) 103 App. Div. 367, 92 N. Y. Supp. 1101; Schilling v. Curran (1904) 30 Mont. 370, 76 Pac. 998. When the point at which insolvency becomes material has been determined, the condition itself is to be ascertained by applying the statutory definition, taking into account all the primary and contingent indebtedness of the bankrupt and all his property, the latter at a fair valuation. Rutland County Nat. Bank v. Graves (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 168, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 446; Bailey v. Wood (1912) 211 Mass. 37, 97 N. E. 902, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 950; Gill v. Ely-Norris Safe Co. (1913) 170 Mo. App. 478, 156 S. W. 811. A trader is insolvent when he does not meet his obligations as they mature in the ordinary course of business, though the rule does not apply to all persons. Holbrook v. International Trust Co. (1915) 107 N. E. 665, 220 Mass. 150.

71. Intention of debtor.—In the case of conveyances held null and void as to creditors under the laws of the particular state, it is probably not necessary to show an actual fraudulent purpose on the part of the debtor, in order to avoid them in bankruptcy, since these laws usually apply to cases of constructive, technical, or presumed fraud. Lavender v. Bowen (Iowa 1904) 101 N. W. 760. But where an action to avoid a conveyance or incumbrance is based on the provision of the bankruptcy law which makes such transfers or liens voidable when made within four months prior to bankruptcy and "with the intent and purpose to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors, or any of them," an actual fraudulent purpose on the part of the debtor is an essential element of the trustee's right of action, and unless it is affirmatively established the transaction must stand good. Van Iderstine v. National Discount Co. (1909) 174 Fed. 518, 98 C. C. A. 300, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 345; Coder v. Arts (1907) 152 Fed. 943, 82 C. C. A. 91, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 513; In re Kayser (1910) 177 Fed. 383, 100 C. C. A. 615, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 174; Rutland County Nat. Bank v. Graves (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 168, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 446; In re Burnstine (D. C. 1903) 131 Fed. 828, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 596; Thompson v. Fairbanks (1903) 75 Vt. 361, 56 Atl. 11, 104 Am. St. Rep. 899 (affirmed [1905] 196 U. S. 516, 25 Sup. Ct. 306, 49 L. Ed. 577, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 437); Conley v. Nelin (Tex. Civ. App. 1910) 128 S. W. 424; Barnard v. Davis (1875) 54 Ala. 565; Vowinkel v. Moser (1906) 213 Pa. St. 587, 63 Atl. 130. It is not enough to show that the necessary consequence of the transfer or incumbrance is to hinder creditors in enforcing their claims, or that it defrauds them in the sense of leaving the debtor insolvent or even penniless, or that the property so disposed of was more in value than the debtor could rightfully withdraw from the reach of his creditors. Adams v. Collier (1887) 122 U. S. 382, 7 Sup. Ct. 1208, 30 L. Ed. 1207; Kentucky Bank & Trust Co. v. Pritchett (Okl. 1914) 143 Pac. 338. The statute cannot be read as denouncing any transfer which produces a given result, irrespective of the motive. On the contrary it is aimed only at such conveyances as would be fraudulent and voidable at common law or under the statute of Elizabeth, and under the bankruptcy act, as in those cases, an actual fraudulent intent on the part of the debtor is essential. Coder v. Arts (1909) 213 U. S. 223, 29 Sup. Ct. 436; Sargent v. Blake (1908) 160 Fed. 57, 87 C. C. A. 213, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 115. The good faith of an alleged conveyance by a bankrupt in fraud of creditors is to be measured by the same standard of care that is applied to a creditor in accepting payments, or transfers as payments, from an insolvent debtor. Lewis v. Julius (D. C. 1913) 212 Fed. 225.

A sale, payment, or mortgage made in good faith and for the honest purpose of discharging a debt, and in the expectation that by so doing the person could continue in business, cannot be set aside as a fraudulent transfer, whatever may be the effect on the other creditors. Tiffany v. Lucas (1872) 15 Wall. 410, 21 L. Ed. 198. Nor would it be voidable where a fair and honest sale of property was made with the particular view of keeping out of bankruptcy. Darby v. Lucas (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 3,573; Mercer v. Warfield's Guardian (1880) 1 Ky. Law Rep. 273. Though a man is insolvent, he may give to his wife a reasonable and suitable amount of money for current household expenses. Gray v. Brunold (1903) 140 Cal. 615, 74 Pac. 303. A transfer of exempt property is not voidable by the trustee. Bohannon v. Clark (1904) 25 Ky. Law Rep. 1710, 78 S. W. 479. But a conveyance of property by a debtor for the purpose of compelling a creditor to compromise, by the hindrance and delay thereby occasioned, is voidable as to all creditors. Voorheis v. Blanton (C. C. A. 1898) 89 Fed. 885.

72. —— Intention as to future creditors.—If a person is solvent and able to meet his debts, and makes a transfer or conveyance of property in good faith and without any fraudulent purpose at the time, it is not voidable, though he afterwards contracts debts, becomes insolvent, and is thrown into bankruptcy. Warren v. Moody (1887) 122 U. S. 132, 7 Sup. Ct. 1063, 30 L. Ed. 1108; Savage v. Savage (1905) 141 Fed. 346, 72 C. C. A. 494, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 599; Herring v. Richards (D. C. 1880) 3 Fed. 439; Sedgwick v. Place (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 168, Fed. Cas. No. 12,620; Jones v. Clifton (C. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 125, Fed. Cas. No. 7,457; Anonymous (C. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 474. But if a person is engaged in a hazardous business and fears loss, and conveys property to his wife or children as an anchor to protect his family in case of insolvency, or if he takes this course because he is about to embark in new enterprises or speculations and means to secure his property against seizure for the debts which he expects to contract, then the transfer is fraudulent as to those who subsequently become his creditors and will be voidable by his trustee in bankruptcy. Beasley v. Coggins (1904) 48 Fla. 215, 37 South. 213, 5 Ann. Cas. 801; U. S. v. Griswold (C. C. 1881) 8 Fed. 556; Barker v. Barker's Assignee (C. C. 1874) 2 Woods, 87, 12 N. B. R. 474, Fed. Cas. No. 986; Scott v. Mead (D. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 865; Sedgwick v. Place (C. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 28, Fed. Cas. No. 12,621; Burdick v. Gill (C. C. 1881) 7 Fed. 668; Antrim v. Kelly (D. C.) 4 N. B. R. 587, Fed. Cas. No. 494; Case v. Phelps (1868) 39 N. Y. 164, 5 N. B. R. 452; Caller v. McNabb (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 2,322. Compare In re Foss (D. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 790, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 439. In order to defeat a settlement made by a husband upon his wife, it must be intended to defraud existing creditors, or creditors whose rights are expected shortly to supervene, or creditors whose rights may and do so supervene, the settler proposing to throw the hazards of business in which he is about to engage upon others, instead of honestly holding his means subject to the chance of those adverse results to which all business enterprises are liable. Smith v. Vodges (1875) 92 U. S. 183, 23 L. Ed. 481.

73. Consideration.—A sale, assignment, or mortgage of property by one who is afterwards adjudged a bankrupt is not voidable at the instance of his trustee if the purchaser or mortgagee took the same in good faith and gave a present consideration fairly proportioned to the value of the property, irrespective of the motive or purpose of the bankrupt. National Bank of Goldsboro v. Hill (D. C. 1915) 226 Fed. 102; Anderson v. J. O. & N. B. Chenault (C. C. A. 1913) 208 Fed. 400; Vollmer v. Plage (D. C. 1911) 186 Fed. 598, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 590; In re McCord (C. C. A. 1909) 174 Fed. 820, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 164; Perry v. Avery (1907) 148 Mich. 211, 111 N. W. 746; Schilling v. Curran (1904) 30 Mont. 370, 76 Pac. 998; Rosenfeld v. Siegfried (1901) 91 Mo. App. 169; Mathews v. Hardt (1903) 79 App. Div. 570, 80 N. Y. Supp. 462; Friedman v. Verchofsky (1903) 105 Ill. App. 414; Piedmont Sav. Bank v. Levy (1905) 138 N. C. 274, 50 S. E. 657, 3 Ann. Cas. 785; In re Pusey (D. C. 1872) 7 N. B. R. 45, Fed. Cas. No. 11,478; In re Keefer (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 389, Fed. Cas. No. 7,636; Flournoy v. Newton (1850) 8 Ga. 306. A sale by an insolvent trader of his entire stock in trade, if for its full value, and without any marks of secrecy, haste, or intent to defraud or prefer, cannot be impeached in his subsequent bankruptcy. In re Strenz (D. C. 1881) 8 Fed. 311. Although it may be proved or admitted that the transfer was made with intent to defraud creditors, yet if it is also established that the purchaser acted in good faith, then the only question for decision is whether the price paid was a present fair consideration. Montgomery v. McNicholas (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 956, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 93. A chattel mortgage, executed by a mortgagor subsequently adjudged a bankrupt, held not to be set aside unless the bankrupt was guilty of actual fraud, which was not shown by the fact that the mortgagee, giving full consideration, stipulated that part of the proceeds should be applied to relieve a corporation of which he was president and a relative of liability as accommodation indorsers of the bankrupt. In re Baar (1914) 213 Fed. 628, 130 C. C. A. 292. But the fact of payment and the amount of the consideration must be clearly and fully established by satisfactory evidence.

Greensfelder v. Corbett (1901) 190 Ill. 565, 60 N. E. 847.

74. —— Nature of consideration.—The consideration which will save a conveyance or transfer from being voidable in bankruptcy may be cash or solvent credit. Unmack v. Douglass (1903) 75 Conn. 633, 55 Atl. 12. A pledge of its mortgage bonds by a bankrupt corporation as security for notes of another corporation, whose property bankrupt had taken over with an assumption of its indebtedness, held valid. Butterfield v. Woodman (1915) 223 Fed. 956, 139 C. C. A. 436, modifying decree In re National Boat & Engine Co. (D. C. 1914) 216 Fed. 208. A mortgage given by one subsequently bankrupt, to induce persons to indorse his note so that he could obtain a loan, held not a preference within Bankruptcy Act, § 60b, as amended. In re Mosher (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 739. The consideration for a transfer or conveyance may be the surrender of securities of equal value. Shaffer v. Fritchery (D. C. 1871) 4 N. B. R. 548, Fed. Cas. No. 12,697; First State Bank v. Sibley County Bank (1905) 96 Minn. 456, 105 N. W. 485. Or real property deeded in exchange for other land. Hoffman v. Chicago Title & Trust Co. (1902) 198 Ill. 452, 64 N. E. 1027. Or the assumption of the unpaid balance of purchase money due on the property transferred. Unmack v. Douglass (1903) 75 Conn. 633, 55 Atl. 12. Or the relinquishment of a dower interest in the bankrupt's lands, at least to the extent of the value of the dower released. Moore v. Green (1906) 145 Fed. 472, 76 C. C. A. 242, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 648. That a transfer by a failing husband to his wife, though absolute in form, was in fact a mortgage, did not show that it was fraudulent, where she did not claim the value of the property, but only a lien for a debt. Weld v. McKay (1914) 218 Fed. 807, 134 C. C. A. 495.

Marriage may be a good consideration for a transfer of property, but not where the gift to the wife consists of house furnishings of large value bought on credit, she having knowledge of the husband's insolvency, and the whole transaction being part of a scheme to defraud his creditors. Hosmer v. Tiffany (1907) 54 Misc. Rep. 402, 105 N. Y. Supp. 1055. Nor where the woman had a husband living and was therefore incapable of entering into the marriage contract with the bankrupt. Hosmer v. Tiffany (1906) 115 App. Div. 303, 100 N. Y. Supp. 797. Past services rendered by a relative in the capacity of a housekeeper, which were given gratuitously at the time and not regarded as the foundation of any indebtedness, cannot support a transfer of property as against the trustee in bankruptcy. Bartlett v. Mercer (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 1,078. In a suit by the trustee to recover the consideration for an annuity purchased by the bankrupt in fraud of creditors, the payments to begin several years later, the execution of the insurance company's executory contract does not constitute a payment of value which would prevent a termination of the contract and recovery of the consideration. Smith v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. (C. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 510, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 514.

75. —— Past debts and present advances.—A mortgage, deed of trust, or other form of security, based solely upon an antecedent debt and without any new consideration, is voidable if given within four months before bankruptcy, because it lacks the saving element of a "present fair consideration," because it operates as a preference, and because it is constructively fraudulent, since it removes from the reach of general creditors part of the assets to which they might have had recourse. National Bank of Goldsboro v. Hill (D. C. 1915) 226 Fed. 102; Morgan v. First Nat. Bank (1906) 145 Fed. 466, 76 C. C. A. 236, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 639; William Firth Co. v. South Carolina Loan & Trust Co. (1903) 122 Fed. 569, 59 C. C. A. 73; Empire State Trust Co. v. Trustees of Wm. F. Fisher & Co. (1905) 67 N. J. Eq. 602, 60 Atl. 940; Lehrenkrauss v. Bonnell (1910) 138 App. Div. 493, 122 N. Y. Supp. 866; In re Antisdel (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 289, Fed. Cas. No. 490; Gillespie v. McKnight (D. C. 1870) 3 N. B. R. 468, Fed. Cas. No. 5,435. Where the mortgage or other lien is given partly to secure an old debt, but partly also in consideration of fresh advances, it will constitute a valid lien to the extent of the new consideration (if otherwise unimpeachable) but no further. City Nat. Bank v. Bruce (1901) 109 Fed. 69, 48 C. C. A. 236, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 311; Phillips v. Kahn (1904) 96 App. Div. 166, 89 N. Y. Supp. 250; Asbury Park Building & Loan Ass'n v. Shepherd (N. J. Eq. 1901) 50 Atl. 65. Although the consideration may consist wholly of a present loan or advance of money, without including any past debts, still the mortgage will be sustainable in bankruptcy only to the extent of the money actually advanced, with proper interest, not to the extent of an exaggerated or fictitious value recited in the notes or mortgage. In re Sawyer (D. C. 1904) 130 Fed. 384, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 269; Jackson v. Sedgwick (C. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 508, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 836. A transfer of property by a bankrupt to a creditor, which pays one of several notes owed to him in full, amounts to a preference. Wilson v. Mitchell-Woodbury Co. (1913) 102 N. E. 119, 214 Mass. 514.

76. —— Adequacy of consideration.—Where the transaction in question is a sale of goods, it will be voidable in bankruptcy if the price paid was so inadequate that it cannot be regarded as a "fair consideration." Ott v. Doroshow (D. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 762, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 417; Myers v. Fultz (1904) 124 Iowa, 437, 100 N. W. 351; Gans v. Weinstein (1903) 83 App. Div. 358, 82 N. Y. Supp. 280. But if the transfer was made in good faith and for a valuable consideration, it is not necessary, in order to save it, to show strictly that the price paid was fully equal to the value of the property, provided it was not so inadequate as to amount in itself to an actual fraud on creditors. Meservey v. Roby (C. C. A. 1912) 198 Fed. 844, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 529. The sale will not be set aside on this ground unless there was such a gross inadequacy of price as would put the purchaser upon inquiry as to the fraudulent intent of the seller in disposing of the goods. Dunlop v. Thomas (1902) 28 Wash. 521, 68 Pac. 909. Or such as would impress him with the conviction that the sale could not have been made in good faith. Myers v. Fultz (1904) 124 Iowa, 437, 100 N. W. 351.

77. —— Want or invalidity of consideration.—A voluntary transfer by one of all his property, with intent to defraud his creditors and to secure it to himself and his children, is fraudulent, though the transferee acted in good faith, and the trustee in bankruptcy of the transferror may maintain an action to set aside the transfer. Clowe v. Seavey (1913) 102 N. E. 521, 208 N. Y. 496, affirming judgment (1912) 135 N. Y. S. 1105, 151 App. Div. 912.

Mortgage bonds pledged by a bankrupt corporation for an invalid consideration held not entitled to share in the lien of the mortgage. Butterfield v. Woodman (1915) 223 Fed. 956, 139 C. C. A. 436, modifying decree In re National Boat & Engine Co. (D. C. 1914) 216 Fed. 208.

78. Knowledge, bad faith, or participation of transferee.—A transfer or incumbrance of property cannot be set aside, although the party making it is insolvent at the time and is adjudged bankrupt within four months, if the person receiving it, in addition to giving a present fair consideration, is a "purchaser in good faith." Van Iderstine v. National Discount Co. (1913) 227 U. S. 575, 33 Sup. Ct. 343; Young v. Allen (C. C. A. 1913) 207 Fed. 318, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 261; Shelton v. Price (D. C. 1909) 174 Fed. 891, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 431; Pratt v. Christie (1904) 95 App. Div. 282, 88 N. Y. Supp. 585; Kennedy v. Pierce's Loan Co. (1903) 100 Mo. App. 269, 73 S. W. 357; Clarke v. Sherman (1905) 128 Iowa, 353, 103 N. W. 982; Bunnell v. Bronson (1906) 78 Conn. 679, 63 Atl. 396; Lewis v. First Nat. Bank (1904) 46 Or. 182, 78 Pac. 990. Compare Beecher v. Clark (C. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 385, Fed. Cas. No. 1,223. This rule prevails even though a fraudulent intent on the part of the bankrupt to cheat or obstruct his creditors is fully made out. In re Benjamin (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 320, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 351; Schilling v. Curran (1904) 30 Mont. 370, 76 Pac. 998. Compare Sherman v. Luckhardt (1903) 67 Kan. 682, 74 Pac. 277; Lehrenkrauss v. Bonnell (1910) 138 App. Div. 493, 122 N. Y. Supp. 866; Clowe v. Seavey (1913) 208 N. Y. 496, 102 N. E. 521.

But if the purchaser or incumbrancer acted in collusion with the bankrupt, participated in his fraudulent purpose, or even had a guilty knowledge of it, the sale or lien cannot stand as against the trustee in bankruptcy. McAtee v. Shade (C. C. A. 1910) 185 Fed. 442, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 151; Bolander v. Gentry (1868) 36 Cal. 105, 95 Am. Dec. 162, 2 N. B. R. 655; Crump v. Chapman (D. C. 1877) 15 N. B. R. 571, Fed. Cas. No. 3,455. And see Grant v. National Bank of Auburn (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 581, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 712.

Knowledge on the part of the purchaser or lienor, such as will defeat the transaction, is knowledge that the bankrupt is not acting in good faith and with an honest purpose but is seeking to gain an advantage for himself by defeating or obstructing his creditors. In re Soudan Mfg. Co. (1902) 113 Fed. 804, 51 C. C. A. 476, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 45; Houck v. Christy (1907) 152 Fed. 612, 81 C. C. A. 602, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 330. Or, as otherwise stated, knowledge that there are equitable claims upon the property in question such as should prevent the debtor from disposing of it in the way and at the price intended. Friedman v. Verchofsky (1903) 105 Ill. App. 414. The assignee of a mortgage given by a bankrupt to third persons stands in no better position than his assignor, where he took with knowledge of all the facts. In re Mosher (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 739.

If there are any circumstances attending the transaction sufficient to arouse the suspicions of an ordinarily careful and prudent person, then the purchaser is bound to exercise ordinary diligence in making and pursuing inquiries in order to ascertain whether or not the seller can make a transfer of the property which will not be in violation of the bankruptcy law, and he will be chargeable with any knowledge which such reasonable inquiries would have revealed. In re Moody (D. C. 1905) 134 Fed. 628, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 272; In re Calvi (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 642, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 206; McWilliams v. Thomas (Tex. Civ. App. 1903) 74 S. W. 596; Gans v. Weinstein (1902) 37 Misc. Rep. 209, 75 N. Y. Supp. 155; Lumpkin v. Foley (C. C. A. 1913) 204 Fed. 372, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 673. A mortgagee is not to be charged with knowledge of a fraudulent purpose on the part of the debtor merely because he is aware that a large part of the money borrowed is to be used in paying outstanding unsecured debts. Van Iderstine v. National Discount Co. (1913) 227 U. S. 575, 33 Sup. Ct. 343, 57 L. Ed. 652, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 478; In re Soudan Mfg. Co. (1902) 113 Fed. 804, 51 C. C. A. 476, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 45. Nor is he to be charged with knowledge of a fraudulent purpose on the part of the bankrupt merely because he has acted as his attorney. Webb v. Manheim (1905) 109 App. Div. 63, 95 N. Y. Supp. 1003. But where a mortgagor of chattels is selling off the goods for his own use with the consent of the mortgagee, the latter is not a bona fide holder of the mortgage. Skillen v. Endelman (1902) 39 Misc. Rep. 261, 79 N. Y. Supp. 413.

Where the person taking the property, or acquiring a lien on it, acted in collusion with the seller or mortgagor, not only knowing of his fraudulent purpose, but joining in the transaction for the purpose of assisting him in carrying it out, the sale or lien is voidable at the instance of the trustee in bankruptcy, even though it was based upon an honest debt or though the purchaser gave full value. Gorham v. Buzzell (D. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 596, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 440; In re Kyte (D. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 166, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 337; In re Pease (D. C. 1902) 129 Fed. 446, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 66; E. S. Bonnie & Co. v. Perry's Trustee (1904) 117 Ky. 459, 78 S. W. 208; Parker v. Travers (1908) 74 N. J. Eq. 812, 71 Atl. 612; Babbitt v. Walbrun (C. C. 1871) 6 N. B. R. 359, Fed. Cas. No. 695. And see In re Groezinger (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 935, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 732. An agreement to withhold the deed or mortgage from the record is not of itself such evidence of a fraudulent purpose as to constitute fraud in law, and so to warrant setting aside the conveyance or mortgage without more, but it is a fact which constitutes more or less cogent evidence of a want of good faith, according to the particular situation of the parties and the intent as indicated by all the facts and circumstances of the case. Rogers v. Page (1905) 140 Fed. 596, 72 C. C. A. 164, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 502; Cowan v. Burchfield (D. C. 1910) 180 Fed. 614, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 293; Dean v. Plane, 195 Ill. 495, 63 N. E. 274.

79. Rights and liabilities of transferees.—When a sale or incumbrance of property is set aside at the instance of the trustee in bankruptcy as fraudulent in fact, the buyer or lienor having taken in bad faith, with knowledge of the circumstances, or having participated in the bankrupt's fraudulent purpose such transferee is not entitled to retain any portion of the property, or to receive credit for property or money actually advanced, in other words, he loses any consideration which he may have given for the transfer. Johnson v. Cohn (1902) 39 Misc. Rep. 189, 79 N. Y. Supp. 139; Rosenbluth v. De Forrest & Hotchkiss Co. (1911) 85 Conn. 40, 81 Atl. 955; Holloway v. Brame (1904) 83 Miss. 335, 36 South. 1; Allen v. French (1902) 180 Mass. 487, 62 N. E. 987; Jackson v. Sedgwick (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 374; Scammon v. Hobson (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 12,434; Blake v. Thwing (1914) 185 Ill. App. 187; Rubenstein v. Lottow (1915) 220 Mass. 156, 107 N. E. 718. A creditor to whom a bankrupt has granted a preference cannot surrender part of the property received in partial reduction of the damages sustained by the estate of the bankrupt. Wilson v. Mitchell-Woodbury Co. (1913) 102 N. E. 119, 214 Mass. 514. The transferee is not entitled to reimbursement for the cost of improvements made on the property or for money advanced to reduce incumbrances. In re Mead (D. C. 1878) 19 N. B. R. 81, Fed. Cas. No. 9,365. Where, to defraud a bankrupt's creditors, his wife, with his money, purchased goods at the bankrupt's sale and other goods which she transferred to a corporation, held that, before such property could be recovered for the benefit of the bankrupt's creditors, the obligations of the corporation for goods purchased by it should be first paid. Woodford v. Rice (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 473. The fact that the fraudulent vendee of real property, prior to accepting an absolute transfer of it from the bankrupt, held a mortgage upon the same property will not entitle him to a lien thereon. Railton v. Chicago Title & Trust Co. (1906) 125 Ill. App. 617, affirmed (1906) 224 Ill. 485, 79 N. E. 600. From one to whom, in consideration of advancement to bankrupt, constituting a fraud on the bankruptcy act, bankrupt assigned accounts, the trustee may recover, in addition to the accounts or their proceeds, interest on sums collected by the assignee. Rubenstein v. Lottow (1915) 107 N. E. 718, 220 Mass. 156.

But if the transferee acted in good faith, having no knowledge of the fraudulent design of the bankrupt and giving value, and it is therefore decided that the transfer is not void in toto, but only voidable to the extent of the excess of the value of the property over the consideration given, then the transferee is entitled to be protected to the extent of the actual present consideration paid or given. Jackson v. Sedgwick (C. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 508, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 836; In re Chase (D. C. 1904) 133 Fed. 79, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 294; Paddock v. Fish (D. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 125; Clowe v. Seavey (1911) 74 Misc. Rep. 254, 131 N. Y. Supp. 817; Weatherwax v. Gorman (1907) 150 Mich. 316, 113 N. W. 1105. And see Unity Banking & Sav. Co. v. Boyden (1908) 159 Fed. 916, 87 C. C. A. 96, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 264. Where, after the execution of a fraudulent bill of sale of a certain vessel, the buyer paid various claims which were valid liens thereon, and after the sale had been adjudged void at the instance of the seller's trustee in bankruptcy, the buyer voluntarily surrendered the vessel to the trustee, it was held that the court had no further jurisdiction to require the trustee to reimburse the buyer to the amount of the liens so paid as a condition to decreeing a delivery to the trustee. Arnold v. Eastin's Trustee (1903) 116 Ky. 686, 76 S. W. 855. As to the right of the grantee or lienor to add interest to the amount of his valid claims, see Dean v. Plane (1902) 195 Ill. 495, 63 N. E. 274. If the transferee acted in good faith and without knowledge of fraud, the trustee cannot have the sale or lien canceled and recover the specific property without returning the consideration received. Sharood v. Jordan (1903) 90 Minn. 249, 95 N. W. 1108. He may give bonds to secure the transferee for the amount that is found to be due to him. Horton v. Bamford (1911) 79 N. J. Eq. 356, 81 Atl. 761. An application of a preferred creditor to have the avoidance of the preference conditioned upon his admission to participate as a general creditor in the distribution of the assets to the full amount of the debt due at the date of performance, held to have been properly denied by the court below, where the court did not deny the right of the preferred creditor to prove his claim for the surrender of the preference. Golden & Co. v. Loving (1914) 42 App. D. C. 489.

Where a deed of land from the bankrupt to his wife is vacated as voluntary and therefore fraudulent, the wife is entitled to a homestead allowance out of the proceeds of the property. Smith v. Kehr (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 13,071, affirmed, Kehr v. Smith (1873) 20 Wall. 31, 22 L. Ed. 313. Where an assignment of a cause of action constitutes an unlawful preference in bankruptcy and no steps are taken in the bankruptcy court to set it aside, it is not subject to collateral attack by a defendant in an action of fraud by the assignor to the use of the assignee. Leonard v. Springer (1912) 174 Ill. App. 516. If the trustee in bankruptcy sues the transferee for the value of the property and recovers a judgment, and the transferee thereupon pays the judgment, he becomes invested with full title to the property itself, in so far as title was vested in the bankrupt or the trustee. Thompson v. Toland (1874) 48 Cal. 99. A mortgagee in possession of the mortgaged property when the mortgagor was adjudicated a bankrupt was entitled to retain such possession as against the trustee in bankruptcy and general creditors. In re Howard (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 402.

80. Rights of bona fide purchasers.—A purchase from a bankrupt, within four months prior to the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, in good faith and for a present fair consideration, is not in contravention of the bankruptcy act, and the purchaser cannot be deprived of the property by the application of the principles governing constructive fraud. Blake v. Thwing (1914) 185 Ill. App. 187.

A conveyance by a failing husband to his wife will be sustained, if the bona fide character thereof is shown. Weld v. McKay (1914) 218 Fed. 807, 134 C. C. A. 495.

Although one may have acquired property under such circumstances that the transfer constituted a fraud upon the creditors of the grantor, and therefore may be unable to hold the property as against the grantor's trustee in bankruptcy, yet, until proceedings for its recovery are begun, his title is defeasible only and not absolutely void, and therefore he may in the mean time convey a good and unimpeachable title to a third person, and if the latter took in good faith, gave value, and had no notice of the facts which would invalidate the title of his immediate grantor, the trustee in bankruptcy has no remedy against him. Bush v. Export Storage Co. (C. C. 1904) 136 Fed. 918, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 138; Paddock v. Fish (D. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 125; Jarrell v. Harrell (C. C. 1871) 7 N. B. R. 400, Fed. Cas. No. 7,222; Dennett v. Mitchell (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 3,789; Judson v. Kelty (D. C. 1871) 6 N. B. R. 165, Fed. Cas. No. 7,567; Coolidge v. Ayers (1904) 76 Vt. 405, 57 Atl. 970; Hackney v. First Nat. Bank (1903) 68 Neb. 588, 94 N. W. 805, 98 N. W. 412; Unmack v. Douglass (1903) 75 Conn. 633, 55 Atl. 12; Union Trust & Savings Bank v. Amery (1913) 72 Wash. 648, 131 Pac. 199. The trustee may proceed against the fraudulent grantee and recover judgment for the value of the property transferred. Hackney v. First Nat. Bank (1903) 68 Neb. 588, 94 N. W. 805. If the third purchaser gave a mortgage for a part of the price, the trustee may claim the mortgage and the right to enforce it, as representing the bankrupt's creditors. Prescott v. Galluccio (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 618, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 229. But the court should not decree the setting aside of the conveyance from the bankrupt to his immediate grantee, as this would cloud the title of an innocent holder. Skillin v. Maibrunn (1903) 176 N. Y. 588, 68 N. E. 1124.

If a fraudulent grantee of property executes a mortgage on the same to one who lends his money in good faith, on the credit of the mortgagor's apparent title and without notice of any claims which might be asserted against that title by the trustee in bankruptcy of the grantor, the rights of such mortgagee must be fully recognized and protected in the bankruptcy proceedings. Putnam v. Southworth (1908) 197

Mass. 270, 83 N. E. 887; Brooks v. D'Orville (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 1,951; Sedgwick v. Place (C. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 28, Fed. Cas. No. 12,621. But he must have recorded his mortgage before the adjudication in bankruptcy. Putnam v. Southworth (1908) 197 Mass. 270, 83 N. E. 887. The bankruptcy law does not prevent a creditor of the fraudulent grantee, without notice, from acquiring rights in the property superior to those of the trustee in bankruptcy of the grantor, as, by levying an attachment on the property. In re Mullen (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 413, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 224.

The bona fide purchaser of negotiable paper secured by a mortgage, before maturity and without notice, takes the mortgage, as he does the notes, free from equities arising between the previous parties thereto, and also free from any latent equity existing in a trustee in bankruptcy at the time of the assignment of the notes, of which latent equity there is no notice actual or constructive. In re Schwarz (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 309, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 700; Carpenter v. Longan (1872) 16 Wall. 271, 21 L. Ed. 313. He is entitled to protection and to the benefit of his security, as against the trustee, although his immediate vendor held it under such circumstances of fraud as would have made him liable to an action by the trustee to set aside the security. Myers v. Hazzard (C. C. 1881) 50 Fed. 155. A purchaser of negotiable instruments secured by a mortgage issued by an insolvent within four months of bankruptcy cannot defeat the right of the insolvent's creditors to set aside the incumbrance by mere proof that the purchaser is a bona fide one within the purview of the Negotiable Instruments Law, but must bring himself within the Bankruptcy Act. Clement v. Saratoga Holding Co. (1914) 145 N. Y. S. 628, 161 App. Div. 898.

The mere fact that the property transferred was the bankrupt's whole stock of goods may not be enough to charge a purchaser from the fraudulent grantee with notice of the fraud. Babbitt v. Walbrun (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 694. But if he had reasonable cause to believe that the transfer was fraudulent, or was aware of suspicious circumstances and omitted to make proper inquiries, he cannot claim to occupy the position of an innocent purchaser without notice. Lewis v. Julius (D. C. 1913) 212 Fed. 225; Bentley v. Young (D. C. 1914) 210 Fed. 202; Blake v. Thwing (1914) 185 Ill. App. 187; In re Moody (D. C. 1905) 134 Fed. 628, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 272; Darby v. Lucas (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 3,573. The mere institution of proceedings in bankruptcy does not give constructive notice to third persons that they must be on their guard in dealing with property which the bankrupt had previously conveyed or incumbered, because there may be ground to attack such conveyance or incumbrance as fraudulent. In re Mullen (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 413, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 224; Paddock v. Fish (D. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 125. But after the trustee in bankruptcy has begun his action to set aside a transfer of property as fraudulent, no third person can acquire a good title to it from the defendant in that action. Brewster v. Goff (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 127, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 239.

81. Jurisdiction of trustee's suit.—A suit by a trustee in bankruptcy to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance by the bankrupt may be maintained either in the court of bankruptcy or in any state court which would have had jurisdiction of a similar action by the creditors; for this purpose the jurisdiction of the two courts is concurrent. Johnston v. Forsyth Mercantile Co. (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 845, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 669; Carter v. Hobbs (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 594, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 215. And see Whittington v. Simmons (1877) 32 Ark. 377. But when the court of bankruptcy has taken jurisdiction, any proceedings in the state court which would interfere with the full exercise of that jurisdiction or with its control of the property in suit may be restrained. Kellogg v. Russell (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 7,666. Where an action of this kind has been begun in a United States court by judgment creditors, its jurisdiction to proceed with the case is not affected by the filing of a petition in bankruptcy against the debtor. National Bank of the Republic v. Hobbs (C. C. 1901) 118 Fed. 626, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 190. But it should not take jurisdiction of a creditor's bill when proceedings in bankruptcy have already been commenced. Cruchet v. Red River Min. Co. (C. C. 1906) 155 Fed. 486, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 814.

82. Form of action or proceeding.—Since a trustee's suit to set aside a fraudulent transfer of property is in the nature of a creditor's bill, he may appropriately proceed by a bill in equity, notwithstanding the fact that there may be a remedy at law. Parker v. Black (1907) 151 Fed. 18, 80 C. C. A. 484, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 15; Wall v. Cox (1900) 101 Fed. 403, 41 C. C. A. 408, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 659; Cox v. Wall (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 546; Schrenkeisen v. Miller (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 12,480; In re Hunt (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 539, Fed. Cas. No. 6,881; Lisberger v. Garnett (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 8,383; Gnichtel v. First Nat. Bank (1902) 66 N. J. Eq. 88, 53 Atl. 1041; Thompson v. First Nat. Bank (1904) 84 Miss. 54, 36 South. 65. Compare Gray v. Beck (D. C. 1881) 6 Fed. 595. And see Frank v. Musliner (1902) 76 App. Div. 616, 78 N.

Y. Supp. 369; Blake v. Thwing (1914) 185 Ill. App. 187. Equity had no jurisdiction of a bill by a bankrupt's trustee to recover an alleged preference, consisting of a payment of money only, under Judicial Code, § 267, ante, § 1244. First State Bank of Milliken v. Spencer (1915) 219 Fed. 503, 135 C. C. A. 253.

If the trustee sues at law, he may, according to the circumstances of the case, bring an action for money had and received. Elmore v. Symonds (1903) 183 Mass. 321, 67 N. E. 314. Or an action of trover. Mowry v. Reed (1905) 187 Mass. 174, 72 N. E. 936. Or assumpsit where the goods transferred have been converted into money. Lyon v. Clark (1902) 129 Mich. 381, 88 N. W. 1046.

If the trustee, upon his appointment, finds a suit already commenced and in progress in a state court by one or more of the creditors to set aside a fraudulent conveyance by the bankrupt, he may apply to the court of bankruptcy for permission to intervene in such action, and leave will generally be granted if it appears to be for the best interests of the estate. In re Riker (D. C. 1901) 107 Fed. 96, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 720; Kinmouth v. Braeutigam (N. J. Eq. 1904) 57 Atl. 1013; Bunch v. Smith (1906) 116 Tenn. 201, 93 S. W. 80; Atkins v. Globe Bank & Trust Co. (Ky. 1910) 124 S. W. 879; Tharp v. Tharp's Trustee (Ky. 1909) 119 S. W. 814. See Davis v. W. F. Vandiver & Co. (1905) 143 Ala. 202, 38 South. 850.

83. Parties.—The bankrupt himself is neither a necessary nor a proper party to a bill in equity by his trustee to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance or transfer. Buffington v. Harvey (1877) 95 U. S. 99, 24 L. Ed. 381; Benton v. Allen (C. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 448; Huntington v. Saunders (C. C. 1883) 14 Fed. 907.

Where several persons are all connected with various fraudulent undertakings for the purpose of preventing the bankrupt's property from reaching the control of the trustee, although they are not all connected with each fraudulent act, but some of them performed one act and some another, all tending to the same result, the trustee may join them all in one suit to obtain possession of the property involved. Potts v. Hahn (D. C. 1887) 32 Fed. 660; Jones v. Slauson (C. C. 1888) 33 Fed. 632; Strasburger v. Bach (C. C. A. 1907) 157 Fed. 918, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 732; Norcross v. Nathan (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 414, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 613. But in a suit to recover a preferential transfer only those persons who have received some benefit or advantage from it are proper defendants. Page v. Moore (D. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 988, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 745.

84. Pleading and practice. — As to matters of pleading and practice, the trustee's suit will be governed by the laws and rules of the court where it is brought, and where that is a federal court, the suit is treated as one in equity and will be governed by the rules of pleading and practice in equity, independently of the state practice. Westall v. Avery (1909) 171 Fed. 626, 96 C. C. A. 428, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 673; In re Hawks (D. C. 1913) 204 Fed. 309.

The trustee's bill or complaint must set forth specifically all the facts and circumstances necessary to show the nature of the transaction in controversy and its fraudulent character. In re McIntosh (1907) 150 Fed. 546, 80 C. C. A. 250, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 169; Johnston v. Forsyth Mercantile Co. (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 845, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 669; Comstock v. Tracey (C. C. 1891) 46 Fed. 162; Gray v. Brunold (1903) 140 Cal. 615, 74 Pac. 303. Allegations in a bill by trustee in bankruptcy to recover realty alleged to have been conveyed by the bankrupt to his wife in fraud of creditors held sufficient to sustain a finding that the transfer was colorable and that the bankrupt was the beneficial owner. McKey v. Cochran (1914) 104 N. E. 693, 262 Ill. 376. If trustee, suing to recover property fraudulently transferred, sought to recover property subsequently acquired by transferee as proceeds of that transferred, held, that the complaint should show the necessary facts. Hane v. Crown & Keystone Co. (D. C. 1915) 223 Fed. 439. A bill by the trustee of a bankrupt corporation to recover the amount paid by the corporation on an accommodation note in fraud of its creditors, while insolvent, which does not allege that the holder knew of the fraud, is insufficient. Gulledge v. Woods (Miss. 1914) 66 So. 536.

Such a bill, seeking to set aside a chattel mortgage and a sale thereunder, and also an assignment for the benefit of creditors, as fraudulent against creditors, and to recover the property, is not multifarious, its object being to recover the estate and clear it of incumbrances, and all the acts of the defendants having been done with a common purpose. Platt v. Preston (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 241, Fed. Cas. No. 11,219.

The answer should deny specifically the essential allegations of the bill. Prestridge v. Wallace (1908) 155 Ala. 540, 46 South. 970. Under Civ. Code Cal. § 3440, declaring certain transfers fraudulent, except as to property exempt from execution, held, that the exception extended to the transferee, and that, relying thereon in an action by the transferror's trustee in bankruptcy, it was incumbent upon him to set forth in his answer the facts bringing him within the exception. Meyer v. Perkins (Cal. App. 1913) 130 P. 206, rehearing denied by Supreme Court, Id. 208.

It is not necessarily a defense that the property in suit is already in the possession of the trustee, having been seized by the marshal. Kellogg v. Russell (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 7,666. Nor that the bankrupt's discharge was granted notwithstanding opposition to it on the ground of the same alleged fraudulent transaction. Jones v. Milbank (1872) 6 Lans. (N. Y.) 73.

Where the conveyance of a bankrupt is attacked as in fraud of creditors, his grantee may plead limitations as a defense to the bankrupt's liabilities existing antecedently to the conveyance. Pace's Trustee v. Pace (1915) 172 S. W. 925, 162 Ky. 457.

In a suit by a trustee in bankruptcy to reach property transferred by the bankrupt to wife, a finding that wife knew of her husband's fraudulent intent, without finding any secret trust, held not to sustain decree for plaintiff. Lyon v. Wallace (1915) 108 N. E. 1075, 221 Mass. 351. The verdict of jury in favor of a trustee in bankruptcy to set aside a transfer of book accounts as fraudulent cannot be treated as a finding of intent to defraud of which the transferee had notice. Van Iderstine v. National Discount Co. (1913) 33 Sup. Ct. 343, 227 U. S. 575, 57 L. Ed. 652, affirming decree (1909) 174 Fed. 518, 98 C. C. A. 300. In an action to recover money paid by a corporation for its outstanding stock from a person who claimed that he sold the stock to a third person, whether the stock was sold to the corporation was a question of fact. Union Trust & Savings Bank v. Amery (1913) 131 P. 199, 72 Wash. 648.

85. Burden of proof and evidence.— In a suit to set aside an alleged fraudulent transfer of property, the trustee must assume the burden of proving the fraud charged by clear and satisfactory evidence. Woodford v. Rice (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 473; McCrory v. Donald (Ala. 1915) 68 South. 306; Finch v. Cecil (N. C. 1915) 86 S. E. 991; Peterson v. Mettler (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 938, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 158; Jacobs v. Van Sickel (C. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 340, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 519; Benton v. Allen (C. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 448; Joseph v. Raff (1903) 176 N. Y. 611, 68 N. E. 1118; Klein v. Gallin (Sup. 1913) 141 N. Y. Supp. 831; Smith v. Eldredge (Sup. 1913) 143 N. Y. Supp. 87; Kanne v. Kanne (1912) 119 Minn. 265, 138 N. W. 25; Halbert v. Pranke (1904) 91 Minn. 204, 97 N. W. 976; Sharood v. Jordan (1903) 90 Minn. 249, 95 N. W. 1108; Bailey v. Wood (1912) 211 Mass. 37, 97 N. E. 902, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 950; Eason v. Garrison (1904) 36 Tex. Civ. App. 574, 82 S. W. 800; Falls City Tinware Co.'s Trustee v. Levine (1907) 104 S. W. 716, 31 Ky. Law Rep. 1103; Coleman v. Hagey (Mo. 1913) 158 S. W. 829; Horine v. Luria (1912) 49 Pa. Super. Ct. 171; Gilmore v. Wall (1912) 31 Okl. 754, 123 Pac. 1060. A purpose to hinder or defraud creditors, and knowledge thereof on the part of the transferee, cannot be presumed from the bare fact of a conveyance of property by one who was then insolvent and afterwards becomes bankrupt. Webb's Trustee v. Lynchburg Shoe Co. (1907) 106 Va. 726, 56 S. E. 581; Dutton v. Cloar (1901) 26 Tex. Civ. App. 547, 65 S. W. 70; Love v. Export Storage Co. (1906) 143 Fed. 1, 74 C. C. A. 155, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 171. Compare Thomas v. Roddy (1907) 122 App. Div. 851, 107 N. Y. Supp. 473. And see Fouche v. Shearer (D. C. 1909) 172 Fed. 592, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 828; Klinger v. Hyman (1915) 223 Fed. 257, 138 C. C. A. 499. Proof of highly suspicious facts in connection with the transfer or in the conduct of the parties may make out a prima facie case of fraud. In re Hunt (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 539, Fed. Cas. No. 6,881. In a creditors' suit against the members of an insolvent banking firm, to set aside alleged fraudulent transfers of the bank's assets, the failure of the defendants to produce the important books of the bank when required, or to account for the same, raises a presumption of fraud of the most damaging character. National Bank of Republic v. Hobbs (C. C. 1901) 118 Fed. 626, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 190. The fact alone that a sale is made out of the usual course of business of the debtor is not sufficient to stamp the transaction as fraudulent, though it may be a badge of fraud, depending for its effect on the surrounding facts. Houck v. Christy (1907) 152 Fed. 612, 81 C. C. A. 602, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 330; Babbitt v. Walbrun (C. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 121, Fed Cas. No. 694.

In this connection, the trustee is entitled to avail himself, in like manner as any judgment creditor, of a decree of a state court declaring the transfer or conveyance by the debtor to have been fraudulent and void. In re Lesser (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 433, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 815. And every declaration of the bankrupt in reference to defrauding his creditors and acts on his part showing the nature and intent of the fraudulent scheme are admissible where a prima facie case of conspiracy is made out. Tyler v. Angevine (C. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 14,306. And it may be shown that, eight days after another sale made a month before the sale in question, a secret agreement was entered into between the parties whereby the vendor was reinvested with an interest in the property sold. Rosenthal v. Walker (1884) 111 U. S. 185, 4 Sup. Ct. 382, 28 L. Ed. 395. But evidence of transactions with others than the transferee in question, proper to be considered in determining the bankrupt's intention, or as bearing on the question of his insolvency, is not admissible against the transferee without evidence that he had knowledge of such transactions. Doxsee v. Waddick (1904) 122 Iowa, 599, 98 N. W. 483. So evidence of what the bankrupt said to the defendant some days before, when he borrowed the money of him, as to what he wanted it for, or of statements then made by the bankrupt as to his financial condition, or of the time fixed for repayment, has no bearing on the question whether the defendant knew or had reasonable cause to believe the bankrupt was insolvent when he repaid the loan. Goodrich v. Wilson (1876) 119 Mass. 429. And testimony that the bankrupt secreted the money which he received on the sale in question, for the purpose of defrauding his creditors, does not show that the defendant had any knowledge of such fraudulent intent. Schilling v. Curran (1904) 30 Mont. 370, 76 Pac. 998. And so, where a bill of sale is attacked as fraudulent, evidence that the bankrupt secreted certain of his property is not admissible except for the purpose of showing what goods were on hand at the date of the bill of sale. Frank v. Musliner (1902) 76 App. Div. 616, 78 N. Y. Supp. 369. The trustee's case must fail where the only witnesses introduced, who were the parties to the transaction attacked, all testify that the transfer was made in good faith and for a fair consideration. Entwisle v. Seidt (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 864, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 185. In suit by trustee in bankruptcy to reach property transferred by bankrupt to wife, the mere fact that neither husband nor wife was called by the defense held not to sustain plaintiff's burden of showing secret trust. Lyon v. Wallace (1915) 108 N. E. 1075, 221 Mass. 351.

It is also incumbent on the trustee to prove, by competent and satisfactory evidence, that the bankrupt was insolvent at the time of the transaction in question and that the transferee knew of it or had sufficient cause to believe it. Van Iderstine v. National Discount Co. (1909) 174 Fed. 518, 98 C. C. A. 300, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 345; Gans v. Weinstein (1903) 83 App. Div. 358, 82 N. Y. Supp. 280; Joseph v. Raff (1903) 176 N. Y. 611, 68 N. E. 1118; Horton v. Bamford (1911) 79 N. J. Eq. 356, 81 Atl. 761; Way v. Ruff (1910) 112 Minn. 57, 127 N. W. 564, 609. The insolvency may be shown by the books of the bankrupt, including private memorandum books. In re E. S. Wheeler & Co. (1907) 158 Fed. 603, 85 C. C. A. 425, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 461. Or by the debtor's schedules in bankruptcy, if filed shortly after the transfer in question. Saxton v. Sebring (1904) 96 App. Div. 570, 89 N. Y. Supp. 372; Buttz v. James (N. D. 1916) 156 N. W. 547. The schedules are not evidence if filed more than a year after the transaction which is alleged to have been fraudulent. Barr v. Sofranski (1909) 130 App. Div. 783, 115 N. Y. Supp. 533. In an action by trustee in bankruptcy to set aside a conveyance, evidence that the bankrupt was reputed in the community to be insolvent at date of the conveyance was admissible. First Bank of Maysville v. Alexander (Okl. 1915) 153 P. 646.

Evidence that a bankrupt, while insolvent, conveyed valuable property to his brother for an inadequate consideration, that by agreement between them the brother withheld the deeds from record, and that the bankrupt afterwards borrowed large sums of money on his representation that he owned such property, will be sufficient to establish actual fraud and entitle the bankrupt's trustee to recover the property. Peterson v. Mettler (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 938, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 158. Where the transfer attacked is a payment of money, it is not necessary to trace it to the present possession of the defendant. Smith v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. (C. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 510, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 514. Where the trustee's contention is that the bankrupt conspired with several other persons to secure or convert his property, and withdraw it from the reach of the creditors, he will establish his case by proof that any two of the defendants acted in concert in the fraudulent scheme, though he may be unable to prove that all of the defendants were parties to the conspiracy. Saxton v. Sebring (1904) 96 App. Div. 570, 89 N. Y. Supp. 372.

On the other hand, at least when the trustee has made out a prima facie case, the defendant must assume the burden of proving that he was a purchaser for value and in good faith and for a fair consideration. Bentley v. Young (D. C. 1914) 210 Fed. 202; Pope v. Cantwell (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 908; Sturdivant Bank v. Schade (1912) 195 Fed. 188, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 673; Lawrence v. Lowrie (D. C. 1903) 133 Fed. 995, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 297; Wick v. Hickey (Iowa, 1905) 103 N. W. 469; Buttz v. James (N. D. 1916) 156 N. W. 547. The wife of bankrupt, who purchased goods at trustee's sale and other goods which she transferred to a corporation organized to carry on the business, held to have the burden of showing that the purchases were not made with money furnished her by the bankrupt. Woodford v. Rice (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 473. The defendant may present all competent evidence bearing on the question of good faith and the consideration given. Joseph v. Raff (1903) 176 N. Y. 611, 68 N. E. 1118; Hunt v. Doyal (1907) 128 Ga. 416, 57 S. E. 489. The bona fide character of a conveyance by a failing husband to his wife may be established by the uncorroborated testimony of the husband or wife. Weld v. McKay (1914) 218 Fed. 807, 134 C. C. A. 495.

The defendant is not estopped from claiming that the conveyance in question was valid as to him by the fact that the adjudication in bankruptcy was based upon an allegation that it was a fraudulent conveyance and an act of bankruptcy. In re Marter (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 185, Fed. Cas. No. 9,143. Nor by the fact that the same transaction was specified as a ground of opposition to the bankrupt's application for discharge. Bradley v. Hunter (1874) 50 Ala. 265. The question whether or not the conveyance or transfer drawn in question was fraudulent is a question of fact, which must go to the jury. Bailey v. Wood (1912) 211 Mass. 37, 97 N. E. 902, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 950; Webb's Trustee v. Lynchburg Shoe Co. (1908) 107 Va. 807, 60 S. E. 130; Coolidge v. Ayers (1904) 76 Vt. 405, 57 Atl. 970; Dutton v. Cloar (1901) 26 Tex. Civ. App. 547, 65 S. W. 70; Sherman v. Luckhardt (1902) 96 Mo. App. 320, 70 S. W. 388.

Decisions on weight and sufficiency of evidence in suits by trustees in bankruptcy to set aside alleged fraudulent transfers or conveyances, see Harvey v. Stowe (1914) 219 Fed. 17, 134 C. C. A. 635; Rison v. Parham (1915) 219 Fed. 176, 134 C. C. A. 550; Stroecker v. Patterson (1915) 220 Fed. 21, 135 C. C. A. 597; Ridgeway v. Kendrick (1913) 208 Fed. 849, 126 C. C. A. 7; In re Snodgrass (1913) 209 Fed. 325, 126 C. C. A. 251; Walsh v. First Nat. Bank (1913) 201 Fed. 522, 120 C. C. A. 30; Deupree v. Watson (C. C. A. 1914) 216 Fed. 483; Dean v. Davis (C. C. A. 1914) 212 Fed. 88; In re Cotton Manufacturers' Sales Co. (D. C. 1913) 209 Fed. 629; Kiendl v. Taunton (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 509; Cartwright v. West (Ala. 1914) 64 South. 293; McCrory v. Donald (Ala. 1915) 68 South. 306; Guernsey v. Douglas (Cal. 1915) 153 Pac. 227; Brewer v. Brown (1915) 268 Ill. 562, 109 N. E. 264; McKey v. Cochran (1914) 262 Ill. 376, 104 N. E. 693; Meehan v. Pithan (Iowa, 1914) 147 N. W. 913; Holbrook v. International Trust Co. (1915) 220 Mass. 150, 107 N. E. 665; Wellman v. Kaiser Inv. Co. (Mo. 1914) 171 S. W. 370; Gregory v. Binghamton Trust Co. (1915) 168 App. Div. 805, 154 N. Y. Supp. 376; Smith v. Eldredge (Sup. 1913) 143 N. Y. Supp. 87; Klein v. Gallin (Sup. 1913) 141 N. Y. Sup. 831; Bean v. Parker (Vt. 1915) 96 Atl. 17.

86. Nature and extent of trustee's recovery.—In the case of a fraudulent conveyance of real property, vacated at the suit of the trustee in bankruptcy, the plaintiff is entitled to a decree declaring and establishing the title as vested in him. Currie v. Look (1906) 14 N. D. 482, 106 N. W. 131. Or a decree requiring the defendant to execute the necessary deed. McFarland v. Goodman (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 8,789. In the case of a fraudulent transfer of a note and mortgage, the trustee is entitled to an order requiring that they shall be assigned to him. Clarke v. Sherman (1905) 128 Iowa, 353, 103 N. W. 982. If the property transferred was a certificate of corporate stock, and it still remains in the hands of the defendant, he may be required to surrender the certificate itself to the trustee in bankruptcy and to account for dividends received. Wasey v. Holbrook (1910) 141 App. Div. 336, 125 N. Y. Supp. 1087. See In re Kessler & Co. (D. C. 1909) 174 Fed. 906, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 391. If the property in controversy consisted of chattels, they are to be delivered in specie to the trustee. Edwards v. Schillinger Bros. Co. (1910) 153 Ill. App. 219. Generally, if it is in the power of the fraudulent transferee to restore the status quo by delivering to the trustee the identical property which he received from the bankrupt, this is the relief which the trustee must seek and obtain, and he cannot abandon the pursuit of the property itself and simply have a judgment in personam for its value against the defendant. Phipps v. Sedgwick (1877) 95 U. S. 3, 24 L. Ed. 591; Wasey v. Holbrook (1910) 141 App. Div. 336, 125 N. Y. Supp. 1087; Off v. Hakes (1905) 142 Fed. 364, 73 C. C. A. 464, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 696. But if the surrender of certificates of corporate stock (the property fraudulently transferred) would offer insufficient relief because of their depreciation in value, the court may render a personal judgment against the transferee. Wasey v. Holbrook (1909) 65 Misc. Rep. 84, 120 N. Y. Supp. 675. And see Gill v. Ely-Norris Safe Co. (1913) 170 Mo. App. 478, 156 S. W. 811.

In the case of a fraudulent payment of money, the natural and only appropriate judgment is one against the transferee personally for the sum shown to have been received by him. Andreas' Assignee v. Rust (1882) 3 Ky. Law Rep. 772; Greenhall v. Carnegie Trust Co. (D. C. 1910) 180 Fed. 812, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 300; Smith v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. (C. C. 1907) 158 Fed. 365, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 707. Where the transfer assailed consisted in the assignment of a judgment, the collection of the judgment should not be enjoined, but the court should direct payment to be made to the trustee in bankruptcy. Barnard v. Davis (1875) 54 Ala. 565. In an action by the trustee of a bankrupt in a state court to set aside voidable conveyances, a personal judgment against the bankrupt on the claims of creditors was unauthorized. Douthat v. Roberts (W. Va. 1914) 80 S. E. 819.

If the property has passed into the possession of a bona fide holder for value, taking by assignment or transfer from the original fraudulent transferee without notice, so that it can no longer be reclaimed or recovered by the trustee in bankruptcy, then the appropriate relief of the latter is a judgment for damages against the fraudulent grantee, measured by the value of the property. Skillin v. Maibrunn (1903) 176 N. Y. 588, 68 N. E. 1124; Pfeiffer v. Roe (1905) 108 App. Div. 54, 95 N. Y. Supp. 1014; Gray v. Brunold (1903) 140 Cal. 615, 74 Pac. 303. The judgment should include in the case of real estate, the rents and profits which he received or should have received from it while in his hands. Gray v. Chase (1903) 184 Mass. 444, 68 N. E. 676. The value of the property, for the purpose of the trustee's recovery, is not measured by the price the fraudulent transferee paid for it. In re Denson (D. C. 1912) 195 Fed. 854, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 158. Nor necessarily by its estimated value at the time of the transfer, but rather by the price for which he sold it to the present holder. Russell v. Powell (1905) 38 Wash. 651, 80 Pac. 837. The transferee may be held to account for any profit he made out of the property. Shuman v. Fleckenstein (D. C. 1877) 15 N. B. R. 224, Fed. Cas. No. 12,826. See Dunlop v. Thomas (1902) 28 Wash. 521, 68 Pac. 909.

Where a new corporation, organized to succeed the bankrupt, took the latter's assets under a lease which was void for fraud as against creditors, and operated the bankrupt's property for a considerable period, the corporation is not to be considered as a mere trespasser, but is liable in an accounting for its acts under the lease for the net profits earned after allowance of expenditures other than taxes. In re Medina Quarry Co. (D. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 929, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 769.

In the case of a joint purchase, fraudulent and voidable under the bankruptcy act, each purchaser is liable for the full value of the property, although they were interested in different proportions. Schulenburg v. Kabureck (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 12,487. But where the actual purchaser was only acting as agent for another, and surrendered the property to his principal, it would be error to make an order requiring the agent to turn over the property to the trustee. In re Denson (D. C. 1912) 195 Fed. 854, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 158. So where the fraudulent transaction consisted of a sale of the bankrupt's property and application of the proceeds to the discharge of an unrecorded chattel mortgage, and the trustee's action is to set aside the sale, the court should not adjudge that the mortgage be canceled, the mortgagee not being a party to the suit, and the mortgage not being void to the extent that it evidenced a debt, though not a lien against subsequent creditors. E. S. Bonnie & Co. v. Perry's Trustee (1904) 117 Ky. 459, 78 S. W. 208.

As against the trustee in bankruptcy, the wife of the bankrupt is not barred or estopped to claim dower by reason of her having joined her husband in a deed which is fraudulent as to creditors, and which has for that reason been set aside at the instance of the trustee. When the deed is decreed to be fraudulent and void at the suit of the trustee, he cannot set it up to defeat the right of the wife to dower. Cox v. Wilder (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 3,308.

87. Rights of creditors in property or fund recovered.—When the trustee in bankruptcy procures a fraudulent conveyance or transfer of property of the bankrupt to be set aside, and the property subjected to the payment of the provable debts in bankruptcy, this will inure to the benefit of all the creditors of the bankrupt having provable claims, including those whose claims accrued subsequent to the transfer, and not merely to the advantage of those who, as existing creditors, or holding judgments, would have been entitled to attack the conveyance at the time it was made. Kehr v. Smith (1873) 20 Wall. 31, 22 L. Ed. 313; Platt v. Mead (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 91; In re Lowe (D. C. 1884) 19 Fed. 589; Smith v. Kehr (C. C. 1872) 7 N. B. R. 97, Fed. Cas. No. 13,071; Pratt v. Curtis (D. C. 1871) 6 N. B. R. 139, Fed. Cas. No. 11,375; White v. Jones (D. C. 1873) 6 N. B. R. 175, Fed. Cas. No. 17,550; Treseder v. Burgor (1906) 130 Wis. 201, 109 N. W. 957; Maffi v. Stephens (1908) 49 Tex. Civ. App. 354, 108 S. W. 1008. See also In re Martin (1912) 193 Fed. 841, 113 C. C. A. 627, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 545; Boyd v. Arnold (1912) 103 Ark. 105, 146 S. W. 118; Allen v. McMannes (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 615, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 276. Preservation by the bankruptcy court under subdivision "f" of this section of lien of attachments in state court to set aside fraudulent conveyance, entitles all creditors of a bankrupt to participate in the fund from sale under order of the state court, which while setting aside the conveyance as to antecedent creditors held that under Ky. St. § 1907, it was valid as to subsequent creditors. Globe Bank & Trust Co. of Paducah, Ky., v. Martin (1915) 35 S. Ct. 377, 236 U. S. 289, 59 L. Ed. 583, denying certiorari In re Martin (1912) 193 Fed. 841, 113 C. C. A. 627. A fraudulent conveyance being good as between the parties to it, a judgment thereafter recovered does not attach as a lien on the property, and when it is vacated at the suit of the trustee, there is no superior equity, or right to prior satisfaction, in a creditor who holds a judgment. Neal v. Foster (C. C. 1888) 36 Fed. 29; Wood v. Wright (C. C. 1880) 4 Fed. 511. See Pool v. Ragland (1876) 57 Ala. 414. So, a creditor's bill instituted subsequent to an adjudication in bankruptcy against the debtor, to set aside a chattel mortgage and a sale of a stock of merchandise, does not give rise to a lien in favor of the creditor filing the same on the goods sought to be reached. Moore-Schafer Shoe Mfg. Co. v. Billings (1905) 46 Or. 401, 80 Pac. 422.

§ 9652. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 68.) Set-offs and counterclaims.

Set-Offs and Counterclaims.—a In all cases of mutual debts or mutual credits between the estate of a bankrupt and a creditor the account shall be stated and one debt shall be set off against the other, and the balance only shall be allowed or paid.

b A set-off or counterclaim shall not be allowed in favor of any debtor of the bankrupt which (1) is not provable against the estate; or (2) was purchased by or transferred to him after the filing of the petition, or within four months before such filing, with a view to such use and with knowledge or notice that such bankrupt was insolvent, or had committed an act of bankruptcy. (30 Stat. 565.)

Notes of Decisions

1. Right of set-off in general.
2. Nature of claims subject to set-off.
3. Partnership and individual debts.
4. Meaning of mutual debts and mutual credits.
5. Time of accrual of debts or claims.
6. Claims purchased with a view to set-off.
7. Claims already filed or proved.
8. Joint debts and credits.
9. Set-off against deposit account in bank.
10. Unpaid stock subscriptions.
11. Set-off against trustee.
12. Suit to recover preference.

1. Right of set-off in general.—The provision of this section for the set-off of mutual debts or credits is permissive rather than mandatory. In re Kyte (D. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 166, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 337. It does not enlarge the doctrine of set-off, and cannot be invoked in cases where the general principles of legal or equitable set-off would not authorize it. Morris v. Windsor Trust Co. (1914) 213 N. Y. 27, 106 N. E. 753; Wagner v. Citizens' Bank & Trust Co. (1909) 122 Tenn. 164, 122 S. W. 245, 135 Am. St. Rep. 869, 19 Ann. Cas. 483. A bankrupt who lists a claim against him in his schedule without mentioning any offset may be estopped from afterwards alleging a counterclaim. Pindel v. Holgate (1915) 221 Fed. 342, 137 C. C. A. 158. The object of this provision is to give to the court of bankruptcy the right to apply the principles of set-off to mutual credits when its action is invoked for that purpose. Cumberland Glass Mfg. Co. v. De Witt (1915) 237 U. S. 447, 35 Sup. Ct. 636, 59 L. Ed. 1042. The court may disallow a claim of set-off against the bankrupt, when its allowance would work injustice. Hitchcock v. Rollo (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 6,535. It may order a set-off where injustice would otherwise result, though an action at law could not be maintained on the claim in question. Wyckoff v. Williams (1910) 136 App. Div. 495, 121 N. Y. Supp. 189.

Where a debtor of the bankrupt who had a claim against the latter which the law would allow him to offset, mistook his legal rights in the matter and acted on incompetent advice, to the effect that the bankruptcy law would prevent any set-off, and therefore paid the entire amount of his debt to the trustee in bankruptcy, it was held that he was entitled to a return of the money so paid by him. In re Farmers' & Mechanics' Bank (D. C. 1882) 13 Fed. 361. But a claim cannot be used in this way where the transaction out of which it arose was fraudulent. McKay v. Weager (Sup. 1911) 134 N. Y. Supp. 66. Though the allowance of a set-off enables the particular creditor to obtain payment in full of his claim, while other creditors are only partially paid, and thus he becomes a preferred creditor, yet it is a preference growing out of the business relations of the parties as they stood at the time, and not one contrived between them, and therefore it is not obnoxious to the act. Drake v. Rollo (C. C. 1872) 4 N. B. R. 689, Fed. Cas. No. 4,066. Compare In re White (1910) 177 Fed. 194, 101 C. C. A. 364, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 107.

2. Nature of claims subject to set-off.—A perfectly gratuitous expenditure of money with no expectation of repayment (as by a father for the support and education of his children) cannot be made the subject of a set-off. Embry v. Bennett (C. C. A. 1908) 162 Fed. 139, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 651. And a payment on a note given by an insolvent to close up an existing account with a creditor, made within four months of the filing of his petition in bankruptcy, cannot be treated as a set-off against a new debt afterwards created by him with the same creditor, when he seeks to prove the latter in the bankruptcy proceedings. In re Seay (D. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 969, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 700; In re Abraham Steers Lumber Co. (1901) 112 Fed. 406, 50 C. C. A. 310, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 332. So also, a creditor proving a claim against the bankrupt on an open account cannot be subjected to a set-off which would reduce or extinguish it, merely because he applied funds sent to him by the bankrupt to the satisfaction of another claim (which was secured by mortgage) instead of applying them, as the debtor directed, to the open account. Stewart v. Hopkins (1876) 30 Ohio St. 502.

A contingent liability or obligation cannot be set off against a debt absolutely owing to the bankrupt. Abbott v. Hicks, 7 Scott, 715.

A claim for unliquidated damages for a tort or a breach of contract cannot be set off against a debt absolutely owing to the bankrupt. Pindel v. Holgate (1915) 221 Fed. 342, 137 C. C. A. 158; In re Becker Bros. (D. C. 1905) 139 Fed. 366, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 228. But compare In re Harper (D. C. 1910) 175 Fed. 412, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 918, holding that the trustee in bankruptcy may allege, as a set-off against a claim filed by a creditor, a claim for unliquidated damages existing in favor of the bankrupt against such creditor, which passed to the trustee, and which under the law of the state the bankrupt, but for his bankruptcy, might have pleaded as a counterclaim in an action by the creditor. A judgment obtained by a trustee in bankruptcy for a penalty incurred by the violation of a state statute against usury cannot be set off against a claim of the judgment debtor against the bankrupt estate. Wilson v. National Bank of Rolla (C. C. 1880) 3 Fed. 391.

Money or property held or due under a trust must be employed or applied according to the terms of the trust, and cannot be made the subject of a set-off as against the private debt or obligation of the trustee. Western Tie & Timber Co. v. Brown (1905) 196 U. S. 502, 25 Sup. Ct. 339, 49 L. Ed. 571, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 447; Libby v. Hopkins (1881) 104 U. S. 303, 26 L. Ed. 769; In re Davis (D. C. 1903) 119 Fed. 950, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 670; Scammon v. Kimball (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 12,435; In re Troy Woolen Co. (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 412, Fed. Cas. No. 14,203; In re Lane (D. C. 1874) 13 N. B. R. 43, Fed. Cas. No. 8,043; Alvord v. Ryan (C. C. A. 1914) 212 Fed. 83.

Where a creditor has goods of the bankrupt in his hands, which could be reached only by a suit at law or in equity, there is a "debt" or "claim" against him which may be the subject of a set-off. Murray v. Riggs (1818) 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 571. A creditor of the bankrupt who has in his possession, at the time of the bankruptcy, goods consigned to him by the bankrupt for sale, may sell the goods and, as against a claim for the proceeds, set off his claim against the bankrupt. Goodrich v. Dobson (D. C. 1876) 43 Conn. 576, Fed. Cas. No. 18,297. A trustee in bankruptcy, substituted as defendant for bankrupt in replevin by plaintiff, claiming under a transfer from the bankrupt, could under Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 501, set up as counterclaim his right to avoid the transfer under the Bankruptcy Act. Gleason v. Bush (1915) 152 N. Y. S. 54, 166 App. Div. 865. The value of property converted by the bankrupt may be set off. McCabe v. Winship (D. C. 1877) 17 N. B. R. 113, Fed. Cas. No. 8,668. Where a main contractor was entitled to complete the work and use the bankrupt subcontractor's materials and tools, and he did so at a great loss, any claim for such materials and tools could be set off against the contractor's claim for damages. In re Manneschmidt (D. C. 1913) 202 Fed. 815. A claim for loss under an insurance policy may be set off by the insured against his indebtedness to the company. Drake v. Rollo (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 4,066. Where a landlord received a specified sum from the tenant for an extension of the lease for a definite period, but the lessee obtained no benefit from the extension because of his bankruptcy during the original term, in proceedings to establish claims for rent and for damages to the leased premises, the lessor must account to the estate for the sum so received. In re Abrams (D. C. 1913) 200 Fed. 1005, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 590.

A creditor having two distinct debts, and holding property in pledge for one of them, with power of sale existing at the date of the bankruptcy, may apply the surplus proceeds after paying the first debt to the discharge of the second. Ex parte Whiting (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 307, Fed. Cas. No. 17,573; In re McVay (D. C. 1882) 13 Fed. 443; In re Searles (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 893, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 635.

3. Partnership and individual debts.—In partnership cases, the right of set-off cannot be so applied as to run counter to the cardinal rule that firm assets are for firm creditors and the separate estates of the partners for their individual creditors. But as between the partners themselves, claims arising out of independent dealings may be offset against demands growing out of the partnership affairs. In re Voetter (D. C. 1880) 4 Fed. 632; Warren v. Burnham (C. C. 1887) 32 Fed. 579. A debt owing from a bankrupt partnership to a creditor and one owing from the creditor to an individual partner are not "mutual debts," which may be set off against each other. In re Neaderthal (1915) 225 Fed. 38, 140 C. C. A. 364.

4. Meaning of mutual debts and mutual credits.—In order that debts may be set off under this section they must be mutual and must be in the same right. In re Howe Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 524, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 477.

Where the creditor has goods or choses in action of the bankrupt put in his hands before the bankruptcy by a valid contract, by the terms of which the deposit will result in a debt, as, if they are deposited for sale or collection, the case of mutual credits has arisen within the meaning of the bankruptcy law. Ex parte Caylus (D. C.

1871) Fed. Cas. No. 2,534; Marks v. Barker (C. C. 1804) Fed. Cas. No. 9,096; Rose v. Hart, 8 Taunt. 499. And see Walther v. Williams Mercantile Co. (1909) 169 Fed. 270, 94 C. C. A. 546, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 328. Where there is a debt due on one side, and on the other a delivery of property with directions to turn it into money, the property thus delivered constitutes a "credit" within the meaning of the statute. Goodrich v. Dobson (D. C. 1876) 43 Conn. 576, Fed. Cas. No. 18,297. A customer of a bankrupt stockbroker held entitled to a set-off equal to the value of stock converted, and entitled to have the value of the stock fixed as of the date of the bankruptcy. In re J. F. Pierson, Jr., & Co. (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 889. Where the shares on hand of stockbrokers purchasing stock for customers was at the time they became bankrupts less than the amount required to satisfy the demands of the customers, any customer indebted to the brokers could set off his indebtedness against shares not recoverable. In re H. B. Hollins & Co. (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 317.

Where a bankrupt had deposited chattels with a bailee for the purpose of having certain work done upon them, and the trustee sought to recover them in an action of trover, it was held that the defendant was not entitled to retain them for his general balance for such work done by him for the bankrupt previously to the bankruptcy, for this was not a case of mutual credits. Rose v. Hart, 8 Taunt. 499; Birdwood v. Raphael, 5 Price, 593. Neither under this section nor under general principles can a party sued for conversion of a pledge set off as a counterclaim rights based on contracts unconnected with the conversion. Morris v. Windsor Trust Co. (1914) 106 N. E. 753, 213 N. Y. 27, reversing order (1914) 148 N. Y. S. 1131, 163 App. Div. 955. So, in an action by the trustee in bankruptcy of an insolvent corporation, which carried on a livery stable, for board of defendant's horses, the latter cannot offset his personal claims against the former owner of the stable, who had conducted the business in the same name adopted by the corporation, and afterwards managed the business, since, whatever equities the defendant may have against such former owner, he has no counterclaim against the trustee. Davis v. Lohsen (1901) 34 Misc. Rep. 769, 68 N. Y. Supp. 795. Where a claim against a bankrupt insurance company for loss under its policies has been assigned, after notice of insolvency, the assignee cannot set it off against his previous indebtedness to the company, the debts and credits not being "mutual" within the meaning of the law. Hitchcock v. Rollo (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 6,535. Where the trustee of a bankrupt corporation is prosecuting an action against another corporation for goods sold, a creditor of the bankrupt cannot have the value of the property credited on his claim against the bankrupt, and have the action dismissed, on the contention that the goods were bought by him from the bankrupt and sold by him to the other corporation, when it appears that he was an officer of the bankrupt corporation and in charge of its sales, and at the same time an officer and agent of the purchasing corporation. In re Fort Wayne Electric Corp. (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 264, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 503. Where a claimant ordered materials from a corporation, but another corporation furnished the materials, intending to charge the same to the claimant, and became bankrupt, and the claimant, before changing his position or suffering any loss, learned of the facts and insisted on receiving the materials from the bankrupt, held, that the claimant made himself a debtor to the bankrupt without any right to offset against the shipment any claim he had against the other corporation. In re Belleview Pipe & Foundry Co. (1910) 189 Fed. 169. A corporation, dissolved for distribution of its assets, held entitled, on the bankruptcy of its treasurer, to set off, as against the amount the treasurer was entitled as a stockholder, the amount he was in default. Marcus Shipping Ass'n v. Barnes (Iowa, 1915) 151 N. W. 525.

5. Time of accrual of debts or claims. —To entitle a person to a set-off against the estate of a bankrupt, his debt or demand must be a provable one, and therefore must have been in existence at the commencement of the proceeding in bankruptcy. Shepherd v. Turner (1825) 3 McCord (S. C.) 249, 15 Am. Dec. 631; Smith v. Brinkerhoff (1852) 2 Edm. Sel. Cas. (N. Y.) 369; Moore v. Third Nat. Bank (1909) 41 Pa. Super. Ct. 497. And if he was not the original holder of the claim he must have acquired it before the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. Smith v. Brinkerhoff (1850) 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 519; Ogden v. Cowley (1807) 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 274. A creditor of a bankrupt cannot obtain a preference of his debt by purchasing the property of the bankrupt through the intervention of an agent, and tendering the notes of the bankrupt in payment for the same; and in an action by the trustee to recover the value of such property, the creditor cannot set off the notes of the bankrupt. Fleming v. Andrews (C. C. 1880) 3 Fed. 632.

But if a debt or claim constitutes a fixed and definite liability at the time of the bankruptcy, it is a provable debt, although the time for its payment has not yet arrived, and a debt not yet due may be set off against a debt due immediately, if it is of a provable nature. Ex parte Prescot, 1 Atk. 230; Ex parte Wagstaff, 13 Ves. 65; In re City Bank of Savings, Loan & Discount (D. C. 1873) 6 N. B. R. 71, Fed. Cas. No.

2,742. Thus, notes made by the bankrupt, though not due at the time of the bankruptcy, may be used as a set-off in an action against the holder by the trustee in bankruptcy. Frank v. Mercantile Nat. Bank (1905) 182 N. Y. 264, 74 N. E. 841, 108 Am. St. Rep. 805. An indorser or surety who pays the debt of his principal after the latter's bankruptcy may claim the benefit of it as a set-off, provided his contract of indorsement or suretyship was made before the filing of the petition. In re Dillon (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 627, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 63; Marks v. Barker (C. C. 1804) Fed. Cas. No. 9,096.

6. Claims purchased with a view to set-off.—When it is alleged that a claim attempted to be set off was purchased by the creditor or transferred to him with a view to its being so used, the question turns upon his knowledge or notice of the insolvency of the debtor, or, in the case of involuntary bankruptcy, of the commission of an act of bankruptcy. Mattocks v. Lovering (C. C. 1880) 3 Fed. 212; Rollins v. Twitchell (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 201, Fed. Cas. No. 12,027; Mattox v. Cady (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 9,301; Hovey v. Home Ins. Co. (C. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 224, Fed. Cas. No. 6,743. If this particular fact is drawn in issue, the burden is on the party claiming the right of set-off to show that he had no notice or knowledge of the insolvency of the party with whom he was dealing, and consequently no intention of using the claim in question as a set-off in the latter's bankruptcy. In re Shults (D. C. 1905) 135 Fed. 623, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 378. Though this clause of the statute speaks only of claims "purchased by or transferred to" the debtor of the bankrupt, it is held that, where an indorser of the bankrupt's paper takes it up within four months prior to the bankruptcy, knowing that the bankrupt is insolvent, and for the purpose of setting it off against his debt to the bankrupt, the statute applies, and it cannot be so used. Mason v. National Herkimer County Bank (C. C. A. 1909) 172 Fed. 529, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 733.

7. Claims already filed or proved.—Where the creditor proved his claim, but omitted to credit the bankrupt with a debt due to him from the creditor, and the trustee sued for such debt, it was held that the creditor could not offer the claim already proved, by way of set-off to that suit; for his doing so would be equivalent to the prosecution of an original suit for its amount, the right to which he had waived. Brown v. Farmers' Bank of Kentucky (1869) 6 Bush (Ky.) 198; Russell v. Owen (1875) 61 Mo. 185. A creditor who has proved his claim in the bankruptcy proceedings may withdraw the same and plead it as a set-off in a suit brought against him by the trustee, and that if he is not allowed thus to plead the claim, and judgment goes against him in the trustee's suit, the court of bankruptcy, having full power over such a judgment, is bound by the statute to set off against it the claim of the creditor at its proper value. Harmanson v. Bain (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 6,073. A creditor, holding a note secured by collateral and another unsecured, which was proved as such, held entitled to apply a surplus arising from a subsequent sale of the collateral as a set-off on the unsecured note. In re Searles (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 893.

8. Joint debts and credits.—Where a bankrupt owed a debt to two persons jointly, and held a joint note given by one of them and a third person, it was held that the two claims were not subject to set-off under the bankruptcy act, being neither mutual debts or credits. Gray v. Rollo (1873) 18 Wall. 629, 21 L. Ed. 927. A solvent partnership which is indebted to a bankrupt cannot set off against such indebtedness a claim due from the bankrupt estate to one of the partners. In re Shults (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 573, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 84. A claim on promissory notes of a partner cannot be set off against a judgment in behalf of the firm, the debts not being in the same right. In re T. M. Lesher & Son (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 650, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 218. Where five persons, only one of whom was solvent, had a joint claim against the estate of a bankrupt, and each of them had severally become liable to the trustee in bankruptcy, the amounts of such liabilities aggregating more than the claim, but it did not appear that the joint liability and the separate debts grew out of the same transaction, or that either formed the inducement or consideration for the other, it was held that there could be no set-off of such claims. In re Crystal Spring Bottling Co. (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 265, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 55. Where the bankrupt and a person who was indebted to him were jointly liable on a promissory note to a bank, and the bank proved its claim on the note, and thereafter the bankrupt's debtor took up the note, it was held that the latter could not set off against his indebtedness to the estate the moiety of the note which the bankrupt should have paid, but that, on paying his debt to the trustee, he should be subrogated to the rights of the bank as to that moiety, and entitled to receive such dividends as should be declared thereon. In re Bingham (D. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 796, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 223.

Where a debtor of the bankrupt paid a debt to a creditor on which he was jointly liable with the bankrupt, and the creditor to whom the payment was made had received a preference, which he had not surrendered, and therefore was not entitled to prove his claim in the bankruptcy, it was held that the debtor paying the claim was not entitled to set off the payment against his debt to the bankrupt by virtue of his right of subrogation to the rights of the creditor, since he succeeded to the creditor's disabilities as well as to his rights, but that the claim of such debtor was a "mutual credit," within the meaning of the bankruptcy act, and on that ground he was entitled to have the same set off against the claim of the bankrupt's estate against him. Morgan v. Wardell (1901) 178 Mass. 350, 59 N. E. 1037, 55 L. R. A. 33. Where part of a claim accrued to the bankrupt himself before the bankruptcy, but the remainder to his trustee after the bankruptcy, one desiring to set off a claim in his own favor must show against which portion of the trustee's claim, if any, it is available by way of set-off. Howard v. Magazine & Book Co. (1911) 147 App. Div. 335, 131 N. Y. Supp. 916.

9. Set-off against deposit account in bank.—A general deposit account in a bank subject to check becomes, upon the bankruptcy of the depositor, a security for, and a payment pro tanto of, his liabilities to the bank, by the operation of the law of mutual credits. Hough v. First Nat. Bank (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 6,721; Ex parte Howard Nat. Bank (D. C. 1876) 16 N. B. R. 420, Fed. Cas. No. 6,764. Where a bankrupt is indebted to a bank, on promissory notes or otherwise, in which he also has a balance to the credit of his general deposit account, the bank is entitled to have the one claim set off against the other, and to account to the trustee in bankruptcy only for the balance of the money on deposit after satisfying its own claims, or, if those claims exceed the amount of the bankrupt's balance, then to prove its claim for the remainder. New York County Nat. Bank v. Massey (1904) 192 U. S. 138, 24 Sup. Ct. 199, 48 L. Ed. 380, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 42; Seammon v. Kimball (1875) 92 U. S. 362, 23 L. Ed. 483; In re Myers (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 691, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 760; In re Little (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 621, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 681; In re Meyer (D. C. 1901) 107 Fed. 86, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 593; In re Kalter (D. C. 1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 264; In re Petrie (D. C. 1871) 7 N. B. R. 332, Fed. Cas. No. 11,040; Blair v. Allen (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 1,-483; Booth v. Prete (1909) 81 Conn. 636, 71 Atl. 938, 20 L. R. A. (N. S.) 863, 15 Ann. Cas. 306; Steinhardt v. National Park Bank (1907) 120 App. Div. 255, 105 N. Y. Supp. 23; Whitaker v. Crowder State Bank (1910) 26 Okl. 786, 110 Pac. 776; West v. Bank of Lahoma (1906) 16 Okl. 328, 85 Pac. 469; Toof v. City Nat. Bank (C. C. A. 1913) 206 Fed. 250, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 79; In re Wright-Dana Hardware Co. (C. C. A. 1914) 212 Fed. 397; Conquest v. Broadway Nat. Bank (Tenn. 1916) 183 S. W. 160; Chisholm v. First Nat. Bank of Le Roy (1915) 269 Ill. 110, 109 N. E. 657. A deposit with a bank before the beginning of bankruptcy proceedings would not be such a transfer as would be unavailable as a set-off, unless it were fraudulent as against creditors and not valid as the basis of any legal claims. In re Radley Steel Const. Co. (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 462.

A bank is entitled to set off against the balance due to the bankrupt on his deposit account any debt or claim which it holds against him, if fixed and absolute, although not due at the date of the bankruptcy. Germania Savings Bank & Trust Co. v. Loeb (1911) 188 Fed. 285, 110 C. C. A. 263, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 238; De Long v. Mechanics' & Metals' Nat. Bank (1915) 168 App. Div. 525, 153 N. Y. Supp. 1010; Shields v. John Shields Const. Co. (N. J. 1910) 89 Atl. 1022. Notes of the bankrupt discounted by the bank prior to the filing of the petition in bankruptcy may be set off against his deposit account, whether matured or not at the date of the adjudication in bankruptcy. Frank v. Mercantile Nat. Bank (1905) 100 App. Div. 449, 91 N. Y. Supp. 488, affirmed (1905) 182 N. Y. 264, 74 N. E. 841, 108 Am. St. Rep. 805. The bankrupt's liability as indorser of a note held by the bank may be set off against his deposit account, though such liability did not become absolute until after the filing of the petition. In re Philip Semmer Glass Co. (1905) 135 Fed. 77, 67 C. C. A. 551, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 25.

Although the deposit account may have been transferred on the books of the bank to an assignee for creditors or a receiver, or even to the trustee in bankruptcy, yet if there has been no actual payment of the money nor any change of possession, it is not too late to claim the right of set-off. In re Myers (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 691, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 760. Compare Pearsall v. Nassau Nat. Bank (1902) 74 App. Div. 89, 77 N. Y. Supp. 11. Where a bank, holding a note of the bankrupt and also having funds of his on deposit sufficient to satisfy it, paid over the entire fund to the trustee in bankruptcy, through oversight, without first satisfying the note, it was entitled to recover the amount of the note from the trustee in a court of equity, without first offering to satisfy the note or bringing it into court for cancellation. Union Nat. Bank v. McKey (1900) 102 Fed. 662, 42 C. C. A. 583.

If a bank, after the commencement of proceedings in bankruptcy, collects money on drafts deposited with it by the bankrupt before that time, it may apply the money towards the payment of a note of the bankrupt held by it. In re Farnsworth (D. C. 1873) 5 Biss. 223, 14 N. B. R. 148, Fed. Cas. No: 4,673. And see In re Northrup (D. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 763, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 335. But compare Continental & Commercial Trust & Savings Bank v. Chicago Title & Trust Co. (1912) 199 Fed. 704, 118 C. C. A. 142. And a firm note to a bank, assumed by an insolvent partner on the dissolution of the firm, becomes his individual indebtedness, so that such debt and the amount due to him as a depositor, independent of any partnership consideration, become mutual debts within the meaning of the bankruptcy law. Hooks v. Gila Valley Bank & Trust Co. (1909) 12 Ariz. 315, 100 Pac. 806.

Where, on motion of the receiver to compel a bank to turn over a deposit by the bankrupt, the bank claims a right to hold the deposit by way of set-off on claims not yet matured, its right to refuse a check of the depositor or the order of the court as to disposition of the deposit depends on whether a claim of the nature of the one set up is provable against the estate. In re Radley Steel Const Co. (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 462. A liability as indorser, where the principal is solvent, cannot be set off against a bank deposit by the indorser on his bankruptcy. Ex parte Howard Nat. Bank (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 6,764.

A bank will not be allowed to set off a deposit made by a bankrupt shortly prior to the bankruptcy against a previous indebtedness of the bankrupt contrary to the agreement under which the deposit was made. Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank of Waco, Tex., v. Park (1914) 209 Fed. 613, 126 C. C. A. 607. A bank will not be allowed to set off its claim against a deposit made by the bankrupt, where the money was deposited under an agreement that the bankrupt should use it to pay salary checks and pay roll checks and for certain other specified purposes. Continental & Commercial Trust & Sav. Bank v. Chicago Title & Trust Co. (1912) 199 Fed. 704, 118 C. C. A. 142. Nor where the bank received a deposit from a customer merely for safe-keeping, the money to be ultimately appropriated for the benefit of his creditors, and the bank knew him to be insolvent. Lynam v. Belfast Nat. Bank (1904) 98 Me. 448, 57 Atl. 799. Where the treasurer of a town deposited money in a bank which failed, and town warrants paid with the bank's money were in the hands of the bank at the time of its bankruptcy, and the trustee in bankruptcy obtained the warrants, it was held that, although the town was liable to him on the warrants, no right to set-off could exist in favor of the treasurer and the sureties on his bond. Town of Cicero v. Grisko (1909) 240 Ill. 220, 88 N. E. 478. Surety for H. Bank, a county depository, operated by a partnership, could not offset, in suit by the partnership's trustee in bankruptcy on notes, an amount which surety had paid the county treasurer for loss of county funds deposited after a partner's death, whether or not surety knew deceased was a partner; he being chargeable with notice. In re Hallock (D. C. 1915) 226 Fed. 821.

The mutual accounts between a bankrupt and his bank of deposit are closed by operation of law at the time when the petition in bankruptcy is filed, and no right of set-off exists in the bank as to deposits made after that time, even though neither party knew of the filing of the petition when the deposit was made. In re Michaelis & Lindeman (D. C. 1912) 196 Fed. 718.

Where a bank claims a set-off against the claim of the bankrupt's trustee for money on deposit, its claim arising out of the bankrupt's alleged conversion of certain property of which the bank was the real owner, the claim can be adjudicated only in a plenary suit, and cannot be reached by a summary order. In re Boston-Cerrillos Mines Corp. (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 794, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 739. Owners of securities in the hands of bankrupts, who were brokers, which had been wrongfully pledged as collateral for a bank loan, and were sold by the bank, held subrogated to the bank's right of set-off with respect to a general balance to the credit of the bankrupts in their deposit account. In re Leavitt & Grant (C. C. A. 1914) 215 Fed. 901.

On the bankruptcy of a bank or banker, a depositor, having a balance to the credit of his deposit account, is entitled to set off the same against a note on which he is indebted to the bank. In re Shults (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 573, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 84; Winslow v. Bliss (1870) 3 Lans. (N. Y.) 220.

10. Unpaid stock subscriptions.—A stockholder indebted to a bankrupt corporation for unpaid shares of stock cannot set off against such liability a debt due to him from the corporation. Sawyer v. Hoag (1873) 17 Wall. 610, 21 L. Ed. 731; Scammon v. Kimball (1875) 92 U. S. 362, 23 L. Ed. 483; Id. (C. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 337, Fed. Cas. No. 12,435; In re Howe Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 524, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 477; Kiskadden v. Steinle (1913) 203 Fed. 375, 121 C. C. A. 559, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 346. Where the trustee of a bankrupt insurance company sues a stockholder for the unpaid balance of his subscription to its capital, the latter cannot set off a claim against the company for a loss under its policy. Scammon v. Kimball (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 12,435. The claim of a creditor of a bankrupt corporation, who is also a stockholder and indebted to the corporation on an unpaid stock subscription, should not be allowed until such indebtedness has been collected, and, if uncollectible, the amount may be applied on his claim as an equitable set-off. Kiskadden v. Steinle (1913) 203 Fed. 375, 121 C. C. A. 559. The fact that stockholders of a bankrupt corporation are also holders of its bonds, and as such entitled to share in the distribution of the estate, does not entitle them to set off their claims as such in a suit against them by the trustee in bankruptcy to recover unpaid subscriptions. Babbitt v. Read (C. C. 1909) 173 Fed. 712, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 254. The trustee of a bankrupt corporation may interpose as a set-off against the claim of a stockholder a claim against him for the difference between the value of property turned over by him in payment for his stock and the nominal value of the stock, and the court, in the interest of creditors, will scrutinize with care the integrity and fairness of the transaction. In re Royce Dry Goods Co. (D. C. 1904) 133 Fed. 100, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 257.

11. Set-off against trustee.—A trustee in bankruptcy has no other or greater rights than the bankrupt had when he became bankrupt; and hence when a third person had at that time a right as against the bankrupt to a credit, he is entitled to assert such right in a suit against him by the trustee. Wasey v. Whitcomb (1911) 167 Mich. 58, 132 N. W. 572. And for the purpose of a set-off in such a suit, it is immaterial that the creditor has not proved his claim in bankruptcy or that the year allowed for that purpose has expired. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co. v. Graham (1906) 145 Fed. 809, 76 C. C. A. 385, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 610; Wagner v. Burnham (1909) 224 Pa. 586, 73 Atl. 990. A party against whom a judgment has been rendered in favor of the truste may, by proper proceedings in equity, be allowed to offset against the same a claim allowed in his favor against the bankrupt. Tootle-Weakley Millinery Co. v. Billingsley (1905) 74 Neb. 531, 105 N. W. 85. The provision of the statute in relation to the set-off of mutual debts or credits is broad enough to include a liability on the part of a creditor which has accrued to a trustee in bankruptcy as such, though not to the bankrupt himself, when the creditor's claim and such liability are mutual. In re Crystal Spring Bottling Co. (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 265, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 55. In an action by a trustee in bankruptcy to recover the price of certain live stock, where defendant set up as a counterclaim a demand for services rendered by him in keeping the stock before and after the time when the trustee acquired title thereto, it was held that so much of the claim as related to services rendered before the plaintiff acquired title was not a valid claim against the estate, and could not be allowed as a counterclaim, but otherwise as to so much of the claim as related to services rendered after the plaintiff acquired title to the property. Moran v. Bogert (1875) 3 Hun (N. Y.) 603. A claim based on a breach of contract by a bankrupt after the bankruptcy is not available as counterclaim against a claim for services or materials supplied by the trustee in bankruptcy, while continuing a contract partly performed by the bankrupt, because of want of mutuality, though the claim is available as against any claim of the bankrupt set up by the trustee. Howard v. Magazine & Book Co. (1911) 147 App. Div. 335, 131 N. Y. Supp. 916.

12. Suit to recover preference.—In a suit by a trustee in bankruptcy to recover an unlawful preference, the creditor will not be allowed to set off the debt in respect to which the preferential transfer of property or payment was made. Western Tie & Timber Co. v. Brown (1904) 129 Fed. 728, 64 C. C. A. 256, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 111; Moody v. Chicago Title & Trust Co. (1907) 138 Ill. App. 233; Harris v. Second Nat. Bank (1903) 110 Tenn. 239, 75 S. W. 1053; Schmidt v. Bank of Commerce (1910) 15 N. Mex. 470, 110 Pac. 613, 33 L. R. A. (N. S.) 558. Nor will he be entitled to credit for services rendered or disbursements made in caring for or disposing of the property in question. Ommen v. Tallcott (D. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 261, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 572. So a court of equity, in a suit by the trustee in bankruptcy to recover a preference, will not entertain a cross-bill for the recovery by the defendant of the amount of the dividend to which he claims to be entitled from the bankrupt estate, but will require him to prove his claim in the bankruptcy court, though it may permit him, on the giving of security, to retain in his hands sufficient of the amount which the complainant is entitled to recover to cover his dividend in case his claim shall be allowed. Ommen v. Tallcott (D. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 259, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 570. Nor is this rule confined to cases in which the trustee is forced to bring suit in order to avoid the preference. It is likewise applicable where he opposes the allowance of a claim filed by a creditor, on the ground that the creditor has received a preference which he has not surrendered. In re Christensen (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 802, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 202.

§ 9653. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 69.) Possession of property.

Possession of Property.—a A judge may, upon satisfactory proof, by affidavit, that a bankrupt against whom an involuntary petition has been filed and is pending has committed an act of bankruptcy, or has neglected or is neglecting, or is about to so neglect his property that it has thereby deteriorated or is thereby deteriorating or is about thereby to deteriorate in value, issue a warrant to the marshal to seize and hold it subject to further orders. Before such warrant is issued the petitioners applying therefor shall enter into a bond in such an amount as the judge shall fix, with such sureties as he shall approve, conditioned to indemnify such bankrupt for such damages as he shall sustain in the event such seizure shall prove to have been wrongfully obtained. Such property shall be released, if such bankrupt shall give bond in a sum which shall be fixed by the judge, with such sureties as he shall approve, conditioned to turn over such property, or pay the value thereof in money to the trustee, in the event he is adjudged a bankrupt pursuant to such petition. (30 Stat. 565.)

Notes of Decisions

1. Custody and control of property.
2. Rights and duties of bankrupt before appointment of trustee.
3. Jurisdiction in voluntary cases.
4. Warrant and seizure before adjudication.
5. Seizure of property in hands of third person.
6. Remedies against marshal seizing property of stranger.
7. —— Suit for damages in state court.
8. Restraining waste or disposition of property by bankrupt.
9. Restraining interference with property by third persons.
10. Enjoining levy or judicial sale.
11. Enjoining seizure under replevin.
12. Restraining proceedings in state courts.
13. Indemnity bond by petitioning creditors.
14. Forthcoming bond by bankrupt.

1. Custody and control of property.—An estate in bankruptcy is regarded as in the custody and subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the court of bankruptcy from the time of the filing of the petition. Corbett v. Riddle (1913) 209 Fed. 811, 126 C. C. A. 535; Acme Harvester Co. v. Beekman Lumber Co. (1911) 222 U. S. 300, 32 Sup. Ct. 96, 56 L. Ed. 208, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 262; In re Walsh Bros. (D. C. 1908) 159 Fed. 560, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 472; Whittlesey v. Philip Becker & Co. (1911) 142 App. Div. 313, 126 N. Y. Supp. 1046; Smith v. Berman (1910) 8 Ga. App. 262, 68 S. E. 1014; Gage Lumber Co. v. McEldowney (C. C. A. 1913) 207 Fed. 255, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 251. The removal and concealment by third persons of property, in contemplation of the appointment of a receiver in bankruptcy, and after the filing of the petition, is a contempt against the court of bankruptcy. In re Iron Clad Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 781. Property of which the bankruptcy court has taken possession through its trustee is withdrawn from the jurisdiction of all other courts, and cannot be taken from the trustee's possession on process from a state court. Meek v. Eggerman (Okl. 1916) 155 P. 522.

2. Rights and duties of bankrupt before appointment of trustee.—After the adjudication in bankruptcy and before the appointment and qualification of a trustee, the title to the bankrupt's property remains unchanged; it is not divested until there is a trustee to take it. Schoenthaler v. Rosskam (1903) 107 Ill. App. 427. The bankrupt is not to be regarded as civiliter mortuus during this period. Plaut v. Gorham Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1909) 174 Fed. 852, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 42. Until a trustee is appointed, the bankrupt has the right to pursue all proper legal measures for securing and preserving the estate. Hampton v. Rouse (1874) 22 Wall. 263, 22 L. Ed. 755; Blake v. Francis-Valentine Co. (D. C. 1898) 89 Fed. 691, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 372; March v. Heaton (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 180, Fed. Cas. No. 9,061; Myers v. Callaghan (C. C. 1881) 5 Fed. 726; In re Bowie (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 628, Fed. Cas. No. 1,728; Jones v. Leach (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 595, Fed. Cas. No. 7,475; In re Jessup (D. C. 1884) 19 Fed. 94; In re Steadman (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 319, Fed. Cas. No. 13,330. The bankrupt may file a petition to enjoin the enforcement of a judgment against the property. In re Bowie (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 628, Fed. Cas. No. 1,728. Or to restrain a sheriff from selling under a levy. Jones v. Leach (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 595, Fed. Cas. No. 7,475. The bankrupt may redeem his land from a tax sale. Hampton v. Rouse (1874) 22 Wall. 263, 22 L. Ed. 755. He may maintain a suit for damages occasioned by an unlawful judicial sale of a portion of the property. Johnson v. Collier (1912) 222 U. S. 538, 32 Sup. Ct. 104, 56 L. Ed. 306. He is the proper person to be notified of the dishonor of notes or bills on which he is an indorser, and is competent to waive demand and notice. Ex parte Tremont Nat. Bank (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 14,169. If the bankrupt dies before the appointment of a trustee, the trust and duty of holding and preserving the property devolve upon his heirs. Ferguson v. Dent (C. C. 1885) 24 Fed. 412.

By reason of the exclusive nature of the bankruptcy act, the manner of its enforcement, and the forum in which it is enforced, creditors obtain rights in the assets and property of their insolvent debtors, of which they may not be deprived by the voluntary action of the debtors. In re Heleker Bros. Mercantile Co. (D. C. 1914) 216 Fed. 963. And after the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, the bankrupt is not justified in selling any portion of his property, even for the purpose of raising money to pay lawful fees, unless by leave of the court. In re Pryor (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 11,457; In re Jessup (D. C. 1884) 19 Fed. 94. See Shipman v. Daubert (1879) 7 Mo. App. 576. And compare In re Livingston & Turk (C. C. A. 1913) 205 Fed. 364, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 531. The bankruptcy court has no jurisdiction to punish the bankrupt as for contempt, where, subsequent to the adjudication, he sold and disposed of certain of his assets and converted the money to his own use, while holding his property subject generally to the orders of the court, but his act in selling it not being in violation of any particular order. In re Probst (C. C. A. 1913) 205 Fed. 512, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 600. Where a partner was a trustee in bankruptcy, and his copartners secured an injunction against his delivery to his successor of alleged partnership funds received by the trustee, the funds, having been received by the successor without notice, are no longer subject to the jurisdiction of the state court. Broussard v. Le Blanc (1916) 182 S. W. 78. If the property is perishable, or must be sold at once for fear of deterioration, the court will order the marshal to sell it, and the bankrupt cannot become the purchaser. March v. Heaton (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 9,061.

3. Jurisdiction in voluntary cases.—Though this section relates in terms only to "a bankrupt against whom an involuntary petition has been filed," yet in voluntary cases, if circumstances make it necessary or proper that the court should take actual charge of the property by a receiver or the marshal, pending the appointment of a trustee, it has power to do so. The Ironsides (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 7,069. Where a bankrupt, after the filing of the petition, absconded from the jurisdiction and was arrested in a distant city, and there subjected to search, resulting in the discovery on his person of a large sum of money belonging to his estate in bankruptcy, which was claimed by his receiver, it was held that the court was not required to order the restoration of the money to the bankrupt, on the ground that the search had been unlawful, since it would then have power immediately to order him to surrender it to the receiver. In re A. Musica & Son (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 413, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 555. Under the provisions of this section and of section 2, subd. 3 (ante, § 9586), the bankruptcy court is limited to the appointment of a receiver "to take charge of the property of the bankrupt" pending the election of a trustee. Greenhall v. Hurwitz (1913) 141 N. Y. S. 914, 80 Misc. Rep. 186.

4. Warrant and seizure before adjudication.—A warrant for the sequestration of the bankrupt's property may issue before the adjudication where he has disposed of a part of his assets and has expressed an intention of going abroad. In re Hale (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 335, Fed. Cas. No. 5,911; In re Clark (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 554, Fed. Cas. No. 2,811.

The practice of uniting in one petition a prayer for an adjudication in involuntary bankruptcy against the debtor and a prayer for a warrant directing the marshal to seize and hold his property pending the adjudication is condemned. The proceedings for such warrant and in execution thereof are separate and distinct from the petition in bankruptcy, and must be prosecuted by separate petition. In re Kelly (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 504, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 306. The application for a warrant is to be supported by affidavits, and these must set forth fully and specifically all the essential facts, including the insolvency of the debtor, and the facts constituting the alleged act of bankruptcy or neglect of his property. In re Kelly (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 504, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 306. It is not a sufficient compliance with the statute where the application is supported merely by an affidavit of the bankrupt that he waives proof of the necessary facts and consents to the issuance of the warrant. In re Sarsar (D. C. 1903) 120 Fed. 40, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 576. Where the affidavits show the necessary facts, the warrant will not be vacated where such facts are not disproved, and it appears that the purpose of the bankrupt in moving to vacate the warrant is merely to deprive the marshal of his fees. In re Clark (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 554, Fed. Cas. No. 2,811.

If the marshal, acting merely as the messenger of the court, has taken possession of the bankrupt's property, but without any order of court to that effect, his possession is not that of the court of bankruptcy. The Ironsides (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 7,069. Property in the custody of the marshal, under a warrant in bankruptcy, may be insured under the direction of the judge or referee. In re Carow (D. C. 1871) 4 N. B. R. 543, Fed. Cas. No. 2,426.

5. Seizure of property in hands of third person.—The marshal will be justified in taking possession not only of such property of the bankrupt as may remain in the latter's own hands, but also of all property actually belonging to the bankrupt which may be found in the possession of third persons holding it as the bankrupt's agents, custodians, or bailees. Feibelman v. Packard

(1883) 109 U. S. 421, 3 Sup. Ct. 289, 27 L. Ed. 984; Sharpe v. Doyle (1880) 102 U. S. 686, 26 L. Ed. 277; In re White (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 393, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 358; In re Franklin Suit & Skirt Co. (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 591, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 278. A marshal appointed to take charge of the property of an alleged bankrupt has the right to seize property in the possession of a third person, even though the latter claims it adversely, where there is reason to believe that it actually belongs to the bankrupt's estate; and the bankruptcy court has jurisdiction to determine the title thereto, and if the adverse claimant files a petition for its recovery in the bankruptcy court, he thereby assents to the jurisdiction of that court summarily to determine his rights. Further, the fact that property was unlawfully taken from one in possession of it by state officers, by an unreasonable or unlawful search and seizure, affords no reason why it may not be lawfully seized while in the possession of such authorities by the marshal acting as receiver in bankruptcy. Le Master v. Spencer (C. C. A. 1913) 203 Fed. 210, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 264. But on motion in bankruptcy to require third parties to turn over property, alleged to belong to the bankrupt, to the receiver, specific proof must be made as to the identity or value of the property; and a search of a third person's premises for property belonging to the bankrupt is proper only as to specific property or to obtain known assets of the bankrupt. In re Iron Clad Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 781.

Property of a bankrupt in the hands of third persons is included within the provisions of the statute, so that it may be seized by the marshal, where the possessor's title rests upon a foundation which is void or voidable under the bankruptcy act, as in the case of a purchaser from an assignee under a general assignment for creditors, which assignment was itself an act of bankruptcy, and the sale having been made before the appointment of a trustee in bankruptcy, but after and with notice of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. Bryan v. Bernheimer (1901) 181 U. S. 188, 21 Sup. Ct. 557, 45 L. Ed. 814, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623. CONTRA, In re Rockwood (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 363, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 272; In re Kelly (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 504, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 306; Beach v. Macon Grocery Co. (1902) 116 Fed. 143, 53 C. C. A. 463, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 751; In re Kolin (1905) 134 Fed. 557, 67 C. C. A. 481, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 531; In re Andre (1905) 135 Fed. 736, 68 C. C. A. 374, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 132. And see In re Gibson (1908) 22 Okl. 867, 98 Pac. 923. The marshal, acting under a warrant, is justified in seizing property in the hands of third persons not only where the possessor claims under an assignment for creditors, but also where the transfer to him was fraudulent or preferential. Sharpe v. Doyle (1880) 102 U. S. 686, 26 L. Ed. 277; Feibelman v. Packard (1883) 109 U. S. 421, 3 Sup. Ct. 289, 27 L. Ed. 984; In re Rochford (1903) 124 Fed. 182, 59 C. C. A. 388, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 608; McNulty v. Feingold (D. C. 1904) 129 Fed. 1001, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 338; In re Moody (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 525, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 718; In re Knopf (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 245, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 432; In re Smith, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 61; In re Muller (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 329, Fed. Cas. No. 9,912; In re Briggs (D. C. 1870) 3 N. B. R. 638, Fed. Cas. No. 1,869; Stevenson v. McLaren (1876) 23 Minn. 111, 14 N. B. R. 403; In re Miller (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 9,551. A third person in the possession of property may be summarily ordered to surrender it, where the validity of the title which he sets up in himself depends on a question of law rather than one of fact. In re Michaelis & Lindeman (D. C. 1912) 196 Fed. 718.

Where a justice of the peace refused to regard an adjudication in bankruptcy, but proceeded to render judgment and order the sale of attached property which, by virtue of such adjudication had passed into the jurisdiction of the court of bankruptcy, the latter court was held justified in directing the seizure of the property by the marshal. In re Tune (D. C. 1902) 115 Fed. 906, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 285. But if the property is in the hands of a receiver appointed by a state court, it cannot be seized on the warrant, as the possession of the receiver is that of the court which appointed him. Carling v. Seymour Lumber Co. (1902) 113 Fed. 483, 51 C. C. A. 1, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 29.

If property which really belongs to a third person is erroneously seized, the court of bankruptcy may order it to be returned to him. But this course should not be taken where his right to it is in good faith denied by creditors of the bankrupt; in that case the claimant will be required to assert his rights in a plenary action. In re Young (1901) 111 Fed. 158, 49 C. C. A. 283, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 14. Where the property seized was in the possession of an assignee for the benefit of creditors (the assignment being rendered nugatory by the subsequent institution of the bankruptcy proceedings), it was said that it should be restored to him only on condition of his releasing the marshal from all damages, and his agreeing not to dispose of the property without the approval of the bankruptcy court. In re Manahan (D. C. 1878) 19 N. B. R. 65, Fed. Cas. No. 9,003.

6. Remedies against marshal seizing property of stranger.—Where the marshal, in the execution of a warrant of seizure in bankruptcy, has taken possession of property which did not belong to the bankrupt, but was owned by a third person, the latter may file a petition in the court of bankruptcy, setting up his title to the property in question, and praying for an order that it may be restored to him. On such intervention, the bankruptcy court has authority to grant him full protection and justice, and will order the immediate return to him of the property seized, or its proceeds if it has already been sold. In re Harthill (D. C. 1871) 4 N. B. R. 392, Fed. Cas. No. 6,161; In re Davidson (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 114, Fed. Cas. No. 3,598; Krippendorf v. Hyde (1884) 110 U. S. 276, 4 Sup. Ct. 27, 28 L. Ed. 145; Lammon v. Feusier (1884) 111 U. S. 17, 4 Sup. Ct. 286, 28 L. Ed. 337; Gumbel v. Pitkin (1888) 124 U. S. 131, 8 Sup. Ct. 379, 31 L. Ed. 374. The marshal or receiver may defend his possession of goods seized as belonging to the bankrupt. In re Lipman (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 169. The claimant may be allowed costs, counsel fees, and damages occasioned by the seizure and detention of the property, to be paid by the creditors at whose instance his property was taken. In re Abraham (1899) 93 Fed. 767, 35 C. C. A. 592, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 266. The owner of the property cannot be compelled to submit his claims to adjudication in a summary proceeding, on petition, rule to show cause, and reference to a referee, but he may maintain a plenary action against the marshal in the court of bankruptcy if he prefers to do so. In re Russell (C. C. A. 1900) 101 Fed. 248, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 658.

7. —— Suit for damages in state court.—The owner of property wrongfully seized by the marshal as belonging to the estate in bankruptcy may abandon the property and maintain an action for damages against the marshal, in the nature of trespass or trover, in a state court. Buck v. Colbath (1865) 3 Wall. 334, 18 L. Ed. 257; In re Russell (C. C. A. 1900) 101 Fed. 248, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 658; Marsh v. Armstrong (1874) 20 Minn. 81 (Gil. 66), 18 Am. Rep. 355, 11 N. B. R. 125; In re Davidson (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 114, Fed. Cas. No. 3,598; In re Marks (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 575, Fed. Cas. No. 9,095. See Leroux v. Hudson (1883) 109 U. S. 468, 3 Sup. Ct. 309, 27 L. Ed. 1000. Compare Hudson v. Schwab (C. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 480, Fed. Cas. No. 6,835. If the petitioning creditors in the bankruptcy proceedings have given the marshal a bond of indemnity, they will be bound to defend such a suit against him in the state court. In re Marks (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 575, Fed. Cas. No. 9,095. The fact that the claimant may have applied to the bankruptcy court to stop proceedings for the sale of the property until he could establish his title will not make him a party to the bankruptcy proceedings, nor will the decision on such application make his title res judicata in his action against the marshal for trespass. Marsh v. Armstrong (1874) 20 Minn. 81, 18 Am. Rep. 355. If the marshal justifies under his warrant, and the state courts hold that he had no authority under the laws of the United States to levy on the property in controversy, the decision is one which may be reviewed by the Supreme Court of the United States. Sharpe v. Doyle (1880) 102 U. S. 686, 26 L. Ed. 277. The claimant cannot maintain an action of replevin in any state court against the marshal or the trustee in bankruptcy for the specific restoration of the property, and if such an action is begun, its prosecution will be enjoined by the court of bankruptcy. In re Russell (C. C. A. 1900) 101 Fed. 248, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 658; Freeman v. Howe (1860) 24 How. 450, 16 L. Ed. 749; Covell v. Heyman (1884) 111 U. S. 176, 4 Sup. Ct. 355, 28 L. Ed. 390; Petterson v. Mater (C. C. 1885) 26 Fed. 31; Summers v. White (1895) 71 Fed. 106, 17 C. C. A. 631; Hannebutt v. Cunningham (1879) 3 Ill. App. 353; Feusier v. Lammon (1870) 6 Nev. 209; Lewis v. Buck (1862) 7 Minn. 104 (Gil. 71), 82 Am. Dec. 73; Munson v. Harroun (1864) 34 Ill. 422, 85 Am. Dec. 316.

If a United States marshal, under process from the federal court, seizes property which does not belong to the defendant in the writ, but to a third person, the latter cannot have a writ of injunction from a state court forbidding the marshal to sell the property. It is for the federal court to give him relief in that behalf. Brooks v. Montgomery (1871) 28 La. Ann. 450.

8. Restraining waste or disposition of property by bankrupt.—The bankruptcy court has power to restrain the commission of any act that will interfere with or prevent the due administration of the bankruptcy act to preserve the statu quo pending adjudication of bankruptcy. In re Schow (D. C. 1914) 213 Fed. 514. If the circumstances make it necessary for the preservation of the estate, after the filing of a petition in bankruptcy, that the bankrupt himself or any third person should be restrained from wasting, selling, or otherwise disposing of the property, an injunction may issue for that purpose, to be in force until a trustee is elected and qualified. Hampton v. Rouse (1874) 22 Wall. 263, 22 L. Ed. 755; In re Ulrich (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 15, Fed. Cas. No. 14,328; Hyde v. Bancroft (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 24, Fed. Cas. No. 6,966; Ex parte Harris (D. C. 1845) Fed. Cas. No. 6,110; In re Muller (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 329, Fed. Cas. No. 9,912; Johnson v. Price (C. C. 1876) 13 N. B. R. 523, Fed. Cas. No. 7,407; In re Camp (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 242, Fed. Cas. No. 2,346. The officers of a bankrupt corporation may be enjoined from withdrawing funds of the corporation on deposit in a bank. In re McGinley (1915) 219 Fed. 159, 135 C. C. A. 57. The bankrupt may be enjoined from collecting accounts due to him, from squandering his assets, or from making transfers or gifts or mortgages of his property. In re Calendar (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 2,308; In re Irving (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 7,073. He will not be permitted to convey away his property after the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. Muschel v. Austern (1904) 43 Misc. Rep. 352, 87 N. Y. Supp. 235. If he thereafter delivers property in his possession to a third person, on the pretense that the latter is the owner of the property and the bankrupt only a bailee, it is a contempt of the court of bankruptcy and may be dealt with as such. In re Potteiger (D. C. 1910) 181 Fed. 640, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 648. It may be proper to enjoin the bankrupt from disposing even of his exempt property, where the creditor moving for the writ claims the property because of a waiver of exemptions. Floyd v. Johnson (1914) 142 Ga. 833, 83 S. E. 943.

A creditor of a bankrupt who receives a payment in money from him after the institution of the proceedings violates the spirit and purpose of the bankruptcy law, and if he does this knowingly and fraudulently, he may be proceeded against criminally and punished on conviction, under the twenty-ninth section of the act. Knapp & Spencer Co. v. Drew (1908) 160 Fed. 413, 87 C. C. A. 365, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 355.

9. Restraining interference with property by third persons.—The filing of a bankruptcy petition is supposed to give notice to all the world of the pendency of the proceedings, and operates as an attachment of the bankrupt's property and as an injunction restraining all persons from intermeddling with it. Mueller v. Nugent (1902) 184 U. S. 1, 22 Sup. Ct. 269, 46 L. Ed. 405, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 224; In re Krinsky (D. C. 1902) 112 Fed. 972, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 535; In re Breslauer (D. C. 1903) 121 Fed. 910, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 33; In re Mertens (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 507, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 698; In re Reynolds (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 760, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 758. Besides this implied injunction, it is within the authority of the court of bankruptcy to issue its actual injunction, for the purpose of preserving the estate intact until a trustee can be appointed to take charge of it, forbidding any third person whomsoever from interfering with the property, taking possession of any portion of it, selling it, or otherwise disturbing the status quo. In re Lineberry (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 338, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 164; In re Berkowitz (D. C. 1908) 173 Fed. 1013, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 233; Beach v. Macon Grocery Co. (1902) 116 Fed. 143, 53 C. C. A. 463, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 751; In re Smith (D. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 993, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 55; In re Moses (D. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 181, Fed. Cas. No. 9,869; In re Ulrich (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 15, Fed. Cas. No. 14,328; Hyde v. Bancroft (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 24, Fed. Cas. No. 6,966; In re Muller (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 329, Fed. Cas. No. 9,912; Johnson v. Price (C. C. 1876) 13 N. B. R. 523, Fed. Cas. No. 7,407.

Removal or concealment by third persons of property, in contemplation of the appointment of a receiver or trustee in bankruptcy, after the filing of the petition, is in fact a contempt of the court; and any third person who has interfered with personalty which was in the bankrupt's possession when the petition in bankruptcy was filed, has the burden of showing the right under which he removed the property, and on his failure to make such showing, he is properly directed to surrender to the trustee possession of everything shown to have been in the bankrupt's possession. In re Iron Clad Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 781.

Where the debtor had made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors (which is alleged as the act of bankruptcy upon which the petition is founded), and the assignee is in possession of the estate and is about to make sale thereof, the court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction to enjoin such assignee from proceeding further with the administration of the estate. In re Gutwillig (1899) 92 Fed. 337, 34 C. C. A. 377, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 388; Rumsey & Sikemier Co. v. Novelty & Machine Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1899) 99 Fed. 699, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 704; Davis v. Bohle (1899) 92 Fed. 325, 34 C. C. A. 372, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 412; In re Sievers (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 366, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 117. Pending the adjudication on an involuntary petition, the court of bankruptcy may enjoin any person from conveying away, disposing of, or interfering with any property once owned by the debtor and claimed to have been fraudulently transferred by him and concealed, upon prima facie proof of the fraud. In re Abbott (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 10; In re Holland (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 403, Fed. Cas. No. 6,605; In re Fendley (D. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 250, Fed. Cas. No. 4,728. The authority of the court of bankruptcy to preserve the property intact until the proper person can be vested with its possession and control extends to cases where any portion of the bankrupt's estate is in the custody of an officer of a state court, who has levied a writ thereon. The sale or other disposition of such property, under the officer's authority may be stayed until a trustee in bankruptcy can intervene for the protection of the rights of the general creditors, or make out a case against the validity of the levy.

Chapman v. Brewer (1885) 114 U. S. 158, 5 Sup. Ct. 799, 29 L. Ed. 83; In re Schloerb (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 326, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 224; In re Lutfy (D. C. 1907) 156 Fed. 873, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 614. But see In re Ogles (D. C. 1899) 93 Fed. 426, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 671.

After a receiver is appointed, if he finds goods in the possession of a third person, which creditors claim as a part of the bankrupt's estate, but which the holder claims as his own, under a title set up in good faith and supported by a prima facie case, the receiver cannot have him enjoined from selling or removing the property; he must proceed by a plenary action. In re Glenn (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 554, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 806. And see In re Ward (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 985, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 215.

In order to justify the issuance of an injunction, it must appear that a proceeding in bankruptcy has been commenced by the filing of a petition and is pending. In re Goldberg (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 692, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 156. If any power exists in either a state or a federal court to impound the assets of an insolvent debtor and hold them until bankruptcy proceedings against him can be instituted, it can only be exercised in a very strong case and where there is absolutely no other remedy. Vietor v. Lewis (1898) 24 Misc. Rep. 515, 53 N. Y. Supp. 944, affirmed (1898) 34 App. Div. 631, 54 N. Y. Supp. 1118. A court of bankruptcy has no power to enjoin third persons from interfering with property within its territorial jurisdiction but claimed as assets of an estate in bankruptcy which is being administered in the federal court in another district. In re Dempster (C. C. A. 1909) 172 Fed. 353, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 751. Such an injunction cannot be made to apply to persons who are outside of the jurisdiction of the court and who do not come within the district to participate in the administration of the estate. In re Isaac Harris Co. (D. C. 1909) 173 Fed. 735, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 237.

An injunction to restrain third persons from interfering with the bankrupt's estate may be granted at the instance of creditors other than the petitioning creditors. Depauli v. Espitallier (1906) 3 Cal. App. 239, 84 Pac. 999. Or at the instance of their attorney acting in their behalf. In re Goldberg (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 692, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 156. Or at the instance of the bankrupt himself. In re Wallace (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 134, Fed. Cas. No. 17,094; In re Bowie (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 628, Fed. Cas. No. 1,728; Blake v. Francis-Valentine Co. (D. C. 1898) 89 Fed. 691, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 372; Brock v. Terrell (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 643, Fed. Cas. No. 1,914; Jones v. Leach (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 595, Fed. Cas. No. 7,475. But this power will not be exercised in aid of a purchaser of lands at a bankruptcy sale, who has been put in possession, and who, long after the estate is fully administered, is threatened with executions issued by a state court on judgments against the bankrupt. Sargent v. Helton (1885) 115 U. S. 348, 6 Sup. Ct. 78, 29 L. Ed. 412. No judgment can be rendered against a third person for contempt in disobeying an injunction issued in aid of the proceedings in bankruptcy, without proper proceedings taken against him, distinct from those against the bankrupt. Creditors v. Cozzens (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 281, Fed. Cas. No. 3,378.

10. Enjoining levy or judicial sale.—After the filing of a petition in bankruptcy, if judgment creditors are threatening to levy executions or attachments on property of the bankrupt, they will be enjoined from so doing. Samson v. Burton (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 1, Fed. Cas. No. 12,285; In re Eastern Commission & Importing Co. (D. C. 1904) 129 Fed. 847, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 305; Dittemore v. Cable Milling Co. (1909) 16 Idaho, 298, 101 Pac. 593, 133 Am. St. Rep. 98. If a sheriff has an execution in his hands, he will be enjoined from levying on the goods, or if he has already levied, the court of bankruptcy may restrain him from making a sale. Chapman v. Brewer (1885) 114 U. S. 158, 5 Sup. Ct. 799, 29 L. Ed. 83; In re Goldberg (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 692, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 156; Blake, Moffitt & Towne v. Francis-Valentine Co. (D. C. 1898) 89 Fed. 691, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 372; In re Wallace (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 134, Fed. Cas. No. 17,094; In re Bowie (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 628, Fed. Cas. No. 1,728; Brock v. Terrell (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 643, Fed. Cas. No. 1,914; Jones v. Leach (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 595, Fed. Cas. No. 7,475; In re Atkinson (D. C. 1872) 7 N. B. R. 143, Fed. Cas. No. 606; In re Mallory (D. C. 1871) 6 N. B. R. 22, Fed. Cas. No. 8,991; In re Mellor (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 9,402. Or the sheriff may be allowed to sell the property, but under the supervision and control of the court of bankruptcy, being then required to hold the proceeds subject to the order of that court. Allen v. Montgomery (1873) 48 Miss. 101; In re Jackson (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 493. The sheriff may be thus allowed to sell under his writ where a majority of the creditors desire it and it does not appear that the property is likely to be sacrificed or that the interests of the minority creditors will be injured. In re Edward Ellsworth Co. (D. C. 1909) 173 Fed. 699, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 284.

After process of execution issuing from a state court has been executed by a sale of the bankrupt's property, it is too late for the bankruptcy court to interfere by injunction or otherwise, the purchaser having acquired a good title. In re Fuller (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 5,148. In this case, the court of bankruptcy will not have jurisdiction over the proceeds of the sale remaining in the hands of the sheriff, and he cannot be enjoined from paying over the same to the execution creditor. In re Easley (D. C. 1898) 93 Fed. 419, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 715.

11. Enjoining seizure under replevin.—After the commencement of the proceedings in bankruptcy, though a trustee has not yet been appointed, property scheduled as a part of the bankrupt's estate cannot rightfully be seized by an officer acting under a writ of replevin from a state court. If it is so taken, the officer will be forbidden, by injunction, to sell the property under his writ, or deliver it to the claimant, or otherwise dispose of it, and will be ordered to restore it to the custody of the court of bankruptcy, and the consequences of his disobedience will recoil upon those who may have instigated his disregard of the authority of the court of bankruptcy. In re Schloerb (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 326, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 224; In re Walsh Bros. (D. C. 1908) 159 Fed. 560, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 472; In re Alton Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1908) 158 Fed. 367, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 805; In re Gutwillig (D. C. 1898) 90 Fed. 481; In re Wilk (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 943, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 178.

12. Restraining proceedings in state courts.—Where particular creditors are alleged to have gained an unlawful preference by means of attachments levied on the debtor's property, the appointment of a receiver, and the sale of the property, the proceeds remaining in the hands of the receiver, they may be enjoined from taking proceedings in the state court for the distribution of the fund so held, at least where the necessity of prompt action is shown and it appears that the money would be lost by the policy of waiting until a trustee subsequently to be appointed could sue them for the avoidance of the alleged preference and the recovery of its fruits. In re Ogles (D. C. 1899) 93 Fed. 426, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 671. So where a building leased by the bankrupt and containing his stock in trade passes into the possession of a receiver in bankruptcy, and its occupation is necessary to the proper settlement of the estate, the landlord will not be allowed to prosecute an action of ejectment in a state court to recover the building, but will be enjoined, and remitted to his proper remedy in the court of bankruptcy. In re Chambers, Calder & Co. (D. C. 1900) 98 Fed. 865, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 537; In re Kleinhans (D. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 107, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 604.

The power to stay actions pending in the state court against a bankrupt is given only for the benefit of the bankrupt's estate, and, if the estate has no interest in the suit, it cannot properly be stayed. In re Federal Biscuit Co. (1913) 203 Fed. 37, 121 C. C. A. 373. A showing of the amounts secured by mortgages against a bankrupt's property, without a showing of the amount due, does not show that the bankruptcy court abused its discretion in enjoining the proceedings to foreclose the mortgage. Pugh v. Loisel (1915) 219 Fed. 417, 135 C. C. A. 221. Injunction will not be granted as of course, on the filing of an involuntary bankruptcy petition, restraining proceedings under a judgment recovered against the bankrupt in the state court. In re Penn Development Co. (D. C. 1915) 220 Fed. 222.

13. Indemnity bond by petitioning creditors.—When application is made for the appointment of a receiver pending the adjudication of bankruptcy, the creditors must furnish the indemnifying bond required by the statute, and the authority of the court to grant their application is conditioned on this being done. Beach v. Macon Grocery Co. (1902) 116 Fed. 143, 53 C. C. A. 463, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 751; In re Haff (1905) 135 Fed. 742, 68 C. C. A. 380, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 354. Where an order appointing a receiver requires the petitioner to give a bond, but fails to fix the time when the bond shall be filed, or fails to require such filing before the receiver is directed to take possession of the property, it is erroneous. In re Haff (1905) 135 Fed. 742, 68 C. C. A. 380, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 354. If bond given on appointment of receiver, is insufficient, held, that alleged bankrupt may apply to the court to require an additional bond. T. E. Hill Co. v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1914) 107 N. E. 194, 265 Ill. 534, affirming judgment (1914) 184 Ill. App. 528.

The creditors' bond protects a receiver in bankruptcy for his outlay in excess of the amount collected by him, but it is only in cases where the proceedings, resulting in a receivership, were instituted improvidently or without probable cause, or without good faith, or the like, that the petitioning creditors are liable for the payment of the excess of the cost of the receivership over the assets. In re Metals Extraction & Refining Co. (C. C. A. 1912) 195 Fed. 226, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 11. The court, in a proper case, may require the bond to contain as one of its conditions that the creditors will pay the expenses of the receivership if sufficient assets applicable to that purpose are not discovered. In re McKane (D. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 733. There is ordinarily no liability, on a bond of this kind, in the way of damages to the bankrupt, unless the creditors acted maliciously and without probable cause, and in that case the remedy is a suit in the nature of an action of malicious prosecution. In re Moehs & Rechnitzer (D. C. 1909) 174 Fed. 165, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 286. Where the condition in a bond given to a trustee in bankruptcy provides for the payment to legal creditors of "whatever pro rata sum may be adjudged to be due them," there is no basis for a judgment permitting a recovery for breach thereof, when no rate of distribution was fixed by the bankruptcy court. Bausman v. Mead (1913) 182 Ill. App. 35.

If the order appointing the receiver is set aside, that is sufficient to show that the taking possession of the debtor's property was "wrongful," within the meaning of the statute, without showing malice, fraud, or lack of probable cause; and it is not necessary, to sustain an action in a state court, that the costs and damages should first have been fixed by the court of bankruptcy. T. E. Hill Co. v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1911) 250 Ill. 242, 95 N. E. 150.

As to the bond required when the property of the bankrupt is to be seized by the marshal under a warrant, that is only given as a prerequisite to the taking of the property of an alleged bankrupt at the instance of the petitioners pending adjudication; and where property had already been seized under an execution, a bond given to secure an injunction restraining the sale is not within this provision of the statute. In re Hines (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 147, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 538. The liability on such a bond only runs in favor of the respondent or respondents who were such when it was given, any persons subsequently becoming respondents, if they desire to be protected, being required to move for an additional bond. In re Spalding (C. C. A. 1906) 150 Fed. 120, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 667. There is a right of recovery on the bond when the petition, being against several persons as partners, is dismissed as to one or more of them. In re Nixon (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 633, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 693. Though the bond covers "all costs, counsel fees, expenses, and damages occasioned by such seizure," the bankrupt is entitled to only one allowance which must include all such items as he claims, and if he makes no claim for damages, he cannot afterwards make a further claim therefor against the petitioners and their bondsmen. Nixon v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1907) 150 Fed. 574, 80 C. C. A. 336, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 174. Upon the appointment of a receiver on the application of a creditor of an alleged bankrupt, the alleged bankrupt can be indemnified only by the provisions of section 3e (ante, § 9587), and the bond there required is the only bond he can look to, to recover his damages and expenses upon the discharge of the receiver. T. E. Hill Co. v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1914) 107 N. E. 194, 265 Ill. 534, affirming judgment (1914) 184 Ill. App. 528. The costs, expenses, and damages to be recovered are such as are incident to the taking and detention of the property, not including costs, expenses, and damages incident to the institution of the bankruptcy proceedings. Where the marshal, while in possession of the property, allowed certain water pipes thereon to freeze and burst, it was held that the bankrupt was entitled to recover the resultant damages, although he had free access to the premises, since the petitioning creditors, on taking possession of the property, assumed full responsibility for its care. Selkregg v. Hamilton Bros. (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 557.

14. Forthcoming bond by bankrupt.—Where property of an alleged bankrupt is seized on a warrant to the marshal, upon the filing of a petition and before adjudication, and the bankrupt obtains the release of the property by giving the bond authorized by this section, if the adjudication is afterwards made, the condition of the bond requires the immediate surrender of the property, and it is not a good plea in an action on the bond that an appeal from the adjudication has been taken, without showing whether the appeal is still pending or has been determined. It is a defense to such an action that the property has been actually surrendered to some one authorized to receive it, as a step in the bankruptcy proceeding, but it must be shown that such person possessed and acted in an official capacity, as, a receiver appointed in voluntary bankruptcy proceedings afterwards instituted by the bankrupt. Moore Bros. v. Cowan (1911) 173 Ala. 536, 55 South. 903. The court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction of a proceeding against the sureties on a forthcoming bond of this kind, and such a proceeding may be based on a summary petition. In re Mayo (C. C. 1882) Fed. Cas. No. 9,353a.

§ 9654. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 70, as amended, Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 16.) Title to property.

Title to Property.—a The trustee of the estate of a bankrupt, upon his appointment and qualification, and his successor or successors, if he shall have one or more, upon his or their appointment and qualification, shall in turn be vested by operation of law with the title of the bankrupt, as of the date he was adjudged a bankrupt, except in so far as it is to property which is exempt, to all

(1) documents relating to his property; (2) interests in patents, patent rights, copyrights, and trade-marks; (3) powers which he might have exercised for his own benefit, but not those which he might have exercised for some other person; (4) property transferred by him in fraud of his creditors; (5) property which prior to the filing of the petition he could by any means have transferred or which might have been levied upon and sold under judicial process against him: Provided, That when any bankrupt shall have any insurance policy which has a cash surrender value payable to himself, his estate, or personal representatives, he may, within thirty days after the cash surrender value has been ascertained and stated to the trustee by the company issuing the same, pay or secure to the trustee the sum so ascertained and stated, and continue to hold, own, and carry such policy free from the claims of the creditors participating in the distribution of his estate under the bankruptcy proceedings, otherwise the policy shall pass to the trustee as assets; and (6) rights of action arising upon contracts or from the unlawful taking or detention of, or injury to, his property.

b All real and personal property belonging to bankrupt estates shall be appraised by three disinterested appraisers; they shall be appointed by, and report to, the court. Real and personal property shall, when practicable, be sold subject to the approval of the court; it shall not be sold otherwise than subject to the approval of the court for less than seventy-five per centum of its appraised value.

c The title to property of a bankrupt estate which has been sold, as herein provided, shall be conveyed to the purchaser by the trustee.

d Whenever a composition shall be set aside, or discharge revoked, the trustee shall, upon his appointment and qualification, be vested as herein provided with the title to all of the property of the bankrupt as of the date of the final decree setting aside the composition or revoking the discharge.

e The trustee may avoid any transfer by the bankrupt of his property which any creditor of such bankrupt might have avoided, and may recover the property so transferred, or its value, from the person to whom it was transferred, unless he was a bona fide holder for value prior to the date of the adjudication. Such property may be recovered or its value collected from whoever may have received it, except a bona fide holder for value. For the purpose of such recovery any court of bankruptcy as hereinbefore defined, and any state court which would have had jurisdiction if bankruptcy had not intervened, shall have concurrent jurisdiction.

f Upon the confirmation of a composition offered by a bankrupt, the title to his property shall thereupon revest in him. (30 Stat. 565. 32 Stat. 800.)

In this section, as originally enacted, subdivision e thereof did not contain the provision at the end thereof as set forth here, beginning with the words "For the purpose of such recovery," etc. Said provision was added at the end of said subdivision by Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 16, cited above.

Section 19 of said amendatory Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, 32 Stat. 801, provided that the act should not apply to bankruptcy cases pending when it took effect, but that such cases should be adjudicated and disposed of conformably to the provisions of the original act.

This act contained further provisions, immediately following this section, under a separate heading, in two subdivisions, a and b, as follows:

"The Time When This Act Shall Go into Effect.

"a This act shall go into full force and effect upon its passage: Provided, however, That no petition for voluntary bankruptcy shall be filed within one month of the passage thereof, and no petition for involuntary bankruptcy shall be filed within four months of the passage thereof.

"b Proceedings commenced under State insolvency laws before the passage of this Act shall not be affected by it."

These provisions are omitted, as temporary merely.

Two new sections, sections 71 and 72, added to the act by amendment by Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, §§ 17, 18, are set forth as amended by Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, § 13, post, §§ 9655, 9656.

Notes of Decisions

I. Property vesting in trustee

1. Nature and extent of trustee's title.
2. —— Effect of amendment of 1910.
3. —— Estoppels and contracts binding on trustee.
4. —— Trustee taking title by operation of law.
5. Date of accrual of trustee's title.
6. Assets in bankruptcy in general.
7. —— Property not scheduled.
8. —— Books, papers, and records.
9. —— Property subject to judicial process.
10. —— Nature of bankrupt's title.
11. —— Stock in corporations.
12. Situation of property.
13. Burdensome interests.
14. —— Trustee's election to accept or abandon property.
15. Property in bankrupt's possession.
16. Property in custody of the law.
17. Interests in real estate.
18. —— Equity of redemption.
19. —— Leased property.
20. —— Remainders and expectant estates.
21. —— Estates by curtesy and community property.
22. —— Estates of vendor and vendee under executory contract.
23. —— Settlers' rights and improvements on public lands.
24. —— Resulting trusts.
25. —— Power of appointment.
26. Growing crops.
27. Patents and patent rights.
28. Copyrights.
29. Trade-marks and trade-names.
30. Franchises and licenses.
31. Membership in stock exchange.
32. Executory contracts.
33. Good will of business.
34. Debts due to bankrupt.
35. —— Claims against government.
36. Rights of action.
37. —— For personal injuries and other torts.
38. —— For usury.
39. Legacies and inheritances.
40. Property held in trust for bankrupt.
41. —— Testamentary trusts and annuities.
42. Policies of life insurance.
43. —— Meaning of "cash surrender value."
44. —— Endowment, tontine, and annuity policies.
45. —— Rights of beneficiaries.
46. —— Interest claimable by trustee—Liens.
47. —— Effect of death of bankrupt.
48. —— Indemnity and accident insurance.
49. Wife's personalty and choses in action.
50. Acquisitions of minor children.
51. Dower rights.
52. Property of third persons in bankrupt's possession.
53. —— Goods sold to bankrupt.
54. —— Estoppel of bankrupt to assert title.
55. —— Remedies of owner.
56. —— Laches of claimant.
57. Property held by bankrupt as trustee.
58. —— Claims to, and identification of, trust funds.
59. —— Trust receipt to secure advances.
60. —— Deposits in bank.
61. Property held by bankrupt as agent or bailee.
62. —— Goods consigned to bankrupt for sale.
63. —— Proceeds of goods already sold.
64. —— Transaction as disguise for sale on credit.
65. Money or collateral in hands of bankrupt as stockbroker.
66. Property held under conditional sale.
67. —— Effect of state law as to filing or recording.
68. —— Effect of amendment of 1910.
69. Property held under executory or option contracts of sale.
70. Property procured by bankrupt by fraud.
71. —— Essential elements of fraud.
72. Property sold by bankrupt.
73. —— Delivery and passing of title.
74. Goods pledged by bankrupt.
75. Equitable rights of third persons.
76. After-acquired property.
77. Partnership and individual property.

II. Assets of bankrupt corporation

78. Franchises as assets.
79. Assessment on unpaid stock.
80. —— Proceedings for assessment or call.
81. —— Proceedings to collect assessment.
82. —— Persons liable.
83. —— Set-off against assessment.
84. Statutory liability of stockholders and directors.

III. Rights of trustee as against prior assignee for creditors

85. Effect of adjudication in bankruptcy on previous assignment.
86. Assignment more than four months before bankruptcy.
87. Enjoining action by assignee.
88. Setting aside assignment.
89. Recovery of assets by trustee.
90. Requiring surrender of property by assignee.
91. Nature of trustee's title to assigned property.
92. Estate partly settled by assignee.
93. Rights of purchasers from assignee and paid creditors.
94. Appointment of assignee as trustee.
95. Credits and allowances to assignee.
96. —— Compensation for services.
97. —— Fees of assignee's attorney.
98. —— Allowance and payment of charges.

IV. Time of taking effect of act

99. Date of approval of act.
100. —— Fractions of a day.

V. Effect of act on state insolvency laws

101. Validity of state insolvency laws.
102. Suspension of insolvency laws by bankruptcy act.
103. What state laws affected.
104. —— Winding up insolvent corporations.
105. —— Foreclosure and receivership.
106. Cases not covered by bankruptcy law.
107. Laws regulating assignments for creditors.
108. Effect of suspension of state insolvency laws.
109. Pending proceedings under state laws.

I. PROPERTY VESTING IN TRUSTEE

1. Nature and extent of trustee's title.—A trustee in bankruptcy does not occupy the technical position of an innocent purchaser for value without notice. In re Scruggs (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 673, 31 Am. Bankr. Rep. 94; In re Charles Town Light & Power Co. (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 846, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 721; In re Interstate Paving Co. (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 371, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 573; First Nat. Bank v. Bacon (1906) 113 App. Div. 612, 98 N. Y. Supp. 717; Ellison v. Ganiard (1906) 167 Ind. 471, 79 N. E. 450; Goodyear Rubber Co. v. Schreiber (1902) 29 Wash. 94, 69 Pac. 648; Chace v. Chapin (1881) 130 Mass. 128; F. A. Ames Co. v. Slocomb Mercantile Co. (1910) 166 Ala. 99, 51 South. 994; In re Bozeman, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 479.

Trustees in bankruptcy, except in the case of liens or transfers which are fraudulent or void under the statute, take only such rights and interests as the bankrupt himself had and could himself claim and assert at the time of his bankruptcy, and they take the property subject to and affected with all those claims, liens, and equities which were valid against it in the hands of the bankrupt, and which would affect and bind him if he were asserting those rights and interests. Zartman v. First Nat. Bank (1910) 216 U. S. 134, 30 Sup. Ct. 368, 54 L. Ed. 418, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 635; York Mfg. Co. v. Cassell (1906) 201 U. S. 344, 26 Sup. Ct. 481, 50 L. Ed. 782, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 633; Hewit v. Berlin Machine Works (1904) 194 U. S. 296, 24 Sup. Ct. 690, 48 L. Ed. 986; Bacon v. International Bank (1881) 131 U. S. ccxvi, 26 L. Ed. 439; Yeatman v. New Orleans Sav. Inst. (1877) 95 U. S. 764, 24 L. Ed. 589; Gage Lumber Co. v. McEldowney (1913) 207 Fed. 255, 124 C. C. A. 641; In re Snelling (D. C. 1912) 202 Fed. 259; In re Place (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 778; Galbraith v. First Nat. Bank (1915) 221 Fed. 386, 137 C. C. A. 194; In re Scruggs (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 673, 31 Am. Bankr. Rep. 94; In re Thompson (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 556, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 576; In re Interstate Paving Co. (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 371, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 573; In re E. M. Newton & Co. (1907) 153 Fed. 841, 83 C. C. A. 23, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 567; In re Walsh Bros. (D. C. 1912) 195 Fed. 576, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 243; In re Peacock (C. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 851, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 159; Walter A. Wood Co. v. Eubanks (1909) 169 Fed. 929, 95 C. C. A. 273, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 307; In re Blake (C. C. A. 1906) 150 Fed. 279, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 668; In re Kellogg (1902) 118 Fed. 1017, 56 C. C. A. 383; Duplan Silk Co. v. Spencer (1902) 115 Fed. 689, 53 C. C. A. 321, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 367; Chattanooga Nat. Bank v. Rome Iron Co. (C. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 755, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 441; Mitchell v. Winslow (C. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 9,673; Ex parte Newhall (C. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 10,159; Fletcher v. Morey (C. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 4,864; In re Rockford, R. I. & St. L. R. Co. (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 11,978; Ex parte Dalby (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 3,540; Williamson v. Colcord (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 17,752; Mattocks v. Baker (D. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 455; In re Dow (C. C. 1871) 6 N. B. R. 10, Fed. Cas. No. 4,036; Webber v. Clark (1891) 136 Ill. 256, 26 N. E. 360, 32 N. E. 748; Union Brewing Co. v. Interstate Bank & Trust Co. (1909) 240 Ill. 454, 88 N. E. 997; Hardy v. Weyer (1908) 42 Ind. App. 343, 85 N. E. 731; Wick v. Hickey (Iowa, 1905) 103 N. W. 469; Exchange & Deposit Bank v. Stone (1882) 80 Ky. 109; Linthicum v. Fenley (1875) 74 Ky. (11 Bush) 131; Chambers v. Northern Bank of Kentucky (1883) 5 Ky. Law Rep. 123; Clarke v. Rosenda (1843) 5 Rob. (La.) 27; Blank v. Blank (1909) 124 La. 832, 50 South. 745; Kenney v. Ingalls (1879) 126 Mass. 488; Upton v. National Bank of South Reading (1876) 120 Mass. 153; Dugan v. Nichols (1878) 125 Mass. 43; Chace v. Chapin (1881) 130 Mass. 128; Lockwood v. Noble (1897) 113 Mich. 418, 71 N. W. 856; Davis v. Lumpkin (1879) 57 Miss. 506; Abbey v. Commercial Bank of New Orleans (1857) 34 Miss. 571, 69 Am. Dec. 401; South End Imp. Co. v. Harden (N. J. Eq. 1902) 52 Atl. 1127; Hunt v. Osborn (1904) 180 N. Y. 508, 72 N. E. 1143; First Nat. Bank v. Zartman (1907) 189 N. Y. 553, 82 N. E. 1126; Van Heusen v. Van Heusen Charles Co. (1911) 74 Misc. Rep. 292, 131 N. Y. Supp. 401; Crane Co. v. Smythe (1904) 94 App. Div. 53, 87 N. Y. Supp. 917; White v. O'Brien (1900) 31 Misc. Rep. 770, 64 N. Y. Supp. 387; Woodin v. Frazee (1874) 38 N. Y. Super. Ct. 190; Godwin v. Murchison Nat. Bank (1907) 145 N. C. 320, 59 S. E. 154, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 935; Walker v. Taylor (Tex. Civ. App. 1912) 142 S. W. 31; Eason v. Garrison (1904) 36 Tex. Civ. App. 574, 82 S. W. 800; Beall v. Walker (1885) 26 W. Va. 741; Ferguson v. Bauernfeind (1909) 140 Wis. 42, 121 N. W. 647; Claridge v. Evans (1908) 137 Wis. 218, 118 N. W. 198, 803, 25 L. R. A. (N. S.) 144; Kimball v. Baker Land & Title Co. (1913) 152 Wis. 441, 140 N. W. 47; Lyttle v. National Surety Co. (1915) 43 App. D. C. 136; Williams v. Noyes & Nutter Mfg. Co. (1914) 112 Me. 408, 92 Atl. 482; Palmer v. Welch (Mo. App. 1913) 154 S. W. 433; Southern Trust Co. v. Wilkins (1915) 101 S. C. 457, 86 S. E. 26; Walkof v. Fox (Sup. 1915) 153 N. Y. Supp. 27; Coggan v. Ward (1913) 215 Mass. 13, 102 N. E. 336; Chicago Title & Trust Co. v. National Storage Co. (1913) 260 Ill. 485, 103 N. E. 227.

The effect of an adjudication in bankruptcy in divesting the title of the bankrupt and transferring it to the trustee is within the terms of a policy of insurance rendering the contract void in case of an "alienation" or "transfer" of the property covered, or a "change in the title or possession" without the consent of the insurer. Perry v. Lorillard Fire Ins. Co. (1874) 61 N. Y. 214; Adams v. Rockingham Ins. Co. (1849) 29 Me. 292; Starkweather v. Cleveland Ins. Co. (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 13,309.

2. —— Effect of amendment of 1910. —The amendatory act of 1910, providing that "as to all property in the custody or coming into the custody of the bankruptcy court," the trustee "shall be deemed vested with all the rights, remedies, and powers of a creditor holding a lien by legal or equitable proceedings thereon, and also, as to all property not in the custody of the bankruptcy court, shall be deemed vested with all the rights, remedies, and powers of a judgment creditor holding an execution duly returned unsatisfied," enlarges the powers of the trustee in bankruptcy and strengthens his title as to certain kinds of transactions which would have been valid as against the bankrupt himself, though voidable as to lien creditors. In re Chotiner (D. C. 1914) 216 Fed. 916; In re Gehris-Herbine Co. (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 502, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 470; In re Butterwick (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 371, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 536; Thomas v. Taggart (1908) 209 U. S. 385, 28 Sup. Ct. 519, 52 L. Ed. 845, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 710; Crawford v. Mandell (1912) 173 Mich. 409, 138 N. W. 705. Under the act as thus amended, the trustee's rights depend upon the law of the state, as the "rights of a creditor holding a lien by legal or equitable proceedings" are essentially a matter of state law. In re Floyd-Scott Co. (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 987.

The trustee cannot hold real estate against a third person who claims under an earlier and unrecorded conveyance made to him by the bankrupt. In re Rutland-Perry Co. (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 200; Goss v. Coffin (1877) 66 Me. 432, 22 Am. Rep. 585. A trustee in bankruptcy succeeds to the title of the bankrupt, but liens not avoided by the bankruptcy law are unaffected, except so far as the remedy of enforcement is limited by the property passing into the custody of the court. In re Reading Hat Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1915) 224 F. 786. The trustee has not a lien superior to mortgage recorded within four months and before any other creditor had acquired a lien. Martin v. Commercial Nat. Bank of Macon, Ga. (C. C. A. 1916) 228 Fed. 651. The right of a trustee to property in the possession of the bankrupt is superior to that of a mortgagee holding under an unrecorded mortgage, good as between the bankrupt and the mortgagee. In re Social Circle Cotton Mills (D. C. 1914) 213 Fed. 994. Where the United States paid over to a receiver appointed by the court the balance due on a contract, and thereafter a trustee in bankruptcy on the contractor intervenes and claims the fund, and it is admitted by the trustee that the surety company's lien on the fund is a valid one, and also that the surety company is entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the United States in respect to the security of the fund, the fund will not be turned over to the trustee for administration in the bankruptcy court. Lyttle v. National Surety Co. (1915) 43 App. D. C. 136.

When the trustee brings his bill to set aside a sale of the bankrupt's realty, made under a deed of trust, and for leave to redeem, he has no greater rights than the bankrupt himself would have under the circumstances, and any defense that would be available against the bankrupt may be urged against the trustee. Jenkins v. Pierce (1881) 98 Ill. 646. So where the bankrupt had borrowed money to pay for certain real estate, and it was orally agreed that, on payment of a note given for the loan, the title should be conveyed to him, he took merely an equitable title subject to a lien in favor of the holder of the note, and his trustee in bankruptcy occupies no more advantageous position. Beer v. Wisner (1905) 74 Neb. 437, 104 N. W. 757. So where a purchaser of personal property under a conditional sale sold the property to the bankrupt, the latter's trustee will acquire no better title than the bankrupt had. Crocker-Wheeler Co. v. Genesee Recreation Co. (1910) 140 App. Div. 726, 125 N. Y. Supp. 721.

3. —— Estoppels and contracts binding on trustee.—Estoppels effective against the bankrupt may also bind his trustee, as, for example, with reference to ostensible membership in a firm, when the question concerns the rights of creditors who relied thereon. Kelly v. Scott (1872) 49 N. Y. 595. Or with reference to the merger of a lien in the legal title to the property. In re Standard Laundry Co. (1902) 116 Fed. 476, 53 C. C. A. 644, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 538; Palmer v. Welch (1913) 171 Mo. App. 580, 154 S. W. 433. Where none of the creditors of a bankrupt extended credit to him in reliance on his ownership of property which, while standing in his name, was in fact held by him in trust for others, his trustee takes no greater interest or right therein than he himself had, and if the trust was enforceable in equity against him, it is equally so against his trustee. In re Coffin (1907) 152 Fed. 381, 81 C. C. A. 507, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 127.

As a court of bankruptcy is a court of equity, trustees in bankruptcy will sometimes be ordered to do full justice even in cases where the circumstances give rise to no legal right, nor even, perhaps, to a right which could be enforced in a court of equity as against an ordinary litigant. In re Chase (1903) 124 Fed. 753, 59 C. C. A. 629, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 677.

Where the business of the bankrupt is the retailing of a patented article under a license from the patentee, which license requires him to sell only at a fixed price and gives him the privilege of returning any of the articles not sold, the trustee in bankruptcy is also bound by the terms of the license, and, as to the stock on hand when he takes possession, he must either sell the articles at the fixed price or return them. In re S. Spitzel & Co. (D. C. 1909) 168 Fed. 156, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 729.

4. —— Trustee taking title by operation of law.—The title of a trustee in bankruptcy resembles that of an executor. Dillard v. Collins (1874) 25 Grat. (Va.) 343. In another case it is said that assignees in bankruptcy do not take the whole legal title in the bankrupt's property as heirs and executors do. Nothing vests in them, even at law, but such estate as the bankrupt had a beneficial as well as a legal interest in. Ontario Bank v. Mumford (1848) 2 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 596. Proceedings in bankruptcy may be regarded as an equitable attachment, and the equitable interest vested in the trustee in bankruptcy for the benefit of all the creditors. In re Hinds (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 351, Fed. Cas. No. 6,516. The trustee's title is a title cast upon him by operation of law, at least coextensive with the title of the bankrupt and in some respects wider or stronger, and not held for his own benefit or advantage, but in trust for those entitled to share in the distribution of the estate. Brown v. Frenken (1908) 87 Ark. 160, 112 S. W. 207; Aiken v. Edrington (C. C. 1876) 15 N. B. R. 271, Fed. Cas. No. 111. The only object of its creation is to enable the trustee to collect and distribute the assets among the creditors. Bracklee Co. v. O'Connor (1910) 67 Misc. Rep. 599, 122 N. Y. Supp. 710. The title of the trustee is exclusive and he is the only person who can sue for the recovery of assets. Schnurman's Ex'x v. Biddle & Co. (1909) 109 Va. 702, 64 S. E. 977. The trustee may maintain replevin for the recovery of specific personal property, or trover for damages for its conversion. Haughey v. Albin (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 6,222; Foster v. Hackley (C. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 406, Fed. Cas. No. 4,971; McLeish v. Tylee (1848) 3 Strob. (S. C.) 287. No creditor can pursue, and subject to the payment of his claim, assets of the bankrupt which existed at the time of the adjudication and passed to the trustee, unless the latter has abandoned them. Starr v. Whitcomb (1907) 150 Mich. 491, 114 N. W. 345; Jenkins v. Pilcher (1910) 160 Mich. 349, 125 N. W. 355, 28 L. R. A. (N. S.) 423. Where a trustee in bankruptcy has taken possession, the property is in the custody of the law and cannot be removed therefrom by any private person or by any process out of any court, except one having a supervisory control or superior jurisdiction in the premises. Williams v. Noyes & Nutter Mfg. Co. (1914) 92 A. 482, 112 Me. 408. Where H. acquired property 10 days before his death, and turned it over to his sons to be handled by them under the firm name of H. & Sons, and his heirs made no claim thereto until the bankruptcy of the firm, the administrator cannot, after the bankruptcy, claim the property as individual property. In re F. W. Hall & Sons (D. C. 1913) 208 Fed. 578.

The title of the trustee is not in any way affected by the discharge of the bankrupt or by his failure to obtain a discharge. In re Cheney (C. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 2,636. The trustee has no control over the interests of others in the property, except as expressly given by law to protect the bankrupt's interests for the benefit of the creditors. Goddard v. Weaver (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 5,495. The title of a trustee in bankruptcy to a patent is not of the kind that must be recorded; and the transfer of the patent to the trustee by the adjudication in bankruptcy, though not recorded in the patent office, will prevail over a recorded assignment of the patent from the administrator of the bankrupt made after the bankruptcy. Prime v. Brandon Mfg. Co. (C. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 11,421. The title of the trustee cannot be divested except by the order of the court which has control of the administration of the estate, and until this has been done, all other courts must respect the trustee's title, at least until he has been discharged. May v. New Orleans & C. R. Co. (1892) 44 La. Ann. 444, 10 South. 769.

5. Date of accrual of trustee's title.—Under the explicit provision of the statute, the title of the trustee in bankruptcy takes effect, by relation, from the date of the adjudication of bankruptcy. In re Butterwick (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 371, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 536; In re Fulton (D. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 664, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 591; Currie v. Look (1906) 14 N. D. 482, 106 N. W. 131; Bennett v. Ætna Ins. Co. (1909) 201 Mass. 554, 88 N. E. 335, 131 Am. St. Rep. 414; Simpson v. Miller (1908) 7 Cal. App. 248, 94 Pac. 252; Williams v. Noyes & Nutter Mfg. Co. (1914) 112 Me. 408, 92 Atl. 482. The condition of a bankrupt's property, after the adjudication and before the appointment of a trustee, is analogous to the condition of the personal property of a decedent before the appointment of an executor or administrator. Bankruptcy, like death, divests the title of the owner. It becomes thereupon in custodia legis. Upon the appointment of a trustee, he takes title by relation back as of the date of the adjudication. In re Frazin & Oppenheim (D. C. 1909) 174 Fed. 713, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 289. And see In re Gutwillig (D. C. 1898) 90 Fed.

475, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 78. The provision of the act requiring the trustee to file a certified copy of the adjudication in every county where the bankrupt holds real estate does not affect the rule as to the time of accrual of the trustee's title, and such filing is not necessary to complete his title to given real property. Hull v. Burr (1911) 61 Fla. 625, 55 South. 852. The trustee may maintain trover for property converted before his appointment, if the conversion occurred after the adjudication. Mitchell v. McKibbin (D. C. 1872) 8 N. B. R. 548, Fed. Cas. No. 9,-666.

The title of the trustee to specific property vests as of the date of the adjudication of bankruptcy, and not as of the date of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. Hiscock v. Varick Bank (1907) 206 U. S. 28, 27 Sup. Ct. 681, 51 L. Ed. 945, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1; In re Rose (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 991; Christopherson v. Harrington (1912) 118 Minn. 42, 136 N. W. 289, 41 L. R. A. (N. S.) 276. CONTRA, In re Judson (C. C. A. 1912) 192 Fed. 834, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 704; Glidden v. Massachusetts Hospital Life Ins. Co. (1905) 187 Mass. 538, 73 N. E. 538; St. Louis County v. Watson (1877) 3 Mo. App. 599; Cornelius v. Boling (1907) 18 Okl. 469, 90 Pac. 874; Miller v. Barto (1910) 247 Ill. 104, 93 N. E. 140; Sargent v. Blake (1908) 160 Fed. 57, 87 C. C. A. 213, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 115; Potter v. Martin (1899) 122 Mich. 542, 81 N. W. 424; Toof v. City Nat. Bank (C. C. A. 1913) 206 Fed. 250, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 79; Kopplin v. Ludwig (Tex. Civ. App. 1914) 170 S. W. 105. But by virtue of the amendment of 1910 the trustee takes the status of a creditor holding a lien as of the time when the petition in bankruptcy was filed. Bailey v. Baker Ice Mach. Co. (1915) 36 Sup. Ct. 50; In re Federal Contracting Co. (1914) 212 Fed. 688, 129 C. C. A. 224; Big Four Implement Co. v. Wright (C. C. A. 1913) 207 Fed. 535.

The rule as to the date when the trustee's title attaches is not affected by the provision of the statute that he shall be vested with title to property which, prior to the petition, the bankrupt could have transferred, since this refers merely to the class of property which passes to the trustee. Gray v. Chase (1903) 184 Mass. 444, 68 N. E. 676. The trustee cannot maintain trover to recover the value of mortgaged personal property of which the mortgagee had taken possession and appropriated the same to his own use before the adjudication in bankruptcy. Jones v. Miller (C. C. 1877) 17 N. B. R. 316, Fed. Cas. No. 7,482. Where a chose in action has been assigned by a bankrupt before the adjudication, an action thereon must be brought in the name of the bankrupt, and not in that of his trustee. Hynson v. Burton (1844) 5 Ark. 492. The lien of a bankrupt's trustee does not relate to a point four months prior to the institution of the proceedings, nor can it antedate the time the proceedings were instituted. In re Jacobson & Perrill (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 812.

The fact that the bankrupt obtains his discharge does not bar the right of the trustee to recover property subsequently discovered. Maybin v. Raymond (C. C. 1877) 15 N. B. R. 353, Fed. Cas. No. 9,338. If the discharge be set aside, and bankrupt's assignment of life policies be voided, their status, as regards the trustee's interest, is of the date of adjudication, though bankrupt has died. In re Levy (D. C. 1915) 227 Fed. 1011.

6. Assets in bankruptcy in general.— Assets in bankruptcy are property of the bankrupt, or the proceeds thereof, coming into the hands of the trustee and applicable to the payment of debts. In re Wilson (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 17,782.

The enumeration in this section of certain classes or kinds of property which shall pass to the trustee in bankruptcy is not to be construed as exclusive of other assets not therein described, and if there be other kinds of property owned by the bankrupt and applicable to his debts, they will also vest in the trustee. In re Baudouine (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 536, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 55.

The trustee in bankruptcy will be entitled to claim money in bank to the credit of the bankrupt. Wagner v. Citizens' Bank & Trust Co. (1909) 122 Tenn. 164, 122 S. W. 245, 135 Am. St. Rep. 869. And rents accruing from his property. Keenan v. Shannon (C. C. 1874) 9 N. B. R. 441, Fed. Cas. No. 7,640; In re Dole (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 926, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 21. And removable trade fixtures. Montello Brick Co. v. Trexler (C. C. A. 1909) 167 Fed. 482, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 896. A stock of intoxicating liquors held to vest in trustee of licensed dealer, notwithstanding claim that trustee could not sell them. Strub v. Gamble (1915) 221 Fed. 253, 137 C. C. A. 258. Under Laws N. Y. 1910, c. 348, § 25, as amended by Laws 1911, c. 393, trustee in bankruptcy of private bankers held entitled to amount of their bond. In re Deutsche Bros. (D. C. 1915) 220 Fed. 532. Pending bankruptcy proceeding, judgment creditor of bankrupt held not entitled to proceed under the Bankruptcy Act or under Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 1391, against bankrupt's pension as retired city employé. In re Hoag (D. C. 1915) 227 Fed. 480.

7. —— Property not scheduled. — Though the bankrupt is required to file a schedule of his property, the extent of the trustee's title does not depend upon it, but the latter will take title to any property which he may discover and which properly constitutes assets of the estate, though omitted from the schedule. In re Levy (D. C. 1915) 227 Fed. 1011; Jones v. Barnes (Miss. 1914) 66 South. 212; Chachere v. Bloch (1894) 46 La. Ann. 1386, 16 South. 176; Hallyburton v. Slagle (1902) 130 N. C. 482, 41 S. E. 877; Ledoux v. Samuels (1907) 116 App. Div. 726, 102 N. Y. Supp. 43; Leist v. Dierssen (1906) 4 Cal. App. 634, 88 Pac. 812; Juden v. Nebham (Miss. 1912) 60 South. 45.

8. —— Books, papers, and records.—The trustee is entitled to the possession of all the bankrupt's books of account, business papers, contracts, securities, and other documents relating to his business. In re Hess (D. C. 1905) 134 Fed. 109, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 559. In the case of the bankruptcy of a corporation, its trustee is entitled to the possession of the corporate records and stock books. Babbitt v. Dutcher (1910) 216 U. S. 102, 30 Sup. Ct. 372, 54 L. Ed. 402. But if the bankrupt's books of account have been transferred by him before the commencement of the proceedings in bankruptcy, in such a way as to give the holder an apparent legal title to them, the trustee must resort to plenary proceedings for their recovery. Rogers v. Winsor (D. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 246, Fed. Cas. No. 12,023.

9. —— Property subject to judicial process.—A bankrupt's trustee is vested with the bankrupt's title to all property which either he could have transferred, or which might have been levied on and sold under judicial process, except property exempt under the laws of the state. In re T. C. Burnett & Co. (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 162. Whether particular property could have been levied on and sold under judicial process is to be determined according to the local law. Rosenbluth v. De Forest & Hotchkiss Co. (1911) 85 Conn. 40, 81 Atl. 955. Transferability is the test of the title of a trustee in bankruptcy under the provision of the bankruptcy act that all property which the bankrupt could have transferred, or which could have been levied on or sold under judicial proceedings, shall pass to his trustee. In re Packer's Estate (1914) 92 A. 70, 246 Pa. 116. The clause relating to property which could be "levied upon and sold under judicial process" will include all property to which the bankrupt had title as between himself and his creditors. Chesapeake Shoe Co. v. Seldner (1903) 122 Fed. 593, 58 C. C. A. 261, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 466; Boone v. Hall (1870) 7 Bush (Ky.) 66, 3 Am. Rep. 288; In re Millbourne Mills Co. (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 988, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 748; Patterson v. Boyd (Tenn. 1912) 150 S. W. 424; In re T. C. Burnett & Co. (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 162, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 872. Where personal property is held by a third person under a lease from the bankrupt, although the local law would not subject it to attachment or execution at the suit of the lessor's creditors, yet if it could be reached by trustee process, subject to the rights of the lessee, it is assets of the estate in bankruptcy. Clark v. Williams (1906) 190 Mass. 219, 76 N. E. 723.

10. —— Nature of bankrupt's title.—There must be some definitely fixed or ascertainable title or estate, in which the bankrupt has a beneficial as well as a legal interest. Ontario Bank v. Mumford (1848) 2 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 596; In re Twaddell (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 145, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 539. But the fact that his interest is defeasible or contingent does not necessarily prevent it from being transferable or assignable and therefore assets in bankruptcy. In re Wright (C. C. A. 1907) 157 Fed. 544, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 454; In re Judson (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 702, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 775. The trustee will be entitled to claim money which was placed in the bankrupt's hands and was converted by him under circumstances such as to make his act larcenous. Lord v. Seymour (1903) 177 N. Y. 525, 69 N. E. 1126. But the case is different in regard to property which is held by the bankrupt under no real title, but by virtue of a conveyance which was fraudulent and void as against the grantor's creditors. It is the latter, the grantor's creditors, who will be entitled to it, and not the trustee in bankruptcy of the grantee. Manning v. Drake (1847) 1 Mich. 34; Gunther v. Greenfield (1870) 8 Abb. Prac. N. S. (N. Y.) 191, 3 N. B. R. 730.

Where the bankrupt is not the sole owner of property, but jointly interested in it with others, the trustee will take only the bankrupt's share or interest. Goddard v. Weaver (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 5,495. But on the bankruptcy of a person who was in fact the sole owner of a business, though it was conducted in the name of himself and another as partners, the property and assets of the business will pass to his trustee as his individual property, without regard to any liability of the ostensible partner to the creditors. In re Gibson (D. C. 1911) 191 Fed. 665, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 401.

11. —— Stock in corporations.—The trustee in bankruptcy is entitled to shares of corporate stock standing in the name of the bankrupt. Wilson v. Atlantic & St. L. R. Co. (D. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 459. And to the interest of the bankrupt in a stock pool organized to advance the market in a certain stock and then sell to the public. In re Lathrop, Haskins & Co. (D. C. 1910) 184 Fed. 534, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 911.

The trustee in bankruptcy of a corporate stockholder acquires nothing but the rights and remedies of the stockholder. Chicago Railway Equipment Co. v. National Hollow Brake Beam Co. (1912) 173 Ill. App. 573. As to corporate stock, the trustee has a right to have the certificate transferred to him or to have a new one issued, if it is beyond his power to compel a transfer from the bankrupt. Wilson v. Atlantic & St. L. R. Co. (D. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 459. And probably to vote the stock at stockholders' meetings, though if he allows the bankrupt to do this, the other stockholders have no right to object. State v. Ferris (1875) 42 Conn. 560. But while shares of corporate stock pass to the trustee, for whatever they may be currently worth, a stockholder's interest in the accumulated but undivided profits of the company is not "property," and therefore the trustee cannot recover dividends declared on the stock after the bankrupt's discharge. Bryan v. Sturgis Nat. Bank (1905) 40 Tex. Civ. App. 307, 90 S. W. 704. And although the bankrupt may be employed by a given corporation, all the stock of which stands in the name of his wife, and its prosperity may be chiefly due to his efforts, it does not follow that any part of its property can be claimed as assets of his estate. Campbell v. Thompson (1902) 18 Colo. App. 93, 70 Pac. 161.

The individual liability of a stockholder in a corporation does not descend upon his trustee in bankruptcy, nor attach to the assets in his hands, at least where the trustee has not accepted the stock or consented to become a stockholder in the corporation. American File Co. v. Garrett (1884) 110 U. S. 288, 4 Sup. Ct. 90, 28 L. Ed. 149; Garrett v. Sayles (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 371.

12. Situation of property.—All property of the bankrupt situated anywhere within the United States passes to and vests in his trustee in bankruptcy, without regard to the territorial limits of the jurisdiction of the court which made the adjudication of bankruptcy. Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne v. Latham & Co. (1915) 219 Fed. 721, 135 C. C. A. 419; In re Granite City Bank (1905) 137 Fed. 818, 70 C. C. A. 316, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 404; In re Wilka (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 1004, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 727; Ward v. Hargett (1909) 151 N. C. 365, 66 S. E. 340; Cannon v. Wellford (1872) 22 Grat. (Va.) 195.

By another part of the act (section 7, cl. 5 [ante, § 9591]), it is made the duty of the bankrupt to "execute to his trustee transfers of all his property in foreign countries," because a decree in bankruptcy would not be sufficient in itself to invest the trustee with title to real property of the bankrupt situated in a foreign country. Oakey v. Bennett (1850) 11 How. 33, 13 L. Ed. 593; Chaison v. McFaddin (Tex. Civ. App. 1910) 132 S. W. 524; In re Delehanty's Estate (1908) 11 Ariz. 366, 95 Pac. 109, 21 Ann. Cas. 1038.

13. Burdensome interests.—Though title to all the bankrupt's property descends upon his trustee, the latter is not bound to accept or to administer any portion of it or any item of assets which he may decide to be worthless, or likely to cost more than it will yield, or to be more of a burden than a benefit to the estate. In the exercise of his judgment and discretion on this point, he may reject, abandon, or refuse to take charge and possession of, any such property, and so free himself from any duty or responsibility in regard to it. Sparhawk v. Yerkes (1891) 142 U. S. 1, 12 Sup. Ct. 104, 35 L. Ed. 915; American File Co. v. Garrett (1884) 110 U. S. 288, 4 Sup. Ct. 90, 28 L. Ed. 149; Sessions v. Romadke (1892) 145 U. S. 29, 12 Sup. Ct. 799, 36 L. Ed. 609; In re Schiermann (D. C. 1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 118; Taylor v. Irwin (C. C. 1884) 20 Fed. 615; Kimberling v. Hartly (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 571; Amory v. Lawrence (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 336; Copeland v. Stephens, 1 Barn. & Ald. 603; Smith v. Gordon (D. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 13,052; Glenn v. Howard (1886) 65 Md. 40, 3 Atl. 895; Griswold v. Morse (1879) 59 N. H. 211; Berry v. Gillis (1845) 17 N. H. 9, 43 Am. Dec. 584; Briggs v. Avary (1907) 47 Tex. Civ. App. 488, 106 S. W. 904; Fleming v. Courtenay (1903) 98 Me. 401, 57 Atl. 592, 99 Am. St. Rep. 414; In re Zehner (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 787, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 536; McCarty v. Light (1913) 155 App. Div. 36, 139 N. Y. Supp. 853; Dow v. Bradley (1913) 110 Me. 249, 85 Atl. 896; In re Scruggs (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 673. While a trustee in bankruptcy is vested in a qualified sense with all the assets of the bankrupt, he may decline to take such property as he deems burdensome and worthless, and title thereto remains in the bankrupt. Dow v. Bradley (Me. 1913) 85 A. 896. Although the title to land passes to the trustee in bankruptcy by the proceedings in bankruptcy, if he so elects, he is not required to accept it, if in his opinion it is worthless or will be unprofitable. McCarty v. Light (1913) 139 N. Y. S. 853, 155 App. Div. 36.

If the trustee finds property of the bankrupt so heavily burdened with mortgages or other liens that he considers it impossible to realize anything out of the equity of redemption for the benefit of the general creditors, he may refuse to administer it and abandon it to the secured creditor, and it is in fact his duty to do so whenever it is certain that the general estate would derive no benefit from a sale of the property. In re Zehner (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 787, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 536; In re Jersey Island Packing Co. (1905) 138 Fed. 625, 71 C. C. A. 75, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 560, 14 Am.

Bankr. Rep. 689; In re Stewart (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 791, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 529. He is not bound to accept any property which may involve him in litigation, when the probability is that the estate would be taxed with costs and expenses in excess of any sum eventually realized. Oldmixon v. Severance (1907) 119 App. Div. 821, 104 N. Y. Supp. 1042.

If creditors are not satisfied with the trustee's decision to reject an item of property as onerous or unprofitable, they may apply to the court of bankruptcy for an order requiring him to take charge of the property and administer it. Sparhawk v. Yerkes (1891) 142 U. S. 1, 12 Sup. Ct. 104, 35 L. Ed. 915. Where a trustee refuses to accept property which he deems will be a burden, it reverts to the bankrupt, and the remedy of creditors is to apply to the bankruptcy court to compel the trustee to accept the property. People's Nat. Bank of Independence v. Maxson (1915) 150 N. W. 601.

If the trustee's decision to abandon the property is acquiesced in, or not overruled, the effect is to restore to the bankrupt the title and possession of the property and the right to deal with it as his own, and the trustee cannot thereafter interfere with it or claim any proceeds arising from the sale or other disposition of the property or any advantage accruing from it. Fleming v. Courtenay (1903) 98 Me. 401, 57 Atl. 592, 99 Am. St. Rep. 414; Burton v. Perry (1893) 146 Ill. 71, 34 N. E. 60; Amory v. Lawrence (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 336; Kimberling v. Hartley (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 571; Smith v. Gordon (D. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 13,052; Haley v. Boston Belting Co. (1885) 140 Mass. 73, 2 N. E. 785. Where the bankrupt was carrying some policies of life insurance, the trustee decided that they were not of any value to the estate, and hence did not have them appraised or make any provision for paying the premiums, but abandoned them to the bankrupt, with the approval of the court. But the beneficiaries in the policies or the bankrupt himself kept up the premiums, and the bankrupt died before the estate was closed. It was held that the trustee was not entitled to recover the proceeds of the policies from the insurance companies or from the beneficiaries. Meyers v. Josephson (1903) 124 Fed. 734, 59 C. C. A. 650, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 687. So, when the trustee declines to take a debt or claim due to the bankrupt, it becomes the latter's right to sue upon it himself, and in this case it is immaterial whether or not the trustee's right to sue would be barred, as that does not affect the bankrupt. Buckingham v. Buckingham (1880) 36 Ohio St. 68. Where registered holder of bonds was adjudged a bankrupt, but trustee did not claim the bonds, right to enforce payment was in registered holder. Shaffer v. Federal Cement Co. (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 893. Trustee in bankruptcy, surrendering lease held as asset for several months, does not lose right to collect rent for interval on doctrine of relation. Citizens' Savings & Trust Co. v. Rogers (1915) 155 N. W. 155.

14. —— Trustee's election to accept or abandon property.—The trustee cannot be held to have rejected or abandoned an asset of the bankrupt unless it is shown that he had either actual knowledge of the property in question or sufficient means of obtaining full information. Dushane v. Beall (1896) 161 U. S. 513, 16 Sup. Ct. 637, 40 L. Ed. 791; Atwood v. Bailey (1903) 184 Mass. 133, 68 N. E. 13; Buckingham v. Buckingham (1880) 36 Ohio St. 68. Title to a claim for usurious interest paid to a national bank cannot be asserted by a bankrupt upon the termination of the bankruptcy proceedings where he returned no assets to the trustee, and failed to notify either the trustee or the creditors of the existence of the claim. First Nat. Bank v. Lasater (1905) 196 U. S. 115, 25 Sup. Ct. 206, 49 L. Ed. 408. If the trustee assumes control over the property with reasonable promptness, after learning of its existence, no previous inaction on his part will count for anything or prejudice his rights in any way. Hammond v. Whittredge (1907) 204 U. S. 538, 27 Sup. Ct. 396, 51 L. Ed. 606; In re Wiseman & Wallace (D. C. 1908) 159 Fed. 236, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 293.

The trustee must be accorded a reasonable length of time in which to inform himself as to any particular item or asset, and to make his election whether he will claim and administer it or abandon it. Briggs v. Avary (1907) 47 Tex. Civ. App. 488, 106 S. W. 904; Whittredge v. Sweetser (1905) 189 Mass. 45, 75 N. E. 222. If he pursues a policy of mere neglect and inaction, and this continues for an unreasonable length of time, it will give rise to a presumption that he has abandoned the property, and will estop him to assert any interest in it, at least as against rights or liens subsequently acquired by third persons, such as a purchaser from the bankrupt, or a creditor who has independently taken steps to subject the property to the payment of his debt. Sessions v. Romadka (1892) 145 U. S. 29, 12 Sup. Ct. 799, 36 L. Ed. 609; Taylor v. Irwin (C. C. 1884) 20 Fed. 615; Rugely v. Robinson (1851) 19 Ala. 404; Smith v. Gordon (D. C. 1843) 6 Law Rep. 313, Fed. Cas. No. 13,052; Fleming v. Courtenay (1903) 98 Me. 401, 57 Atl. 592, 99 Am. St. Rep. 414. The courts will not permit the trustee to wait indefinitely in order to see whether an item of property, now apparently valueless, may eventually become sufficiently valuable to justify him in taking possession of it for the benefit of the estate. Sparhawk v. Yerkes (1891) 142 U. S. 1, 12 Sup. Ct. 104, 35 L. Ed. 915.

The trustee's election not to take the property may be manifested formally, as where he gives a written waiver of his right, title, and interest in the property, containing also permission to the bankrupt to deal with it as owner. Briggs v. Avary (1907) 47 Tex. Civ. App. 488, 106 S. W. 904. Or he may obtain an order of court directing him to pursue this course, or approving nunc pro tunc an abandonment of the property already made. In re Josephson (D. C. 1903) 121 Fed. 142, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 345. The abandonment of the property by the trustee may be conclusively presumed, not only from unreasonable delay in claiming it, but also from any conduct on his part which is plainly inconsistent with an election to retain it or to administer it. Sessions v. Romadka (1892) 145 U. S. 29, 12 Sup. Ct. 799, 36 L. Ed. 609; Fleming v. Courtenay (1904) 98 Me. 401, 57 Atl. 592, 99 Am. St. Rep. 414; Laing v. Fish (1905) 119 Ill. App. 645.

15. Property in bankrupt's possession.—All property of a bankrupt in his actual possession at the time of the adjudication passes into the hands of the trustee immediately upon his appointment, except such as is exempt by law. In re Vogel (C. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 16,982. A private banker under the laws of Missouri being subjected to adjudication as a bankrupt, the property employed in the business vests in the trustee. In re Sage (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 525. Trustee in bankruptcy of a private banker held entitled to the assets of the bank as against common unsecured creditors. Ledgerwood v. Dashiell (Tex. Civ. App. 1915) 177 S. W. 1010.

Where a deficit is shown in the assets of the bankrupt's estate, he must account for it by a satisfactory explanation or pay the amount of the deficit to the trustee. In re Goodman (D. C. 1912) 196 Fed. 566, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 697; In re Peltasohn (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 10,912. If the bankrupt attempts to conceal or withhold any property which is in his possession or under his own control or the control of those who are holding it merely as his agents or bailees, he may be compelled, by order of the court of bankruptcy, to surrender it to his trustee, and punish for his failure to obey. In re Kreuger (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 124, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 890; In re Karp (D. C. 1912) 196 Fed. 998, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 559; In re Weber Co. (1912) 200 Fed. 404, 118 C. C. A. 556, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 217; Lessaius v. Goodman (1908) 165 Fed. 889, 91 C. C. A. 567, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 446; In re Jablin (D. C. 1912) 194 Fed. 228, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 54.

16. Property in custody of the law.—A trustee in bankruptcy is entitled to possession of all the bankrupt's property and to administer the same, although it may be subject to liens or in the possession of a state court in proceedings to enforce a lien. In re Kaplan (D. C. 1905) 144 Fed. 159, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 267. Whether administration of mortgaged stock of merchandise should be left to the state court, which had taken jurisdiction, or be brought into bankruptcy, held for the determination of the United States district judge. Bank of Dillon v. Murchison (1914) 213 Fed. 147, 129 C. C. A. 499.

If property of the bankrupt's estate is in the possession of a receiver appointed by a state court, the trustee in bankruptcy will apply to the state court for an order directing the surrender of the property by its receiver, and if this is refused, the trustee must intervene in the pending suit. Kennedy v. American Tanning Co. (1913) 81 N. J. Eq. 109, 85 Atl. 812; A. H. Alden & Co. v. New York Commercial Co. (1913) 157 App. Div. 872, 142 N. Y. Supp. 772. If property, or money arising from its sale, is in the hands of a sheriff, the trustee may claim it, provided the lien under which the sheriff seized the property was one dissolved by the adjudication in bankruptcy, otherwise it must be treated as in the custody of the court, and a proper application made for its surrender. In re Farrell (C. C. A. 1912) 201 Fed. 338; Bristol v. Mills (1900) 14 Pa. Super. Ct. 107.

17. Interests in real estate.—Upon an adjudication in bankruptcy against the owner of land, the situation as to the title to the land is the same as it would have been under a deed from the bankrupt to his trustee. Hough v. City of North Adams (1907) 196 Mass. 290, 82 N. E. 46. The title to all real estate of the bankrupt passes to and vests in his trustee. Pearce v. Foreman (1874) 29 Ark. 563. The trustee may, if necessary, maintain ejectment for its recovery. Beach v. Beach (1842) 14 Vt. 28, 39 Am. Dec. 204; Essex Co. v. Durant (1860) 14 Gray (Mass.) 447.

Any interest which the bankrupt may have in real property will constitute assets of his estate, provided it is a beneficial interest and one which he might have transferred by his own deed, or which might have been subjected to the claims of his creditors outside of the bankruptcy proceedings. Merrill v. Hussey (1906) 101 Me. 439, 64 Atl. 819; Wright v. Green (1912) 239 Mo. 449, 144 S. W. 437. Although the title to realty may be in another, yet if the bankrupt has an interest in it, that interest will be available under the administration of the trustee. In re Sanderson (D. C. 1906) 149 Fed. 273, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 871. The trustee is entitled to a decree adjudging a lien on the property of the bankrupt's wife to the amount of the money expended by the bankrupt in improvements on the property. McKay v. Weager (1911) 134 N. Y. Supp. 66. Where the bankrupt is nominally the owner of land, but in reality has an undivided interest in it, that interest will be an asset of his estate. In re Throckmorton (1906) 149 Fed. 145, 79 C. C. A. 15, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 856. Where an estate is devised unconditionally to two persons, and after the death of the testator but before the probate of the will, one of the devisees is adjudged bankrupt, the estate so devised will pass to his trustee in bankruptcy. Ex parte Fuller (C. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 5,147.

A life estate vested in the bankrupt at the date of the adjudication is an asset of his estate and may be sold by the trustee. Adair v. Adair's Trustee (1907) 30 Ky. Law Rep. 857, 99 S. W. 925. But not so a life estate which did not vest until after the adjudication of bankruptcy. Hackett's Executors v. Hackett's Trustee (Ky. 1909) 118 S. W. 377.

A conveyance of land on condition of the payment of an annual sum to the grantor during his life gives the grantee a title which will pass to his trustee in bankruptcy. Atwood v. Kittell (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 641. The trustee does not take title to exempt property, but he may claim land once occupied as a homestead but since voluntarily abandoned by the bankrupt. Martin v. Smith (1907) 31 Ky. Law Rep. 882, 104 S. W. 310. Where the bankrupt was the owner in fee of a public street in a city, subject only to the public easement of passage, the right of the owner therein will pass to his trustee in bankruptcy. Kinzie v. Winston (1870) 56 Ill. 56. A mere usufruct in property, not capable of being transferred by sale except with the owner's permission, is not assets in bankruptcy. In re O'Dowd (D. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 451, Fed. Cas. No. 10,439.

Furniture of a sanitarium conducted by a bankrupt held not to have passed as fixtures under a deed to the realty, which was not owned by the bankrupt, or under a mortgage made thereon by the owner. In re Dr. Riegel Sanitarium Co. (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 319. Evidence held to make a question for the jury whether certain store fixtures built and installed by defendant were accepted by a bankrupt, so as to acquire title prior to its bankruptcy. Murphy v. John Hofman Co. (1913) 141 N. Y. S. 900, 157 App. Div. 88.

18. —— Equity of redemption.—When real property of the bankrupt is incumbered by a mortgage, valid as to creditors and not voidable under the bankruptcy act, the trustee takes title to the bankrupt's equity of redemption in the premises. In re Kellogg (D. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 120, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623; Bryar's Appeal (1886) 111 Pa. 81, 2 Atl. 344; Robinson v. Denny (1877) 57 Ala. 492; Winslow v. Clark (1872) 47 N. Y. 261; In re Stewart (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 791, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 529. This applies not only to a common-law mortgage in the ordinary form, but to equitable mortgages and various other anomalous forms, such as a conveyance of land which, though absolute in form, is intended as security for a debt and is accompanied by an unrecorded agreement of defeasance. Moore v. Albro (1880) 129 Mass. 9. And to an instrument in the form of a deed of trust but meant to secure a debt. In re Jersey Island Packing Co. (1905) 138 Fed. 625, 71 C. C. A. 75, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 560, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 689. And to a mortgage of personal property which authorizes the debtor to sell the items covered. In re Hull (D. C. 1902) 115 Fed. 858, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 302. And to an assignment of a judgment, absolute in form, but intended as security for the price of goods sold or to be sold to the assignor. English v. Ross (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 630, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 370.

Where the local law allows a certain period of time for redemption from a sale of real estate under execution, this right may be exercised by the debtor's trustee in bankruptcy, provided the appointed time has not expired when he is appointed, though it will not be enlarged by the intervening bankruptcy. In re Goldman (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 122, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 100.

A trustee in bankruptcy will be entitled to collect and receive the rents of mortgaged property of the bankrupt, at least until the mortgagee shall have taken proper steps to secure their application on his debt. Alter v. Clark (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 153; Hunter v. Hays (C. C. 1877) 7 Biss. 362, Fed. Cas. No. 6,906. But if a mortgage on land of the bankrupt has actually been paid, the property will pass to the trustee in bankruptcy free from the incumbrance, although the mortgage has been assigned to a third person instead of being canceled. McMaster v. Campbell (1879) 41 Mich. 513, 2 N. W. 836.

19. —— Leased property.—If the bankrupt is a tenant of leased premises, his interest in the unexpired term of the lease will constitute assets of his estate in bankruptcy and pass to the trustee. Crowe v. Baumann (D. C. 1911) 190 Fed. 399, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 100; In re Frazin & Oppenheim (D. C. 1909) 174 Fed. 713, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 289; Olden v. Sassman (1905) 68 N. J. Eq. 799, 64 Atl. 1134; Wildman v. Taylor (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 17,654. And see Lyon v. Moore (1913) 259 Ill. 23, 102 N. E. 179. It is the duty of the trustee either to fix an upset price for the sale of the leasehold sufficient to pay the lessor the entire rental for the remaining term of the lease and pay over such amount to the lessor, or else to require a bond with ample security, obliging the purchaser to conform strictly to all the terms of the lease, and if bids cannot be obtained subject to these conditions, the trustee should surrender the lease to the landlord. In re Gutman (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 472, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 643. If notice to quit has been served on the tenant before his bankruptcy, it will serve as notice to the trustee, who takes only such rights as the bankrupt had at the time of the adjudication, and a new notice is not necessary. Lindeke v. Associates Realty Co. (1906) 146 Fed. 630, 77 C. C. A. 56, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 215. And see In re Van Da Grift Motor Car Co. (D. C. 1912) 192 Fed. 1015, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 474. If a suit to cancel the lease is pending, which finally results in favor of the landlord, but meanwhile the lessee's trustee in bankruptcy has remained in the use and occupation of the premises, his possession pendente lite will be that of a trespasser under a claim of title. In re St. Louis & Kansas Oil & Gas Co. (D. C. 1908) 168 Fed. 934, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 56. Where at the time of bankruptcy the bankrupt was in possession of real property under leases which had more than 10 years to run, trade fixtures held real property and subject to judgments recovered against it more than four months before bankruptcy. In re J. L. Kesner Co. (1914) 219 Fed. 512, 135 C. C. A. 262.

20. —— Remainders and expectant estates.—A vested estate in remainder in real property is an asset which will vest in the trustee in bankruptcy, as in the ordinary case of an estate limited to one for life, with remainder to his surviving child or children and their heirs. Here, if the life-tenant is still living and the bankrupt is his child, the latter has a vested estate which will pass to his trustee in bankruptcy. In re McHarry (1901) 111 Fed. 498, 49 C. C. A. 429, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 83; In re Haslett (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 680; In re Twaddell (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 145, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 539; In re St. John (D. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 234, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 190; In re Wood (D. C. 1900) 98 Fed. 972, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 572; Loomer v. Loomer (1904) 76 Conn. 522, 57 Atl. 167; Simpson v. Miller (1908) 7 Cal. App. 248, 94 Pac. 252.

A vested interest in a contingent remainder will pass to a trustee in bankruptcy, at least where the contingency relates to the event and not to the person. Putnam v. Story (1882) 132 Mass. 205; Belcher v. Burnett (1879) 126 Mass. 230; In re Churchman (1887) 4 Pa. Co. Ct. R. 237; Bodenhamer v. Welch (1883) 89 N. C. 78; Clark v. Grosh (1912) 81 Misc. Rep. 407, 142 N. Y. Supp. 966; Clowe v. Seavey (1913) 208 N. Y. 496, 102 N. E. 521; In re Twaddell (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 145, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 539; Martin v. Maxwell (1910) 86 S. C. 1, 67 S. E. 962, 138 Am. St. Rep. 1012. Under Real Property Law N. Y. §§ 36, 40, 59, declaring that an expectant estate is descendible, devisable, and alienable, the interest of a granddaughter under her grandfather's will, which will vest in possession on her surviving her father, is alienable, and passes on her bankruptcy to her trustee in bankruptcy, who may sue to set aside a fraudulent transfer thereof. Clowe v. Seavey (1913) 102 N. E. 521, 208 N. Y. 496, affirming judgment (1912) 135 N. Y. S. 1105, 151 App. Div. 912. Under Real Property Law N. Y. §§ 35, 36, 37, 40, where testatrix devised property to a daughter for life with remainder to a son, or if he did not survive the daughter to his children living at the daughter's death, the interest of a child of the son was an expectant estate assignable under section 59, and hence passed to a trustee in bankruptcy under Bankruptcy Act, § 70. Clark v. Grosh (1912) 142 N. Y. S. 966, 81 Misc. Rep. 407. An expectation of succeeding to an estate, fixed as to the person but contingent on his surviving one or more previous takers or life tenants, is nothing more than a mere possibility, and not of such a nature that it could be reached by a creditors' bill, and therefore not vesting in the trustee in bankruptcy. Van Heusen v. Van Heusen Charles Co. (1911) 74 Misc. Rep. 292, 131 N. Y. Supp. 401; Clarke v. Fay (1910) 205 Mass. 228, 91 N. E. 328, 27 L. R. A. (N. S.) 454; Smith v. Kearney (1848) 2 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 533; Lutgen v. Tiffany (R. I. 1915) 93 Atl. 182.

Under a devise to the use of one for life, with power of appointment by will, and, in case of failure to exercise the power, the property to go to the surviving next of kin of the testator, one who is next of kin does not take such an interest in the estate in remainder as will pass to his trustee in bankruptcy. In re Wetmore (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 290, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 335, affirmed (1901) 108 Fed. 520, 47 C. C. A. 477, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 210.

21. —— Estates by courtesy and community property.—An estate by the curtesy, consummate by the death of the wife, will pass to the trustee in bankruptcy of the husband. Elmore v. Symonds (1903) 183 Mass. 321, 67 N. E. 314; Conoly v. Gayle (1875) 54 Ala. 269; Beamish v. Hoyt (1864) 2 Rob. (N. Y.) 307. A bankrupt under the law of Virginia held to have no interest as tenant by the curtesy in land of his deceased wife, which he caused to be conveyed to her and for which he paid the consideration. Cox v. Wallace (1914) 219 Fed. 126, 134 C. C. A. 562. An estate by the curtesy initiate by the birth of issue will pass to the trustee in bankruptcy of the husband, if regarded as property of a transferable nature under the local law. In re McKenna (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 27. Under the laws of Massachusetts, such an estate is not property which the husband could convey or assign, nor is it a power which he might exercise for his own benefit, and therefore it will not pass to his trustee in bankruptcy. Hesseltine v. Prince (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 802, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 600; Parks v. Tirrell (1861) 3 Allen (Mass.) 15.

Where an estate is devised to a man and his wife absolutely and forever as tenants by entireties, the trustee in bankruptcy of the husband is not entitled, during the life of the wife, to any part of the property, or, in the case of personalty, to any part of the principal or income. In re Meyer's Estate (1911) 232 Pa. 89, 81 Atl. 145, 36 L. R. A. (N. S.) 205, Ann. Cas. 1912C, 1240.

As to community property, it has been held that, where funds belonging to the community estate of husband and wife were used by the husband in the erection of improvements on the wife's separate real estate, and the fund remained to that extent community property, the husband's trustee in bankruptcy was entitled to recover the amount of the community funds so expended, to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of the improvements. Collins v. Bryan (1905) 40 Tex. Civ. App. 88, 88 S. W. 432. Under the Bankruptcy Act, and Rem. & Bal. Code Wash. § 5918, the bankruptcy court has jurisdiction to determine the disposition of funds in the hands of the trustee arising from a sale of community property. Gibbons v. Goldsmith (1915) 222 Fed. 826, 138 C. C. A. 252.

22. —— Estates of vendor and vendee under executory contract.—Where a purchaser of lands under an uncompleted contract becomes bankrupt, whatever interest he has in the lands will pass to his trustee, who is thereafter the proper party to maintain a bill in equity for the specific performance of the contract, and, on the other hand, is the proper defendant in a suit to enforce the vendor's lien. Rea v. Richards (1876) 56 Ala. 396; McDonald v. McMahon (1880) 66 Ala. 115; Smith v. Hornesby (1877) 58 Ga. 529; Duffield v. Dosh (1904) 124 Iowa, 286, 99 N. W. 1074. And see Christopherson v. Harrington (1912) 118 Minn. 42, 136 N. W. 289, 41 L. R. A. (N. S.) 276. And though a parol contract for the sale of land is void under the local law, yet if the purchaser under such a contract goes into possession and improves the property with the consent of the vendor, he has an equity in the land which can be subjected to the claims of creditors in bankruptcy proceedings. Overcast v. Lawrence (1910) 141 Ky. 25, 131 S. W. 1029. Whatever interest may remain in the vendor of land under an executory contract will vest in his trustee in bankruptcy, and the latter may maintain ejectment on failure of the vendee to pay the price. Clements v. Taylor (1880) 65 Ala. 363. And see In re Sayed (D. C. 1910) 185 Fed. 962, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 444. But since the bankruptcy act does not give the trustee any greater right or estate than the bankrupt had, a purchaser under an oral contract of purchase, and who was entitled prior to the bankruptcy of the vendor to compel a conveyance by the vendor, may compel the trustee to convey. In re Snelling (D. C. 1912) 202 Fed. 259, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 818.

23. —— Settlers' rights and improvements on public lands.—A pre-emption claimant upon the public lands who has done all that is required of him, and is fully entitled to receive a patent, has such an equitable title as will pass to and vest in his trustee in bankruptcy, though a patent has not been issued. Colorado Co. v. Commissioners (1877) 95 U. S. 259, 24 L. Ed. 495; Myers v. Croft (1871) 13 Wall. 291, 20 L. Ed. 562; Hutchings v. Low (1872) 15 Wall. 77, 21 L. Ed. 82; Carroll v. Safford (1845) 3 How. 441, 11 L. Ed. 671; Webster v. Bowman (C. C. 1885) 25 Fed. 889; U. S. v. Freyberg (C. C. 1886) 32 Fed. 195; Boggan v. Reid (1889) 1 Wash. 514, 20 Pac. 425. A settler's improvements upon the public lands are property available to his creditors in bankruptcy. French v. Carr (1845) 7 Ill. 664. But not after they have been forfeited by the cancellation of the sale to him by the national or state government. Snodgrass v. Posey (1902) 30 Tex. Civ. App. 584, 70 S. W. 984.

24. —— Resulting trusts.—Though the legal title to real property may stand in the name of a third person, yet if the bankrupt has an equitable interest in it by virtue of a resulting trust in his favor, that interest will vest in his trustee as assets of the estate in bankruptcy. In re Dunavant (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 542, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 41. Where the bankrupt paid the entire consideration for property, but the deed was taken in the name of another, the bankrupt's interest will vest in his trustee. Carr v. Hilton (C. C. 1852) Fed. Cas. No. 2,436; Gove v. Lawrence (1853) 26 N. H. 484. Where two parties purchase property, each paying part of the purchase money, and title is taken in the name of one, the trustee in bankruptcy of the legal owner cannot claim a greater interest than the bankrupt actually had. Jones v. Dugan (1914) 92 A. 775, 124 Md. 346. The trustee will take title notwithstanding a previous levy of execution on the bankrupt's equitable interest and a sale thereunder, where, by the law of the state, a resulting trust is not such property as can be sold on execution. In re Dunavant (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 542, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 41.

Although the bankrupt swore on his schedules that he owned no real estate at the time of filing the petition, neither he nor his heirs will be estopped by that oath from asserting their claim to property fraudulently procured from him by his vendee, and after the death of the bankrupt, the heirs at law may file a bill to recover such property, and their recovery will inure to the trustee in bankruptcy. Ferguson v. Dent (C. C. 1885) 24 Fed. 412.

25. —— Power of appointment.—A trustee in bankruptcy of a life devisee with power to appoint the remainder by will, and in default of will to his heirs at law, though vested with all powers which the bankrupt or a creditor had, may not exercise the power of appointment, whether the bankrupt is alive or dead. Montague v. Silsbee (1914) 105 N. E. 611, 218 Mass. 107.

26. Growing crops.—When the bankrupt is the owner of agricultural land, crops sown and growing thereon at the time of the filing of the petition will pass to the trustee along with the land and as a part of it, and the trustee may sell the crops with the land, or claim them as assets of the estate when grown and severed. Hebert v. Crawford (1913) 228 U. S. 204, 33 Sup. Ct. 484, 57 L. Ed. 800, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 24; In re T. C. Burnett & Co. (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 162, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 872; In re Eastman (D. C. 1899) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 86; Carney v. Averill (1912) 110 Me. 172, 85 Atl. 494. So where the bankrupt was tenant of a farm under a contract reserving to the landlord, as rent, one-fourth of the crops raised on the land, the bankrupt's interest in the growing crops, though they are immature and unsevered at the commencement of the proceeding in bankruptcy, is property which he might have transferred at that date, within the meaning of the statute, and therefore vests in his trustee as assets of the estate; and after the crops have been severed, the bankrupt must surrender them to the trustee or else account for the proceeds. In re Place (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 778; In re Barrow (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 582, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 414.

Crops not sown at the time of the adjudication do not become a part of the bankrupt's estate and the trustee has no interest in them. Bank of Nez Perce v. Pindel (C. C. A. 1912) 193 Fed. 917, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 69; Jackson v. Jetter (Iowa, 1913) 142 N. W. 431.

Physical possession of a crop, first by the bankrupts and later by the trustee, brought the property within the exclusive jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court as assets of the estate. Hebert v. Crawford (1913) 33 Sup. Ct. 484, 228 U. S. 204, 57 L. Ed. 204.

27. Patents and patent rights.—A trustee in bankruptcy will take title, as of the date of the adjudication, to interests then owned by the bankrupt in patents already issued and in force, whether as patentee, assignee of the patent, or holder of rights acquired under a patent to a third person, such as licenses or manufacturing rights. In re McDonnell (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 239, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 92. But the trustee takes no title to a patent for an invention granted to the bankrupt after the date of the adjudication, although the application for the patent was made before the bankruptcy and was pending at the time of the adjudication. In re McDonnell (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 239, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 92; In re Dann (D. C. 1904) 129 Fed. 495, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 27. CONTRA, In re Cantelo Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 276, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 57.

28. Copyrights.—Where an existing copyright has been assigned by the author to a third person, absolutely and unconditionally, it constitutes property of the assignee which will pass to his trustee in bankruptcy. In re Howley-Dresser Co. (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 1002, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 94. A contract between an author and a publisher for the publication and sale of a work having only a limited circulation among a special class of readers, who constitute the special clientele of the publisher, which contract contemplates the taking out of copyright in the name of the publisher and the payment of a royalty to the author, is in the nature of a personal engagement. And where the contract expressly provides that it shall not be transferred without the author's consent, and that, on failure to carry out its provisions, the copyright shall revert to the author, such copyright cannot be sold by a trustee in bankruptcy as an asset of the publisher's estate, against the objection of the author, but the latter is entitled, on petition therefor, to have the copyright assigned to him by the trustee in accordance with the contract. In re D. H. McBride & Co. (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 285, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 81.

29. Trade-marks and trade-names.—A trade-mark or trade-name, consisting of a man's individual name prefixed to the title of the article he manufactures, is not property which will vest in his trustee in bankruptcy. Helmbold v. Helmbold Mfg. Co. (1877) 53 How. Prac. (N. Y.) 453; Mattingly v. Stone (Ky. 1890) 14 S. W. 47. The right to use trade-marks, in connection with a manufacturing or mercantile business, which are not personal in their character, but are descriptive titles or fanciful appellations, or which merely designate the place or establishment at which the goods are made, or the process employed, will pass to and vest in an assignee in insolvency of the owner. Warren v. Warren Thread Co. (1883) 134 Mass. 247; Bradley v. Norton (1865) 33 Conn. 157, 87 Am. Dec. 200.

30. Franchises and licenses.—A license for the sale of intoxicating liquors issued by the authorities of a state or municipality or by a court, and which may be transferred on written application of the holder and subject to the approval of such authorities, which approval is ordinarily granted, and which for the purpose of sale and transfer has a recognized and actual money value, conditioned upon the acceptance of the transferee by the authorities, is property of the licensee, which is available as assets of his estate in bankruptcy, and he may be required by the court of bankruptcy to sign the necessary application for a transfer or to execute whatever other instrument in the nature of a transfer may be necessary to enable his trustee to convert it into money. In re Benz (1914) 218 Fed. 50, 134 C. C. A. 26; Fisher v. Cushman (1900) 103 Fed. 860, 43 C. C. A. 381, 51 L. R. A. 292, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 646; In re Wiesel (D. C. 1909) 173 Fed. 718, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 59; In re Brodbine (D. C. 1899) 93 Fed. 643, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 53; In re Becker (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 407, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 412; In re Fisher (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 89, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 406. Compare E. S. Bonnie & Co. v. Perry's Trustee (1904) 117 Ky. 459, 78 S. W. 208. Where bankrupts had an unexpired liquor license at the time of their adjudication, which was sold by the receiver, the right to the unexpired term, with its inseparable incident, the contingent right to a renewal, passed to the purchaser, and the bankrupts could properly be compelled to join in such proceedings as were necessary to make the sale effective. In re John F. Doyle & Son (1913) 209 Fed. 1, 126 C. C. A. 143, reversing order (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 543. A bankrupt will not be compelled to assign his liquor license or assist the trustee in disposing of it for the benefit of the estate, unless it appeared that it was the custom of the licensing board to allow licensee to surrender his certificate and nominate his successor or to issue a new license in place of the one surrendered and, having done so, to grant a refund. In re Beahn (D. C. 1912) 212 Fed. 762.

Though a license to occupy a particular stall in a city market may be revocable at the pleasure of the city authorities, and cannot be assigned to another person without their written permission, yet if it has an ascertainable market value as an article of sale and can be transferred without any practical difficulty, it is an asset in the hands of the holder's trustee in bankruptcy, and such holder may be required to take such steps as are necessary and usual to effect a transfer. In re Gallagher (C. C. 1879) 16 Blatchf. 410, Fed. Cas. No. 5,192; In re Emrich (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 231, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 89.

Where a contract by an amusement park company granting a license to a concessionaire to conduct a bar provides that it must not be assigned or transferred without the consent of the park company, on the concessionaire becoming bankrupt the license does not pass to his trustee in bankruptcy. Day v. Luna Park Co. (1912) 174 Ill. App. 477.

31. Membership in stock exchange.—A membership in a stock exchange or other similar body is an asset of the member which will pass to and vest in his trustee in bankruptcy, provided that it has an actual and substantial money value for purposes of sale and can be transferred to a purchaser without practical difficulty; and this, notwithstanding the fact that the transfer of a membership may be restricted by the rules of the exchange—as where the membership is limited and the purchaser of a seat must pass the scrutiny of a committee and be elected by ballot—and notwithstanding the rules provide that the proceeds of a member's seat shall first be applied in liquidation of any indebtedness of his to the exchange itself or to other members of it; and if the rules or customs of the exchange require the execution of an assignment or other transfer by the bankrupt member, in order to make an effectual transfer of the seat to a purchaser from the trustee, he may be compelled by the court of bankruptcy to execute such assignment. Page v. Edmunds (1903) 187 U. S. 596, 23 Sup. Ct. 200, 47 L. Ed. 318, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 277; Sparhawk v. Yerkes (1891) 142 U. S. 1, 12 Sup. Ct. 104, 34 L. Ed. 915; Hyde v. Woods (1876) 94 U. S. 523, 24 L. Ed. 265; O'Dell v. Boyden (1906) 150 Fed. 731, 80 C. C. A. 397, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 751; In re Hurlbutt, Hatch & Co. (1905) 135 Fed. 504, 68 C. C. A. 216, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 50; In re Page (1901) 107 Fed. 89, 46 C. C. A. 160, 59 L. R. A. 94, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 707; In re Gaylord (D. C. 1901) 111 Fed. 717, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 195; In re Page (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 746, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 467; In re Werder (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 789; In re Ketchum (D. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 840; Wrede v. Clark (1909) 132 App. Div. 293, 117 N. Y. Supp. 5; Platt v. Jones (1884) 96 N. Y. 24; Powell v. Waldron (1882) 89 N. Y. 328, 42 Am. Rep. 301; Ritterband v. Baggett (1877) 4 Abb. New Cas. (N. Y.) 67; McCabe v. Emmons (1885) 51 N. Y. Super. Ct. 219; Londheim v. White (1884) 67 How. Prac. (N. Y.) 467; Grocers' Bank v. Murphy (1881) 60 How. Prac. (N. Y.) 426; Eliot v. Merchants' Exchange (1883) 14 Mo. App. 234; Habenicht v. Lissak (1889) 78 Cal. 351, 20 Pac. 874, 5 L. R. A.

713, 12 Am. St. Rep. 63; Clute v. Loveland (1885) 68 Cal. 254, 9 Pac. 133. CONTRA, In re Sutherland (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 13,637; Barclay v. Smith (1883) 107 Ill. 349, 47 Am. Rep. 437; Weaver v. Fisher (1884) 110 Ill. 146; Thompson v. Adams (1879) 93 Pa. 55; Pancoast v. Gowen (1879) 93 Pa. 66. An order requiring the bankrupt to transfer his seat on the stock exchange to his trustee cannot be made after he has obtained his discharge in bankruptcy, as he is not then subject to the summary jurisdiction of the court; but semble, that the trustee could proceed by bill in equity. In re Nichols (D. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 842; Platt v. Jones (1884) 96 N. Y. 24; Powell v. Waldron (1882) 89 N. Y. 328, 42 Am. Rep. 301.

The trustee, knowing that the bankrupt holds a membership in a stock exchange, must claim it with reasonable promptness, and cannot wait indefinitely for the seat to increase in value or for the bankrupt to clear it from preferred debts, and an unreasonable delay will be held an abandonment of the seat to the bankrupt or an election not to take it. Sparhawk v. Yerkes (1891) 142 U. S. 1, 12 Sup. Ct. 104, 34 L. Ed. 915.

A rule of a stock exchange that, upon the insolvency of a member, the proceeds of a sale of his seat shall first be applied to his indebtedness to the exchange, and then to debts due from him to fellow members, to the exclusion of outside creditors, will be recognized as valid in the bankruptcy proceedings, and when the trustee in bankruptcy sells the seat, he will be entitled, as the representative of the general creditors, only to such surplus of the purchase price as may remain after satisfying the preferred debts mentioned. Page v. Edmunds (1903) 187 U. S. 596, 23 Sup. Ct. 200, 47 L. Ed. 318, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 277; Hyde v. Woods (1876) 94 U. S. 523, 24 L. Ed. 266; In re Currie (1911) 185 Fed. 263, 107 C. C. A. 369, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 345; In re Gregory (1909) 174 Fed. 629, 98 C. C. A. 383, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 270; Cohen v. Budd (1906) 52 Misc. Rep. 217, 103 N. Y. Supp. 45.

32. Executory contracts.—The trustee does not take title to such executory contracts of the bankrupt as cannot be made available for the payment of the debts. Nor to those which would be onerous or unprofitable, or more of a burden than a benefit to the estate. Streeter v. Sumner (1855) 31 N. H. 542. Nor those which depend upon the future personal services of the bankrupt, where his special knowledge or skill or adaptability to the employment, or special trust and confidence reposed in him, constitute an essential part of the contract, so that it could not be performed by a third person to the equal satisfaction of the employer. Id. But the fact that a contract for the personal services of the bankrupt is not assignable as a whole does not prevent the trustee from claiming compensation already earned under the contract, provided that compensation is apportionable and not dependent upon the future completion of the entire contract. In re Wright (C. C. A. 1907) 157 Fed. 544, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 454; Buckingham v. Buckingham (1880) 36 Ohio St. 68; In re Jones (D. C. 1871) 4 N. B. R. 347, Fed. Cas. No. 7,448.

Where the bankrupt had rendered certain services for a third person, for which that person was to pay him a fixed sum in case he succeeded in a pending suit in chancery, which event happened during the administration of the estate in bankruptcy, held, that the trustee was entitled to recover the compensation. Burton v. Lockert (1849) 9 Ark. 411. Where the bankrupt's interest in a contract is a right to share in the profits resulting from it, his interest will pass to and vest in his trustee in bankruptcy, in so far as profits have accrued, or the bankrupt's right to share in future profits has become fixed, at the time of the bankruptcy. Sherman v. International Bank (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 12,765; Fraser v. Gates (1885) 118 Ill. 99, 1 N. E. 817. An interest in the business of another, which the bankrupt conducts in his own name, receiving half the profits as compensation, is not property which will pass to his trustee. In re Beardsley (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 457, Fed. Cas. No. 1,184.

33. Good will of business.—It is the duty of a trustee in bankruptcy to ascertain whether the good will of the bankrupt's going business has any market value, and if so, to realize it for the benefit of the estate. In re Long (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 8,477. The value of the good will may be taken into account, as an asset of the alleged bankrupt, in determining the question of his solvency or insolvency. Bell v. Ellis (1867) 33 Cal. 620. A good will which rests only on the voluntary forbearance of those who are engaged in a particular trade, whereby they refrain from inaugurating an enterprise which would rival that already set on foot by another, though they are under no legal obligation so to refrain, is not property in any sense known to the law. Sheldon v. Houghton (C. C. 1865) Fed. Cas. No. 12,748.

34. Debts due to bankrupt.—Upon an adjudication in bankruptcy, all debts and claims due to the bankrupt pass to his trustee, and the latter thereafter is alone entitled to collect and receive payment of the same. Pullman v. Upton (1877) 96 U. S. 328, 24 L. Ed. 818; Stow v. Yarwood (1858) 20 Ill. 497; Rogers v. Union Stone Co. (1883) 134 Mass. 31; Ex parte Goodwin, 1 Atk. Ch. 100. See In re Smyth (D. C. 1909) 167 Fed. 871, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 853;

First Nat. Bank v. Guarantee Title & Trust Co. (1910) 178 Fed. 187, 101 C. C. A. 507, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 330. Payment of a debt directly to the bankrupt, made after the institution of the bankruptcy proceedings, though made in good faith, and even in the usual course of business, and without any other notice than such constructive notice as the filing of a bankruptcy petition is supposed to impart to all concerned, is not effectual to discharge the debt, and is no protection against a suit for its recovery subsequently brought by the trustee in bankruptcy. Mays v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (1870) 64 Pa. 74, 4 N. B. R. 660, 3 Am. Rep. 573; Stevens v. Mechanics' Sav. Bank (1869) 101 Mass. 109, 3 Am. Rep. 325; Howard v. Crompton (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 6,758; In re Hayden (D. C. 1872) 7 N. B. R. 192, Fed. Cas. No. 6,257; Ex parte Goodwin, 1 Atk. Ch. 100. But see In re Zotti (1911) 186 Fed. 84, 108 C. C. A. 196, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 234; Galvin v. Boyd (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 5,208; Mersfelder v. Peters Cartridge Co. (1910) 32 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 187. A payment made in bad faith, or with knowledge of the pending proceeding, and with the purpose of evading or defeating the operation of the bankruptcy act in any way, is void as against the trustee. Babbitt v. Burgess (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 693. If the trustee dies or becomes bankrupt, the right to receive payment of outstanding debts due to the estate in his charge does not vest in his personal representatives or trustee, but passes to a new trustee to be appointed in the original bankruptcy. In re Merrick (1842) 5 Watts & S. (Pa.) 9.

The trustee in bankruptcy is entitled to recover money borrowed from the bankrupt after the filing of the petition and before the adjudication. Crompton v. Conkling (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 3,407. And to a judgment rendered in the bankrupt's favor before the adjudication. First Nat. Bank v. Cook (1878) 154 U. S. 628, 14 Sup. Ct. 481, 24 L. Ed. 916; Brown v. Wygant (1892) 21 D. C. 16; Hale v. Christy (1888) 24 Neb. 746, 40 N. W. 295; Simmons v. Heman (1885) 17 Mo. App. 444; Moore v. Jones (D. C. 1848) 23 Vt. 739, Fed. Cas. No. 9,768. And to a claim against a sheriff for failing to make the money on an execution issued on such a judgment. Gary v. Bates (1847) 12 Ala. 544. And to rent due and accrued for premises owned by the bankrupt. Brock v. Weiss (1882) 44 N. J. Law, 241. A covenant made by a landlord to return a deposit made by the tenant as security to carry out the lease is collateral and personal and does not pass to the tenant's assignee as against his trustee in bankruptcy. Sanford v. Zimmern (1912) 76 Misc. Rep. 434, 134 N. Y. Supp. 1116. The trustee is entitled to claim the amount due to the bankrupt from another estate in bankruptcy. In re Ellis (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 4,399. Or from the estate of a decedent in process of administration in a probate court. Collier v. Hunter (1871) 27 Ark. 74. The trustee is entitled to a claim under a policy of fire insurance for the loss by fire of property of the bankrupt covered by such policy. Home Ins. Co. v. Hollis (1875) 53 Ga. 659. And to a claim against a city for damages to the bankrupt's real property occasioned by a change in the grade of a street, where the property was injured but not taken. In re Torchia (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 576, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 188. And to money received by the administrator of a bankrupt who dies after the adjudication and pending the proceedings. In re Matschke (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 284, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 770.

The bankrupt was managing agent for a life insurance company, under a contract having several years to run, which entitled him to an interest in renewal premiums on policies previously written, when collected, so long as the contract was in force, but subject to the right of the company to terminate such interest if dissatisfied or if the bankrupt failed to comply with the contract. In case of his death, his widow or estate was entitled to receive such interest for five years, subject to a fee for collection. It was held that this interest was property which the bankrupt could have transferred, and which therefore vested in his trustee in bankruptcy. In re Wright (C. C. A. 1907) 157 Fed. 544, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 454. But an agreement between a debtor and his surety that property held in trust by the surety as indemnity shall be applied to the payment of the debt, does not constitute a demand against the surety which will pass to the trustee in bankruptcy of the debtor, as it is not a money demand, but merely a right to require performance of an obligation or duty. White v. Crew (1854) 16 Ga. 416. Where the payee of a note or duebill sells it before his bankruptcy, the purchaser takes title as against the seller's trustee, though the indorsement is made after the bankruptcy. Smoot v. Morehouse (1845) 8 Ala. 370, 42 Am. Dec. 644; Hersey v. Elliot (1878) 67 Me. 526, 24 Am. Rep. 50. If the bankrupt holds a promissory note, an agreement on his part to accept payment of it in labor or care of himself or in his own support, made without any new consideration, will not be valid as against his general creditors where the contract was not fulfilled before the institution of bankruptcy proceedings. In re Powers, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 135.

35. —— Claims against government. —Claims against a government, even though they cannot be enforced, constitute property, and pass to one's assignee in bankruptcy, notwithstanding the statute restraining the transfer of claims against the government. Erwin

v. United States (1878) 97 U. S. 392, 24 L. Ed. 1065; Phelps v. McDonald (1878) 99 U. S. 298, 25 L. Ed. 478; Id. (1876) 2 MacArthur (D. C.) 375, 16 N. B. R. 217; Comegys v. Vasse (1828) 1 Pet. 193, 7 L. Ed. 108.

Claims against the United States pass to the claimant's trustee in bankruptcy even before congress has made any provision for the payment of such claims, and even though the claim is only a right to share in the distribution of a fund received by the United States from a foreign government to be apportioned as compensation among its own injured citizens, though both the accrual of the claim and the bankruptcy of the claimant preceded the making of the treaty under which such fund eventually became available. Williams v. Heard (1891) 140 U. S. 529, 11 Sup. Ct. 885, 35 L. Ed. 550; Phelps v. McDonald (1878) 99 U. S. 298, 25 L. Ed. 478; Erwin v. U. S. (1877) 13 Ct. Cl. 49: Leonard v. Nye (1878) 125 Mass. 455; Williamson v. Colcord (D. C. 1875) 13 N. B. R. 319, Fed. Cas. No. 17,752.

A trustee in bankruptcy does not take title to a claim against the United States where it is not of such a nature that it would be legally enforceable against an individual, and where its recognition and payment are wholly optional with congress, being a matter of grace or favor and not of moral obligation. Dockery v. U. S. (1891) 26 Ct. Cl. 148.

A mere expectation of receiving a reward from the Treasury department for furnishing information concerning violations of the revenue laws, which has been applied for by the informer but not yet passed upon by the Secretary of the Treasury, whose action in the matter is discretionary, is not property of such a nature as to vest in the claimant's trustee in bankruptcy. In re Ghazal (1909) 174 Fed. 809, 98 C. C. A. 517, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 178.

Under R. S. § 3477, ante, § 6383, forbidding the assignment of a claim against the United States, unless it has been previously allowed and a warrant issued for its payment, an assignment of such a claim, not yet allowed, has no effect against the trustee in bankruptcy of the claimant, and he takes it as an asset of the estate, free from any right or interest on the part of the assignee. National Bank of Commerce v. Downie (1910) 218 U. S. 345, 31 Sup. Ct. 89, 54 L. Ed. 1065, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 199, affirming (1908) 161 Fed. 839, 88 C. C. A. 657, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 531; Guarantee Title & Trust Co. v. First Nat. Bank (1911) 185 Fed. 373, 107 C. C. A. 429, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 85.

36. Rights of action.—A trustee in bankruptcy is entitled to claim, and to enforce for the benefit of the estate, a promissory note of a third person belonging to the bankrupt at the time of the filing of the petition. In re Duncan (D. C. 1906) 148 Fed. 464, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 283. And a claim of the bankrupt against a third person for goods sold to the latter, to the extent of their value where no price was fixed at the time of the sale. Leist v. Diersen (1906) 4 Cal. App. 634, 88 Pac. 812. And a claim against an insolvent estate pending in the probate court. Miller v. Parker (1872) 47 Ala. 312. And the right to contest the account of the administrator of the bankrupt's ancestor. In re Clute, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 386. Where an agent, importing goods for his principal, became a bankrupt, and the United States filed its claim for duties, the estate suffered a loss for which the trustee in bankruptcy could recover from the principal, though the duties had not been paid. Walkof v. Fox (1915) 153 N. Y. S. 27, judgment affirmed Walkoff v. Same (1915) 155 N. Y. S. 1146. The trustee takes a right of action for land in dispute and held in adverse possesson by a third person. Pope v. Davenport (1879) 52 Tex. 206. And he may maintain an action to set aside the cancellation of a real-estate mortgage which was fraudulently procured from the bankrupt. Alexander v. Berney (1877) 28 N. J. Eq. 90. The trustee is vested with the right of action on a policy of fire insurance for the destruction of insured property of the bankrupt occurring after the adjudication, though before the appointment of the trustee. Fuller v. New York Fire Ins. Co. (1903) 184 Mass. 12, 67 N. E. 879. But not where the claim against the insurance company has been transferred to a creditor of the bankrupt, before the bankruptcy, in such a way as to constitute an accord and satisfaction between them and a novation of the debt. In re Haynes Son & Co. (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 269. The trustee is vested with a right of action against a sheriff for failing to make money on an execution, or for selling the property on credit and failing to collect the amount of the bid. In re Geiser (D. C. 1904) 129 Fed. 237, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 298; Sullivan v. Bridge (1805) 1 Mass. 511. The bankrupt's right to file a notice of and to enforce a mechanic's lien passes to his trustee in bankruptcy. Held v. Burke (1903) 83 App. Div. 509, 82 N. Y. Supp. 426. A claim transferred by a bankrupt as a credit on a pre-existing indebtedness, on the day on which he filed his petition in bankruptcy, may be sold by the trustee, although the transfer is only voidable and not void. Keller v. Faickney (1906) 42 Tex. Civ. App. 483, 94 S. W. 103. See In re Thomas (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 214, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 945.

A personal claim of the bankrupt, which there is no legal power to enforce, though an award upon it has been made by arbitrators, does not pass to his trustee in bankruptcy. Tallman v. Tallman (1850) 5 Cush. (Mass.) 325. A claim of a wife for alimony is not a property right, and property awarded to her as alimony, or arrears of alimony accruing, after her adjudication in bankruptcy, do not constitute a part of her estate. In re Le Claire (D. C. 1903) 124 Fed. 654, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 733; Bolton v. Bolton (N. J. 1914) 89 Atl. 1014.

A trustee in bankruptcy succeeds to the bankrupt's title to choses in action, subject to any defense or counterclaim to which they would have been liable in the hands of the bankrupt. Nebraska Moline Plow Co. v. Blackburn (1905) 74 Neb. 246, 104 N. W. 178. A trustee in bankruptcy had no greater rights on a note payable to the bankrupt, the signer of which added to his signature words indicating that he signed as treasurer of a corporation, than the bankrupt himself had. Jump v. Sparling (1914) 105 N. E. 878, 218 Mass. 324. The trustee in bankruptcy of a corporation stands in no better position to attack an arrangement between the corporation's selling agent and a purchaser whereby the agent was to pay his debt to the purchaser by paying part of the purchase price, which was ratified by the corporation, than would the bankrupt company. Grollman v. Montgomery Ward & Co. (1913) 181 Ill. App. 598. Where property of the bankrupt covered by insurance has been destroyed by fire, but he has lost his right to sue on the policy by failing to render a statement forthwith, as required by the policy, his trustee in bankruptcy cannot sue on it. Bennett v. Ætna Ins. Co. (1909) 201 Mass. 554, 88 N. E. 335, 131 Am. St. Rep. 414.

37. —— For personal injuries and other torts.—If the bankrupt has an unliquidated claim for damages against a common carrier or other person, for negligence or wrongful act which caused injury to his person, it does not vest in his trustee in bankruptcy and the latter has no interest in it. Sibley v. Nason (1907) 196 Mass. 125, 81 N. E. 887, 12 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1173, 124 Am. St. Rep. 520, 12 Ann. Cas. 938; Hanson v. First Nat. Bank (Tex. Civ. App. 1910) 128 S. W. 1147; Rand v. Fleishman (1879) 6 Wkly. Notes Cas. (Pa.) 497; Dillard v. Collins (1874) 25 Grat. (Va.) 343; Stone v. Boston & M. R. Co. (1856) 7 Gray (Mass.) 539; Beechwood v. Joplin-Pittsburg Ry. Co. (Mo. App. 1913) 158 S. W. 868. But a similar claim for the value of property of the bankrupt, lost or damaged in consequence of the negligence or wrongful act of a carrier or other person, is an asset of his estate and passes to the trustee. Borden v. Bradshaw (1880) 68 Ala. 362.

The trustee in bankruptcy cannot claim a right of action for damages growing out of an assault and battery upon the bankrupt. Hudson v. Pletts (1844) 11 Paige (N. Y.) 180. Or for slander or libel against him. Dillard v. Collins (1874) 25 Grat. (Va.) 343; Irion v. Knapp (1913) 132 La. 60, 60 South. 719, 43 L. R. A. (N. S.) 940. Or for malicious prosecution and false imprisonment. In re Haensell (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 355, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 286; Noonan v. Orton (1874) 34 Wis. 259, 17 Am. Rep. 441; Stanly v. Duhurst (1793) 2 Root (Conn.) 52.

Malicious attachment is an injury to property, and not to the person, and the right of action will vest in the trustee in bankruptcy. Hansen Mercantile Co. v. Wyman, Partridge & Co. (1908) 105 Minn. 491, 117 N. W. 926, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 727. A right of action for deceit, based on false and fraudulent representations, whereby the plaintiff was induced to sign a contract, enter into a partnership, buy property at an excessive price, or extend credit to a third person, to his pecuniary loss, is a "right of action arising from an injury to his property," within the meaning of the statute, and therefore passes to the trustee. In re Gay (D. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 260, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 111; In re Harper (D. C. 1910) 175 Fed. 412, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 918; Hyde v. Tufts (1879) 45 N. Y. Super. Ct. 56. A right of action for damages, given by a state statute to any person injured by the operation of any "trust," (as, for instance, for a conspiracy whereby the plaintiff was driven out of business), is held to be for an injury to business, employment, or property, and therefore such as will vest in the trustee in bankruptcy. Cleland v. Anderson (1902) 66 Neb. 252, 92 N. W. 306, 96 N. W. 212, 98 N. W. 1075, 5 L. R. A. (N. S.) 136; Id. (1905) 75 Neb. 273, 105 N. W. 1092, 5 L. R. A. (N. S.) 136. Under the statutes giving a right of action for the wrongful killing of a human being, the recovery to be for the benefit of the next of kin, where a father is entitled to the entire amount to be recovered for the wrongful killing of his son, his right thereto constitutes an asset of his estate in bankruptcy. In re Burnstine (D. C. 1903) 131 Fed. 828, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 596. Where profits of the business of a corporation are wrongfully appropriated to his own use by an officer of the company, under the guise of a salary, the trustee in bankruptcy of the corporation may recover the same. Fillebrown v. Haywood (1906) 190 Mass. 472, 77 N. E. 45. A trustee in bankruptcy of a trading corporation succeeds to any right which it may have to sue directors for loss from a breach of duty. McEwen v. Kelly (1913) 79 S. E. 777, 140 Ga. 720.

38. —— For usury.—A right of action under a state statute to recover back usurious interest paid (or double the amount of it, or a penalty for exacting it, as the case may be) will vest in the trustee in bankruptcy of the borrower, since the injury done by the usurer is an injury to the property or estate of the borrower and not a personal tort. Reed v. American-German Nat. Bank (C. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 233, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 140; Lasater v. First Nat. Bank (1903) 96 Tex. 345, 72 S. W. 1057; Wheelock v. Lee (1873) 15 Abb. Prac. N. S. (N. Y.) 24, 10 N. B. R. 363; Moore v. Jones (D. C. 1848) Fed. Cas. No. 9,768. CONTRA, Lafountain v. Burlington Sav. Bank (1883) 56 Vt. 332. The right of action against a national bank, to recover twice the amount of usurious interest paid to it, under the act of Congress in that behalf (R. S. § 5198), will pass to and vest in the trustee in bankruptcy of the borrower, who is the "legal representative" of the borrower, within the meaning of that statute, for although the action thereon is one to recover a penalty, yet it is distinguishable from causes of action for damages growing out of mere personal torts. Wright v. First Nat. Bank (C. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 87, Fed. Cas. No. 18,078; Markson v. First Nat. Bank (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 9,097; Crocker v. First Nat. Bank (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 3,397; Monongahela Bank v. Overholt (1881) 96 Pa. 327. CONTRA, Barnett v. Muncie Nat. Bank (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 1,026; Bromley v. Smith (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 152, Fed. Cas. No. 1,922.

39. Legacies and inheritances.—Property coming to a bankrupt as his distributive share of the estate of one dying intestate, or as a legacy or devise, will pass to and vest in his trustee in bankruptcy. Watkins v. Bigelow (1904) 93 Minn. 361, 101 N. W. 497; Ex parte Newhall (C. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 10,159; Dohner v. Dohner (Pa.) 1 Am. Law J. N. S. 78. It is immaterial that the legacy or devise is as yet undetermined in respect to its extent. In re Mosier (D. C. 1901) 112 Fed. 138, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 268. Or that it may consist of an undivided interest. In re Kane (D. C. 1908) 161 Fed. 633, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 616. Where the death of the testator and the filing of the petition in bankruptcy occurred on the same day, the fractions of that day will be inquired into for the purpose of fixing the status of the property, and if the filing of the petition was the later event, the trustee in bankruptcy may claim the inheritance. In re Stoner (D. C. 1901) 105 Fed. 752, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 402; In re McKenna (D. C. 1905) 137 Fed. 611, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 4. Where the bankrupt's interest in a legacy is contingent, and becomes vested by the happening of the event or contingency after his adjudication in bankruptcy, it will then become available as an asset of his estate. Churchman's Appeal (Pa. 1888) 12 Atl. 600. Where the estate devised includes both real and personal property, the administrator of the decedent will have no right or interest in the real property as against the trustee in bankruptcy, though he may be entitled to possession of the personal property pending its administration. In re Kane (D. C. 1908) 161 Fed. 633, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 616. If there are no local creditors to be protected, the probate court will be justified in turning over to a foreign trustee in bankruptcy of the heir or next of kin the bankrupt's share in the personal estate. In re Delehanty's Estate (1908) 11 Ariz. 366, 95 Pac. 109, 21 Ann. Cas. 1038.

40. Property held in trust for bankrupt.—When property is held in trust for the bankrupt under a mere passive trust, with no direction as to accumulation and no discretion in the trustee to devote the fund or the income to any person other than the bankrupt, it constitutes assets of the latter's estate and may be recovered by the trustee, who need not give notice to the holder of the trust in order to complete his title. Whittredge v. Sweetser (1905) 189 Mass. 45, 75 N. E. 222, affirmed in Hammond v. Whittredge (1907) 204 U. S. 538, 27 Sup. Ct. 396, 51 L. Ed. 606; Wallace v. Everett (Ky. 1910) 125 S. W. 745. A trustee in bankruptcy may enforce a resulting trust in land in favor of the bankrupt. In re Dunavant (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 542, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 41; Currie v. Look (1906) 14 N. D. 482, 106 N. W. 131. The trustee in bankruptcy may enforce a trust in the avails of personal property or choses in action in favor of the bankrupt. In re Perley (D. C. 1846) Fed. Cas. No. 10,992. Compare Butler v. Merchants' Ins. Co. (1848) 14 Ala. 777. A trustee in bankruptcy may recover chattels, taken by a mortgagee thereof more than a year after the original filing of the chattel mortgage, where no renewal statement of the mortgage was filed, as required by Lien Law N. Y. § 235. Benedict v. Zutes (1914) 150 N. Y. S. 147, 88 Misc. Rep. 214. Property which is in the possession of a third person, who holds it merely as the agent or bailee of the bankrupt, must be surrendered to the trustee in bankruptcy. In re Cole (1906) 144 Fed. 392, 75 C. C. A. 330, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 302. Where municipal corporations held funds payable to a bankrupt contractor under improvement contracts, and notices to retain were given as provided by Code Civ. Proc. Cal. § 1184, the municipalities, though having no personal interest in the fund, had a noncolorable claim to retain the same pursuant to the notices, and the bankruptcy court could not compel payment thereof to the bankrupt's trustee. In re Cotton (D. C. 1913) 209 Fed. 124.

When a trust created by a will or deed confers upon the trustee an authority to chose or change the beneficiary, or gives him a discretion which he is not obliged to exercise in favor of the bankrupt, the latter's expectation of benefiting by the trust is not an interest which will pass to his trustee in bankruptcy. Nichols v. Eaton (1875) 91 U. S. 716, 23 L. Ed. 254. Trustee in bankruptcy take no higher or greater estate than the bankrupt himself possessed when the trustee was appointed; and hence where the conditions upon which the bankrupt was to become entitled to a trust fund were not performed until after his adjudication, and after his debts had been extinguished by his discharge, his trustee had no title thereto for the use of creditors. Hull v. Palmer (1913) 140 N. Y. S. 811, 155 App. Div. 636. Property conveyed to holder of legal title by the wife of an insolvent, such wife having held in trust for her grantee, held not subject to trust in favor of such insolvent's creditors after his adjudication in bankruptcy. Arbury v. De Niord (1915) 152 N. Y. S. 763.

41. —— Testamentary trusts and annuities.—Whether or not the provisions of a will create such a trust as will prevent a fund bequeathed from passing to the trustee in bankruptcy of the beneficiary or legatee, is to be determined by the law of the particular state. In re McKay (D. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 671, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 238.

Where property is devised to trustees, with directions to pay the income therefrom into the hands of a named beneficiary during his life, the latter has no such interest or estate either in the corpus of the property or in the income as will pass to and vest in his trustee in bankruptcy, as his rights or interesta are not alienable by any sale or assignment on his part. In re McKay (D. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 671, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 238; Spindle v. Shreve (C. C. 1880) 4 Fed. 136; In re Hoadley (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 233, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 780; Degraw v. Clason (1844) 11 Paige (N. Y.) 136; Munroe v. Dewey (1900) 57 N. E. 340, 176 Mass. 184, 79 Am. St. Rep. 304, 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 840; Boston Safe Deposit & Trust Co. v. Luke (1915) 220 Mass. 484, 108 N. E. 64. Where the income of a trust fund is directed to be applied to the support of a designated beneficiary and his wife and children, the trustee in bankruptcy of the beneficiary cannot claim such income, and the court cannot apportion the income, as between the bankrupt himself and his family, so as to give the trustee an aliquot share. Durant v. Hospital Life Ins. Co. of Mass. (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 324, Fed. Cas. No. 4,188. Compare Rugely v. Robinson (1846) 10 Ala. 702. It is competent for a testator to direct that the income of the trust fund shall cease to be paid to the named beneficiary if he shall become bankrupt, and that it shall in that event be paid to his wife or children or to other specified beneficiaries. Such a provision is not contrary either to the general policy of the law or to that of the bankruptcy act in particular, and it leaves nothing for the trustee in bankruptcy to claim for the estate. Nichols v. Eaton (1875) 91 U. S. 716, 23 L. Ed. 254, affirming (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 10,241. A trustee in bankruptcy held not entitled to aid of a court of equity to reach trust property; the testamentary trustee having an absolute discretion, and any interest of the bankrupt as heir having already passed to the trustee in bankruptcy by the adjudication. Brown v. Lumbert (1915) 108 N. E. 1079, 221 Mass. 419.

When the law provides that where a trust is created by which the trustee is to receive and collect the income from property and apply it to the use and benefit of a named beneficiary during his life, the latter shall not take any legal estate or interest in the property, and can only enforce the trust in equity, and cannot transfer his rights, but that, if no valid direction for accumulation is given, the surplus of such income, beyond the sum necessary for the education and support of the beneficiary, shall be liable to the claims of his creditors in the same manner as other personal property which cannot be reached by execution, the surplus of an income so settled may be claimed by the trustee in bankruptcy of the beneficiary as assets of his estate. In re Tiffany (D. C. 1904) 133 Fed. 799, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 310; In re Baudouine (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 536, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 55. See the latter case on appeal (1900) 101 Fed. 574, 41 C. C. A. 318, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 651, where, however, the decision was not on the merits, but on the question whether the trustee in bankruptcy must bring a plenary suit. See, also, Graff v. Bonnett (1865) 31 N. Y. 9, 88 Am. Dec. 236; Brown v. Barker (1902) 68 App. Div. 592, 74 N. Y. Supp. 43; Jenks v. Title Guarantee & Trust Co. (Sup. 1915) 156 N. Y. Supp. 478. CONTRA, Butler v. Baudouine (1903) 177 N. Y. 530, 69 N. E. 1121. And see McNaboe v. Marks (1906) 51 Misc. Rep. 207, 99 N. Y. Supp. 960; Cuthbert v. Chauvet (1893) 136 N. Y. 326, 32 N. E. 1088, 18 L. R. A. 745; Wetmore v. Wetmore (1896) 149 N. Y. 520, 44 N. E. 169, 33 L. R. A. 708, 52 Am. St. Rep. 752; Mills v. Husson (1893) 140 N. Y. 99, 35 N. E. 422. Where a testator gives property to trustees for the benefit of a designated beneficiary, but with the direction that they shall hold it and the accumulations until the beneficiary reaches a certain age, later than the ordinary age of majority, and the beneficiary is adjudged bankrupt before attaining the age mentioned in the will, his trustee in bankruptcy is entitled to claim the fund from the testamentary trustees. Sanford v. Lackland (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 12,312. And see Loomer v. Loomer (1904) 76 Conn. 522, 57 Atl. 167.

As to a testamentary annuity, created by a will which directs trustees to pay a fixed annual sum to a named beneficiary during his life, it is held that the right of the beneficiary is property which he could assign and which could be followed by his creditors, and therefore will vest in his trustee in bankruptcy, to be sold by the latter for its present value. In re Burtis (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 527, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 680; Degraw v. Clason (1844) 11 Paige (N. Y.) 136; Graves v. Dolphin (1826) 1 Simons, 66; Brandon v. Robinson (1811) 18 Ves. 429. Although it may not pass any estate or interest in the particular lands which are expected to furnish the income out of which the annuity shall be paid. De Haven v. Sherman (1889) 131 Ill. 115, 22 N. E. 711, 6 L. R. A. 745. Where property is devised in trust, the income to be paid to a named person for life, and the principal, after his death, to his executor in trust for the use of such person as he may appoint by will, and the first taker executes the power, the property appropriated is deemed in equity part of his assets and subject to the demand of his creditors, in preference to the claims of his voluntary appointees or legatees, and hence it should be available as assets of his estate in bankruptcy. Clapp v. Ingraham (1879) 126 Mass. 200.

42. Policies of life insurance.—Under the provisions of this section, insurance policies having a surrender or disposable value are assets passing to the bankrupt's trustee, if not exempt. In re Phillips & Goldman (D. C. 1912) 192 Fed. 1020; In re Churchill (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 711, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 153; In re Whelpley (D. C. 1909) 169 Fed. 1019, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 433. It is the intention of the provision to exclude from the estate in bankruptcy all insurance policies except such as may have a surrender value. Burlingham v. Crouse (1913) 228 U. S. 459, 33 Sup. Ct. 564, 57 L. Ed. 920, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 6, affirming (1910) 181 Fed. 479, 104 C. C. A. 227, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 632; In re Josephson (D. C. 1908) 121 Fed. 142, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 345, affirmed in Meyers v. Josephson (1903) 124 Fed. 734, 59 C. C. A. 650, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 687; In re Churchill (1913) 209 Fed. 766, 126 C. C. A. 490; Grems v. Traver (Sup. 1914) 148 N. Y. Supp. 200. Though the policy in question may have no surrender value in cash, yet if it has any actual value (such as an inchoate value, or a value for the purpose of being pledged as collateral, or a paid-up insurance value), the trustee may claim it as an asset of the estate, since it is property which the bankrupt himself could have transferred and is therefore within the broader clause of the statute. Partridge v. Andrews (C. C. A. 1911) 191 Fed. 325, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 388; In re Orear (1910) 178 Fed. 632, 102 C. C. A. 78, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 343; In re Coleman (1905) 136 Fed. 818, 69 C. C. A. 496, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 461; In re Welling (1902) 113 Fed. 189, 51 C. C. A. 151, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 340; In re Dolan (D. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 949, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 145; In re Hettling (C. C. A. 1910) 175 Fed. 65, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 161; Clark v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. (C. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 175, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 137; Van Kirk v. Vermont Slate Co. (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 38, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 239; Gould v. New York Life Ins. Co. (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 927, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 233. A policy which has no surrender value, and no cash value to the estate, and in fact no value for any purpose except the contingency of its becoming valuable at the death of the bankrupt in case the premiums are kept paid, does not constitute an asset of the estate in bankruptcy. In re Buelow (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 86, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 389; Gould v. New York Life Ins. Co. (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 927, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 233; King v. Miles (Miss. 1915) 67 South. 182.

43. —— Meaning of "cash surrender value."—In order that a policy may have a cash surrender value, within the meaning of this section, it is not necessary that the policy should contain an express agreement or stipulation to that effect; it is sufficient if it possesses an actual value, either in cash or for the purchase of a paid-up policy, which would be recognized and paid by the insurer on the surrender of the policy, as a matter of settled and usual practice, or even as a concession in the particular case. Holden v. Stratton (1905) 198 U. S. 214, 25 Sup. Ct. 656, 49 L. Ed. 1022, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 94; Hiscock v. Mertens (1907) 205 U. S. 202, 27 Sup. Ct. 488, 51 L. Ed. 771, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 483; Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Miller (C. C. A. 1911) 185 Fed. 98, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 560; In re Herr (D. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 716, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 142; In re Coleman (1905) 136 Fed. 818, 69 C. C. A. 496, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 461; In re Boardman (D. C. 1900) 103 Fed. 783, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 620. But compare Pulsifer v. Hussey (1903) 97 Me. 434, 54 Atl. 1076.

44. —— Endowment, tontine, and annuity policies.—An endowment policy on the life of the bankrupt, payable to him with accumulated dividends if he survives the term, or to his wife in case of his death before its maturity, if it has a cash surrender value, will vest in the trustee in bankruptcy unless redeemed by the bankrupt. Remley v. Travelers' Ins. Co. (1909) 108 Minn. 31, 121 N. W. 230; In re Schofield (D. C. 1905) 147 Fed. 862, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 824; In re Young (D. C. 1912) 208 Fed. 373, 31 Am. Bankr. Rep. 29; In re Dreuil & Co. (D. C. 1915) 221 Fed. 796. Where the amount of such a policy is considerable, and it will mature before the estate can be closed, the trustee may, with the sanction of the court and the assent of the creditors, retain it, and pay the remaining premiums as they mature, and in case the amount is realized, the creditors will be entitled to at least the proportion equitably to the credit of the policy at the date of the adjudication, with the outlay for premiums. In re Slingluff (D. C. 1900) 106 Fed. 154, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 76; In re Mertens (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 972, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 712. The same rule as to paying premiums and claiming the bankrupt's interest in the policy applies to the "tontine" and "semi-tontine" forms of policies. Hiscock v. Mertens (1907) 205 U. S. 202, 27 Sup. Ct. 488, 51 L. Ed. 771, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 483; In re Welling (1902) 113 Fed. 189, 51 C. C. A. 151, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 340; In re Mertens (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 972, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 712. A paid-up policy insuring the bankrupt's life, under an agreement to pay him an annuity for life after twenty years, which term has not expired, and to pay his widow a fixed sum on his death, vests in his trustee in bankruptcy, but only as to the bankrupt's interest in the annuity, and not as to the entire present value of the policy. In re Schaefer (D. C. 1910) 189 Fed. 187, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 340.

45. —— Rights of beneficiaries.—A policy of insurance on the life of the bankrupt, but payable to his wife, is her property, and is not an asset of his estate in bankruptcy. In re Flanigan (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 339; In re Jamison Bros. & Co. (D. C. 1915) 222 Fed. 92; Grems v. Traver (1914) 148 N. Y. Supp. 200; In re Steele (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 78, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 549; In re Pfaffinger (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 526, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 255; In re Bear (D. C. 1875) 11 N. B. R. 46, Fed. Cas. No. 1,178; Pace v. Pace (1882) 19 Fla. 438; Haskell v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. (1902) 181 Mass. 341, 63 N. E. 899; Pulsifer v. Hussey (1903) 97 Me. 434, 54 Atl. 1076. But see In re White (1909) 174 Fed. 333, 98 C. C. A. 205, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 90; In re Holden (1902) 114 Fed. 650, 52 C. C. A. 346. Compare In re Young (D. C. 1912) 208 Fed. 373, 31 Am. Bankr. Rep. 29; In re Loveland (1912) 200 Fed. 136, 118 C. C. A. 310, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 560. A policy on the life of a bankrupt payable to his wife if she survived him, otherwise to his estate or any designated beneficiary, and which he was authorized at a specified time to surrender for cash or paid-up insurance, was property which passed to his trustee. In re Draper (D. C. 1914) 211 Fed. 230. The beneficial interest in insurance policies on the life of a bankrupt held to pass to his trustee, notwithstanding Act Pa. April 15, 1868 (P. L. 103), and that the policies named the bankrupt's daughter as beneficiary. In re Shoemaker (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 329.

Where the policy is on the life of the bankrupt, but is payable to a named beneficiary, it does not become an asset of his estate in bankruptcy because he has the right, with the consent of the company, to change the beneficiary, if he has not done so. In re Flanigan (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 339; In re Pfaffinger (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 526, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 255; Grems v. Traver (1914) 148 N. Y. Supp. 200. CONTRA, In re Jamison Bros. & Co. (D. C. 1915) 222 Fed. 92. The bankrupt cannot be compelled to substitute himself as beneficiary in a life insurance policy payable to his wife, and borrow the loan value thereof for the benefit of his creditors. In re L. Hammel & Co. (1915) 221 Fed. 56, 137 C. C. A. 80.

The trustee cannot claim a policy which was originally payable to the personal representatives of the bankrupt, but which was assigned to his wife more than four months before the bankruptcy, where nothing appears to impugn the good faith of the transaction. In re Steele (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 78, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 549. Compare South Side Trust Co. v. Wilmarth (1912) 199 Fed. 418, 117 C. C. A. 650, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 29. Any interest, in policy reserving right to change beneficiary, remaining in insured after assignment, held to pass to his trustee in bankruptcy, and to a purchaser from the trustee. Mutual Ben. Life Ins. Co. v. Swett (1915) 222 Fed. 200, 137 C. C. A. 640. The trustee cannot claim a policy assigned by the bankrupt to his wife or a third person where, at the time of the assignment, it had no surrender value in cash. Morris v. Dodd (1900) 110 Ga. 606, 36 S. E. 83, 50 L. R. A. 33, 78 Am. St. Rep. 129.

Where the policy provides that the principal sum shall be paid to the assured himself at the end of a stipulated term of years if he is then living, or to his wife if he dies before the expiration of the term, its surrender value is payable to the assured, and it becomes a part of his estate in bankruptcy. In re Steele (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 78, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 549; Brigham v. Home Ins. Co. (1881) 131 Mass. 319. But the mere expectancy of one who is named as the beneficiary in a policy of insurance on the life of another is not an asset in his estate in bankruptcy, where the policy also gives the assured the unqualified right to change the beneficiary at will, as this is not property which he could have transferred or which could have been levied on and sold. In re Hogan (C. C. A. 1912) 194 Fed. 846, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 166; In re McDonnell (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 239, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 92. But where the assured in such a case dies shortly after the adjudication in bankruptcy, leaving the bankrupt as the last designated beneficiary, the interest of the latter in the policy becomes fixed and unalterable, and passes to his trustee. In re Hogan (D. C. 1911) 186 Fed. 537. And so, where a wife holds a policy of insurance on the life of her husband, by the terms of which she is bound to pay the premiums and is entitled to receive the proceeds of the policy, such policy will become a part of the assets of her estate in bankruptcy, unless she secures or pays to her trustee its surrender value. In re Steele (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 78, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 549.

46. —— Interest claimable by trustee —Liens.—The only interest which the trustee can claim is the surrender value of the policy at the time of the bankruptcy, and if that is paid or secured to him, the bankrupt remains the owner of the policy and of whatever interest or value may thereafter accrue under it. In re Dreuil & Co. (D. C. 1915) 221 Fed. 796; Pulsifer v. Hussey (1903) 97 Me. 434, 54 Atl. 1076. The policy, so far as respects any future insurance under it, would be a burden to the estate rather than a benefit, which the trustee would not be authorized to continue. In re McKinney (D. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 535. But if the bankrupt does not redeem the policy, as authorized by the statute, it is for the court of bankruptcy to determine in what way the trustee shall treat the bankrupt's interest in it, whether by sale or by postponement of any action until the policy shall fall due. Waldron v. Becker (1900) 33 Misc. Rep. 182, 68 N. Y. Supp. 402.

The trustee takes the surrender value of the policy subject to any valid existing liens upon it, as, for example, an equitable lien in favor of the bankrupt's wife for the amount of premiums which she has paid out of her own money in past years in order to keep the policy alive. In re Diack (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 770, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 723; Waldron v. Becker (1900) 33 Misc. Rep. 182, 68 N. Y. Supp. 402.

Or the lien of one to whom the policy had previously been pledged as collateral security for a loan. In re Wolff (D. C. 1908) 165 Fed. 984, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 452; King v. Miles (Miss. 1915) 67 South. 182. And if the insurance company itself has loaned the bankrupt a sum equal to the full surrender value of the policy, holding the policy as security, there is nothing for the trustee in bankruptcy to take. Burlingham v. Crouse (C. C. A. 1910) 181 Fed. 479, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 632.

47. —— Effect of death of bankrupt. —The time when the petition in bankruptcy is filed, and not the date of the adjudication, fixes the cash surrender value of a policy on the bankrupt's life, and the death of the bankrupt between the filing of the petition and the adjudication does not make the proceeds of the policy, above the cash surrender value, assets in the hands of the trustee, but the right to redeem on paying the surrender value may be exercised by the bankrupt's executors. Everett v. Judson (1913) 228 U. S. 474, 33 Sup. Ct. 568, 57 L. Ed. 927, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1, affirming (1912) 192 Fed. 834, 113 C. C. A. 158, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 704; Andrews v. Partridge (1913) 228 U. S. 479, 33 Sup. Ct. 570, 57 L. Ed. 929, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 4, reversing (1911) 191 Fed. 325, 112 C. C. A. 69, 41 L. R. A. (N. S.) 123, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 388; Sanders v. Ætna Life Ins. Co. (1913) 95 S. C. 36, 78 S. E. 532. If bankrupt's assignment, with his wife, of policies on his life, was void, the wife may, on their return, after his death, in 30 days after determination of their surrender value, at date of adjudication, redeem. In re Levy (D. C. 1915) 227 Fed. 1011. Where the bankrupt's death occurs by suicide, and the policy thereupon becomes void, but the insurance company returns premiums paid under the policy, the money belongs to the trustee, as being a refund of the bankrupt's own money. In re Judson (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 702, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 775, affirmed (1912) 192 Fed. 834, 113 C. C. A. 158, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 704.

48. —— Indemnity and accident insurance.—Where an employer of labor holds a policy undertaking to indemnify him against loss sustained by accident to an employé, and pays a judgment recovered by an employé against him, and becomes bankrupt, his claim against the insurance company under the policy for reimbursement will pass to his trustee in bankruptcy as an asset of his estate. Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Moses (1901) 63 N. J. Eq. 260, 49 Atl. 720, 92 Am. St. Rep. 663. The trustee in bankruptcy is entitled, as against the bankrupt's widow, to the proceeds of a policy of insurance against permanent disability. In re Matschke (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 284, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 770.

49. Wife's personalty and choses in action.—Where the rule of the common law has not been changed or abrogated by statute, the personal property of the wife of a bankrupt, owned by her at the time of the marriage, and not excluded from the control of the husband by any trust, and also her choses in action reduced to his possession, are assets of his estate in bankruptcy. In re Boyd (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 199, Fed. Cas. No. 1,745; In re Grant (C. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 5,693; Butler v. Merchants' Ins. Co. (1845) 8 Ala. 146; Gayle v. Randall (1882) 71 Ala. 469; Smith v. Chandler (1855) 3 Gray (Mass.) 392; In re Hammond (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 845. But courts of equity have always recognized the wife's right to a settlement—that is, to an adequate provision for her support to be made out of her own property—and have enforced it whenever it became necessary for the husband to resort to chancery in order to reach her property or rights of action, and courts of bankruptcy will take the same course. Clark v. Hezekiah (D. C. 1885) 24 Fed. 663; In re Brandt (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 1,811; In re Campbell (D. C. 1877) 17 N. B. R. 4, Fed. Cas. No. 2,348; Shaw v. Mitchell (D. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 12,722; Bell v. Bell (1847) 1 Ga. 637. Where the husband and wife were jointly prosecuting a suit in respect to a chose in action of the wife, and during its pendency the husband is adjudged bankrupt, his trustee should join with the wife in the further conduct of the suit, and his recovery therein will inure to the benefit of the husband's creditors. In re Boyd (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 199, Fed. Cas. No. 1,745.

But the trustee is not entitled to a chose in action of the bankrupt's wife, where there is nothing to show that the bankrupt ever asserted his marital right thereto or made any attempt to reduce it to his possession. Wickham v. Valle (C. C. 1875) 11 N. B. R. 83, Fed. Cas. No. 17,613; In re Snow (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 13,142; Shay v. Sessaman (1849) 10 Pa. 432. And merely including it in his schedule of assets filed in the bankruptcy proceedings is not such a reduction to possession as to give his trustee or creditors a claim upon it. Poor v. Hazleton (1844) 15 N. H. 564. A legacy to the bankrupt's wife, dependent on her surviving another person, is a mere possibility and does not pass to the husband's trustee. Krumbaar v. Burt (C. C. 1809) Fed. Cas. No. 7,944.

Where the wife's separate property is secured to her by statute, the husband's trustee in bankruptcy has no claim to any personal property or chose in action acquired and owned by her before the marriage, such, for instance, as stock in a corporation. Bryan v. Sturgis Nat. Bank (1905) 40 Tex. Civ. App. 307, 90 S. W. 704. And the fact that the wife allows her husband to have and use her money in his own business indefinitely does not prevent her from reclaiming it, as against other creditors, in his subsequent bankruptcy. Van Kleeck v. Miller (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 484, Fed. Cas. No. 16,860; In re Westervelt (D. C. 1880) Fed. Cas. No. 17,445a; Shippen's Appeal (1876) 80 Pa. 391, 15 N. B. R. 553. But see Keating v. Keefer (C. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 133, Fed. Cas. No. 7,635. But this is not so if the statutory law of the state expressly precludes her from asserting ownership as against creditors. In re Hemstreet (D. C. 1903) 139 Fed. 958, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 823. Or if such law raises a presumption that a gift of the money was intended. Teter v. Viquesney (1910) 179 Fed. 655, 103 C. C. A. 213, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 242. The property or profits which the husband may have accumulated in business transactions, using his wife's money as capital, but adding his own skill and energy, constitute his own assets and not hers, and vest in his trustee. Muirhead v. Aldridge (C. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 249, Fed. Cas. No. 9,904.

Either money or other property given by a man to his wife, at a time when he is solvent and entertains no fraudulent purpose, passes out of his ownership into hers, and cannot be reclaimed for the benefit of his creditors when he afterwards becomes insolvent and bankrupt. In re Brandt (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 1,811; In re Ludlow (D. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 8,599. Although it is a general rule that money saved by a wife out of an allowance made by her husband for the expenses of the household belongs to him and not to her, yet where the wife, during the twelve years of her marriage, managed, by doing her own work, to save from the allowance a considerable sum, which she deposited in bank in her own name, besides on different occasions expending considerable sums, which fact was probably known to her husband, the presumption is that he intended such savings as a gift to her; and where he was solvent at all times until his death, the trustee in bankruptcy of the surviving partner of a firm of which he had been a member, on its bankruptcy, after his death, cannot claim such money. In re Simon (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 102, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 616.

50. Acquisitions of minor children.—The property of minor children, accumulated by their sole exertions with their father's consent, and which he has not reduced to his own possession but which has always stood in their names, does not pass to his trustee in bankruptcy. Ex parte Tebbets (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 13,816. Where a father, although himself insolvent, has expressly emanicipated his minor son, the earnings of the latter, thenceforward and during the remainder of his minority, or property purchased with the same, do not belong to the father and cannot be claimed by his creditors as assets of his estate in bankruptcy. In re Dunavant (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 542, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 41.

51. Dower rights.—A woman's inchoate right of dower in the lands of her husband is not such property as will pass to and vest in her trustee in bankruptcy. Lucas v. Bennett (1876) 42 Iowa, 703. But when a wife's contingent interest in her husband's lands has been transformed into a vested right by the event of his death, she cannot then divest it by parol without consideration, as against her creditors, and consequently, if she has not parted with it prior to her bankruptcy, it will constitute an asset of her estate. Watterson's Appeal (1880) 95 Pa. 312.

52. Property of third persons in bankrupt's possession.—Property surrendered or turned over by a bankrupt to his trustee, which belongs to a third person, is not an asset of the estate in bankruptcy, but the trustee must take charge of it until it is reclaimed by the rightful owner, and cannot surrender it to any other person. In re Condon (1912) 198 Fed. 480, 117 C. C. A. 212, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 851; In re Cox (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 952, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 456; In re Thompson (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 556, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 64; In re Walsh Bros. (D. C. 1912) 195 Fed. 576, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 243; Cooper v. White (1856) 19 Ga. 554. This includes real property as to which the joint owners (one of whom became bankrupt) had previously effected a partition as between themselves by cross deeds. Ludvigh v. Umstadter (D. C. 1906) 148 Fed. 319, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 774. The trustee takes no title to cans in which a manufacturer's goods were shipped to the bankrupt retailer, where the latter was bound to return the cans and was charged a certain amount for each as a means of securing such return. In re Woodman (D. C. 1910) 186 Fed. 533. A claimant, which advanced money to bankrupt for purchase of cotton seed to be shipped to it, held entitled to reclaim seed remaining in storage and not shipped at time of bankruptcy, although an unknown part of it had been paid for by bankrupt. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Elliotte (1914) 218 Fed. 567, 134 C. C. A. 295. A check, sent by defendant to a bankrupt in order to assist the bankrupt in paying a check he had previously given to defendant, held not an asset of the bankrupt's estate which the trustee could enforce. Burnes v. Epstein (D. C. 1913) 201 Fed. 393. The trustee takes no title to personal property which was in the possession of the bankrupt under a contract of lease, although he may have had an option to buy it at a stated price, which he never exercised. McEwen v. Totten (C. C. A. 1908) 164 Fed. 837, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 336; In re Kay-Tee Film Exchange (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 140.

Property of a third person in the possession of the bankrupt must be reclaimed by the owner himself; the bankrupt cannot withhold any property actually in his possession and set up in defense to the trustee's demand for it that the title is in a stranger. In re Moses (D. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 845. But if money has been paid to the bankrupt by mistake, and he has turned it over to the person entitled to it, the trustee cannot maintain a suit to recover it back. Jackman v. Eau Claire Nat. Bank (1905) 125 Wis. 465, 104 N. W. 98, 115 Am. St. Rep. 955, affirmed Eau Claire Nat. Bank v. Jackman (1907) 204 U. S. 522, 27 Sup. Ct. 391, 51 L. Ed. 596.

53. —— Goods sold to bankrupt.—Where certain goods were sold to the bankrupt on open account, the title vested at once, and the relation of debtor and creditor was created, so that on bankruptcy intervening the seller was not entitled to rescind and reclaim. In re Caldwell Machinery Co. (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 428. Where goods sold prior to bankruptcy were shipped after election of trustee and not reclaimed seller held not entitled to full payment of the purchase price. In re Nicol (D. C. 1915) 221 Fed. 82. Where defendant, having a bill of sale conveying a right to cut timber from certain land, agreed to assign the same to the bankrupt, and delivered the bill of sale to it, such act was sufficient to transfer the title. Cullen v. Armstrong (D. C. 1913) 209 Fed. 704. The seller of property to a bankrupt may reclaim and recover the property when there has been no delivery of it of such a character as to pass title. In re Kingston Realty Co. (D. C. 1907) 157 Fed. 303, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 703; Kellogg-Mackey-Cameron Co. v. Curtice (1912) 162 Mo. App. 124, 144 S. W. 152. Where the bankrupt, on receipt of property which he had contracted to purchase, objected to its quantity and quality, and stored it separately, and refused to pay for it except at a reduced price, which had not been agreed to when he became bankrupt, title had not passed and the property was not a part of the estate in bankruptcy. In re Planett Mfg. Co. (C. C. A. 1907) 157 Fed. 916, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 729. The seller may reclaim the goods where the contract was for an absolute sale and payment of the price in cash was a condition precedent to the passing of title, and payment has not been made. Hauck v. Frey (D. C. 1916) 228 Fed. 779; Roth v. Smith (C. C. A. 1914) 215 Fed. 82; Southern Pine Co. v. Savannah Trust Co. (1905) 141 Fed. 802, 73 C. C. A. 60, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 618; In re Smith (D. C. 1903) 119 Fed. 1004, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 590; In re Burkle (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 766, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 542. This rule applies where payment has been tendered in a medium which the seller refused to accept, such as an uncertified check which is afterwards dishonored. In re Tracy (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 844; In re Selman Heating & Plumbing Co. (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 777. Under contract between automobile manufacturer and dealer, held, that there was no bona fide reservation of title to automobile parts, and that the manufacturer could not reclaim such parts from the dealer's trustee in bankruptcy. Flanders Motor Co. v. Reed (C. C. A. 1915) 220 Fed. 642, affirming judgment In re Harrington (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 542.

The fact that a merchant ships goods to a customer, but consigned to himself, is not conclusive proof of his assertion that he reserved title in himself for the purpose of a future scrutiny of the customer's financial condition, if there are other facts tending to show an actual sale and a resort to this equivocal method for the purpose of denying a sale in case of the customer's bankruptcy; there must be good faith, and no sinister design, in the transaction. In re Leeds Woolen Mills (D. C. 1904) 129 Fed. 922, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 136; In re Levin (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 886, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 446. See Grange Co. v. Farmers' Union & Milling Co. (1906) 3 Cal. App. 519, 86 Pac. 615.

54. —— Estoppel of bankrupt to assert title.—Bankrupts had agreed to build a locomotive engine for a railroad company. They notified the company that the engine was finished and dispatched, whereupon the price was paid. No such engine then existed, but two engines, either of which would answer the contract, were afterwards finished, and one of them was delivered to a third person before the bankruptcy. At the date of the bankruptcy, the other remained in the bankrupts' shop. It was held that the railroad company had a title to the engine as against the bankrupts and their trustee by estoppel. Ex parte Rockford, R. I. & St. L. R. Co. (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 50, Fed. Cas. No. 11,978. And see In re Cantelo Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1911) 185 Fed. 276, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 57; Lovell v. Isidore Newman & Son (C. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 534, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 660.

55. —— Remedies of owner.—When property in the possession of a bankrupt, but which belongs to a stranger, passes into the hands of the trustee in bankruptcy, the proper remedy of the owner, desiring to reclaim it, is to file his petition in the court of bankruptcy setting forth the facts and his claim, and the referee has authority summarily to call the parties in interest before him and to hear and determine the claim, and if it is admitted or established by proof, to make an order for the restoration of the property to the claimant. Mound Mines Co. v. Hawthorne (1909) 173 Fed. 882, 97 C. C. A. 394, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 242; In re Squier (D. C. 1908) 165 Fed. 515, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 346; In re Pierce (C. C. A. 1907) 157 Fed. 757, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 664; In re Schloerb (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 326, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 224; Keegan v. King (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 758, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 79; In re Anderson (D. C. 1885) 23 Fed. 482; In re Clark (C. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 410, Fed. Cas. No. 2,802; In re Havens (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 6,230. That claimant, having claim on open account and right to retake property, was described in petition to set aside order of sale as a creditor for the full amount, held not to prevent reclamation. In re Midland Motor Co. (1915) 224 Fed. 368, 140 C. C. A. 54. Where trustee in bankruptcy refused to surrender property in possession of bankrupt belonging to claimant, held, that he and the estate were liable for such of the property as subsequently disappeared, whether he was negligent or without fault. In re Reeves (D. C. 1915) 227 Fed. 711.

Property in the possession of a trustee in bankruptcy, but which belongs to a third person, cannot be taken from the trustee by the rightful owner on a writ of replevin. In re Schloerb (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 326, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 224; In re Clark (C. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 410, Fed. Cas. No. 2,802; Erb v. Perkins (1877) 32 Ark. 428. Compare Leighton v. Harwood (1872) 111 Mass. 67, 15 Am. Rep. 4, 12 N. B. R. 360. And see Kennedy v. Strong (1813) 10 Johns (N. Y.) 289. Nor by a suit in a state court against the trustee to establish his title and restrain the trustee from selling the property. Keegan v. King (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 758, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 79. See In re Litchfield (D. C. 1882) 13 Fed. 863. Nor by an attempted exercise of the right of stoppage in transitu. In re Allen (D. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 879, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 574. Property in the possession of the trustee is not liable to be levied on and taken in execution by a sheriff at the suit of a creditor of the person who claims title thereto as against the bankrupt. In re Clark (C. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 410, Fed. Cas. No. 2,802. See Hill v. Fleming (1869) 39 Ga. 662. Certificates of deposit, as to which prima facie showing of individual ownership by officer of bankrupt corporation was made, held not to be impounded, so as to be available to satisfy judgment which might be obtained against the officer by the trustee. In re McGinley (1915) 219 Fed. 159, 135 C. C. A. 57.

56. —— Laches of claimant.—Where certain stocks which had been pledged by a bankrupt firm of brokers as collateral, some of which they held for customers under various arrangements, were released and turned over to their receiver, and an omnibus notice was published requiring all claimants to any of such stocks to file their claims by a stated time or they would be barred, the court is not required to consider a claim filed more than two years after the expiration of such time, in the absence of allegation and proof that the claimant did not have actual knowledge of the notice. In re Ennis (1912) 198 Fed. 381, 117 C. C. A. 257.

57. Property held by bankrupt as trustee.—Property held by a bankrupt by a mere naked legal title, and purely in trust for another, is no part of his estate in bankruptcy and does not pass to his trustee. Lowell v. International Trust Co. (1907). 158 Fed. 781, 86 C. C. A. 137, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 853; In re Coffin (1907) 152 Fed. 381, 81 C. C. A. 507, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 127; Clark v. Wilson (1876) 53 Miss. 119, 16 N. B. R. 356; Welch v. Polley (1904) 177 N. Y. 117, 69 N. E. 279; Butler v. Merchants' Ins. Co. (1848) 14 Ala. 777; Starr v. Keefer (1873) 1 MacArthur (D. C.) 166; Pickerell v. Zell (1875) 2 MacArthur (D. C.) 65; Pugh v. Holliday (1854) 3 Ohio St. 284; Bailey v. Wood (1912) 211 Mass. 37, 97 N. E. 902, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 950; Blin v. Pierce (1847) 20 Vt. 25; Shryock v. Waggoner (1857) 28 Pa. 430; Ludwig v. Highley (1847) 5 Pa. 132. Compare Carr v. Gale (C. C. 1847) Fed. Cas. No. 2,435. See Hatch v. Curtin (1907) 154 Fed. 791, 83 C. C. A. 495, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 82. In cases where the trust has been virtually terminated by such acts or conduct on the part of the cestui que trust as would estop him to claim any benefit from it, the estoppel is equally available to the trustee in bankruptcy as it would have been to the bankrupt himself. In re Coffin (D. C. 1906) 146 Fed. 181, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 682. The trustee in bankruptcy will have the right to claim for the benefit of creditors any interest which the bankrupt himself had in the subject of the trust, whether by way of compensation for his services or as a part owner or distributee. Appling v. Bailey (1870) 44 Ala. 333; Rankin v. Bancroft (1885) 114 Ill. 441, 3 N. E. 97. See Clark v. Snelling (C. C. A. 1913) 205 Fed. 240, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 50.

Where merchandise is by mistake delivered to a factor to whom it was not consigned, and is sold by a warehouseman and the proceeds deposited in bank to the credit of the factor, the money is held in trust for the owner and does not pass to the factor's trustee in bankruptcy. In re Woods & Malone (D. C. 1903) 121 Fed. 599, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 615. So, where a husband has, by fraud or mistake, been invested with the title to land inherited by his wife, equity will treat him as trustee of the wife, and a court of bankruptcy will not subject the land to the claims of the husband's creditors. In re Anderson (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 351. Where a bankrupt held certain real property as trustee for his mother at the time of bankruptcy, and, holding the legal title, might have transferred the same to a bona fide purchaser, such title passed to the trustee in bankruptcy, but, so far as such section was concerned, the trustee took no different title than the bankrupt. Clark v. Snelling (1913) 205 Fed. 240, 123 C. C. A. 430, affirming judgment In re Snelling (D. C. 1912) 202 Fed. 259. Where a bankrupt's mother fraudulently conveyed property to him, and he used it to purchase a hotel, the mother's transfer having been set aside as fraudulent against her creditors, and the hotel property having been sold in bankruptcy proceedings against the son, the mother's creditor held entitled to receive the balance of the proceeds, after satisfying a lien of the landlord on the furniture, fixtures, etc., and of a bank on the leasehold. In re Benz (1914) 218 Fed. 50, 134 C. C. A. 26. Land which the bankrupt holds upon an implied trust for another is not an asset of his estate, although no declaration of trust has been made or recorded. Low v. Welch (1885) 139 Mass. 33, 29 N. E. 216. Compare Putnam v. Southworth (1908) 197 Mass. 270, 83 N. E. 887. Although one who has given a bond to convey becomes, in equity, a trustee for the purchaser, yet if he has not received the whole of the purchase money, he is not a mere naked trustee, and his interest in the property will pass to his trustee in bankruptcy. Swepson v. Rouse (1871) 65 N. C. 34, 6 Am. Rep. 735. The bankruptcy of a vendor under a parol contract of sale, followed by the exclusive possession by the purchaser for ten years under a claim of right under the contract, does not give the trustee the rights of a judgment creditor who has levied without notice, but he will be compelled to convey to the purchaser. In re Snelling (D. C. 1912) 202 Fed. 259.

58. —— Claims to, and identification of, trust funds.—If trust funds have been intermingled with the general funds of the trustee so as to render their identification impossible, still a court of bankruptcy will follow them and decree restitution to the cestui que trust, if the unlawful appropriation of them resulted in increasing the assets of the bankrupt as they come into his trustee's possession, as where the trust money is mingled with the bankrupt's own by being deposited in his name in bank, but the amount of the deposit at all times equals or exceeds the amount of the trust fund. In re M. E. Dunn & Co. (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 212, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 127; In re Royea's Estate (D. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 182, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 141; In re Woods & Malone (D. C. 1903) 121 Fed. 599, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 615; In re A. O. Brown & Co. (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 432; In re City Bank of Dowagiac (D. C. 1910) 186 Fed. 250, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 236; Ex parte Hobbs (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 495, Fed. Cas. No. 6,549. CONTRA, Hosmer v. Jewett (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 6,713; Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank v. First Nat. Bank (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 858; In re Vetterlein (D. C. 1886) 26 Fed. 145; In re Richard (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 792; In re Janeway (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 100, Fed. Cas. No. 7,208. See Hotchkiss v. National City Bank (D. C. 1911) 200 Fed. 287. To charge a bankrupt estate with liability for a trust fund, it must be clearly traced. In re Leigh (D. C. 1913) 208 Fed. 486. Persons seeking to recover trust funds in the possession of the trustee's trustee in bankruptcy must prove title, and if the identification is doubtful that doubt must be resolved in favor of the trustee in bankruptcy. Schuyler v. Littlefield (1914) 34 S. Ct. 466, 232 U. S. 707, 58 L. Ed. 806, affirming decrees In re Brown (1912) 193 Fed. 24, 113 C. C. A. 348, and In re A. O. Brown & Co. (1912) 193 Fed. 30, 113 C. C. A. 354. In order to trace an alleged trust fund into the hands of the bankrupts' trustee and recover same, it is insufficient to show that it went in a general way to swell the bankrupts' entire estate, but complainants are bound to trace the money to the trustee's possession or to show that it went into or paid for property of which the trustee acquired possession from the bankrupts. Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne v. Lovell (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 337.

Where a trustee has intermingled trust funds with his own and becomes bankrupt, if, before the date of the bankruptcy so much of the money on deposit is withdrawn as to leave less in bank than the amount of the trust fund, the cestui que trust cannot establish a lien on the whole or any part of the balance. In re Mulligan (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 715, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 8. And if the whole of the money is withdrawn from the bank, his right to reclaim his specific fupds will not be restored by the subsequent deposit of other money obtained from other sources to the credit of the account. In re M. E. Dunn & Co. (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 212, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 127. Where the bankrupt took the trust funds and added some of his own money and placed the sum in the hands of a broker for investment in stocks, and most of it was lost, the cestui que trust cannot claim a lien on any of the stocks remaining in the hands of the broker and recovered by the trustee in bankruptcy, unless he can prove that they were bought with his money and not with that of the bankrupt. In re Mulligan (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 715, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 8.

59. —— Trust receipt to secure advances.—Where a bank (or an individual) advances money to a merchant to enable him to buy or import a stock of goods, and the merchant executes a trust receipt, by which he agrees to hold the goods in trust for the one so advancing the funds and as the latter's property, but with liberty to sell the same in the course of trade, and binding him to pay over the proceeds of such sales as fast as received until the advances are repaid, the title to the goods, before such repayment, does not vest in the merchant in such sense that they will be assets of his estate in bankruptcy, but the cestui que trust will be entitled to reclaim the goods from the trustee in bankruptcy, or their proceeds if sold. In re Cattus (1910) 183 Fed. 733, 106 C. C. A. 171, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 348; Charavay & Bodvin v. York Silk Mfg. Co. (C. C. 1909) 170 Fed. 819; In re E. Reboulin Fils & Co. (D. C. 1908) 165 Fed. 245, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 296; In re Emerson, Marlow & Co. (1912) 199 Fed. 99, 117 C. C. A. 639, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 179. And the same rule is applied where, instead of an advance of cash, the goods are directly supplied to the merchant by a manufacturer or wholesaler, under the same form of trust receipt. Walter A. Wood Co. v. Eubanks (1909) 169 Fed. 929, 95 C. C. A. 273, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 307; Corbitt Buggy Co. v. Ricaud (1909) 169 Fed. 935, 95 C. C. A. 279, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 316; In re J. V. Lindsley & Co. (D. C. 1910) 185 Fed. 684, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 239; Webster v. Stearns (1910) 75 N. H. 451, 75 Atl. 983. But see Ungewitter v. Von Sachs (D. C. 1870) 3 N. B. R. 723, Fed. Cas. No. 14,343. On bankruptcy of importers under letters of credit, bankers furnishing credit, who were unable to trace proceeds of sales into trustee's hands, held not entitled to an equal amount from the general estate. In re K. Marks & Co. (1915) 222 Fed. 52, 137 C. C. A. 590.

60. —— Deposits in bank.—The relation between a bank and a depositor is simply that of debtor and creditor, and in the absence of any agreement to the contrary, deposits are not special but become the property of the bank, which does not occupy the position of a trustee, so that upon its bankruptcy, an ordinary depositor cannot claim to be repaid the amount of his balance but must take his place with all other creditors. In re Smith (D. C. 1877) 15 N. B. R. 459, Fed. Cas. No. 12,990; Bank of Republic v. Millard (1869) 10 Wall. 152, 19 L. Ed. 897; Claflin Co. v. Eason, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 360.

The creditor claimed to have deposited 72 $20 gold pieces, as a special deposit, with the bankrupt, who was a banker. It was alleged that this money was sewed up in a belt, with the owner's name attached, and the bankrupt was directed to keep it, deliverable only to the owner or to some person specially authorized by him to receive it. The creditor petitioned to have his debt paid in full out of the general assets. The trustee refused to pay, stating that no such belt was found, and that he was not able to say whether these particular gold coins were among the gold received as part of the bankrupt's assets. It was held that the creditor could only share pro rata with the other creditors and was not entitled to payment in full. In re King, 9 N. B. R. 140.

The mere fact that money is deposited for a specific purpose, as, to pay a mortgage note when presented, does not stamp it as a trust fund, or make the banker a fiduciary. In re Hosie (D. C. 1873) 7 N. B. R. 601, Fed. Cas. No. 6,-711. And those who deposit money in a bank after it has suspended payment and then resumed business, on the strength of an advertisement by the bank that it will keep the old and new accounts separate, are not entitled to a preference on its subsequent bankruptcy. In re Mutual Building Fund Society & Dollar Sav. Bank (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 9,976. A creditor of a bank which collects money for him and fails to pay it over has no priority over other creditors in the bankruptcy of the bank. Bank of Commerce v. Russell (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 884. A check or note deposited with a bank for collection, and against which the depositor is not allowed to draw until payment, does not become the property of the bank, and may be reclaimed from its trustee in bankruptcy. In re Havens (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 6,230. But not so where the note or check is at once passed to the credit of the depositor's general account, especially if the account was then overdrawn. In re Bank of Madison (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 890. Where one bank agrees to become the agent of another, for clearing house purposes, and in that capacity agrees to pay all the checks of the latter which come to it through the clearing house, and in pursuance of this arrangement the latter bank sends funds to the former from time to time, which are passed to its credit but not kept separate, the relation of the two banks is simply that of debtor and creditor, and the funds cannot be considered as clothed with a trust, but will, on failure of the bank receiving them, pass to its trustee. Phelan v. Iron Mountain Bank (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 11,069.

61. Property held by bankrupt as agent or bailee.—Property in the possession of a bankrupt, which he holds only as agent or bailee for another, does not pass to the trustee in bankruptcy. L. C. Smith & Bro. Typewriter Co. v. Alleman (1912) 199 Fed. 1, 117 C. C. A. 577, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 699; In re Marx Tailoring Co. (D. C. 1912) 196 Fed. 243, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 147; In re Wright-Dana Hardware Co. (C. C. A. 1914) 211 Fed. 908. This rule applies to money received by an attorney for his client, and which he kept separate and distinct from his own funds. Schoolfield's Adm'r v. Rudd (1848) 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 291. And to bonds or stocks or other securities in the hands of a broker for sale on account of his customer, or the proceeds of such sales if capable of identification. Hamilton v. National Loan Bank (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 5,987; Voight v. Lewis (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 16,-989. And to raw material or unfinished products placed in the hands of the bankrupt for manufacture or completion or for repairs. In re Susquehanna Roofing Co. (D. C. 1909) 173 Fed. 150, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 5; Safford v. Burgess (C. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 402, Fed. Cas. No. 12,213; In re Oberhoffer (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 546, Fed. Cas. No. 10,396; Stow v. Yarwood (1858) 20 Ill. 497. But see In re Sassman (D. C. 1909) 167 Fed. 419, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 893; Chisholm v. Eagle Ore Sampling Co. (1906) 144 Fed. 670, 75 C. C. A. 472, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 423. Compare In re MacDonald (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 463, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 797. This rule applies also to grain stored with a warehouseman, provided it is kept separate or in such a manner as to be capable of identification or separation. Adams v. Meyers (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 62. And a right of action upon a contract made by the bankrupt in his own name, but as agent for an undisclosed principal, in which the bankrupt has no beneficial interest, does not vest in his trustee. Rhoades v. Blackiston (1871) 106 Mass. 334. Where an agent agrees to be liable to his principal for any damage by fire to the latter's property in his hands, the money due from an insurance company to the agent on account of loss under its policy, is not a trust fund for the benefit of the principal, but a debt due to the agent, which becomes a part of his general estate in bankruptcy. David Bradley Co. v. Brown (1907) 78 Neb. 836, 112 N. W. 331, 13 L. R. A. (N. S.) 152, 126 Am. St. Rep. 647.

62. —— Goods consigned to bankrupt for sale.—A contract by which goods are consigned to a factor or agent, to be sold for the account of the consignor, and to remain his property until sold, the agent to account for the proceeds of sales, is a valid contract, and constitutes a bailment and not a conditional sale, and, on the bankruptcy of the factor or agent, the principal is entitled to reclaim from the trustee in bankruptcy all of the goods remaining unsold and the proceeds of any sold by the trustee. General Electric Co. v. Brower (1915) 221 Fed. 597, 137 C. C. A. 321; In re Reynolds (D. C. 1912) 203 Fed. 162; In re Chalmers (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 143; In re Caldwell Machinery Co. (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 428; Thomas v. Field-Brundage Co. (C. C. A. 1914) 215 Fed. 891; In re Reeves (D. C. 1915) 227 Fed. 711; In re National Home & Hotel Supply Co. (D. C. 1915) 226 Fed. 840; In re Marx Tailoring Co. (D. C. 1912) 196 Fed. 243, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 147; In re Smith (D. C. 1911) 192 Fed. 574, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 647; In re Monongahela Distillery Co. (D. C. 1910) 186 Fed. 220; In re Fabian (D. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 949, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 488; In re Smith & Nixon Piano Co. (1906) 149 Fed. 111, 79 C. C. A. 53, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 636; Franklin v. Stoughton Wagon Co. (1909) 168 Fed. 857, 94 C. C. A. 269, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 63; Walter A. Wood Mowing & Reaping Mach. Co. v. Vanstory (1909) 171

Fed. 375, 96 C. C. A. 331, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 740; In re Galt (1903) 120 Fed. 64, 56 C. C. A. 470, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 575; In re Pierce (C. C. A. 1907) 157 Fed. 757, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 664; In re Bailey (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 628, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 876; Price v. Ralston (Pa. 1790) 2 Dall. 60, 1 L. Ed. 289, 1 Am. Dec. 260. The rule is otherwise if such a contract of consignment for sale is made fraudulent and void as to creditors by any provision of the local statute. Gallaspy v. International Harvester Co. (Miss. 1915) 67 South. 904; Chesapeake Shoe Co. v. Seldner (1903) 122 Fed. 593, 58 C. C. A. 261, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 466.

63. —— Proceeds of goods already sold.—Where goods are consigned to a factor or agent for sale, who afterwards becomes bankrupt, the consignor is entitled to the possession and benefit of any notes, checks, or specific uncollected debts for goods of his sold prior to the bankruptcy. In re McGehee (D. C. 1909) 166 Fed. 928, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 656; Hutchinson v. Reed (N. Y. 1840) 1 Hoff. Ch. 316; In re Taft (1904) 133 Fed. 511, 66 C. C. A. 385, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 417. And to the cash proceeds of any sale which can be traced and specifically distinguished from the general mass of the agent's property. In re Bank of Madison (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 890; Nutter v. Wheeler (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 10,384. If the proceeds of such sales of the principal's goods have swelled the funds coming to the trustee in bankruptcy, and such funds have at all times equalled or exceeded the amount due to the principal, equity will follow the goods into their proceeds and decree his reimbursement. In re Northrup (D. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 763, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 335; In re Kurtz (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 992, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 129. Proceeds of flour belonging to claimants and sold by the bankrupts on commission held not recoverable as a preferred claim from the bankrupts' estate, where the money was entirely dissipated in paying the bankrupts' debts and running expenses before adjudication. In re Larkin & Metcalf (D. C. 1912) 202 Fed. 572.

64. —— Transaction as disguise for sale on credit.—Where the transaction is really a sale of goods on credit to the bankrupt, but the device of a consignment of the goods to the bankrupt as an agent or factor is resorted to for the purpose of protecting the seller in case of the buyer's bankruptcy, the seller will not be allowed to reclaim goods unsold or the proceeds of any sales. In re Cozatsky (D. C. 1914) 216 Fed. 920; In re Carpenter (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 831, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 147; In re Rabenau (D. C. 1902) 118 Fed. 471, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 180; In re Landsberger (D. C. 1910) 177 Fed. 443, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 107; In re Linforth (C. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 435, Fed. Cas. No. 8,369; In re A. Gaglione & Son (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 81, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 694.

To make out a case of agency contract for sale, it must appear that the goods were at all times subject to the owner's control, both as to the selling price and the manner in which the goods should be sold, that there was a strict accounting between the bankrupt and the owner at the periods called for in the contract, giving the names of purchasers and all other details of sales, and, if sales were made otherwise than for cash, that the notes and accounts had either been forwarded to the owner or accounted for by the bankrupt, and held subject to the owner's orders, to be forwarded on demand. In re Agnew (D. C. 1909) 178 Fed. 478, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 360. Where the consignee is at liberty to sell the goods at any price and on any terms he pleases, accounting at a fixed price to the consignor, and is to pay taxes and insurance and is responsible for the loss of the goods, and is to pay for such as remain unsold at a fixed time, he is not an agent or factor, but the contract is one of conditional sale. In re Rabenau (D. C. 1902) 118 Fed. 471, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 180; In re Wells (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 752, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 419. If the contract contains no provisions for commissions on sales, nor for the return of goods under any circumstances, and they are billed as sold, it is a sale on credit and not a consignment for sale. In re Martin-Vernon Music Co. (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 983, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 276. If the consignee is made liable to buy and pay for all of the goods which may remain unsold at a given time, it is a sale and not a contract of factorage. Parlett v. Blake (1911) 188 Fed. 200, 110 C. C. A. 72, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 25. An agreement between woolen manufacturers and a corporation representing a firm of dealers in woolens held a bailment in the nature of a consignment arrangement with the net proceeds to be accounted for by the consignor and with a right to return the unsold goods, which agreement is good as against creditors in the event of the bankruptcy of the firm. Ludvigh v. American Woolen Co. of New York (1913) 34 Sup. Ct. 161, 231 U. S. 522, 58 L. Ed. 345, affirming decree (1911) 188 Fed. 30, 110 C. C. A. 180. Where flour was shipped to the bankrupts for sale on commission, and they never promised to pay or assume any personal responsibility therefor, the flour before sale and the proceeds thereafter remained the property of the claimants. In re Larkin & Metcalf (D. C. 1912) 202 Fed. 572. Where a merchant is charged a fixed price for the goods sent to him, including the cases and bottles in which they are contained, but allowed a "rebate" for empty cases and bottles returned, the contract is not one of bailment as to the cases and bottles, but of sale and return, and such as remain in his hands at the time of his bankruptcy are assets of his estate. In re Allen (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 172, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 722.

65. Money or collateral in hands of bankrupt as stockbroker.—Where a stockbroker has in his possession, at the time of his bankruptcy, certificates of stock placed in his hands by a customer but not yet sold, or stock bought for a customer but not yet delivered to him, he holds the same as an agent or bailee, and the stock may be reclaimed by the owner from his trustee in bankruptcy. In re J. F. Pierson, Jr., & Co. (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 889; In re James Carothers & Co. (D. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 501. And if the bankrupt had a larger quantity of that particular stock on hand at the time of his failure, it will be presumed that part of it was the stock belonging to such customer. In re Graff (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 343, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 744; Gorman v. Littlefield (1908) 229 U. S. 19, 33 Sup. Ct. 690, 57 L. Ed. 1047, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 266. And see Richardson v. Shaw (1908) 209 U. S. 365, 28 Sup. Ct. 512, 52 L. Ed. 835, 14 Ann. Cas. 981, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 717; Sexton v. Kessler & Co. (1912) 225 U. S. 90, 32 Sup. Ct. 657, 56 L. Ed. 995, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 85. Where stockbrokers who had purchased stock for customers and who had charged themselves on their books with the stock as "long" became bankrupts, each customer for that kind of stock was entitled to a pro rata share of the stock in the brokers' possession at the time of the bankruptcy. In re H. B. Hollins & Co. (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 317.

But if a broker has converted stock purchased for a customer, other stock of the same kind, found in his possession at the time of his bankruptcy and bought by him after the conversion cannot be claimed by the customer, to the exclusion of general creditors, unless he can show that the proceeds of his own converted stock went to its purchase. In re Brown (1911) 184 Fed. 454, 106 C. C. A. 536. Compare In re A. O. Brown & Co. (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 254, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 659. Or unless there has been some express act on the part of the broker setting it apart for him. In re A. O. Brown & Co. (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 440. Where a bankrupt stockbroker did not have in his possession free and clear stock for all customers, none of them could reclaim any part of the stock on hand or any equity in such loans as had among their collateral the remaining stock. In re J. F. Pierson, Jr., & Co. (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 889; In re Hollins (1914) 219 Fed. 544, 135 C. C. A. 312. Customers of bankrupt stockbrokers were only general creditors, except so far as they might be able to trace and identify the stock purchased for them by the brokers. In re Hollins (1914) 219 Fed. 544, 135 C. C. A. 312. A customer of a bankrupt stockbroker, unable to trace his stock by certificate number into a loan, held not entitled to reclaim any stock. In re J. F. Pierson, Jr., & Co. (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 889.

A deposit of securities with a broker by a customer as margin, and as security against losses in stock transactions, under an agreement which does not contemplate a sale or disposition of such securities by the broker except in the event of losses, constitutes a pledge and does not create the relation of debtor and creditor, and where the securities have not been sold by the broker to meet marginal requirements prior to his bankruptcy, they may be recovered by the pledgor from the bankrupt's trustee. In re Jacob Berry & Co. (1906) 149 Fed. 176, 79 C. C. A. 124, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 467, affirmed Thomas v. Taggart (1908) 209 U. S. 385, 28 Sup. Ct. 519, 52 L. Ed. 845, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 710; United Nat. Bank v. Tappan (1911) 33 R. I. 1, 79 Atl. 946; In re T. A. McIntyre & Co. (C. C. A. 1910) 181 Fed. 955, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 626. And the court should not require him to make good losses for which he would have been liable, if the stocks pretended to have been bought for him had really been bought and carried, as a condition to his recovery of the securities deposited as collateral. In re Ennis (1901) 187 Fed. 726, 109 C. C. A. 474. But a claimant who remitted money to brokers to purchase stocks, which were bought and paid for by the brokers but afterwards converted to their own use, cannot rescind the whole transaction and recover the money so remitted, from the trustee in bankruptcy of the brokers, as a trust fund, although he may follow the proceeds of the stocks, if sold by the brokers, and if such proceeds can be traced into the hands of the trustee. In re Brown (1910) 175 Fed. 769, 99 C. C. A. 345, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 423; In re A. O. Brown & Co. (D. C. 1910) 185 Fed. 972. Where the customer does not remit to the broker the entire price of the stock to be bought for him, but a margin, and the broker buys and carries the stock, the latter holds it as a pledgee, and on his bankruptcy the customer is entitled to the stock on payment of the amount due thereon, or to the surplus realized from its sale by the trustee, to the exclusion of the general creditors. Kean v. Dickinson (1907) 152 Fed. 1022, 82 C. C. A. 667; In re Bolling (D. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 786, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 399.

Where a broker, having in his possession stock bought for a customer and paid for, or stock placed in his hands as security for a customer's account, but without authority to use or hypothecate the same, pledges it as collateral security for his own debt to a third person, the pledgee has a lien on the stock for repayment of his advances, but if his debt is satisfied from other sources and the stock surrendered to the broker's trustee in bankruptcy, the customer may then reclaim it, or if the stock remains in the hands of the pledgee, the customer may be subrogated to the rights of the bankrupt and so recover it. In re T. A. McIntyre & Co. (1911) 189 Fed. 46, 110 C. C. A. 610, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 771; In re Ennis (1911) 187 Fed. 720, 109 C. C. A. 468; In re A. O. Brown & Co. (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 861, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 800; In re Meadows, Williams & Co. (D. C. 1909) 173 Fed. 694, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 124. But the claimant must be able to trace his own stock, or to show, at least with a reasonable degree of certainty, that some portion of the stock in the trustee's hands is the identical stock which belonged to him and which the bankrupt wrongfully hypothecated, or represents its proceeds. In re Ennis (1911) 187 Fed. 728, 109 C. C. A. 476; In re T. A. McIntyre & Co. (C. C. A. 1910) 181 Fed. 960, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 93.

Where the broker has sold his customer's securities, or they have been sold by a third person to whom he pledged them, the customer may still claim full reimbursement out of the proceeds if he can trace his money into a particular fund, and this can be done—on the doctrine of the commingling of funds—if he can show that the bankrupt broker's balance in bank, or the amount due to him from the party to whom the customer's stock was sold or pledged, has been, at all times since the conversion, equal to or greater than the amount realized on the sale of the customer's securities. In re Swift (D. C. 1901) 108 Fed. 212; In re Graff (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 343, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 744; In re A. O. Brown & Co. (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 432; In re Brown (C. C. A. 1910) 185 Fed. 766; In re James Carothers & Co. (D. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 501. Where a customer directed the broker to sell certain stock on his account, and, on being advised that the sale had been made, delivered to the broker his certificate for the stock and received in exchange a check which proved to be worthless, and the broker's bankruptcy followed, and it was shown that the broker had made a sale of so many shares of the stock as directed by his customer, but had delivered stock of his own and received payment, held, that the customer had the right to recover the proceeds of his stock from the bankrupt's trustee, if they had not been dissipated, and if they had been, to rescind the delivery and reclaim his stock. In re A. O. Brown & Co. (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 442.

66. Property held under conditional sale.—Except in so far as the matter may be regulated by a local statute, the rule is that property in the possession of a bankrupt under a contract of conditional sale, the condition not having been performed (as, where he bought under a written contract stipulating that the title should remain in the vendor until the goods were fully paid for), does not vest in the trustee in bankruptcy, and he is not entitled to hold it as against the unpaid vendor. In re Remsen Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1915) 227 Fed. 207; Breakstone v. Buffalo Foundry & Machine Co. (1915) 167 App. Div. 62, 152 N. Y. Supp. 394; In re Wegman Piano Co. (D. C. 1915) 227 Fed. 128; In re White's Express Co. (C. C. A. 1914) 215 Fed. 894; Southern Hardware & Supply Co. v. Clark (1912) 201 Fed. 1, 119 C. C. A. 339; Davis v. Crompton (1907) 158 Fed. 735, 85 C. C. A. 633, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 53; In re Regealed Ice Co. (D. C. 1911) 191 Fed. 931; In re Gartman (D. C. 1911) 186 Fed. 349; In re Forse (D. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 212, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 134; In re C. K. Hutchins Co. (D. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 864, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 647; In re Pittsburgh Industrial Iron Works (D. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 151, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 221; In re Atlanta News Pub. Co. (D. C. 1907) 160 Fed. 519, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 193; Sprague Canning Mach. Co. v. Fuller (1908) 158 Fed. 588, 86 C. C. A. 46, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 157; Dunlop v. Mercer (C. C. A. 1907) 156 Fed. 545, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 361; In re McKay, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 133; In re Gregg (D. C. 1868) 3 N. B. R. 529, Fed. Cas. No. 5,796; In re Pusey (D. C. 1871) 6 N. B. R. 40, Fed. Cas. No. 11,477; Ex parte General Assignee (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 5,306; Rogers v. Whitehouse (1880) 71 Me. 222; Andre v. Murray (Ind. 1913) 101 N. E. 81. But compare In re Garcewich (1902) 115 Fed. 87, 53 C. C. A. 510, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 149; In re Galt (D. C. 1903) 120 Fed. 443, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 682. And see Ex parte Flannagans (D. C. 1875) 12 N. B. R. 230, Fed. Cas. No. 4,855. Modification of the terms of payment for a machine sold under a conditional sale contract, may not be a waiver of the reservation of title, so as to prevent the seller, on the buyer's bankruptcy, from enforcing the condition. Colonial Trust Co. v. Thorpe (1912) 194 Fed. 390, 114 C. C. A. 308, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 451. A seller of property to a bankrupt by a contract of conditional sale, which provided that it should be insured for his benefit, will be entitled to the proceeds of the insurance where the property was burned within four months prior to the bankruptcy, although the bankrupt insured in his own name. In re Zitron (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 79, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 172. The purchase by a bankrupt of a plant containing two heavy drop forges held by its vendor under a duly recorded conditional sale contract providing that the forges should remain personalty and the property of the seller until paid for, and the substitution of bankrupt for its vendor by means of a similar contract, held not to change the status of the property as between the seller and the bankrupt and its creditors. In re Superior Drop Forge & Mfg Co. (D. C. 1913) 208 Fed. 813.

If the bankrupt, receiving property under a contract of conditional sale of it to him, has paid a part of the price, the vendor has a good and valid lien upon it for the unpaid balance of the purchase money, which the trustee in bankruptcy must recognize. Southern Hardware & Supply Co. v. Clark (C. C. A. 1912) 201 Fed. 1. And if it is likely to result in benefit to the estate, the trustee may pay such balance, and thereby become invested with full title to the property. In re Lyon (D. C. 1872) 7 N. B. R. 182, Fed. Cas. No. 8,644. Or the trustee may be ordered to sell the property at public auction, and out of the proceeds pay to the vendor the balance due him on the contract. In re Azule Natural Seltzer Water Co. (1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 639; Allen v. Whittemore (D. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 189, Fed. Cas. No. 241. If the property in question is valuable in the use (such as machinery) and was to have been paid for in monthly installments called "rent," the vendor cannot recover such contract rentals for the time the property remained in the possession of the trustee pending the determination of his rights, but if the trustee used the property without his consent, he may recover the reasonable value of such use. In re Daterson Pub. Co. (1911) 188 Fed. 64, 110 C. C. A. 134, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 582. See Haskell v. Merrill (1901) 179 Mass. 120, 60 N. E. 485.

The preliminary question whether the contract between the vendor and the bankrupt was one of conditional sale, absolute sale, sale and return, or lease or bailment, is a question of local law, and is to be determined in accordance with the decisions of the highest court of the state. Mishawaka Woolen Mfg. Co. v. Westveer (1911) 191 Fed. 465, 112 C. C. A. 109, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 345. citing Thompson v. Fairbanks (1905) 196 U. S. 516, 25 Sup. Ct. 306, 49 L. Ed. 577, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 437; York Mfg. Co. v. Cassell (1906) 201 U. S. 344, 26 Sup. Ct. 481, 50 L. Ed. 782, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 633; Bryant v. Swofford (1909) 214 U. S. 279, 29 Sup. Ct. 614, 53 L. Ed. 997, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 111; Dodge v. Norlin (1904) 133 Fed. 363, 66 C. C. A. 425, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 176; In re E. M. Newton & Co. (1907) 153 Fed. 841, 83 C. C. A. 23, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 567; Bradley, Alderson & Co. v. McAfee (D. C. 1906) 149 Fed. 254, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 495; In re Butterwick (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 371, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 536. This is also true of the question of the validity of the contract, assuming it to be one of conditional sale. First Nat. Bank v. Guarantee Title & Trust Co. (1910) 178 Fed. 187, 101 C. C. A. 507, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 330; Davis v. Crompton (1907) 158 Fed. 735, 85 C. C. A. 633, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 53; In re Great Western Mfg. Co. (1907) 152 Fed. 123, 81 C. C. A. 341, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 259; In re Lutz (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 492, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 649; In re Osborn (C. C. A. 1912) 196 Fed. 257; In re Nelson (D. C. 1911) 191 Fed. 233, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 272; In re Dunn Hardware & Furniture Co. (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 719, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 147. Where a conditional sale contract provided for the delivery of goods in the Indian Territory, there being no local law therein inhibiting such contracts, the question whether the fact that they were furnished to the buyer for resale in the usual course of business invalidated the contract must be tested in bankruptcy proceedings against the buyer in accordance with the general law. In re Gray (D. C. 1908) 170 Fed. 638, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 375. Where a contract of conditional sale of personal property is made in one state, but provides for the delivery of the chattels in another state and their use there by the purchaser, it is to be governed, in a contest between the vendor and the trustee in bankruptcy of the vendee, by the law of the latter state, not the former. In re Legg (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 326; In re Gehris-Herbine Co. (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 502, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 470. If the contract was originally one of conditional sale, but the local law would make the reservation of title in the vendor ineffective as against creditors, it cannot be turned into a contract of bailment, or of lease, or of factorage, after the buyer has become insolvent or especially after he has been adjudged bankrupt. In re Poore (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 786, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 407; In re Martin-Vernon Music Co. (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 983, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 276; In re Rinker (D. C. 1909) 174 Fed. 490, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 62; In re Tweed (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 355, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 648.

67. —— Effect of state law as to filing or recording.—Where the law of the of the state requires a contract of conditional sale to be cast in the form of a chattel mortgage, or to be filed or recorded, in order to be good against creditors, if the vendor complies with such a provision, it will be effective to preserve his rights as against the purchaser's trustee in bankruptcy. In re Farmers' Co-operative Co. (D. C. 1913) 202 Fed. 1005, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 187;

Woods v. Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. (1911) 190 Fed. 935, 111 C. C. A. 569, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 172; In re Canuet Lumber Co. (D. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 340.

Prior to the amendatory act of 1910, many of the decisions held that a contract of conditional sale, which was void as to creditors for want of filing or recording under the laws of the state, would be equally void as against the purchaser's trustee in bankruptcy, so that the vendor could not reclaim the property. Augusta Grocery Co. v. Southern Moline Plow Co. (1914) 213 Fed. 786, 130 C. C. A. 444; In re Fitzhugh Hall Amusement Co. (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 169; In re M. L. B. Sturkey Co. (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 251; In re National Home & Hotel Supply Co. (D. C. 1915) 226 Fed. 840; Liquid Carbonic Co. v. Quick (1910) 182 Fed. 603, 105 C. C. A. 141, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 394; In re Faulkner (D. C. 1910) 181 Fed. 981, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 416; In re G. & K. Trunk Co. (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 1007, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 914; In re Penny & Anderson (D. C. 1909) 176 Fed. 141, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 115; In re Rinker (D. C. 1909) 174 Fed. 490, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 62; Chilberg v. Smith (1909) 174 Fed. 805, 98 C. C. A. 513; McElvain v. Hardesty (1909) 169 Fed. 31, 94 C. C. A. 399, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 320; In re Burke (D. C. 1909) 168 Fed. 994, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 69; In re Fish Bros. Wagon Co. (C. C. A. 1908) 164 Fed. 553, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 149; In re Burt (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 267, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 123; In re Perkins (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 237, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 134; In re George O. Hassam & Son (D. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 932, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 745; In re Franklin Lumber Co. (D. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 852, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 443; In re Tice (D. C. 1905) 139 Fed. 52, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 97; In re Poore (D. C. 1905) 139 Fed. 862, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 174; In re Ducker (1905) 134 Fed. 43, 67 C. C. A. 117, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 760; In re Smith & Shuck (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 301, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 103; In re Tweed (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 355, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 648; In re Carpenter (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 831, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 147; In re Pekin Plow Co. (1901) 112 Fed. 308, 50 C. C. A. 257, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 369; In re Howland (D. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 869, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 495; In re Legg (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 326, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 805; Press Post Printing Co. v. Landon Printing & Pub. Co., 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 774; Logan v. Nebraska Moline Plow Co. (1902) 3 Neb. (Unof.) 516, 92 N. W. 129; McFarlan Carriage Co. v. Wells (1903) 99 Mo. App. 641, 74 S. W. 878. Under Rem. & Bal. Code Wash. § 3670, a memorandum of conditional sale containing printed name of seller, with nothing to show its adoption as signature of the seller, held not to reserve title in him as against buyer's trustee in bankruptcy. In re Frankel (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 129. But other decisions held that if the contract was free from actual fraud and good as between the parties, it would be equally good and binding upon the purchaser's trustee in bankruptcy, although not acknowledged or recorded as required by the state law, and whatever might have been the rights of creditors outside of the bankruptcy proceedings, for the reason that a trustee in bankruptcy has no higher or stronger rights in property in the bankrupt's possession than the bankrupt himself. In re Brown Wagon Co. (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 266; Jennings v. Swartz (1915) 86 Wash. 202, 149 Pac. 947; Bryant v. Swofford Bros. Dry Goods Co. (1909) 214 U. S. 279, 29 Sup. Ct. 614, 53 L. Ed. 997, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 111; Nauman Co. v. Bradshaw (1912) 193 Fed. 350, 113 C. C. A. 274, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 565; In re Anson Mercantile Co. (D. C. 1911) 203 Fed. 871; In re Ferguson Contracting Co. (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 880; Crucible Steel Co. of America v. Holt (1909) 174 Fed. 127, 98 C. C. A. 101, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 302; York Mfg. Co. v. Brewster (1909) 174 Fed. 566, 98 C. C. A. 348, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 474; John Deere Plow Co. v. Anderson (1909) 174 Fed. 815, 98 C. C. A. 523, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 480; In re Hager (D. C. 1909) 166 Fed. 972; In re Pickens Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1905) 166 Fed. 585; In re Cavagnaro (D. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 668, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 320; Mishawaka Woolen Mfg. Co. v. Smith (D. C. 1908) 158 Fed. 885, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 317; In re Pierce (C. C. A. 1907) 157 Fed. 755, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 662; In re Kellogg (1902) 118 Fed. 1017, 56 C. C. A. 383; In re Hinsdale (D. C. 1901) 111 Fed. 502, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 85; In re Sewell (D. C.) 111 Fed. 791, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 133; Buckwalter Stove Co. v. Stratton (1907) 118 App. Div. 915, 103 N. Y. Supp. 118; Studebaker Bros. Mfg. Co. v. Elsey-Hemphill Carriage Co. (1911) 152 Mo. App. 401, 133 S. W. 412; John Deere Plow Co. v. Edgar Farmer Store Co. (Wis. 1913) 143 N. W. 194. Where the state law provides for the filing of contracts of conditional sale, but makes an unfiled contract of that kind void only as to those creditors who have fastened upon the property by some specific lien, an adjudication in bankruptcy is not the equivalent of a judgment or attachment, so as to operate as a lien in favor of the trustee as against the conditional vendor of property sold to the bankrupt, because of failure to comply with the state law. York Mfg. Co. v. Cassell (1906) 201 U. S. 344, 26 Sup. Ct. 481, 50 L. Ed. 782, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 633; Hewit v. Berlin Machine Works (1904) 194 U. S. 296, 24 Sup. Ct. 690, 48 L. Ed.

986, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 709. Compare In re Press-Post Printing Co. (D. C. 1901) 134 Fed. 998, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 797; Chesapeake Shoe Co. v. Seldner (1903) 122 Fed. 593, 58 C. C. A. 261, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 466; In re Fraizer (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 746, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 21. But this does not apply where actual fraud entered into the arrangement between the parties or where the transaction was merely colorable. In re Fitzgerald (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 763, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 104.

68. —— Effect of amendment of 1910. —The 1910 amendment to the bankruptcy act, giving the trustee in bankruptcy the rights of a creditor armed with a lien, was intended to protect the general creditors of a bankrupt against holders of unrecorded mortgages and conditional sales, and since its passage the right of the trustee in bankruptcy to hold and administer the property held by the bankrupt under an unrecorded contract of conditional sale is superior to the right of the seller. Potter Mfg. Co. v. Arthur (1915) 220 Fed. 843, 136 C. C. A. 589; In re Kreuger (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 367, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623; In re Dancy Hardware & Furniture Co. (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 336, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 444; In re Farmers' Supply Co. (D. C. 1912) 196 Fed. 990, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 535; In re Nelson (D. C. 1911) 191 Fed. 233, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 272; In re J. S. Appel Suit & Cloak Co. (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 322, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 818; In re Hartdagen (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 546, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 532; In re Calhoun Supply Co. (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 537, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 528; In re Gehris-Herbine Co. (D. C. 1911) 188 Fed. 502, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 470; In re Franklin Lumber Co. (D. C. 1911) 187 Fed. 281, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 37; In re Williamsburg Knitting Mill (D. C. 1911) 190 Fed. 871, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 178. See In re Rutland-Perry Co. (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 200, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 383. The amendatory act confers on the trustee an absolute right to attack the unrecorded lien of a conditional seller, without reference to whether the trustee represents creditors who have in fact acquired liens by legal or equitable proceedings against the bankrupt. In re Bazemore (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 236, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 494. But property delivered to a bankrupt under an unrecorded contract of conditional sale, but retaken by the seller prior to the bankruptcy, though within four months, is not recoverable by the trustee, since it never became the bankrupt's property. Hart v. Emmerson-Brantingham Co. (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 60, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 218.

The amendatory act of 1910 was not retroactive and did not enable the trustee to invalidate a contract of conditional sale made prior to its passage and otherwise valid. Arctic Ice Mach. Co. v. Armstrong County Trust Co. (1911) 192 Fed. 114, 112 C. C. A. 458, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 562; In re Schneider (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 589, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 469. Section 47a (2), as amended by Act June 25, 1910, § 8 (ante, § 9631), held not to give a trustee the right to property in possession of the bankrupt under a conditional sale contract recorded prior to the bankruptcy. In re Farmers' Co-operative Co. of Barlow, N. D. (D. C. 1913) 202 Fed. 1005. Under section 47 (ante, § 9631), giving to the trustee the rights of a judgment creditor, the lien of a bankrupt's trustee, has no priority over a claim under a contract of conditional sale executed in good faith prior to the four-months period, but recorded within such period. In re Brown Wagon Co. (D. C. 1915) 224 Fed. 266. Where a conditional sale contract did not identify the property, and there was no identification of invoices of goods sold as the goods intended to be covered, the contract was void as against the buyer's trustee in bankruptcy exercising the rights of a lien creditor under Act June 25, 1910, § 8 (ante, § 9631). Meier & Frank Co. v. Sabin (1914) 214 Fed. 231, 130 C. C. A. 605. The term "creditors," as used in Rev. St. Tex. 1895, art. 3327, relating to conditional sale contracts, having been defined to mean persons with a fixed lien, a bankrupt's trustee held not within that class prior to adjudication under Act Cong. June 25, 1910 (ante, § 9631), and hence registration of a conditional sale contract before adjudication is valid as against the buyer's trustee in bankruptcy. In re Anson Mercantile Co. (D. C. 1911) 203 Fed. 871.

The liens of execution creditors on property held by the insolvent judgment debtor under a contract of conditional sale, as they existed when the petition in bankruptcy was filed, cannot be subsequently destroyed so as to prevent the court of bankruptcy from preserving them for the benefit of the estate, by the act of the conditional vendor in retaking the property. Rock Island Plow Co. v. Reardon (1912) 222 U. S. 354, 32 Sup. Ct. 164, 56 L. Ed. 231, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 492.

69. Property held under executory or option contracts of sale.—Property delivered to the bankrupt under a contract of lease with an option to purchase it on making certain specified payments, the title meanwhile to remain in the lessor or vendor, but which has not been paid for at the time of bankruptcy, does not vest in the trustee, but may be claimed from him by the vendor, or its proceeds if sold. Colonial Trust Co. v. Thorpe (C. C.

A. 1912) 194 Fed. 390, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 451; In re Kay-Tee Film Exchange (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 140; Nylin v. American Trust & Sav. Bank (1908) 166 Fed. 276, 92 C. C. A. 194, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 533. If some of the payments have been made, while others are in default, and the lessor has not attempted to forfeit the contract or retake the property, the trustee in bankruptcy may tender the amount remaining due under the contract and so acquire title to the property. In re Palatable Distilled Water Co. (D. C. 1907) 154 Fed. 531, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 833. In determining whether contract with retail dealer, adjudged a bankrupt, was one of agency and consignment, or sale with reservation of title, the court must consider the contract intended, and the manner in which the parties carried it out. In re National Home & Hotel Supply Co. (D. C. 1915) 226 Fed. 840.

Where goods were delivered to a bankrupt on memorandum, the understanding being that, if he signified his desire to keep them within thirty days after delivery, they should be charged to him, otherwise they should be returned, the contract was one of delivery with option to purchase, and the title remained in the seller until the expiration of the buyer's option, so that, on his becoming bankrupt, the seller was entitled to a return of all such goods as had been delivered to the bankrupt within thirty days before the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. In re Schindler (D. C. 1907) 158 Fed. 458, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 800. But see In re Miller & Brown (D. C. 1905) 135 Fed. 868, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 439. On the other hand, where property is delivered to the bankrupt on the agreement that he is to put it into use and test and try it for a limited time, and that he shall have the privilege of returning it if it proves unsatisfactory, it is a sale with privilege of rescission and return, under which the title passes to the bankrupt on delivery, though subject to be divested if he should elect to return the goods, and therefore the seller cannot reclaim the goods from the trustee but simply becomes a creditor for the price. In re Landis (D. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 896, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 483. But compare In re Froelich Rubber Refining Co. (D. C. 1905) 139 Fed. 201, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 72. Where a wholesaler sends to a merchant a large assortment of goods of a certain line, and the merchant selects those which he wishes to keep and places them in his stock, but keeps the rest separate, in their original packages, and marks them to be returned, the transaction, so far as regards the goods to be returned, is not a "sale and return," but a bailment, and those goods may be reclaimed by the seller from the merchant's trustee in bankruptcy. In re Miller & Brown (D. C. 1905) 135 Fed. 871, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 443. The vendor is entitled to reclaim property which was to be paid for when installed, but which had not been installed or even unpacked when bankruptcy intervened, as the title had not passed from him. Pridmore v. Puffer Mfg. Co. (C. C. A. 1908) 163 Fed. 496, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 851. If the bankrupt wrongfully gets possession of property which was not to be delivered to him until paid for, and mingles it with his own goods of like kind, the seller will be entitled to recover from the trustee in bankruptcy the value of so much of his property as came into the trustee's hands. Erie R. Co. v. Dial (1905) 140 Fed. 689, 72 C. C. A. 183, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 559. But otherwise, where the goods are delivered to the purchaser to be sold by him in the usual course of his business, and the seller attempts to reserve title until payment with the right to take possession at any time, such a contract being fraudulent and void as against purchasers and creditors. In re Rasmussen's Estate (D. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 704, 13 Am. Bankr. Rep. 462. The trustee acquires no title to land, the contract for which the bankrupt has forfeited before the bankruptcy, for failure of performance on his part. Norton v. Hood (1888) 124 U. S. 20, 8 Sup. Ct. 357, 31 L. Ed. 264.

70. Property procured by bankrupt by fraud.—If one obtains goods from another on credit, with no intention of paying for them, or at least with no reasonable expectation of being able to pay for them, and the sale was induced by his false and fraudulent representations as to his financial condition, on which the seller relied, or would not have been made but for his fraudulent concealment of his insolvency, the seller has the right to rescind the sale and recover his property, and this right is not lost by the bankruptcy of the purchaser. Though the latter has a title to the goods, and though this title passes to his trustee in bankruptcy, it is no more than a defeasible title, and if the goods have not lost their identity nor ceased to be distinguishable from others, the seller may follow them into the hands of the trustee in bankruptcy and reclaim and recover them. Donaldson v. Farwell (1876) 93 U. S. 631, 33 L. Ed. 993; Montgomery v. Bucyrus Machine Works (1875) 92 U. S. 257, 23 L. Ed. 656; In re Midland Motor Co. (1915) 224 Fed. 368, 140 C. C. A. 54; In re New York Commercial Co. (C. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 120; In re Gold (C. C. A. 1913) 210 Fed. 410; In re Watmough (D. C. 1913) 210 Fed. 539; In re Henry Siegel Co. (D. C. 1915) 223 Fed. 369; In re Selman Heating & Plumbing Co. (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 777; Halsey v. Diamond Distilleries Co. (1911) 191 Fed.

498, 112 C. C. A. 142, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 333; Bloomingdale v. Empire Rubber Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1902) 114 Fed. 1016, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 74; In re J. S. Patterson & Co. (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 562, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 748; In re Salmon (D. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 649, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623; William Openhym & Sons v. Blake (C. C. A. 1907) 157 Fed. 536, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 639; Haywood Co. v. Pittsburgh Industrial Iron Works (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 799, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 780; In re McPeck (1900) 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 172; Davis v. Stewart (C. C. 1881) 8 Fed. 803; Donaldson v. Farwell (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 3,983; Purviance v. Union Nat. Bank (C. C. 1873) 8 N. B. R. 447, Fed. Cas. No. 11,475; Goodyear Rubber Co. v. Schreiber (1902) 29 Wash. 94, 69 Pac. 648; Richardson v. Vick (1910) 125 Tenn. 532, 145 S. W. 174. The seller may recover the proceeds of the goods if they have been sold by the trustee in bankruptcy, provided the money arising from the sale of those particular goods can be distinguished from other funds in his hands. Gillespie v. J. C. Piles & Co. (1910) 178 Fed. 886, 102 C. C. A. 120, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 502; In re Weil (D. C. 1901) 111 Fed. 897, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 90. This right of reclamation on the part of a defrauded vendor is not affected by the 1910 amendment to the bankruptcy act, giving the trustee in bankruptcy the rights and remedies of a creditor holding a lien. In re J. S. Appel Suit & Cloak Co. (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 322, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 818. Compare In re Whatley Bros. (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 326, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 64. And although an attachment levied within four months before bankruptcy is avoided by the adjudication, yet if a creditor takes this method of recovering the goods from his fraudulent vendee, and pursues his process through a long and costly litigation for several years, without interference on the part of the trustee, it will be too late for the latter to have the attachment vacated. Jacobson v. Sims (1877) 60 Ala. 185.

An unpaid seller of goods, who was induced to sell and deliver them to the bankrupt by the latter's false and fraudulent representations, and who desires to rescind the sale and reclaim the goods from the hands of the trustee in bankruptcy, must act with reasonable promptness. In re Mertens (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 507, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 698. And he must sustain the burden of proving by clear and satisfactory evidence all the essential elements of his case, particularly the alleged false representation or concealment, its influence in inducing him to make the sale, and the buyer's knowledge of his own financial condition and the seller's ignorance of it. In re K. Marks & Co. (1914) 218 Fed. 453, 134 C. C. A. 253; In re Davis (D. C. 1901) 112 Fed. 294, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 276; In re O'Connor (D. C. 1901) 112 Fed. 666, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 428; In re Stewart (D. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 463, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 474; In re Rose (D. C. 1905) 135 Fed. 888, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 345; In re American Knit Goods Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 906, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 212. Where the seller of goods to a bankrupt elected to rescind for fraud, it was not bound to return to the bankrupt's trustee the amount received beyond the purchase price, which amount would have been greater than the value of the goods returned. In re Underwood & Daniel (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 279; In re Midland Motor Co. (1915) 224 Fed. 368, 140 C. C. A. 54. After the bankruptcy of the buyer, who had wrongfully rejected the goods, the seller cannot reconsider his previous refusal of a rescission and thereby revest the title in himself. Murphy v. John Hofman Co. (N. Y. 1915) 109 N. E. 101, reversing judgment (1913) 141 N. Y. S. 900, 157 App. Div. 88. Where a seller in one state delivered goods to a buyer in another state, title thereto, as between the seller and the trustee in bankruptcy of the buyer, is governed by the laws of the state of the buyer. In re O'Callaghan (D. C. 1914) 225 Fed. 133.

As to real estate, if the bankrupt has been the recipient of a conveyance made in fraud of the creditors of the grantor, although such a conveyance is voidable at the instance of those creditors, yet, as between the grantor and grantee (the bankrupt) it operates to pass title to the latter, and hence it gives him an estate which he must include in his schedule and which will vest in his trustee. In re O'Bannon (D. C. 1868) 2 N. B. R. 15, Fed. Cas. No. 10,394; Aiken v. Edrington (C. C. 1876) 15 N. B. R. 271, Fed. Cas. No. 111.

71. —— Essential elements of fraud. —To entitle a defrauded vendor to the right of reclamation spoken of above, some decisions hold it necessary to show that the purchaser was insolvent at the time of the purchase. In re Sol. Aarons & Co. (C. C. A. 1912) 193 Fed. 646, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 399. Others hold that this is not essential where specific false statements as to assets and concealment of debt are brought home to the purchaser and shown to have induced the sale. In re Bendall (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 816, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 698; Grant v. Feldman (1912) 171 Ill. App. 473. The purchaser must have had an actual intention not to pay for the goods when he acquired them. In re Sol. Aarons & Co. (1912) 193 Fed. 646, 113 C. C. A. 514, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 399; In re Levi & Pickard (D. C. 1906) 148 Fed. 654, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 756. CONTRA, no such actual intention is necessary if he knew at the time that he could not then pay for them and had no reasonable expectation of ever being able to do so. In re Hamilton Furniture & Carpet Co. (D. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 774, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 65; In re Berg (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 885, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 170.

It is a sufficient case of fraud if the purchaser merely conceals his insolvency or financial embarrassment, being well aware of it himself. In re Spann (D. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 819, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 551. CONTRA, In re Davis (D. C. 1901) 112 Fed. 294, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 276. Where the creditor sold goods to the bankrupt in an assumed name, extending credit to the man rather than to the name, the bankrupt cannot be said to have obtained the goods by fraud merely because he did not disclose his true name. In re McUlta (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 250, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 480. The false representations or statements must have been made to the particular vendor, and it is not enough for him to show a general scheme to defraud creditors. In re O'Connor (D. C. 1901) 112 Fed. 666, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 428. Where goods were sold to a bankrupt on credit, the seller relying entirely on a commercial rating which was based on information given by the bankrupt orally to the commercial agency's representative, which was false, the seller was entitled to reclaim the goods. In re Johnson (D. C. 1913) 208 Fed. 164. The seller will have no right to rescind the sale and reclaim the goods if he delivered them with knowledge that the buyer was in failing circumstances. In re Sweeney (1909) 168 Fed. 612, 94 C. C. A. 90, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 866. Or if he fairly understood the bankrupt's financial condition. In re Hess (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 954, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 635. Or where he admits that he might have sold the goods if the representations claimed had not been made. In re Davis (D. C. 1901) 112 Fed. 294, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 276. Where the seller continues to rely for a period of three months on financial statements of the bankrupt, satisfactory when made, this is not necessarily such negligence as to preclude him from rescinding the sale. In re J. S. Patterson & Co. (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 562, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 748. Where a bankrupt, at the time of purchasing certain materials from claimant on cash terms, intended to pay promptly, and reasonably expected to be able to do so, the seller was not entitled to a preference on the theory that the purchase was fraudulent. Cincinnati Ry. Supply Co. v. Hartlieb (1914) 214 Fed. 177, 130 C. C. A. 525.

72. Property sold by bankrupt.—Property actually sold or assigned by the bankrupt, without fraud, before the adjudication, and the title to which has passed, cannot be claimed or recovered by the trustee nor retained by him, as against the purchaser, if it comes into his possession. Rode & Horn v. Phipps (1912) 195 Fed. 414, 115 C. C. A. 316, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 827; Pyle v. Texas Transport & Terminal Co. (D. C. 1911) 192 Fed. 725, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 225; Lovell v. Isidore Newman & Son (C. C. A. 1912) 192 Fed. 753, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 746; Scammon v. Bowers (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 12,431; Green v. Holmes (1878) 125 Mass. 46, note; Gill v. Bell's Knitting Mills (1908) 128 App. Div. 691, 113 N. Y. Supp. 90; Carr v. Phillips (1878) 39 Mich. 319; Hall v. Keating Implement & Machine Co. (1903) 33 Tex. Civ. App. 526, 77 S. W. 1054; Eason v. Garrison & Kelly (1904) 36 Tex. Civ. App. 574, 82 S. W. 800. But those acquiring rights to the bankrupt's property subsequent to the adjudication are not bona fide purchasers, at least where they had knowledge of sufficient facts to put them on inquiry. Hull v. Burr (1911) 61 Fla. 625, 55 South. 852. Property of a partnership contributed by its members to the capital of another partnership of which they became members held to have passed to the new partnership and to be subject to its debts in bankruptcy as against the trustee of the former owner and its members. Warner v. Grafton Woodworking Co. (1913) 210 Fed. 12, 126 C. C. A. 592. If the transfer constituted a voidable preference, the remedy of the trustee is by action, but meanwhile the purchaser is entitled to the possession of the property. In re Blake (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 298, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 612. A bankrupt's trustee is vested with all the rights, remedies, and powers of a judgment creditor having an execution returned unsatisfied, and may set aside a fraudulent transfer and apply the proceeds to the payment of debts. In re Downing (1912) 201 Fed. 93, 119 C. C. A. 431, affirming order (D. C. 1912) 192 Fed. 683; Globe Bank & Trust Co. v. Martin (1915) 236 U. S. 288, 35 Sup. Ct. 377, 59 L. Ed. 583; Buttz v. James (N. D. 1916) 156 N. W. 547. Proceeds of the insurance on a building on land conveyed to insured in fraud of the grantor's creditors do not take the place of the property destroyed by fire, and the trustee in bankruptcy of the grantor may not recover them. Trenholm v. Klinker (Miss. 1914) 66 So. 738.

An adjudication in bankruptcy operates to dissolve the lien of an execution levied within four months prior thereto, but if a sale has been held under an execution and the property delivered to the purchaser at such sale, his title is not affected by the subsequent adjudication of the debtor, and the latter's trustee cannot take the property from him. In re Weitzel (D. C. 1911) 191 Fed. 463, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 370; Nelson v. Svea Pub. Co. (D. C. 1910)

178 Fed. 136. The same rule applies where a sale has been made under a chattel mortgage. Stewart v. Platt (1879) 101 U. S. 731, 25 L. Ed. 816.

73. —— Delivery and passing of title.—As between the trustee in bankruptcy and one claiming to have purchased property from the bankrupt, the question whether title had passed before the adjudication in bankruptcy depends on the intention of the parties, to be gathered from the contract, and if not expressly stated, then by inference or presumption from its terms. In re Clairfield Lumber Co. (D. C. 1911) 194 Fed. 181; Gage Lumber Co. v. McEldowney (C. C. A. 1913) 207 Fed. 255, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 251.

The question whether title has passed may depend on the fact of delivery or nondelivery of the goods. In re National Boat & Engine Co. (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 407; Lovell v. H. Hentz & Co. (C. C. 1910) 181 Fed. 555; Allen v. Hollander (C. C. 1904) 128 Fed. 159, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 753; Weeks v. Fowler (1902) 71 N. H. 518, 53 Atl. 543. Whether delivery of property sold by a bankrupt was sufficient to pass the title is to be determined by the law of the state. In re Waite-Robbins Motor Co. (D. C. 1911) 192 Fed. 47, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 541. Where a buyer of a hop crop at a specified price per pound, to be delivered by the seller at a railroad station, inspected, weighed, and accepted a part of the crop at the buyer's ranch before bankruptcy of the seller, title passed, as to such part of the crop, as against the seller's trustee in bankruptcy. Williamson v. Richardson (1913) 205 Fed. 245, 123 C. C. A. 427. Transfer of logs cut from a debtor's homestead under an oral agreement held to have been followed by an immediate delivery and change of possession as against the trustee in bankruptcy, within Rev. Codes Idaho, § 3170. In re McCartney (D. C. 1914) 218 Fed. 717. Where bankrupts had set aside cotton, and weighed, marked, and shipped it to a steamship for a purchaser's account before bankruptcy, held, that there was a delivery whereby it passed beyond the control of the bankrupt. Hiller v. Cornille & De Blonde (C. C. A. 1915) 228 Fed. 670. Where complainant purchased lumber from the bankrupt to be manufactured, making advances thereon, title to lumber sawed and piled in the millyards, intended by the bankrupt to be applied to the contract at the time bankruptcy intervened, had not passed to complainant, so as to entitle it to recover the value thereof as against the bankrupt's trustee. Gage Lumber Co. v. McEldowney (1913) 207 Fed. 255, 124 C. C. A. 641, reversing decree In re Clairfield Lumber Co. (D. C. 1911) 194 Fed. 181.

In the case of personal property, sold by the bankrupt to a third person before the adjudication, the title may pass by delivery of the key to a room where the goods are stored. In re Cole (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 297, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 611. Or by the delivery of warehouse receipts covering the property in question. Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank (1911) 187 Fed. 689, 109 C. C. A. 437; Chicago Title & Trust Co. v. First Nat. Bank (1912) 174 Ill. App. 339.

In the case of land, the title may be considered as passing upon the delivery of a deed to the purchaser. Mason v. Perkins (1904) 180 Mo. 702, 79 S. W. 683, 103 Am. St. Rep. 591; Congleton v. Schreihofer (N. J. Eq. 1903) 54 Atl. 144. Where a bankrupt corporation was engaged in conducting a sanitarium, and title to the building and the furniture therein had previously been vested in the same person, who conveyed the personal property to the bankrupt, and the real estate later to another corporation, which was organized at the time for the purpose of holding the same, and such corporation executed a mortgage thereon, and neither the deed nor the mortgage contained any reference to the personal property, nor to the purpose for which the realty was used, held, that neither conveyed the furniture as fixtures, the title thereto having been previously vested in the bankrupt. In re Dr. Riegel Sanitarium Co. (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 319.

A conveyance of real property which is intended as security only, though in form an absolute deed, is no more than a mortgage, and though it creates an enforceable lien, yet the property itself is an asset of the mortgagor's estate in bankruptcy. In re Moore (D. C. 1906) 146 Fed. 187, 17 Am. Bankr. Rep. 164. In the case of a mortgage regular in form, the mortgagee is not generally entitled to uncollected rents, but they must go to the trustee in bankruptcy. In re Dole (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 926, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 21; Elmore v. Symonds (1903) 183 Mass. 321, 67 N. E. 314.

74. Goods pledged by bankrupt.—Goods pledged by the bankrupt to secure a debt or claim, supposing that there is nothing fraudulent or preferential in the contract, are equally beyond the reach of the trustee, who can recover them and make them available as assets only on condition of redeeming from the pledge. In re Dreuil & Co. (D. C. 1913) 205 Fed. 573, 31 Am. Bankr. Rep. 69; Bank of Brodhead v. Smith (1912) 199 Fed. 703, 118 C. C. A. 141; Lovell v. Isidore Newman & Son (1912) 192 Fed. 753, 113 C. C. A. 39, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 746; In re Macauley (D. C. 1907) 158 Fed. 322, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 459; Van Kirk v. Vermont Slate Co. (D. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 38, 15 Am. Bankr. Rep. 239; Bush v. Export Storage Co. (C. C. 1904) 136 Fed. 918, 14 Am. Bankr. Rep. 138; Lamb v. Hall (1905) 147 Cal. 44, 81 Pac. 288; King v. Cram (1904) 185 Mass. 103, 69 N. E. 1049.

See Bank of North America v. Penn Motor Car Co. (1912) 235 Pa. 194, 83 Atl. 622; Commercial Nat. Bank v. Hiller (C. C. A. 1914) 211 Fed. 337. But the bailment, to have this effect, must be in all respects valid and binding under the laws of the state, and if an actual change of possession is necessary to constitute a valid pledge, the claimant must be able to show that this has taken place, or else he cannot hold the goods as against the trustee in bankruptcy of the pledgor. In re Gebbie & Co. (D. C. 1909) 167 Fed. 609, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 694; Fourth Street Nat. Bank v. Millbourne Mills Co.'s Trustee (1909) 172 Fed. 177, 96 C. C. A. 629, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 442; In re A. P. Wilson & Co. (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 652, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 907; Godwin v. Murchison Nat. Bank (1907) 145 N. C. 320, 59 S. E. 154, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 935; French v. White (1905) 78 Vt. 89, 62 Atl. 35, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 804, 6 Ann. Cas. 479; Goodrich v. Dore (1907) 194 Mass. 493, 80 N. E. 480. See In re Zinner (C. C. A. 1912) 202 Fed. 197, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 860; In re Shulman (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 129, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 238; In re Stiger (D. C. 1913) 202 Fed. 791. A pledge of certain warehouse receipts for whisky belonging to a corporation executed first by one who was permitted to act as president of the corporation, though not duly elected, and afterwards renewed by him when he had been elected president, held valid as against the corporation's trustee in bankruptcy. In re Miller Pure Rye Distilling Co. of Pennsylvania (1914) 214 Fed. 189, 130 C. C. A. 537.

75. Equitable rights of third persons.—A trustee in bankruptcy takes the property of the bankrupt subject not only to specific liens, but also to equities in favor of third persons, whether arising out of the act of the bankrupt or by operation of law, which are not invalid as to creditors. In re Sherwoods (C. C. A. 1913) 210 Fed. 754; Triumph Electric Co. v. Patterson (C. C. A. 1914) 211 Fed. 244; Gage Lumber Co. v. McEldowney (C. C. A. 1913) 207 Fed. 255, 30 Am. Bank. Rep. 251; In re M. E. Dunn & Co. (D. C. 1912) 193 Fed. 212, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 127; In re McConnell (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 438, 28 Am. Bankr. Rep. 659; Goodnough Mercantile & Stock Co. v. Galloway (D. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 940, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 803; In re Chantler Cloak & Suit Co. (D. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 952, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 498; Crosby v. Ridout (1906) 27 App. D. C. 481; Blake v. Meadows (1909) 225 Mo. 1, 123 S. W. 868, 30 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1; Kimball v. Baker Land & Title Co. (1913) 152 Wis. 441, 140 N. W. 47. See Hotchkiss v. National City Bank (D. C. 1911) 200 Fed. 287. A subcontractor who failed to perfect his lien is not entitled, as against the trustee in bankruptcy of the general contractor, to a lien on the balance due him, paid into court by the general contractor. Furst-Kerber Cut Stone Co. v. Wells (Va. 1914) 81 S. E. 22.

One having a claim against a fund by an equitable assignment from a bankrupt may assert it against the trustee in bankruptcy. In re Hanna (D. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 587, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 127. A check on a bank where the drawer has sufficient funds to meet it operates as an equitable assignment pro tanto of the money as between the holder of the check and the trustee in bankruptcy of the drawer. First Nat. Bank v. Coates (C. C. 1881) 8 Fed. 540; Fourth Nat. Bank v. City Nat. Bank (1873) 68 Ill. 398. But it is otherwise if the statutory law of the state has established a different rule. In re Grive (D. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 711, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 202. If the drawer of a draft, having no funds to meet it at the time it is presented, afterwards makes a remittance for the specific purpose of taking up the draft, the holder has an equitable claim upon the fund thus set apart. Dickey v. Harmon (C. C. 1804) Fed. Cas. No. 3,894; Seligman v. Wells (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 302. An order given by the bankrupt on his attorney directing the latter to pay the holder out of the proceeds of notes collected by him for the bankrupt constitutes an equitable assignment, available against the trustee in bankruptcy. In re Smith (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 399, Fed. Cas. No. 12,992. And this is true of an order on the bankrupt's agent to pay the holder out of rents collected by the agent for the bankrupt. In re Oliver (D. C. 1904) 132 Fed. 588, 12 Am. Bankr. Rep. 694. But a mere promise to pay out of a particular fund when received, the promisor retaining control of the fund, and no notice being given to the person who is to pay, does not create any lien or charge upon the fund or any equity in it. Ex parte Tremont Nail Co. (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 448, Fed. Cas. No. 14,168. Nor does an order directing an insurance agent to pay the holder part of an insurance loss due to the bankrupt, where no notice is given to the insurance company and the agent has no authority from the company to comply with such an order. In re The Leader (D. C. 1911) 190 Fed. 624, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 668. One who holds funds of the bankrupt in the character of a trustee, or as security for his own debt, has no power to bind the trustee in bankruptcy by a promise given to a creditor to pay him out of the fund. In re Ballantine (1911) 186 Fed. 91, 109 C. C. A. 203, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 275. See In re Kessler & Co. (D. C. 1908) 165 Fed. 508, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 583.

Where plaintiff, being a member of a stock exchange, is in the habit of executing orders for a brokerage firm not a member, and the firm accepts orders of customers, which it directs plaintiff to execute, such customers, though unknown to plaintiff, sustain the relation to him of debtor and creditor, and he will be required to pay them the funds he may have from their business done on the firm's orders, before he pays anything to the firm's trustee in bankruptcy. Doucette v. Baldwin (1907) 194 Mass. 131, 80 N. E. 444.

An equitable right or claim in favor of a third person may also grow out of circumstances which would raise an estoppel against the bankrupt to claim particular property as his own. Generally, such an estoppel will be equally effective against the trustee in bankruptcy. Aldine Trust Co. v. Smith (C. C. A. 1910) 182 Fed. 449, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 608. And conversely, the trustee may claim an estoppel against one who fails to assert his claims at the proper season, provided that positive and clear loss has resulted. In re Loll (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 79, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 548. But the advantage derived from a mistake made by a bankrupt when reducing to writing a contract made by him, is not an asset in the hands of his trustee, for the latter is not a bona fide purchaser for value in such sense as to bar the reformation of the contract in equity. Zartman v. First Nat. Bank (1910) 216 U. S. 134, 30 Sup. Ct. 368, 54 L. Ed. 418. But, on the other hand, circumstances under which a court of equity might permit a rescission of a contract of sale, on the ground of mistake, where the parties could be restored to their original position, may not warrant such relief after the purchaser has become bankrupt and the rights of creditors have intervened, and especially where the specific property cannot be restored. In re American Knit Goods Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 906, 19 Am. Bankr. Rep. 212.

76. After-acquired property.—Whatever property vests in the bankrupt after the date of the adjudication is his own and is free from the claims of the trustee and the creditors. Wilkins v. Tourtellott (1889) 42 Kan. 176, 22 Pac. 11; In re Lighthall (D. C. 1915) 221 Fed. 791; Cohen v. Bacharach (C. C. A. 1916) 229 Fed. 385. Salary earned by a bankrupt after adjudication and pending discharge does not belong to his estate unless affected by a garnishee levy, and prior assignments of such salary to creditors are ineffective. In re Green (D. C. 1914) 213 Fed. 542; In re Gillespie (D. C. 1913) 209 Fed. 1003. Wages of a bankrupt earned after adjudication are not properly a part of the assets to be administered. Progressive Building & Loan Co. v. Hall (1914) 220 Fed. 45, 135 C. C. A. 613.

Rents accruing after the adjudication of bankruptcy on mortgaged property of the bankrupt which comes into the possession of the trustee, and before the mortgagee has taken such action as to entitle him to the possession of the property, belong to the estate in bankruptcy. In re Dole (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 926, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 21. Where an item of the bankrupt's assets consists in a judgment in his favor, rendered before the adjudication in bankruptcy, but which was inadvertently entered for an amount less than the verdict, and it is amended by order of the court, after the adjudication, so as to cover the full amount, the trustee in bankruptcy may claim the full amount of the judgment as finally ascertained, not merely the sum for which it was entered originally. Zantzinger v. Ribble (1872) 36 Md. 32.

77. Partnership and individual property.—Where only one partner of a firm is adjudged a bankrupt, the bankruptcy court does not draw to itself the administration of the partnership estate, except by consent of the solvent partner, who is entitled to administer the business, accounting to the bankrupt's trustee only for the bankrupt's interest in the business. Marnet Oil & Gas Co. v. Staley (1914) 218 Fed. 45, 133 C. C. A. 108. Intervening trustee in bankruptcy held not entitled to the fund garnisheed, where it appeared that the fund was obtained from the assets of the partnership, which had not been adjudicated a bankrupt, and not from the assets of the bankrupt partner. Foot, Schulze & Co. v. Porter (Minn. 1915) 154 N. W. 1078. The act of a bankrupt partner in surrendering to his trustee property belonging to the firm did not enlarge the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court to administer the partnership property, where the solvent partner did not consent or waive its right to administer such property. Marnet Oil & Gas Co. v. Staley (1914) 218 Fed. 45, 133 C. C. A. 108.

On the adjudication of a firm as a bankrupt, the assets of all the partners must be turned into the proceeding for administration. Abbott v. Anderson (1914) 106 N. E. 782, 265 Ill. 285, affirming judgment (1914) 184 Ill. App. 598. An individual partner not adjudged a bankrupt may be required to turn over his separate estate to the trustee of the firm in bankruptcy, where the partnership and individual estate was not enough to pay the partnership debts, where the partner had not objected that he should have been put into bankruptcy, and where such partner has never objected to the administration of the firm property by the trustee. Francis v. McNeal (1913) 33 Sup. Ct. 701, 228 U. S. 695, 57 L. Ed. 1029; Id. (1911) 186 Fed. 481, 108 C. C. A. 459. A bankruptcy court in proceedings against a partnership has no jurisdiction to administer the estate of an alleged secret partner without declaring him a bankrupt or finding him insolvent. In re Samuels (C. C. A. 1914) 215 Fed. 845, reversing decree In re Samuels & Lesser (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 195. Where a partnership and one member individually are adjudged bankrupt, the bankruptcy court may administer the other member's property to the extent necessary to pay partnership debts; Bankr. Act, § 5h (ante, § 9589), being inapplicable, and limited to cases where the partnership is not adjudged bankrupt. Armstrong v. Fisher (1915) 224 Fed. 97, 139 C. C. A. 653. Where a firm is dissolved, and a partner sells his interest to a copartner, who is adjudged a bankrupt, firm creditors may apply firm property to payment of debts in settlement of the bankrupt's estate. In re Young (D. C. 1915) 223 Fed. 659.

II. ASSETS OF BANKRUPT CORPORATION

78. Franchises as assets.—The franchises of a bankrupt corporation vest in its trustee in bankruptcy, like its other property, and are subject to sale by him. Adams v. Boston, H. & E. R. Co. (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 314, Fed. Cas. No. 47; Sweatt v. Boston, H. & E. R. Co. (C. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 234, Fed. Cas. No. 13,684. But parties who purchase the property and franchises of a corporation from its assignee in bankruptcy do not thereby become its corporators and acquire the corporate entity. Metz v. Buffalo, C. & P. R. Co. (1874) 58 N. Y. 61, 17 Am. Rep. 201, 12 N. B. R. 559. A water supply company, engaged in the business of obtaining, transporting, and supplying pure water for municipal and domestic use, is not exempt from the operation of the bankruptcy law on the ground of its being a quasi public corporation and subserving a public use, if its franchise is assignable, so that its functions might be exercised by any transferee to whom its powers might pass through proceedings in bankruptcy. In re New York & W. Water Co. (D. C. 1909) 98 Fed. 711, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 508.

79. Assessment on unpaid stock.—When the assets of a bankrupt corporation are not sufficient to pay its debts, the court of bankruptcy has power and authority to levy an assessment upon the stockholders and call upon them to make good the unpaid balance of their subscriptions to the capital stock of the company, to an amount not exceeding in the aggregate the deficiency of the other assets as compared with the debts. Ogilvie v. Knox County Ins. Co. (1859) 22 How. 380, 16 L. Ed. 349; Sanger v. Upton (1875) 91 U. S. 56, 23 L. Ed. 220; Scovill v. Thayer (1881) 105 U. S. 155, 26 L. Ed. 968; Turnbull v. Payson (1877) 95 U. S. 418, 24 L. Ed. 437; In re Munger Vehicle Tire Co. (1908) 168 Fed. 910, 94 C. C. A. 314, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 395; In re Remington Automobile & Motor Co. (1907) 153 Fed. 345, 82 C. C. A. 421, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 389; In re Miller Electrical Maintenance Co. (D. C. 1901) 111 Fed. 515, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 701; In re Eureka Furniture Co. (D. C. 1909) 170 Fed. 485, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 395; In re Monarch Corporation (1910) 177 Fed. 464, 24 Am. Bankr. Rep. 428; Glenn v. Soule (C. C. 1884) 22 Fed. 417; In re Crystal Spring Bottling Co. (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 945, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 194; In re Republic Ins. Co. (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 11,704; Payson v. Stoever (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 10,863; Upton v. Burnham (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 16,799; Upton v. Jackson (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 16,802; Wilbur v. Stockholders (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 178, Fed. Cas. No. 17,636; Myers v. Seeley (D. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 411, Fed. Cas. No. 9,994; Upton v. Hansbrough (D. C. 1873) 10 N. B. R. 368, Fed. Cas. No. 16,801; Lane v. Nickerson (1881) 99 Ill. 284. A provision in the subscription and in the stock certificate that the unpaid balance was to be paid on the call of the directors "when ordered by a vote of a majority of the stockholders themselves," does not prevent the effectual exercise of this power by the court of bankruptcy. Upton v. Hansbrough (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 16,801. The directors of the corporation cannot relieve the stockholders from this liability by refusing to issue a call; and where the charter provided that the company should commence business with the full amount of its capital stock paid in, the fact that it actually commenced business is enough for the trustee in bankruptcy to show, in an action against stockholders for unpaid balances, without showing any call for their subscriptions. Rathbone v. Ayer (1903) 84 App. Div. 186, 82 N. Y. Supp. 235.

Liability of subscribers for unpaid balances, up to the full par value of their stock, is an asset of the corporation itself, not a remedy available to creditors. It is in the character of an asset of the corporation that it vests in the trustee in bankruptcy, and he is thereupon solely invested with the right to maintain actions against the stockholders who are in arrear. Rathbone v. Ayer (1903) 84 App. Div. 186, 82 N. Y. Supp. 235; Stoddard v. Lum (1899) 159 N. Y. 272, 53 N. E. 1108, 45 L. R. A. 551, 70 Am. St. Rep. 541; Stocker v. Davidson (1906) 74 Kan. 214, 86 Pac. 136, 118 Am. St. Rep. 315; Harris v. Wells (1907) 57 Misc. Rep. 172, 108 N. Y. Supp. 1078; Falco v. Kaupisch Creamery Co. (1903) 42 Or. 422, 70 Pac. 286; In re Remington Automobile & Motor Co. (1907) 153 Fed. 345, 82 C. C. A. 421, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 389; Foote v. Greilick (1911) 166 Mich. 636, 132 N. W. 473; Commercial Bank of Augusta v. Warthen (1904) 119 Ga. 990, 47 S. E. 536; Perkins v. Cowles (1910) 157 Cal. 625, 108 Pac. 711, 30 L. R. A. (N. S.) 283, 137 Am. St. Rep. 158; Babbitt v. Read (D. C. 1914) 215 Fed. 395. Where the statute provides (as in New York) that holders of stock in a corporation which is not fully paid shall be personally liable to certain classes of creditors to the extent of the amount unpaid on their stock, this gives the corporation itself no claim or right of action against such stockholders, and therefore no right of action thereunder passes to the trustee in bankruptcy of the corporation. In re Jassoy Co. (1910) 178 Fed. 515, 101 C. C. A. 641, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 622; Courtney v. Georger (D. C. 1915) 221 Fed. 502. So, if stock was issued in exchange for patent rights or other property, and the corporation itself cannot claim that it was not fully paid, neither can its trustee in bankruptcy. Sternbergh v. Duryea Power Co. (C. C. A. 1908) 161 Fed. 540, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 625. And see In re Beachy & Co. (D. C. 1909) 170 Fed. 825, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 538; In re Jassoy Co. (1910) 178 Fed. 515, 101 C. C. A. 641, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 622.

80. —— Proceedings for assessment or call.—The trustee of a bankrupt corporation cannot levy an assessment for unpaid stock on his own motion; there must be either corporate action to fix the liability of the stockholders or a judicial ascertainment of their liability. Payson v. Brooke (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 10,857.

Where a formal assessment and call are necessary, the proper practice is for the trustee to file his petition in the court of bankruptcy, asking for an order directing him to make an assessment and call upon the unpaid stock of the corporation for the purpose of paying its debts. On the hearing of this petition, the court will decide the necessary preliminary questions, such as the question whether particular stock has or has not been fully paid, whether the corporation is indebted in excess of its assets, and what is the amount of its indebtedness. But the order should not be so framed as to authorize the issue of an execution against any named stockholder for the amount considered to be due from him. The trustee should proceed against each in a plenary action. In re Remington Automobile & Motor Co. (1907) 153 Fed. 345, 82 C. C. A. 421, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 389; citing Scovill v. Thayer (1881) 105 U. S. 143, 26 L. Ed. 968. A formal assessment or call is necessary only where it is not certain that the whole amount of the unpaid subscriptions to stock will be needed to pay the debts of the company, or when no time was fixed for the payment of the successive installments on the stock, but they were to be called in by order of the directors from time to time. Rathbone v. Ayer (1903) 84 App. Div. 186, 82 N. Y. Supp. 235; Phœnix Warehousing Co. v. Badger (1876) 67 N. Y. 294; Ross-Mehan Brake Shoe Foundry Co. v. Southern Malleable Iron Co. (C. C. 1896) 72 Fed. 957; Scovill v. Thayer (1881) 105 U. S. 143, 26 L. Ed. 968; Citizens' & Miners' Sav. Bank v. Gillespie (1887) 115 Pa. 564, 9 Atl. 73; Tiger Shoe Mfg. Co.'s Trustee v. Shanklin (1907) 102 S. W. 295, 31 Ky. Law Rep. 298. A stock subscription contract and note given in part payment for the stock held not of such conditional character or on such special terms as to preclude the trustee in bankruptcy of the corporation from recovering on the note. Bailey v. Anderson (Ga. 1914) 82 S. E. 290.

81. —— Proceedings to collect assessment.—An assessment on unpaid stock of a bankrupt corporation having been levied, compliance with a call for its payment may be enforced by a suit in equity in the federal court in which the estate of the corporation is being adminstered. In re Crystal Spring Bottling Co. (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 945, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 194. A referee in bankruptcy has jurisdiction of a proceeding to compel the officers of a bankrupt corporation to pay over the proceeds of sales of its stock alleged to belong to the corporation, and also to pay an amount assessed against them for unpaid shares. In re Kornit Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1911) 192 Fed. 392, 27 Am. Bankr. Rep. 244. In suits to enforce the collection of the assessment, the validity of the action of the bankruptcy court in making the levy cannot be brought into question. Clevenger v. Moore (1904) 71 N. J. Law, 148, 58 Atl. 88; Payson v. Stoever (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 10,863; Michener v. Payson (C. C. 1875) 13 N. B. R. 49, Fed. Cas. No. 9,524. Compare Lamb v. Lamb (D. C. 1875) 13 N. B. R. 17, Fed. Cas. No. 8,018. A stockholder of a bankrupt corporation, although he is a nonresident and cannot be brought within the jurisdiction of the court, is bound by the result of proceedings for assessment of stockholders if he voluntarily appears and contests the same. In re Newfoundland Syndicate (1913) 201 Fed. 917, 120 C. C. A. 255, modifying order (D. C. 1912) 196 Fed. 443.

A stockholder of the bankrupt corporation, sued for an assessment on his unpaid stock, cannot defend on the ground that the proceedings to increase the stock of the corporation (his subscription being made for such increase) were irregular or invalid. Chubb v. Upton (1877) 95 U. S. 665, 24 L. Ed. 523. Nor on the ground that his subscription for the stock and agreement to pay for it were based on an express understanding that he was to receive the stock for two-thirds of its par value. Flinn v. Bagley (D. C. 1881) 7 Fed. 785. Nor on the ground that he was ignorant of the condition of the company at the time the subscription was made. Payson v. Withers (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 10,864. Nor on the ground that he was fraudulently misled and induced to believe that there was no personal liability for the unpaid balance and that the amount thereof could not be assessed against him. Upton v. Tribilcock (1875) 91 U. S. 45, 23 L. Ed. 203; Michener v. Payson (C.

C. 1875) 13 N. B. R. 49, Fed. Cas. No. 9,524. Nor on the ground that the word "non-assessable" was written across the face of his certificate of stock. Upton v. Burnham (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 16,799. Under Gen. St. Minn. 1913, § 6193, as construed by Minnesota Supreme Court, where a corporation agreed that stock would be nonassessable, unpaid balance of par value held not recoverable by trustee in bankruptcy. Courtney v. Georger (C. C. A. 1915) 228 Fed. 859. The fact that a call for unpaid subscriptions was for more than was necessary to pay the debts of the company cannot be tried in an action by the trustee against an individual stockholder. Upton v. Hansbrough (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 16,801. The court of bankruptcy has authority to determine the necessity for an assessment on stock subscriptions, and to direct the trustee to make the assessment, notwithstanding a dispute as to whether anything was unpaid. In re M. Stipp Const. Co. (1915) 221 Fed. 372, 137 C. C. A. 180.

The provision of the statute that suits shall not be brought by or against a trustee in bankruptcy subsequent to two years after the estate has been closed, applies to an action by a trustee to enforce against stockholders the payment of their unpaid shares. Walker v. Towner (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 17,089; Payson v. Coffin (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 10,859; Scovill v. Shaw (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 12,552.

82. —— Persons liable.—The fact that the defendant's name appears on the books of the corporation as a stockholder is presumptive evidence that he is the owner of the stock, and proof that he received a dividend on the stock renders the presumption conclusive. Turnbull v. Payson (1877) 95 U. S. 418, 24 L. Ed. 437. The transferee of stock is liable on such an assessment, unless it appears that the transfer has not been accepted by him, in which case the transferror alone is liable. Wilbur v. Stockholders (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 17,636.

83. —— Set-off against assessment.—Under the doctrine that the capital of a corporation constitutes a trust fund for the benefit of its creditors, it is held that a stockholder who is indebted to the bankrupt corporation for unpaid shares cannot set off against his liability thereon a debt due to him by the corporation. The fund arising from such unpaid stock must be equally divided among all the creditors. Sawyer v. Hoag (1873) 17 Wall. 610, 21 L. Ed. 731; Jenkins v. Armour (D. C. 1875) 14 N. B. R. 276, Fed. Cas. No. 7,260. The fact that stockholders of a bankrupt corporation are also holders of its bonds, and as such entitled to share in the distribution of its estate, does not entitle them to set off their claims on the bonds in a suit against them by the trustee to recover unpaid subscriptions. Babbitt v. Read (C. C. 1909) 173 Fed. 712, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 254. Nor will a delinquent stockholder be permitted to prove his claim against the estate of the corporation in bankruptcy until he has paid the balance remaining due on his subscription. In re Wiener & Goodman Shoe Co. (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 949, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 200.

84. Statutory liability of stockholders and directors.—The trustee in bankruptcy of a corporation acquires no right to enforce, for the benefit of the estate or of creditors, a liability imposed by the law of the state upon the stockholders for the payment of the debts of the company, or a similar liability imposed upon directors for violations of the corporation laws of the state or for derelictions of duty or misfeasance in their office. In re Beachy & Co. (D. C. 1909) 170 Fed. 825, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 538; In re Crystal Spring Bottling Co. (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 945, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 194; Jacobson v. Allen (C. C. 1882) 12 Fed. 454; Bristol v. Sanford (C. C. 1874) 13 N. B. R. 78, Fed. Cas. No. 1,893; Dutcher v. Marine Nat. Bank (C. C. 1875) 11 N. B. R. 457, Fed. Cas. No. 4,203; Rathbone v. Ayer (1903) 84 App. Div. 186, 82 N. Y. Supp. 235; John V. Farwell Co. v. Jackson Stores (1911) 137 Ga. 174, 73 S. E. 13; Tiger Shoe Mfg. Co.'s Trustee v. Shanklin (1907) 31 Ky. Law Rep. 298, 102 S. W. 295. Compare Mohr v. Minnesota Elevator Co. (1889) 40 Minn. 343, 41 N. W. 1074. In the case of Main v. Mills (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 8,974, it was held that if the directors of a corporation spend its capital stock in declaring and paying dividends, when there are no actual profits to be divided, and the company is adjudged bankrupt, the trustee in bankruptcy may recover the amount so paid in dividends, at least from any officer of the corporation who was bound to know the condition of its affairs, and that he had no right to receive the dividends. The fact that directors of the bankrupt corporation have made themselves thus liable under the state law is not a circumstance which will prevent the trustee from calling upon stockholders for the unpaid balance of their stock. In re Crystal Spring Bottling Co. (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 945, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 194. Proceedings in bankruptcy against a corporation will not prevent a judgment creditor of the corporation from pursuing in a state court his remedy upon the statutory individual liability of stockholders or directors. Allen v. Ward (N. Y. 1873) 4 Jones & S. 290, 10 N. B. R. 285. And see Jacobson v. Allen (C. C. 1882) 12 Fed. 454.

Where officers or directors of a corporation are alleged to have appropriated its property to their own use, or to have wasted or lost its assets by a violation of their duties or abuse of their powers, the right of action against them is in favor of the corporation, not the creditors, and hence it vests in the corporation's trustee in bankruptcy as part of its assets and may be enforced by him. In re Swofford Bros. Dry Goods Co. (D. C. 1910) 180 Fed. 549, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 282; Rathbone v. Ayer (1903) 84 App. Div. 184, 82 N. Y. Supp. 239.

III. RIGHTS OF TRUSTEE AS AGAINST PRIOR ASSIGNEE FOR CREDITORS

85. Effect of adjudication in bankruptcy on previous assignment.—A general assignment for the benefit of creditors, though an act of bankruptcy and liable to be avoided by the subsequent adjudication of the assignor as a bankrupt, is not void originally, but only voidable; it remains valid unless and until such an adjudication is made. In re Romanow (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 510, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 461; Ostrander v. Meunch (C. C. 1881) 12 Fed. 562; Barnes v. Rettew (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 1,019; Maltbie v. Hotchkiss (1871) 38 Conn. 80, 9 Am. Rep. 364, 5 N. B. R. 485; Cook v. Rogers (1875) 31 Mich. 391, 13 N. B. R. 97; Thrasher v. Bentley (1874) 59 N. Y. 649; Bostwick v. Burnett (1878) 74 N. Y. 317. Until an assignment for the benefit of creditors is expressly accepted, it is a mere power and therefore revocable, and the bankruptcy of the assignor operates as a revocation. Ashley v. Robinson (1856) 29 Ala. 112, 65 Am. Dec. 387. Potentially it is a fraud upon the bankruptcy law and upon the creditors, since its necessary effect (if allowed to stand) is to defeat the operation of the bankruptcy law and to deprive creditors of the benefit of all the provisions of that act which are made for their protection and meant to secure a speedy and equal distribution of the estate. In re Gutwillig (1899) 92 Fed. 337, 34 C. C. A. 377, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 388; Id. below (D. C. 1898) 90 Fed. 475, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 78. The assignment is voidable at the instance of the creditors, provided a sufficient number of them, owning a sufficient amount of claims, will join in a petition in bankruptcy. In re Sievers (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 366, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 117. An assignee for the benefit of creditors is charged with knowledge that he is acting under an instrument which of itself is an act of bankruptcy, and that if the assignor, in bankruptcy proceedings commenced within four months of the assignment, is adjudicated a bankrupt, he will hold the assigned estate merely for the use of the bankrupt's creditors, to be administered in the bankruptcy court. In re Bombino (Utah, 1914) 138 P. 1155.

When a debtor who has previously made a general assignment for the benefit of his creditors is adjudged bankrupt, the adjudication ipso facto annuls or dissolves the assignment and subjects the assigned property to the exclusive and complete jurisdiction of the court of bankruptcy. Davis v. Bohle (1899) 92 Fed. 325, 34 C. C. A. 372, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 412; In re Sievers (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 366, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 117; In re Smith (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 135, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 9; In re Gutwillig (D. C. 1898) 90 Fed. 475, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 78; In re Smith (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 377, Fed. Cas. No. 12,974; Hobson v. Markson (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 6,555; Globe Ins. Co. v. Cleveland Ins. Co. (C. C. 1876) 14 N. B. R. 311, Fed. Cas. No. 5,486; Waring v. Buchanan (D. C. 1879) 19 N. B. R. 502, Fed. Cas. No. 17,176; In re Croughwell (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 337, Fed. Cas. No. 3,440; Dolson v. Kerr (N. Y. 1877) 52 How. Prac. 481, 16 N. B. R. 405; Cohen v. American Surety Co. (1908) 192 N. Y. 227, 84 N. E. 947. It is immaterial that proceedings have been taken in a state court to have the administration of the assigned estate take place under its supervision and control. The pendency of such proceedings, or the making of orders or decrees by the state court, will not prevent an adjudication of bankruptcy, but on the contrary, when the adjudication is made, it ousts the jurisdiction of the state court and establishes the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court, which is exclusive and which relates back to the commission of the act of bankruptcy, that is, the making of the assignment. In re Knight (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 35, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1; In re Lengert Wagon Co. (D. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 927, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 535; In re Curtis (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 737, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 440, affirmed (1899) 94 Fed. 630, 36 C. C. A. 430, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 226. And if the assignment falls to the ground in consequence of the adjudication in bankruptcy, so also do all rights and interests created by it or growing out of it. The various rights of creditors thereafter are to be determined according to the provisions of the bankruptcy law, not according to the deed of assignment nor according to the state insolvency law under which it may have been made. In re Bousfield & Poole Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 153, Fed. Cas. No. 1,704. And the money and property are to be distributed by the trustee in bankruptcy, and not by the assignee. Sedgwick v. Place (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 302, Fed. Cas. No. 12,623. If the deed of assignment created any liens or trusts, they are annulled by the adjudication, and the property is not subject to them as it passes into the hands of the trustee in bankruptcy. In re Slomka (1903) 122 Fed. 630, 58 C. C. A. 322, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 635. So also, if the assignment gives a preference to any creditor, it is avoided in bankruptcy, and the preferred creditor can claim no advantage from it. Randolph v. Scruggs (1903) 190 U. S. 533, 23 Sup. Ct. 710, 47 L. Ed. 1165.

86. Assignment more than four months before bankruptcy.—The bankruptcy law does not attempt to supervise or inquire into proceedings under an assignment for creditors or under state insolvency laws begun more than four months before the institution of bankruptcy proceedings. In re Boner (D. C. 1909) 169 Fed. 727, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 151. If one is adjudged bankrupt more than four months after making an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, the assignment cannot be set aside at the instance of the trustee in bankruptcy, and the trustee will not be entitled to the possession and administration of the assigned estate as against the voluntary assignee, but will take only such rights as the bankrupt himself had or could claim at the date of the bankruptcy. Mayer v. Hellman (1875) 91 U. S. 496, 23 L. Ed. 377; In re Kimball (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 188, Fed. Cas. No. 7,770; In re Arledge (D. C. 1873) 1 N. B. R. 644, Fed. Cas. No. 533; Hoague v. Cumner (1905) 187 Mass. 296, 72 N. E. 956; Mathews v. Stewart (1880) 44 Mich. 209, 6 N. W. 633. The trustee in bankruptcy may claim any property remaining undistributed in the hands of the assignee at the date of the adjudication in bankruptcy. In re Carver (D. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 138, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 539. The trustee in bankruptcy is not entitled to an accounting from a former assignee for creditors of the bankrupt, who had sold the assigned property and paid the money to creditors more than four months prior to bankruptcy. In re Martinez (D. C. 1915) 223 Fed. 433.

87. Enjoining action by assignee.—When an insolvent debtor makes a general assignment for the benefit of his creditors, and, within four months thereafter, a petition in bankruptcy against him is filed, it is within the power and jurisdiction of the court of bankruptcy to make an order, pending the hearing on such petition, enjoining the assignee from disposing of or interfering with the property transferred to him under the assignment, or exercising any acts of ownership or control, particularly when it appears that the assignee is about to make a sale of the property or to pay out money in his hands, so that, if an adjudication in bankruptcy is ultimately made, assets of the estate might thus be withdrawn from the reach of the trustee. In re Gutwillig (1899) 92 Fed. 337, 34 C. C. A. 377, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 388; Leidigh Carriage Co. v. Stengel (1899) 95 Fed. 637, 37 C. C. A. 210, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 383; Davis v. Bohle (1899) 92 Fed. 325, 34 C. C. A. 372, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 412; In re Sievers (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 366, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 117; In re Skoll (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 175, Fed. Cas. No. 12,926. See Ex parte Nightingale (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 10,263, holding that a mere possibility of waste or misapplication of the bankrupt's estate by the assignee will not justify an injunction. After a decree of adjudication is made, and pending the appointment of a trustee in bankruptcy, the court may enjoin the voluntary assignee from disposing of the property or exercising any of the powers given him by the assignment, except merely to hold possession of the property and preserve it. Rumsey & Sikemier Co. v. Novelty & Machine Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1899) 99 Fed. 699, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 704. And if the circumstances warrant such a course, the court of bankruptcy, pending a determination on the petition, may appoint a receiver (or the marshal) to take the property out of the hands of the assignee and hold it until the dismissal of the petition or the appointment of a trustee. In re Etheridge Furniture Co. (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 329, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 112; Davis v. Bohle (1899) 92 Fed. 325, 34 C. C. A. 372, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 412; Sedgwick v. Place (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 139, Fed. Cas. No. 12,619. If, pending a hearing on the petition in bankruptcy, the creditors go into a state court and there protest against any further proceedings under the assignment, this will not have the effect of a writ of injunction from the court of bankruptcy. In re Scholtz (D. C. 1901) 106 Fed. 834, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 782. Bankrupt's assignee held to act at his peril in carrying on business, selling it out, and winding it up, or doing anything beyond what is necessary to preserve property after filing of petition. In re Karp (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 798.

88. Setting aside assignment.—An assignment for the benefit of creditors is avoided by the adjudication of the assignor as a bankrupt within four months afterwards, and the trustee becomes invested with title to the assigned property, not as the successor of the assignee but as the successor of the bankrupt, and no suit or proceeding on his part is necessary to avoid the assignment, but the assignee may be summarily cited to appear in the bankruptcy proceedings and surrender the property in his hands. Randolph v. Scruggs (1903) 190 U. S. 533, 23 Sup. Ct. 710, 47 L. Ed. 1165, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1; In re Smith (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 135, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 9; Leidigh Carriage Co. v. Stengel (1899) 95 Fed. 637, 37 C. C. A. 210, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 383; Comingor v. Louisville Trust Co. (1908) 108 S. W. 950, 33 Ky. Law Rep. 53; In re Stokes (D. C. 1901) 106 Fed. 312; In re Thompson (D. C. 1903) 122 Fed. 174, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 242;

In re Stewart (1910) 179 Fed. 222, 102 C. C. A. 348; Bryan v. Bernheimer (1901) 181 U. S. 188, 21 Sup. Ct. 557, 45 L. Ed. 814, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623; Whitlesey v. Philip Becker & Co. (1911) 142 App. Div. 313, 126 N. Y. Supp. 1046; Rogers v. Abbot (1910) 206 Mass. 270, 92 N. E. 472, 138 Am. St. Rep. 394.

89. Recovery of assets by trustee.—When a voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors is avoided by the subsequent adjudication of the assignor in bankruptcy, the trustee in bankruptcy becomes entitled to the possession and administration of the estate covered by the assignment and may require the assignee to account to him and to surrender the property in his hands. Davis v. Bohle (1899) 92 Fed. 325, 34 C. C. A. 372, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 412; In re Knight (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 35, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1; Hobson v. Markson (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 6,555; Comingor v. Louisville Trust Co. (1908) 108 S. W. 950, 33 Ky. Law Rep. 53. A petition by the trustee in bankruptcy for an order requiring the surrender of property by the assignee need not allege a previous demand. Comingor v. Louisville Trust Co. (1908) 108 S. W. 950, 33 Ky. Law Rep. 53. Although the law of the state may require such assignments to be carried out under the direction or supervision of a state court, and the property assigned is in process of administration in the manner prescribed by the law, this does not make a case of concurrent jurisdiction, nor give the state court such a prior right of possession as will prevent the court of bankruptcy from assuming exclusive jurisdiction of the bankrupt's estate. In re Smith (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 135, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 9. But if the assignee alleges that he is under the control and direction of the state court, there is nothing to prevent the trustee from applying to that court for an order directing the surrender of the property to him, just as he would do in the case of a receiver. See Cragin v. Thompson (C. C. 1873) 12 N. B. R. 81, Fed. Cas. No. 3,320. If the state statute does not go to the length of making such an assignee an officer of the state court, property in his hands is not in the custody of the law or the possession of the court. Jones v. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. (1897) 82 Fed. 295, 27 C. C. A. 133; Lehman v. Rosengarten (C. C. 1885) 23 Fed. 642. So, if the assignee is cited to account in a state court, he may show, in bar of the proceeding, that the property has been taken from him under a decree of the court of bankruptcy and that he has accounted in the latter court. Burkholder v. Stump (D. C. 1871) 4 N. B. R. 597, Fed. Cas. No. 2,165. Nor is the pendency of an action of replevin against him any excuse for his failure to surrender to the trustee in bankruptcy that portion of the estate affected by the proceeding. In re Solomon, 2 Nat. Bankr. News, 460. If the assignee is prosecuting an action to recover property of the assigned estate, when a trustee in bankruptcy is appointed, the latter may intervene in the action and assume control of it, and need not begin a new suit. Collateral Security Bank v. Fowler (1875) 42 Md. 393. The assignee may be required to execute any conveyance which may be necessary to show a clear title in the trustee or enable him more effectually to proceed with the collection of the assets. Burkholder v. Stump (D. C. 1871) 4 N. B. R. 597, Fed. Cas. No. 2,165. If the assignee neglects or refuses to account for the money or property in his hands, on being cited and ordered to do so, the trustee in bankruptcy has a right of action against the surety on the assignment bond. Cohen v. American Surety Co. (1908) 192 N. Y. 227, 84 N. E. 947.

90. Requiring surrender of property by assignee.—When a debtor who has made a general assignment for the benefit of his creditors is adjudged bankrupt within four months thereafter, the court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction and power to make an order requiring the assignee to submit his accounts and to turn over to the trustee in bankruptcy all money and property in his hands, and this does not require a plenary suit at law or in equity, but may be done in a summary proceeding. In re Stewart (1910) 179 Fed. 222, 102 C. C. A. 348; In re Smith (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 135, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 9; In re Stokes (D. C. 1901) 106 Fed. 312, 6 Am. Bankr. Rep. 262; In re Thompson (D. C. 1903) 122 Fed. 174, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 242, affirmed (1904) 128 Fed. 575, 63 C. C. A. 217, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 719. A contrary decision in Re Abraham (1899) 93 Fed. 767, 35 C. C. A. 592, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 266, was reversed in Bryan v. Bernheimer (1901) 181 U. S. 188, 21 Sup. Ct. 557, 45 L. Ed. 814, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623. The assignee in such a case is not an adverse claimant. He is merely the agent of the assignor for the distribution of the proceeds of the property, and, as such agent, his possession is that of his principal. In re Stewart (1910) 179 Fed. 222, 102 C. C. A. 348.

An order requiring the surrender of property by the assignee cannot be made on the ex parte application of the trustee without bringing in the assignee or affording him an opportunity to show cause against the petition. If these conditions are not fulfilled, an order for the surrender of property is without jurisdiction, and the assignee cannot be punished for failure to obey it. Smith v. Belford (1901) 106 Fed. 658, 45 C. C. A. 526, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 291; In re Banzai Mfg. Co. (1910) 183 Fed. 298, 105 C. C. A. 510, 25 Am.

Bankr. Rep. 497; In re Manning (D. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 179, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 497.

The assignee cannot be adjudged in contempt for failure to pay over money of the estate to the trustee in bankruptcy, as ordered, where he shows that he has paid it out in counsel fees or other necessary disbursements, or that he retained a portion of the money as his own commission, and has spent such sum and is unable to replace it. Louisville Trust Co. v. Comingor (1902) 184 U. S. 18, 22 Sup. Ct. 293, 46 L. Ed. 413, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 421; Sinsheimer v. Simonson (1901) 107 Fed. 898, 47 C. C. A. 51, 5 Am. Bankr. 537; In re Klein (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 523, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 559; In re Stewart (1910) 179 Fed. 222, 102 C. C. A. 348; In re Banzai Mfg. Co. (1910) 183 Fed. 298, 105 C. C. A. 510, 25 Am. Bankr. Rep. 497.

91. Nature of trustee's title to assigned property.—The trustee in bankruptcy does not succeed the voluntary assignee in title or estate, and does not take the estate subject to any preferences or priorities created by the deed of assignment or by the acts of the assignee. Randolph v. Scruggs (1903) 190 U. S. 533, 23 Sup. Ct. 710, 47 L. Ed. 1165, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1; Alexander v. Galt (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 149. CONTRA, under the act of 1867, see In re Beisenthal (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 120, Fed. Cas. No. 1,235; Johnson v. Rogers (D. C. 1876) 15 N. B. R. 1, Fed. Cas. No. 7,408; In re Beadle (D. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 1,155; Reeser v. Johnson (1875) 76 Pa. 313. A title or lien acquired by the voluntary assignee, which would be to the advantage of the estate when it has subsequently passed into bankruptcy, is not necessarily destroyed by the supersession of the assignment proceeding, but, upon the order of the court of bankruptcy, it may be retained by the trustee for the benefit of the creditors. In re Fish Bros. Wagon Co. (C. C. A. 1908) 164 Fed. 553, 21 Am. Bankr. Rep. 149.

92. Estate partly settled by assignee.—Where an assignee, appointed in insolvency proceedings under a state law, or by a general deed of assignment, has taken charge of the debtor's property, sold it, and distributed the proceeds to creditors, acting in all respects in entire good faith and in conformity to the state law and the orders of the state court, and afterwards proceedings in bankruptcy against the assignor are had and a trustee appointed, the assignee is not to be held personally liable to the trustee in bankruptcy for the value of the property or its proceeds. In such a case the trustee must seek his remedy against those who have received payments from the defendant in contravention of the bankruptcy act. Cragin v. Thompson (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 3,320; In re Walker (D. C. 1877) 18 N. B. R. 56, Fed. Cas. No. 17,063. This rule holds good even if the assignee has paid out the money of the estate to creditors preferred by the deed of assignment. Their preferences may be unlawful under the bankruptcy law and voidable by the trustee, but the amount cannot be recovered from the assignee personally. Jones v. Kinney (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 7,473. If, after the trustee's demand for the property, the assignee pays it out in the form of dividends to creditors, he is personally liable to replace it, and it is immaterial that the trustee did not sue out an injunction to restrain him from disposing of the estate, a mere demand for it being enough. Ostrander v. Meunch (C. C. 1881) 12 Fed. 562.

93. Rights of purchasers from assignee and paid creditors.—A sale of property by an assignee for the benefit of creditors to a purchaser in good faith for a valuable consideration conveys a title which will prevail against the claims of a trustee in bankruptcy of the assignor subsequently appointed, and the latter cannot recover the property from the purchaser. Goldsmith v. Hapgood (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 5,522. If there was no more than an uncompleted agreement for a sale, the purchaser not having made any payment on the property, it is avoided by the adjudication in bankruptcy and the trustee may claim the property. In re Knight (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 35, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1. One who buys property from the assignee after the filing of the petition in bankruptcy and with knowledge thereof, cannot be called a purchaser in good faith, and he acquires no title superior to that of the trustee; but his equities in respect to the property or the money which he has paid for it may depend on many circumstances, and can be settled in the court of bankruptcy, which may, if necessary, bring in the assignee. Bryan v. Bernheimer (1901) 181 U. S. 188, 21 Sup. Ct. 557, 45 L. Ed. 814, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 623.

The trustee may force the restitution of money paid to creditors by the voluntary assignee, if they were granted preferences by the terms of the assignment, and knew or had reasonable cause to believe, when receiving the money from the assignee, that it was in pursuance of the debtor's intention to prefer them. In re Meyer (D. C. 1869) 2 N. B. R. 422, Fed. Cas. No. 9,515. The trustee may recover money disbursed in satisfaction of a lien of such a character as to be dissolved by the adjudication in bankruptcy. Linder v. Lewis (D. C. 1880) 4 Fed. 318.

94. Appointment of assignee as trustee.—A referee in bankruptcy may properly refuse to approve the selection of the bankrupt's common-law assignee as trustee in bankruptcy, the assignment being the act of bankruptcy relied on by the petitioning creditors, and the assignee having an unsettled account and a claim for compensation for his services. In re Kellar (C. C. A. 1912) 192 Fed. 830. A common-law assignee may be appointed as temporary receiver of the estate in bankruptcy, and if he turns over to himself, as such receiver, the funds in his hands as assignee, without retaining any sum therefrom as compensation for his past services, he submits both the fund and himself to the jurisdiction of the court of bankruptcy with respect to his right to an allowance for such services. In re Klein (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 523, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 559.

95. Credits and allowances to assignee.—When an assignee for the benefit of creditors is required to surrender the estate committed to him by the assignment, at the instance of a trustee in bankruptcy subsequently appointed, and in order that the property may be administered in bankruptcy, he is entitled to an allowance for the actual and necessary expenses incurred by him in collecting, caring for, and preserving the property from the time he took charge of it as assignee up to the date of the adjudication in bankruptcy. In re Mays (D. C. 1902) 114 Fed. 600, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 764; In re Tatum (D. C. 1901) 112 Fed. 50, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 52; Burkholder v. Stump (D. C. 1871) 4 N. B. R. 597, Fed. Cas. No. 2,165; Wehl v. Wald (C. C. 1881) 6 Fed. 163; In re Pauly, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 405. Compare In re Stubbs (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 376, Fed. Cas. No. 13,557. Thus, where the assignee, during the time the property remained in his care, and before the adjudication in bankruptcy, collected bills due to the bankrupt, continued insurance on the property, arranged for guarding the same, collected outstanding goods, conducted correspondence, made an inventory, and incurred a liability for rent, it was held that he had a lien on the assets for these necessary disbursements. In re Chase (1903) 124 Fed. 753, 59 C. C. A. 629, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 677. So he should be reimbursed for money paid for rent of the premises and for wages paid to clerks, workmen, and servants. Eichholz v. Polack (1910) 140 App. Div. 551, 125 N. Y. Supp. 1108. And for taxes paid on the property, the same being a valid lien which the trustee would have had to discharge if the assignee had not done so. In re Cohn (D. C. 1873) 6 N. B. R. 379, Fed. Cas. No. 2,966. And he may be allowed the costs and expenses of a sale of the property or a portion of it, if it appears that the sale was an advantageous one and beneficial to the estate. In re Scholtz (D. C. 1901) 106 Fed. 834, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 782; In re Cohn (D. C. 1873) 6 N. B. R. 379, Fed. Cas. No. 2,966; Clark v. Marx (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 2,830; Jackson v. McCulloch (C. C. 1871) 13 N. B. R. 283, Fed. Cas. No. 7,140.

Neither the assignee nor his attorney will be entitled to claim any compensation for services or expenses rendered or incurred in unsuccessfully attempting to resist the adjudication in bankruptcy or in the endeavor to maintain his own title and possession. Randolph v. Scruggs (1903) 190 U. S. 533, 23 Sup. Ct. 710, 47 L. Ed. 1165, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1; In re Stewart (1910) 179 Fed. 222, 102 C. C. A. 348; Platt v. Archer (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 11,214; Clark v. Marx (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 2,830. The assignee cannot claim an allowance for any items which will result in subjecting the estate to double charges for the same thing. In re Kurth (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 573, Fed. Cas. No. 7,948.

The assignee under a common-law assignment which is avoided by the adjudication of the debtor as a bankrupt, who was permitted by the creditors to continue in possession of the property and to operate the business, is not necessarily to be charged with a resulting loss, either before or after the filing of the petition in bankruptcy; but he is liable for a loss in carrying on the business, in the absence of a finding that it was good judgment to continue the business, or of a showing as to how much of the loss was incurred before the filing of the petition. In re Karp (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 798.

96. —— Compensation for services.—The allowance to be made to an assignee for creditors, on surrendering the estate to the trustee in bankruptcy, must be restricted to money actually disbursed, and cannot include any commissions or compensation for his own services. In re Congdon (D. C. 1904) 129 Fed. 478, 11 Am. Bankr. Rep. 219; In re Mays (D. C. 1902) 114 Fed. 600, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 764; In re Tatum (D. C. 1901) 112 Fed. 50, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 52; Wilbur v. Watson (D. C. 1901) 111 Fed. 493, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 54; In re Peter Paul Book Co. (D. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 786, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 105; Stearns v. Flick (D. C. 1900) 103 Fed. 919, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 723; Hunker v. Bing (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 277; In re Cohn (D. C. 1873) 6 N. B. R. 379, Fed. Cas. No. 2,966; In re Stubbs (D. C. 1870) 4 N. B. R. 376, Fed. Cas. No. 13,557; In re Pauly, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 405. If there was nothing inherently fraudulent or illegal in the assignment and the assignee was not a party to any actual fraud, he should not be deprived of compensation for his services rendered under the assignment, in so far as the same were beneficial to the estate, merely because of the fact that the assignment was an act of bankruptcy on which creditors could, if they chose, institute proceedings. Randolph v. Scruggs (1903) 190 U. S. 533, 23 Sup. Ct. 710, 47 L. Ed. 1165, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1. And see Macdonald v. Moore (D. C. 1876) 15 N. B. R. 26, Fed. Cas. No. 8,763; White v. Hill (1889) 148 Mass. 396, 19 N. E. 407; Clark v. Sawyer (1890) 151 Mass. 64, 23 N. E. 726; Perry-Mason Shoe Co. v. Sykes (1894) 72 Miss. 390, 17 South. 171, 28 L. R. A. 277; In re Stewart (1910) 179 Fed. 222, 102 C. C. A. 348; In re Chase (1903) 124 Fed. 753, 59 C. C. A. 629, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 677; Summers v. Abbott (1903) 122 Fed. 36, 58 C. C. A. 352, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 254; In re Klein (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 523, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 559; In re Scholtz (D. C. 1901) 106 Fed. 834, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 782; Wald v. Wehl (C. C. 1881) 6 Fed. 163; Jackson v. McCulloch (C. C. 1871) 13 N. B. R. 283, Fed. Cas. No. 7,140; Catlin v. Foster (C. C. 1870) 3 N. B. R. 540, Fed. Cas. No. 2,519.

97. —— Fees of assignee's attorney.—In so far as counsel's services rendered to an assignee for creditors were beneficial to the estate, an allowance may be made for them on the surrender of the estate to a trustee in bankruptcy, and if the assignee has paid the attorney's fees, he may claim reimbursement, and if not, the attorney may claim a lien on the assets for the reasonable value of his services. Randolph v. Scruggs (1903) 190 U. S. 533, 23 Sup. Ct. 710, 47 L. Ed. 1165, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1; Summers v. Abbott (1903) 122 Fed. 36, 58 C. C. A. 352, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 254; In re Scholtz (D. C. 1901) 106 Fed. 834, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 782; Platt v. Archer (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 11,-214; In re Marble Products Co. (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 668, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 384. CONTRA, see In re Cohn (D. C. 1873) 6 N. B. R. 379, Fed. Cas. No. 2,966; Eichholz v. Polack (1910) 140 App. Div. 551, 125 N. Y. Supp. 1108. An attorney's charge for preparing the deed of assignment is not entitled to preference, though it may be proved as an unsecured claim against the bankrupt's estate. Randolph v. Scruggs (1903) 190 U. S. 533, 23 Sup. Ct. 710, 47 L. Ed. 1165, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1.

98. —— Allowance and payment of charges.—Where an assignment for the benefit of creditors is made within four months prior to the assignor's adjudication in bankruptcy, all the state court can do is to preserve the property to be administered by the bankruptcy court, and it is thereafter without power to allow any claim for services to any one except such as may in good faith have been rendered before proceedings in bankruptcy. The state court may make allowances for compensation for services rendered under an assignment for the benefit of creditors, before bankruptcy proceedings against the assignor were instituted, if the claim therefor is presented before adjudication of bankruptcy. In re Bombino (Utah, 1914) 138 P. 1155.

The assignee has a lien on the assets in his hands for his necessary expenses and the value of his services which were beneficial to the estate, and is entitled to a preference in payment. Randolph v. Scruggs (1903) 190 U. S. 533, 23 Sup. Ct. 710, 47 L. Ed. 1165, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 1; In re Chase (1903) 124 Fed. 753, 59 C. C. A. 629, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 677. Compare In re Lains (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 168, Fed. Cas. No. 7,989; In re Rogers (D. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 435, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 723. If he submits himself to the jurisdiction of the court of bankruptcy, and that court makes an order requiring him to surrender to the trustee the assets in his hands, it may expressly except from the operation of the order such sums as he may be entitled to claim by way of credit or allowance. Neill v. Jackson (D. C. 1881) 8 Fed. 144. If he is sued by the trustee in bankruptcy for the surrender of the estate, he may set off his claim for compensation and expenses against the amount demanded of him by the trustee. Catlin v. Foster (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 2,-519. In respect to such credits and allowances, the assignee must be considered as occupying the position of an "adverse claimant." And therefore the court of bankruptcy has no jurisdiction to adjudicate the merits of his claim to retain out of the estate money disbursed by him, or which he claims on account of his commission as assignee, unless he consents to the exercise of such jurisdiction. Louisville Trust Co. v. Comingor (1902) 184 U. S. 18, 22 Sup. Ct. 293, 46 L. Ed. 413, 7 Am. Bankr. Rep. 421.

IV. TIME OF TAKING EFFECT OF ACT

99. Date of approval of act.—In view of the declaration of the bankruptcy act of 1898 that it "shall go into full force and effect upon its passage," and that proceedings under state insolvency laws commenced "before the passage of this act" shall be saved, it is held that its operation in suspending the insolvency laws of the states, and depriving the courts of jurisdiction thereunder, is to be dated from the day of its approval, July 1st, and not from November 1st, the day when petitions in involuntary cases could first be filed. In re Bruss-Ritter Co. (D. C. 1898) 90 Fed. 651, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 58, holding also that the postponement of the right to file petitions in involuntary cases until four months after the passage of the bankruptcy act did not authorize state courts, in the interval, to take jurisdiction of proceedings begun under state insolvency laws (on the ground that the creditor would otherwise be without a remedy), being a mere regulation of procedure, and not a denial or impairment of the rights of suitors. And see Parmenter Mfg. Co. v. Hamilton (1898) 172 Mass. 178, 51 N. E. 529, 70 Am. St. Rep. 258.

The statute took effect from the date of its approval, rather than from the date when proceedings under it might be commenced, as to all acts done in fraud of the purpose of the statute, such as the giving of preferences or the transfer or conveyance of property in fraud of creditors, or the commission of an act of bankruptcy. Leidigh Carriage Co. v. Stengel (1899) 95 Fed. 637, 37 C. C. A. 210, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 383; Blake, Moffitt & Towne v. Francis-Valentine Co. (D. C. 1898) 89 Fed. 691, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 372.

100. —— Fractions of a day.—Where the endeavor is made to save the validity of a transfer or mortgage of property recorded on the same day on which the bankruptcy act was approved, evidence is admissible to show that the instrument in question was actually placed on the record several hours before the President approved the act by his signature. In re Wynne (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 18,117. But in the absence of evidence to show at what hour on the first day of July, 1898, the President signed his approval to the bankruptcy act, it will be presumed to have taken effect from the earliest moment of that day; and therefore, under the provision that "no petition for involuntary bankruptcy shall be filed within four months of the passage" of the act, such a petition, filed on the first day of November, 1898, was not premature. Leidigh Carriage Co. v. Stengel (1899) 95 Fed. 637, 37 C. C. A. 210, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 383.

V. EFFECT OF ACT ON STATE INSOLVENCY LAWS

101. Validity of state insolvency laws.—Insolvency laws may be passed by the several states, regulating the distribution of the estates of insolvent debtors, on their own petition or on compulsory proceedings against them, and authorizing the discharge of debtors from their obligations and liabilities on just and reasonable terms, and the same will be operative in the absence of a national bankruptcy law. Butler v. Goreley (1892) 146 U. S. 303, 13 Sup. Ct. 84, 36 L. Ed. 981; Day v. Bardwell (1867) 97 Mass. 246; Pettitt v. Seaman (Conn. 1795) 2 Root 178; Pugh v. Bussell (Ind. 1831) 2 Blackf. 394.

102. Suspension of insolvency laws by bankruptcy act.—All state insolvency laws in force at the time of the enactment of a national bankruptcy law must yield to it, and can no longer operate upon the persons or cases within the purview of the federal statute. The latter does not repeal or destroy the state laws on the same subject, but it supersedes them and suspends their operation for the time being. Sturges v. Crowninshield (1819) 4 Wheat. 122, 4 L. Ed. 529; Ogden v. Saunders (1827) 12 Wheat. 213, 6 L. Ed. 606; Baldwin v. Hale (1863) 1 Wall. 223, 17 L. Ed. 531; In re Pickens Mfg. Co. (D. C. 1908) 158 Fed. 894, 20 Am. Bankr. Rep. 202; In re F. A. Hall Co. (D. C. 1903) 121 Fed. 992, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 88; Carling v. Seymour Lumber Co. (1902) 113 Fed. 483, 51 C. C. A. 1, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 29; In re Curtis (1899) 94 Fed. 630, 36 C. C. A. 430, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 226; Torrens v. Hammond (C. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 900; In re Smith (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 135, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 9; In re John A. Etheridge Furniture Co. (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 329, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 112; In re Bruss-Ritter Co. (D. C. 1898) 90 Fed. 651, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 58; In re Richard (D. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 633, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 506; Perry v. Langley (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 559, Fed. Cas. No. 11,006; In re Mallory (D. C. 1871) 6 N. B. R. 22, Fed. Cas. No. 8,991; In re Atkinson (D. C. 1872) 7 N. B. R. 143, Fed. Cas. No. 606; In re Temple (D. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 13,826; Ex parte Eames (C. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 4,237; In re Barrow (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 481, Fed. Cas. No. 1,057; In re Bunster (D. C. 1871) 5 N. B. R. 82, Fed. Cas. No. 2,136; In re Merchants' Ins. Co. (D. C. 1871) 6 N. B. R. 43, Fed. Cas. No. 9,441; In re Independent Ins. Co. (C. C. 1872) 6 N. B. R. 260, Fed. Cas. No. 7,017; In re Safe-Deposit & Sav. Inst. (D. C. 1872) 7 N. B. R. 392, Fed. Cas. No. 12,211; Freelander v. Holloman (D. C. 1873) 9 N. B. R. 331, Fed. Cas. No. 5,081; In re Green Pond R. Co. (D. C. 1876) 13 N. B. R. 118, Fed. Cas. No. 5,786; Harbaugh v. Costello (1900) 184 Ill. 110, 56 N. E. 363, 75 Am. St. Rep. 147; First Nat. Bank v. Ware (1901) 95 Me. 388, 50 Atl. 24; Parmenter Mfg. Co. v. Hamilton (1898) 172 Mass. 178, 51 N. E. 529, 70 Am. St. Rep. 258; Foley-Bean Lumber Co. v. Sawyer (1899) 76 Minn. 118, 78 N. W. 1038; Armour Packing Co. v. Brown (1899) 76 Minn. 465, 79 N. W. 522; E. C. Wescott Co. v. Berry (1899) 69 N. H. 505, 45 Atl. 352; Potts v. Smith Mfg. Co. (1904) 25 Pa. Super. Ct. 206; Hickman v. Parlin-Orendorf Co. (1909) 88 Ark. 519, 115 S. W. 371; Rosenfeld v. Siegfried (1901) 91 Mo. App. 169; Mauran v. Crown Carpet Lining Co. (1901) 23 R. I. 324, 50 Atl. 331; Hoover v. Ober (1910) 42 Pa. Super. Ct. 308; Martin v. Berry (1869) 37 Cal. 208; Barber v. Rodgers (1872) 71 Pa. 362; Hudson v. Bigham (Tenn. 1873) 12 Heisk. 58, 8 N. B. R. 494; Rowe v. Page (1874) 54 N. H. 190, 13 N. B. R. 366; In re McKee (Ky.) 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 139;

In re Reynolds (1867) 8 R. I. 485, 9 N. B. R. 50, 5 Am. Rep. 615; Lavender v. Gosnell (1875) 43 Md. 153, 12 N. B. R. 282; Steelman v. Mattix (1873) 36 N. J. Law, 344; Fisk v. Montgomery (1869) 21 La. Ann. 446; Van Nostrand v. Carr (1869) 30 Md. 128; Boese v. Locke (N. Y. 1877) 53 How. Prac. 148; Commonwealth v. O'Hara (Pa. 1867) 6 Phila. 402. CONTRA, In re Scholtz (D. C. 1901) 106 Fed. 834, 5 Am. Bankr. Rep. 782.

A state insolvency law, being only superseded by the enactment of a national bankruptcy law, is revived by the repeal of the federal statute, without the necessity of its being re-enacted as a law of the state. Butler v. Goreley (1892) 146 U. S. 303, 13 Sup. Ct. 84, 36 L. Ed. 981; Tua v. Carriere (1886) 117 U. S. 201, 6 Sup. Ct. 565, 29 L. Ed. 855; In re Wright (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 807, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 592; Lothrop v. Highland Foundry Co. (1880) 128 Mass. 120; Ward v. Proctor (Mass. 1843) 7 Metc. 318, 39 Am. Dec. 782; Lavender v. Gosnell (1875) 43 Md. 153, 12 N. B. R. 282; Orr v. Lisso (1881) 33 La. Ann. 476. The legislation of Congress on the subject of bankruptcy does not annul that of a state in any such sense that the state law may not be amended without re-enactment after its operation is revived by the repeal of the act of Congress. Torrens v. Hammond (C. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 900. Where a court of bankruptcy refuses to grant a discharge to a bankrupt before it, his creditors, after the repeal of the bankruptcy law, may take proceedings against him under the state insolvency law and prove their claims against his estate. Fisher v. Currier (Mass. 1844) 7 Metc. 424. A state insolvency law, suspended during the operation of a national bankruptcy law and revived by its repeal, may take cognizance of all acts within its provisions done while it was so suspended, and will apply to contracts made during that time. Palmer v. Hixon (1883) 74 Me. 447. A conveyance by way of preference, made by an insolvent debtor, in contravention of the provisions of the insolvency law of the state, while the federal bankruptcy act is in force, is a sufficient cause for instituting proceedings in insolvency against the debtor after the repeal of the bankruptcy act. Lothrop v. Highland Foundry Co. (1880) 128 Mass. 120.

It is competent for a state legislature to enact, amend, or repeal a state insolvency law while the bankruptcy act is in force. A state law of this character, passed while the federal act is operative, will not come into effect at once, but this does not make it void ab initio. The legislature has the power to make the time when its enactment shall take effect depend upon the happening of some future event. This event being the repeal of the bankruptcy law, the postponement of the efficiency of the state law until it occurs may be implied, and until that time the insolvency law will remain in abeyance. Tua v. Carriere (1886) 117 U. S. 201, 6 Sup. Ct. 565, 29 L. Ed. 855; In re Wright (D. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 807, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 592; Damon's Appeal (1879) 70 Me. 153; Boedefeld v. Reed (1880) 55 Cal. 299; Lewis v. County Clerk (1880) 55 Cal. 604; Seattle Coal Co. v. Thomas (1881) 57 Cal. 197; In re Peckham's Assigned Estate (1908) 35 Pa. Super. Ct. 330.

103. What state laws affected.—A state law which authorizes proceedings against a debtor which are distinctly in the nature of insolvency proceedings is superseded by the national bankruptcy law. Capital Lumber Co. v. Saunders (1914) 26 Idaho, 408, 143 Pac. 1178.

A state law which provides for administration upon the effects of an insolvent debtor and their distribution among the creditors is an "insolvency law," so as to be superseded by the national bankruptcy law, though it does not authorize a discharge of the debtor from his liabilities. In re Merchants' Ins. Co. (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 9,441. Compare Ex parte Rank (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 11,566. Or although it only authorizes a state officer to recommend to the creditors of the defendant that they should release him from further liability. Carling v. Seymour Lumber Co. (1902) 113 Fed. 483, 51 C. C. A. 1, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 29. Under Civ. Code La. art. 3098, if creditors accept the debtor's propositions and grant him a respite, the proceeding is not in the nature of an insolvency proceeding, and there is no conflict with the bankruptcy law. But if they reject the proposal and vote for the appointment of a syndic to collect and administer his property under the state insolvency law, this is incompatible with the bankruptcy law, and the state law in such a case must give way. Duffy v. His Creditors (1909) 122 La. 600, 48 South. 120.

A state law which merely protects the person of a debtor from imprisonment, without affecting the debt or contract or the other means for its enforcement, or which provides only for the release of poor debtors arrested on civil process, is not of such a nature as to be suspended by the bankruptcy law. Sullivan v. Hieskill (D. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 13,594; Ex parte Jacobs (N. Y. 1871) 12 Abb. Prac. N. S. 273; Jordan v. Hall (1869) 9 R. I. 220, 11 Am. Rep. 245. The bankruptcy act does not affect the general laws of the states providing for the settlement of the estates of insolvent deceased persons. Hawkins v. Learned (1874) 54 N. H. 333. The bankruptcy law does not suspend a state law enabling a creditor to prevent the departure of his debtor from the state. Gottschalk v. Meyer (1876) 28 La. Ann. 885. Or one which authorizes the arrest and imprisonment of a judgment debtor on a showing that he is about to remove or has concealed property with intent to defraud his creditors, though it also provides that he may be released on giving bond to apply for the benefit of the state insolvency law and comply with its requirements. Ex parte Crawford (1907) 154 Fed. 769, 83 C. C. A. 474, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 618. A statute designed to prevent debtors, in contemplation of insolvency, from giving preferences to favored creditors, is not a bankruptcy law and is not suspended by the act of Congress. Grunsfeld Bros. v. Brownell (1904) 12 N. M. 192, 76 Pac. 310. A statute which confers on resident creditors priority in the distribution of the assets of foreign corporations doing business within the state is not suspended by the national bankruptcy law. In re Standard Oak Veneer Co. (D. C. 1909) 173 Fed. 103, 22 Am. Bankr. Rep. 883. An action brought by a receiver in proceedings supplementary to execution is not a proceeding commenced under a state insolvency law, within the meaning of the saving clause of the bankruptcy act regarding such proceedings pending at the time of its taking effect. In re Meyers, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 293.

104. —— Winding up insolvent corporations.—When proceedings are begun under a state statute to dissolve an insolvent corporation or forfeit its charter, and to wind up its affairs and distribute its assets, the attempt is made to cover the same ground and administer the same relief that would be obtained under the bankruptcy law, and if a proceeding in bankruptcy against the corporation is thereupon commenced in the proper federal court within four months, this will displace the proceedings in the state court and put an end to its jurisdiction. In re Watts (1903) 190 U. S. 1, 23 Sup. Ct. 718, 47 L. Ed. 933, 10 Am. Bankr. Rep. 113. And see In re Standard Fuller's Earth Co. (D. C. 1911) 186 Fed. 578, 26 Am. Bankr. Rep. 862; In re Standard Cordage Co. (D. C. 1910) 184 Fed. 156, 30 Am. Bankr. Rep. 448; In re Storck Lumber Co. (D. C. 1902) 114 Fed. 360, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 86; Chandler v. Siddle (C. C. 1874) 10 N. B. R. 236, Fed. Cas. No. 2,594; French v. O'Brien (N. Y. 1876) 52 How. Prac. 394; Barber v. International Co. (1901) 73 Conn. 587, 48 Atl. 758; Moody v. Port Clyde Development Co. (1907) 102 Me. 365, 66 Atl. 967; Watson v. Citizens' Sav. Bank (S. C. 1851) 5 Rich. 159; State v. Superior Court of King County (D. C. 1912) 20 Wash. 545, 56 Pac. 35, 45 L. R. A. 177; In re Weedman Stave Co. (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 948, 29 Am. Bankr. Rep. 460; Continental Building & Loan Ass'n v. Superior Court (1912) 163 Cal. 579, 126 Pac. 476. The persons whom the state court has placed in charge of the corporation for the purpose of winding it up, whether called receivers, commissioners, liquidators, or by any other name, cannot successfully oppose its adjudication in bankruptcy on the ground of the pending proceedings in the state court; and if the state law is to be regarded as an insolvency law, their appointment must be treated as void by the bankruptcy court, and they have no standing in the latter court to be heard on the petition for adjudication in bankruptcy. Thornhill v. Bank of Louisiana (C. C. 1870) 5 N. B. R. 367, Fed. Cas. No. 13,992. And see In re Salmon & Salmon (D. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 395, 16 Am. Bankr. Rep. 122.

The bankruptcy law does not necessarily deprive a state court of jurisdiction conferred by a state law to dissolve a local corporation, even though the reason for exercising such jurisdiction be the insolvency of such corporation. Nothing in the bankruptcy act prevents the winding up of a defunct corporation under a state statute and by a state court, where bankruptcy proceedings are not seasonably instituted. The jurisdiction of a state court to appoint a receiver of, and to wind up, an insolvent corporation, is not affected by bankruptcy proceedings, instituted more than four months after the appointment of the receiver, in pursuance of the provisions of the bankruptcy act. Lyon v. Russell (1914) 41 App. D. C. 554.

105. —— Foreclosure and receivership.—Where the main purpose of a suit is to foreclose a mortgage, and there is also an incidental prayer for relief appropriate to insolvency proceedings, a receiver's possession thereunder will not be affected by a subsequent adjudication in bankruptcy. But where the main purpose is to obtain relief appropriate only in insolvency proceedings, the fact that a mortgage may be foreclosed as an incident thereto will not save the case from the nullifying effect of bankruptcy proceedings on pending insolvency proceedings. Merry v. Jones (1904) 119 Ga. 643, 46 S. E. 861. An action to cancel certain deeds and subject the land to liens, when converted by amendment into a proceeding to subject the debtor's equity in the land to the liens, not being a general insolvency proceeding, was unaffected by the debtor's subsequent adjudication as a bankrupt more than four months after the liens were obtained. Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co. v. Rylee (1913) 78 S. E. 27, 139 Ga. 669.

106. Cases not covered by bankruptcy law.—As to any cases not covered by the bankruptcy law, or expressly or impliedly omitted from its operation, the insolvency laws of the several states are not superseded, but may be put into effect. Johnson v. Crawford (C. C. 1907) 154 Fed. 761, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 608; In re Wilmington Hosiery Co. (D. C. 1903) 120 Fed. 180, 9 Am. Bankr. Rep. 581; In re Worcester County (1900) 102 Fed. 808, 42 C. C. A. 637, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 496; In re Reynolds (1867) 8 R. I. 485, 9 N. B. R. 50, 5 Am. Rep. 615; Singer v. National Bedstead Mfg. Co. (1903) 65 N. J. Eq. 290, 55 Atl. 868; Appeal of Geery (1876) 43 Conn. 289, 21 Am. Rep. 653; Pugh v. Bussel (Ind. 1831) 2 Blackf. 394; Fisk v. Montgomery (1869) 21 La. Ann. 446; Simpson v. City Sav. Bank (1876) 56 N. H. 466, 15 N. B. R. 385, 22 Am. Rep. 491; Steelman v. Mattix (1873) 36 N. J. Law, 344. Prior to the amendment of 1910, the bankruptcy act made no provision for the voluntary bankruptcy of corporations, but excluded them from taking the benefit of the act in that form, and it was held that it did not prevent a state court from taking jurisdiction of a stockholder's suit for the appointment of a receiver and for winding up the affairs of the corporation, in the absence of proceedings in involuntary bankruptcy against it. Roberts Cotton Oil Co. v. F. E. Morse & Co. (1911) 97 Ark. 513, 135 S. W. 334; Keystone Driller Co. v. Superior Court of San Francisco (1903) 138 Cal. 738, 72 Pac. 398. If proceedings under a state insolvency law, or under a law for the winding up of insolvent corporations, are commenced against a corporation which is not amenable to the bankruptcy law, but which is within the terms of the state law, such proceedings are not contrary to the bankruptcy law nor suspended by it. State Nat. Bank v. Syndicate Co. of Eureka Springs (C. C. 1910) 178 Fed. 359; Dille v. People (1905) 118 Ill. App. 426; Rogers v. Boston Club (1910) 205 Mass. 261, 91 N. E. 321, 28 L. R. A. (N. S.) 743; R. H. Herron Co. v. Superior Court of San Francisco (1902) 136 Cal. 279, 68 Pac. 814, 89 Am. St. Rep. 124; Simpson v. City Sav. Bank (1876) 56 N. H. 466, 15 N. B. R. 385, 22 Am. Rep. 491. Since the bankruptcy act forbids the institution of involuntary proceedings against "a wage-earner or a person engaged chiefly in farming or the tillage of the soil," the insolvency law of the state is not suspended as to such persons, but may be put into operation against them if they come within its terms. Old Town Bank v. McCormick (1903) 96 Md. 341, 53 Atl. 934, 60 L. R. A. 577, 94 Am. St. Rep. 577; Hoover v. Ober (1910) 42 Pa. Super. Ct. 308; Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Gass (1905) 29 Pa. Super. Ct. 125; Miller v. Jackson (1907) 34 Pa. Super. Ct. 31; In re Rittenhouse's Insolvent Estate (1906) 30 Pa. Super. Ct. 468; Lace v. Smith (1912) 34 R. I. 1, 82 Atl. 268. The field of voluntary bankruptcy of one engaged chiefly in farming being covered by the bankruptcy act of 1898, it supersedes the state insolvency laws as to voluntary assignment of such a person, so that the state court has no jurisdiction to administer his assigned estate. Rockville Nat. Bank v. Latham (1914) 89 A. 1117, 88 Conn. 70. The national bankruptcy law does not supersede a state insolvency law in cases where the insolvent debtor owes debts less than $1,000 in amount. Landis Machine Co. v. Cooper (1913) 53 Pa. Super. Ct. 416; Appeal of Shepardson (1869) 36 Conn. 23; Corner v. Miller, 1 N. B. R. 403. CONTRA, Littlefield v. Gay (1902) 96 Me. 422, 52 Atl. 925. The act of congress does not suspend state insolvency laws so far as concerns debts and claims of a nature not to be dischargeable in bankruptcy. Johnson v. Crawford (C. C. 1907) 154 Fed. 761, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 608; In re Winternitz (1870) 7 Phila. 380, 18 Pittsb. Leg. J. (N. S.) 61. The bankruptcy does not supersede or suspend the operation of poor debtor laws and those which provide for the release of insolvent convicts, the bankruptcy law having no provision adapted to these cases. Johnson v. Crawford (C. C. 1907) 154 Fed. 761, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 608.

A state law which provides for the sequestration of the entire estate of an absconding or concealed debtor, on a writ of attachment, for the appointment of trustees to be vested with title to such estate, and for its distribution to creditors, is not in conflict with the bankruptcy law, and is not suspended or superseded by it. McCullough v. Goodhart, 1 Nat. Bankr. News, 512. And see Scully v. Kirkpatrick (1876) 79 Pa. 324.

107. Laws regulating assignments for creditors.—An assignment for the benefit of creditors, made as at common law, and not under a state insolvency law, will be valid unless it is impeached and overthrown by proceedings in bankruptcy begun within the statutory time. In re Sievers (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 366, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 117; Pogue v. Rowe (1908) 236 Ill. 157, 86 N. E. 207; Thompson v. Shaw (1908) 104 Me. 85, 71 Atl. 370; Cook v. Rogers (1875) 31 Mich. 391, 13 N. B. R. 97; In re Hawkins (1868) 34 Conn. 548, 2 N. B. R. 378; Haas v. O'Brien (1876) 66 N. Y. 597, 16 N. B. R. 508; Von Hein v. Elkus, 15 N. B. R. 194. A creditor who does not assent to an assignment for the benefit of creditors is entitled to attack it in any appropriate proceeding, and is not required to resort to a petition in bankruptcy as a means of avoiding it. Moore v. Cushing (1911) 116 Minn. 142, 133 N. W. 561, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 816. Bankruptcy act recognizes right of bankrupt to make voluntary assignment of his property to avoid attachments thereon and secure an equal distribution among all creditors. Bell v. Blessing (C. C. A. 1915) 225 Fed. 750. The national bankruptcy act suspended state laws concerning assignments for the benefit of creditors, leaving such assignments to be governed by the common law. Sabin v. Chrisman (Or. 1916) 154 P. 908.

Statutes which provide that any assignment, mortgage, or deed of trust, made by a debtor in contemplation of insolvency and for the purpose of giving a preference, shall operate as an assignment and transfer of all his property and inure to the benefit of all his creditors pro rata, if proceedings for that purpose are begun within a limited time, are not insolvency laws in such sense as to be suspended or superseded by the bankruptcy law. Linthicum v. Fenley (Ky. 1875) 11 Bush, 131; Ebersole v. Adams (Ky. 1873) 10 Bush, 83, 13 N. B. R. 141; Downer v. Porter (1903) 116 Ky. 422, 76 S. W. 135; Louisville Dry Goods Co. v. Lanman (1909) 135 Ky. 163, 121 S. W. 1042, 28 L. R. A. (N. S.) 363, 135 Am. St. Rep. 451. See Martin v. Hausman (C. C. 1882) 14 Fed. 160.

Statutes which require an assignment for the benefit of creditors to be recorded, and give to a state court the control of the settlement and administration of the estate, and which require the assignee to file a bond and an inventory, and provide that creditors who wish to claim under the assignment must present their claims within a stated time, and authorize the collection of assets by the assignee by suit, and his discharge on settlement of the trust, and provide for the distribution of the assigned estate among the creditors pro rata, are not necessarily insolvency laws, and proceedings commenced under them are not void merely by reason of the existence of a national bankruptcy law, though they are liable to be avoided at the instance of a trustee in bankruptcy of the insolvent assignor appointed in the bankruptcy proceedings in a proper federal court. Mayer v. Hellman (1875) 91 U. S. 496, 13 N. B. R. 440, 23 L. Ed. 377; In re Gutwillig (D. C. 1898) 90 Fed. 475, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 78; In re Sievers (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 366, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 117; In re Farrell (1910) 176 Fed. 505, 100 C. C. A. 63, 23 Am. Bankr. Rep. 826; Peck v. Parker (1870) 65 Pa. 262, 3 Am. Rep. 625; Strong v. Carrier (1845) 17 Conn. 319; Duryea v. Guthrie (1903) 117 Wis. 399, 94 N. W. 365; Binder v. McDonald (1900) 106 Wis. 332, 82 N. W. 156; Patty-Joiner & Eubank Co. v. Cummins (Tex. Civ. App. 1900) 59 S. W. 297.

State statutes which treat an assignment for the benefit of creditors as an act of insolvency, and direct the administration of the estate to proceed as would be the case in voluntary proceedings under an insolvency law, and provide that any creditor who has not proved his claim shall be debarred from prosecuting an action on it, thus granting an insolvent a discharge from his provable debts, are in effect insolvency laws and their operation is suspended by the enactment of the national bankruptcy law. In re Curtis (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 737, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 440; In re Smith (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 135, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 9; Lyman v. Bond (1881) 130 Mass. 291; Baxter County Bank v. Copeland (Ark. 1914) 169 S. W. 1180; Pelton v. Sheridan (Or. 1914) 144 Pac. 410; First Nat. Bank of Bandon v. Manassa (Or. 1915) 150 Pac. 258. The statute of Indiana (Rev. St. 1881, §§ 2662–2683, inclusive; 2 Burns' Rev. St. 1894, §§ 2899–2920, inclusive) regulating assignments for the benefit of creditors, and investing the circuit courts of the state with jurisdiction and control over the administration of estates so assigned, including the proof and allowance of claims, the collection and distribution of assets, and the discharge of the assignee, is an insolvency law, and its operation was suspended by the enactment of the bankruptcy act of 1898. In re Smith (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 135. A decision of the supreme court of a state that a statute of that state regulating the administration and distribution of estates under general assignments for the benefit of creditors is an insolvency law, will be followed by the federal courts of bankruptcy in deciding upon the effect of the enactment of the national bankruptcy law upon the operation of such a statute. In re Curtis (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 737, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 440.

If no proceedings are instituted in a court of bankruptcy within the time limited, for the adjudication of the assignor as a bankrupt, and for the purpose of securing the administration of the property in that court, the assignment will be valid, at least for the purpose of securing an equal distribution of the estate among the creditors; that is, it will be valid as at common law, though not as an attempt to invoke the state insolvency law. Boese v. King (1883) 108 U. S. 379, 2 Sup. Ct. 765, 27 L. Ed. 760; In re Romanow (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 510, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 461; Johnson v. Crawford (C. C. 1907) 154 Fed. 761, 18 Am. Bankr. Rep. 608; Ostrander v. Meunch (C. C. 1881) 12 Fed. 562; Wald v. Wehl (C. C. 1881) 6 Fed. 163; Boese v. King (1879) 78 N. Y. 471; Pogue v. Rowe (1908) 236 Ill. 157, 86 N. E. 207; Armour Packing Co. v. Brown (1899) 76 Minn. 465, 79 N. W. 522; Binder v. McDonald (1900) 106 Wis. 332, 82 N. W. 156; Patty-Joiner & Eubank Co. v. Cummins (1900) 93 Tex. 598, 57 S. W. 566; Hilliard v. Burlington Shoe Co. (1903) 76 Vt. 57, 56 Atl. 283; Hoague v. Cumner (1905) 187 Mass. 296, 72 N. E. 956; Louisville Dry Goods Co. v. Lanman (1909) 135 Ky. 163, 121 S. W. 1042, 28 L. R. A. (N. S.) 363, 135 Am. St. Rep. 451; Lucas v. Lucas' Assignee, 76 S. W. 371, 25 Ky. Law Rep. 822; Barnes v. Rettew (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 1,019; Sparhawk v. Drexel (C. C. 1874) 12 N. B. R. 450, Fed. Cas. No. 13,204; Seaman v. Stoughton (N. Y. 1848) 3 Barb. Ch. 344; Strong v. Carrier (1845) 17 Conn. 319; Cook v. Rogers (1875) 31 Mich. 391; Bostwick v. Burnett (1878) 74 N. Y. 317; Maltbie v. Hotchkiss (1871) 38 Conn. 80, 5 N. B. R. 485, 9 Am. Rep. 364; Atkins v. Spear (Mass. 1844) 8 Metc. 490; Sadler v. Immel (1880) 15 Nev. 265; Thrasher v. Bentley (1874) 59 N. Y. 649; Williams v. Pitts (N. Y. 1878) 55 How. Prac. 331.

A general assignment by an insolvent debtor, though made for the equal and common benefit of all his creditors, without preferences, and without any actual fraudulent intent, either as to creditors or as to the evasion of the bankruptcy law, is an act of bankruptcy, upon which the assignor may be adjudged bankrupt, if proceedings are begun within four months thereafter, and if the other requisites as to jurisdiction are found to exist. Boese v. King (1883) 108 U. S. 379, 2 Sup. Ct. 765, 27 L. Ed. 760; Davis v. Bohle (1899) 92 Fed. 325, 34 C. C. A. 372, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 412; In re Sievers (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 366, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 117; Cragin v. Thompson (C. C. 1873) 12 N. B. R. 81, Fed. Cas. No. 3,320; Perry v. Langley (D. C. 1868) 1 N. B. R. 559, Fed. Cas. No. 11,006; In re Pierce (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 258, Fed. Cas. No. 11,141; In re Smith (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 377, Fed. Cas. No. 12,974; Barnes v. Rettew (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 1,019; Barton v. Tower (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 1,085; In re Burt (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 2,210; In re Chamberlain (D. C. 1870) 3 N. B. R. 710, Fed. Cas. No. 2,574; In re Croft (D. C. 1878) 17 N. B. R. 324, Fed. Cas. No. 3,404; Jones v. Sleeper (D. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 7,496; In re Kasson (D. C. 1878) 18 N. B. R. 379, Fed. Cas. No. 7,617; In re Romanow (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 510, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 461; Spicer v. Ward (D. C. 1870) 3 N. B. R. 512, Fed. Cas. No. 13,241; In re Randall (D. C. 1869) 3 N. B. R. 18, Fed. Cas. No. 11,551.

The complete jurisdiction of the court of bankruptcy over the estate of the bankrupt is not affected by the fact that an assignment for the benefit of creditors under the state law had been made prior to the adjudication. The trustee in bankruptcy takes title to the whole of the estate, including that assigned; the assignment is voidable at his instance; and he may recover the property or its proceeds from the assignee. Davis v. Bohle (1899) 92 Fed. 325, 34 C. C. A. 372, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 412; In re Gutwillig (1899) 92 Fed. 337, 34 C. C. A. 377, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 388; In re Sievers (D. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 366, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 117; In re Gutwillig (D. C. 1898) 90 Fed. 475, 1 Am. Bankr. Rep. 78; In re Smith (D. C. 1899) 92 Fed. 135, 2 Am. Bankr. Rep. 9; In re Troth (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 405; Pool v. McDonald (C. C. 1877) 15 N. B. R. 560, Fed. Cas. No. 11,268; Cragin v. Thompson (C. C. 1873) 12 N. B. R. 81, Fed. Cas. No. 3,320; In re Temple (D. C. 1876) 17 N. B. R. 345, Fed. Cas. No. 13,825; Macdonald v. Moore (D. C. 1876) 15 N. B. R. 26, Fed. Cas. No. 8,763; Boese v. Locke (N. Y. 1879) 17 Hun, 270. Compare Morning Telegraph Pub. Co. v. S. B. Hutchinson Co. (1906) 146 Mich. 38, 109 N. W. 42; Scott v. Grinstead (1881) 4 Ky. Law Rep. 614. Where a chattel mortgagor assigned for the benefit of creditors under Comp. St. Wyo. 1910, §§ 3366–3396, specific prior lien of mortgagee was enforceable against the property in the hands of the assignee claiming under the state insolvency law, suspended by the national bankruptcy act of 1898. Hasbrouck v. La Febre (Wyo. 1915) 152 P. 168.

If the debtor is adjudged bankrupt, and a trustee appointed, but not until more than four months from the making of the assignment, the latter will not have the right to set aside the assignment, nor will he be entitled to the possession and administration of the estate as against the voluntary assignee. In such a case, the trustee in bankruptcy, saving questions of fraud, will take only such rights as the bankrupt had and could himself claim at the time of the bankruptcy. Mayer v. Hellman (1875) 91 U. S. 496, 13 N. B. R. 440, 23 L. Ed. 377; In re Arledge (D. C. 1873) 1 N. B. R. 644, Fed. Cas. No. 533; In re Kimball (D. C. 1877) 16 N. B. R. 188, Fed. Cas. No. 7,770.

108. Effect of suspension of state insolvency laws.—A national bankruptcy law being in existence, it is the right and duty of state courts to refuse to take jurisdiction of proceedings attempted to be instituted under the state insolvency law, and when an insolvent files a petition in a state court seeking the benefit of that law, the court should dismiss the petition. Van Nostrand v. Carr (1869) 30 Md. 128, 2 N. B. R. 485; Harbaugh v. Costello (1900) 184 Ill. 110, 56 N. E. 363, 75 Am. St. Rep. 147; Barber v. International Co. of Mexico (1901) 73 Conn. 587, 48 Atl. 758.

In a case where proceedings are pending in a state court under the state insolvency law and in a federal court under the bankruptcy law, against the same debtor, the federal court may stay the action in the state court, and if an assignee has been appointed under the state law, he may be enjoined from taking possession of the property of the insolvent or required to surrender it to the trustee in bankruptcy. Ex parte Eames (C. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 4,237.

During the existence of a national bankruptcy law, all proceedings under a state insolvency law are null and void for all purposes. Thornhill v. Bank of Louisiana (C. C. 1870) 5 N. B. R. 367, Fed. Cas. No. 13,992; Littlefield v. Gay (1902) 96 Me. 422, 52 Atl. 925; Martin v. Berry (1869) 37 Cal. 208, 2 N. B. R. 629; Comm. v. O'Hara, 1 N. B. R. 86. A discharge granted to the insolvent under the state law, as the result of proceedings had while the national bankruptcy law was operative and would have been applicable to his case, is entirely inoperative and constitutes no defense to an action subsequently brought against him by a domestic creditor. Shears v. Solhinger (N. Y. 1870) 10 Abb. Prac. N. S. 287; Cassard v. Kroner (Md.) 4 N. B. R. 569. An assignee under the state law has no title or claim to the property of the debtor such as will enable him to maintain an action for its recovery against a third person, the existence of the bankruptcy law, which would be applicable to the debtor, being a full defense to such an action; and this, although no proceedings under the federal statute are ever had against the insolvent. Griswold v. Pratt (Mass. 1845) 9 Metc. 16. Compare Shryock v. Basehore (1876) 82 Pa. 159, 15 N. B. R. 283. The trustee in insolvency acquires no such interest in the insolvent's estate as will entitle him to maintain an action to set aside a fraudulent and preferential conveyance, although no adjudication of bankruptcy has been had against the insolvent in the federal courts. Ketcham v. McNamara (1900) 72 Conn. 709, 46 Atl. 146, 50 L. R. A. 641. The invalidity of proceedings had under a state insolvency law, including the invalidity of the pretended title of the assignee under such law, by reason of the existence at the time of a national bankruptcy law, may be asserted, with effect, in a contest between attaching creditors and such assignee. Rowe v. Page (1874) 54 N. H. 190, 13 N. B. R. 366; Shryock v. Basehore (1876) 82 Pa. 159, 15 N. B. R. 283. Compare Cook v. Rogers (1875) 31 Mich. 391, 13 N. B. R. 97; Reed v. Taylor (1871) 32 Iowa, 209, 4 N. B. R. 710, 7 Am. Rep. 180.

Numerous cases hold that proceedings may be had and jurisdiction exercised under the state laws until their authority is called in question by the bankruptcy courts; that judicial action taken, and titles accruing, under the insolvency laws are voidable at the most; and that they are not to be avoided unless proceedings in bankruptcy are instituted, and then only at the instance of the trustee in bankruptcy. Carling v. Seymour Lumber Co. (1902) 113 Fed. 483, 51 C. C. A. 1, 8 Am. Bankr. Rep. 29; Boston Mercantile Co. v. Ould-Carter Co. (1905) 123 Ga. 458, 51 S. E. 466; Patty-Joiner & Eubank Co. v. Cummins (1900) 93 Tex. 598, 57 S. W. 566; State v. Superior Court of King County (1899) 20 Wash. 545, 56 Pac. 35, 45 L. R. A. 177; Jensen-King-Byrd Co. v. Williams (1904) 35 Wash. 161, 76 Pac. 934; Lavender v. Gosnell (1875) 43 Md. 153, 12 N. B. R. 282; Steelman v. Mattix (1873) 36 N. J. Law, 344; Reed v. Taylor (1871) 32 Iowa, 209, 4 N. B. R. 710, 7 Am. Rep. 180; Cook v. Rogers (1875) 31 Mich. 391, 13 N. B. R. 97; Ebersole v. Adams (Ky. 1873) 10 Bush, 83, 13 N. B. R. 141; Maltbie v. Hotchkiss (1871) 38 Conn. 80, 5 N. B. R. 485, 9 Am. Rep. 364. Notwithstanding the existence of a bankruptcy law which would be applicable to the case the parties interested may, by consent, use the state law as a means of collecting and distributing the debtor's estate. Should proceedings in bankruptcy be instituted and the federal court claim the administration of the estate, the state courts would yield; but in the absence of such a claim, the mere fact that a federal law is in existence, under which proceedings might be taken, is no objection to the jurisdiction of the state court. Maltbie v. Hotchkiss (1871) 38 Conn. 80, 9 Am. Rep. 364. Where a state insolvency law gives priority of payment out of insolvents' estates to a certain class of debts, the same debts will be entitled to priority of payment out of bankrupts' estates. In re Worcester County (1900) 102 Fed. 808, 42 C. C. A. 637, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 496. Where the main purpose of a suit is to foreclose a mortgage, and there is also an incidental prayer for relief appropriate to insolvency proceedings, a receiver's possession of the property mortgaged will not be affected by a subsequent adjudication in bankruptcy. Nelson v. Spence (1907) 129 Ga. 35, 58 S. E. 697.

Where the debtor refuses to file his voluntary petition in bankruptcy, and yet refrains from committing any act of bankruptcy on which his creditors could proceed, there is no possibility of conflict between courts; and proceedings under the state law, even though compulsory in their nature, may be sustained for the purpose of securing an equal distribution of the debtor's property among his creditors. Appeal of Geery (1876) 43 Conn. 289, 21 Am. Rep. 653.

109. Pending proceedings under state laws.—The bankruptcy law does not deprive the state courts of the jurisdiction necessary to the final administration of the estate of an insolvent against whom, or by whom voluntarily, proceedings under the state insolvency law had been instituted before the passage of the federal statute, but the state court may proceed with the case to its final conclusion, and its action in the matter will be as valid as if no national bankruptcy law had been enacted. First Nat. Bank v. Ware (1901) 95 Me. 388, 50 Atl. 24; Hood v. Blair State Bank (1902) 3 Neb. (Unof.) 432, 91 N. W. 701; Osborn v. Fender (1903) 88 Minn. 309, 92 N. W. 1114; Meekins v. Creditors (1867) 19 La. Ann. 497, 3 N. B. R. 511; Martin v. Berry (1869) 37 Cal. 208, 2 N. B. R. 629; Lavender v. Gosnell (1875) 43 Md. 153, 12 N. B. R. 282; Longis v. Creditors (1868) 20 La. Ann. 15; In re Holmes (D. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 6,633; In re Horton (C. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 6,708. When a state insolvency law provides that the insolvent, on being convicted of fraud, shall be "forever" deprived of the benefit of laws passed in favor of insolvent debtors in the state, the most that can be adjudged against an insolvent in this situation is to deprive him of the benefit of the particular state law under which the proceedings are had, that is, to deny him a discharge. Longis v. Creditors (1868) 20 La. Ann. 15. The pendency of proceedings in insolvency under a state law, on the debtor's voluntary petition, begun before the passage of the bankruptcy act, will not be ground for dismissing the debtor's subsequent voluntary petition in bankruptcy, although he has contracted no new debts, where it appears that one or more of the creditors scheduled by the bankrupt are citizens of other states than that in which the insolvency proceedings were instituted, because in this case the bankruptcy law can afford the debtor a more extensive relief than he could obtain under the state law. In re Mussey (D. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 71, 3 Am. Bankr. Rep. 592. Where proceedings in insolvency against a partnership and the individuals composing it were begun in a state court, before the passage of the bankruptcy act, and remained pending at the time one of the partners was individually adjudged bankrupt, but no discharge had been granted or applied for under the state law, it was held that a debt of the partnership was provable in the bankruptcy proceedings, notwithstanding the fact that it had been proved and allowed in the insolvency proceedings and that there were assets of the firm for distribution in the state court; but such debt could not share in the individual assets of the bankrupt until his separate creditors had been paid. In re Bates (D. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 263, 4 Am. Bankr. Rep. 56.

§ 9655. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 71, as amended, Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 17.) Bankruptcy records; duty of clerks to keep; inspection.

The clerks of the several district courts of the United States shall prepare and keep in their respective offices complete and convenient indexes of all petitions and discharges in bankruptcy heretofore or hereafter filed in the said courts, and shall, when requested so to do, issue certificates of search certifying as to whether or not any such petitions or discharges have been filed; and said clerks shall be entitled to receive for such certificates the same fees as now allowed by law for certificates as to judgments in said courts: Provided, That said bankruptcy indexes and dockets shall at all times be open to inspection and examination by all persons or corporations without any fee or charge therefor. (32 Stat. 800.)

This section was added, as a new section, to the Bankruptcy Act of July 1, 1898, c. 541, by amendment by Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 17, cited above.

Section 19 of said amendatory Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, 32 Stat. 801, provided that the act should not apply to bankruptcy cases pending when it took effect, but that such cases should be adjudicated and disposed of conformably to the provisions of the original act.

§ 9656. (Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 72, as amended, Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 18, and Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, § 13.) Restriction of compensation of referees, receivers, marshals, and trustees.

Neither the referee, receiver, marshal, nor trustee shall in any form or guise receive, nor shall the court allow him, any other or further compensation for his services than that expressly authorized and prescribed in this Act. (32 Stat. 800., 36 Stat. 842.)

This section was added, as a new section, to the Bankruptcy Act of July 1, 1898, c. 541, by amendment by Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, § 18, cited above.

The amendment of this section by Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, § 13, last cited above, included receivers and marshals in the restriction of compensation, the provision originally enacted having been applicable to referees and trustees only.

Section 19 of said first amendatory Act Feb. 5, 1903, c. 487, 32 Stat. 801, provided that the act should not apply to bankruptcy cases pending when it took effect, but that such cases should be adjudicated and disposed of conformably to the provisions of the original act.

Section 14 of said second amendatory Act June 25, 1910, c. 412, 36 Stat. 842, also provided that the act should not apply to bankruptcy cases pending when it took effect, but that such cases should be adjudicated and disposed of conformably to the provisions of the original act as previously amended.

TITLE LXII

NATIONAL BANKS

Chap.		Sec.
1.	Organization and powers	9657
2.	Obtaining and issuing circulating notes	9697
2A.	National currency associations	9729
3.	Regulation of the banking business	9744
3A.	Federal reserve banks	9785
4.	Dissolution and receivership	9806

CHAPTER ONE

Organization and Powers

Sec.
9657. The "national-bank act."
9658. Formation of national banking associations.
9659. Requisites of organization certificate.
9660. How certificate shall be acknowledged and filed.
9661. Corporate powers of associations.
9662. Change of name or location.
9663. Effect of change of name on debts, liabilities, etc.
9664. Liabilities and suits not affected by change of name.
9665. Extension of period of corporate succession.
9666. Procedure.
9667. Examination and issue of certificate of approval by Comptroller.
9668. Corporate powers upon extension of period of succession; jurisdiction of suits by or against national banks.
9669. Withdrawal of dissenting shareholders.
9670. Redemption of circulating notes issued prior to extension of period of succession.
9671. Dissolution of banks not extending period of succession.
9672. Reservation of power to amend, alter or repeal act.
9673. Additional extension of period of corporate succession.
9674. Power to hold real property.
9675. Requisite amount of capital.
9676. Shares of stock and transfers.
9677. How payment of the capital stock must be made and proved.
9678. Proceedings if shareholder fails to pay installments.
9679. Increase of capital stock.
9680. Increase of capital stock.
9681. Reduction of capital stock.
9682. Right of shareholders to vote.
9683. Election of directors.
9684. Requisite qualifications of directors.
9685. Oath required from directors.
9686. Filling vacancies.
9687. Proceedings where no election is held on the proper day.
9688. Election of president of the board.
9689. Individual liability of shareholders; effect of transfer of shares.
9690. Executors, trustees, etc., not personally liable.
9691. Duties and liabilities when designated as depositaries of public moneys.
9692. Provisions relating to reserves of national banks not to apply to deposits of public moneys in designated depositaries.
9693. Rate of interest on special and additional deposits in national banks designated as depositaries.
9694. Organization of State banks as national banking associations.
9695. State banks having branches.
9696. Reservation of rights of associations organized under act of 1863.

§ 9657. (Act June 20, 1874, c. 343, § 1.) The "national-bank act."

The act entitled "An act to provide a national currency secured by a pledge of United States bonds, and to provide for the circulation and redemption thereof," approved June third, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, shall hereafter be known as "the national-bank act." (18 Stat. 123.)

This was the first section of the Currency Act of 1874, entitled "An act fixing the amount of United States notes, providing for a redistribution of the national-bank currency, and for other purposes."

Section 2 of the act, providing that the amount of lawful-money reserve to be kept on hand by the banks should be determined by the amount of their deposits, is set forth post, § 9748.

Section 3 of the act, relating to deposits in the Treasury of the United States for redemption of circulating notes, is set forth post, § 9751.

Section 4 of the act, authorizing the withdrawal of circulating notes in whole or in part, is set forth post, § 9707.

Section 5 of the act, requiring the charter-number of each association to be printed on each of its notes, is set forth post, § 9715.

Section 6 of the act, limiting the circulation of United States notes, is set forth ante, § 6563.

Section 7 of the act repealed part of R. S. § 5179, and provided for the withdrawal of a certain amount of the circulating notes to secure an equitable distribution thereof around the several states; section 8 thereof provided for the sale of bonds deposited to secure the circulation in case of a refusal or neglect to comply with the requisitions made by the Comptroller for the withdrawal of circulating notes as provided by § 7; and section 9 thereof provided for a redistribution of the currency withdrawn. Said sections 7–9 were superseded by the repeal of provisions for withdrawal and redistribution of national-bank currency, and other provisions made by the Resumption Act of Jan. 14, 1875, c. 15, § 3, post, § 9720.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, 13 Stat. 99, mentioned in this section and designated by it "the National-Bank Act," was entitled "An act to provide a national currency secured by a pledge of United States bonds, and to provide for the circulation and redemption thereof." It was incorporated, with subsequent amendatory and additional provisions relating to national banks, into this Title of the Revised Statutes which included sections 5133–5243 thereof.

Notes of Decisions

Construction and operation of act.— This act does not repeal or affect section 6572 et seq., ante, making the coins of the United States legal tender (1881) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 144.

Cited without definite application, Austin v. Boston (1868) 7 Wall. 694, 699, 19 L. Ed. 224; Leather Manufacturers' Nat'l Bank v. Cooper (1887) 7 Sup. Ct. 777, 120 U. S. 778, 30 L. Ed. 816.

§ 9658. (R. S. § 5133.) Formation of national banking associations.

Associations for carrying on the business of banking under this Title may be formed by any number of natural persons, not less in any case than five. They shall enter into articles of association, which shall specify in general terms the object for which the association is formed, and may contain any other provisions, not inconsistent with law, which the association may see fit to adopt for the regulation of its business and the conduct of its affairs. These articles shall be signed by the persons uniting to form the association, and a copy of them shall be forwarded to the Comptroller of the Currency, to be filed and preserved in his office.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, § 5, 13 Stat. 100.

The conversion of national gold banks into currency banks, authorized by this section, was provided for by Act Feb. 14, 1880, c. 25, post, § 9727.

Notes of Decisions

Construction and validity of act.— Congress has power to incorporate a bank. McCulloch v. Maryland (1819) 17 U. S. (4 Wheat.) 316, 4 L. Ed. 579.

The constitutionality of the act of 1864 is unquestioned, and rests on the same principle as the act creating the second Bank of the United States. Farmers' & M. Nat. Bank v. Dearing (1875) 91 U. S. 29, 33, 23 L. Ed. 196.

A construction of the act of 1864 establishing national banks, which would bring it in conflict with state laws, would render it unconstitutional. First Nat. Bank v. Lamb (1872) 50 N. Y. 95, 10 Am. Rep. 438.

When bank becomes corporation.— From the time the comptroller of the currency issues the certificate to the bank, certifying to its constitution, it becomes a body corporate with the powers of the banking institution, and its shares of capital stock become subject to sale, the purchasers of which thereby become shareholders of the bank, and the payment of 50 per centum of the capital stock is an act subsequent to the organization of the bank. Wallace v. Hood (C. C. 1898) 89 Fed. 11, 19, affirmed (1899) 97 Fed. 865, 38 C. C. A. 510.

A national bank does not become a corporation until the articles and organization certificate are filed. Regester v. Medcalf (1889) 18 Atl. 966, 71 Md. 528.

Cited without definite application, First Nat. Bank v. Lanier (1870) 11 Wall. 369, 376, 20 L. Ed. 172; Bullard v. National Eagle Bank (1873) 18 Wall. 589, 21 L. Ed. 923; Briggs v. Spaulding (1891) 11 Sup. Ct. 924, 928, 141 U. S. 132, 35 L. Ed. 662; Commercial National Bank v. Weinhard (1904) 24 Sup. Ct. 253, 256, 192 U. S. 243, 48 L. Ed. 425; Earling v. Emigh (1909) 30 Sup. Ct. 672, 674, 218 U. S. 27, 54 L. Ed. 915.

§ 9659. (R. S. § 5134.) Requisites of organization certificate.

The persons uniting to form such an association shall, under their hands, make an organization certificate, which shall specifically state:

First. The name assumed by such association; which name shall be subject to the approval of the Comptroller of the Currency.

Second. The place where its operations of discount and deposit are to be carried on, designating the State, Territory, or district, and the particular county and city, town, or village.

Third. The amount of capital stock and the number of shares into which the same is to be divided.

Fourth. The names and places of residence of the shareholders and the number of shares held by each of them.

Fifth. The fact that the certificate is made to enable such persons to avail themselves of the advantages of this Title.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, § 6, 13 Stat. 101.

National banks were authorized to change their names or locations by Act May 1, 1886, c. 73, §§ 2-4, post, §§ 9662-9664.

Notes of Decisions

Name.—Use of the title "national," see § 9835, post.

Right of bank to adopt any name, see Third National Bank of Baltimore v. Teal (C. C. 1881) 5 Fed. 503.

The stockholders of an expiring association may organize a new one, and adopt for the latter the name of the former (1882) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 288.

Presumption of organization from use of name, see Slaughter v. First National Bank (1895) 19 South. 430, 109 Ala. 157.

Place.—As to domicile, see note under § 9661, post.

"The place where its operations of discount and deposits are to be carried on" means the town or city, and not the office or building. McCormick v. Market Nat. Bank (1896) 162 Ill. 100, 44 N. E. 381, affirming (1895) 61 Ill. App. 33.

Proof of incorporation.—See notes under § 9711, post.

Corporate existence may be shown by parol. Yakima National Bank v. Knipe (1893) 33 Pac. 834, 6 Wash. 348; National Bank of Commerce v. Galland (1896) 45 P. 35, 14 Wash. 502.

The certificate of organization is competent evidence of the incorporation. National Bank of Commerce v. Galland (1896) 45 P. 35, 14 Wash. 502.

Pleading.—See, also, note under § 9661, post.

Allegation of organization see Third Nat. Bank of Baltimore v. Teal (C. C. 1881) 5 Fed. 503.

Allegation of place of business, see Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank of Buffalo v. Rogers (Super. Buff. 1888) 1 N. Y. S. 757.

Validity of organization—Estoppel.—When person is estopped to deny validity of organization, see Casey v. Galli (1876) 94 U. S. 674, 24 L. Ed. 168; Keyser v. Hitz (1883) 2 (13 D. C.) Mackey, 473; Wheelock v. Kost (1875) 77 Ill. 296; Huffaker v. Nat. Bank of Monticello (Ky. 1876) 12 Bush, 287; Davis' Estate v. Watkins (1898) 76 N. W. 575, 56 Neb. 288; Bank of Metropolis v. Orcutt (N. Y. 1867) 48 Barb. 256; National Bank of Fairhaven v. Phœnix Warehousing Co. (N. Y. 1875) 6 Hun, 71.

National banks in territories.—Under existing legislation relating to the establishment of national banking associations, and in the present condition of Oklahoma (being without a government and system of laws), such banking associations cannot lawfully be authorized and established in the territory known by that name. (1889) 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 315.

The effect of certain provisions in the treaties with the Creek Nation of Indians of August 28, 1856, and August 11, 1866, which render inoperative in the Creek territory the various national banking laws, considered. (1889) 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 342.

A national bank cannot be lawfully established at Muskogee a town in the territory of the Creek Nation. Id.

In view of the provisions of the act of May 2, 1890 (26 Stat. 81), entitled "An act to provide a temporary government for the territory of Oklahoma," etc., there no longer exists any obstacle to the establishment of national banking associations in the Indian Territory. (1890) 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 585.

The laws relating to national banking associations are by virtue of the act of May 17, 1884 (23 Stat. 24), in force in the territory of Alaska, and such associations may be lawfully organized in that territory. (1890) 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 678.

By virtue of section 14 of the act of April 12, 1900 (31 Stat. 77), the laws of the United States relative to the organization and powers of national banks were extended to Porto Rico. (1900) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 169.

The act of April 30, 1900 (31 Stat. 141), extended the national banking laws of the United States to the territory of Hawaii, and the Comptroller of the Currency is authorized to grant permission for the organization of national banks therein. (1900) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 177.

The act of April 30, 1900 (31 Stat. 141), extended the national banking laws of the United States to the territory of Hawaii, and the Comptroller of the Currency is authorized to grant permission for the organization of national banks therein. Id.

Cited without definite application, Talbott v. Board of Com'rs of Silver Bow County (1891) 11 Sup. Ct. 594, 595, 139 U. S. 438, 35 L. Ed. 210; Commercial National Bank v. Weinhard (1904) 24 Sup. Ct. 253, 256, 192 U. S. 243, 48 L. Ed. 425; Earling v. Emigh (1909) 30 Sup. Ct. 672, 674, 218 U. S. 27, 54 L. Ed. 915.

§ 9660. (R. S. § 5135.) How certificate shall be acknowledged and filed.

The organization certificate shall be acknowledged before a judge of some court of record, or notary public; and shall be, together with the acknowledgment thereof, authenticated by the seal of such court, or notary, transmitted to the Comptroller of the Currency, who shall record and carefully preserve the same in his office.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, § 6, 13 Stat. 101.

Copies of organization certificates certified and authenticated by the Comptroller of the Currency were made evidence in all courts and places within the United States of the existence of the association, and of all matters which could be proved by the originals, by R. S. § 885, ante, § 1497.

§ 9661. (R. S. § 5136.) Corporate powers of associations.

Upon duly making and filing articles of association and an organization certificate, the association shall become, as from the date of the execution of its organization certificate, a body corporate, and as such, and in the name designated in the organization certificate, it shall have power—

First. To adopt and use a corporate seal.

Second. To have succession for the period of twenty years from its organization, unless it is sooner dissolved according to the provisions of its articles of association, or by the act of its shareholders owning two-thirds of its stock, or unless its franchise becomes forfeited by some violation of law.

Third. To make contracts.

Fourth. To sue and be sued, complain and defend, in any court of law and equity, as fully as natural persons.

Fifth. To elect or appoint directors, and by its board of directors to appoint a president, vice-president, cashier, and other officers, define their duties, require bonds of them and fix the penalty thereof, dismiss such officers or any of them at pleasure, and appoint others to fill their places.

Sixth. To prescribe, by its board of directors, by-laws not inconsistent with law, regulating the manner in which its stock shall be transferred, its directors elected or appointed, its officers appointed, its property transferred, its general business conducted, and the privileges granted to it by law exercised and enjoyed.

Seventh. To exercise by its board of directors, or duly authorized officers or agents, subject to law, all such incidental powers as shall be necessary to carry on the business of banking; by discounting and negotiating promissory notes, drafts, bills of exchange, and other evidences of debt; by receiving deposits; by buying and selling exchange, coin, and bullion; by loaning money on personal security; and by obtaining, issuing, and circulating notes according to the provisions of this Title.

But no association shall transact any business except such as is incidental and necessarily preliminary to its organization, until it has been authorized by the Comptroller of the Currency to commence the business of banking.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, § 8, 13 Stat. 101.

Provisions for the extension of corporate succession were made by Act July 12, 1882, c. 290, §§ 1–7, post, §§ 9665–9671.

Notes of Decisions

I. "Body corporate"

1. When perfected.
2. Pleading.
3. Domicile.

II. Nature and powers of national banks

4. In General.

III. Actions by and against banks

5. In general.
6. Jurisdiction.

IV. By-laws

7. In general.
8. Transfer of stock.
9. Lien on stock.

V. Officers, directors, and agents

10. "Other officers."
11. Eligibility.
12. Powers, duties, and liabilities.
13. —— Directors.
14. —— President.
15. —— Vice president.
16. —— Cashier.
17. —— Agent.
18. —— Liability of persons dealing with officers.
19. —— Liability of bank.
20. Ratification of official acts.
21. Official bonds.
22. Tenure of office.

VI. Discounting and negotiating evidences of debt

23. Acts authorized by statute.
24. Ultra vires acts.

VII. Deposits

25. Receipt of deposits and rights of depositors.

VIII. Coin in pledge

26. Power to assign.

IX. Loans and security

27. Loans.
28. Security.
29. —— Mortgages.
30. —— Corporate stock as security.

X. "Incidental powers"

31. Powers necessary to carry on business.
32. Repair and sale of realty.
33. Collections.
34. Unauthorized transactions in general.
35. Contracts.
36. Borrowing money.
37. Special deposits and bailments.
38. Contracts of guaranty and suretyship.
39. Dealings in stocks, bonds, and options.
40. Bank acting as broker.

XI. Guaranty of deposits

41. State guaranty laws.

XII. Insurance of assets

42. Insurance contract.

XIII. Ultra vires acts—Pleading and defenses

43. Right to plead.
44. Action against bank.
45. Action by bank.

XIV. Transactions preliminary to organization

46. Leases and other contracts.

XV. State legislation

47. Legal scope.
48. Construction and operation.

I. "BODY CORPORATE"

1. When perfected.—See note under § 9658, ante.

2. Pleading.—As to pleading relative to corporate character of national banks, see Third Nat. Bank of Baltimore v. Teal (C. C. 1881) 5 Fed. 503; Joseph Holmes Fuel & Feed Co. v. Commercial Nat. Bank of Denver (1896) 47 P. 289, 23 Colo. 210.

One who has accepted, as payee, a note made payable at a bank which the parties to the note style a "national bank," and who has sold said note to the bank, cannot put in issue the organization of such institution by merely averring want of knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to whether it is a body corporate organized under act of congress. Huffaker v. National Bank of Monticello (1876) 75 Ky. (12 Bush.) 287.

A denial that plaintiff "is a corporation duly organized as a national bank under the act of June 3, 1864, or any other act," does not put in issue the plaintiff's corporate existence. First Nat. Bank v. Gibson (1900) 84 N. W. 259, 60 Neb. 767.

In an action by a national bank on a draft discounted for defendant, the latter may deny plaintiff's existence as a corporation. Bank of Metropolis v. Orcutt (N. Y. 1867) 48 Barb. 256.

Under Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 1775, requiring a corporation to allege whether it is a foreign or domestic corporation, a national bank incorporated under act of congress, when beginning suit, must allege whether it is a foreign or domestic corporation, in view of section 18, defining corporations created under the laws of the United States located in the state as domestic corporations, and those located outside of the state as foreign corporations. First Nat. Bank v. Doying (N. Y. 1886) 13 Daly, 509.

A complaint by a national bank, which states that it is duly organized under the national banking act, but does not state directly where it is located and doing business, or whether a domestic or foreign corporation, is sufficient, on demurrer, where it is described as a national bank of a city in the state, and that it has done business in that city for more than 10 years, under Code Civ. Proc. N. Y. § 1775, providing that, in suits by or against corporations, the complaint must state whether it is a domestic or foreign corporation, and, if the latter, in what state or country it was organized. Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. Rogers (Super. Buff. 1888) 1 N. Y. Supp. 757, 15 Civ. Proc. R. 250.

A complainant designating itself as the "Citizens' National Bank," instead of "Citizens' National Bank of Watertown," under which title it was incorporated, is not prevented from maintaining its suit where it sufficiently appears that the complainant was the bank to which the certificate of incorporation was issued. Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Great Western Elevator Co. (1900) 82 N. W. 186, 13 S. D. 1.

An allegation that plaintiff is a national banking corporation incorporated under and by virtue of the national banking laws is a sufficient compliance with the statutory requirement of an allegation that it is duly incorporated. Gill v. First Nat. Bank (Tex. Civ. App. 1898) 47 S. W. 751.

3. Domicile.—A national bank located in a state is a domestic, not a foreign, corporation. Hummel v. First Nat. Bank (1892) 2 Colo. App. 571, 32 Pac. 72; Market Bank v. Pacific Nat. Bank (N. Y. 1882) 64 How. Prac. 1, 2 Civ. Proc. R. 330.

II. NATURE AND POWERS OF NATIONAL BANKS

4. In general.—A national bank is a corporation, the powers of which are defined and limited by the acts of Congress authorizing the creation of such institutions. First Nat. Bank v. Murray (1914) 212 Fed. 140, 128 C. C. A. 652; Hansford v. National Bank of Tifton (1912) 73 S. E. 405, 10 Ga. App. 270; Roberts v. Same (1912) 73 S. E. 407, 10 Ga. App. 272; Matthews v. Skinker (1876) 62 Mo. 329, 21 Am. Rep. 425. They have only those powers specified in the act and such other powers as are necessarily incidental thereto. McBoyle v. Union Nat. Bank (Cal. 1912) 122 P. 458.

National banking corporations are agencies or instruments of the general government, designed to aid in the administration of an important branch of the public service, and are an appropriate constitutional means to that end. Pollard v. State (1880) 65 Ala. 628; Tarrant v. Bessemer Nat. Bank (Ala. App. 1913) 61 So. 47.

As instrumentalities of the federal government, they are necessarily under the paramount authority of the United States. State v. Clement Nat. Bank (Vt. 1911) 78 A. 944.

Congress, having power to create a system of national banks, is the judge as to the extent of the powers which should be conferred upon such banks, and has the sole power to regulate and control the exercise of their operations. Easton v. Iowa (1903) 23 Sup. St. 289, 293, 188 U. S. 220, 47 L. Ed. 452.

The decisions of the United States Supreme Court are ultimate and paramount authority as to the powers and liabilities of national banks. Hansford v. National Bank of Tifton (Ga. App. 1912) 73 S. E. 405; Roberts v. Same (Ga. App. 1912) 73 S. E. 407. See, also, notes under Const. art. 6, cl. 2.

The powers of a national bank under the national banking act are essential matters for federal construction and interpretation, and whatever rules may obtain in the several states as to the powers of corporations under such statutes, all state courts must yield to the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States construing the powers of national banks under the national banking act. First Nat. Bank v. American Nat. Bank (1903) 173 Mo. 153, 72 S. W. 1059.

III. ACTIONS BY AND AGAINST BANKS

5. In general.—Suits may be brought by national banks as well as against them. Kennedy v. Gibson (1869) 75 U. S. (8 Wall.) 498, 19 L. Ed. 476.

A national banking association after the appointment of a receiver may sue and be sued in all cases where it may be necessary that the corporate name of the association shall be used for that purpose in closing its business and winding up its affairs under the provisions of the act which authorized its formation. Bank of Bethel v. Pahquioque Bank (1871) 14 Wall. 383, 400, 20 L. Ed. 840.

This section subjects banks to actions as fully as natural persons, and nowhere in the Banking Act is there evidence of an intention on the part of Congress to exempt banks from the ordinary rules of law affecting the legality of actions founded on local things. Casey v. Adams (1880) 102 U. S. 66, 67, 26 L. Ed. 52.

National banks are the creatures of congressional legislation and their right to sue and be sued in the United States courts is a matter purely of congressional legislation. National Bank v. Fore (C. C. 1885) 25 Fed. 209, 210.

A national bank, once chartered and continuing to do business, is a de facto corporation, and, though its charter has expired, its right to sue cannot be questioned. First Nat. Bank of Kansas City, Mo., v. Pennig (Cal. App. 1915) 151 P. 1153.

National banks can sue and be sued, the same as natural persons. Talmadge v. Third Nat. Bank of New York (N. Y. 1882) 27 Hun, 61.

Banks have power to employ attorneys to prosecute or defend suits, and the president may agree as to their compensation. Guthrie Nat. Bank v. Earl (1895) 2 Okl. 617, 39 Pac. 391.

6. Jurisdiction.—See note under § 9668, post.

This section and R. S. § 5198 (see section 9759, post), modified Judiciary Act 1789, § 9 (R. S. §§ 563, 711, ante, §§ 991, 1233), as to jurisdiction of actions against national banks for penalties, and give concurrent jurisdiction to the state courts. First Nat. Bank v. Morgan (1889) 10 Sup. Ct. 37, 38, 132 U. S. 141, 33 L. Ed. 282.

IV. BY-LAWS

7. In general.—A repealed statute cannot be retained by a by-law. First Nat. Bank v. Lanier (1870) 11 Wall. 369, 374, 20 L. Ed. 172.

A by-law of a national bank, though indorsed on a stock certificate, prohibiting a stockholder who is indebted to the bank from transferring his certificate, is void, as in contravention of § 9762. Feckheimer v. National Exch. Bank (1884) 79 Va. 80.

8. Transfer of stock.—The directors of a national bank have authority to forbid any stockholder indebted to the bank, whether as principal or surety, to transfer his stock without the consent of a majority of the directors. Knight v. Old Nat. Bank (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 7,885.

The power conferred upon national banks by the national banking act of congress, to enact by-laws, is broad enough to authorize a by-law declaring that no shares shall be transferred while the holder is indebted to the bank; and such a by-law is reasonable and valid, and any attempted transfer by the shareholder while indebted to the bank is void. Young v. Vough (1873) 23 N. J. Eq. (8 C. E. Green) 325.

The articles of association of a national bank provided that the bank might make by-laws to prohibit the transfer of stock owned by a stockholder liable to it either as principal debtor or otherwise. Certificates of stock were issued, which did not state that they were not transferable by the holder while liable to the bank, but which stated that they were transferable only on the books of the bank on surrender of the certificates. Held that, though the stock was not negotiable paper in the legal sense of the term, the fact that the bank had put it in the power of the stockholder to transfer the stock estopped it from objecting to a bona fide transfer on the ground that the original holder was indebted to the bank. Lee v. Citizens' Nat. Bank (Ohio, 1872) 2 Cin. R. 298.

A national bank made a by-law permitting a transfer of stock by signing a blank form of indorsement on a stock certificate, which provided that the shares were transferable only on the books of the bank on surrender of the certificate, but contained no notice of another by-law prohibiting a stockholder indebted to the bank from transferring his stock. Held, that a bona fide transferee of such a certificate from a stockholder indebted to the bank had an equity in the shares of the stock superior to the bank. Lee v. Citizens' Bank (1872) 5 Ohio Dec. 21.

A national bank has the power to make by-laws providing that the shares of its capital stock shall be transferable only on its books; that no stockholder shall be allowed to sell or transfer his stock while indebted to the bank, without the assent of its directors; and that the stock of any stockholder shall be held pledged and liable for the payment of any debt due from such stockholder, and may be sold at public auction for the satisfaction of such debt, on default of payment thereof. Lockwood v. Mechanics' Nat. Bank (1869) 9 R. I. 308, 11 Am. Rep. 253.

9. Lien on stock.—A national bank has no lien, through its by-laws, on its own stock for a debt due from a stockholder to the bank. Second Nat. Bank v. National State Bank (1874) 73 Ky. (10 Bush) 367; Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. v. Oxford Iron Co. (1884) 38 N. J. Eq. 340; Goodbar v. City Nat. Bank (1890) 78 Tex. 461, 14 S. W. 851.

A national bank cannot, even by provisions framed with a direct view to that effect in its articles of association, and by direct by-laws, acquire a lien on its own stock held by persons who are its debtors. A by-law giving to a bank a lien on stock of its debtors is not "a regulation of the business of the bank, or a regulation for the conduct of its affairs," within the meaning of the national banking act of 1864, and therefore not such a regulation as, under the act, national banks have a right to make. Bullard v. National Eagle Bank (1873) 85 U. S. (10 Wall.) 589, 21 L. Ed. 923.

A national bank may, by a by-law, subject the shares of a stockholder to a lien for his debt to the bank, so as to prevent a transfer on the books until such debt is paid. Bath Sav. Inst. v. Sagadahoc Nat. Bank (1897) 36 A. 996, 89 Me. 500.

Unless the articles of association of a banking corporation expressly authorize the directors by a by-law to make the stock of any of its stockholders subject to a lien in favor of the bank, as security for a debt due by him to the bank, no such lien can be thus created. Rosenback v. Salt Springs Nat. Bank (N. Y. 1868) 53 Barb. 495.

A provision in the by-laws and stock certificates of a national bank that the stock was not transferable until all the former stockholder's liabilities to the bank were paid is void, and will not give the bank a lien on its stock for a debt due from the stockholder arising from collections made by him for the bank. A debt arising from the proceeds of such collection amounts to a loan, within the prohibition of the act. Conklin v. Second Nat. Bank of Oswego (1871) 45 N. Y. 655, 53 Barb. 512, note.

V. OFFICERS, DIRECTORS, AND AGENTS

10. "Other officers."—A "solicitor of business" is not within the clause "and other officers." Case v. First Nat. Bank (1908) 109 N. Y. S. 1119, 59 Misc. Rep. 269.

11. Eligibility.—The board of directors of a national bank may by a by-law restrict their choice of a president to its own members, even if others are eligible under the national banking law. Rankin v. Tygard (1912) 198 Fed. 795, 119 C. C. A. 591.

12. Powers, duties, and liabilities.—Managers of a savings bank—such as National Savings Bank of the District of Columbia—have no right to profits, as such. Huntington v. Savings Bank (1877) 96 U. S. 388, 24 L. Ed. 777.

Under this section the directors may empower the president, or cashier, or both, to indorse the papers of the bank. Auten v. U. S. Nat. Bank (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 628, 637, 174 U. S. 125, 43 L. Ed. 920.

The executive officers of a national bank may legitimately borrow money for the bank's use, in the usual course of business without special authority from their board of directors. Rankin v. City Nat. Bank of Kansas City, Mo. (1908) 28 Sup. Ct. 346, 208 U. S. 541, 52 L. Ed. 610, affirming judgment Cherry v. City Nat. Bank of Kansas City, Mo. (1906) 144 Fed. 587, 75 C. C. A. 343.

When a bank has long been in the habit of rediscounting its bills receivable in large amounts, all other banks in the same locality pursuing the same practice, and the president and cashier of such bank propose to its regular correspondent a rediscount of its bills, and there are no circumstances attending such proposal to arouse suspicion, the bank to which it is made may safely act upon it, without further inquiry, on the assumption that the act has either been specially authorized, or that the officers are acting within the purview of their general powers. United States Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank (1897) 79 Fed. 296, 24 C. C. A. 597.

When a loss has been caused to a national bank by the appropriation of its funds to a purpose unauthorized by law, or by culpable negligence or conversion of its funds, the officers who participated in or consented to the act are jointly and severally liable for the entire amount. Cooper v. Hill (1899) 94 Fed. 582, 36 C. C. A. 402.

The officers of a national bank may borrow money of the bank the same as other persons. Blair v. First Nat. Bank (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 1,-485.

The president or other officer of a national bank may borrow money of the bank, giving his note therefor. Id.

The officers of an insolvent national bank cannot be held personally responsible to creditors for losses on loans and discounts made by them in good faith, and, as they thought at the time, for the best interests of the bank, merely because such loans and discounts appear to have been unwise and hazardous when looked back upon. Witters v. Sowles (C. C. 1887) 31 Fed. 1.

An officer of a national bank has no authority to agree to receive anything but money in payment of a nonnegotiable note indorsed to it. First Nat. Bank v. Alexander (Ala. 1907) 44 So. 866.

Since there is no implied warranty by an agent that his principal has authority to contract, an officer or agent of a national bank, acting within the scope of his authority, cannot be held personally liable upon a contract of guaranty made on behalf of the bank, but which is in excess of the power of the bank to make. Thilmany v. Iowa Paper-Bag Co. (1899) 79 N. W. 261, 108 Iowa, 357, 75 Am. St. Rep. 259.

The receiving of securities or other property as custodian or bailee, either gratuitously or for hire, is not within the ordinary business of a bank, and it is not within the scope of the general powers or apparent authority of the executive and ministerial officers of such a corporation to bind the corporation by a contract for such a bailment. First Nat. Bank v. Ocean Nat. Bank (1875) 60 N. Y. 278, 19 Am. Rep. 181.

A discount clerk has no authority by virtue of his office or his agency resulting from assignment to him of a bond and mortgage for use of the bank to secure a debt due to it to bind it by stipulation in a suit to which it is not a party, to the effect that he was holder and owner, where he had executed an unrecorded assignment to the bank. Slade v. Bennett (1909) 118 N. Y. S. 278, 133 App. Div. 666.

An agreement made by the president or cashier of a national bank to indemnify the indorser of a draft for the bank's accommodation is binding upon the bank. First Nat. Bank v. Sullivan (Pa. 1882) 11 Wkly. Notes Cas. 362.

13. —— Directors.—As to liability of directors, see § 9831, post.

Directors of a national bank are not empowered, without action of the stockholders, to levy the assessment ordered by the Comptroller for the purpose of restoring its capital and enabling it to continue in business. Commercial Nat. Bank v. Weinhard (1904) 24 Sup. Ct. 253, 192 U. S. 243, 48 L. Ed. 425, affirming judgment Weinhard v. Commercial Nat. Bank (1902) 68 P. 806, 41 Or. 359.

Concealment by directors, of the bank's embarrassment, is no breach of duty, unless the embarrassment is such as to demand immediate suspension. Robinson v. Hall (C. C. 1894) 59 Fed. 648, decree reversed (1894) 63 Fed. 222, 12 C. C. A. 674.

The directors of a national bank are regarded as trustees for the stockholders, and the strictest performance of their duties as such is required. First Nat. Bank v. Doherty (1913) 161 S. W. 211, 156 Ky. 386. It is their duty to exercise a general supervision and control over its affairs, and they are required, in the performance of such duty, to act in good faith, with ordinary diligence and intelligence, the measure of the care required being a question of fact, under the particular circumstances of each case. While they cannot devest themselves of such duty of general supervision by committing it to the cashier, they may properly intrust him with all discretionary powers which appertain to the immediate management of the business, including the discounting of paper; and they are not liable for losses occurring through his malversations, unless their own proper care would have prevented such losses. Nor are they required to take measures of unusual precaution, when they have no reason to distrust the integrity or efficiency of the cashier or other employés. Warner v. Penoyer (1898) 91 Fed. 587, 33 C. C. A. 222, 44 L. R. A. 761, reversing decree (C. C. 1897) 82 Fed. 181. Directors are not guilty of negligence for failure to examine the books where the cashier, who is universally believed to be honest and capable, has the entire management of the affairs of the bank, which appears to be in a prosperous condition, and there are no grounds of suspicion known to the directors. Id. The only powers conferred on them by statute are vested in them as a board, and when acting as a unit; and therefore the assent of a majority of the individual members of the board, acting separately and singly, is not the assent of the bank, and is not binding upon it. First Nat. Bank v. Drake (1886) 35 Kan. 564, 11 Pac. 445.

14. —— President.—The president of a national bank has power, by virtue of his office: To compromise or release a debt due the bank. Farmers' Nat. Bank v. Templeton (Tex. Civ. App. 1896) 40 S. W. 412. To indorse negotiable paper in the ordinary transaction of its business. United States Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank (1897) 79 Fed. 296, 24 C. C. A. 597.

When he has the actual management of its operations, he is authorized: To procure the discount of its paper. Hanover Nat. Bank of City of New York v. First Nat. Bank of Burlingame, Kan. (1901) 109 Fed. 421, 48 C. C. A. 482. To purchase real estate for the bank to secure payment of suspended paper or a doubtful debt, in order to save the debt, or a portion of it, from loss. Libby v. Union Nat. Bank (1881) 99 Ill. 622. And to do other acts within the authority of ministerial officers. Rankin v. Tygard (1912) 198 Fed. 795, 119 C. C. A. 591.

The president has no power inherent in his office to bind the bank by the execution of a note in its name, but power to do so may be conferred on him by the board of directors, either expressly, by resolution to that effect, or by subsequent ratification, or by acquiescence in transactions of a similar nature, of which the directors have notice. National Bank of Commerce v. Atkinson (C. C. 1893) 55 Fed. 465, judgment affirmed National Bank of Commerce v. First Nat. Bank (1894) 61 Fed. 809, 10 C. C. A. 87.

In the absence of special authority, conferred by the directors of a bank by resolution, acquiescence, or implied assent, the president of a bank has no authority to draw drafts on its funds in payment of personal debts. Lamson v. Beard (1899) 94 Fed. 30, 36 C. C. A. 56, 45 L. R. A. 822.

The president of a national bank has no authority to subscribe money for the bank on condition that certain parties would erect a paper mill in the town. Robertson v. Buffalo County Nat. Bank (1894) 40 Neb. 235, 58 N. W. 715.

The president of a national bank has not necessarily, by virtue of his office, power to draw checks against an account kept by his bank with another bank. Putnam v. U. S. (1896) 16 Sup. Ct. 923, 162 U. S. 687, 40 L. Ed. 1118.

A president of a national bank has no power, in the ordinary course of business, to certify to the fidelity or integrity of the cashier for the purpose of enabling him to procure a bond insuring his fidelity; and hence the bank cannot be deemed, merely by virtue of the president's relation to it, to have any knowledge of the giving by him of such certificate. American Surety Co. of New York v. Pauly (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 552, 170 U. S. 133, 42 L. Ed. 977, affirming judgment (1896) 72 Fed. 470, 18 C. C. A. 644.

The president of a national bank, who owned a majority of its stock, and exercised full control of its affairs, with the acquiescence of the directors obtained a loan for the bank at a time when it was in fact insolvent, though it was not known or believed to be so by the lender. As security the president executed a deed to the bank building and lot; producing what purported to be a certified copy of the minutes of the action of the board of directors authorizing the conveyance, though no such action had in fact been taken. Held that, it being consistent with the course of decision in the state, the deed though insufficient as a legal conveyance by the bank, would be upheld as an equitable mortgage. Stapylton v. Stockton (1899) 91 Fed. 326, 33 C. C. A. 542.

A finding that money of a bank, appropriated by the president to his personal use by means of drafts, was wrongfully taken by him, is equivalent to a finding that he had no authority to draw and use the drafts. Lamson v. Beard (1899) 94 Fed. 30, 36 C. C. A. 56, 45 L. R. A. 822.

The president of a national bank discounted his note with a correspondent bank under an agreement by which the latter placed the proceeds to the credit of his own bank in a special account which was not subject to check, but was to be held to meet the note at its maturity. The books of his bank showed the amount as a deposit in its general account with the correspondent, the purpose being to deceive the examiner. On the failure of his bank the correspondent charged the note to the special account in accordance with the agreement. Held, that the amount to the credit of the insolvent bank in such amount did not in fact belong to it, but remained the property of the pretended lender; the whole transaction being merely a subterfuge, and that its application to the payment of the note was not a conversion. Cherry v. City Nat. Bank of Kansas City, Mo. (1906) 144 Fed. 587, 75 C. C. A. 343, judgment affirmed Rankin v. Same (1908) 28 Sup. Ct. 346, 208 U. S. 541, 52 L. Ed. 610.

If the transaction be regarded as a real, and not a pretended, loan, it was one made for the benefit of the borrowing bank, and not of its president, and its application to the payment of his note, which was in reality that of the bank, was within the right of the lender. Id.

A bank which, in order to deceive a bank examiner, discounts the note of a president of another national bank and places the proceeds to the credit of his bank in a special account, not subject to check, does not, by charging the note against the account, in accordance with the agreement, without knowledge of the other bank's failing condition, become liable to the receiver of such other bank as for a conversion, on the theory that, because such president drew his check on the other bank for the full amount, and deposited it to his credit in his own bank, and, by means of a corresponding check against his personal account, removed from the assets of his bank certain notes objected to by the bank examiner, the transaction must be regarded as really a loan to the president, secured by an attempted pledge of the funds of his bank. Rankin v. City Nat. Bank of Kansas City, Mo. (1908) 28 Sup. Ct. 346, 208 U. S. 541, 52 L. Ed. 610, affirming judgment Cherry v. City Nat. Bank of Kansas City, Mo. (1906) 144 Fed. 587, 75 C. C. A. 343.

The act of the president of a national bank in making a note of a corporation by himself as treasurer, crediting the corporation with the amount, paying the corporation and another sums of money thereon, was his act as its president and a breach of his official duty. Rankin v. Tygard (1912) 198 Fed. 795, 119 C. C. A. 591.

The president of a national bank, being in failing health, was anxious to resign his position, but, at the suggestion of a majority of the directors, consented to take a year's leave of absence, and during such absence, and without any fault on his own part, losses were sustained by the bank, and it became insolvent. Held, in a suit by the receiver to charge the directors with such losses, that he was not liable. Movius v. Lee (C. C. 1887) 30 Fed. 298, decree affirmed Briggs v. Spaulding (1891) 11 Sup. Ct. 924, 141 U. S. 132, 35 L. Ed. 662.

In an action by the receiver of an insolvent national bank against a correspondent of the bank to recover money deposited by the bank with its correspondent, the evidence showed that the directors of the bank left it to the president to negotiate loans, and to make such contracts as to repayment and security as were lawful and usual. Held, that the evidence was sufficient to establish the president's authority to pledge the deposit with the correspondent as security for loans made by the latter. Bell v. Hanover Nat. Bank (C. C. 1893) 57 Fed. 821.

The authority of the president of a national bank to guaranty notes of third parties, held and sold by the bank, will be presumed in favor of a purchaser without notice to the contrary. Thomas v. City Nat. Bank (1894) 40 Neb. 501, 58 N. W. 943, 24 L. R. A. 263; Id. (1896) 46 Neb. 861, 65 N. W. 895.

The president of a national bank, who requests the cashier to make advances to a minor, verbally promising that he will see them repaid, is liable to the bank for any loss sustained by reason of said loans, as having been guilty of a breach of trust. Brown v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (1895) 88 Tex. 265, 31 S. W. 285.

Under the national banking law, which authorizes banks to elect boards of directors to which are committed the management and control of the bank, and which are empowered to select one of their number as president, in the absence of any by-law or any other fact extending the authority of the president elected by the directors, a statement by him that a note which was in fact a forgery was properly signed by the purported signer is without authority from the bank and not binding upon it. Commercial Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank (1904) 80 S. W. 601, 97

Tex. 536, 104 Am. St. Rep. 879, judgment reversed (Tex. Civ. App. 1903) 77 S. W. 239.

Where the president of a bank certified a noncommercial instrument for the accommodation of the drawers solely in his official capacity and ultra vires the bank's powers, he was not individually liable on such certification. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. National Bank of Commerce of Dallas (Tex. Civ. App. 1908) 106 S. W. 782.

15. —— Vice president.—The vice president and general executive officer of a national bank has no power to borrow so large a sum as $200,000 at four months' time for the bank in the absence of special authority from the board of directors, and persons dealing with him are presumed to know the extent of his powers in this regard. Western Nat. Bank v. Armstrong (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 572, 152 U. S. 346, 38 L. Ed. 470.

Where, by general usage between correspondent banks, money is frequently borrowed by one from another,—the executive officers of the borrowing bank acting in its behalf, and no other authority being furnished or demanded,—the directors of a national bank will be presumed to have knowledge of such usage; and in the absence of contrary provision, or notice to its correspondents, its vice president is authorized to borrow money from a correspondent on its behalf. Armstrong v. Chemical Nat. Bank (1897) 83 Fed. 556, 27 C. C. A. 601, affirming decree Chemical Nat. Bank v. Armstrong (C. C. 1896) 76 Fed. 339.

A vice president of a national bank, who is the acting president, may, in conformity with established custom, without special authority from the board of directors, borrow money on behalf of the bank from another bank. Chemical Nat. Bank v. Armstrong (C. C. 1896) 76 Fed. 339, distinguishing Bank v. Armstrong (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 572, 152 U. S. 346, 38 L. Ed. 470.

In an action on a note representing a loan made by plaintiff national bank to defendant, where it appeared that the negotiations for the loan were carried on by one M., plaintiff's vice president, and that as a result of such negotiations the loan was made to defendant, M. was an agent of the bank, and evidence as to what officers regularly had authority to make loans was immaterial. National Bank of North America in New York v. Thomas (R. I. 1910) 74 A. 1092.

16. —— Cashier.—The acts of the cashier in receiving special deposits are binding on a national bank. American Nat. Bank v. E. W. Adams & Co. (1914) 143 P. 508, 44 Okl. 129, L. R. A. 1915B, 542. But a national bank is not bound by its cashier's acts beyond the scope of his authority. American Nat. Bank v. E. W. Adams & Co. (Okl. 1914) 143 P. 508.

A cashier's guaranty that a stock of shoes which he allows to be stored in the bank will be delivered to the proper party on compliance with stipulated conditions held not binding on the bank. American Nat. Bank v. E. W. Adams & Co. (1914) 143 P. 508, 44 Okl. 129, L. R. A. 1915B, 542.

The cashier of a national bank has power to transfer notes and bills receivable, payable to the bank, without special authority from the directors. Memphis Cotton Oil Co. v. Gist (Tex. Civ. App. 1915) 179 S. W. 1090. Where he has actual authority to employ a real estate broker to find a customer for lands belonging to the bank, he binds the bank by a misstatement to the broker as to the identity of lands owned by it, as the ownership of the lands is a matter within the peculiar knowledge of the cashier and of which the broker is ignorant. Arnold v. National Bank of Waupaca (1905) 105 N. W. 828, 126 Wis. 362, 3 L. R. A. (N. S.) 580. And where he is the active executive officer and is intrusted with the duty of selling lands acquired by the bank in satisfaction of debts, and has authority to employ a broker to sell such lands, he acts within the scope of his authority in designating to the broker the lands to be offered for sale, and a mistake in such designation is likewise within the scope of his authority, and is in effect the act of the bank, for which it is responsible. Arnold v. National Bank of Waupaca (1905) 105 N. W. 828, 126 Wis. 362, 3 L. R. A. (N. S.) 580.

The cashier of a bank, who, in addition to his usual powers, is, in the absence of the president, running the bank under the advice of the executive committee, has authority to bind the bank by a contract to renew notes, in consideration of the release by the indorser of a lien on the maker's property. Bank of Commerce v. Bright (1896) 77 Fed. 949, 23 C. C. A. 586.

It is error to give instructions authorizing the jury, in determining whether a transaction by which the cashier of a national bank obtained possession of some of its funds was a misapplication thereof, to consider the fact that his indebtedness to the bank exceeded 10 per cent. of its capital. Mohrenstecher v. Westervelt (1898) 87 Fed. 157, 30 C. C. A. 584.

The cashier of a national bank in Boston held to have no authority to certify checks, either by usage or otherwise. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. State Nat. Bank (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 9,449.

In contemplation of law, the leasing of property belonging to a national banking association is not within the ordinary powers and duties of the cashier of the bank. Spongberg v. First

Nat. Bank (1910) 110 P. 716, 18 Idaho, 524.

Defendant wrote on a letter head of a national bank, of which he was cashier, requesting plaintiff to sign a replevin bond for a third person, who had brought suit in plaintiff's county, and that they would indemnify plaintiff from all harm, defendant adding the word "Cashier," after his signature to the letter. Held, that as the bank could not enter into such agreement, and as the letter did not clearly show that defendant was acting for the bank, with no intention of binding himself, he would be liable. Knickerbocker v. Wilcox (1890) 83 Mich. 200, 47 N. W. 123, 21 Am. St. Rep. 595.

The cashier of a national bank is the proper person to make the affidavit of the true amount of the indebtedness for which the bank brings suit. Parkhurst v. Citizens' Nat. Bank (1883) 61 Md. 254.

The cashier of a bank has no implied authority to make a representation on behalf of the bank as to the solvency of one of its debtors, so as to estop the bank by reason of such a representation made by him in reply to an inquiry. Crawford v. Boston Store Mercantile Co. (1890) 67 Mo. App. 39.

Where a note was part of assets of state bank which became a national bank, after the change such note could be transferred by the cashier without authority from the directors, irrespective of Rev. St. Mo. 1909, § 1112. Gill v. Newhouse (Mo. 1915) 178 S. W. 495.

The cashier of a national bank is presumed to have the same authority as cashiers of other banks of discount in respect to receiving evidences of debt for collection. Hanson v. Heard (1897) 38 A. 788, 69 N. H. 190.

Where a bank cashier guarantees that a stock of goods, which he allows to be stored in the bank, will be duly delivered on compliance with certain stipulations, he is liable as bailee for a breach thereof. American Nat. Bank v. E. W. Adams & Co. (1914) 143 P. 508, 44 Okl. 129, L. R. A. 1915B, 542.

The rule that payment to an agent acting within the scope of his authority is payment to the principal, and that the principal thereby becomes responsible for the default of his agent, applied in case of a payment to a cashier of a national bank; and therefore the person paying the money cannot sue the cashier for a misappropriation of the money. Wilson v. Rogers (1872) 1 Wyo. 51.

17. —— Agent.—Where a national bank authorized an agent to sell cattle subject to a mortgage to the bank it contending that specified cattle were included, the agent's contract of sale of such cattle was within the agency, in absence of knowledge of the purchaser of any limitation of agent's authority. Dupree v. First Nat. Bank (Tex. Civ. App. 1912) 146 S. W. 608.

18. —— Liability of persons dealing with officers.—Where the cashier in his official capacity draws checks on the bank's correspondent in favor of his own creditor, and to be applied to his individual use, the payee will be liable to the bank for the money thus wrongfully applied, unless authority to the cashier to so apply the bank's funds is affirmatively shown. Anderson v. Kissam (C. C. 1888) 35 Fed. 699, judgment reversed Kissam v. Anderson (1892) 12 Sup. Ct. 960, 145 U. S. 435, 36 L. Ed. 765.

Neither the cashier of a national bank nor a member of the discount board owning a majority of the stock, nor the two conspiring together, can give away the funds of the bank, nor use them to pay their individual debts, and if they conspire to pay the stockholder's debt by the entry of credits on the bank books in favor of his creditor based on fictitious notes, and the creditor checks out the amount of the credit without the sanction of the directors, the creditor is liable to the bank for the money so drawn, though he may have had no knowledge of the fraud of the officers. Cobe v. Coughlin Hardware Co. (1910) 112 P. 115, 83 Kan. 522.

19. —— Liability of bank.—The fact that a bank lost, through a burglary, certain funds intrusted to it, will not, by itself, prove negligence on the part of the bank. Wylie v. Northampton Nat. Bank (1886) 7 Sup. Ct. 268, 119 U. S. 361, 30 L. Ed. 455, affirming judgment (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 428.

Where a bank was broken into by burglars, and property belonging to it and to others was taken, it is competent for the bank to take measures for the recovery of its own; and if deemed best it might lawfully undertake to act for others jointly concerned; and want of proper skill and care in the performance of such an undertaking would be ground of liability in damages for failure. Id.

Where the offer of bank officials, to a meeting of depositors, to appoint a joint committee to recover certain deposits lost by a bank robbery, is rejected by the depositors, and the bank proceeds to undertake the recovery on its own account, there is no evidence to sustain the allegation of a petition, brought against the bank by depositors, that the depositors were induced to abandon individual efforts at recovery by the bank's undertaking to act as the depositors' agents in the recovery. Id.

Stockholder in a national bank cannot recover damages for tearing down its old building and constructing a new one during action by him to restrain it from doing so. Wingert v. First Nat. Bank (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 391, 223 U. S. 670, 56 L. Ed. 605, dismissing appeal (1909) 175 Fed. 739, 99 C. C. A. 315.

The receiver of an insolvent national bank is liable for money borrowed by the president of the bank without special authority, when it appears that the bank actually received the money and appropriated it to its own use. Blanchard v. Commercial Bank (1896) 75 Fed. 249, 21 C. C. A. 319, distinguishing Western Nat. Bank v. Armstrong (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 572, 152 U. S. 346, 38 L. Ed. 470.

A national bank is not bound by the unauthorized guaranty by its cashier of a bond and mortgage sold by it to one who had reason to know that it was acting only as a broker, where he made no inquiry as to the cashier's authority, and the bank received none of the proceeds of the sale. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Smith (1896) 77 Fed. 129, 23 C. C. A. 80.

Where an accommodation note was made to a national bank and collaterals were attached thereto to secure the bank for a debt due from its cashier, the president's interest in the transaction was not adverse to the bank, so that his knowledge with respect to the transaction was imputable to the bank. Skud v. Tillinghast (1912) 195 Fed. 1, 115 C. C. A. 83.

Where the president of a national bank instructed its correspondent bank to charge up against the bank of which he was president the amount of a note given by him in payment of such note, and an account was rendered showing the transaction, the bank was estopped from denying the correctness of the charge in an action by a receiver, subsequently appointed, seeking to set aside. the transaction. Burton v. Burley (C. C. 1880) 13 Fed. 811.

The responsibility of a bank, in the absence of express authority to do a particular act, is limited to the acts of its officers and agents performed in the discharge of their ordinary duties in the usual course of business and within the sphere and scope of such duties, and acts within the ordinary sphere and scope of business are presumed to be by authority and within the knowledge of the directors. National Bank of Commerce v. Atkinson (C. C. 1893) 55 Fed. 465, 472.

A national bank is liable for fraudulent representations by its cashier to another bank as to the financial responsibility of a customer. Nevada Bank v. Portland Nat. Bank (C. C. 1893) 59 Fed. 338.

The directors of a national bank made reports and issued a statement falsely representing the bank to be in good condition. Held, that the bank could not thereby be made liable for deceit to a stranger, who, in reliance upon such reports and statement, had loaned money on the stock of the bank. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Armstrong (C. C. 1895) 65 Fed. 932.

A national bank is not liable for the misapplication by its president of the proceeds of checks intrusted to him by a depositor as the agent of the depositor. Stallo v. Wagner (D. C. 1914) 220 Fed. 360.

The diversion of the proceeds of a check given a bank in payment of a note by its president which would not appear in the depositor's statement, entitles him to recover either the note or the amount of the check from the receiver of the bank. Id.

The failure of a depositor to protest against the diversion of funds from his bank account, amounting practically to theft by the president, held to preclude him from enforcing his claim for that amount against the receiver. Id.

Evidence held insufficient to charge the receiver of an insolvent national bank with the proceeds of the sale of certain bonds, which complainant delivered to the president of the bank, taking his individual receipt therefor. Id.

Evidence held to show that the transfer of items from the account of a depositor of a national bank to other accounts was authorized by the depositor, so as not to entitle him to a claim against the receiver. Id.

Evidence held to show that notes and drafts, which a depositor sought to charge against the receiver of a national bank were given for the accommodation of the president of the bank. Stallo v. Wagner (D. C. 1914) 220 Fed. 360.

As to the outside world and persons dealing with a national bank, its cashier is its authorized agent to indorse negotiable paper owned by the bank, and the bank is not relieved from liability as indorser of a note by reason of the fraud of the cashier, unless the indorsee had notice of the fraud. Auten v. Manistee Nat. Bank (1899) 54 S. W. 337, 67 Ark. 243, 47 L. R. A. 329.

Since neither the directors, officers, nor agents of a national bank have authority to institute prosecutions for violations of the public criminal laws, nor to cause requisition papers to be issued for alleged criminals, no liability attaches against the bank for such acts on the part of its directors, officers, or agents. Hansford v. National Bank of Tifton (Ga. App. 1912) 73 S. E. 405; Roberts v. Same (Ga. App. 1912) 73 S. E. 407.

A company indebted to a national bank on a note, and also to its president and cashier on indorsements made for it, turned over to such officers its property, to be sold, and the proceeds applied on such indebtedness, the surplus, if any, to be paid to the company. Held, that, regardless of the question of the liability of the officers, the bank, as such, was liable to the company for a surplus which it received and used in its business. Paxton v. Vincennes Mfg. Co. (1898) 50 N. E. 583, 20 Ind. App. 253.

A national bank is not responsible for any false representations made by its teller to induce a person to purchase railroad bonds, the selling of such bonds not being within the authorized business of the bank. Weckler v. First Nat. Bank (1875) 42 Md. 581, 20 Am. Rep. 95.

The loss of a special deposit through the theft of the cashier or clerks of a bank, does not render the bank liable, in the absence of evidence of negligence in the selection of such cashier or clerks, or in permitting them to be retained after notice of unfitness. Smith v. First Nat. Bank (1868) 99 Mass. 605, 47 Am. Dec. 59.

A. shipped a cargo of sugar to B., and gave him authority to sell the same. The bill of lading recited that the shipment was by order of B., and that the sugar was deliverable to his order, and made no mention of any agency. B. indorsed the bill of lading, and delivered it to a bank of which he was a director, and pledged the cargo to the bank as security for a loan by the bank to him. This loan was approved by the board of directors at a meeting at which B. was present. Held, that B.'s knowledge of the fraud was not imputable to the bank, and that an action by A. against the bank for the conversion of the sugar could not be maintained. Innerarity v. Merchants' Nat. Bank (1885) 139 Mass. 332, 1 N. E. 282, 52 Am. Rep. 710.

In an action for money deposited with its cashier, on agreement that the money should be invested in stocks and bonds, a broker testified that his firm bought certain shares for defendant bank, taking the certificate in plaintiff's name, and that his firm had had another account for several years. Held, that a receipt for shares of said stock in plaintiff's name from the witness' firm signed by defendant's cashier as such, previous to the transaction in suit, was admissible on the issue whether plaintiff dealt with the cashier individually. L'Herbette v. Pittsfield Nat. Bank (1894) 162 Mass. 137, 38 N. E. 368, 44 Am. St. Rep. 354.

In an action against a bank to recover the proceeds of bonds, held, that the transaction was with the bank, and not with the president individually, and that plaintiff could recover. Van Leuvan v. First Nat. Bank (N. Y. 1871) 6 Lans. 373, affirmed in (1873) 54 N. Y. 671.

A national bank was held liable for the wrongful act of the cashier in transferring to his own name, and hypothecating for his own debt, stocks which plaintiff, according to the previous course of business of the bank, and with the consent of the president, had intrusted to the cashier, in his capacity as such, to sell, and place the proceeds to plaintiff's credit. Williamson v. Mason (N. Y. 1877) 12 Hun, 97.

A bank held not liable for fraud of its president in connection with the unauthorized purchase and sale of its stock. Prosser v. First Nat. Bank (1887) 106 N. Y. 677, 13 N. E. 287.

Where a cashier of a national bank bought and sold stocks for customers in the name of the bank, with the knowledge of the directors, the bank is liable for stocks embezzled by the cashier, though the bank was unauthorized to deal in stock. Searle v. First Nat. Bank (Pa. 1885) 2 Walk. 395.

Where all the negotiations for a loan by a national bank to defendant were conducted by the bank's vice president acting for the bank, the facts material to the transaction as to the ownership of property by defendant which came to the knowledge of the vice president were notice to the bank, and it was immaterial whether the vice president communicated his knowledge to other officers of the bank, or whether he remained an officer until the time an attachment issued in a suit on the note. National Bank of North America in New York v. Thomas (1910) 74 A. 1092, 30 R. I. 294.

A national bank is not liable in its corporate capacity for the undertaking of an individual touching its organization, unless the bank, after its organization, adopt in some manner the contract. McDonough v. First Nat. Bank (1870) 34 Tex. 309.

Knowledge of cashier that a draft was the proceeds of mortgaged sheep held not imputable to the bank. Rock Springs Nat. Bank v. Luman (1894) 5 Wyo. 159, 38 P. 678.

20. Ratification of official acts.—The indorsement by a bank officer of a guaranty on transferring a note is presumed to be made by authority, which the bank, retaining and enjoying the proceeds of the transaction, is estopped to deny. People's Bank v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (1879) 101 U. S. 181, 183, 25 L. Ed. 907.

The borrowing of money on behalf of a national bank from its correspondent by one of its officers is ratified by the passing without objection of a monthly statement of the lending bank, showing the loan, and sent according to usage, where such statement was received by employés who were not concerned in making the loan. Armstrong v. Chemical Nat. Bank (1897) 83 Fed. 556, 27 C. C. A. 601, affirming decree Chemical Nat. Bank v. Armstrong (C. C. 1896) 76 Fed. 339.

A national bank cannot authorize or ratify an act absolutely ultra vires, committed by its agents or officers. Hansford v. National Bank of Tifton (Ga. App. 1912) 73 S. E. 405; Roberts v. Same (Ga. App. 1912) 73 S. E. 407.

Acts and conduct of board of directors held a ratification of the action of the cashier, which rendered the lease contract entered into by him the contract of the bank. Spongberg v. First Nat. Bank (1910) 110 P. 716, 18 Idaho, 524, 31 L. R. A. (N. S.) 736, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 95.

The cashier, a bank's agent in general routine business, accepted a deed in its behalf, which by grantor's direction he placed on record. Held an acceptance by the bank. Hall v. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank (1898) 46 S. W. 1000, 145 Mo. 418.

The retention by a national bank of the proceeds of the sale and guaranty of notes owned by the bank is a ratification of the president's act in such selling, whether he was authorized to execute the guaranty or not. Thomas v. City Nat. Bank (1894) 40 Neb. 501, 58 N. W. 943, 24 L. R. A. 263; Id. (1896) 46 Neb. 861, 65 N. W. 895.

Where the president of a national bank had actual authority to represent it in specified negotiations, his ratification of a contract made by an agent in such transaction was the ratification of the bank. Dupree v. First Nat. Bank (Tex. Civ. App. 1912) 146 S. W. 608.

Where the directors allowed the cashier, who was the principal stockholder and thereafter became president, to assume complete control over a bank, the bank is bound by his acts in acquiring land for its benefit. First Nat. Bank of Kennewick v. Conway (Wash. 1915) 151 P. 1129.

21. Official bonds.—A bond conditioned for the proper performance by a cashier of his duties "for and during all the time he shall hold the said office" binds the sureties for all such time, irrespective of the fact that he is reappointed at the beginning of each year. Westervelt v. Mohrenstecher (1896) 76 Fed. 118, 22 C. C. A. 93, 34 L. R. A. 477.

In an action on a cashier's bond for damages arising from breach thereof by his misappropriation of money and making of excessive loans, the fact that the bank and its receiver have sued and obtained judgment upon notes taken by the cashier for such misappropriated money and excessive loans is no defense. Id.

The making of a loan exceeding 10 per cent. of a national bank's capital, in the absence of fraud, is not a breach of the cashier's bond. Mohrenstecher v. Westervelt (1898) 87 Fed. 157, 30 C. C. A. 584.

It is no defense to an action on the bond of a national bank officer, on the theory that the principal had made a note of $3,000 without authority for a corporation, that the receiver of the bank sued the corporation on the note, on the theory that the principal had authority to make it. Rankin v. Tygard (1912) 198 Fed. 795, 119 C. C. A. 591.

Directors have a discretion whether or not to require bonds of their officers; and the omission to take a bond of a cashier who is a man of good repute and character, and of some visible property, does not of itself render them personally liable for losses caused by his misconduct. Robinson v. Hall (C. C. 1894) 59 Fed. 648, decree reversed (1894) 63 Fed. 222, 12 C. C. A. 674.

A plea by a surety on the bond of a cashier, in an action for the breach of the covenants in such bond, that charges no fraud or complicity against the president or directors, but simply a neglect of duty in not themselves discovering what the sureties covenanted the cashier should reveal, is bad. Frelinghuysen v. Baldwin (D. C. 1883) 16 Fed. 452, following Minor v. Mechanics' Bank (1828) 1 Pet. 46, 7 L. Ed. 47.

A plea that substantially alleges that a cashier's bond is invalid, as against the sureties, because the corporation did not volunteer information of the fact that the cashier was also a director of the bank, is also bad. Id.

The sureties on a cashier's bond are not released from liability for a default of the cashier because such default was permitted by the negligence and misconduct of the president and directors. Phillips v. Bossard (D. C. 1888) 35 Fed. 99.

22. Tenure of office.—Mere suspension of a national bank by an examiner did not effect a retirement of the cashier, especially where he actually continued to render service until the appointment of a receiver by the comptroller. American Surety Co. v. Pauly (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 552, 558, 170 U. S. 133, 42 L. Ed. 977.

Retirement of a national bank president from its service is not effected by the mere suspension of the bank and taking possession thereof by an examiner; but, in the absence of some other action, the president continues in his service until at least a receiver is appointed by the comptroller of the currency. Id.

Since the national bank act expressly provides that the cashier of a national bank shall hold his office subject to the pleasure of the board of directors, a by-law providing that a cashier shall hold his office for one year, and shall be elected annually, is nugatory, as is a reappointment in accordance with such by-law at the beginning of each year. Westervelt v. Mohrenstecher (1896) 76 Fed. 118, 22 C. C. A. 93, 34 L. R. A. 477.

The office of cashier of a national bank is not an annual office, but the term of the incumbent continues until he resigns or until he is removed or a successor is appointed by the board of directors of the bank. Id.

Subject to the free exercise by its board of directors of its power to remove him at its pleasure, a national bank may fix the term of office of its president or other officer. Rankin v. Tygard (1912) 198 Fed. 795, 119 C. C. A. 591.

Even if provision of articles of association and by-laws, restricting the power of removal of the president to a two-thirds' vote, was void, other terms of the provision, that the board should elect one of its members president, who should hold office for the term for which he was elected a director, were valid. Id.

The directors of a national bank have power to remove the president, both under the act of congress relative to national banks and under the articles of association, where such articles give express authority to remove; and it makes no difference that the bank has never adopted any by-laws. Taylor v. Hutton (N. Y. 1864) 43 Barb. 195, 18 Abb. Prac. 16.

VI. DISCOUNTING AND NEGOTIATING EVIDENCES OF DEBT

23. Acts authorized by statute.—As to penalties imposed for violation of this section, see notes under § 9831, post.

The discount of commercial paper is the form according to which national banks are authorized to make their loans, and the terms "loans" and "discounts" are synonymous. National Bank of Gloversville v. Johnson (1881) 104 U. S. 271, 277, 26 L. Ed. 742.

National banks have the power "to carry on the business of banking by discounting and negotiating" notes, etc., and a note taken in the usual course of business may be deemed to have been "discounted," although the term "purchase" may be applied to the transaction. First Nat. Bank v. Sherbourne (1884) 14 Ill. App. (14 Bradw.) 566.

A national bank has authority to take and hold interest coupons not under seal, attached to railway aid bonds under seal, where each coupon contains an express promise to pay to bearer, and is signed by the proper officer. First Nat. Bank v. Bennington (C. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 4,807. It also has authority: To purchase checks, whether payable to order or bearer. First Nat. Bank v. Harris (1871) 108 Mass. 514. To purchase bonds issued by the board of education of a city. Newport Nat. Bank v. Board of Education of Newport (1902) 70 S. W. 186, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 876, 114 Ky. 87. To acquire title to commercial paper, although it may be unable to show that it has made a profit upon the purchase of the paper. Blairsville Nat. Bank v. Crabbs (1910) 44 Pa. Super. Ct. 454. To purchase at a discount notes or bills of third persons owned by and available to one dealing with the bank. Smith v. Exchange Bank of Pittsburg (1875) 26 Ohio St. 141. To buy a draft accompanying a bill of lading, the draft being drawn in favor of the bank by a seller of goods upon a buyer. Union Nat. Bank v. Rowan (1885) 23 S. C. 339, 55 Am. Rep. 26. To purchase notes at less than their face value. Morris v. Third Nat. Bank (1905) 142 Fed. 25, 73 C. C. A. 211, writ of certiorari denied (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 762, 201 U. S. 649, 50 L. Ed. 905. To authorize, through the board of directors, the president of the bank to discount commercial paper, and do any other act within the power of the cashier, or of any other officer of the bank. Rankin v. Tygard (1912) 198 Fed. 795, 119 C. C. A. 591. And to enter into an agreement to exchange nonregistered United States bonds for registered bonds. Yerkes v. National Bank of Port Jervis (1877) 69 N. Y. 382, 25 Am. Rep. 208.

In an action by a national bank to recover on a note held by it, it alleged in the petition that the holder of the note "sold, assigned, transferred, and discounted" the note to the plaintiff. Held, that the words "sold" and "discounted" were intended by the pleader to have the same meaning the word "sold" being used to convey the idea of a transfer by discount, according to the usages of business and the regular rates of discount, rather than a barter and sale. Ridgway v. National Bank of New Castle (1890) 12 Ky. Law Rep. 216.

The purchase of a note from the payee, with the latter's indorsement, is a purchase by discounting in the usual course of business, and is not a purchase by barter and sale, as would be the case if the note was taken without indorsement, or by indorsement without recourse. Nicholson v. National Bank (1891) 92 Ky. 251, 17 S. W. 627, 16 L. R. A. 223.

Where a national bank purchases a negotiable note from the payee upon his indorsement before maturity, it is a purchase by discount, and not by barter and sale. The transaction is, therefore, within the powers of such bank, and is not subject to the plea of the maker that the purchase was ultra vires, and the note still subject to the defenses which were available against the payee. Id.

Evidence that a note acquired by a national bank was in the hands of the indorser's agent, who consulted the indorser about the rate of interest before giving it to the bank, and that the money paid by the bank was paid to the indorser less the agent's commission, warrants, if it does not require, a finding that the bank discounted the note for the indorser. Prescott Nat. Bank v. Butler (1893) 157 Mass. 548, 32 N. E. 909.

Where the cashier of a national bank, who was also a director of an insurance company, received several notes, aggregating $25,000, from subscribers to the stock of the insurance company, entered them on the books of the company as discounted paper, and passed them at their face value to the credit of the insurance company, the fact that the interest was not deducted in advance, nor the money delivered, but entered as a cash credit, does not support a contention that the notes were neither discounted nor negotiated. The act of the cashier was, therefore, one that the bank could itself do or ratify. Ellerbe v. National Exch. Bank (1892) 109 Mo. 445, 19 S. W. 241.

A national bank can properly and legally engage in the business of dealing in and exchanging government securities. Van Leuven v. First Nat. Bank (1873) 54 N. Y. 671.

The words, "by discounting and negotiating promissory notes, drafts, bills of exchange," do not limit the mode of exercising the "incidental powers" necessary to carry on the business of banking, so that under that section a national bank may carry on banking "by discounting and negotiating promissory notes, drafts, bills of exchange," etc., and may exercise "all such incidental powers as shall be necessary" for that purpose. Shinkle v. First Nat. Bank (1872) 22 Ohio St. 516.

24. Ultra vires acts.—A national bank cannot acquire title to a note by purchase. Ridgway v. National Bank of New Castle (1890) 12 Ky. Law Rep. 216. Or purchase negotiable paper, except from surplus capital. Lazear v. National Union Bank (1879) 52 Md. 78, 36 Am. Rep. 355. Or to discount negotiable paper only intended such discounts as were contemplated by the commercial law and the customs and usages of banks in general, a national bank has no authority to discount a note containing a provision for attorney's fees. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Sevier (N. Y. 1882) 27 Alb. Law J. 447.

This section confers no authority on national banks to acquire notes, drafts, etc., otherwise than by way of discount, for the term "negotiating" merely concerns disposal by a bank of the notes, etc., it may have acquired, and authorizes the transfer thereof. Danforth v. National State Bank (1891) 48 Fed. 271, 274, 1 C. C. A. 62, 17 L. R. A. 622. They cannot deal in promissory notes, as choses in action, for the purposes of private gain and profit alone, or acquire title thereto by purchase, other than in the way of discount. First Nat. Bank v. Pierson (1877) 24 Minn. 140, 31 Am. Rep. 341.

Three days before the maturity of a note for $260, bearing no interest, a national bank obtained title to it by giving therefor $259. The bank's rate of discount was 8 per cent., but the cashier testified that he did not calculate interest on the note, but gave a lump sum therefor to the holder. Held, that the bank acquired the note by purchase, and not by discount, and, being a national bank, its act was ultra vires, and it acquired no title. Ridgway v. National Bank of New Castle (1890) 12 Ky. Law Rep. 216.

A contract made by a national bank to sell stock in another corporation, title to which had not been acquired on foreclosure of a pledge, was ultra vires and unenforceable. Hotchkin v. Third Nat. Bank of Syracuse, N. Y. (1914) 106 N. E. 974, 219 Mass. 234.

A national bank may buy drafts with bills of lading attached, but not bills of lading. First Nat. Bank of Mifflintown v. First Nat. Bank of New Kensington (1915) 92 A. 1076, 247 Pa. 40.

The procurement of a signature to a note for another bank, in order that it may lend money to a third person, and a representation that the signature is genuine, are not within the powers of a national bank, and it is not liable where the note turns out to be a forgery. Commercial Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank (1904) 80 S. W. 601, 97 Tex. 536, 104 Am. St. Rep. 879, reversing judgment (Civ. App. 1903) 77 S. W. 239.

A bank had no power to certify an instrument by which the drawers agreed to pay their surety any amount the surety might be legally required to pay by virtue of such suretyship, not exceeding $10,159, the check to be void in the absence of such liability; such instrument not being a commercial check, drawn in the ordinary course of banking business. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. National Bank of Commerce of Dallas (Tex. Civ. App. 1908) 106 S. W. 782.

VII. DEPOSITS

25. Receipt of deposits and rights of depositors.—A national bank is liable for damages occasioned by the loss, through gross negligence, of a special deposit made in it with the knowledge and acquiescence of its officers and directors. Carlisle First Nat. Bank v. Graham (1879) 100 U. S. 699, 25 L. Ed. 750.

Where a bank, drawer of a foreign bill of exchange, represents to plaintiff, to whose order it is made payable, that one W. is a bona fide holder of the bill, as purchaser or remitter, for his use in trading with K., and plaintiff, relying on such representation, takes the bill on deposit from K. knowing that he has received it from W., places it to his credit as cash, and pays his checks, the drawing bank or its receiver is estopped, in an action on the bill, to show that W. was not a bona fide holder. Armstrong v. American Exch. Nat. Bank (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 450, 133 U. S. 433, 33 L. Ed. 747.

To receive deposits is among the powers specially delegated to national banks. Eastern Tp. Bank v. Vermont

Nat. Bank (C. C. 1884) 22 Fed. 186, 188.

If, for the purpose of making a showing of money in a national bank, to deceive an examiner, money is left with the bank in a sack to be returned in the same condition without mingling with the bank's funds, this is not a deposit which may be entered as such on the books. U. S. v. Peters (C. C. 1898) 87 Fed. 984.

Where a state treasurer places state funds in a national bank, subject to check, the bank giving security therefor, and agreeing to pay interest on daily balances, the transaction is a deposit, and not a loan to the bank. State of Nebraska v. First Nat. Bank (C. C. 1898) 88 Fed. 947.

Where a depositor sued the receiver of a bank for the amount of a deposit, and he pleaded that a part of the deposit was used to pay the depositor's subscription to the capital stock of the bank, the burden of proof was on the receiver to show that the purchase of stock was actually made. Somerset Nat. Banking Co.'s Receiver v. Adams (1903) 72 S. W. 1125, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 2083.

The fact that the depositor proved his deposit account before the receiver, without including the part sued for, did not estop him from denying that he subscribed for the stock. Id.

A national bank receiving money from depositors for investment, under an agreement to pay a fixed rate of interest thereon, is a debtor to the depositors for the deposits and interest, for the interest agreed to be paid on the money received is not in the nature of a dividend of profits realized from the successful management of the bank, but the depositors' security depends on the general solvency of the bank. State v. People's Nat. Bank (1908) 70 A. 542, 75 N. H. 27.

Defendant, depositor in insolvent bank, sued by the receiver as indorser on notes, held entitled to set off against his liability as indorser the amount of his deposit. Curtis v. Davidson (1915) 109 N. E. 481, 215 N. Y. 395.

The burden of proof is on a depositor in an insolvent bank, indorser on notes held by it, in proceedings to have amount of his deposit set off against his indorser's liability, to show that he cannot indemnify himself against the maker. Id.

Where, at the time a national bank was placed in the hands of a receiver, another corporation had on deposit therein a certain sum of money, and was also liable to the bank on distinct contracts, such other corporation had the right to direct the application of the money so on deposit. Tourtelot v. Whithed (1900) 84 N. W. 8, 9 N. D. 407.

The deposits of a national bank constitute loans to it and confer on the depositor a mere chose in action. State v. Clement Nat. Bank (Vt. 1911) 78 A. 944.

VIII. COIN IN PLEDGE

26. Power to assign.—A bank having coin in pledge may sell and assign its special property, and the assignee will become vested with the legal rights of the assignor. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. State Nat. Bank (1870) 10 Wall. 604, 643, 19 L. Ed. 1008.

IX. LOANS AND SECURITY

27. Loans.—A national bank may lend money in good faith, without any fraudulent intent, to its directors as well as to others, provided the amount so loaned does not exceed the limitation of one-tenth of the capital stock actually paid in. National Bank of Commerce v. National Bank of Missouri (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 18,310.

One national bank, which loans money to another, knowing that the latter intends to loan the same to its directors, may recover the same from the borrowing bank, if it had no knowledge of any fraudulent intent in making the loans to the directors, even though the directors failed to repay the same. Id.

Where, in evidence of a loan actually made to a bank, the loaning bank accepts from the borrowing bank a note signed by the latter's cashier personally and indorsed by the borrowing bank, to avoid disclosing on the face of the transaction an excessive loan, the borrowing bank is not thereby relieved from its obligation as a debtor. First Nat. Bank v. State Bank of Northwood (N. D. 1906) 109 N. W. 61.

28. Security.—A national bank receiving a note of a third person for the debt of its cashier who pledged collaterals attached to the note must be deemed to have contracted to keep the securities for the benefit of the maker, and its failure to do so was a breach of contract. Skud v. Tillinghast (1912) 195 Fed. 1, 115 C. C. A. 83.

Since the bank could not receive the benefit of the note without bearing the burden of the knowledge of its officers that the note was secured by the collaterals, it was liable for the loss of such collaterals. Id.

The omission of the officer of a national bank to exact security for moneys lent cannot be made a ground of defense to an action brought by the bank to recover such loan. Union Min. Co. v. Rocky Mt. Nat. Bank (1873) 2 Colo. 248.

A bank held to have power to take elevator as security for debt. German Nat. Bank v. Meadowcroft (1879) 4 Ill. App. (4 Bradw.) 630.

Evidence held to show that president of bank, after selling collateral security and paying secured debt, held the balance in trust for the payment of other debts due the bank from the pledgor.

Frazee v. Phœnix Nat. Bank (1914) 170 S. W. 532, 161 Ky. 175.

The original demand having been transferred to a national bank, the question whether the bank could lawfully take the collateral security will not be determined in an action to foreclose the mortgage to which the bank is not made a party. Briggs v. Hannowald (1877) 35 Mich. 474.

A married woman indorsed upon a promissory note: "I hereby charge my separate and personal estate for the payment of the within note." Held not to be a mortgage, in any sense, but simply a personal security, which a national bank is not prohibited from taking. Third Nat. Bank v. Blake (1878) 73 N. Y. 260.

A national bank has power: To loan money on the personal note of the borrower, secured by the pledge of a warehouse receipt. Cleveland v. Shoeman (1883) 40 Ohio St. 176. To enter into a contract whereby bonds are deposited with it as collateral security for call loans. Third Nat. Bank v. Boyd (1876) 44 Md. 47, 22 Am. Rep. 35. To take notes and mortgages in the name of a third person for the purpose of securing its claims. Shinkle v. First Nat. Bank (1872) 22 Ohio St. 516. To take a pledge of chattels as security for money lent. Pittsburgh Locomotive & Car Works v. State Nat. Bank (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 11,-198. And to take an assignment of the money due and to become due from a city on a contract for paving a street, from the contractors, to secure an existing, bona fide indebtedness by the contractor to the bank. First Nat. Bank v. City of Ottawa (1890) 43 Kan. 294, 23 Pac. 485. But it has no authority to lend its credit on personal security. Johnston v. Charlottesville Nat. Bank (C. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 7,425.

29. —— Mortgages.—A national bank may take a chattel mortgage to secure a previously contracted debt, and may enforce the same. Gaar v. Centralia Bank (1886) 20 Ill. App. (20 Bradw.) 611; Spafford v. First Nat. Bank (1873) 37 Iowa, 181; First Nat. Bank v. Elmore (1879) 52 Iowa, 541, 3 N. W. 547; Montgomery Nat. Bank v. McCleaster (Com. Pl. 1893) 2 Pa. Dist. R. 546. Such mortgages are only voidable, and the government alone can object. Graham v. National Bank of New York (1880) 32 N. J. Eq. (5 Stew.) 804.

Mortgages void under a state insolvency law are not freed from its operation because owned by a national bank. Witters v. Sowles (C. C. 1887) 32 Fed. 758.

Where the issue is not raised by the pleadings, the court will not presume that the mortgage sought to be foreclosed by a national bank was taken or held by the bank in contravention of the national currency act, or that the same was invalid. First Nat. Bank v. Kidd (1873) 20 Minn. 234 (Gil. 212).

As to loans on real estate security, see notes under § 9674, post.

30. —— Corporate stock as security.—The national bank act does not prohibit loans secured by stock in another bank as collateral. Germania Nat. Bank v. Case (1878) 99 U. S. 628, 633, 25 L. Ed. 448.

A national bank has power to lend money upon the note or other personal obligation of the borrower, secured by a pledge of stock of a corporation as collateral security. Shoemaker v. National Mechanics' Bank (C. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 12,801.

The cashier of a national bank held to have authority to sell stock purchased by it in insolvency proceedings against the pledgor after it had been pledged as security for a loan. McBoyle v. Union Nat. Bank (Cal. 1912) 122 P. 458.

A national bank may acquire stock, to be afterwards converted into money, provided such acquisition is not for the purpose of speculation, but merely to avert or diminish an apprehended loss on account of a claim to which the bank has been subjected. First Nat. Bank v. National Exch. Bank (1874) 39 Md. 600.

A national bank, which in the ordinary course of business receives stock as collateral security for a loan, may protect itself from loss by taking the stock in payment of the loan. Westminster Nat. Bank v. New England Electrical Works (1906) 62 A. 971, 73 N. H. 465, 3 L. R. A. (N. S.) 551, 111 Am. St. Rep. 637.

While a national bank cannot deal in stocks, it may loan money on shares of other corporations, and to collect the debt may purchase the stock, or may acquire it to protect itself against loss in compromising a doubtful liability. Fourth Nat. Bank of Nashville v. Stahlman (1915) 178 S. W. 942, 132 Tenn. 367, L. R. A. 1916A, 568.

As incidental to the power of loaning money on personal security, a national bank, in the usual course of business, may accept stock of another corporation as collateral; and by the enforcement of its rights become owner thereof, and liable as a stockholder. Fulton v. National Bank of Denison (1901) 62 S. W. 84, 26 Tex. Civ. App. 115.

A national bank making loans and taking corporate stock as collateral security therefor, in the usual course of business, may enforce its rights against the stock. Corn Exch. Nat. Bank v. Kaiser (1915) 151 N. W. 259, 160 Wis. 199.

X. "INCIDENTAL POWERS"

31. Powers necessary to carry on business.—A national bank may make a valid sale or assignment of a judgment in its favor. Emory v. Joice

(1879) 70 Mo. 537. And may accept an assignment of a judgment for collection, and agree to hold the proceeds subject to assignor's order. Miller v. King (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 243, 223 U. S. 505, 56 L. Ed. 528. It may intrust to its agents such authority as is required to meet the legitimate demands of its authorized business and to conduct its affairs within the scope of its charter. Ricker Nat. Bank v. Stone (Okl. 1908) 97 P. 577. It may employ a solicitor of business for a year. Case v. First Nat. Bank (1908) 109 N. Y. S. 1119, 59 Misc. Rep. 269. It may acquire and hold stock in a building corporation as part of a transaction for renting desirable banking quarters. Fourth Nat. Bank of Nashville v. Stahlman (1915) 178 S. W. 942, 132 Tenn. 367, L. R. A. 1916A, 568. It may receive, before maturity, payment of debts owing to the bank, although such debts bear a high rate of interest, if the money is needed for the legitimate business of the bank. Keyser v. Hitz (D. C. 1883) 2 Mackey, 513. It may be designated by the mayor and council of a city as the depository for city funds, under a law authorizing them to designate the depository, and may lawfully agree to pay interest on the deposits and to give a bond for their security. Interstate Nat. Bank v. Ferguson (1892) 48 Kan. 732, 30 Pac. 237. And it may covenant to pay on demand a lien on land acquired by it. Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Yates County Nat. Bank (1898) 54 N. Y. S. 743, 35 App. Div. 218.

Authority is given by this section to transact a banking business, and all incidental powers necessary to carry it on are granted. This power necessarily implies the right of a bank to incur liabilities in the regular course of business, as well as to become a creditor of others, and the power to adopt reasonable and appropriate measures for these purposes is an incident to the power to incur the liability or become the creditor. Compromises to avoid or reduce losses come within the general scope of the powers of the board of directors, and except to the extent to which they are restrained by the charter and by-laws the directors and officers are authorized to use their judgment and discretion in effecting these compromises. First Nat. Bank v. Nat. Exch. Bank (1875) 92 U. S. 122, 127, 23 L. Ed. 679.

Even if a national bank does not get the legal title to a note purchased in the market, it may maintain an action thereon, as the holder, against the maker and indorsers. Prescott Nat. Bank v. Butler (1893) 157 Mass. 548, 32 N. E. 909.

A national bank empowered by charter to provide necessary real estate for its business may make a contract to prevent the erection of buildings on adjacent land so as to secure light and air for its banking house. First Presbyterian Church v. National State Bank (1894) 57 N. J. Law, 27, 29 Atl. 320, affirmed in (1895) 58 N. J. Law (29 Vroom) 406, 36 Atl. 1129.

A national bank holding a mortgage on cattle was authorized to contract to obtain from the mortgagor the title to the cattle, and resell them to a third person, or to foreclose and buy at the sale, applying its bid on the debt. Dupree v. First Nat. Bank (Tex. Civ. App. 1912) 146 S. W. 608.

32. Repair and sale of realty.—A bank may sell its realty. New Orleans Nat. Bank v. Raymond (1877) 29 La. Ann. 355, 29 Am. Rep. 335; First Nat. Bank v. Kidd (1874) 20 Minn. 234 (Gil. 212).

When a bank has lawfully acquired real estate or other property, it may sell it and convert it into money; and to do so it may clean it, make reasonable repairs on it, and put it in presentable condition to attract purchasers, in the same way that an individual of sound judgment and prudence would do if he desired to sell. The authority to do these things is an incidental power vested in the corporation under this section. Cooper v. Hill (1899) 94 Fed. 582, 585, 36 C. C. A. 402.

A national bank has the power to enter into an agreement to accept personal property in payment for its real estate, which it has disposed of. First Nat. Bank v. Reno (1887) 73 Iowa, 145, 34 N. W. 796.

As to dealings in realty, see, also, § 9674, post.

33. Collections.—A national bank acts within scope of its power where it accepts assignment of judgment for collection, subject to order of assignor, and where the attorney pays the amount to a third person, the bank may sue in its own name under the local law, to recover the proceeds from the attorney. Miller v. King (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 243, 223 U. S. 505, 56 L. Ed. 528, affirming judgment King v. Miller (1908) 97 P. 542, 53 Or. 53.

Collecting commercial paper is a part of the regular business of banking, and a national bank will be liable for negligence in collecting a draft, the same as any other bank or agent. Mound City Paint & Color Co. v. Commercial Nat. Bank (1886) 4 Utah, 353, 9 Pac. 709.

A national bank has power to receive a note for collection, or protest if not paid, and hence it is liable for neglect to protest. White v. Third Nat. Bank (Ohio, 1879) 4 Wkly. Law Bul. 791. It may take an absolute assignment of a claim for collection, and agree to pay the proceeds or part thereof to another, and by such transfer the legal title passes to the bank, and its agent to collect the money thereon cannot refuse to pay it to the bank, on the ground that it had no legal right to own such claim. King v. Miller (Or. 1908) 97 P. 542.

34. Unauthorized transactions, in general.—A bank has no right to operate a mill acquired in satisfaction of a debt. Cockrill v. Abeles (1898) 86 Fed. 505, 512, 30 C. C. A. 223. Or to loan the money of other persons. Grow v. Cockrill (1897) 39 S. W. 60, 63 Ark. 418, 36 L. R. A. 89. Or to be a member of a partnership, or become liable as a partner. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Wehrmann (1903) 68 N. E. 1004, 69 Ohio St. 160, reversed (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 613, 202 U. S. 295, 50 L. Ed. 1036. Or to agree to procure a person applications for insurance if he will procure for it a customer. Dresser v. Traders' Nat. Bank (1896) 165 Mass. 120, 42 N. E. 567. Or to contract to undertake the business of the recovery of the stolen property of special depositors. Wylie v. Northampton Nat. Bank (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 428, judgment affrmed (1886) 7 Sup. Ct. 268, 119 U. S. 361, 30 L. Ed. 455. Nor has it power to prosecute a mining business on property which it has acquired,—much less, to expend its funds in prospecting for mineral on such property. Cooper v. Hill (1899) 94 Fed. 582, 36 C. C. A. 402.

A transaction held not one of banking, but one in which defendant was merely the agent for both parties which relationship was not changed by the fact that it was expected that proceeds of drafts would be mingled by defendant with its own funds. Greer v. The Dalles Nat. Bank (C. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 681.

Where consignments of liquor are made to fictitious persons, and the bills of lading, with drafts attached, are sent to a bank with such instructions that the goods are delivered to anybody who will pay the draft and accept the goods, even though the person to whom the goods are delivered has not previously ordered the liquor, such a transaction would constitute a sale by the bank, and the bank in such a case would be amenable to discipline by the state for selling liquor contrary to the state law, and also to discipline by the federal authorities for selling liquor without compliance with the provisions of the internal revenue laws. (1911) 29 Op. Atty. Gen. 59. Such a business, moreover, is clearly beyond the powers of a national bank, and if the Secretary of the Treasury is satisfied that there is any considerable amount of dealing of that character by banks, he might well issue a general warning to them against engaging in such ultra vires transactions. Id.

Prima facie, a national bank has no right to make a donation to keep a manufacturing company from moving its plant from the city. McCrory v. Chambers (1892) 48 Ill. App. 445.

A national bank is not a savings bank, and it cannot transact the same kind of business that a savings bank is incorporated to do, and, though a national bank has a savings department, it does not receive deposits to be invested in specified securities under the supervision of the bank commissioners, and it does not hold the deposits on a trust creating the relation of trustee and cestui que trust, but on a contract creating the relation of debtor and creditor. State v. People's Nat. Bank (1908) 70 A. 542, 75 N. H. 27.

If a national bank attempts to compete with a savings institution, the latter should appeal to the law to prevent the national bank from seeking savings deposits. (Err. & App. 1904) Barrett v. Bloomfield Sav. Inst. (1904) 57 A. 1131, 66 N. J. Eq. 431, affirming order (1903) 54 Atl. 543, 64 N. J. Eq. 425.

The fact that the transfer to a national bank of bills of lading attached to drafts on a purchaser of hay amounted to a sale of the hay would not entitle the final purchaser to recover from the bank for deficiency in the quality of the hay, since the transaction would be ultra vires. Lewis Leonhardt & Co. v. W. H. Small & Co. (Tenn. 1906) 96 S. W. 1051, 6 L. R. A. (N. S.) 887.

A national bank is liable in a civil action for fraud perpetrated under the guise of a partnership agreement, though it had no power to make such an agreement. Pronger v. Old Nat. Bank (1899) 56 P. 391, 20 Wash. 618.

35. Contracts.—An agreement between a national bank and the state to pay on the basis of average deposits, the tax imposed under P. S. Vt. 804–820, on interest-bearing deposits, and relieve its depositors from making returns, is not ultra vires of the bank. Clement Nat. Bank v. State of Vermont (1913) 34 Sup. Ct. 31, 231 U. S. 120, 58 L. Ed. 147, affirming judgment State v. Clement Nat. Bank (1911) 78 A. 944, 84 Vt. 167, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 22.

A contract between two national banks that the proceeds of paper, discounted by one for the other, should not be drawn on in advance of the maturity of such paper, is not affected by the subsequent fraud of the bank obtaining the discount, in reporting such proceeds to the comptroller of the currency as part of its cash reserve. Fisher v. Tradesmen's Nat. Bank (1894) 64 Fed. 706, 12 C. C. A. 409.

A contract by a national bank to assume and pay the liabilities of another bank in consideration of the transfer to it by the other bank of its office furniture and lease and its cash and cash assets, and the further assignment to a trustee for its benefit of bills receivable and securities, is not ultra vires, but is within its powers conferred by statute to conduct a general banking business. Schofield v. State Nat. Bank (1899) 97 Fed. 282, 38 C. C. A. 179.

Section 9764, post, limits the power conferred by subdivision 3 of this section to make contracts. Eastern Tp. Bank v. Vermont Nat. Bank (C. C. 1884) 22 Fed. 186, 188.

This section does not relieve a national bank interested in such a transaction from the operation of Acts Ga. 1853–54, p. 56, providing that, where cotton has been sold under a cash contract, the title shall not pass to the buyer until the price has been paid. National Bank of Augusta v. Augusta Cotton & Compress Co. (1898) 30 S. E. 888, 104 Ga. 403; South Carolina & G. R. Co. v. Same (1898) 30 S. E. 891, 105 Ga. 486.

It is not ultra vires for a national bank to promise to honor a draft upon a patron. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Illinois Nat. Bank (1908) 146 Ill. App. 136.

An agreement by a national bank to pay taxes on its stock transferred to it, and assessed at the time against the sellers, in consideration of being allowed to retain unpaid dividends and surplus, is not illegal, although the taxes are not properly assessed. Lull v. Anamosa Nat. Bank (1900) 81 N. W. 784, 110 Iowa, 537.

A national bank may purchase wheat where the purchase is necessary to protect its interests. First Nat. Bank v. Bannister (1898) 54 P. 20, 7 Kan. App. 787.

A contract by the terms of which a national bank receives corporate stock of another corporation in payment of a debt owing to the bank by such other corporation is not ultra vires as to the bank when, at the time of making the contract, such corporation is financially embarrassed, and unable to meet its commercial obligations as they mature. Such contract is directly incidental to the proper exercise of the powers for which the bank was chartered. Tourtelot v. Whithed (1900) 84 N. W. 8, 9 N. D. 407.

The national banking laws do not prevent a national bank from selling on credit grain owned by it, and acquiring a seed-grain lien for the price, under a state statute. First Nat. Bank v. Peavy Elevator Co. (1897) 72 N. W. 402, 10 S. D. 167.

A contract between a national bank and the promoter of a building corporation, whereby the promoter was to purchase from the bank stock subscribed for by it, held not ultra vires of the bank. Fourth Nat. Bank of Nashville v. Stahlman (Tenn. 1915) 178 S. W. 942.

36. Borrowing money.—Under this section a bank can exercise by its board of directors and officers all such incidental powers as are necessary to carry on the business, and while the power to borrow money or issue notes is not expressly given them, a bank could, under proper circumstances, temporarily borrow money, but the person making the loan would be required to see that the officer acting for the bank had special authority to borrow. Aldrich v. Chemical Nat. Bank (1900) 20 Sup. Ct. 498, 501, 176 U. S. 618, 44 L. Ed. 611.

A rediscount by a bank of its bills receivable, though it indorses the same, and becomes contingently liable for their payment, is not a borrowing of money by the bank, but has more the characteristics of a sale. United States Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank (1897) 79 Fed. 296, 24 C. C. A. 597.

A national bank has power to borrow money on call for the purposes of its business. Chemical Nat. Bank v. Armstrong (C. C. 1896) 76 Fed. 339. Though there is no emergency. Byron v. First Nat. Bank of Roseburg (1915) 146 P. 516, 75 Or. 296. It may borrow for the purpose of lending to others with a view to making a profit. National Bank of Commerce v. National Bank of Missouri (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 18,310. And may make a binding oral agreement to repay money it borrows, and to pay notes it procures to be discounted. Hanover Nat. Bank of City of New York v. First Nat. Bank of Burlingame, Kan. (1901) 109 Fed. 421, 48 C. C. A. 482.

The president of a national bank has no authority from his position to borrow money for the bank, though the creditor may hold the bank on such a transaction on the ground of estoppel. Byron v. First Nat. Bank of Roseburg (Or. 1915) 146 P. 516.

37. Special deposits and bailments.—A national bank may receive as a gratuitous bailee a special deposit of securities for safe-keeping, and thereupon becomes liable to the depositor if the securities are lost through its gross negligence. Chattahoochee Nat. Bank v. Schley (1877) 58 Ga. 369; Pattison v. Syracuse Nat. Bank (N. Y. 1879) 17 Hun, 419 (affirmed in [1880] 80 N. Y. 82, 36 Am. Rep. 582); Pattison v. Syracuse Nat. Bank (1880) 80 N. Y. 82, 36 Am. Rep. 582 (limiting First Nat. Bank v. Ocean Nat. Bank [1875] 60 N. Y. 278, and disapproving Wiley v. First Nat. Bank [1875] 47 Vt. 546, 19 Am. Rep. 122); First Nat. Bank v. Rex (1879) 89 Pa. St. 308, 33 Am. Rep. 767; Whitney v. First Nat. Bank (1877) 50 Vt. 389.

Where a national bank is accustomed to take special deposits, with the knowledge and acquiescence of its depositors, it is liable to the same extent as though such deposits were authorized by charter. First Nat. Bank v. Zent (1883) 39 Ohio St. 105; First Nat. Bank v. Graham (1875) 79 Pa. St. (29 P. F. Smith) 106.

City which had special deposit in insolvent national bank, and for which bank had also collected draft, held entitled to apply the amount of the bank's bond as depositary on the special deposit, and the balance only on the other account, as to which it was claimed the bank was a trustee. City of Centralia v. United States Nat. Bank of Centralia, Wash. (D. C. 1915) 221 Fed. 755.

Where a bank organized under the federal banking law receives on deposit United States bonds of one class, under promise or agreement to exchange them for those of another, it will not be regarded as a mere mandatory or bailee, acting without compensation, but, on the contrary, held to the terms of the contract, and liable to the depositor for the value of the bonds on its refusal to deliver them. An undertaking or transaction of this character on the part of the bank, is within the scope of its powers to do a general banking business, conferred by the act of congress authorizing the creation of those banks. Leach v. Hale (1870) 31 Iowa, 69, 7 Am. Rep. 112.

Where a bank organized under the federal banking law receives on deposit United States bonds of one class, under promise or agreement to exchange them for those of another, it will not be regarded as a mere mandatory or bailee acting without compensation, but, on the contrary, held to the terms of the contract, and liable to the depositor for the value of the bonds on its refusal to deliver them. Id.

In an action against a national bank, by the senior member of a firm, to recover the value of his bonds that had been deposited with the bank as collateral security for "call loans" to the firm, but, at a time when the firm was not indebted to the bank, had been stolen by burglars, held, that the contract entered into by the bank was not a mere gratuitous bailment. Third Nat. Bank v. Boyd (1876) 44 Md. 47, 22 Am. Rep. 35.

The receiving securities or other property as custodian or bailee, either gratuitously or for hire, is not within the ordinary business of a banking corporation, and it is not within the scope of the general powers or apparent authority of the executive and ministerial officers of such a corporation to bind the corporation by a contract for such a bailment. And in the absence of proof that special authority has been delegated by its board of directors, or has been exercised with their sanction or knowledge, or of evidence that it has been the habit and practice of the corporation to receive property for safe-keeping, it is not responsible for property so received by its cashier. First Nat. Bank v. Ocean Nat. Bank (1875) 60 N. Y. 278, 19 Am. Rep. 181.

A circular, issued by a national banking corporation, inviting the correspondence of other banks, and offering to buy and sell securities for them, is no evidence of a consent, on its part, to become a general bailee and depository of such securities for its correspondents. Id.

A national bank has power to accept a deposit to be held by it as collateral security for the performance of a contract between the depositor and another. Bushnell v. Chautauqua County Nat. Bank (N. Y. 1877) 10 Hun, 378, affirmed in (1878) 74 N. Y. 290.

Where a national bank has been accustomed to receive bonds on special deposit gratuitously, it is liable for a loss occurring through want of ordinary care. First Nat. Bank v. Zent (1883) 39 Ohio St. 105, 15 Chi. Leg. News, 285, 4 Ky. Law Rep. 1013.

A demand on a bank for bonds held on special deposit, and refusal to deliver the same, with no other explanation than the statement that the bank has no such bonds in its possession, is prima facie evidence of loss by negligence. Id.

Where a national bank, without compensation, receives bonds as a special deposit for safe-keeping, it is liable for loss thereof, where it occurred through want of ordinary care. Lancaster County Nat. Bank v. Smith (1869) 62 Pa. St. (12 P. F. Smith) 47.

Bonds deposited in a national bank for safe-keeping were stolen by the bank's teller. After he had absconded, it was discovered that for two years he had been embezzling funds of the bank. The owner of the bonds claimed that the bank had been negligent in not examining the teller's books, and discovering his frauds. Held, that such negligence did not enter into the cause of the loss, and could, therefore, be no ground of recovery. Scott v. Chester Val. Nat. Bank (1873) 72 Pa. St. (22 P. F. Smith) 471, 13 Am. Rep. 711.

Where a national bank receives a special deposit without compensation, and the same is stolen by a teller, the only ground on which the bank can be held liable is that the teller was an unfit person to be retained in its employment, and that the bank had knowledge of this fact. Id.

A bank is liable to a special depositor for the loss of his deposit through its diversion by the bank's officers. El Paso Nat. Bank v. Fuchs (Tex. Civ. App. 1895) 34 S. W. 203.

National banks cannot bind themselves or the corporators by accepting specific valuables on special deposit for safe-keeping and return on demand. Wiley v. First Nat. Bank (Vt. 1875) 14 Am. Law Reg. (N. S.) 342.

The taking of special deposits, to keep merely for the accommodation of the depositor, is not within the authorized business of national banks. Wiley v. First Nat. Bank (1875) 47 Vt. 546, 19 Am. Rep. 122.

The taking of special deposits to keep merely for the accommodation of the depositor is not within the authorized business of national banks, and the cashiers of such banks have no power to bind them on any express contract accompanying, or any implied contract arising out of, such taking. Id.

A national bank has not implied power, as incidental to the purpose of its organization, to receive government bonds as a special deposit, though the forty-sixth section of the banking act allows such banks, while winding up their affairs, to deliver special deposits. Whitney v. First Nat. Bank (1877) 50 Vt. 388, 28 Am. Rep. 503.

A national bank has power to receive special deposits. First Nat. Bank v. Zent (1883) 39 Ohio St. 105, 15 Chi. Leg. N. 285, 4 Ky. Law Rep. 1013.

38. Contracts of guaranty and suretyship.—Under the national banking act, giving every bank the right, by its board of directors, to exercise such powers as shall be necessary to carry on the business of the bank by negotiating and discounting notes and other evidence of debt, a bank has the power to guaranty payment of a discounted note. People's Bank v. National Bank (1879) 101 U. S. 181, 25 L. Ed. 907.

The president of a national bank has no power in the ordinary course of business to certify to the fidelity or integrity of the cashier. Hence the bank cannot be deemed, by virtue of such act, to have any knowledge of the giving of such certificate by its president. American Surety Co. v. Pauly (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 552, 558, 170 U. S. 133, 42 L. Ed. 977.

A national bank which, in pursuance of a previous agreement with its debtor that he will devote to the discharge of his indebtedness a part of the proceeds of a loan to be obtained by him from another bank, requests the making of such loan, and guarantees its payment at maturity, must account to the lending bank for the sum which it receives for its own use in the execution of the agreement, even though such guaranty is beyond its powers under the national banking statutes. Citizens' Cent. Nat. Bank of New York v. Appleton (1910) 30 Sup. Ct. 364, 216 U. S. 196, 54 L. Ed. 443, affirming judgment Appleton v. Citizens' Cent. Nat. Bank of New York (1908) 83 N. E. 470, 190 N. Y. 417.

The act of congress authorizing the organization of national banks confers upon them no authority to guaranty the payment of debts contracted by a third person, and solely for his benefit; and acts of this nature are necessarily ultra vires. Commercial Nat. Bank v. Pirie (1897) 82 Fed. 799, 27 C. C. A. 171.

A national bank has no power to lend its credit to any person or corporation, or to become guarantor of the obligations of another, except in the case of the transfer of promissory notes discounted, which is in the ordinary course of banking. Bowen v. Needles Nat. Bank (1899) 94 Fed. 925, 36 C. C. A. 553, affirming judgment (C. C. 1898) 87 Fed. 430.

A national bank advised plaintiff that it would pay all checks of a third person, although such person had no funds on deposit, as was known to both plaintiff and the bank. In reliance on such promise, plaintiff cashed checks of such person, and transmitted them to the bank for payment. The bank issued and sent to plaintiff its drafts on a correspondent for the amount of the checks, which drafts were refused payment. Held, that the contract was one purely of guaranty, and was ultra vires on the part of the bank, and the transaction gave plaintiff no right of action against it on the drafts. Id.

The fact that a director of a national bank, whose presence was necessary to constitute a quorum at a meeting where, by the action of the directors, in which he participated, a contract by the bank to assume and pay the liabilities of another bank was ratified, was also a stockholder in such other bank, in the absence of any allegation of fraud in the transaction, is not sufficient to render the contract invalid. Schofield v. State Nat. Bank (1899) 97 Fed. 282, 38 C. C. A. 179.

A national bank may warrant the title to property it conveys, or become liable as an indorser or guarantor of obligations which it rediscounts or sells, but it cannot lend its credit to another by becoming surety, indorser, or guarantor for him, such an act being ultra vires, and, when its true character is known, no rights grow out of it, though it has taken on in part the garb of a lawful transaction. Merchants' Bank of Valdosta v. Baird (1908) 160 Fed. 642, 90 C. C. A. 338, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 526.

A national bank has no power to guarantee the obligation of a person on the deposit of collateral security. Seligman v. Charlottesville Nat. Bank (C. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 12,642.

A national bank cannot loan its credit or become an accommodation indorser. National Bank of Commerce v. Atkinson (C. C. 1893) 55 Fed. 465, judgment affirmed National Bank of Commerce v. First Nat. Bank (1894) 61 Fed. 809, 10 C. C. A. 87.

The cashier of a national bank has no power to bind it to pay the draft of a third person on one of its customers, to be drawn at a future day, when it expects to have a deposit from him sufficient to cover it, and no action lies against the bank for its refusal to pay such a draft. Flannagan v. California Nat. Bank (C. C. 1893) 56 Fed. 959, 23 L. R. A. 836.

An agreement by a national bank, to guaranty the payment of a debt of a third party, solely for his benefit, is ultra vires. Bowen v. Needles Nat. Bank (C. C. 1898) 87 Fed. 430.

Accommodation indorsements or acceptances by a national bank are ultra vires, and void in the hands of holders with notice. Id.

Giving bond to secure funds deposited with it is within the power of a national bank, and sureties on such bond are liable. State of Nebraska v. First Nat. Bank (C. C. 1898) 88 Fed. 947.

Where a national bank, in order to induce complainant to purchase certain steamship stocks owned by it, agreed to take complainant's note for $50,000 for the stock and hold the stock as collateral security, and to guarantee plaintiff against any loss in the transaction from the execution and delivery of the note, such guaranty was not an ordinary commercial guaranty, but one outside the ordinary business of banking, and ultra vires. Barron v. McKinnon (C. C. 1910) 179 Fed. 759.

While a national bank in negotiating its paper can bind itself for the payment thereof by its indorsement thereon, it cannot guarantee payment of paper of others, or become surety thereon, solely for such other's benefit. First Nat. Bank v. Monroe (1911) 69 S. E. 1123, 135 Ga. 614.

The execution of a bond by a national bank as surety in a replevin suit is beyond its powers and void. Bailey v. Farmers' Nat. Bank (1901) 97 Ill. App. 66.

Where a bank directs a letter to a person, stating that it will guarantee fulfillment of the obligations of another person to the former for a certain amount of goods for a certain time, and it does not appear that the second person purchased the letter or deposited any security therefor, or that the bank had any interest in the transaction, the letter, considered either as a guaranty or letter of credit, is void, and the bank is not liable thereon. Thilmany v. Iowa Paper-Bag Co. (1899) 79 N. W. 68, 108 Iowa, 333.

A guaranty against loss or liability for signing as sureties, given by a bank president in his own name, and without authority from the directors, to those whom he had solicited thus to sign a note given to a bank to retire a prior note held by it against their principal, if considered as made by and binding upon the bank, would be a bar to any suit by it against the sureties; and it is doubtful whether, under the general banking law, a national bank could give such a guaranty in a case where the effect would be to make the paper discounted the paper of one party only, secured by mortgage on real estate. First Nat. Bank v. Bennett (1876) 33 Mich. 520.

A national bank may guaranty the payment of commercial paper as incidental to the exercise of its power to buy and sell the same. Thomas v. City Nat. Bank (1894) 40 Neb. 501, 58 N. W. 943, 24 L. R. A. 263.

A national bank cannot guarantee a building contract between third persons. Norton v. Derry Nat. Bank (1882) 61 N. H. 589, 60 Am. Rep. 335.

A national bank cannot indorse a note for the maker's accommodation, and on the credit of such indorsement procure the note to be discounted by another bank, charging a commission for such loan of its credit. National Bank v. Wells (1880) 79 N. Y. 498.

No action will lie on the promise of the cashier of a national bank to pay the draft of a third person on one of of its customers, to be drawn at a future day. Bank of Barnwell v. Sixth Nat. Bank (1905) 28 Pa. Super. Ct. 413.

A national bank has no power or authority to become a mere accommodation indorser or guarantor of the payment of a debt of another, without benefit to the bank. Id.

A national bank has no power to guaranty the draft of a third person on one of its customers to be drawn on a future day. National Bank of Brunswick v. Sixth Nat. Bank (1905) 61 A. 889, 212 Pa. 238.

The agreement of a national bank to pay drafts to be made on a third person against bills of lading was an agreement of guaranty and ultra vires; there being no intent on the part of the bank to purchase the drafts. Id.

Since a national bank has no power to lend its credit, or to become the guarantor of another's obligation, except in the ordinary course of banking, a national bank's promise that, if the drawee would pay drafts held by it for collection, it would pay his drafts on the drawers for the amount he claimed that such drafts were overdrawn, was unenforceable against the bank. Groos v. Brewster (Tex. Civ. App. 1900) 55 S. W. 590.

A bank cannot bind itself by contracts of suretyship or guaranty made for the sole benefit of others. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. National Bank of Commerce of Dallas (Tex. Civ. App. 1908) 106 S. W. 782.

39. Dealings in stocks, bonds, and options.—Though the national bank act does not authorize a bank to enter into a contract to buy certain bonds and return them to the seller at the purchase price, yet when the amount which it paid for the bonds is tendered back to it, and their surrender demanded, its authority to retain them no longer exists; and the fact that the contract under which it obtained them may be illegal will not prevent the seller from maintaining an action for their value, as such action is not in affirmance of the contract, but in disaffirmance of it, and to prevent the bank from retaining the benefit which it has derived from its unlawful act. Logan County Nat. Bank v. Townsend (1891) 11 Sup. Ct. 496, 139 U. S. 67, 35 L. Ed. 107, affirming (Ky. 1887) 3 S. W. 122.

A national bank has no power to deal in stocks, and cannot, therefore, acquire the stock of another corporation, except as incidental to its power to lend money on personal security. California Nat. Bank v. Kennedy (1897) 17

Sup. Ct. 831, 167 U. S. 362, 42 L. Ed. 198.

The purchase by a national bank of the stock of another corporation, not as incidental to its banking business, being void, cannot be ratified, and therefore the bank is not estopped to deny its liability for the debts of such corporation, although it has received dividends on the stock. Id.

A national bank is without power to purchase, as an investment, with its surplus funds, and to hold as such, shares of stock in another national bank. First Nat. Bank v. Hawkins (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 739, 174 U. S. 364, 43 L. Ed. 1007, reversing judgment (1897) 79 Fed. 51, 24 C. C. A. 444.

A national bank has no power to invest its surplus fund in the stock of another national bank, and cannot be assessed thereon as a stockholder, although it actually made the purchase and held and received dividends on the stock. Shaw v. National German-American Bank of St. Paul, Minn. (1905) 26 Sup. Ct. 750, 199 U. S. 603, 50 L. Ed. 328, affirming judgment (1904) 132 Fed. 658, 65 C. C. A. 620.

A national bank may not become the absolute owner, in satisfaction of a debt, of shares represented by transferable certificates in a partnership formed to purchase, improve, divide into lots, and sell a leasehold. Merchants' Nat. Bank of Cincinnati v. Wehrmann (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 613, 202 U. S. 295, 50 L. Ed. 1036.

It is ultra vires of a national bank to take stock in a corporation organized to embark in the purely speculative business of buying and selling the stocks and assets of an existing and insolvent corporation, with power, but without the obligation, to engage, as an independent enterprise, in a manufacturing business, although the bank takes such stock in exchange for a claim against the insolvent corporation. First Nat. Bank v. Converse (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 306, 200 U. S. 425, 50 L. Ed. 537.

Want of authority of a national bank to subscribe for capital stock in a speculative enterprise is a valid defense to an action against it to enforce its statutory liability as a stockholder. Id.

Purchase of national bank stock for speculation by a national bank is ultra vires. Metropolitan Trust Co. of New York v. McKinnon (1909) 172 Fed. 846, 97 C. C. A. 194.

A purchase of corporate stock by a national bank for the purpose of selling the same at a profit was ultra vires and voidable as between the parties. Barron v. McKinnon (1912) 196 Fed. 933, 116 C. C. A. 483.

A bank has no power to deal in stocks. Baker v. Old Nat. Bank (C. C. 1898) 86 Fed. 1006, 1009.

Under the facts stated, held that the bank had not acquired the stock as collateral, as authorized by the national banking act. Chemical Nat. Bank v. Havermale (1898) 52 P. 1071, 120 Cal. 601, 65 Am. St. Rep. 206.

Questions as to the power of a national bank to purchase or own stock in other corporations must be determined from the statutes of the United States as construed by the United States supreme court. Id.

A national bank has no power to deal in stocks of another corporation. Id.

Under the act of Congress, national banks have no power to deal in stocks for speculation or investment, though they may be taken to satisfy a disputed or doubtful claim, or under foreclosure of pledge. McBoyle v. Union Nat. Bank (Cal. 1912) 122 P. 458.

The mere fact that a national bank and a person engaged in buying grain arrange that the contracts of sales for future delivery into which such person has entered shall be transferred to the bank as security for advances made or to be made by it, and that the proceeds derived from the sales of grain shipped and sold by the bank for the benefit of such person should be applied in protecting his contracts for future delivery, does not render the bank a dealer in board of trade options, so as to make the transactions ultra vires. Morris v. Dixon Nat. Bank (1894) 55 Ill. App. 298.

The president of a national bank who largely controlled its policies purchased stock in violation of his duty so as to make him liable to the bank for the resulting loss. The National Treasury Department after an examination required the bank to immediately dispose of the stock which could not then be done without loss, whereupon, pursuant to an arrangement with the department, the president and his son executed a bond to the bank, prepared by the Treasury Department conditioned to be void if within two years the bank should sell the stocks and realize therefrom, their cost, whereupon the Treasury Department withdrew its demand for the immediate sale of the stock. Held, that the execution of the bond was not an agreement by the bank not to sell the stocks for two years whatever might be their market fluctuations, thereby making the bank to speculate in stocks, so as to be ultra vires on the part of the bank, especially when considered as a covenant as prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1915, providing that a bond in a penal sum containing a condition to the effect that it is to be void upon the performance of any act has the same effect for the purpose of maintaining an action thereon as if it contained a covenant to perform the act specified in the condition. First Nat. Bank v. Jenkins (1911) 130 N. Y. S. 947, 73 Misc. Rep. 277.

A customer of a national bank, being largely indebted to it, and being in failing circumstances, and being the owner of 9 shares in a partnership consisting of 40 shares, each evidenced by a certificate transferable on the books of the firm, transferred his 9 shares to the bank to secure payment of his indebtedness; the bank becoming the owner of such shares. Held not to make the bank a partner, but a part owner in severalty of the property then owned by the partnership, and liable for 9/40 of the debts and expenses in purchasing, improving, and disposing of the firm property. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Wehrmann (1903) 68 N. E. 1004, 69 Ohio St. 160, reversed (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 613, 202 U. S. 295, 50 L. Ed. 1036.

Defendant national bank received from plaintiff, a depositor, railroad stock to be sold for his account on his direction, and transmitted it to brokers, who, on the order of plaintiff, given to defendant, and communicated by it to them, sold the stock. They then sent their check for amount of the proceeds to defendant, payable to its order. Defendant credited plaintiff's account on its books with the amount of the check, and then sent the check, with others, for collection for its account; but payment was refused, the brokers having failed before its presentation. In the meantime defendant had given plaintiff notice of the credit on his account, and he had thereupon drawn out an amount in excess thereof. Held, that the bank being in the matter of the bonds merely an agent to sell, and its acceptance of the check in payment not having been ratified by plaintiff, it was liable for the amount thereof, and could not charge it back against plaintiff's account. Pepperday v. Citizens' Nat. Bank (1898) 38 A. 1030, 183 Pa. St. 519, 41 W. N. C. 343, 39 L. R. A. 529, 63 Am. St. Rep. 769.

40. Bank acting as broker.—A national bank which itself purchased notes it had been authorized by the owner to sell to a third party, and which thus became, under general principles of law, liable for their value as for conversion, is not protected from such liability by the national banking act, even though it was not within its powers to act as agent for the sale of the notes. First Nat. Bank v. Anderson (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 284, 172 U. S. 573, 43 L. Ed. 558.

A national bank has no power to engage in the business of selling mortgage bonds on commission. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Smith (1896) 77 Fed. 129, 23 C. C. A. 80.

A national bank has no authority to engage in the business of selling the bonds of railroad companies on commission. Weckler v. First Nat. Bank (1875) 42 Md. 581, 20 Am. Rep. 95.

A national bank cannot act as broker in lending its depositors' money to third persons. Byron v. First Nat. Bank of Roseburg (Or. 1915) 146 P. 516.

A national bank has no incidental, charter, or statutory powers to enable it to act as broker or agent in the purchase of bonds and stocks. First Nat. Bank v. Hoch (1879) 89 Pa. St. 324, 33 Am. Rep. 769.

A national bank cannot act as broker for the sale of state bonds on commission. Smith v. Philadelphia Nat. Bank (Pa. 1879) 1 Walk. 318.

A national bank is not authorized to sell stocks on commission for its customers. Searle v. First Nat. Bank (Pa. 1885) 2 Walk. 395.

XI. GUARANTY OF DEPOSITS

41. State guaranty laws.—National banks are not unconstitutionally discriminated against by the Kansas bank depositors' guaranty law of March 6, 1909, because it may make the state banks more attractive to the public than national banks, which cannot avail themselves of the scheme and remain national banks. Abilene Nat. Bank of Abilene v. Dolley (1913) 33 Sup. Ct. 409, 228 U. S. 1, 57 L. Ed. 707.

It is illegal for the officers of any national bank in Oklahoma to enter into an agreement to contribute to the guaranty fund provided for by the Oklahoma state banking act, and persistent action on the part of any such bank in accepting or conforming to the provisions of section 4 of that act would be just cause for the forfeiture of its charter. (1908) 27 Op. Atty. Gen. 37.

National banks in the state of Kansas cannot avail themselves of the provisions of section 13 of the bank depositors' guaranty law of March 6, 1909, of that state, and participate in the assessments and benefits of that act upon the same terms and conditions as apply to the state banks. Congress alone can confer such power upon national banks. (1909) 27 Op. Atty. Gen. 272.

XII. INSURANCE OF ASSETS

42. Insurance contract.—The Attorney General approves of a form of policy of insurance guaranteeing the assets of a national bank against loss, provided certain modifications which he suggests are made. (1909) 27 Op. Atty. Gen. 324.

It is entirely within the powers of a national bank to enter into such a contract, but the contract must not subject the bank to periodical examination by representatives of the insurance company. Id.

XIII. ULTRA VIRES ACTS—PLEADING AND DEFENSES

43. Right to plead.—Where a bill of lading is issued to a national bank as security for money advanced on a draft for the price of the goods, a creditor of the shipper, who subsequently attached the goods, cannot object that the bank had no authority to take goods as security for a loan. Ayres, Weatherwax & Reed Co. v. Dorsey Produce Co. (1897) 70 N. W. 111, 101 Iowa, 141, 63 Am. St. Rep. 376.

The loaning by a national bank to an individual of more than the national banking law allows cannot be taken advantage of either by the debtor or another creditor of his. McCartney v. Kipp (1895) 171 Pa. St. 644, 33 Atl. 233.

In an action to rescind for fraud a contract as a part of which a national bank agreed to discount notes and renew them from time to time until they were discharged as provided, it was immaterial whether the agreement by the bank was beyond its powers under the federal statutes; the action being not to enforce, but to rescind, the contract. Baker v. Berry Hill Mineral Springs Co. (1909) 65 S. E. 656, 109 Va. 776.

44. Action against bank.—An act of a national bank, void because ultra vires, cannot be made good by estoppel. Merchants' Bank of Valdosta v. Baird (1908) 160 Fed. 642, 90 C. C. A. 338, 17 L. R. A. (N. S.) 526.

An agreement between the officers of a national bank and the maker of a note payable to the bank that it may be paid by the transfer to the bank of stock of another bank is illegal, and the receiver of the bank is not estopped from denying its validity by reason of having realized on securities transferred to the bank as a part of the transaction; such securities having been received by such maker as trustee for the bank. Tillinghast v. Carr (C. C. 1897) 82 Fed. 298.

When a national bank enters into a contract which is beyond its powers, it cannot be estopped from pleading ultra vires, by the performance of the contract by the other party. First Nat. Bank v. American Nat. Bank (1903) 72 S. W. 1059, 173 Mo. 153.

When a bank is sued on its contract to pay a draft drawn on its customer, it can plead ultra vires. First Nat. Bank v. American Nat. Bank (1903) 72 S. W. 1059, 173 Mo. 153.

In an action against a national bank for breach of contract, a plea that defendant was a national bank, and had no authority to carry out the contract on its part, was good. Metropolitan Stock Exch. v. Lyndonville Nat. Bank (1904) 57 A. 101, 76 Vt. 303.

In an action for breach of an agreement by a national bank to procure a person applications for insurance, if he would procure for it a customer, the bank may set up the defense of ultra vires. Dresser v. Traders' Nat. Bank (1896) 165 Mass. 120, 42 N. E. 567.

In an action of deceit against a national bank to recover damages for the alleged false representations of its teller in the sale to the plaintiff of certain railroad bonds, held, that the selling of railroad bonds on commission was not within the authorized business of a national bank; and, being thus beyond the scope of its corporate powers, the defense of ultra vires was open to it. Weckler v. First Nat. Bank (1875) 42 Md. 581, 20 Am. Rep. 95.

Where the president and cashier of a bank had no authority to certify a noncommercial instrument, by which the drawers sought to indemnify their surety on a building contractor's bond for any liability the surety might sustain by virtue of such bond, the bank was not estopped to plead that the certification of such instrument was ultra vires and void. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. National Bank of Commerce of Dallas (Tex. Civ. App. 1908) 106 S. W. 782.

A national bank, which as a matter of fact purchased, and held as an investment, shares of stock in a second national bank, and received dividends thereon, is not thereby estopped to plead the unlawfulness of its action in defense to an action by the receiver of the second bank, after its insolvency, to collect an assessment made on the shareholders by the comptroller. The contract by which it assumed to become a shareholder, being ultra vires and in contravention of the policy of the statute, was not merely voidable, but void, and could not be given validity, nor made the foundation of any right of action, by any subsequent ratification or act of performance. First Nat. Bank v. Hawkins (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 739, 741, 174 U. S. 364, 43 L. Ed. 1007.

If it be conceded that the liability of a shareholder in a national bank to respond to an assessment in case of insolvency is statutory, and not contractual, such fact does not affect the question of the liability of another national bank, holding stock in the insolvent bank as an investment, without authority of law, for such an assessment, as congress cannot reasonably be presumed to have intended to subject the stockholders and creditors of the defendant bank to a liability, the power to assume which it had denied to the bank for their protection. First Nat. Bank v. Hawkins (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 739, 742, 174 U. S. 364, 43 L. Ed. 1007.

A national bank which deals in stocks of another corporation, in violation of the national banking law, may urge its want of power in avoidance of liability as a stockholder; and this, though it accepted dividends on such stock. Chemical Nat. Bank v. Havermale (1898) 52 P. 1071, 120 Cal. 601, 65 Am. St. Rep. 206.

Conceding that a national bank cannot acquire title in the stock of a corporation which is pledged to it, the pledgor cannot recover the stock without satisfying the bank for its advances. Fulton v. National Bank of Denison (1901) 62 S. W. 84, 26 Tex. Civ. App. 115.

Want of authority of a national bank to subscribe for capital stock in a speculative enterprise is a valid defense to an action against it to enforce its statutory liability as a stockholder. First Nat. Bank v. Converse (1906) 26 Sup.

Ct. 306, 311, 200 U. S. 425, 50 L. Ed. 537.

An owner of mortgaged property cannot sue to enjoin sale under foreclosure, on the ground that defendant national bank had taken an assignment of the decree as a speculation, in contravention of the national banking act. Buchanan v. Saunders County Nat. Bank (1903) 94 N. W. 631, 4 Neb. (Unof.) 410.

A national bank which uses in its business money obtained by its vice president as a loan to it from another national bank cannot escape liability to account therefor upon the ground that the loan was not negotiated by it or by its direction, or that it could not itself have legally borrowed the money. Aldrich v. Chemical Nat. Bank (1900) 20 Sup. Ct. 498, 176 U. S. 618, 44 L. Ed. 611, affirming decree Armstrong v. Chemical Nat. Bank (1897) 83 Fed. 556, 27 C. C. A. 601.

A bank having appropriated the proceeds of goods, held estopped to set up, in a suit for the price, a want of power to buy them. American National Bank v. National Wall-Paper Co. (1896) 77 Fed. 85, 93, 23 C. C. A. 33.

It is no defense to an action against a national bank for money had and received that the collateral security it gave to plaintiff was issued without authority of law. Williams v. American Nat. Bank (1898) 85 Fed. 376, 29 C. C. A. 203.

The fact that a contract made by a national bank to receive and collect securities and reinvest the proceeds for the owner contained provisions which were ultra vires does not relieve the bank of the legal obligation to return the securities or account to the owner for their value. Emmerling v. First Nat. Bank (1899) 97 Fed. 739, 38 C. C. A. 399.

A national bank, which has received money equitably belonging to another, cannot defend against a suit for its recovery on the ground that it was received through a contract made by it which was ultra vires. National Bank of Commerce in St. Louis v. Equitable Trust Co. of New York (1915) 227 Fed. 526, 142 C. C. A. 158.

A national bank cannot escape liability to a depositor for money which he placed in its hands by pleading that it made with him an ultra vires agreement to pay out the money to some third person on deposit of collaterals for his benefit, when the evidence shows it paid out the money without taking the collaterals agreed on. First Nat. Bank v. Henry (Ala. 1906) 49 So. 97.

A bank is liable to the owner of a lot of whisky intrusted to it for shipment and sale, for the proceeds, independently of the question whether national banks are by their charters authorized to sell produce on commission. First Nat. Bank v. Priest (1869) 50 Ill. 321.

A national bank, having taken as security for a pre-existing debt a conveyance of a warehouse or elevator for storing grain, placed parties in charge to continue the business as its agents. A., who held a receipt from former custodians of the elevator for a certain quantity of grain stored therein, and mixed, as was customary, with other grain of the same quality, made a demand on the bank therefor, and, delivery of the same being refused, brought suit for its conversion. It appeared that when the bank took possession of the elevator there was enough grain therein of the kind described in A.'s receipt to cover all receipts for such grain then outstanding. Held, that the bank had power to take the elevator as security for its debt, and, even admitting that carrying on the warehouse business was ultra vires, still it was its duty to hold the grain therein for the proper owners, and that it was, therefore, liable. German Nat. Bank v. Meadowcroft (1879) 4 Ill. App. (4 Bradw.) 630.

A national bank which, to secure its claims, takes possession, by its cashier, of goods under a chattel mortgage, and disposes of them, cannot claim immunity from liability for any surplus remaining after payment of its claims, on the ground that its cashier, being an officer of a national bank, exceeded his powers, and acted ultra vires. Cooper v. First Nat. Bank (1888) 40 Kan. 5, 18 Pac. 937.

Where one sells bonds to a national bank at a certain price, the bank agreeing to resell the bonds to the vendor at the same price or less, but, the bonds subsequently appreciating in value, the bank refused to resell them, held, in a suit by the vendor for the breach of contract, that the bank cannot escape liability by setting up that it had no authority, under the national bank act, to buy the bonds, as it might have discharged its obligation by returning the bonds, and receiving back the purchase money; and to permit it to retain the bonds would be to allow it to profit by its own violation of the act. Logan County Nat. Bank v. Townsend (Ky. 1887) 3 S. W. 122.

A national bank, which has purchased notes, and paid therefor, with the intention of taking title thereto, cannot recover back the money on the ground that the purchase was ultra vires. Attleborough Nat. Bank v. Rogers (1878) 125 Mass. 339.

The cashier of a national bank, on behalf of the bank, received a deposit under the agreement that it was to be invested by the bank in stocks and bonds for the benefit of the depositor. Held, that the bank was liable for the return of the money, notwithstanding the agreement on which it was received may have been ultra vires; and the fact that the cashier embezzled the money does not affect the bank's liability. L'Herbette v. Pittsfield Nat. Bank (1894) 162 Mass. 137, 38 N. E. 368, 44 Am. St. Rep. 354.

In absence of evidence that the president and cashier of a national bank were agents of a depositor in transferring to their account money of the depositor, which they agreed to loan on real estate, and that the depositor knew they were acting for her in that capacity, the bank and its receiver are liable for her funds so transferred, though it could not loan on such security. Short v. Butler (1909) 117 S. W. 114, 136 Mo. App. 356.

Where a national bank has received benefit from a contract by one of its officers guarantying a building contract between third persons, an action may be maintained against the bank for recovery to the extent of such benefit. Norton v. Derry Nat. Bank (1882) 61 N. H. 589, 60 Am. Rep. 335.

The act of a national bank in accepting a deposit to be held by it as collateral security for the performance of a contract between the depositor and another is not illegal, and it would be estopped to set up the defense of ultra vires against one making such a contract with it relying thereon. Bushnell v. Chautauqua County Nat. Bank (N. Y. 1877) 10 Hun, 378, affirmed in (1878) 74 N. Y. 290.

Where a national bank warranted to another bank payment of a loan made to an individual in order that the national bank might obtain from the amount loaned a sum in which the individual was indebted to it, conceding that the guaranty was ultra vires, it was liable thereon to the amount actually received by it under the transaction. Appleton v. Citizens' Cent. Nat. Bank of New York (1908) 83 N. E. 470, 190 N. Y. 417, reversing judgment (1907) 105 N. Y. S. 1105, 119 App. Div. 889.

A complaint alleged that defendant, a national bank, by letter agreed that a draft drawn by plaintiff, not to exceed a certain sum, on a certain firm, for goods shipped to them by plaintiff, should be paid, and that in consideration of such guaranty plaintiff shipped the goods to such firm, but that the draft had not been paid, and defendant refused to pay it. Held, that where a corporation has entered into a contract not illegal, which the other party has performed, it will not be heard to claim ultra vires to avoid performance on its part, and, since the national banking act does not prohibit such a contract, the complaint stated a cause of action and a demurrer thereto should be overruled. Hutchins v. Planters' Nat. Bank (1901) 38 S. E. 252, 128 N. C. 72.

A national bank which assumed to sell for another certain notes owned by him, but which, instead of selling them to a third person, without his knowledge sold them to itself, violated its duty to the owner, the same as if it had full power under the law to act as such agent; and was, therefore, guilty of a conversion of such notes, notwithstanding its agency was ultra vires. Anderson v. First Nat. Bank (1896) 5 N. D. 451, 67 N. W. 821.

Where a cashier of a national bank bought and sold stocks for customers in the name of the bank, with the knowledge of the directors, the bank is liable for stocks embezzled by the cashier, though the bank was unauthorized to deal in stock. Searle v. First Nat. Bank (Pa. 1885) 2 Walk. 395.

Where money is deposited in a national bank under a contract obligating the bank to pay it to a third person on the performance of certain work by the latter, the bank cannot, after the performance of the work, object to the payment of the money to the person entitled thereto on the ground that the national banking act did not empower it to enter into such a contract. Sykes v. First Nat. Bank (1891) 2 S. D. 242, 49 N. W. 1058.

A national bank, which has received and retained the benefits resulting from its contract to pay for goods sold on its credit and delivered to a depositor in pursuance of the contract, cannot avoid liability thereon on the ground that the contract was ultra vires. First Nat. Bank v. Greenville Oil & Cotton Co. (1901) 60 S. W. 828, 24 Tex. Civ. App. 645.

Where a national bank took over the operation of a creamery corporation which was largely indebted to it, and continued the operation of the creamery until a receiver was appointed for the bank, at which time it held certain funds actually identified in trust for the patrons of the creamery, it was no answer to the receiver's obligation to pay over such funds that the bank had no power to engage in the creamery business. Emigh v. Earling (Wis. 1908) 115 N. W. 128.

45. Action by bank.—A national bank, which, in the usual course of its business, has become the owner of notes secured by mortgage, may lawfully agree with others holding conflicting mortgages on the same property, to represent all in an action to enforce the security, their respective rights in the proceeds to be subsequently determined, where such action was deemed best for its own interests, and, when vested with title to the other mortgages by proper assignments, its right to maintain the suit cannot be questioned by the defendant on the ground that its agreement was ultra vires. Morris v. Third Nat. Bank (1905) 142 Fed. 25, 73 C. C. A. 211, writ of certiorari denied (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 762, 201 U. S. 649, 50 L. Ed. 905.

The fact that a contract made by a national bank is ultra vires, as contrary to the national bank act, cannot be set up in defense to an action growing out of such contract. Voltz v. National Bank of Illinois (1895) 158 Ill. 532, 42 N. E. 69, 30 L. R. A. 155, affirming (1894) 57 Ill. App. 360, following National Bank v. Matthews (1879) 98 U. S. 621, 25 L. Ed. 188.

The defense cannot be urged, to defeat securities given for a loan made by a national bank, that the loan was for an amount in excess of the restriction of the United States statute upon the amount of loans which may be made by such banks. Mills County Nat. Bank v. Perry (1887) 72 Iowa, 15, 33 N. W. 341.

The defense of ultra vires is not available either to one who has borrowed money of a national bank on security upon which it is not allowed by law to loan, or to a creditor of his, who has obtained possession of the property, and is chargeable with knowledge of the facts. Farmers' Nat. Bank v. Robinson (1898) 53 P. 762, 59 Kan. 777.

The fact that the purchase, by a national bank, of a promissory note from an indorsee was ultra vires, does not prevent the bank from maintaining in its own name an action against a prior party thereto. National Pemberton Bank v. Porter (1878) 125 Mass. 333, 28 Am. Rep. 235.

Where a national bank purchases a promissory note, indorsed by the payee, the latter cannot set up as defense, in an action by the bank, a contract made by the bank with a third person at the time of the purchase, which contract was ultra vires and the subject-matter of which was the note. Id.

A national bank which purchases a promissory note from an indorsee may maintain an action thereon in its own name against a prior party thereto, without regard to the question whether the purchase was one which it was authorized by law to make. Atlas Nat. Bank v. Savery (1879) 127 Mass. 75.

Even if the purchase of a note by such a bank is ultra vires, it is an ordinary contract, not being made penal or expressly forbidden, and the maker or indorser cannot defend on the ground that the bank has acquired no title. The violation of the law can be availed of only in proceedings against the bank, in the interest of the public, to deprive it of its charter. Prescott Nat. Bank v. Butler (1893) 157 Mass. 548, 32 N. E. 909.

A recovery by a national bank upon promissory notes purchased by it cannot be defeated by the plea that such purchase was ultra vires. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Hanson (1884) 33 Minn. 40, 21 N. W. 849, 53 Am. Rep. 5, overruling First Nat. Bank v. Pierson (1877) 24 Minn. 140, 31 Am. Rep. 341.

In an action by a national bank on railroad aid bonds, the United States alone can complain that the bank was not authorized to hold such bonds. Town Council of Lexington v. Union Nat. Bank (1897) 22 So. 291, 75 Miss. 1.

It is no defense to the maker of a nonnegotiable note, discounted with a national bank, that such banks have no right to deal in that kind of paper. First Nat. Bank v. Gillilan (1880) 72 Mo. 77.

Though a national bank is forbidden to lend money on real-estate security, it can enforce such security, if taken; and, where it takes a note without knowledge that it is so secured, it may claim and enforce the same when afterwards discovered. George v. Somerville (1899) 54 S. W. 491, 153 Mo. 7.

Even if it appeared that the act of plaintiff national bank in acquiring title to the special tax bill sued on was ultra vires, such fact would be no defense, the purchase being only voidable, and its validity being assailable only in a direct proceeding by the government. First Nat. Bank v. Shewalter (Mo. App. 1911) 134 S. W. 42.

One who has borrowed money of a national bank cannot defend proceedings for a sale of securities pledged, on the ground that the bank has violated the banking law by taking such securities. Union Nat. Bank v. Touzalin Imp. Co. (1901) 95 N. W. 489, 1 Neb. (Unof.) 116.

A national bank indorsed a certain note for the accommodation of the maker, and when it became due the bank paid it, and brought suit against the maker, who set up as a defense that the bank had no power to so indorse. Held that, even if the indorsement be void, the note is valid, and the bank is entitled to recover. Gloversville Nat. Bank v. Wells (N. Y. 1878) 15 Hun, 51.

To a suit brought by a national bank on a renewal note it is no defense that the original loan was for a larger sum than the bank was, by its charter, authorized to make; the debt upon the renewal being reduced within the limited maximum. Allen v. First Nat. Bank (1872) 23 Ohio St. 97.

Where a national bank makes to one of its directors a loan of money, which in amount and in the rate of interest is in contravention of the national banking act, the borrower is not estopped to defend against a recovery of interest. Bank of Cadiz v. Slemmons (1877) 34 Ohio St. 142, 32 Am. Rep. 364.

Want of authority in plaintiff national bank to purchase a negotiable note cannot be pleaded by the maker of the note in defense. First Nat. Bank v. Smith (1895) 8 S. D. 7, 65 N. W. 437, 439.

A national bank, having joined with other persons in a partnership to operate a mill, cannot be prevented from recovering moneys loaned to the firm, on the ground that it had no power to become a partner in a mill. Cameron v. First Nat. Bank (Tex. Civ. App.

1896) 34 S. W. 178, affirming (Tex. Civ. App. 1893) 23 S. W. 334.

XIV. TRANSACTIONS PRELIMINARY TO ORGANIZATION

46. Leases and other contracts.—A lease by a national bank before receiving the authorization provided for in the last clause of this section, of a bank building, is ultra vires, and will not support an action for rent or for anything beyond the value of what the bank has actually received and enjoyed. McCormick v. Market Nat. Bank (1897) 17 Sup. Ct. 433, 436, 165 U. S. 538, 41 L. Ed. 817, affirming (1896) 44 N. E. 381, 162 Ill. 100.

Correspondence between one bank and the person who become the president of a bank afterwards formed cannot constitute an agreement controlling the business between the banks, but may be referred to, in connection with other evidence, to show what was their understanding. First Nat. Bank v. Armstrong (C. C. 1890) 42 Fed. 193.

An arrangement made by the officers of the bank before the date of its certificate of authorization, of providing for the cashing by another bank of checks drawn upon it, is invalid. Armstrong v. Second Nat. Bank (D. C. 1889) 38 Fed. 883.

Where a national bank executed a lease before the comptroller of currency had authorized it to do business, the directors and stockholders are not liable thereon where they are not named as parties, and there are no words to bind them to its covenants. Seeberger v. McCormick (1899) 53 N. E. 340, 178 Ill. 404, affirming judgment McCormick v. Seeberger (1898) 73 Ill. App. 87.

XV. STATE LEGISLATION

47. Legal scope.—Congress may confer on national banks such powers and immunities as it sees fit, and the states can in no manner interfere therewith except as permitted by congress. Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. Dearing (1875) 91 U. S. 29, 23 L. Ed. 196.

National banks are subject to state legislation, except where it conflicts with some act of Congress, or where it tends to impair or destroy the utility of such banks as agents or instrumentalities of the United States, or interferes with the purposes of their creation. Waite v. Dowley (1876) 94 U. S. 527, 533, 24 L. Ed. 181.

So far as Code Iowa, §§ 1884, 1885, attempts to prohibit national banks from receiving deposits when insolvent, and prescribes a punishment for a violation of such prohibition by any officer or agent thereof, it is invalid as an attempt to control and regulate the business operations of national banks. Easton v. State of Iowa (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 288, 188 U. S. 220, 47 L. Ed. 452, reversing judgment State v. Easton (1901) 85 N. W. 795, 113 Iowa, 516, 86 Am. St. Rep. 389.

A national bank is a part of the general government's financial system, and state statutes relating to banks cannot control national banks. Lucas County v. Jamison (C. C. 1909) 170 Fed. 338.

National banks are instrumentalities of the federal government, and any action of a state which impairs their efficiency as such governmental agencies, or interferes with their legitimate business as banks, is unconstitutional and void. Larabee v. Dolley (C. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 365, order reversed Dolley v. Abilene Nat. Bank of Abilene, Kan. (1910) 179 Fed. 461, 102 C. C. A. 607, 32 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1065, and decree affirmed Assaria State Bank of Assaria v. Dolley (1910) 31 Sup. Ct. 189, 219 U. S. 121, 55 L. Ed. 123.

It is not within the power of a state legislature to alter, modify, add to, or diminish the powers, duties, or liabilities created in or conferred upon banking associations established under a law of the United States. (1869) 13 Op. Atty. Gen. 56.

Such associations cannot be merged or in any manner identified with similar corporations created by state legislation, without the authority of Congress. Id.

Acts 18th Gen. Assem. Iowa, c. 153, §§ 1, 2, making it a felony for "any officer" of a bank to receive deposits with knowledge that the bank is insolvent, are not void, in so far as they apply to national bank officers, as an attempt to control and regulate the operations of national banks. State v. Fields (1895) 98 Iowa, 748, 62 N. W. 653.

The state is without authority to enact laws, either in the form of constitution or statute, that in any manner conflict with the national banking act, or interfere with or undertake to regulate or control the business that national banks are authorized by such act to carry on. First Nat. Bank of Elizabethtown v. Commonwealth (1911) 137 S. W. 518, 143 Ky. 816, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 54.

National banks, as federal agencies, are exempted from state legislation only so far as it may interfere with or impair their efficiency in performing the functions by which they are designed to serve the national government. Thomas v. Farmers' Bank (1877) 46 Md. 43.

The power to create a corporation as an appropriate instrument for the execution of a constitutional power vested in the federal government, only carries with it authority to confer upon that corporation such privileges or immunities from state laws as are necessary to enable it to effect the legitimate national objects for which it is created. First Nat. Bank v. Lamb (1872) 50 N. Y. 95, 10 Am. Rep. 438.

National banks are responsible alone to the national government, and are as independent of state legislation or interference as the army, navy, mint, or judicial tribunals of the United States. Pittsburgh v. First Nat. Bank (1867) 55 Pa. St. (5 P. F. Smith) 45.

The rule that a state can exercise no control over a national bank, or in any manner affect its operation except as Congress may permit, excepts the bank only from such legislation as tends to impair its utility as an instrumentality of the federal government. State v. Clement Nat. Bank (1911) 78 A. 944, 84 Vt. 167, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 22.

48. Construction and operation.—An action in attachment against a national bank is to be conducted and governed by the laws of the state applicable to attachment suits against natural persons. First Nat. Bank v. Colby (1871) 46 Ala. 435.

Acts 18th Gen. Assem. Iowa, c. 153, §§ 1, 2, making it a felony for "any officer," of a bank to receive deposits with knowledge that the bank is insolvent, apply to officers of national as well as other banks. State v. Fields (1895) 98 Iowa, 748, 62 N. W. 653.

Laws Kan. 1891, c. 43, § 16, relating to the receiving of deposits by officers of insolvent banks, and imposing a punishment therefor, does not apply to officers of national banks. State v. Menke (1895) 56 Kan. 77, 42 Pac. 350.

The provisions of Laws Kan. 1879, c. 47, entitled "An act making officers of banking institutions responsible for the reception of deposits or the creation of debts, when such bank is insolvent, or in a failing condition," are not applicable to national banks and their officers. Stout v. Lusk (1900) 59 P. 603, 9 Kan. App. 694.

Ky. St. 1903, § 483, placing notes payable and negotiable at banks organized in the state under the state or federal laws, and indorsed to, or discounted by, any such bank on the same footing as foreign bills of exchange, violates no rights secured to national banks by acts of Congress, such banks being subject to the control of the state in which they are situated, as regards the construction of contracts, the transfer of property, or creation of debts and liability to suit. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Ford (1907) 99 S. W. 260, 30 Ky. Law Rep. 558.

The purpose of Laws N. H. 1907, c. 112, providing that no person, corporation, or association, except savings banks incorporated in the state, etc., shall make use of words indicating that a place of business is the office of a savings bank, nor make use of any printed or written matter having words indicating that a business is the business of a savings bank, nor receive deposits and transact business in the manner of a savings bank, etc., is to prevent the obtaining of the money of depositors on a false representation that the party receiving it is authorized to do and is doing a business like that of a savings bank, and the act does not interfere with the general business of investment by banking institutions of deposits received from their customers on which they agree to pay interest, and the act, so construed, is intended to apply to and includes national banks. State v. People's Nat. Bank (1908) 70 A. 542, 75 N. H. 27.

1 Rev. St. N. Y. (2d Ed.) p. 708, §§ 6, 7, prohibiting all corporations not authorized by the laws of this state from keeping an office of discount or deposit in the state, includes national banks organized and doing business in another state; and therefore, if such bank discounts a note at an office kept within this state without first complying with its laws, it cannot maintain an action thereon. National Bank of Fairhaven v. Phœnix Warehousing Co. (N. Y. 1875) 6 Hun, 71.

Purd. Dig. Pa. p. 333, § 93, prohibiting bank cashiers from engaging in any other occupation, does not apply to cashiers of national banks. Allen v. Carter (1888) 119 Pa. 192, 13 Atl. 70.

Section 4, c. 866, Act Aug. 13, 1888, declaring that national banks, "for the purposes of all actions by or against them, real, personal, or mixed, and all suits in equity, be deemed citizens of the states in which they are respectively located," refers exclusively to civil actions, and the right of the state to punish a national bank for a violation of its police laws cannot be predicated upon it. State v. First Nat. Bank (1892) 2 S. D. 568, 51 N. W. 587, 780.

CITED WITHOUT DEFINITE APPLICATION

Case v. Citizens' Bank (1879) 100 U. S. 446, 448, 25 L. Ed. 695; U. S. v. Britton (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 526, 530, 108 U. S. 193, 27 L. Ed. 701; Butler v. Coleman (1888) 8 Sup. Ct. 718, 721, 124 U. S. 721, 31 L. Ed. 567; Fritts v. Palmer (1889) 10 Sup. Ct. 93, 95, 132 U. S. 282, 33 L. Ed. 317; Fourth Nat. Bank v. American Mills Co. (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 52, 137 U. S. 234, 34 L. Ed. 655; Briggs v. Spaulding (1891) 11 Sup. Ct. 924, 927, 928, 141 U. S. 132, 35 L. Ed. 662; Petri v. Commercial Nat. Bank (1892) 12 Sup. Ct. 325, 326, 142 U. S. 644, 35 L. Ed. 1144; Chemical Nat. Bank of Chicago v. Hartford Deposit Co. (1896) 16 Sup. Ct. 439, 440, 161 U. S. 1, 40 L. Ed. 595; McClellan v. Chipman (1896) 17 Sup. Ct. 85, 87, 164 U. S. 347, 41 L. Ed. 461; Ex parte Jones (1897) 17 Sup. Ct. 222, 223, 164 U. S. 691, 41 L. Ed. 601; California Nat. Bank v. Thomas (1898) 19 Sup. Ct. 4, 5, 171 U. S. 441, 43 L. Ed. 231; Seeberger v. McCormick (1899) 20 Sup. Ct. 128, 129, 175 U. S. 274, 44 L. Ed. 161; Continental National Bank of Memphis v. Buford (1903) 24 Sup. Ct. 54, 55, 191 U. S. 119, 48 L. Ed. 119; Earling v. Emigh (1909) 30 Sup. Ct. 672, 674, 218 U. S. 27, 54 L. Ed. 915; Simons v. Fisher (1893) 55 Fed. 905, 912, 5 C. C. A. 311, 20 L. R. A. 554 (dissenting opinion); Sioux City Terminal Railroad & Warehouse Co. v. Trust Co. of North America (1897) 82 Fed. 124, 135, 27 C. C. A. 73 (affirmed [1899] 19 Sup. Ct. 341, 173 U. S. 99, 43 L. Ed. 628); St. Louis Nat. Bank v. Brinkman (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 45; Lyons v. Lyons Nat. Bank (C. C. 1881) 8 Fed. 369, 376; Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Sevier (C. C. 1882) 14 Fed. 662; Scott v. Pequonnock Nat. Bank (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 494; U. S. v. National Bank (C. C. 1896) 73 Fed. 379, 381; National Bank of Commerce v. Wade (C. C. 1897) 84 Fed. 10, 12; Hulitt v. Bell (C. C. 1898) 85 Fed. 98, 99; In re Headley (D. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 765.

§ 9662. (Act May 1, 1886, c. 73, § 2.) Change of name or location.

Any national banking association may change its name or the place where its operations of discount and deposit are to be carried on, to any other place within the same State, not more than thirty miles distant with the approval of the Comptroller of the Currency, by the vote of shareholders owning two-thirds of the stock of such association. A duly authenticated notice of the vote and of the new name or location selected shall be sent to the office of the Comptroller of the Currency; but no change of name or location shall be valid until the Comptroller shall have issued his certificate of approval of the same. (24 Stat. 18.)

This section and the two sections next following were part of an act entitled "An act to enable national banking associations to increase their capital stock and to change their names or locations."

Section 1 of the act, authorizing increase of the capital stock of such banks, is set forth post, § 9680.

Notes of Decisions

Change of location.—Where a national bank located in a suburb outside the corporate limits of Oklahoma City, having a population of not to exceed 3,000, was chartered with a capital of $25,000, and, after the suburb had been included in the city, the Comptroller refused permission to move the bank's place of business into the business section of the city unless it increased its capital to at least $200,000 and agreed to comply with the law regulating reserves in reserve cities, of which Oklahoma City was one, the alteration of the city's boundaries did not entitle the bank to so remove without compliance with the Comptroller's conditions, and, it having removed without fulfilling such conditions, the Comptroller was entitled to maintain a suit for the forfeiture of its charter. First Nat. Bank v. Murray (1914) 212 Fed. 140, 128 C. C. A. 652.

Cited without definite application, Fritts v. Palmer (1889) 10 Sup. Ct. 93, 95, 132 U. S. 282, 33 L. Ed. 317.

§ 9663. (Act May 1, 1886, c. 73, § 3.) Effect of change of name on debts, liabilities, etc.

All debts, liabilities, rights, provisions, and powers of the association under its old name shall devolve upon and inure to the association under its new name. (24 Stat. 19.)

§ 9664. (Act May 1, 1886, c. 73, § 4.) Liabilities and suits not affected by change of name.

Nothing in this act contained shall be so construed as in any manner to release any national banking association under its old name or at its old location from any liability, or affect any action or proceeding in law in which said association may be or become a party or interested. (24 Stat. 19.)

§ 9665. (Act July 12, 1882, c. 290, § 1.) Extension of period of corporate succession.

Any national banking association organized under the acts of February twenty-fifth, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, June third, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, and February fourteenth, eighteen hundred and eighty, or under sections fifty-one hundred and thirty-three, fifty-one hundred and thirty-four, fifty-one hundred and thirty-five, fifty-one hundred and thirty-six, and fifty-one hundred fifty-four of the Revised Statutes of the United States, may, at any time within the two years next previous to the date of the expiration of its corporate existence under present law, and with the approval of the Comptroller of the Currency, to be granted, as hereinafter provided, extend its period of succession by amending its articles of association for a term of not more than twenty years from the expiration of the period of succession named in said articles of association, and shall have succession for such extended period, unless sooner dissolved by the act of shareholders owning two-thirds of its stock, or unless its franchise becomes forfeited by some violation of law, or unless hereafter modified or repealed. (22 Stat. 162.)

This was the first section of the Currency Act of 1882, entitled "An act to enable national-banking associations to extend their corporate existence, and for other purposes."

Sections 2–7 of the act are set forth post, §§ 9666–9671.

Section 8 of the act, relating to the amount of bonds deposited as security for circulating notes and to reduction of amount and retirement of such notes, is set forth post, § 9708.

Section 9 of the act, providing for withdrawal of circulating notes on the deposit of lawful money, and the withdrawal of bonds held as security therefor, is set forth post, § 9709.

Section 10 of the act repealed R. S. §§ 5171, 5176, and prescribed and regulated the issue of circulating notes. It was superseded by Act March 14, 1900, c. 41, § 12, post, § 9713.

Section 11 of the act, provided for the exchange, for outstanding three and one-half per cent. bonds of the United States, of three per cent. bonds. It is omitted as temporary and executed.

Section 12 of the act, authorizing the issue of gold certificates upon the deposit of gold coin, is set forth ante, § 6566.

Section 13 of the act, providing for the punishment of bank officers, etc., for falsely certifying checks, is set forth post, § 9771.

Section 14 of the act, reserving to Congress power to amend, etc., or repeal this and acts of which it is amendatory, is set forth post, § 9672.

Act Feb. 25, 1863, c. 58, 12 Stat. 665, mentioned in this section, was repealed by the National Bank Act of June 3, 1864, c. 106, 13 Stat. 99, also mentioned therein, which was incorporated into this Title of the Revised Statutes. See notes to Act June 20, 1874, c. 343, § 1, ante, § 9657.

Act Feb. 14, 1880, c. 25, also mentioned in this section, is set forth post, § 9727.

The Comptroller of the Currency was authorized to extend, under the provisions of this act, for a further period of 20 years, the charter of any national banking association extended under the provisions of this act, by Act April 12, 1902, c. 503, post, § 9673.

Notes of Decisions

Opinion under former statute.—See (1882) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 288.

Cited without definite application, Leather Manufacturers' Nat'l Bank v. Cooper (1887) 7 Sup. Ct. 777, 120 U. S. 778, 30 L. Ed. 816; Scott v. Deweese (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 585, 181 U. S. 202, 45 L. Ed. 822.

§ 9666. (Act July 12, 1882, c. 290, § 2.) Procedure.

Such amendment of said articles of association shall be authorized by the consent in writing of shareholders owning not less than two-thirds of the capital stock of the association; and the board of directors shall cause such consent to be certified under the seal of the association, by the president or cashier, to the Comptroller of the Currency, accompanied by an application made by the president or cashier for the approval of the amended articles of association by the Comptroller; and such amended articles of association shall not be valid until the Comptroller shall give to such association a certificate under his hand and seal that the association has complied with all the provisions required to be complied with, and is authorized to have succession for the extended period named in the amended articles of association. (22 Stat. 162.)

Notes of Decisions

Certificate—Presumption and proof.—Where a national bank continued its existence and performed the functions of such an association after the expiration of its original corporate existence for a long period of time, it would be presumed to have accepted the benefit of a certificate executed by the Comptroller of a Currency extending its corporate existence. Clement v. U. S. (1906) 149 Fed. 305, 79 C. C. A. 243, writ of certiorari denied (1907)

27 Sup. Ct. 795, 206 U. S. 562, 51 L. Ed. 1189.

Where a certificate of the Comptroller of the Currency recited that a certain bank had complied with all the provisions of this act and declared that the bank was authorized to have succession until November 21, 1908, such certificate was conclusive evidence, in a prosecution of the president of the bank for violating the national bank act, of a compliance by the bank with all necessary conditions precedent to the extension of its charter. Id.

Cited without definite application, Leather Manufacturers' Nat. Bank v. Cooper (1887) 7 Sup. Ct. 777, 120 U. S. 778, 30 L. Ed. 816.

§ 9667. (Act July 12, 1882, c. 290, § 3.) Examination and issue of certificate of approval by Comptroller.

Upon the receipt of the application and certificate of the association provided for in the preceding section, the Comptroller of the Currency shall cause a special examination to be made, at the expense of the association, to determine its condition; and if after such examination or otherwise, it appears to him that said association is in a satisfactory condition, he shall grant his certificate of approval provided for in the preceding section, or if it appears that the condition of said association is not satisfactory, he shall withhold such certificate of approval. (22 Stat. 163.)

§ 9668. (Act July 12, 1882, c. 290, § 4.) Corporate powers upon extension of period of succession; jurisdiction of suits by or against national banks.

Any association so extending the period of its succession shall continue to enjoy all the rights and privileges and immunities granted and shall continue to be subject to all the duties, liabilities, and restrictions imposed by the Revised Statutes of the United States and other acts having reference to national banking associations, and it shall continue to be in all respects the identical association it was before the extension of its period of succession: Provided, however, That the jurisdiction for suits hereafter brought by or against any association established under any law providing for national-banking associations, except suits between them and the United States, or its officers and agents, shall be the same as, and not other than, the jurisdiction for suits by or against banks not organized under any law of the United States which do or might do banking business where such national-banking association may be doing business when such suits may be begun: And all laws and parts of laws of the United States inconsistent with this proviso be, and the same are hereby, repealed. (22 Stat. 163.)

Provisions relating to the citizenship of national banks for purposes of actions by or against them, and to the jurisdiction of the district courts of suits against national banks, etc., were made by Jud. Code, § 24, par. 16, ante, § 991(16).

Notes of Decisions

Construction and operation of proviso.—For other provisions as to the jurisdiction of suits by or against national banking associations, see notes under § 991(16), ante.

Act Aug. 13, 1888, c. 866, § 4, was intended to displace and be a substitute for the proviso of this section. George v. Wallace (1904) 135 Fed. 286, 68 C. C. A. 40, affirmed (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 495, 201 U. S. 230, 50 L. Ed. 738, and (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 498, 201 U. S. 244, 50 L. Ed. 742. But has been held not to supersede it. Levitan v. Houghton Nat. Bank (Mich. 1913) 140 N. W. 1019.

Suits against private persons after a national bank has been found to be insolvent, and for the exclusive benefit of its creditors, by a receiver, do not come within this proviso. Price v. Abbott (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 506. Its object was to deprive the United States courts of jurisdiction of cases by or against national banks in all cases where state banks or banks organized under state laws could not likewise sue or be sued in United States courts. Id. It refers only to suits brought after its passage. First Nat. Bank v. Morgan (1889) 10 Sup. Ct. 37, 132 U. S. 141, 33 L. Ed. 282; Morgan v. First Nat. Bank (1885) 93 N. C. 352. And relates to the jurisdiction of state, not federal, courts in actions by or against national banks. Levitan v. Houghton Nat. Bank (1913) 140 N. W. 1019, 174 Mich. 566.

The clause of section 9834, post, forbidding state courts to grant preliminary injunctions against national banks, was not repealed by this section, nor by Act Aug. 13, 1888, c. 866, § 4, declaring them, for the purpose of suit, citizens of their respective states, and federal jurisdiction so far the same for them as for individuals. Freeman Mfg. Co. of North Adams v. National Bank of the Republic (1894) 160 Mass. 398, 35 N. E. 865.

An application by a stockholder of a national bank, who has lost her certificate of stock, for the issuance of a new one, held to be a "suit" within this section. In re Hayt (1902) 79 N. Y. S. 845, 39 Misc. Rep. 356.

In an action by a national bank before a state court to collect an indebtedness, defendant set up a counterclaim founded on usury. Held, that under this section the defense was a proper one. Wachovia Nat. Bank v. Ireland (1898) 29 S. E. 835, 122 N. C. 571.

—— Jurisdiction in general.—Actions, local in their nature, may be maintained in the proper state court against a national banking association in a county or a city other than that where it is established. Casey v. Adams (1880) 102 U. S. 66, 26 L. Ed. 52.

To give the supreme court jurisdiction to review the decision of a state supreme court under the banking act, the plaintiff in error must be by the judgment below denied some right, title, or immunity specially claimed under said act, and such claim must be for himself, and not for a third person, in whose title he has no interest. Miller v. National Bank of Lancaster (1883) 106 U. S. 542, 1 Sup. Ct. 536, 27 L. Ed. 289.

A judgment of a state court awarding a bank possession of land held not to deny to plaintiff in error, ousted from possession, any "title, right, privilege, or immunity," and a writ of error would not lie to the supreme court. Id.

A federal court has no jurisdiction of a suit by a stockholder against the bank and its officers and directors, all of whom are residents of the same state, to compel collection of a note due the bank, and payment to the bank by the directors of sums lost by their illegal conduct. Whittemore v. Amoskeag Nat. Bank (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 592, 134 U. S. 527, 33 L. Ed. 1002, reversing decree (C. C. 1885) 26 Fed. 819.

Banks cannot sue or be sued in the federal courts, except where the suit is based on the diversity of citizenship of the parties. Petri v. Commercial Nat. Bank (1892) 12 Sup. Ct. 325, 142 U. S. 644, 35 L. Ed. 1144; Ex parte Jones (1897) 17 Sup. Ct. 222, 164 U. S. 691, 41 L. Ed. 601.

A suit in a federal court by a national bank located in another state, will not lie where declaration fails to show diverse citizenship, and the record nowhere supplies the omission. Thomas v. National Bank of D. O. Mills (1901) 106 Fed. 438, 45 C. C. A. 407.

A suit which may be brought in a federal Circuit Court by or against a citizen of a state, because it arises under the Constitution, laws or treaties of the United States, may, for the same reason, be brought in such court by or against a national bank located in the same state, notwithstanding this act. George v. Wallace (1904) 135 Fed. 286, 68 C. C. A. 40, decree affirmed Wyman v. Wallace (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 495, 201 U. S. 230, 50 L. Ed. 738, and Frenzer v. Same (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 498, 201 U. S. 244, 50 L. Ed. 742, and Poppleton v. Same (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 498, 201 U. S. 245, 50 L. Ed. 743.

The jurisdiction of the federal circuit court on a creditors' bill against a national bank, for discovery and other relief upon allegations of fraud by the officers, is not superseded by the appointment of a receiver by the comptroller. McElhenny v. First Nat. Bank (C. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 8,779.

A bank, attempting to sue in a federal court for a district other than the one in which the bank is established, is subject to the jurisdictional limits as to the amount in controversy in actions by natural persons. St. Louis Nat. Bank v. Brinkman (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 45, 47.

A national bank as such is not authorized to sue in a federal court outside the district in which it is located, but a bank located in one state is authorized to sue a citizen in another in a United States court held in the district where the defendant resides; since, for the purpose of determining the jurisdiction of a federal court, a national bank will be regarded as a citizen of the state where it is established or located. St. Louis Nat. Bank v. Allen (C. C. 1881) 5 Fed. 551.

A United States circuit court has jurisdiction of an action by a national bank to enjoin the collection of an excessive tax levied by a county in which it is located; since such suit involves the construction and application of section 9784, post, giving a state authority to tax national banks, but providing that such taxation shall not be at a greater rate than is assessed on other moneyed capital in the hands of individual citizens of the state; which is a matter involving federal authority. Union Nat. Bank v. Miller (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 703.

This section placed national and other banks, as to their right to sue in the federal courts, on the same footing, and consequently a national bank cannot sue in such courts, unless the subject-matter involves an element of federal jurisdiction. Id.

This act leaves suits brought by and against national banks, "except suits between them and the United States, or its officers and agents," to the jurisdiction of the state courts, unless the domicile of the parties is such as to give the federal court jurisdiction. Price v. Abbott (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 506.

A national bank cannot now institute and maintain a suit against residents of its own state and judicial district in United States courts. National Bank v. Fore (C. C. 1885) 25 Fed. 209.

The right of a national bank to make use of the United States courts is not a vested right, which cannot be defeated by legislation subsequent to the act giving the courts jurisdiction. National Bank v. Fore (C. C. 1885) 25 Fed. 209, 210.

Federal courts have jurisdiction of an action between a national bank located in one state and a citizen of another state. First Nat. Bank v. Forest (C. C. 1889).40 Fed. 705.

This act does not deprive a circuit court of the United States of the jurisdiction conferred by prior statutes over suits brought by receivers of such banks, without regard to the citizenship of the parties. Earle v. McCartney (C. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 13, decree affirmed McCartney v. Earle (1902) 115 Fed. 462, 53 C. C. A. 392.

This act deprives the federal courts of jurisdiction of suits by or against national banks by reason of their national incorporation, leaving such jurisdiction dependent on diversity of citizenship alone, unless a federal question is otherwise involved. American Nat. Bank of Washington v. Tappan (C. C. 1909) 174 Fed. 431, judgment affirmed (1910) 30 Sup. Ct. 697, 217 U. S. 600, 54 L. Ed. 897.

Jurisdiction of an action on contract against a national bank is not prohibited to a state court of a county other than that in which it is situated. Fresno Nat. Bank v. Superior Court (1890) 83 Cal. 491, 24 Pac. 157.

National banks, like any other corporations, and the receivers of the same, may sue and be sued in the state courts of their domicile. Adams v. Daunis (1877) 29 La. Ann. 315.

State courts have jurisdiction to compel officers of a national bank to permit a stockholder's examination of its records and documents for a proper purpose. Woodworth v. Old Second Nat. Bank (1908) 117 N. W. 893, 15 Detroit Leg. N. 773, 154 Mich. 459.

A state court had jurisdiction of an action for breach of contract against a national bank located in another state. Holmes v. Wilmington Nat. Bank (1882) 18 S. C. 31, 44 Am. Rep. 558.

Jurisdiction of receiver's action to enforce stockholders' liability held not taken away by this act. Stephens v. Bernays (D. C. 1890) 41 Fed. 401.

See, also, notes under § 991 (16), ante.

—— Removal of causes.—Since this act, a cause to which a national bank is a party cannot be removed from a state to a federal court, as a cause arising under the laws of the United States, on the mere ground that a national bank is a party, or on the ground alone that it is a federal corporation. Leather Manufacturers' Nat. Bank v. Cooper (1887) 120 U. S. 778, 7 Sup. Ct. 777, 30 L. Ed. 816, affirming Cooper v. Leather Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (1886) 29 Fed. 161.

The effect of this section was to place national banks, for jurisdictional purposes, on the same footing as other banking institutions, and to prevent the removal of cases by national banks because of their organization as federal corporations. Speckert v. German Nat. Bank (1899) 98 Fed. 151, 153, 38 C. C. A. 682, appeal dismissed (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 688, 181 U. S. 405, 45 L. Ed. 926.

See, also, Gerner v. Mosher (1899) 58 Neb. 135. And see notes under §§ 991 (16) and 1010, ante.

—— Attachment.—No right to attachment against a national bank before judgment in a suit in a state court is given by this section. Van Reed v. People's Nat. Bank (1905) 25 Sup. Ct. 775, 776, 198 U. S. 554, 49 L. Ed. 1161, 3 Ann. Cas. 1154, affirming judgments (1903) 66 N. E. 16, 173 N. Y. 314, 105 Am. St. Rep. 666, and (1901) 73 N. Y. S. 514, 67 App. Div. 75.

Since any nonresident person, natural or artificial, who brings attachment in a local court, may be sued in that court on his attachment bond, a national bank cannot claim any exception. Continental Nat. Bank v. Folsom (1887) 78 Ga. 449, 3 S. E. 269.

An attachment cannot be issued by a state court against the property of a solvent national bank located in another state. McDonald v. First Nat. Bank (1891) 41 Ill. App. 368.

Jurisdiction under prior laws.—See Bank of United States v. Deveaux (1809) 9 U. S. (5 Cranch) 85, 3 L. Ed. 38; Osborn v. Bank of United States (1824) 22 U. S. (9 Wheat.) 738, 6 L. Ed. 204; Bank of United States v. Planters' Bank of Georgia (1824) 22 U. S. (9 Wheat.) 904, 6 L. Ed. 244; Same v. Martin (1831) 30 U. S. (5 Pet.) 478, 8 L. Ed. 198; Wilson County v. Third Nat. Bank (1880) 103 U. S. 770, 26 L. Ed. 488; Shoemaker v. National Mechanics' Bank (C. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 12,801; Union Nat. Bank v. Chicago (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 14,374; Cadle v. Tracy (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 2,279; First Nat. Bank v. Douglas County (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 4,809; Commercial Nat. Bank v. Simmons (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 3,062; Main v. Second Nat. Bank (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 8,976.

Cited without definite application, Schuyler Nat. Bank v. Bollong (1893) 14 Sup. Ct. 24, 25, 150 U. S. 85, 37 L. Ed. 1008.

§ 9669. (Act July 12, 1882, c. 290, § 5.) Withdrawal of dissenting shareholders.

When any national-banking association has amended its articles of association as provided in this act, and the Comptroller has granted his certificate of approval, any shareholder not assenting to such amendment may give notice in writing to the directors, within thirty days from the date of the certificate of approval, of his desire to withdraw from said association, in which case he shall be entitled to receive from said banking association the value of the shares so held by him, to be ascertained by an appraisal made by a committee of three persons, one to be selected by such shareholder, one by the directors, and the third by the first two; and in case the value so fixed shall not be satisfactory to any such shareholder, he may appeal to the Comptroller of the Currency, who shall cause a reappraisal to be made, which shall be final and binding; and if said reappraisal shall exceed the value fixed by said committee, the bank shall pay the expenses of said reappraisal, and otherwise the appellant shall pay said expenses; and the value so ascertained and determined shall be deemed to be a debt due, and be forthwith paid, to said shareholder from said bank; and the shares so surrendered and appraised shall, after due notice, be sold at public sale, within thirty days after the final appraisal provided in this section: Provided, That in the organization of any banking association intended to replace any existing banking association, and retaining the name thereof, the holders of stock in the expiring association shall be entitled to preference in the allotment of the shares of the new association in proportion to the number of shares held by them respectively in the expiring association. (22 Stat. 163.)

Notes of Decisions

Withdrawal of shareholder.—A shareholder ceases to be such on giving notice of withdrawal within the required time. Kimball v. Apsey (1908) 164 Fed. 830, 90 C. C. A. 634, judgment affirmed Apsey v. Kimball (1911) 31 Sup. Ct. 695, 221 U. S. 514, 55 L. Ed. 834.

Shareholder of national bank, who gave written notice at expiration of its charter of her desire to withdraw, held not entitled to dividend declared after such notice, the greater part of which had been earned while she was a shareholder. Smith v. Phillips Nat. Bank (Me. 1915) 96 A. 217.

Shareholder's demand for and acceptance of dividend declared by national bank after her notice of withdrawal held a waiver of her withdrawal. Id.

—— Appraisement.—A committee appointed to appraise the value of the shares of shareholders may amend a mere clerical error in their award at any time before appeal therefrom to the comptroller of the currency, although the shareholder has been notified of the award, and has accepted it in its original form. First Nat. Bank v. Brenneman (1886) 114 Pa. St. 315, 7 Atl. 910.

Liability after withdrawal.—Shareholders in a national bank which has extended its corporate existence, conformably to this act, ceased to be such upon the expiration of the original term of the bank's corporate life, and therefore could not thereafter be chargeable with personal liability for its debts, where they took the steps required of nonassenting stockholders, by giving notice of a desire to withdraw, and by appointing an appraiser to obtain a valuation of their shares. Apsey v. Kimball (1911) 31 Sup. Ct. 695, 698, 221 U. S. 514, 55 L. Ed. 834, affirming judgments Same v. Whittemore (1908) 85 N. E. 91, 199 Mass. 65, and Kimball v. Apsey (1908) 164 Fed. 830, 90 C. C. A. 634.

Where a stockholder in a national bank served notice of withdrawal on a renewal of its charter, as required by this section, appointed an appraiser on his behalf and took all reasonable steps to obtain an appraisal of and payment for his shares as therein provided, and thereafter refused to accept dividends on his stock, he cannot be held liable for an assessment, made on the subsequent insolvency of the bank, on the ground of estoppel, although through a failure of duty on the part of the bank and its officers no appraisal was made, and his name was retained on the stockbook, and because of such failure to act his certificate of stock had not been actually surrendered. Kimball v. Apsey (1908) 164 Fed. 830, 90 C. C. A. 634, affirmed Apsey v. Kimball (1911) 31 Sup. Ct. 695, 221 U. S. 514, 55 L. Ed. 834.

Where defendant within 30 days after the extension of the charter of a national bank gave notice of her election to withdraw, the appraisers failing for a little less than two years to act, before the failure of the bank, defendant having in the meantime refused to accept dividends or act as a stockholder, she was a creditor, and not a stockholder, of the bank, and was not liable for assessments levied on the stock previously owned by her. Apsey v. Whittemore (1908) 85 N. E. 91, 199 Mass. 65. It was not material that defendant in the meantime had retained possession of the stock certificates, which she was not required to surrender until payment of their appraised value, nor that dividends declared on such stock were credited to her account on her refusal to accept the same. Id.

§ 9670. (Act July 12, 1882, c. 290, § 6.) Redemption of circulating notes issued prior to extension of period of succession.

The circulating notes of any association so extending the period of its succession which shall have been issued to it prior to such extension shall be redeemed at the Treasury of the United States, as provided in section three of the act of June twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, entitled "An act fixing the amount of United States notes, providing for redistribution of national-bank currency, and for other purposes," and such notes when redeemed shall be forwarded to the Comptroller of the Currency, and destroyed as now provided by law; and at the end of three years from the date of the extension of the corporate existence of each bank the association so extended shall deposit lawful money with the Treasurer of the United States sufficient to redeem the remainder of the circulation which was outstanding at the date of its extension, as provided in sections fifty-two hundred and twenty-two, fifty-two hundred and twenty-four, and fifty-two hundred and twenty five of the Revised Statutes; and any gain that may arise from the failure to present such circulating notes for redemption shall inure to the benefit of the United States; and from time to time, as such notes are redeemed or lawful money deposited therefor as provided herein, new circulating notes shall be issued as provided by this act, bearing such devices, to be approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, as shall make them readily distinguishable from the circulating notes heretofore issued: Provided, however, That each banking association which shall obtain the benefit of this act shall reimburse to the Treasury the cost of preparing the plate or plates for such new circulating notes as shall be issued to it. (22 Stat. 163.)

Act June 20, 1874, c. 343, § 3, mentioned in this section, relating to the redemption of circulating notes, is set forth post, § 9751.

The method of destroying bank notes by burning, as provided in R. S. §§ 5184, 5225, was superseded by Act June 23, 1874, c. 455, § 1, ante, § 6560, requiring all bank notes, etc., to be macerated instead of burned.

§ 9671. (Act July 12, 1882, c. 290, § 7.) Dissolution of banks not extending period of succession.

National-banking associations whose corporate existence has expired or shall hereafter expire, and which do not avail themselves of the provisions of this act, shall be required to comply with the provisions of sections fifty-two hundred and twenty one and fifty-two hundred and twenty-two of the Revised Statutes in the same manner as if the shareholders had voted to go into liquidation, as provided in section fifty-two hundred and twenty of the Revised Statutes; and the provisions of sections fifty-two hundred and twenty-four and fifty-two hundred and twenty-five of the Revised Statutes shall also be applicable to such associations, except as modified by this act; and the franchise of such association is hereby extended for the sole purpose of liquidating their affairs until such affairs are finally closed. (22 Stat. 164.)

Notes of Decisions

Corporation continued to close affairs.—An objection that a national bank whose charter had expired had no corporate existence for the purpose of being sued by a stockholder and cestui que trust of a special trust fund for the appointment of a receiver is without merit, under this section. Cogswell v. Second Nat. Bank (1903) 56 A. 574, 76 Conn. 252.

A bank may, after the expiration of its charter, continue under its corporate name the prosecution of suits brought by it before the expiration of its corporate existence. City of Louisville v. Bank of United States (1842) 42 Ky. (3 B. Mon.) 138.

National banking association held entitled to continue to elect officers and directors for the purpose of effecting the liquidation. Richards v. Attleborough Nat. Bank (1889) 148 Mass. 187, 19 N. E. 353, 1 L. R. A. 781.

A national bank, after expiration of the time limit of its charter, continues to exist as a person in law, capable of suing and being sued, until its affairs are completely settled. Farmers' Nat. Bank v. Backus (1898) 77 N. W. 142, 74 Minn. 264.

§ 9672. (Act July 12, 1882, c. 290, § 14.) Reservation of power to amend, alter or repeal act.

Congress may at any time amend, alter, or repeal this act and the acts of which this is amendatory. (22 Stat. 166.)

This was the last section of the Currency Act of 1882, cited above.

See notes to section 1 of the act, ante, § 9665, and references therein to the other sections of the act.

§ 9673. (Act April 12, 1902, c. 503.) Additional extension of period of corporate succession.

The Comptroller of the Currency is hereby authorized, in the manner provided by, and under the conditions and limitations of, the Act of July twelfth, eighteen hundred and eighty-two, to extend for a further period of twenty years the charter of any national banking association extended under said Act which shall desire to continue its existence after the expiration of its charter. (32 Stat. 102.)

This was an act entitled "An act to provide for the extension of the charters of national banks."

The Currency Act of July 12, 1882, c. 290, mentioned in this act, is set forth or referred to ante, §§ 9665–9672.

§ 9674. (R. S. § 5137.) Power to hold real property.

A national banking association may purchase, hold, and convey real estate for the following purposes, and for no others:

First. Such as shall be necessary for its immediate accommodation in the transaction of its business.

Second. Such as shall be mortgaged to it in good faith by way of security for debts previously contracted.

Third. Such as shall be conveyed to it in satisfaction of debts previously contracted in the course of its dealings.

Fourth. Such as it shall purchase at sales under judgments, decrees, or mortgages held by the association, or shall purchase to secure debts due to it.

But no such association shall hold the possession of any real estate under mortgage, or the title and possession of any real estate purchased to secure any debts due to it, for a longer period than five years.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, § 28, 13 Stat. 107.

Notes of Decisions

Dealings in realty in general.—See note under § 9661, ante, "Incidental powers—Power to repair and sell realty."

The want of authority of a national bank to become the absolute owner, in satisfaction of a debt, of shares represented by transferable certificates in a partnership formed to purchase, improve, divide into lots, and sell a leasehold, is a valid defense to an action against it founded upon its liability for the partnership debts. Merchants' Nat. Bank of Cincinnati v. Wehrmann (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 613, 202 U. S. 295, 50 L. Ed. 1036.

Validity of bank's acquisition of realty.—A national bank may hold real estate actually purchased for security of the debt, although in excess thereof. Mapes v. Scott (1878) 88 Ill. 352; Libby v. Union Nat. Bank (1881) 99 Ill. 622; Upton v. National Bank of South Reading (1876) 120 Mass. 153.

Where a national bank, in order to secure the same debt, purchases other real estate not mortgaged to it, it does not affect the title to the land it was authorized to purchase. Reynolds v. Crawfordsville First Nat. Bank (1884) 5 Sup. Ct. 213, 217, 112 U. S. 405, 28 L. Ed. 733.

Where a national bank has lawfully acquired an interest in real property, in satisfaction of a debt, it may purchase other undivided interests therein or incumbrances existing thereon, provided such action is necessary to enable it to manage or dispose of the property to better advantage. Cockrill v. Abeles (1898) 86 Fed. 505, 30 C. C. A. 223.

A purchase of real estate by a national bank for a purpose other than that specified by this section is voidable only, and not void. Barron v. McKinnon (1912) 196 Fed. 933, 116 C. C. A. 483; Baker v. Schofield (1915) 221 Fed. 322, 136 C. C. A. 320, affirming decree Schofield v. Baker (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 504.

National banks may hold real estate security acquired by subrogation from a holder of a negotiable note. Mathews v. Abbott (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 9,275.

A national bank lawfully owning uplands, and thereby having under state laws a preference right to purchase tidelands of the state, may purchase tidelands, and receiver acquiring tidelands with the approval of the Comptroller of the Currency may not challenge the right to acquire the same, and his holding can be questioned only by the government. Schofield v. Baker (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 504.

It is no objection to a national bank's holding real estate for one of the authorized purposes that it acquired it by assignment of a certificate of purchase at a sheriff's sale on execution, and by a subsequent deed from the sheriff. Turner v. First Nat. Bank (1881) 78 Ind. 19.

Where a national bank loans money to enable the borrower to purchase land at a judicial sale, a subsequent conveyance of such land to the bank is in discharge of a debt previously contracted. Id.

This section does not validate a conveyance to a national bank which is prohibited by the statute of the state relating to insolvency. Chipman v. McClellan (1893) 159 Mass. 363, 34 N. E. 379, affirmed (1896) 164 U. S. 347, 17 Sup. Ct. 85, 41 L. Ed. 461.

In the absence of affirmative evidence of some contravention of the national currency act, a national bank may lawfully purchase, hold, and convey real estate. First Nat. Bank v. Kidd (1873) 20 Minn. 234 (Gil. 212).

National banks may hold and convey such real estate as they shall purchase at sales under decrees and judgments. Wherry v. Hale (1882) 77 Mo. 20.

National banks have no power to acquire and hold title to real estate, except for the purposes expressed in or necessarily implied from their charters, and the power to acquire and hold title to real estate in trust merely is not among the express powers, nor is it implied from the language used. Hall v. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank (1898) 145 Mo. 418, 46 S. W. 1000.

A national bank may acquire the land of a debtor for the purpose of protecting itself from loss. First Nat. Bank of Kennewick v. Conway (Wash. 1915) 151 P. 1129. Thus, where it has loaned money on timber land, it may, to protect itself and collect the debt, purchase the land at foreclosure sale, and cut and sell the timber. Roebling v. First Nat. Bank (D. C. 1887) 30 Fed. 744. And where it holds a second mortgage given to secure a debt, it may purchase the land at a foreclosure sale under the first mortgage. Heath v. Second Nat. Bank (1880) 70 Ind. 106.

Leases and improvements.—The power conferred on national banks by this section includes the power to lease real estate for such purpose, and a bank does not exceed its powers by leasing ground for a term of years under an agreement with the owner that it will erect a building thereon for its use, providing it acts in good faith, and for the purpose of obtaining an eligible location and a suitable building in which to conduct its business. Nor is it limited to the construction of a building only sufficient for its own use; but, where it has acquired property by purchase or lease for the purpose authorized by the statute, it may improve the same in any manner that other prudent owners would do, so as to render it most productive. Brown v. Schleier (1902) 118 Fed. 981, 55 C. C. A. 475, affirming decree (C. C. 1901) 112 Fed. 577, which is affirmed (1904) 24 Sup. Ct. 558, 194 U. S. 18, 48 L. Ed. 857.

A lease of property by a national bank for 99 years is not ultra vires and void because the term will outlast its corporate life. Being authorized by the statute to purchase real estate in fee simple for specified purposes, it may acquire any lesser estate or interest which is vendible. Id.

A lessor of real estate to a national bank for a long term, in which the bank covenants to erect a bank building which shall become part of the realty, cannot be held accountable to the stockholders or creditors of the bank because it may have exceeded its powers by expending more money in the erection of the building than it was authorized to do under the law, and more than was required by the terms of the lease; nor can such excessive expenditure be charged as a lien upon the property in favor of creditors after the same has passed into the hands of the lessor. Id.

A contract by which a national bank leased ground for 99 years, agreeing to pay a monthly rental therefor, does not create an indebtedness for the full amount of the rental accruing during the term. Id.

A national bank has power to lease property for its occupancy in conducting its business for a term extending beyond the expiration of its charter, even though the lease is assignable only by consent of the lessor. Weeks v. International Trust Co. (1903) 125 Fed. 370, 60 C. C. A. 236, reversing judgment International Trust Co. v. Weeks (C. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 898, and writ of error dismissed (1904) Id. 24 Sup. Ct. 853, 193 U. S. 667, 48 L. Ed. 839.

Where a national bank in flourishing condition had been for many years the rightful owner of a lot improved by its bank building, it had power to alter and enlarge the improvement thereon so as to furnish better accommodation for the bank's business, and at the same time provide offices which could be rented to tenants. Wingert v. First Nat. Bank of Hagerstown, Md. (1909) 175 Fed. 739, 99 C. C. A. 315, appeal dismissed (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 391, 223 U. S. 670, 56 L. Ed. 605.

The purchase of stock, by a national bank, in a corporation one of the objects of which is the improvement of real estate, is not within the inhibition upon national banks to engage in the improvement of real estate not necessary for their own use. Western Imp. Co. v. Des Moines Nat. Bank (1897) 72 N. W. 657, 103 Iowa, 455.

A national bank may acquire and hold stock in a building corporation as part of a transaction for renting desirable banking quarters. Fourth Nat. Bank of Nashville v. Stahlman (1915) 178 S. W. 942, 132 Tenn. 367, L. R. A. 1916A, 568.

Loans and real estate security.—The power of a national bank to take a mortgage of real estate executed in good faith, to secure pre-existing indebtedness, is not affected by the fact that at the same time an old note representing the debt is taken up, and a new one given. Oldham v. First Nat. Bank (1881) 85 N. C. 240; Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Wallace (1887) 45 Ohio St. 152, 12 N. E. 439; Howard Nat. Bank v. Loomis (Vt. 1879) 51 Vt. 349.

A. executed a promissory note to B., and, to secure the payment thereof, a deed of trust of lands, which was, in effect, a mortgage with a power of sale thereto annexed. A national bank, on the security of the note and deed, loaned money to B., who thereupon assigned them to the bank. The note not having been paid at its maturity, the trustee was, pursuant to the power, proceeding to sell the lands, when A. filed his bill to enjoin the sale, upon the ground that the deed did not inure as a security for a loan made by the bank at the time of the assignment of the note and deed. Held, that the bank was entitled to enforce the collection of the note by a sale of the lands. Union Nat. Bank v. Matthews (1878) 98 U. S. 621, 25 L. Ed. 188.

A national bank may enforce against the mortgagee, and parties claiming under him with notice, a mortgage of lands executed to it as collateral security for his then existing indebtedness to it and such as he might thereafter incur. An objection to the taking of such a mortgage as security for future advances can only be urged by the United States. National Bank v. Whitney (1880) 103 U. S. 99, 26 L. Ed. 443.

A loan of money made by a national bank on the security of a mortgage is not in violation of the National Bank Act and may be enforced. An objection to the taking by the bank of a mortgage lien as security for future advances can only be made by the United States. Fortier v. New Orleans Nat. Bank (1884) 5 Sup. Ct. 234, 112 U. S. 439, 28 L. Ed. 764.

This section, by specifying the purposes for which a national bank might purchase, hold, and convey real estate, did not make void mortgages taken for other purposes by a banking association authorized to transact business. McCormick v. Market Nat. Bank (1897) 17 Sup. Ct. 433, 437, 165 U. S. 538, 41 L. Ed. 817.

A national bank may take from a customer, as collateral security, the note and mortgage of a third person, and may foreclose the same if the borrower becomes insolvent, and the personal security fails. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Mears (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 9,450.

A national bank which lawfully holds a second mortgage may buy in the first one to protect its interest. Holmes v. Boyd (1883) 90 Ind. 332.

A national bank refused to negotiate a loan upon the responsibility of a firm, but agreed to and did make the loan upon a note made by one member of the firm to the other, and indorsed by the latter to the bank, the maker giving a bond and mortgage upon separate property to secure the indorser against liability upon his indorsement, with an agreement that, in case of default, the security should inure to the bank. Held, that the bond and mortgage were not within the prohibition of this section, and that the same were therefore legal and binding, and might be enforced for the benefit of the bank. First Nat. Bank v. Haire (1873) 36 Iowa, 443.

The defendant owed a large sum of money to a national bank. To partially secure the payment thereof, he gave a mortgage to the bank on some property owned by him in Chicago, Ill. There was a prior lien of $2,000 on the Chicago property, which the defendant agreed to pay. Five hundred dollars of the same became due, and the bank, in order to save and protect its own lien on said Chicago property, and at the request of the defendant, paid said sum of $500, and then took the note and mortgage now sued on for that amount on property situated in Crawford county, Kan. Held, that the taking of the last-mentioned mortgage was not a violation of the national banking law, and that the mortgage was valid. Ornn v. Merchants' Nat. Bank (1876) 16 Kan. 341.

Though a national bank is not authorized to take mortgages upon real estate, it may be substituted to the rights of a surety who has taken such a mortgage. Magoffin v. Boyle Nat. Bank (1902) 69 S. W. 702, 24 Ky. Law Rep. 585.

Where a bank sells any immovable it owns, it may reserve a mortgage and vendor's privilege on it. New Orleans Nat. Bank v. Raymond (1877) 29 La. Ann. 355, 29 Am. Rep. 335.

A mortgage taken by a national bank upon real estate, in violation of the national banking act, is not invalid. Fifth Nat. Bank v. Pierce (1898) 75 N. W. 1058, 117 Mich. 376, 5 Detroit Leg. N. 251.

Where a national bank sells realty on credit, it may take a mortgage to secure the unpaid purchase money. First Nat. Bank v. Kidd (1873) 20 Minn. 234 (Gil. 212).

A loan by a national bank on the stock of a corporation as collateral security is not a violation of the provision of the national banking act that such banks shall not loan money on a mortgage of real estate, though the property of the corporation whose stock is pledged consists wholly of real estate. Baldwin v. Canfield (1879) 26 Minn. 43, 1 N. W. 261; Id. (1879) 26 Minn. 62, 1 N. W. 585.

If a note secured by a deed of trust on real estate be discounted by a national bank, the security passes to the bank and may be enforced by it. Thornton v. National Exch. Bank (1879) 71 Mo. 221.

The acceptance of a deed of trust by a national bank, though ultra vires, does not render the conveyance void, but only voidable. The sovereign alone can interfere. Hall v. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank (1898) 46 S. W. 1000, 145 Mo. 418.

Where notes secured by mortgage on land have been assigned to a national bank, and by it to a bona fide purchaser, the latter is entitled to enforce the security, even though the bank could not have done so, as in case the assignment to it was for other than a debt previously contracted. Richards v. Kountze (1876) 4 Neb. 200.

A national bank, organized from a state bank, may take an assignment of a note with mortgage security from the latter, and enforce collection by foreclosure. Scofield v. State Nat. Bank (1879) 9 Neb. 316, 2 N. W. 888, 31 Am. Rep. 412.

A national bank may take an assignment of a mortgage as collateral security. Weir v. Birdsall (1898) 50 N. Y. S. 275, 27 App. Div. 404.

A national bank may enforce a real estate mortgage assigned to an employé for its benefit, though it is subject to liability to the federal government for exceeding its powers. Slade v. Bennett (1909) 118 N. Y. S. 278, 133 App. Div. 666.

It is competent for a national bank to purchase a note in favor of a third party, and thereby acquire incidentally a mortgage on land which had been given to secure it; and the claim so evidenced may be incorporated with other indebtedness, and a new mortgage on real estate taken to secure the whole sum. Oldham v. First Nat. Bank (1881) 85 N. C. 240.

In an action by a national bank on a note given by defendant, where defendant's property was attached, statements made to plaintiff at the time of the loan regarding defendant's ownership of certain land were material to the transaction, and were notice to plaintiff, though under the provisions of the banking act a national bank may not loan money on real estate security given directly to the bank. National Bank of North America in New York v. Thomas (1910) 74 A. 1092, 30 R. I. 294.

This section does not imply a negation of corporate power of banks organized under it to loan money on real estate, does not annul any loan made, nor release or discharge any deed of trust or mortgage taken to secure payment. Wroten's Assignee v. Armat (Va. 1879) 31 Grat. 228.

—— Pre-existing debts.—This section does not prohibit national banks from taking an assignment of notes secured by trust deed on real estate as collateral security for pre-existing debts due them. Reynolds v. First Nat. Bank (1884) 5 Sup. Ct. 213, 112 U. S. 405, 28 L. Ed. 733; Worcester Nat. Bank v. Cheeney (1878) 87 Ill. 602; Richards v. Kountze (1876) 4 Neb. 200.

—— Debts incurred in præsenti and in futuro.—A mortgage to a bank to secure debts previously contracted may be made to secure future advances also. National Bank of Genesee v. Whitney (1880) 103 U. S. 99, 100, 26 L. Ed. 443.

A mortgage upon real estate, given to a bank to secure a contemporaneous loan or future advances, is valid between the parties and may be enforced. Winton v. Little (1880) 94 Pa. St. 64 (overruling all previous decisions in conflict with Union Bank v. Matthews [1878] 98 U. S. 621, 25 L. Ed. 188); Hanover Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank (1901) 109 Fed. 421, 426, 48 C. C. A. 482; Waterbury v. McKinnon (1906) 146 Fed. 737, 77 C. C. A. 294.

A mortgage of real estate, securing a contemporaneous loan of money advanced by a national bank, is valid inter partes. John Warner v. De Witt County Nat. Bank (1879) 4 Ill. App. (4 Bradw.) 305; First Nat. Bank v. Elmore (1879) 52 Iowa, 541, 3 N. W. 547;

First Nat. Bank v. Grosshans (1901) 85 N. W. 542, 61 Neb. 575; Myers v. Campbell (1899) 44 A. 863, 64 N. J. Law, 186.

A national bank may lawfully take a mortgage to secure future indebtedness. Simons v. First Nat. Bank (1883) 93 N. Y. 269.

A national bank has power to take an assignment of a mortgage on land to secure a loan made at the time of the assignment. First Nat. Bank v. Andrews (1893) 7 Wash. 261, 34 Pac. 913, 38 Am. St. Rep. 885.

Mortgages given to a national bank to secure contemporaneous loans of money by discounting commercial paper in the usual course of business are not void. Graham v. National Bank of New York (1880) 32 N. J. Eq. (5 Stew.) 804.

In earlier cases, however, it was held that a national bank cannot take real estate as security for a debt concurrently created or for future advances. See Kansas Val. Nat. Bank v. Rowell (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 7,611; Fridley v. Bowen (1877) 87 Ill. 151; Matthews v. Skinker (1876) 62 Mo. 329, 21 Am. Rep. 425; Swope v. Leffingwell (1877) 4 Mo. App. 525; Crocker v. Whitney (1877) 71 N. Y. 161 (reversed in [1880] 103 U. S. 99, 26 L. Ed. 443); Fowler v. Scully (1872) 72 Pa. St. (22 P. F. Smith) 456, 13 Am. Rep. 699; Woods v. People's Nat. Bank (1876) 83 Pa. St. 57.

Where a bank takes an assignment of notes secured by a mortgage it will not be presumed, in the absence of evidence, that the debt for which the assignment was taken was incurred in præsenti. Richards v. Kountz (1876) 4 Neb. 200.

Right to question bank's power.—The validity of a mortgage upon realty executed to a national bank can only be questioned by the federal government. Weber v. Spokane Nat. Bank (1894) 64 Fed. 208, 210, 12 C. C. A. 93; Camp v. Land (1898) 54 P. 839, 122 Cal. 167; Warner v. De Witt County Nat. Bank (1879) 4 Ill. App. (4 Bradw.) 305; State Nat. Bank v. Flathers (1892) 45 La. Ann. 75, 12 South. 243, 40 Am. St. Rep. 216; Thornton v. National Exch. Bank (1879) 71 Mo. 221; Riesterer v. Horton Land & Lumber Co. (1901) 61 S. W. 238, 160 Mo. 141; Graham v. National Bank of New York (1880) 32 N. J. Eq. (5 Stew.) 804; Oldham v. First Nat. Bank (1881) 85 N. C. 240; First Nat. Bank v. Messner (N. D. 1913) 141 N. W. 999; Wroten's Assignee v. Armat (Va. 1879) 31 Grat. 228; Taylor v. Davidson (Tex. Civ. App. 1909) 120 S. W. 1018.

Questions as to the powers of a national bank to buy or hold real estate can be raised by the federal government only. Kerfoot v. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank (1910) 31 Sup. Ct. 14, 218 U. S. 281, 54 L. Ed. 1042 (affirming decree Hall v. Same [1898] 46 S. W. 1000, 145 Mo. 418); Baker v. Schofield (1915) 221 Fed. 322, 136 C. C. A. 320 (affirming decree Schofield v. Baker [D. C. 1914] 212 Fed. 504); Mapes v. Scott (1880) 94 Ill. 379; De Witt County Nat. Bank v. Mickelberry (1910) 91 N. E. 86, 244 Ill. 77; Hennessy v. City of St. Paul (1893) 54 Minn. 219, 55 N. W. 1123; Minneapolis Threshing Mach. Co. v. Jones (1905) 103 N. W. 1017, 95 Minn. 127; Wherry v. Hale (1882) 77 Mo. 20.

Conflict of laws.—Pub. St. Mass. c. 157, §§ 96, 98, which invalidate transfers of property made with a view to a preference by any one insolvent, or in contemplation of insolvency, where this fact is known to the transferee, does not conflict with this section. McClellan v. Chipman (1896) 17 Sup. Ct. 85, 87, 164 U. S. 347, 41 L. Ed. 461.

Escheat.—Where a national bank held real estate, not necessary to its business, for more than five years, the property was subject to escheat under the state law; it appearing that it would not impair the efficiency of the bank. First Nat. Bank of Elizabethtown v. Commonwealth (1911) 137 S. W. 518, 143 Ky. 816, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 54.

Cited without definite application, First Nat. Bank v. National Exch. Bank (1875) 92 U. S. 122, 23 L. Ed. 679; U. S. v. Britton (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 512, 522, 107 U. S. 655, 27 L. Ed. 520; Lantry v. Wallace (1901) 21 S. Ct. 878, 884, 182 U. S. 536, 45 L. Ed. 1218; Yates v. Jones Nat. Bank (1907) 27 Sup. Ct. 638, 644, 206 U. S. 158, 51 L. Ed. 1002; Sioux City Terminal Railroad & Warehouse Co. v. Trust Co. of North America (1897) 82 Fed. 124, 135, 27 C. C. A. 73 (affirmed [1899] 19 Sup. Ct. 341, 173 U. S. 99, 43 L. Ed. 628); Allen v. Luke (C. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 1018.

§ 9675. (R. S. § 5138, as amended, Act March 14, 1900, c. 41, § 10.) Requisite amount of capital.

No association shall be organized with a less capital than one hundred thousand dollars, except that banks with a capital of not less than fifty thousand dollars may, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, be organized in any place the population of which does not exceed six thousand inhabitants, and except that banks with a capital of not less than twenty-five thousand dollars may, with the sanction of the Secretary of the Treasury, be organized in any place the population of which does not exceed three thousand inhabitants. No association shall be organized in a city the population of which exceeds fifty thousand persons with a capital of less than two hundred thousand dollars.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, § 7, 13 Stat. 101. Act March 14, 1900, c. 41, § 10, 31 Stat. 48.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, did not contain the exception at the end of the first sentence of the section as set forth here, beginning with the words "and except that banks," and ending with the words "three thousand inhabitants." That clause was inserted by amendment by Act March 14, 1900, c. 41, § 10, cited above, making the section read as set forth here.

Notes of Decisions

Capital stock.—Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, and Act March 3, 1865, c. 78, while limiting the aggregate amount of bank note circulation authorized thereby, place no restriction, either expressly or impliedly, upon the aggregate amount of the capital of banks which may be organized thereunder. (1865) 11 Op. Atty. Gen. 334.

Under the law as it was July 15, 1874, national banks with a capital of $50,000 could (notwithstanding the proviso in the fourth section of the act of June 20, 1874, c. 343) still be organized, as heretofore, upon a deposit of $30,000 in bonds, and those with a capital of not less than $150,000 upon a deposit of one-third of their capital stock in bonds. (1874) 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 415.

The capital stock of a national bank is the sum on which it is authorized to do business, constituting the permanent basis of its credit, and does not include the deposits of the bank. State v. Clement Nat. Bank (Vt. 1911) 78 A. 944.

§ 9676. (R. S. § 5139.) Shares of stock and transfers.

The capital stock of each association shall be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each, and be deemed personal property, and transferable on the books of the association in such manner as may be prescribed in the by-laws or articles of association. Every person becoming a shareholder by such transfer shall, in proportion to his shares, succeed to all the rights and liabilities of the prior holder of such shares; and no change shall be made in the articles of association by which the rights, remedies, or security of the existing creditors of the association shall be impaired.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, § 12, 13 Stat. 102.

Notes of Decisions

1. Construction and operation in general.
2. Rescission of subscription.
3. Transfer of stock.
4. —— Validity and right.
5. —— Rights of assignee.
6. —— Transfer on books.
7. —— By-laws.
8. —— Estoppel.
9. Rights of creditors.
10. Persons liable as stockholders.
11. State laws.
12. Federal question.

1. Construction and operation in general.—An amendment of the articles providing for an increase of the number of directors would not be inconsistent with this section. (1882) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 288.

2. Rescission of subscription.—A subscription to the stock of a national bank, though induced by false representations of its officers, is not void, but voidable only, at the election of the subscriber; and where he continues for years, and until the bank has been placed in liquidation, to remain and act as a stockholder, and to receive dividends as such, though without knowledge of the fraud, or means of ascertaining it, he cannot then exercise his option to rescind the contract of subscription as against the bank's creditors, whatever his rights might be as against the corporation. Scott v. Latimer (1898) 89 Fed. 843, 33 C. C. A. 1.

A subscription to stock induced by fraud may be rescinded after, as well as before, the bank ceases to be a going concern, where no considerable time has elapsed since the subscription, if the subscriber has taken no active part in the management, has been diligent in discovering the fraud and in taking steps to rescind, and where no considerable amount of corporate indebtedness has been created since the subscription, and is still unpaid. Wallace v. Bacon (C. C. 1898) 86 Fed. 553.

One induced to purchase stock of a national bank by fraudulent representations of the bank, which was in fact the owner of the stock and received the price, cannot make an effectual tender of rescission which will support an action at law to recover the purchase price after the appointment of a receiver for the bank, as neither the bank nor the receiver then has authority to rescind and make restitution of the purchase money. Wallace v. Hood

(C. C. 1898) 89 Fed. 11, judgment affirmed Hood v. Wallace (1899) 97 Fed. 983, 38 C. C. A. 692.

In exceptional cases, where there is no ground for an inference that credit was extended to a national bank on the faith of the ownership of stock by a defendant, he should be permitted to rescind his agreement of subscription after insolvency of the bank, where it was induced by fraud as well when there are creditors as when there are none. There should be no presumption of law to overcome the fact capable of proof in such a case. Stufflebeam v. De Lashmutt (C. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 367.

3. Transfer of stock.—The power to prescribe the manner of transfer only extends to prescribing the conditions essential to protect the association against fraudulent transfers, or such as may be designed to evade the responsibility of the stockholders, and is to be exercised reasonably. Johnston v. Laflin (1880) 103 U. S. 800, 803, 26 L. Ed. 532.

Under the pretense of prescribing the manner of transfer, the association cannot clog it with useless restrictions, or make it dependent on consent of directors or other stockholders. Id.

As between the seller and purchaser of national bank shares, the sale is complete when the certificate is delivered duly assigned, with power of transfer on the books of the bank, and payment received therefor. Johnson v. Laflin (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 7,393.

A national bank held bound, under the local law, to recognize a transfer of its stock by a foreign executor duly appointed in another state, when not in conflict with its by-laws or articles of association. Hobbs v. Western Nat. Bank (C. C. 1880) Fed. Cas. No. 6,-551a.

The rules which regulate the transfer of the stock of national banks are to be found in the statutes of the United States. The national banking act prescribes no exclusive method of transfer, but authorizes every association to do so. The decisions of the courts of the state in which the bank may be located do not control it. Scott v. Pequonnock Nat. Bank (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 494.

Certificates of stock attached to an executed blank assignment and power to transfer are now regarded by the federal courts as approximating negotiable securities, though neither in form nor in character negotiable. Id.

The power conferred upon national banks by the national banking act of congress, to enact by-laws, is broad enough to authorize a by-law declaring that no shares shall be transferred while the holder is indebted to the bank; and such a by-law is reasonable and valid, and any attempted transfer by the shareholder while indebted to the bank is void. Young v. Vough (1873) 23 N. J. Eq. (8 C. E. Green) 325.

This section does not limit the right to pass title to stock certificates by assignment, it being enacted for the protection of the banks, and the corporation being entitled to waive its provisions. Gray v. Fankhauser (Or. 1911) 115 P. 146.

4. —— Validity and right.—In a proceeding in equity by the receiver of a national bank against a former stockholder, alleging a collusive and colorable transfer of his stock to an insolvent in order to avoid personal liability as stockholder, it appeared that defendant, having learned of the precarious condition of the bank, in a confidential interview with the officers thereof, immediately made a transfer of his stock of the par value of $13,000 to the mother of his deceased wife, a person without means, and who, in testifying, was unable to specify any other consideration than an alleged indebtedness for services in the charge of defendant's household for a period of two and a half years, at the rate of $1,000 per year, for all the stock, which she claimed to have received at 50 cents on the dollar. Defendant himself was not sworn as a witness. Held sufficient evidence of the collusive character of the transfer, and that the defendant was liable to the receiver for the amount of his stock. Bowden v. Johnson (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 246, 107 U. S. 251, 27 L. Ed. 386.

The insolvency of the purchaser of shares of stock of a national bank which subsequently suspends business does not render the sale void as in fraud of the bank's creditors, where the insolvency of the purchaser is unknown to the seller. Earle v. Carson (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 254, 188 U. S. 42, 47 L. Ed. 373, affirming judgment (1901) 107 Fed. 639, 46 C. C. A. 498, 60 L. R. A. 266.

A bona fide sale of stock of a national bank, made in the exercise of the power given to stockholders by this section to transfer their stock "like other personal property," was not void as a fraud on the bank's creditors because it was insolvent at the time of transfer, in the sense that its assets were then insufficient to discharge its liabilities, if such fact were not known to the seller at the time of sale. Id.

A national bank is impliedly precluded from forbidding any transfer of its shares of stock, without the consent of the directors, by a stockholder while he is indebted to the bank, because of the repeal of the provisions of Act Feb. 25, 1863, c. 58 (12 Stat. 665), subjecting transfer of stock in a national bank to debts due by the stockholders to the bank, or permitting the board of directors to provide to that effect. Third Nat. Bank v. Buffalo German Ins. Co. (1904) 24 Sup. Ct. 524, 193 U. S. 581, 48 L. Ed. 801, affirming judgment Bufmake by-laws providing that the shares of its capital stock shall be transferable only on its books; that no stockholder shall be allowed to sell or transfer his stock while indebted to the bank, without the assent of its directors; and that the stock of any stockholder shall be held pledged and liable for the payment of any debt due from such stockholder, and may be sold at public auction for the satisfaction of such debt, on default of payment thereof. Lockwood v. Mechanics' Nat. Bank (1869) 9 R. I. 308, 11 Am. Rep. 253.

A by-law of a national bank, though indorsed on a stock certificate, prohibiting a stockholder who is indebted to the bank from transferring his certificate, is void. Feckheimer v. National Exch. Bank (1884) 79 Va. 80.

8. —— Estoppel.—The articles of association of a national bank provided that the bank might make by-laws to prohibit the transfer of stock owned by a stockholder liable to it either as principal debtor or otherwise. Certificates of stock were issued, which did not state that they were not transferable by the holder while liable to the bank, but which stated that they were transferable only on the books of the bank on surrender of the certificates. Held that, though the stock was not negotiable paper in the legal sense of the term, the fact that the bank had put it in the power of the stockholder to transfer the stock estopped it from objecting to a bona fide transfer on the ground that the original holder was indebted to the bank. Lee v. Citizens' Nat. Bank (Ohio, 1872) 2 Cin. R. 298.

9. Rights of creditors.—The receipt by a bank of the proceeds of a fraudulent sale of stock belonging to it, and the subsequent appointment of a receiver, give its creditors no such right in the proceeds as will prevent the purchaser from rescinding the sale and requiring restitution. Merrill v. Florida Land & Imp. Co. (1893) 60 Fed. 17, 8 C. C. A. 444, reaffirming Florida Land & Imp. Co. v. Merrill (1892) 52 Fed. 77, 2 C. C. A. 629.

Where no specified acts are by positive requirement made prerequisite to the vesting of a valid new title, creditors of a national bank take the stock subject to all bona fide liens and equitable transfers. Scott v. Pequonnock Nat. Bank (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 494.

10. Persons liable as stockholders.—See McDonald v. Dewey (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 731, 202 U. S. 510, 50 L. Ed. 1128, 6 Ann. Cas. 419, 736; Hayes v. Shoemaker (C. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 319, 320; Sykes v. Holloway (C. C. 1897) 81 Fed. 432; Laing v. Burley (1881) 101 Ill. 591; Beal v. Essex Savings Bank (1895) 67 Fed. 816, 15 C. C. A. 128. See, also, note under § 9689, post.

11. State laws.—It is not competent for state legislation to limit or interfere with the transferable quality of national bank stock as the same is left by the statutes of the United States. Doty v. First Nat. Bank (1892) 3 N. D. 9, 53 N. W. 77, 17 L. R. A. 259.

The state legislature may authorize the sale, under execution, of national bank stock. In re Braden (1895) 165 Pa. St. 184, 30 Atl. 746, 35 Wkly. Notes Cas. 497.

12. Federal question.—A decision that by a donatio causa mortis the equitable title in national bank shares passed to the donee, under general principles of law, involves no federal question, and is not reviewable by the supreme court, though this section makes such shares transferable on the books of the bank in such manner as may be prescribed by the by-laws, and the by-laws of the particular bank made the shares transferable only on its books. Leyson v. Davis (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 500, 170 U. S. 36, 42 L. Ed. 939.

Cited without definite application, Whitney v. Butler (1886) 7 Sup. Ct. 61, 62, 118 U. S. 655, 30 L. Ed. 266; Pauly v. State Loan & Trust Co. (1897) 17 Sup. Ct. 465, 165 U. S. 606, 41 L. Ed. 844; Hamilton v. Loeb (1911) 186 Fed. 7, 108 C. C. A. 109 (certiorari denied [1911] 32 Sup. Ct. 523, 223 U. S. 720, 56 L. Ed. 629); Young v. McKay (C. C. 1892) 50 Fed. 394, 395; Sowles v. National Union Bank (C. C. 1897) 82 Fed. 696, 697.

§ 9677. (R. S. § 5140.) How payment of the capital stock must be made and proved.

At least fifty per centum of the capital stock of every association shall be paid in before it shall be authorized to commence business; and the remainder of the capital stock of such association shall be paid in installments of at least ten per centum each, on the whole amount of the capital, as frequently as one installment at the end of each succeeding month from the time it shall be authorized by the Comptroller of the Currency to commence business; and the payment of each installment shall be certified to the Comptroller, under oath, by the president or cashier of the association.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, § 14, 13 Stat. 103.

Notes of Decisions

Stock subscriptions—Rights and liabilities of subscribers.—The maker of a subscription note transferred to the bank with his knowledge cannot defend against an action by the bank's receiver on the ground of failure of consideration, because of the bank's insolvency, where he has been fully indemnified against loss by the payee. Myers v. Hettinger (1899) 94 Fed. 370, 37 C. C. A. 369.

The receiver can recover on a stock subscription note. Hepburn v. Kincannon (1897) 21 South. 569, 74 Miss. 691.

That plaintiff had subscribed to the capital stock of a national bank did not prevent him from suing the bank for breach of contract. Wilson v. Bank of Cheyenne (1873) 1 Wyo. 108.

Nonpayment of stock.—The directors of a bank may compel the payment of the 50 per centum of the capital stock against subscribers, and any subsequent purchaser of stock from the bank, on failure of the directors to take the necessary action to enforce payment of the stock, may protect himself against the dereliction of duty. Wallace v. Hood (C. C. 1898) 89 Fed. 11, 19, affirmed (1899) 97 Fed. 865, 38 C. C. A. 510.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Britton (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 526, 530, 108 U. S. 193, 27 L. Ed. 701; McDonald v. Williams (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 743, 744, 174 U. S. 397, 43 L. Ed. 1022; Wingate v. Orchard (1896) 75 Fed. 241, 242, 21 C. C. A. 315; Scott v. Latimer (1898) 89 Fed. 843, 846, 33 C. C. A. 1, affirmed (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 585, 181 U. S. 202, 45 L. Ed. 822.

§ 9678. (R. S. § 5141.) Proceedings if shareholder fails to pay installments.

Whenever any shareholder, or his assignee, fails to pay any installment on the stock when the same is required by the preceding section to be paid, the directors of such association may sell the stock of such delinquent shareholder at public auction, having given three weeks' previous notice thereof in a newspaper published and of general circulation in the city or county where the association is located, or if no newspaper is published in said city or county, then in a newspaper published nearest thereto, to any person who will pay the highest price therefor, to be not less than the amount then due thereon, with the expenses of advertisement and sale; and the excess, if any, shall be paid to the delinquent shareholder. If no bidder can be found who will pay for such stock the amount due thereon to the association, and the cost of advertisement and sale, the amount previously paid shall be forfeited to the association, and such stock shall be sold as the directors may order, within six months from the time of such forfeiture, and if not sold it shall be canceled and deducted from the capital stock of the association. If any such cancellation and reduction shall reduce the capital of the association below the minimum of capital required by law, the capital stock shall, within thirty days from the date of such cancellation, be increased to the required amount; in default of which a receiver may be appointed, according to the provisions of section fifty-two hundred and thirty-four, to close up the business of the association.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, § 15, 13 Stat. 103.

Notes of Decisions

Appointment of receiver.—A stockholder of a national bank whose charter has expired, suing also as cestui que trust of a special fund in the hands of those in control, is entitled, on proper allegation and proof, to have a receiver appointed by a state court, without violating this section. Cogswell v. Second Nat. Bank (1903) 56 A. 574, 76 Conn. 252.

State statute.—Code Ala. 1907, § 3744, authorizing a judgment creditor of a corporation to enforce payment by a stockholder of his unpaid subscription, is not available to a judgment creditor of a national bank, as its enforcement would impair the remedy given the bank by this section. McQuiddy v. King (1915) 67 So. 1015, 191 Ala. 205.

Cited without definite application, Chemical Nat. Bank of Chicago v. Hartford Deposit Co. (1896) 16 Sup. Ct. 439, 440, 161 U. S. 1, 40 L. Ed. 595; McDonald v. Williams (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 743, 744, 174 U. S. 397, 43 L. Ed. 1022.

§ 9679. (R. S. § 5142.) Increase of capital stock.

Any association formed under this Title may, by its articles of association, provide for an increase of its capital from time to time, as may be deemed expedient, subject to the limitations of this Title. But the maximum of such increase to be provided in the articles of association shall be determined by the Comptroller of the Currency; and no increase of capital shall be valid until the whole amount of such increase is paid in, and notice thereof has been transmitted to the Comptroller of the Currency, and his certificate obtained specifying the amount of such increase of capital stock, with his approval thereof, and that it has been duly paid in as part of the capital of such association.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, § 13, 13 Stat. 103.

Other provisions for the increase of capital stock were made by Act May 1, 1886, c. 73, § 1, post, § 9680.

Notes of Decisions

Purpose and operation of statute.—This section does not create a condition which renders shares subscribed and paid for in full invalid unless the entire amount of the proposed increase is subscribed and paid for in full, but refers only to the actual increase created by a subscription for a given number of shares, which must be paid up in full to render it valid; the amount of the proposed increase approved by the comptroller merely fixing the maximum amount within which any increase, if paid up, will be valid. Scott v. Latimer (1898) 89 Fed. 843, 33 C. C. A. 1, affirmed (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 585, 181 U. S. 202, 45 L. Ed. 822.

The primary object of this section is to prevent banking business being done on the basis of an increased capital not in fact existing. Lyons v. Westwater (1910) 181 Fed. 681, 104 C. C. A. 663.

Increase of capital stock.—Stock cannot be lawfully increased before the entire amount of new capital has been paid in and the comptroller has certified to the increase and to the fact of payment in the mode prescribed by this section. McFarlin v. First Nat. Bank (1895) 68 Fed. 868, 872, 16 C. C. A. 46.

The increase of the capital stock of a bank based on a fictitious value of assets, and on notes given by the directors, with an understanding that they were not to be paid, is in violation of this section, and the directors of the bank participating are liable for all losses resulting to the creditors. Cockrill v. Abeles (1898) 86 Fed. 505, 30 C. C. A. 223.

The effect of a resolution of the shareholders of a national banking association, proposing to increase the capital stock from $200,000 to $500,000, and authorizing the president and cashier, whenever $50,000 of the increase was subscribed and paid, to certify the same to the comptroller, was to render valid and binding on the subscribers, when paid and approved by the comptroller, any increase amounting to $50,000, or any multiple thereof, not exceeding $300,000 in all. Brown v. Tillinghast (1899) 93 Fed. 326, 35 C. C. A. 323.

National banks can increase their capital stock only as provided by this section and Act May 6, 1886; and where an increase is attempted to be made without obtaining the consent of two-thirds of the stock, the payment in full of the amount of such increase, and the certificate and approval of the comptroller of the currency, as required by those statutes, the proceedings are invalid, and preliminary subscriptions to such increase cannot be enforced. Winters v. Armstrong (C. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 508.

Where the articles provide for an increase of capital, and the maximum of such increase is once fixed by the determination of the comptroller of the currency, both his power and that of the association over the subject are exhausted. A further increase and a new maximum cannot be effected by an amendment of the articles. (1882) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 288.

Certificate as to increase.—The certificate of the comptroller of the currency that the capital stock of a bank has been increased to a certain amount is conclusive of the sufficiency of the facts and the regularity of the proceedings requisite to an increase, and cannot be questioned in any collateral proceeding. Columbia Nat. Bank v. Mathews (1898) 85 Fed. 934, 29 C. C. A. 491 (reversing judgment Matthews v. Columbia Nat. Bank [C. C. 1897] 79 Fed. 558); Bailey v. Tillinghast (1900) 99 Fed. 801, 40 C. C. A. 93 (affirming decree Tillinghast v. Bailey [C. C. 1897] 86 Fed. 46); Brown v. Tillinghast (1899) 93 Fed. 326, 35 C. C. A. 323; Latimer v. Bard (C. C. 1896) 76 Fed. 536; Tillinghast v. Bailey (C. C. 1897) 86 Fed. 46.

There could be no valid increase of the capital stock of a national bank until the comptroller of the currency approved thereof and issued his certificate. Charleston v. People's Nat. Bank (1873) 5 S. C. 103, 22 Am. Rep. 1.

Reduction of proposed increase.—Where a national bank undertakes to increase its capital stock a certain amount, and a smaller amount is actually paid in, it can reduce the amount of the increase to the amount actually paid; the amount of increase within the maximum being always subject to the discretion of the bank. Delano v. Butler (1886) 7 Sup. Ct. 39, 118 U. S. 634, 30 L. Ed. 260; Mills v. Same (1886) 7 Sup. Ct. 47, 118 U. S. 655, 30 L. Ed. 266.

The statute is not violated where the proposed increase is reduced to the amount actually paid in, and the latter is the amount of increase specified in the notice. Aspinwall v. Butler (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 417, 133 U. S. 595, 33 L. Ed. 779, affirming judgment Butler v. Aspinwall (C. C. 1887) 33 Fed. 217.

Where a subscription to a part of the increased stock of a national bank has become complete and binding, under the terms of the original resolution of increase, its validity is not affected by any subsequent action looking to a limitation of the increase authorized. Brown v. Tillinghast (1899) 93 Fed. 326, 35 C. C. A. 323.

Action of the stockholders in reducing amount of increase held legal, and that of the comptroller in approving the increase under the circumstances proper. Bailey v. Tillinghast (1900) 99 Fed. 801, 40 C. C. A. 93, affirming decree Tillinghast v. Bailey (C. C. 1897) 86 Fed. 46.

Subscriber for proposed increase.—Where a person subscribed to a proposed increase of stock and paid his subscription, he is bound thereby, though the bank, under the provisions of its by-laws to "determine what disposition shall be made of the privilege of subscribing for the new stock" when it has not been subscribed for in the time given in its notice, limits the amount of the increase to the amount paid in. Aspinwall v. Butler (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 417, 133 U. S. 595, 33 L. Ed. 779.

Where a subscriber for a proposed increase in the capital stock of a bank pays and receives a receipt therefor, and is entered on the stock books as a stockholder, she becomes a stockholder, though her certificate of stock, which was made out for her when she should call for it, was not called for or sent to her. Pacific Nat. Bank of Boston v. Eaton (1891) 11 Sup. Ct. 984, 141 U. S. 227, 35 L. Ed. 702. Her position was not affected by the fact that subsequently thereto, by due proceedings, but unknown to her, the amount of the proposed increase was reduced. Id.

Plaintiffs subscribed for certain shares in a bank to increase the capital, and, after paying installments thereon, consented that the bank be consolidated with a national bank, and that the capital of the latter be increased, and that their subscriptions should stand as subscriptions to the increased capital of the national bank, and paid installments on their subscriptions. Some preliminary steps were taken by the national bank to increase its stock, but the comptroller of the currency refused to consent to the full increase, and before the amount of increase allowed by him was paid in, and a certificate therefor issued by him, the national bank was placed in the hands of a receiver. Held, that plaintiffs never became stockholders in the national bank. McFarlin v. First Nat. Bank (1895) 68 Fed. 868, 16 C. C. A. 46.

One who subscribes to a proposed increase of stock with knowledge that the stockholders had by a resolution authorized the officers, with the approval of the comptroller, to increase the capital stock in any multiple of $50,000 up to $300,000, as the subscriptions shall be paid in, is estopped from questioning the regularity of the proceedings after the certificate of the comptroller to such an increase is obtained. Columbia Nat. Bank v. Mathews (1898) 85 Fed. 934, 29 C. C. A. 491, reversing judgment Matthews v. Columbia Nat. Bank (C. C. 1897) 79 Fed. 558.

A subscriber to an issue of increased stock authorized by a national bank, who was given original stock instead, which fact appeared on the face of the certificate and by the books of the bank, who retains such stock, without objection, for three years, and until after the bank has become insolvent, will be presumed to have known and assented to such change, and is precluded from thereafter asking to be relieved from liability as a stockholder on that ground. Bailey v. Tillinghast (1900) 99 Fed. 801, 40 C. C. A. 93, affirming decree Tillinghast v. Bailey (C. C. 1897) 86 Fed. 46.

In an action by the receiver of a national bank to enforce subscriptions to a proposed increase of its capital stock, an allegation that the bank, subsequent to defendants' subscriptions, and with their knowledge, represented to the public by means of circulars, letter heads, etc., that its capital stock had been so increased, and that defendants allowed their names to remain "upon the list of those subscribing for and entitled to such new or increase of stock," but without alleging that the public gave credit to the bank on the faith that defendants were part owners of such increase of stock, or that they allowed themselves to be held out as actual stockholders, does not show that they are estopped to plead the failure of the bank to comply with the statutory requirements in perfecting such increase. Winters v. Armstrong (C. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 508.

Such a subscription is impliedly conditioned on the subscription of the whole amount of the proposed increase, and on the compliance by the corporation with all the requirements of the statute necessary to make the increase of stock valid. And in case of noncompliance with such requirements there is a failure of consideration. Id.

A subscriber who has made payments on his subscription to the proposed increase, believing that the statutory requirements would be complied with, is entitled to have the amount thereof allowed as a claim against the assets of the bank in the receiver's hands. Id.

Subscribers to a duly-authorized increased issue of stock by a national bank, who accept certificates therefor, vote the stock by proxy, and take dividends thereon, cannot question the validity of such stock, as against the receiver, after the bank has become insolvent. Tillinghast v. Bailey (C. C. 1897) 86 Fed. 46.

A national bank determined in due form to increase its capital stock, but, owing to the entire amount not being taken up, advertised an additional increase, which was not authorized by vote of the stockholders, and never approved or certified by the United States comptroller, as required by law. Held, that a subscriber for shares of the original increase was not a stockholder, and, upon the bank's insolvency, was entitled to be treated as a creditor to the amount paid in by him. Schierenberg v. Stephens (1888) 32 Mo. App. 314; Nichols v. Same, Id. 330.

Where a proposed increase of the capital stock of a national bank has not been authorized by the comptroller of the currency, a stockholder who has paid the amount of his subscription towards such increase is upon the insolvency of the bank entitled to have such amount set off pro tanto against a note held against him by the bank. Armstrong v. Law (Ohio 1892) (Super. Ct. Cin.) 27 Wkly. Law Bul. 100.

Liability of stockholders.—See Scott v. Deweese (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 585, 181 U. S. 202, 45 L. Ed. 822. See also, note under § 9689, post.

Cited without definite application, Westwater v. Lyons (1912) 193 Fed. 817, 113 C. C. A. 617; Morrison v. Price (C. C. 1885) 23 Fed. 217, 218 (affirmed [1886] 7 Sup. Ct. 39, 118 U. S. 634, 30 L. Ed. 260).

§ 9680. (Act May 1, 1886, c. 73, § 1.) Increase of capital stock.

Any national banking association may, with the approval of the Comptroller of the Currency, by the vote of shareholders owning two-thirds of the stock of such association, increase its capital stock, in accordance with existing laws, to any sum approved by the said Comptroller, notwithstanding the limit fixed in its original articles of association and determined by said Comptroller; and no increase of the capital stock of any national banking association either within or beyond the limit fixed in its original articles of association shall be made except in the manner herein provided. (24 Stat. 18.)

This was the first section of an act entitled "An act to enable national banking associations to increase their capital stock and to change their names or locations."

The other sections of the act, sections 2–4 thereof, are set forth ante, §§ 9662–9664.

§ 9681. (R. S. § 5143, as amended, Act Dec. 23, 1913, c. 6, § 28.) Reduction of capital stock.

Any association formed under this title may, by the vote of shareholders owning two-thirds of its capital stock, reduce its capital to any sum not below the amount required by this title to authorize the formation of associations; but no such reduction shall be allowable which will reduce the capital of the association below the amount required for its outstanding circulation, nor shall any reduction be made until the amount of the proposed reduction has been reported to the Comptroller of the Currency and such reduction has been approved by the said Comptroller of the Currency and by the Federal Reserve Board, or by the organization committee pending the organization of the Federal Reserve Board.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, § 13, 13 Stat. 103. Act Dec. 23, 1913, c. 6, § 28, 38 Stat. 274.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was as follows:

"Any association formed under this Title may, by the vote of shareholders owning two-thirds of its capital stock, reduce its capital to any sum not below the amount required by this Title to authorize the formation of associations; but no such reduction shall be allowable which will reduce the capital of the association below the amount required for its outstanding circulation, nor shall any such reduction be made until the amount of the proposed reduction has been reported to the Comptroller of the Currency and his approval thereof obtained."

It was amended by the Federal Reserve Act of Dec. 23, 1913, c. 6, § 28, cited above, to read as set forth here.

Notes of Decisions

Operation of statute in general.—This section could not be made applicable to a state of facts showing that a bank, on notice of increase of capital to $1,- 000,000, increased it to $961,000. Morrison v. Price (C. C. 1885) 23 Fed. 217, 219, affirmed (1886) 7 Sup. Ct. 39, 118 U. S. 634, 30 L. Ed. 260.

Reduction of capital stock, in general.—The only method by which a national bank can reduce its stock being that prescribed in this section, and the possibility of ownership of its own stock being recognized by section 9762, post, the unlawful ownership of its own shares by a national bank did not constitute a pro tanto reduction of its corporate stock, and hence was improperly omitted from the bank's statements of assets. U. S. v. Morse (C. C. 1908) 161 Fed. 429.

Stockholders in a national bank, to meet an impairment of $75,000 in the capital stock arising from the insolvency of a borrower and the apparent worthlessness of the collaterals, reduced the capital stock $75,000, at the same time voting to take the depreciated securities, which were the cause of the impairment of the capital, from the assets, and place them in the hands of trustees for the benefit of stockholders. Held, that as it must be presumed that the comptroller of the currency, in determining the amount of impairment, took into consideration any value that these collaterals had, they could not thus be withdrawn, as such withdrawal would thereby further impair the capital. McCann v. First Nat. Bank (1892) 131 Ind. 95, 30 N. E. 893.

A national bank, having reduced its capital stock, must return the whole capital thus set free to its stockholders, and a resolution requiring stockholders to relinquish a pro rata amount of their shares to correspond to the reduction in capital stock, upon the payment of less than the amount of their interest in the capital set free, is void. Seeley v. New York Nat. Exch. Bank (N. Y. 1878) 8 Daly, 400, affirmed in (1879) 78 N. Y. 608.

Approval by comptroller.—A reduction of the capital of a national bank is not effective until approved by the comptroller, but his certificate is proof of reduction. Brown v. Ellis (D. C. 1900) 103 Fed. 834.

Under an averment, in a complaint by an original stockholder of a national bank, for the appointment of a receiver, that a certain fund was set apart for the benefit of the original stockholders when they consented to a reduction of capital and by direction of the Comptroller of the Currency, an objection that no special trust fund ever existed, because the directors had no authority to make it, is without merit, since no reduction in capital could have been made under this section without the approval of the Comptroller, and it was fairly within his authority to condition his approval on the adoption of such measures as he might think proper to do justice to the holders of the original shares. Cogswell v. Second Nat. Bank (1903) 56 A. 574, 76 Conn. 252.

Effect of certificate as evidence, see Brown v. Ellis (D. C. 1900) 103 Fed. 834. See, also, note under § 9689, post.

Proceeds of assets set apart.—The stockholders of record when capital stock is reduced pursuant to this section, and not those at the expiration of the bank's charter, are entitled to the proceeds of the doubtful assets set apart at the time of reduction, pursuant to the requirement of the comptroller of the currency requiring such assets to be set aside for the benefit of persons then stockholders. Jerome v. Cogswell (1907) 27 Sup. Ct. 241, 243, 204 U. S. 1, 51 L. Ed. 343.

Cited without definite application, Rankin v. Fidelity Insurance Trust & Safe Deposit Co. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 553, 554, 189 U. S. 242, 47 L. Ed. 792; Commercial National Bank v. Weinhard (1904) 24 Sup. Ct. 253, 256, 192 U. S. 243, 48 L. Ed. 425; Burrows v. Niblack (1898) 84 Fed. 111, 114, 28 C. C. A. 130; Morse v. U. S. (1909) 174 Fed. 539, 98 C. C. A. 321, 20 Ann. Cas. 938, certiorari denied (1909) 30 Sup. Ct. 406, 215 U. S. 605, 54 L. Ed. 346.

§ 9682. (R. S. § 5144.) Right of shareholders to vote.

In all elections of directors, and in deciding all questions at meetings of shareholders, each shareholder shall be entitled to one vote on each share of stock held by him. Shareholders may vote by proxies duly authorized in writing; but no officer, clerk, teller, or book-keeper of such association shall act as proxy; and no shareholder whose liability is past due and unpaid shall be allowed to vote.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, § 11, 13 Stat. 102.

Notes of Decisions

Right to vote.—After the expiration of the term of its charter, the stock of a national banking association is not transferable, so as to give the transferee the right to share in the election of directors. Richards v. Attleborough Nat. Bank (1889) 148 Mass. 187, 19 N. E. 353, 1 L. R. A. 781.

—— Liability.—The "liability" is limited to liability for unpaid subscriptions to stock. U. S. v. Barry (C. C. 1888) 36 Fed. 246.

§ 9683. (R. S. § 5145.) Election of directors.

The affairs of each association shall be managed by not less than five directors, who shall be elected by the shareholders at a meeting to be held at any time before the association is authorized by the Comptroller of the Currency to commence the business of banking; and afterward at meetings to be held on such day in January of each year as is specified therefor in the articles of association. The directors shall hold office for one year, and until their successors are elected and have qualified.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, §§ 9, 10, 13 Stat. 102.

Notes of Decisions

Resignation of director.—This section does not prohibit resignations of directors within the year for which they were appointed, but is intended to make the term of office conform to the time of the new election, and not to absolutely require every director to serve the full term. Movius v. Lee (C. C. 1887) 30 Fed. 298, 301, affirmed Briggs v. Spaulding (1891) 11 Sup. Ct. 924, 141 U. S. 132, 35 L. Ed. 662.

Since this section does not provide the time when and the methods by which a director may resign, the common law controls, and a verbal resignation by a director given to the president, to whom he at the same time sells his stock, with a power of attorney for its transfer, is effective to release the director from responsibility for the subsequent conduct of the bank's affairs. Briggs v. Spaulding (1891) 11 Sup. Ct. 924, 928, 141 U. S. 132, 35 L. Ed. 662.

A director of a national bank, who before the expiration of his term sells his stock, and orally resigns his office to the president in his place of president at the bank, and afterwards receives the money for his stock, prior to the sustaining of losses by the bank, ceases to be a director, and cannot be held liable for subsequent losses caused by the negligence of the directors. Movins v. Lee (C. C. 1887) 30 Fed. 298, decree affirmed Briggs v. Spaulding (1891) 11 Sup. Ct. 924, 141 U. S. 132, 35 L. Ed. 662.

Authority of directors.—The board of directors are authorized to transact the usual and ordinary business of the bank, but their authority does not extend to levying assessments upon the stockholders for the purpose of restoring the capital of the bank and enabling it to continue in business under R. S. § 5205, ante, § 9767. Commercial Nat. Bank v. Weinhard (1904) 24 Sup. Ct. 253, 255, 192 U. S. 243, 48 L. Ed. 425.

Assent of a majority of the board of directors acting separately is not binding on the bank. Ft. Scott First Nat. Bank v. Drake (1886) 35 Kan. 564, 11 Pac. 445, 57 Am. Rep. 193.

Quo warranto.—An information in the nature of a quo warranto will not lie in a state court to try the right to the office of director. State v. Curtis (1868) 35 Conn. 374, 95 Am. Dec. 263.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Britton (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 526, 530, 108 U. S. 193, 27 L. Ed. 701; Earling v. Emigh (1910) 30 Sup. Ct. 672, 675, 218 U. S. 27, 54 L. Ed. 915.

§ 9684. (R. S. § 5146, as amended, Act Feb. 28, 1905, c. 1163.) Requisite qualifications of directors.

Every director must, during his whole term of service, be a citizen of the United States, and at least three-fourths of the directors must have resided in the State, Territory, or District in which the association is located for at least one year immediately preceding their election and must be residents therein during their continuance in office. Every director must own in his own right at least ten shares of the capital stock of the association of which he is a director, unless the capital of the bank shall not exceed twenty-five thousand dollars, in which case he must own in his own right at least five shares of such capital stock. Any director who ceases to be the owner of the required number of shares of the stock, or who becomes in any other manner disqualified, shall thereby vacate his place.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, §§ 9, 10, 13 Stat. 102. Act Feb. 28, 1905, c. 1163, 33 Stat. 818.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was as follows:

"Every director must, during his whole term of service, be a citizen of the United States, and at least three-fourths of the directors must have resided in the State, Territory, or District in which the association is located, for at least one year immediately preceding their election, and must be residents therein during their continuance in office. Every director must own, in his own right, at least ten shares of the capital stock of the association of which he is a director. Any director who ceases to be the owner of ten shares of the stock, or who becomes in any other manner disqualified, shall thereby vacate his place."

It was amended by Act Feb. 28, 1905, c. 1163, cited above, as to the qualifications required of directors, so as to read as set forth here.

Interlocking directorates in specified cases were prohibited by the Clayton Act of Oct. 15, 1914, c. 323, § 8, as amended by Act May 15, 1916, c. 120, ante, § 8835h.

Notes of Decisions

Eligibility to be director.—One purpose of this enactment is to confine the management of each bank to persons who live in the neighborhood and know the trustworthiness of its officers and the character and financial ability of those seeking to borrow money. Concord First Nat. Bank v. Hawkins (1899) 174 U. S. 364, 19 Sup. Ct. 739, 43 L. Ed. 1007.

A transferee of stock transferred after the expiration of the term of its charter, not being a stockholder, is ineligible as a director. Richards v. Attleborough Nat. Bank (1889) 148 Mass. 187, 19 N. E. 353, 1 L. R. A. 781.

Liability of shareholders.—See Finn v. Brown (1891) 12 Sup. Ct. 136, 139, 142 U. S. 56, 35 L. Ed. 936. See, also, note under § 9689, post.

Cited without definite application, Briggs v. Spaulding (1891) 11 Sup. Ct. 924, 928, 141 U. S. 132, 35 L. Ed. 662; First Nat. Bank v. Hawkins (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 739, 741, 174 U. S. 364, 43 L. Ed. 1007; Guthrie v. Harkness (1905) 26 Sup. Ct. 4, 7, 199 U. S. 148, 50 L. Ed. 130, 4 Ann. Cas. 433; Sigua Iron Co. v. Greene (1898) 88 Fed. 207, 214, 31 C. C. A. 477.

§ 9685. (R. S. § 5147.) Oath required from directors.

Each director, when appointed or elected, shall take an oath that he will, so far as the duty devolves on him, diligently and honestly administer the affairs of such association, and will not knowingly violate, or willingly permit to be violated, any of the provisions of this Title, and that he is the owner in good faith, and in his own right, of the number of shares of stock required by this Title, subscribed by him, or standing in his name on the books of the association, and that the same is not hypothecated, or in any way pledged, as security for any loan or debt. Such oath, subscribed by the director making it, and certified by the officer before whom it is taken, shall be immediately transmitted to the Comptroller of the Currency, and shall be filed and preserved in his Office.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, § 9, 13 Stat. 102.

Notes of Decisions

Liability of shareholders.—See Finn v. Brown (1891) 12 Sup. Ct. 136, 139, 142 U. S. 56, 35 L. Ed. 936. See, also, note under § 9689, post.

Liability of directors.—See Briggs v. Spaulding (1891) 11 Sup. Ct. 924, 928, 141 U. S. 132, 35 L. Ed. 662. See, also, note under § 9831, post.

Cited without definite application, Yates v. Jones Nat. Bank (1907) 27 Sup. Ct. 638, 643, 206 U. S. 158, 51 L. Ed. 1002; Spurr v. U. S. (1898) 87 Fed. 701, 707, 31 C. C. A. 202 (reversed [1899] 19 Sup. Ct. 812, 174 U. S. 728, 43 L. Ed. 1150); Sigua Iron Co. v. Greene (1898) 88 Fed. 207, 214, 31 C. C. A. 477; U. S. v. Neale (C. C. 1882) 14 Fed. 767, 770; Gibbons v. Anderson (C. C. 1897) 80 Fed. 345, 346.

§ 9686. (R. S. § 5148.) Filling vacancies.

Any vacancy in the board shall be filled by appointment by the remaining directors, and any director so appointed shall hold his place until the next election.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, § 10, 13 Stat. 102.

Cited without definite application, Briggs v. Spaulding (1891) 11 Sup. Ct. 924, 928, 141 U. S. 132, 35 L. Ed. 662.

§ 9687. (R. S. § 5149.) Proceedings where no election is held on the proper day.

If, from any cause, an election of directors is not made at the time appointed, the association shall not for that cause be dissolved, but an election may be held on any subsequent day, thirty days' notice thereof in all cases having been given in a newspaper published in the city, town, or county in which the association is located; and if no newspaper is published in such city, town, or county, such notice shall be published in a newspaper published nearest thereto. If the articles of association do not fix the day on which the election shall be held, or if no election is held on the day fixed, the day for the election shall be designated by the board of directors in their by-laws, or otherwise; or if the directors fail to fix the day, shareholders representing two-thirds of the shares may do so.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, § 10, 13 Stat. 102.

§ 9688. (R. S. § 5150.) Election of president of the board.

One of the directors, to be chosen by the board, shall be the president of the board.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, § 9, 13 Stat. 102.

Notes of Decisions

President of board.—No by-laws need be adopted before a president is chosen or removed and another appointed in his place. Taylor v. Hutton (N. Y. 1864) 43 Barb. 195.

(R. S. § 5151. Superseded.)

This section was as follows:

"The shareholders of every national banking association shall be held individually responsible, equally and ratably, and not one for another, for all contracts, debts, and engagements of such association, to the extent of the amount of their stock therein, at the par value thereof, in addition to the amount invested in such shares; except that shareholders of any banking association now existing under State laws, having not less than five millions of dollars of capital actually paid in, and a surplus of twenty per centum on hand, both to be determined by the Comptroller of the Currency, shall be liable only to the amount invested in their shares; and such surplus of twenty per centum shall be kept undiminished, and be in addition to the surplus provided for in this Title; and if at any time there is a deficiency in such surplus of twenty per centum, such association shall not pay any dividends to its shareholders until the deficiency is made good; and in case of such deficiency, the Comptroller of the Currency may compel the association to close its business and wind up its affairs under the provisions of Chapter four of this Title."

The provisions of the section remaining operative were superseded by the provisions as to liability of shareholders of the Federal Reserve Act of Dec. 23, 1913, c. 6, § 23, post, § 9689. See notes to that section.

§ 9689. (Act Dec. 23, 1913, c. 6, § 23.) Individual liability of shareholders; effect of transfer of shares.

The stockholders of every national banking association shall be held individually responsible for all contracts, debts, and engagements of such association, each to the amount of his stock therein, at the par value thereof in addition to the amount invested in such stock. The stockholders in any national banking association who shall have transferred their shares or registered the transfer thereof within sixty days next before the date of the failure of such association to meet its obligations, or with knowledge of such impending failure, shall be liable to the same extent as if they had made no such transfer, to the extent that the subsequent transferee fails to meet such liability; but this provision shall not be construed to affect in any way any recourse which such shareholders might otherwise have against those in whose names such shares are registered at the time of such failure. (38 Stat. 273.)

This section was part of the Federal Reserve Act of 1913, cited above.

See notes to section 1 of the act, post, § 9785.

The enforcement of the liability prescribed by R. S. § 5151, by a creditors' bill or bill in equity in cases of voluntary liquidation under R. S. § 5220, post, § 9806, was authorized by Act June 30, 1876, c. 156, § 2, post, § 9825.

The liability of the shareholders of the federal reserve banks was prescribed by the Federal Reserve Act of Dec. 23, 1913, c. 6, § 2, post, § 9786.

Notes of Decisions

1. Construction and operation.
2. Persons liable as stockholders.
3. —— Apparent owners and owners where transfer ineffective.
4. —— Real and record owners.
5. —— Subscriber.
6. —— Transferror.
7. —— Transferee.
8. —— Pledgor and pledgee.
9. —— Married women.
10. —— Heirs and representatives.
11. Nature and extent of liability.
12. Determination of comptroller.
13. Enforcement of liability.
14. —— Accrual of cause of action.
15. —— Prerequisites to suit.
16. —— Jurisdiction.
17. —— Remedies.
18. —— Receiver.
19. —— Agent.
20. —— Limitations.
21. —— Pleading.
22. —— Variance.
23. —— Evidence.
24. —— Burden of proof.
25. —— Defense.
26. —— Estoppel.
27. —— Bankruptcy.
28. —— Set-off and counterclaim.
29. —— Judgment.
30. —— Costs.
31. Successive assessments.
32. Recovery of assessment paid.
33. Preferences.
34. Assignment for benefit of creditors.

1. Construction and operation.—The general rule of liability under this section is not qualified by section 9690. Parker v. Robinson (1895) 71 Fed. 256, 257, 18 C. C. A. 36.

The term "shareholder" is to be considered as used in its ordinary legal signification, and intended to describe a class of persons who occupy the status and relation of members toward the corporation, and of contributions toward creditors. In Vermont a married woman may become a stockholder and charge her separate property. Witters v. Sowles (C. C. 1889) 38 Fed. 700, 701.

A national bank's covenant of warranty held to be a "contract" and "engagement." McLean v. Moore (Tex. Civ. App. 1912) 145 S. W. 1074.

2. Persons liable as stockholders.—A stockholder held not entitled to enjoin the receiver from enforcing his individual liability as a stockholder, on the ground that increase of capital was void, and that a voluntary assessment relieved the stockholders of individual responsibility. Morrison v. Price (C. C. 1885) 23 Fed. 217, affirmed Delano v. Butler (1886) 7 Sup. Ct. 39, 118 U. S. 634, 30 L. Ed. 260.

A "shareholder" is one who has a proportionate interest in its assets, and is entitled to take part in its control and receive its dividends. Beal v. Essex Sav. Bank (1895) 15 C. C. A. 128, 67 Fed. 816, writ of error dismissed (1897) 18 Sup. Ct. 940, 42 L. Ed. 1210.

If it be conceded that the liability of a shareholder in a national bank to respond to an assessment in case of insolvency is statutory, and not contractual, such fact does not affect the question of the liability of another national bank, holding stock in the insolvent bank as an investment, without authority of law, for such an assessment, as congress cannot reasonably be presumed to have intended to subject the stockholders and creditors of the defendant bank to a liability, the power to assume which it had denied to the bank for their protection. First Nat. Bank v. Hawkins (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 739, 174 U. S. 364, 43 L. Ed. 1007, reversing judgment (1897) 75 Fed. 51, 24 C. C. A. 444.

The statute merely attaches conditions to the ownership of stock in national banks, and a purchaser accepts the conditions, and the acts are then completed, which give the obligation imposed on shareholders existence in a contractual form. Aldrich v. McClaine (1901) 106 Fed. 791, 45 C. C. A. 631.

Where one subscribes for part of an increased issue of national bank stock, but actually receives original stock instead, and holds it for several years, receiving dividends and paying assessments thereon, he will be liable, upon failure of the bank, to assessment on such stock by the comptroller of the currency. Rand v. Columbia Nat. Bank (C. C. 1898) 87 Fed. 520.

A religious society purchasing national bank shares with a bequest of money is an ordinary stockholder, liable to assessment for debts. Davis v. First Baptist Society (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 3,633.

3. —— Apparent owners and owners where transfer ineffective.—A stockholder in a national bank remains liable to creditors so long as the stock stands in his name on the books, although he may have sold it and delivered the certificate to the purchaser, unless he has done all that he can reasonably do to have the same transferred, by seeing that the certificate is delivered to the bank, with the proper power of attorney and data to enable the officers to make the transfer. McDonald v. Dewey (1905) 134 Fed. 528, 67 C. C. A. 408, decree reversed (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 731, 202 U. S. 510, 50 L. Ed. 1128, 6 Ann. Cas. 419.

When bank stock is sold, but not transferred on the books of the bank, and the bank afterwards fails, the executors of the person in whose name the stock stood on the books are liable for assessment, although said stock had been paid for by a purchaser buying at the request of the president of the bank, who gave him a cashier's check for that purpose, placing the money so furnished to the credit of said purchaser on the books of the bank as a temporary loan, the intention being ultimately to transfer said shares to a third party, as part of a larger proposed investment in stock, for which funds had been placed in the hands of the president of the bank. Price v. Whitney (C. C. 1886) 28 Fed. 297.

A person who is entered on the books of a national bank as the owner of stock, but who is admitted to hold the stock in trust for the true owner, is not liable as a stockholder for the debts of the bank, when the true owner has been adjudged so liable, although nothing is realized upon the judgment. Yardley v. Wilgus (C. C. 1893) 56 Fed. 965.

One buying stock in a national bank in the names of his minor children himself becomes liable to assessment as a shareholder, for minors are incapable of assenting to become stockholders, so as to bind themselves to the liabilities thereof. Foster v. Chase (C. C. 1896) 75 Fed. 797.

The father's liability on stock bought in name of minor child is not affected by the fact that after the assessment, but before suit was brought to recover it, the son became of age, and assented to holding the stock. Id.

A purchaser of stock in a national bank cannot, after the appointment of a receiver, have his purchase rescinded. Salter v. Williams (D. C. 1914) 219 Fed. 1017.

Defendant, who was the owner of stock in a national bank, which, under its by-laws, was transferable only on the books of the bank, sold the same, and, after executing a written assignment to the purchaser, and a power of attorney in blank to make the transfer, indorsed on her certificate of stock, delivered the certificate to the president of the bank, who promised to make the proper transfer on its books, but failed to do so, though the certificate was thereafter treated and used by the bank as the property of the purchaser. Held, that defendant was not liable as a stockholder. Cox v. Elmendorf (1896) 37 S. W. 387, 97 Tenn. 518.

4. —— Real and record owners.—One who permits himself to appear on the books of a national bank as a stockholder is liable to creditors as a shareholder whether he be the absolute owner or merely a pledgee, and if a registered owner, acting in bad faith, transfers his stock in a failing bank to an irresponsible person for the purpose of escaping liability, the transaction is void as to creditors. Anderson v. Philadelphia Warehouse Co. (1884) 4 Sup. Ct. 525, 527, 111 U. S. 479, 28 L. Ed. 478.

If one receives shares of the stock of a national banking association as collateral security to him for a debt due from the owner, with power of attorney authorizing him to transfer the shares on the books of the association, and, being unwilling to incur the responsibilities of a shareholder as prescribed by this section, causes the shares to be transferred on such books to another under an agreement that they are to be held as security for the debt due from the real owner to the creditor, such creditor, acting in good faith, and for the purpose only of securing payment of the debt without incurring the responsibilities of a shareholder, will not, although the real owner may, be treated as a shareholder, within the meaning of this section. Pauly v. State Loan & Trust Co. (1897) 17 Sup. Ct. 465, 470, 165 U. S. 606, 41 L. Ed. 844.

The real owner of the shares of the capital stock of a national banking association may, in every case, be treated as a shareholder within the meaning of this section. Pauly v. State Loan & Trust Co. (1897) 17 Sup. Ct. 465, 470, 165 U. S. 606, 41 L. Ed. 844; Houghton v. Hubbell (1899) 91 Fed. 453, 455, 33 C. C. A. 574.

Stockholders of record are liable under this section for unpaid installments, though in fact they may have parted with their stock, or held it for others. Rankin v. Fidelity Insurance, Trust & Safe Deposit Co. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 553, 555, 189 U. S. 242, 47 L. Ed. 792.

As a general rule, the question of liability for an assessment on the shares of an insolvent national bank depends upon who was the actual owner of the stock when the operations of the bank were suspended. Hulitt v. Ohio Valley Nat. Bank (1905) 137 Fed. 461, 69 C. C. A. 609, judgment affirmed (1907) Ohio Valley Nat. Bank v. Hulitt (1907) 27 Sup. Ct. 179, 204 U. S. 162, 51 L. Ed. 423.

The real owner of shares of stock in a national bank, which, by his procurement or permission, stand on the books of the bank in the name of an agent, and have never been in his own name, may be charged as a shareholder for an assessment made on the bank's insolvency, and the receiver may bring an action at law for the collection of such assessment directly against him, without regard to the liability of the agent. Houghton v. Hubbell (1899) 91 Fed. 453, 33 C. C. A. 574.

The owners of stock in a national bank are liable, and those who, though not record shareholders, hold themselves out, or allow themselves to be held out, as owners of stock, are also liable for the debts of the bank, whether they own stock or not. Case v. Small (C. C. 1881) 10 Fed. 722.

A person who appears upon the records of a national bank to be a stockholder at the time the bank becomes insolvent is subject to statutory personal liability of shareholder, although he has previously in good faith sold his stock. Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (C. C. 1886) 27 Fed. 591, decree reversed Richmond v. Irons, 7 Sup. Ct. 788, 121 U. S. 27, 30 L. Ed. 864.

In fixing liability for assessments against stock of an insolvent bank, the court should try to ascertain who is the actual owner, releasing the apparent owner if he has done nothing to deceive or mislead. Lucas v. Coe (C. C. 1898) 86 Fed. 972, 974.

Though a person may have been induced by fraudulent representations to purchase stock of a national bank, the contract is voidable only at his option; and, where he has not discovered the fraud nor made his election at the time the bank passes into the hands of a receiver, he is apparently a stockholder, and can only escape liability as such by affirmatively alleging and proving the fraud, acts of diligence which negative any charge of negligence, and that no debt was created nor credit given the bank after he became such stockholder. Wallace v. Hood (C. C. 1898) 89 Fed. 11, judgment affirmed Hood v. Wallace (1899) 97 Fed. 983, 38 C. C. A. 692.

Those may be treated as shareholders within this section who are the real owners of stock, or who hold themselves out or allow themselves to be held out as owners in such way and under such circumstances as on principles of fair dealing will estop them as against creditors from claiming that they were not, in fact, owners. Tourtelot v. Stolteben (C. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 362, 364.

5. —— Subscriber. — Subscribers to the capital stock of a national bank previously organized and carrying on business, who accepted certificates of stock representing a portion of the original capital stock, obtained by the bank in some manner from the former holders, are estopped, after the lapse of five years, during which they retained the stock, received two dividends, and paid one assessment thereon, to deny that they are stockholders, in a suit by the receiver to collect a further assessment, on the bank's insolvency, on the ground that they supposed they were purchasing a part of an issue of increased stock which the bank had voted to issue, but the issuance of which had not then been authorized by the comptroller. Rand v. Columbia Nat. Bank (1899) 94 Fed. 349, 36 C. C. A. 292.

A national bank received subscriptions to increase its capital stock, but before completing the proceeding, and before obtaining the approval of the comptroller, it became insolvent, and a receiver was appointed, who brought action to enforce the subscriptions. Held, that the receiver can assert no rights against the subscribers which the bank could not have asserted, and therefore, as no valid stock can issue to the subscribers, there can be no recovery. Winters v. Armstrong (C. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 508.

One who subscribes and pays for a specified number of shares of a "proposed increase" of the capital stock of a national bank, which increase is in fact never issued, and to whom the bank officials transfer, instead, old stock of the bank without his knowledge or consent, is not a "shareholder" within the meaning of this section. Stephens v. Follett (C. C. 1890) 43 Fed. 842.

6. —— Transferror. — Individual liability for the debts of a national bank cannot be escaped by a transfer of stock to a person pecuniarily irresponsible, by a purchaser who remains the actual owner. Davis v. Stevens (C. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 3,653; Man v. Cheeseman (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 9,-002a.

Where the holder of stock in a bank, possessed of information showing good ground to apprehend its failure, colludes with an irresponsible transferee, with the design of substituting the latter in his place, and thus leaving no one with ability to respond for the individual liability imposed by this section, and transfers his shares to him, the transaction will be decreed a fraud on the bank's creditors, and the transferrer held to the same liability as before the transfer. Bowden v. Johnson (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 246, 253, 107 U. S. 251, 27 L. Ed. 386.

Where, upon the failure of a national bank, a suit is brought by a receiver for an assessment upon a shareholder made by the comptroller of the currency to meet the debts of the bank, and it appears that, before the suspension of the bank, such shareholder had made a bona fide sale of his stock and surrendered his certificates, and delivered to its president a power of attorney sufficient to effect, and intended to effect, as that officer knew, a transfer of the stock on the books of the bank to the purchaser, the receiver cannot recover. Whitney v. Butler (1886) 7 Sup. Ct. 61, 118 U. S. 655, 30 L. Ed. 266.

A stockholder who sold stock several months before the bank's insolvency, but did not make the transfer on the bank's books until the date of the bank's failure, incurred the statutory liability. Richmond v. Irons (1887) 7 Sup. Ct. 788, 802, 121 U. S. 27, 30 L. Ed. 864.

If the real owner of the shares transfers them to another person, or causes them to be placed on the books of the association in the name of another person, with the intent simply to evade the responsibility imposed by this section, on shareholders, such owner may be treated, for the purposes of the section, as a shareholder, and liable as therein prescribed. Pauly v. State Loan & Trust Co. (1897) 17 Sup. Ct. 465, 470, 165 U. S. 606, 41 L. Ed. 844.

A stockholder in a national bank who knows of its existing or impending insolvency cannot escape liability for assessment by transferring the stock with intent to avoid such liability, though the transfer is absolute and to a solvent transferee, able to pay the assessments. Under such circumstances the intent with which the transfer is made is material. Stuart v. Hayden (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 274, 169 U. S. 1, 42 L. Ed. 639, affirming (1895) 72 Fed. 402, 18 C. C. A. 618.

The real owner cannot exonerate himself from responsibility under this section by making a colorable transfer of the stock, with the understanding that, at his request, it will be retransferred. Rankin v. Fidelity Insurance, Trust & Safe Deposit Co. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 553, 554, 189 U. S. 242, 47 L. Ed. 792.

One who, with knowledge of the insolvency of a national bank, transfers his stock to an irresponsible vendee with intent to evade his liability for the debts of the bank, can only be held responsible for the unsatisfied debts existing when the fraudulent transfer was made. McDonald v. Dewey (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 731, 202 U. S. 510, 50 L. Ed. 1128, 6 Ann. Cas. 419, reversing decree (1905) 134 Fed. 528, 67 C. C. A. 408.

A stockholder in a national bank cannot evade his liability for the debts of the bank, by a transfer of his shares of stock to a person financially irresponsible, provided he knew or should have known at the time that the bank was then insolvent. Id.

A colorable transfer of shares of stock in a national bank, made for the benefit of the registered owner, cannot relieve the latter from his liability as a shareholder for the debts of the bank. Id.

Evidence held to justify a finding that transfer of stock was made to escape individual liability as stockholder. Stuart v. Hayden (1895) 72 Fed. 402, 18 C. C. A. 618, decree affirmed (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 274, 169 U. S. 1, 42 L. Ed. 639.

S. subscribed for stock in a national bank, borrowing the money to pay for his shares from C., the cashier, to whom he indorsed and delivered the certificate as collateral. Shortly after, he sold the stock to C., who retained the certificate, but did not have the stock transferred on the books. C. collected the dividends for some years. The bank having become insolvent, and S. being sued for an assessment, held, that it might be inferred, as a fact, that the bank had notice of the transfer, from which a legal presumption would follow that it would do what it was called on to do, and that the jury should be permitted to draw such inference. Snyder v. Foster (1896) 73 Fed. 136, 19 C. C. A. 406.

To hold liable for an assessment one who has transferred his stock to an irresponsible person, the transferror need not have had actual knowledge of the insolvency of the bank at the time of the transfer, but it is sufficient if he had good ground to apprehend its failure, and made the transfer to relieve himself from liability. Cox v. Montague (1897) 78 Fed. 845, 24 C. C. A. 364.

Title of C. to stock in a bank held devested, so as to relieve him of liability for an assessment levied four years thereafter. Earle v. Coyle (1899) 97 Fed. 410, 38 C. C. A. 226, affirming judgment (C. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 99.

An owner of shares in a national bank, who sold the same in good faith, without knowledge or reason to believe that the bank was insolvent, and who did everything that was reasonably possible to have the proper formal transfer made on the books of the bank, cannot be treated as a shareholder, and held liable to an assessment made by the comptroller upon the subsequent closing of the bank as insolvent, upon evidence showing that the bank was in fact insolvent at the time the sale was made, and that the purchaser was also insolvent. The statute imposes no restriction upon the right to transfer shares because of the insolvency of the bank or the transferee, nor do considerations of public policy justify it where the seller has exercised due diligence, and has acted in the transaction with fairness and good faith. Earle v. Carson (1901) 107 Fed. 639, 46 C. C. A. 498, 60 L. R. A. 266, judgment affirmed (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 254, 188 U. S. 42, 47 L. Ed. 373.

To establish the liability of a stockholder in a national bank to creditors, on its failure, after he has made an actual out-and-out sale of his stock, and the same has been transferred on the books, although the sale may have been made for the purpose of avoiding liability, three things must concur: (1) The bank must have been insolvent when the sale was made; (2) the seller must have known such fact, or be chargeable with knowledge of it; and (3) the transfer must have been made to one who was insolvent or unable to respond to an assessment, and whose financial condition was known, or ought to have been known, to the seller. McDonald v. Dewey (1905) 134 Fed. 528, 67 C. C. A. 408, decree reversed (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 731, 202 U. S. 510, 50 L. Ed. 1128, 6 Ann. Cas. 419.

The transferror of national bank stock cannot be made liable for an assessment upon the stock on the ground that the bank was insolvent at the time of the transfer, unless he knew of such insolvency, and intended to evade his liability. Vandagrift v. Rich Hill Bank (1908) 163 Fed. 823, 90 C. C. A. 129.

That a stockholder in a national bank having a capital of $200,000, at the time he sold and transferred his stock, was a director and was dissatisfied with the management, will not charge him with knowledge of its insolvency, so as to render him liable for a subsequent assessment, though it was in fact insolvent, where its assets on their face largely exceed its liabilities, and it appeared that the directors were deceived as to their value. Fowler v. Crouse (1910) 175 Fed. 646, 99 C. C. A. 200.

The sale and transfer by defendant of stock in an insolvent national bank held not shown to have been with intent to avoid the double liability thereon, and therefore fraudulent, where he did not have knowledge of the insolvency, and his sale was made at the instance of a broker, who made him an offer for his stock, and apparently to persons who were responsible. Id.

A stockholder in a national bank divests himself of the double liability imposed by the statute for the protection of creditors by a transfer of his stock when the bank is solvent, or even if insolvent, by a bona fide transfer without knowledge of the insolvency; the only ground for holding him liable after a transfer being fraud. Id.

A transfer of national bank shares, with intent to relieve the transferror from liability to creditors, is void as against the creditors. Bowden v. Santos (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 1,716.

A shareholder in a national bank, who sold his shares through a broker to the president of the bank, executing blank transfers, without knowledge of the real purchaser or the insolvency of the bank, and received in payment the broker's check on the bank, which was paid out of the bank's funds, held not liable for the amount to the receiver of the bank. Johnson v. Laflin (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 7,393.

A shareholder, after having done all that a prudent and careful business man should do, will not be held liable under this section because of the neglect and carelessness of an officer of the bank to transfer his stock on the books of the bank. Hayes v. Shoemaker (C. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 319, 320.

In an action by the receiver to enforce an assessment against one credited on the transfer books as a stockholder, it appeared that nearly a year before the failure he had sold his stock to a broker for an undisclosed principal; that he indorsed the same, and requested the broker to inform the cashier of the transaction, and to have the stock transferred; that the broker accordingly handed the stock to the cashier, gave him the necessary information, and requested him to make the transfer. This the cashier promised to do, but in fact the transfer was never made. The certificate recited that it was transferable on the books of the company "by indorsement hereon and surrender of this certificate." Held, that in requesting the cashier to make the transfer the broker acted as the seller's agent, and that the latter did all that was required of him as a prudent business man, and could not be held liable as a stockholder. Young v. McKay (C. C. 1892) 50 Fed. 394, following Whitney v. Butler (1886) 7 Sup. Ct. 61, 118 U. S. 655, 30 Fed. 266, and distinguishing Richmond v. Irons (1887) 7 Sup. Ct. 788, 121 U. S. 27, 30 L. Ed. 864.

A transfer of stock, though without consideration and to an irresponsible person, cannot be set aside by the receiver if made in good faith without knowledge of the failing condition of the bank. Sykes v. Holloway (C. C. 1897) 81 Fed. 432.

A stockholder in a national bank, with knowledge that the bank is in a failing condition, cannot make a voluntary transfer of his stock to one financially irresponsible, and thereby escape liability for assessments. Baker v. Reeves (C. C. 1898) 85 Fed. 837.

A person who sold his stock held not bound to see that the transfer was actually made, and not liable for an assessment made by the comptroller on the stock that the bank became insolvent. Earle v. Coyle (C. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 99, judgment affirmed (1899) 97 Fed. 410, 38 C. C. A. 226.

Defendant prior to the failure of a national bank in which his son was a director, owned certain shares of the bank's stock, which he sold to his son, receiving in payment a demand note, secured by certain collateral. At the time of the sale the son promised that he would see that the shares were properly transferred but he failed to do so. Defendant made no attempt to see that the stock was transferred, and it stood in his name on the books of the bank at the time of its failure. Held, that the son was prima facie the father's agent to transfer the shares, and that in the absence of proof that the transfer was in good faith, and of a prompt attempt to have the stock transferred on the books of the bank, the father was liable to assessment thereon. Schofield v. Twining (C. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 486.

Where a father voluntarily declared a trust of certain shares in a national bank for the benefit of his children in good faith, and not for the purpose of evading liability, and did not hold himself out as the owner of the stock individually, he was not personally liable as a stockholder on the failure of the bank. Fowler v. Gowing (C. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 801, judgment affirmed (1908) 165 Fed. 891, 91 C. C. A. 569.

A transfer of stock in a national bank, while it was a going concern, to the stockholder's infant children, under five years of age, not legally liable to assume all the obligations of stockholders, did not relieve the father from his liability for assessments levied on the stock so transferred after the bank's insolvency. Aldrich v. Bingham (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 363.

7. —— Transferee.—A national bank having accepted and caused to be transferred to it, as collateral security for a loan, certain shares of stock in another national bank, made a colorable transfer of the same to one of its clerks. On the insolvency of the latter bank, the former was sued as a stockholder therein. Held, that such a loan was not prohibited by law, and that the defendant was liable. National Bank v. Case (1878) 99 U. S. 628, 25 L. Ed. 448.

One who is informed of a transfer of shares to her, and who receives dividends, or who in any way acquiesces in such transfer is liable as a shareholder. Keyser v. Hitz (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 290, 293, 133 U. S. 138, 33 L. Ed. 531.

A person who was elected a director, and on the same day appointed vice president and acting cashier, and who served as such for about two months, must be conclusively presumed to have had knowledge of the fact that 50 shares of stock were standing in his name on the books at the time of his election, and during the period of his service; and, the bank having become insolvent, he could not escape individual liability for an assessment of 100 per cent., as the owner thereof, by showing that in fact he had no knowledge that the shares stood in his name until some 20 days before the bank closed its doors, when he at once repudiated their ownership,—especially so as the shares were still allowed to stand in his name until the bank closed. Finn v. Brown (1891) 12 Sup. Ct. 136, 142 U. S. 56, 35 L. Ed. 936, affirming Brown v. Finn (C. C. 1888) 34 Fed. 124.

One who was notified that shares in a national bank had been transferred into his name, although he had in fact no interest therein, and who indorsed the certificates in blank, but took no steps to have the stock transferred to the name of the true owner, cannot avoid liability for an assessment thereon made by the comptroller to meet the debts of the bank after its insolvency. Kenyon v. Fowler (1910) 30 Sup. Ct. 409, 215 U. S. 593, 54 L. Ed. 341, affirming judgment (1907) 155 Fed. 107, 83 C. C. A. 567.

Stock of a bank was purchased by defendants, of the president thereof, at a time when there was no overissue, and when the amount purchased was credited to him on the books. At the time, or shortly afterwards, the stock, by his direction, was transferred from his account to theirs, on the stock journal and stock ledger and new certificates were issued to them. Thereafter they were treated by the bank as the lawful owners of the stock, and were allowed to vote the same and receive dividends thereon. The bank having failed, suit was brought to collect an assessment made against defendants as shareholders. Held, that they were estopped from claiming that they were not stockholders, although the president neglected to cancel the old certificates, and afterwards hypothecated part of them, thereby creating an overissue. Burt v. Bailey (1896) 73 Fed. 693, 19 C. C. A. 651.

One to whom shares of national bank stock are transferred as collateral security, but under a transfer made absolute in due form on its books, is liable to its creditors as a stockholder. Bowden v. Farmers' & Merchants' Bank (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 1,714; Moore v. Jones (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 9,769.

After a national bank has become insolvent and has closed its doors for business, its shareholders' liability to creditors is so far fixed that any transfer of their shares must be held fraudulent and inoperative as against the creditors of the bank. Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 308.

Where a shareholder of a national bank makes a bona fide sale of his stock, and goes with the purchaser to the bank, indorses the certificate, and delivers it to the cashier of the bank, with directions to make the transfer on the books, he has done all that is incumbent upon him to discharge his liability, and he is not liable, though the cashier failed to make the transfer, upon the subsequent suspension of the bank, for an assessment made by the comptroller of the currency to pay the bank's debts. Hayes v. Shoemaker (C. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 319.

A transfer held to have been made by transferror in contemplation of the liability, and that both he and his transferees were liable for the assessment, the latter because the liability was cast upon them by law when they became stockholders. Foster v. Lincoln (C. C. 1896) 74 Fed. 382.

A transfer of stock, though without consideration and to an irresponsible person, cannot be set aside by the receiver if made in good faith without knowledge of the failing condition of the bank. Sykes v. Holloway (C. C. 1897) 81 Fed. 432.

One who is induced by fraud to purchase stock of an insolvent national bank, and have it transferred to him on the books of the bank, and who, upon discovery of the fraud, takes prompt action to rescind the contract, is not liable to assessment on such stock, except on behalf of persons who extended credit to the bank, after the transfer, without knowledge of the fraud.

Stuffiebeam v. De Lashmutt (C. C. 1897) 83 Fed. 449.

The owner by assignment of stock in a national bank at the time of its failure is liable for assessments thereon, though his assignor, who transferred it knowing that the bank was in a failing condition, is also liable. Baker v. Reeves (C. C. 1898) 85 Fed. 837.

Defendant acquired stock of a national bank through his agents, in whose names the shares were registered on the books of the bank, and so appeared when the bank became insolvent. Defendant had all the time held the certificates, so indorsed that he might have had the shares registered in his own name. Held, that the receiver could recover from defendant an assessment on said stock, though he might have proceeded against those in whose names the shares appeared on the bank's stock register. Hubbell v. Houghton (C. C. 1898) 86 Fed. 547.

Where, on an issue as to whether defendant was liable as a stockholder of an insolvent national bank, it appears from an agreed statement as to what the bank books and reports show that, at the time the four shares in question purported to have been transferred to him by the president, the latter's stock was all pledged, it must be held that defendant acquired no stock, and never in reality became a legal shareholder, and hence is not subject to a shareholder's liabilities. Burt v. Richmond (D. C. 1901) 107 Fed. 387.

A transferee of stock in a bank after the bank had become insolvent is liable as a stockholder, though, by the bank's charter, the assignor of the stock is still liable thereon. Robison v. Beall (1858) 26 Ga. 17.

Where the legal title to stock is taken by a transferee, who receives it as security for a loan made by him to the bank, he becomes liable as a stockholder to the bank's creditors. Wheelock v. Kost (1875) 77 Ill. 296.

A person who has accepted a transfer of shares of bank stock, and to whom a certificate has been issued by the banking association, is subject to the liability imposed upon shareholders, although the transfer has never been recorded on the books of the association. Laing v. Burley (1882) 101 Ill. 591.

The transferee of stock or shares in a national bank at the time of the failure of the bank is, where the transfer appears to be absolute on the books of the bank, liable for the debts of the association to the extent of the shares held by him, notwithstanding he holds them by transfer or assignment as collateral security for a loan to the shareholder from whom he received the transfer. Hale v. Walker (1871) 31 Iowa, 344, 7 Am. Rep. 137.

8. —— Pledgor and pledgee.—It is only in clear cases that a pledgee, on the ground of estoppel, can be subjected to liability for an assessment, instead of the owner, upon whom the legal obligation rests. Frater v. Old Nat. Bank of Providence (1900) 101 Fed. 391, 42 C. C. A. 133; Williamson v. American Bank (1911) 185 Fed. 66, 107 C. C. A. 286; Baker v. Old Nat. Bank (C. C. 1898) 86 Fed. 1006; Hayes v. Fidelity Ins. Trust & Safe-Deposit Co. (C. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 160.

For the purposes of the national banking act, the pledgor of stock not transferred on the books is to be regarded as the owner until and unless something further transpires which operates to transfer the ownership to another. Hulitt v. Ohio Valley Nat. Bank (1905) 137 Fed. 461, 69 C. C. A. 609, judgment affirmed Ohio Valley Nat. Bank v. Hulitt (1907) 27 Sup. Ct. 179, 204 U. S. 162, 51 L. Ed. 423.

Defendant bank held stock of a national bank as collateral security for a note at the time the maker of the note died leaving it unpaid. Subsequently defendant caused the stock, which was indorsed in blank by the pledgor, to be transferred on the books of the bank to one of its employés who was irresponsible, and who paid no consideration for the transfer, but in fact held the stock for defendant. Defendant then made an indorsement on the note of a sum as proceeds of a sale of the stock made on the day of the transfer, and proved the balance due on the note against the estate of the pledgor, and was paid dividends thereon. Held, that such transaction operated to transfer the ownership of the stock from the pledgor's estate to defendant, which was liable for an assessment thereon on the subsequent failure of the issuing bank. Hulitt v. Ohio Valley Nat. Bank (1905) 137 Fed. 461, 69 C. C. A. 609, judgment affirmed Ohio Valley Nat. Bank v. Hulitt (1907) 27 Sup. Ct. 179, 204 U. S. 162, 51 L. Ed. 423.

A pledgee of national bank stock which he took as collateral security for a loan is not chargeable with the personal liability for the debts of the bank imposed on "shareholders," unless he has either become the owner of the shares in fact, or has held himself out to be the owner, and thereby estopped himself to deny his personal liability as such. Rankin v. Fidelity Ins., Trust & Safe Deposit Co. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 553, 189 U. S. 242, 47 L. Ed. 792, affirming judgment Higgins v. Fidelity Ins. Trust & Safe Deposit Co. (1901) 108 Fed. 475, 46 C. C. A. 509.

In the absence of evidence of actual fraud or bad faith, the mere pledgee of stock of a national bank is not liable to its creditors as a stockholder, in the event of its failure, where he is not registered as owner, although he has procured a transfer of the stock to an irresponsible person, with the avowed purpose of avoiding such liability. Anderson v. Philadelphia Warehouse Co. (1884) 4 Sup. Ct. 525, 111 U. S. 479, 28 L. Ed. 478, affirming judgment (C. C. 1880) 4 Fed. 130.

One who appears on the official list of the names and residences of the shareholders of a national bank only as "pledgee" of a given number of shares of the capital stock of such bank, nothing else appearing, is not a shareholder, and is not subject to the liability imposed upon shareholders. Pauly v. State Loan & Trust Co. (1897) 17 Sup. Ct. 465, 472, 165 U. S. 606, 41 L. Ed. 844, affirming (1893) 58 Fed. 666, 7 C. C. A. 422.

A bank which receives as collateral security for a note the stock of a national bank and on default proceeds to sell the stock and bid it in, is not liable as a stockholder in the national bank, where it never has a transfer of the shares made on the books of the national bank, and as between the pledgee bank and the debtor, who claims that the sale is invalid the stock continues to be held merely as collateral for his debt. Robinson v. Southern Nat. Bank, of New York (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 383, 180 U. S. 295, 45 L. Ed. 536.

Whether a pledgee of national bank stock is estopped to deny his personal liability as a shareholder by speaking of himself as holding or owning the stock, in letters to the officers of the bank, who understood perfectly the capacity in which such stock was retained, is a question for the jury. Rankin v. Fidelity Ins. Trust & Safe Deposit Co. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 553, 189 U. S. 242, 47 L. Ed. 792, affirming judgment Higgins v. Fidelity Ins., Trust & Safe Deposit Co. (1901) 108 Fed. 475, 46 C. C. A. 509.

Liability under this section may be established by allowing one's name to appear upon the books of the corporation as owner, though in fact he be only a pledgee. Id.

A corporation which holds national bank stock as security for a loan, and is carried on the registry of the bank as the holder of such stock "as pledgee," is not subject to the statutory liability of a stockholder. Pauly v. State Loan & Trust Co. (1893) 58 Fed. 666, 7 C. C. A. 422, affirming judgment (C. C. 1893) 56 Fed. 430, which is affirmed (1897) 17 Sup. Ct. 465, 165 U. S. 606, 41 L. Ed. 844.

A corporation which receives shares of national bank stock in pledge, with power to use and sell, and which, in good faith, without suspicion of the bank's insolvency, causes new certificates to be issued in the name of one of its employés, merely because it is unwilling they should stand in the name of the original owners, remains a mere pledgee, and is not liable, as a shareholder, to assessment on the stock. National Park Bank v. Harmon (1897) 79 Fed. 891, 25 C. C. A. 214.

A pledgee of stock of a national bank, who sells it in accordance with the terms of the pledge, and becomes the purchaser, but never has it transferred on the books of the bank, is not liable for an assessment. Robinson v. Southern Nat. Bank (1899) 94 Fed. 964, 36 C. C. A. 584.

A pledgee of stock of a national bank, with a power of attorney to have the shares transferred on the books, so long as he holds the shares as security, without intending to assume liability as a stockholder, cannot be treated as one, and subjected to an assessment on the insolvency of the bank, although he has caused the shares to be transferred to a third person under an agreement that they are still to be held as security for the debt. Wilson v. Merchants' Loan & Trust Co. of Chicago, Ill. (1900) 98 Fed. 688, 39 C. C. A. 231.

A pledgee of shares of stock in a national bank as collateral security for a debt due him from the owner, with power of attorney to transfer the same on the books of the bank, does not become a stockholder, and liable to an assessment as such on the failure of the bank, contrary to his intention, by causing the stock to be transferred into the name of an employé, who holds it for the benefit of all parties interested, nor by any other action which is required or is proper for the protection of both his own interests and those of the pledgor, and not inconsistent with his retention of the stock merely as pledgee, such as paying an assessment required by the comptroller to make good the impaired capital of the bank, and charging the amount to the pledgor. Higgins v. Fidelity Ins., Trust & Safe-Deposit Co. (1901) 108 Fed. 475, 46 C. C. A. 509, judgment affirmed (1903) Rankin v. Same (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 553, 189 U. S. 242, 47 L. Ed. 792.

A pledgee of shares of stock in a national bank, who does not appear, by the books of the bank or otherwise, to be the owner, is not liable for an assessment on the shares on the insolvency of the bank. Welles v. Larrabee (C. C. 1888) 36 Fed. 866, 2 L. R. A. 471.

Persons who hold stock in pledge, the certificates of which stand on the books of the bank in the name of the pledgee, are, in the contemplation of the national banking act, stockholders, and, so long as they thus hold the stock in pledge, are responsible to the creditors of the bank in proportion to the amount so held. Magruder v. Colston (1876) 44 Md. 349, 22 Am. Rep. 47.

9. —— Married women.—A married woman who owns stock in a national bank is not exempt, on account of her coverture, from the liability imposed by the national-currency acts upon all stockholders in such banks. Keyser v. Hitz (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 290, 133 U. S. 138, 33 L. Ed. 531; Anderson v. Line (C. C. 1880) 14 Fed. 405; In re First Nat. Bank (C. C. 1891) 49 Fed. 120.

The coverture of the legatee of shares of stock in a national bank when her name was placed upon the bank's books as a stockholder and when she received the certificate of stock does not protect her against a personal judgment at law for the amount due as a shareholder under an assessment made by the Comptroller of the Currency to pay the debts of the bank, although a married woman may be incapable, under the local law, of making or binding herself personally by contract, if such law does not incapacitate her from becoming an owner of such stock, by bequest or otherwise. Christopher v. Norvell (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 502, 201 U. S. 216, 50 L. Ed. 732, 5 Ann. Cas. 740, affirming judgment (1905) 134 Fed. 842, 67 C. C. A. 438.

This section applies to a married woman who is a shareholder, without regard to the manner in which the stock was acquired. Witters v. Sowles (C. C. 1887) 32 Fed. 767; Id. (C. C. 1888) 35 Fed. 640.

The liability of a shareholder is not one on "a promise to pay the debt or answer for the default or liability of another," within Rev. St. N. J. 1874, p. 469, § 5, relating to the liability of married women, so as to exempt a married woman from liability as a shareholder. Hobart v. Johnson (C. C. 1881) 8 Fed. 493.

The contracts of a bank are not contracts of the individual stockholders; and where an assessment was made upon the shareholders of a national bank to satisfy a contractual liability, a married woman who held stock in such bank could claim no immunity from the assessment on the ground that she had no legal capacity to contract. Witters v. Sowles (C. C. 1887) 32 Fed. 767.

Where one residing in Maryland subscribes for stock of a national bank of another state, and then transfers it to his wife, also a resident of Maryland, she becomes owner thereof, and is subject to stockholders' liability, without regard to the laws of the other state relative to contract by married women. Kerr v. Urie (1897) 37 Atl. 789, 86 Md. 72, 38 L. R. A. 119, 63 Am. St. Rep. 493.

10. —— Heirs and representatives.— See note under § 9690, post.

11. Nature and extent of liability.— The sum to be paid by stockholders being liquidated, and due and payable when the comptroller's order therefor is made, the amount bears interest from the date of the order. Casey v. Galli (1876) 94 U. S. 673, 677, 24 L. Ed. 168.

"In addition to the amount invested in the shares," the holders thereof, after the exhaustion of the assets of the association, are, to a sum not exceeding the par value of the shares, "individually responsible, equally and ratably, and not one for another," for its outstanding debts. The liability is several, and is not affected by the failure of any other shareholder to pay the amount assessed against him. U. S. v. Knox (1880) 102 U. S. 422, 26 L. Ed. 216.

As the liability of the stockholders of a national bank is for the contracts, debts, and engagements of the bank, and as these would draw interest as against the bank, it is not error to allow interest thereon, as against the stockholders, in enforcing the personal liability of the latter. Richmond v. Irons (1887) 7 Sup. Ct. 788, 121 U. S. 27, 30 L. Ed. 864, reversing decree Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (C. C. 1886) 27 Fed. 591.

The officers of a bank which has gone into liquidation, having no authority to bind the stockholders by the transaction of any business except that necessarily involved in the winding up of its affairs, an agreement by the president of such bank that its guaranty, made before liquidation, of certain notes, shall not be discharged by the release of the principal debtor, creates no liability on the part of the stockholders. Schrader v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 238, 241, 133 U. S. 67, 33 L. Ed. 564.

The liability of a shareholder to an assessment is not a contractual liability flowing from his acquisition of the shares, but a liability arising by force of the statute. First Nat. Bank v. Hawkins (1897) 79 Fed. 51, 24 C. C. A. 444.

The liability created by this section is for the benefit of creditors, and no action on the part of the bank can estop the creditors from enforcing their rights, and the liability is not dependent on the terms or existence of a contract of subscription to the capital stock of the bank. Scott v. Latimer (1898) 89 Fed. 843, 853, 33 C. C. A. 1, affirmed (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 585, 181 U. S. 202, 45 L. Ed. 822.

The stockholders are not guarantors or sureties one for another as to the amount which each may be required to pay, and the insolvency of one stockholder does not in any way affect the liability of another. Aldrich v. Campbell (1899) 97 Fed. 663, 38 C. C. A. 347.

A shareholder shall pay, in such amounts as the comptroller of currency shall demand, the debts of the bank; and hence a judgment in favor of the receiver of an insolvent national bank for the recovery of an assessment made by the comptroller on a shareholder does not preclude him from maintaining a second action against the same shareholder for another assessment which had not been made when the first action was commenced. Deweese v. Smith (1901) 106 Fed. 438, 45 C. C. A. 408, 66 L. R. A. 971, judgment affirmed Smith v. Brown (1902) 23 Sup. Ct. 845, 187 U. S. 637, 47 L. Ed. 344.

No portion of the liability of a stockholder of a national bank for the payment of its debts becomes due or enforceable before the comptroller decides that it is necessary to collect it and fixes the time for its payment. Id.

In the absence of this statute, no personal liability would have rested on the shareholders of national banks beyond the ordinary contractual liability for the payment of the par value of the shares subscribed for by them. Williamson v. American Bank (1902) 115 Fed. 793, 52 C. C. A. 1, affirming (C. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 36, 37.

Where a national bank assumed the debts of an insolvent bank contemplating liquidation, in consideration of a transfer of certain of the bank's available assets, and certain notes for the balance, such notes represented the "contracts, debts, and engagements" of the insolvent bank in equity, for which its stockholders were liable. George v. Wallace (1904) 135 Fed. 286, 68 C. C. A. 40, decree affirmed Wyman v. Same (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 495, 201 U. S. 230, 50 L. Ed. 738, and Frenzer v. Same (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 498, 201 U. S. 244, 50 L. Ed. 742, and Poppleton v. Same (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 498, 201 U. S. 245, 50 L. Ed. 743.

This section does not mean that the stockholder promises the creditor as surety for the debts of the corporation, but merely imposes a secondary liability for those debts which themselves remain distinct and to which he is not a party; his liability is collateral and statutory. McClaine v. Rankin (1905) 25 Sup. Ct. 410, 412, 197 U. S. 154, 49 L. Ed. 702, 3 Ann. Cas. 500.

The liability which shareholders in national banks incur is that of principals, not of sureties. Hobart v. Johnson (C. C. 1881) 8 Fed. 493.

The statute makes the stockholders of national banks equally and ratably liable and not one for another. Witters v. Sowles (C. C. 1885) 25 Fed. 168, 169.

The liability of the shareholders under this section attaches when the contracts, debts and engagements of the bank are entered into. Foster v. Lincoln (C. C. 1896) 74 Fed. 382, affirmed (1897) 79 Fed. 170, 24 C. C. A. 470.

The liability of shareholders attaches when the contracts are made, debts created, or engagements entered into by the bank, and it is an original liability. Witters v. Sowles (C. C. 1887) 32 Fed. 130, 137.

A person who becomes a stockholder in a national bank thereby submits himself to the provisions of the national bank act, and becomes liable to be assessed to the extent of his statutory liability for all debts of the bank existing while he holds his stock. Young v. Wempe (C. C. 1891) 46 Fed. 354.

No definite time within which the comptroller of the currency must levy an assessment on stockholders to enforce their liability is fixed, and there is nothing payable on the liability of a shareholder until the comptroller has ascertained a fixed sum to be collected on each share of stock. Aldrich v. Yates (C. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 78, 81.

Where a stockholder takes his stock, this statute in contemplation of law is regarded as written into his subscription and constitutes his undertaking, and, when proceeded against to enforce the liability, it is essentially a declaration on a contract. Deweese v. Smith (C. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 309.

The liability of a stockholder in a national bank, who has made full payment for his stock, to pay assessments for the benefit of the bank's creditors, is not contractual, but is a conditional liability imposed by law as an incident to ownership of the stock. Aldrich v. Skinner (C. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 375.

It was the intention of congress to make the excess of the cost of the stock of a national bank, up to the par value, an asset of the bank, to be resorted to in the event of insolvency, or a guaranty fund, in case the property of a bank is insufficient to pay its debts. Whoever becomes a stockholder assumes this liability as an element of his contract. Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (D. C. 1884) 21 Fed. 197.

The double liability of stockholders of national banks is the resultant of the contract by which they acquire the stock and of the statute. Rankin v. Miller (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 602.

The sole stockholders of a national bank in taking over its property exceeding in value the bank's liabilities on its voluntary liquidation held to assume responsibility for the bank's covenant of warranty. McLean v. Moore (Tex. Civ. App. 1912) 145 S. W. 1074.

Persons who assumed the liabilities of a national bank on its voluntary liquidation are liable on a breach of warranty occurring after the assumption of liability. Id.

12. Determination of comptroller.—The amount to be paid by the stockholders rests in the judgment and discretion of the comptroller, and his determination cannot be controverted by the stockholders in suits against them. Casey v. Galli (1876) 94 U. S. 673, 677, 24 L. Ed. 168.

The action of the comptroller of the currency in ordering an assessment against the stockholders of an insolvent national bank, whether a first assessment or one made subsequently, is a judicial determination of the necessity for such assessment, which is conclusive on the stockholders, and cannot be questioned by them in any litigation which may ensue, either at law or in equity. Aldrich v. Campbell (1899) 97 Fed. 663, 38 C. C. A. 347.

A levy by the Comptroller on the stock of an insolvent bank, was not vacated by a letter approving a sale of the bank's bonds, and stating that such sale would probably make an assessment unnecessary. Pepper v. Springfield Institution for Savings (1915) 218 Fed. 814, 134 C. C. A. 502.

The action of the comptroller of the currency in making an assessment against the stockholders of an insolvent national bank is conclusive as to the necessity for such assessment, and cannot be questioned collaterally. Aldrich v. Yates (C. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 78.

The ultimate liability of a shareholder is for the full amount of the par value of the stock, and a mistake of the comptroller of the currency in making an estimate of the amount of a needed assessment does not release the shareholder from full liability. Id.

The action of the comptroller of the currency in ordering an assessment upon the stockholders of an insolvent national bank involves a determination of the necessity for such assessment, which is quasi judicial, and is conclusive on the stockholders. De Weese v. Smith (C. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 309.

The ordering of the making and enforcement of an assessment on the stockholders of an insolvent national bank by the comptroller is a quasi judicial act, which exhausts the power and jurisdiction conferred upon him by the statute, and he is without authority to make a second assessment. Id.

The Comptroller of the Currency has power to appoint a receiver for an insolvent national bank, and to call for a ratable assessment upon stockholders, without a previous judicial ascertainment of the necessity for such action. Rankin v. Miller (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 602.

13. Enforcement of liability.—Enforcement of stockholder's liability by receiver, see, also, § 9821, post; enforcement in case of voluntary liquidation, see, also, § 9807, post.

A suit to recover a dividend wrongfully paid and received is not a suit based on the liability imposed by this section. Lawrence v. Greenup (1899) 97 Fed. 906, 38 C. C. A. 546.

The added liability imposed on stockholders by this section must be ascertained and enforced in the statutory mode. Williamson v. American Bank (1902) 115 Fed. 793, 52 C. C. A. 1, affirming (C. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 36, 37.

In a suit to enforce the liability created by this section, it is essential that the entire status of the affairs of the bank be investigated, and a reference had to determine what proportional part of the shareholders' liability will be necessary to be enforced against them equally and ratably to provide for the payment of the creditors. Id.

It is of the utmost importance that the liability of the stockholders should be rigorously enforced, but the court should not treat them with exceptional severity and apply to their transfers different rules from those which obtain in other business transactions. Hayes v. Shoemaker (C. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 319, 320.

14. —— Accrual of cause of action.—The right of a receiver of a national bank in liquidation to enforce the liability of shareholders does not accrue until such liability matures by the act of the court in determining the amount to be paid. King v. Pomeroy (1903) 121 Fed. 287, 58 C. C. A. 209.

A cause of action to recover an assessment from a stockholder of an insolvent national bank does not accrue until the receiver is authorized by law to bring suit therefor, which is not until the assessment has been ordered by the comptroller, and the time fixed for its payment, before it shall become delinquent, has expired. Aldrich v. Skinner (C. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 375.

15. —— Prerequisites to suit.—Action of the comptroller is an indispensable prerequisite to enforcing the liability of the shareholder under this section. Gerner v. Thompson (C. C. 1896) 74 Fed. 125, 131.

The original order of the comptroller of the currency levying an assessment on the shares of a national bank, over his official signature and seal, proves itself, and fixes the liability of the shareholders from its date, no demand being necessary. Brown v. Ellis (D. C. 1900) 103 Fed. 834.

Demand of, or notice to, stockholders of an insolvent national bank by the Comptroller of the Currency or receiver is not a prerequisite to the maintenance of a suit to enforce the stockholders' statutory liability. Rankin v. Miller (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 602.

16. —— Jurisdiction.—A case arising under the laws of the United States, of which a federal circuit court has jurisdiction, without reference to diversity of citizenship, is presented by a bill filed by the holder of a nonnegotiable note given by a national bank which afterwards went into voluntary liquidation to exact in behalf of himself and all other creditors of the bank the stockholder's liability imposed by this section, may be enforced by a bill in the nature of a creditors' bill whenever the bank has availed itself of the provisions of section 9806, post, for voluntary liquidation. Wyman v. Wallace (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 495, 496, 201 U. S. 230, 50 L. Ed. 738.

An action by a citizen of another state on an assigned nonnegotiable note of a national bank which had gone into voluntary liquidation to subject assets to the payment thereof, and to enforce the liability of stockholders, was properly brought in the federal Circuit Court, in so far as the enforcement of the stockholders' liability was concerned. George v. Wallace (1904) 135 Fed. 286, 68 C. C. A. 40, decree affirmed Wyman v. Wallace (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 495, 201 U. S. 230, 50 L. Ed. 738, and Frenzer v. Same (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 498, 201 U. S. 244, 50 L. Ed. 742, and Poppleton v. Same (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 498, 201 U. S. 245, 50 L. Ed. 743.

Under Act June 30, 1876, no new liability on the part of the stockholders was created; nor did such act provide for enforcing such liability against stockholders under circumstances not permitting its enforcement before the act was passed, but it may be construed as limiting the tribunal in which such proceedings are to be instituted to a United States court, instead of allowing creditors to resort to any competent tribunal with equity power. Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 308.

Where, in suit to enforce statutory liability of stockholder of national bank, a recovery is sought only of a fractional part of the total liability, the suit is within the equitable jurisdiction of the court. Rankin v. Miller (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 602.

17. —— Remedies.—Pendency of a suit to enforce the liability under this section is not a bar to suit by plaintiff on his claim against the bank. Central Nat. Bank v. Connecticut Mut. L. Ins. Co. (1881) 104 U. S. 54, 76, 26 L. Ed. 693.

This section and section 9831, post, exclude banking associations and receivers from none of the remedies for the collection of debts, claims, and dues of the bank or its creditors provided by the general rules and principles of law and equity, but they impose on shareholders and directors additional liabilities and subject them to proper remedies for their enforcement. Hayden v. Thompson (1895) 71 Fed. 60, 67, 17 C. C. A. 592.

Where a national bank goes into voluntary liquidation, the only authorized procedure for the enforcement of the individual liability of its stockholders is by a suit in equity in the nature of a creditors' suit brought on behalf of all creditors in a court for the district in which the bank is located, in which the necessity and extent of the ratable enforcement of the stockholders' liability shall be determined. Such suit should be against the bank and all its stockholders, and, in case ancillary proceedings should be necessary for the collection from nonresident stockholders of their ratable proportion of the amount necessary to pay creditors, such suits should be authorized by the court of original jurisdiction, and brought by a receiver or other person appointed by such court. Williamson v. American Bank (1902) 115 Fed. 793, 52 C. C. A. 1, affirming decree (C. C. 1901) 109 Fed. 36.

The remedy of a creditors' suit to enforce the liability of shareholders of national banks in voluntary liquidation is cumulative, and not exclusive. King v. Pomeroy (1903) 121 Fed. 287, 58 C. C. A. 209.

The provisions of the general banking law for winding up national banks under the direction of the comptroller of the currency are not exclusive of the remedy by creditors' suit, and the appointment of a receiver. Wright v. Merchants' Nat. Bank (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 18,084.

Liability of stockholders of national bank is several, and a suit at law is the proper remedy to enforce a specific assessment ordered by the comptroller. Bailey v. Sawyer (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 744.

A creditors' bill was filed against a national bank before the passage of Act June 13, 1876, § 3 (19 Stat. 63), and a receiver was appointed. An amended bill was filed after the passage of that act, to which all the stockholders were made parties. Subsequently the comptroller of the currency appointed a receiver to wind up the affairs of the bank, who brought this suit against one of the stockholders. On demurrer to a plea in abatement, it was held that, as the stockholder's liability can be completely enforced in the equity suit, he should not be vexed by two suits in the same jurisdiction for the same cause of action. Harvey v. Lord (C. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 236.

The act of June 30, 1876, did not create any new liability on the part of the stockholders, or provide for enforcing such liability against them under circumstances where it could not have been enforced before that act was passed. This act is not retroactive, and does not create rights which did not exist prior to its passage, as against existing stockholders, though it may be construed as limiting the tribunal in which proceedings are to be instituted for enforcing the stockholder's liability to a United States court, instead of allowing creditors to resort to any competent tribunal with equity power. Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 308.

The liability of a married woman to respond to an assessment against her as shareholder in an insolvent bank cannot be enforced by a bill in equity, as the remedy at law is adequate. Witters v. Sowles (C. C. 1887) 32 Fed. 767, 769.

The fact of an assessment by the comptroller upon the stockholders of a national bank does not conclude such stockholders as to the validity of the debts to pay which the assessment is made, and they are entitled to their day in court upon that question before being required to pay the assessment in an action against them by the receiver. Where the defendants in such an action assert the invalidity of a judgment against the bank which is the basis of the assessment, the appropriate procedure would seem to be for them to file a bill in equity to determine the validity of such judgment, and to enjoin the action against them, giving bond for the payment of the judgment therein in case the injunction should be dissolved after hearing. Moss v. Whitsel (C. C. 1901) 108 Fed. 579.

18. —— Receiver.—See note under § 9821, post.

19. —— Agent.—An agent chosen by stockholders to take charge of the business of a national bank in liquidation cannot, after all debts have been paid, enforce the individual liability of stockholders, as he has no greater powers than those conferred upon the receiver. Church v. Ayer (D. C. 1897) 80 Fed. 543; see, also, note under § 9827, post.

20. —— Limitations.—A demand which starts the running of the statute of limitations against the right of a receiver of a national bank to enforce the statutory liability of its shareholders is shown by the allegations of the bill filed by the receiver to enforce such liability, that on a specified date the Comptroller of the Currency made an assessment upon the shareholders of such bank, and "did thereby make demand upon each and every share of the capital stock of the said association," and directed the receiver to take proceedings by suit to enforce the individual liability of the shareholders. McDonald v. Thompson (1901) 22 Sup. Ct. 297, 299, 184 U. S. 71, 46 L. Ed. 437.

The objection that limitations does not bar the right of creditors of a national bank to enforce the individual liability of its shareholders so long as there are outstanding claims against the bank cannot be raised by the receiver in an action brought by him under this section to recover an assessment upon a stockholder in which a demurrer to the bill on the ground that it sets forth a ground of action barred by the limitations has been sustained. Id.

An action brought by a receiver of a national bank to enforce the individual liability of a shareholder is not an action upon a "contract or promise in writing," within the meaning of the Nebraska statute of limitations, but is governed by the provision of that statute requiring actions "upon a contract not in writing, express or implied," or "upon a liability created by statute," to be begun within four years. McDonald v. Thompson (1902) 22 Sup. Ct. 297, 184 U. S. 71, 46 L. Ed. 437, affirming judgment (1900) 100 Fed. 1002, 40 C. C. A. 685, and affirming decree (1900) 101 Fed. 183, 41 C. C. A. 290.

The personal liability of shareholders in a national bank for the contracts, debts, and engagements of the bank cannot be regarded as a contract liability, for the purpose of making applicable the limitation prescribed by Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. Wash. § 4800, subd. 3, for an "action upon a contract or liability, express or implied, which is not in writing, and does not arise out of any written instrument." McClaine v. Rankin (1905) 25 Sup. Ct. 410, 411, 197 U. S. 154, 49 L. Ed. 702, 3 Ann. Cas. 500, reversing judgment (1902) 119 Fed. 110, 56 C. C. A. 160.

The liability of a stockholder to respond to an assessment on his stock in case of insolvency of the bank is contractual, since an assent to the liability attached to the ownership of bank stock is implied by his voluntary act of acquiring it; and if he is a resident of Washington, and the bank is located there, a suit to enforce such liability is governed by Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. Wash. § 4800, subd. 3, which provides that an action on a contract or liability, express or implied, which is not in writing, and does not arise out of any written instrument may be commenced within three years after the cause of action shall have accrued. Aldrich v. McClaine (1901) 106 Fed. 791, 45 C. C. A. 631.

The statute of limitations does not commence to run against the enforcement of the entire liability or against the enforcement of any particular portion of the liability of the shareholder of a national bank to pay its debts until the time when the comptroller has declared the entire liability or the particular portion of it in issue to be due. Deweese v. Smith (1901) 106 Fed. 438, 45 C. C. A. 408, 66 L. R. A. 971, judgment affirmed Smith v. Brown (1902) 23 Sup. Ct. 845, 187 U. S. 637, 47 L. Ed. 344.

Limitations do not run against an action by a receiver to enforce the liability of a shareholder of a national bank while proper liquidation proceedings are pending in a court of equity. King v. Pomeroy (1903) 121 Fed. 287, 58 C. C. A. 209.

A bill filed by a creditor of a national bank, against stockholders of such bank, to enforce their individual liability, is for the benefit of all creditors of the bank, although it does not contain an averment of that fact; and filing such a bill stops the running of the statute of limitations upon all claims against the bank. Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (C. C. 1886) 27 Fed. 591, decree reversed Richmonds v. Irons (1887) 7 Sup. Ct. 788, 121 U. S. 27, 30 L. Ed. 864.

Actions by the receiver of a national bank against stockholders for assessments on the stock are subject to the state statutes of limitations. Butler v. Poole (C. C. 1890) 44 Fed. 586.

The statute runs against an action to enforce the liability of shareholders of national banks from the date the assessment by the comptroller becomes due. Thompson v. German Ins. Co. (C. C. 1896) 76 Fed. 892.

An action by a national bank receiver to enforce stockholders' liability may be barred by state statutes of limitation. Id.

On a bill by the receiver of an insolvent national bank to collect an assessment by the comptroller from a former stockholder, on the ground that to escape liability, he had transferred his shares, within six months of the bank's failure, to one having no means, it appeared that the transfer was made on the books of the bank, no concealment thereof being attempted, and that the receiver made no inquiry as to the nature of the transfer, and took no action against defendant until the assessment had become barred. Held, that equity would not relieve against the bar of the statute. Thompson v. German Ins. Co. (C. C. 1896) 77 Fed. 258.

A right of action by the receiver of an insolvent national bank against a stockholder to recover an assessment does not arise until the necessity for the assessment has been determined and the assessment made by the comptroller, if it in fact accrues before demand and refusal to pay; hence limitation runs against such an action only from that time. Aldrich v. Yates (C. C. 1899) 95 Fed. 78.

The liability of the stockholders of a national bank to an assessment on the bank's insolvency is so far conditioned upon the sufficiency of the general assets to pay its indebtedness that the receiver is only authorized to proceed against a stockholder after the comptroller has determined the necessity of the assessment, and the amount required; hence the statute of limitations does not commence to run against an action to enforce the stockholder's liability until such determination has been made. De Weese v. Smith (C. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 309.

No limit of time having been prescribed by the federal statutes within which an action must be brought to enforce an assessment against a stockholder in an insolvent national bank, such an action is governed, as to limitation, by the statute of the state where it is brought, by virtue of section 1538. Aldrich v. Skinner (C. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 375.

2 Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. Wash. § 4800, subd. 3, prescribing the limitation of three years for actions "upon a contract or liability, express or implied, which is not in writing, and does not arise out of any written instrument," is applicable only to actions upon contracts, or growing out of contracts, and does not include an action against a stockholder of an insolvent national bank to recover an assessment, which is governed by section 4805, fixing two years as the general limitation for all actions not otherwise provided for. Id.

Under the statute of limitations of Washington (2 Ballinger's Ann. Codes & St. §§ 4796–4805), an action against a stockholder of an insolvent national bank to recover an assessment must be brought within two years after such assessment has been made by the comptroller, and has become delinquent. Aldrich v. McClaine (C. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 378.

Limitations will not run against the right of action to enforce the statutory liability of stockholders of national banks until the cause of action has fully matured through the making of an assessment and the arrival of the day when it becomes payable. Rankin v. Miller (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 602.

21. —— Pleading.—The bill alleging that the married woman is possessed of property in her own right sufficient to pay the assessment, and praying for a decree of payment therefrom, and the bill of revivor filed after her death against her husband, praying for relief out of the assets received by him as her legatee, devisee, or executor, the case is one of equitable cognizance. Bundy v. Cocke (1888) 9 Sup. Ct. 242, 128 U. S. 185, 32 L. Ed. 396.

A judgment creditor of a national bank filed a creditors' bill to enforce payment of his judgment, and the court appointed a receiver. Pending the proceedings, congress, by Act June 30, 1876, amending the national banking law, provided that stockholders' individual liability could be enforced by any creditor by a bill in equity in the nature of a creditors' bill. Held, that complainant in the pending suit could, after passage of the act, amend his bill so as to make a case for the enforcement of the stockholders' individual liability. Harvey v. Lord (C. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 236.

An original bill by a judgment creditor of a national bank against the bank for the appointment of a receiver, filed before the passage of the act of June 30, 1876, is not made multifarious by an amendment, after such passage, asking for the relief afforded by the act. Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 308.

The bill contemplated by the second section of the act of June 30, 1876, to enforce the individual liability of stockholders in a national banking association that has gone into liquidation, need not purport expressly on its face to be filed by the complainant on behalf of himself and all other creditors, for the law would give it that effect, and the court would so treat it; but, if this was necessary, the bill might be amended in that respect by leave of the court. Id.

An allegation following, "that by virtue of the premises, and of the statutes in such case made and provided, the defendant became and is indebted to your petitioner in the sum of," etc., sufficiently shows that defendant had become indebted in the sum named, and also that such indebtedness still continued when the petition was filed, and is equivalent to an allegation of nonpayment. Welles v. Stout (C. C. 1889) 38 Fed. 67.

In an action by the receiver of a national bank against a shareholder to recover an assessment ordered by the comptroller, an allegation in the petition that on a day named "the comptroller of the currency, in order to pay the liabilities of" the bank, "made an assessment upon all the said shares of the capital stock of said" bank of 100 per cent. upon its par value, "and ordered the stockholders to pay the same on or before" a day named, is sufficient to show that the requisite action was had by the comptroller, not only as to determining upon the necessity of an assessment, but also as to the enforcement thereof by suit against the delinquent stockholders. Id.

In an action by the receiver of a national bank against its stockholders to collect an assessment made by the comptroller of the currency the complaint need only allege that the comptroller determined that the assessment was necessary and levied it, since such an assessment is conclusive as against the stockholders. Young v. Wempe (C. C. 1891) 46 Fed. 354.

In an action by the receiver of a national bank to enforce the individual liability of a stockholder, an allegation in the complaint that on a given date the comptroller, having ascertained and determined that the assets, property, and credits of the bank were insufficient to pay its debts and liabilities, and as provided by the act of congress, made an assessment and requisition on the shareholders of the said bank of a given sum upon each share held and owned by them, respectively, at the time of its default, and directed the receiver to take all necessary steps to enforce the liability, is sufficient. Nead v. Wall (C. C. 1895) 70 Fed. 806, distinguishing Kennedy v. Gibson (1869) 8 Wall. 498, 19 L. Ed. 476.

An answer seeking to rescind a subscription to stock of an insolvent national bank, on the ground that it was obtained by fraud, must show that the creditors for whose benefit the assessment sought to be enforced was levied did not become such during the time defendant held such stock, and allege facts showing that defendant has not been guilty of laches. Wallace v. Bacon (C. C. 1898) 86 Fed. 553.

22. —— Variance.—Where a complaint in an action against a national bank as a stockholder in another corporation alleged that it acquired such stock in a particular manner, evidence that it was acquired in a different manner held not a fatal variance. First Nat. Bank v. Montgomery County Nat. Bank (1902) 67 P. 458, 64 Kan. 134.

23. —— Evidence.—A letter addressed to the receiver of a national bank, and signed by the comptroller of the currency, directing the receiver to institute legal proceedings to enforce, against every stockholder of the bank owning stock at the time the bank suspended, his or her personal liability, as such stockholder, under the statute, is sufficient evidence that the comptroller decided, before the suit was brought, that it was necessary to enforce the personal liability of the stockholders. Bowden v. Johnson (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 246, 107 U. S. 251, 27 L. Ed. 386.

The presumption of liability for an assessment on shares of stock in an insolvent national bank, arising from the presence of a person's name on the stock register, is rebutted by evidence that a bona fide sale of the stock had been made, and that the vendor had performed every duty which the law imposed in order to secure the transfer on the registry of the bank. Earle v. Carson (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 254, 188 U. S. 42, 47 L. Ed. 373, affirming judgment (1901) 107 Fed. 639, 46 C. C. A. 498, 60 L. R. A. 266.

A letter from the comptroller of the currency is not sufficient evidence to establish the liability of a stockholder of a national bank to contribute the entire amount of his stock to meet its liabilities. Bowden v. Morris (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 1,715.

Where it is admitted by the defendants that they were shareholders in an insolvent national bank, but the number of shares respectively held by them is not admitted, the names of the shareholders and the number of shares held by each, as shown by the stock ledger and stubs of the stock certificates, and the dividend sheets of the bank on which they respectively drew the last dividends, will be prima facie proof of the number of shares held, and, unless rebutted, sufficient. Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 308.

If a stock register of a bank is to be taken as a criterion for determining who are stockholders, it must be taken as a whole, and all entries throwing light on the ownership of particular stock must be considered. Tourtelot v. Stolteben (C. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 362, 367.

In an action by the receiver of an insolvent bank against the executrix of a deceased shareholder to recover assessments on the stock, the certificate of the comptroller of the currency, issued to a national bank, approving a reduction of its capital stock, is in itself proof of such reduction. Brown v. Ellis (D. C. 1900) 103 Fed. 834.

24. —— Burden of proof.—One who relies upon a sale of shares of stock in a national bank, made with knowledge of its insolvency, to escape his liability as a shareholder for the debts of the bank, has the burden of proving that the vendee was financially responsible to the extent of the assessment. McDonald v. Dewey (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 731, 736, 202 U. S. 510, 50 L. Ed. 1128, 6 Ann. Cas. 419, reversing decree (1905) 134 Fed. 528, 67 C. C. A. 408.

In an action by receiver of consolidated bank to recover an assessment, in which he alleged that defendant had purchased and become the owner of the stock, on the theory that its having caused the substituted stock to be issued amounted to a conversion of the collateral, held that the burden rested on the plaintiff to prove that the exchange was made without the consent of the pledgor. Wilson v. Merchants' Loan & Trust Co. of Chicago, Ill. (1900) 98 Fed. 688, 39 C. C. A. 231.

In an action by the receiver of a national bank to recover an assessment from the defendant as a stockholder, where it is admitted or proved that defendant is in fact merely a pledgee of the stock, the burden rests upon the plaintiff to show that defendant, by reason of having knowingly permitted the stock to stand in his name as owner upon the books of the bank, is estopped to deny such ownership as against its creditors. Tourtelot v. Stolteben (C. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 362.

25. —— Defense.—In an action by the receiver of an insolvent national bank against a shareholder, to recover an assessment made by the comptroller of the currency, where defendant contended that she did not own stock; that transfers to her on the books were made without her knowledge; and that checks for dividends which were apparently indorsed by her were not signed with knowledge of their contents,—the question of fraud in procuring the transfers and indorsements is immaterial, and instructions based thereon are erroneous, since defendant is liable if she learned of the transfers after they were made, and received dividends, or in any way acquiesced therein, and if she signed the checks she is estopped from asserting that she was ignorant of their contents, or was not the owner of the stock on which the dividends were declared. Keyser v. Hitz (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 290, 133 U. S. 138, 33 L. Ed. 531.

If defendant indorsed the checks over to her husband, or indorsed them in blank, it is entirely immaterial that their proceeds went to the husband's account as consul general. Id.

Defendant cannot escape liability from the fact that no new certificates were issued to her, as the transfer on the books was sufficient as between her and the bank; nor can she escape from the fact that when the bank was converted from a savings bank into a national bank no new certificates were issued, as the statute authorizing the conversion expressly declares that the shares of the old bank may continue to be for the same amount each as they were before the conversion. Id.

The payment of an assessment imposed by a bank on its shareholders in order to continue business and avoid liquidation is not a discharge of a shareholder's liability in the case of liquidation, for the obligations of the bank to the extent of the amount of his stock at par value in addition to the amount invested in his shares. Delano v. Butler (1886) 7 Sup. Ct. 39, 118 U. S. 634, 30 L. Ed. 260; Mills v. Same (1886) 7 Sup. Ct. 47, 118 U. S. 655, 30 L. Ed. 266.

One elected a director and on the same day appointed vice president and acting cashier and serving as such for about two months is conclusively presumed to have had knowledge that 50 shares of stock were standing in his name on the books at the time of his election and during the period of his service, so that he could not escape individual liability for an assessment as the owner thereof upon the bank's insolvency, by showing that he had no knowledge that the shares stood in his name until some 20 days before the bank closed its doors, when he repudiated ownership, especially where the shares remained in his name until the bank closed. Finn v. Brown (1891) 12 Sup. Ct. 136, 139, 142 U. S. 56, 35 L. Ed. 936.

It is not competent for national banking associations to invest any portion of their capital permanently in the stock of another corporation, and they may set up such want of power against suits to enforce liability for assessments by the Comptroller of the Currency, and while they may not be exempt from liability as shareholders where they have accepted and held stock as collateral security, there is a presumption against any intention on the part of the bank to become an owner of the collateral shares. Robinson v. Southern Nat. Bank of New York (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 383, 389, 180 U. S. 295, 45 L. Ed. 536.

A holder of certificates of stock in a national banking association cannot escape liability as a stockholder to creditors on the ground that the shares of stock which he holds are part of an increase which was made without compliance with the statute which prohibits the increase of capital until the whole amount of such increase is paid in and the comptroller has certified to that fact, even if he has been induced to take such shares by fraud of the officers of the bank and of the comptroller. Scott v. Deweese (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 585, 181 U. S. 202, 45 L. Ed. 822, affirming judgment Same v. Latimer (1898) 89 Fed. 843, 33 C. C. A. 1, 14.

Fraudulent representations by which a person is induced to become a stockholder of a national bank constitute no defense in an action at law by a receiver of the bank to enforce the statutory liability of the stockholders, as the defense is of an equitable nature, and must be asserted, if at all, in equity. Lantry v. Wallace (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 878, 182 U. S. 536, 45 L. Ed. 1218, affirming judgment (1899) 97 Fed. 865, 38 C. C. A. 510.

The illegality of a purchase by a national bank of its own stock does not relieve one who subsequently buys it from the bank from liability as a stockholder. Id.

The liability of a stockholder in a national bank for assessments made by the comptroller on its insolvency is not dependent upon the contract of subscription between the stockholder and the corporation, but is created by statute for the benefit of the bank's creditors, and can neither be modified nor released by any act of the corporation. Scott v. Latimer (1898) 89 Fed. 843, 33 C. C. A. 1.

The liability of a stockholder of a national bank to assessment on the bank's insolvency is one created by statute, for the sole benefit of creditors; and one who becomes and remains a stockholder for a considerable length of time while the bank is engaged in business, and until it is declared insolvent, cannot avoid such liability on the ground that this subscription was induced by fraud which would entitle him to a rescission as between himself and the corporation, unless it is affirmatively shown that there are no creditors who became such while he was a registered stockholder. Lantry v. Wallace (1899) 97 Fed. 865, 38 C. C. A. 510.

It is incompatible with the policy and purposes of the national banking laws to permit mere irregularities or even fraudulent practices, in the organization or management of a bank created thereunder, to invalidate its action, and give ground for a stockholder to repudiate his obligations to the public. Bailey v. Tillinghast (1900) 99 Fed. 801, 40 C. C. A. 93, affirming decree Tillinghast v. Bailey (C. C. 1897) 86 Fed. 46.

Officers of a national bank may not hold themselves out to the Comptroller of the Currency, the bank examiners, and the business public as original subscribers for and holders of its capital stock, which they have never paid for, and yet escape liability on obligations given for such stock by a secret agreement among them that the stock shall be considered as belonging to the bank, and not to the one to whom it is issued. Lyons v. Westwater (1910) 181 Fed. 681, 104 C. C. A. 663, reversing judgment (C. C. 1909) 173 Fed. 111.

A national bank went into liquidation November 30, 1896. An action against a stockholder to enforce an assessment was commenced November 9, 1897. Defendant's answer set up in detail the fraud by which he had been induced to subscribe and pay for the stock, alleged that he had ever since been a resident of a distant state, and that, until a short time before the filing of the complaint, he had no opportunity of discovering the fraud. Held, that diligence was not shown. Wallace v. Bacon (C. C. 1898) 86 Fed. 553.

A stockholder, by purchase in a national bank which has conducted business as such for six years, cannot defend against an assessment, on its insolvency, on the ground that the original capital stock was never paid in. Wallace v. Hood (C. C. 1898) 89 Fed. 11, judgment affirmed Hood v. Wallace (1899) 97 Fed. 983, 38 C. C. A. 692.

When the comptroller of the currency has directed the receiver of an insolvent national bank to enforce the collection of an assessment against the stockholders for an amount less than the par value of their stock, and the receiver has recovered a judgment at law thereon against a stockholder, which has been satisfied, he cannot maintain a second action against such stockholder to recover a further assessment. The cause of action to recover an assessment is one upon the stockholder's contract, which cannot be split, and the first recovery is a bar to any subsequent action on the same contract. De Weese v. Smith (C. C. 1899) 97 Fed. 309.

Defendant, sued by the receiver of an insolvent national bank for an assessment as a stockholder, was induced to purchase the stock held by him at the time the bank was closed from the president of the bank by the fraudulent representations of the president and cashier. Such fraud had been established in a suit for rescission of the contract, brought by defendant in a state court, to which the receiver was a party. The bank was in fact insolvent when the purchase was made, and was closed by the comptroller within 36 days thereafter. The defendant lived several hundred miles from the place where the bank was located, and took no part in its affairs. Held, that an answer setting up such facts as a defense was not demurrable. Stufflebeam v. De Lashmutt (C. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 367.

In suit to enforce statutory liability of stockholders of national banks, held, that laches on the part of the Comptroller in collecting assessments was not a defense. Rankin v. Miller (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 602.

In suit to enforce statutory liability of stockholders of national banks, held, that it could not be shown that enforcement of assessment by the Comptroller would defeat the provision making stockholders liable equally and ratably, and not one for another; this being concluded by the Comptroller's order. Id.

A receiver of a national bank of Texas sued a domestic stockholder to recover a second assessment levied on his stock, in 1898, by the comptroller of the currency. Defendant had paid an assessment levied in 1894. Had the receiver collected all of such first assessment, and realized on the assets, all the debts as then existing might have been paid. It did not appear that he could not have done so. He had also sold a large amount of the assets for about 9 per cent. of their face value under an order of the federal courts. Held, that these facts constituted no defense. Beckham v. Hague (1902) 78 N. Y. Supp. 79, 38 Misc. Rep. 606.

Since the receiver of insolvent national bank has authority to institute suit on the individual liability of stockholders to collect assessments ordered by the comptroller of the currency, and a satisfaction of a judgment in such suit will release the stockholder from further liability, such a stockholder cannot defend on the ground that the receiver has assigned the claim pending the suit. Schaberg's Estate v. McDonald (1900) 83 N. W. 737, 60 Neb. 493.

It is no defense to a stockholder in an insolvent national bank, who is sued by the receiver on his individual liability upon an assessment ordered by the comptroller of the currency, to say that the receiver has unlawfully disposed of such claim, so that the creditors of the bank will not receive of the proceeds thereof as much as they are entitled to, since the disposition of the fruits of the litigation is not a matter in which the stockholder is concerned. Id.

26. —— Estoppel.—The fact that the subscriber for the new shares received a dividend on the old shares so transferred to him does not estop him from denying his liability as a shareholder, where such dividend was received in the belief that it was paid to him by virtue of his subscription to the new stock. Stephens v. Follett (C. C. 1890) 43 Fed. 842.

Where the capital of a national bank has been increased, and defendants have received their additional stock, and for several years held themselves out as stockholders, they cannot deny their liability upon the ground that the increase of capital was fraudulent, and that they could not have discovered the fraud with ordinary care. Latimer v. Bard (C. C. 1896) 76 Fed. 536.

In an action to recover an assessment on national bank stock carried on its books in the name of an individual described as cashier of a certain other bank, neither the latter bank nor the individual is estopped from setting up that they hold the stock merely as pledgees. Baker v. Old Nat. Bank (C. C. 1898) 86 Fed. 1006.

Where, in an action by the receiver of a national bank to recover an assessment from one in whose name a certificate of stock had been issued, but who it was shown held the same only as trustee to secure an unpaid indebtedness from the actual owner of the stock to a third person, the plaintiff did not produce in evidence the list of stockholders required to be kept by the bank, or show whether or not such list was in fact kept, but relied solely on the stock certificate book, all persons must be held to have been chargeable with notice of all the facts in regard to such stock therein shown; and, conceding that defendant's liability could be established by such book alone, without producing or accounting for the list of stockholders, it is insufficient to create an estoppel which would prevent him from showing the facts where it appears therefrom that the stock was transferred to him by one to whom the previous certificate had been issued as pledgee. Tourtelot v. Stolteben (C. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 362.

27. —— Bankruptcy.—Where the original bill was filed February 3, 1875, before the passage of the act of June 30, 1876, and a receiver was appointed February 26, 1875, thereunder, and an amended bill, making the individual stockholders defendants, was filed October 5, 1876, and after the filing of the amended bill certain defendants were adjudged bankrupts, their pleas of bankruptcy will constitute a sufficient bar in their behalf. Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 308.

A discharge in bankruptcy releases a shareholder of a national bank from his statutory individual liability to creditors of the bank, where at the time of his discharge the claims of such creditors were provable, not merely contingent. Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (C. C. 1886) 27 Fed. 591, 594, reversed (1887) 7 Sup. Ct. 788, 121 U. S. 27, 30 L. Ed. 864.

28. —— Set-off and counterclaim.—A holder of stock in a national bank is not entitled to offset against an assessment ordered by the comptroller upon his stock the amount of his deposits at the time the bank became insolvent. Wingate v. Orchard (1896) 75 Fed. 241, 21 C. C. A. 315.

In an action by the receiver of a national bank against a stockholder to recover an assessment, the defendant cannot set up, by way of counterclaim, a claim for damages against the bank for fraudulent representations made to induce his purchase of the stock. Lantry v. Wallace (1899) 97 Fed. 865, 38 C. C. A. 510.

In an action by a receiver of an insolvent bank to charge the estate of a shareholder with an assessment on his shares, the executor claimed, by way of set-off, that property belonging to the estate had been delivered to the bank, upon the understanding that it should be applied on the assessment if the bank should fail. Held not a proper subject of set-off, even though the bank examiner assented to the agreement. Witters v. Sowles (C. C. 1887) 32 Fed. 130.

In an action by the receiver of an insolvent national bank to recover of a stockholder an assessment on his shares, defendant alleged as a counterclaim that the comptroller of the currency had directed the bank to restore the value of certain securities held by it which had been reported worthless by an examiner; that certain of the stockholders, including defendant, had raised a fund, which was placed in the hands of trustees, to apply so much as might be from time to time required by the comptroller to retire such securities; that the fund was deposited with the bank with full notice of the purpose to which it was to be applied; that a portion had been used to retire the securities designated, and that when the bank failed, the balance of the fund came into the hands of the receiver, and was now claimed by him as a part of the ordinary assets of the bank; that a certain portion of this balance belonged to defendant, which amount he asked to set off against plaintiff's demand. Held, that a general demurrer, based on the ground that no set-off or counterclaim was available in such an action, would be overruled, as the claim could be set off if it was of such a nature that the holder would be entitled to receive the full amount before distribution by the receiver to general creditors. Welles v. Stout (C. C. 1899) 38 Fed. 807.

Defendant, for the purpose of helping a bank, of which complainant was a stockholder, in a financial crisis, loaned it certain securities belonging to complainant, and when complainant was informed of the fact she did not object. She was assured by the bank's officers that if the bank was saved the securities would be returned, and if it failed the avails would be credited on her assessment as a stockholder. The bank failed, and the securities were not returned. Held, that she was not entitled, as against other creditors, to set off the value of the securities against her assessment, but was, as to such value, on the same footing as any other creditor. Sowles v. Witters (C. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 403.

In an action by the receiver of a national bank to enforce an assessment against a stockholder, the latter cannot maintain a cross petition in the nature of a counterclaim to recover the purchase price of his stock on the ground of the alleged fraud of the bank inducing its purchase by defendant. The proper proceeding in such case is by an independent bill in equity against both the receiver and the bank for a rescission, making tender of the stock. Wallace v. Hood (C. C. 1898) 89 Fed. 11, judgment affirmed Hood v. Wallace (1899) 97 Fed. 983, 38 C. C. A. 692.

A stockholder of an insolvent national bank, who happens also to be one of its creditors, cannot cancel or diminish the assessment made against him by offsetting his individual claim against it. Hobart v. Gould (D. C. 1881) 8 Fed. 57.

A stockholder could not offset against his statutory double liability the amount of his unpaid deposit account. Williams v. Rose (D. C. 1914) 218 Fed. 898.

A stockholder in a national bank in the process of liquidation cannot set off his distributive share in the assets against his liability on his stock. First Nat. Bank v. Riggins (1899) 82 S. E. 801, 124 N. C. 534.

29. —— Judgment.—While, in an action in the United States Circuit Court by the receiver of a national bank, to recover the 100 per cent. for which a stockholder is liable, under this section, a judgment of the Supreme Court of the state, in an action by defendant against the bank to recover the money paid for the stock, that defendant was not bound by her subscription, is admissible in bar of the receiver's action, when the judgment of the state court is reversed by the United States Supreme Court, the judgment of the circuit court based thereon will also be reversed. Butler v. Eaton (1891) 11 Sup. Ct. 985, 986, 141 U. S. 240, 35 L. Ed. 713; Thayer v. Butler (1891) 11 Sup. Ct. 987, 141 U. S. 234, 35 L. Ed. 711.

30. —— Costs. — In proceedings against the stockholders of a national bank that has gone into liquidation, to ascertain and recover assessments for the indebtedness, the stockholders are liable for cost as if they were co-defendants in any ordinary action. Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (C. C. 1888) 36 Fed. 843, decree affirmed Schrader v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (1889) 10 Sup. Ct. 238, 133 U. S. 67, 33 L. Ed. 564.

Where proceedings are being prosecuted by one creditor, as representative of all, against the stockholders of a national bank which has gone into liquidation, and the stockholders appeal from a decree against them, which decree is reversed, with costs, the costs incurred by appellee in defense of the appeal will be deducted before any dividend will be declared. Id.

31. Successive assessments.—Where the comptroller of the currency assesses upon the stock of an insolvent bank a sum sufficient to discharge an indebtedness, but the receiver fails to collect a sum sufficient for that purpose, owing to the insolvency of some of the stockholders, the comptroller cannot order an additional assessment upon the stock in the hands of solvent stockholders. U. S. ex rel. Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Knox (1880) 102 U. S. 422, 424, 26 L. Ed. 216.

The comptroller has power to order successive assessments against the stockholders of an insolvent national bank, ratably on all, where the aggregate does not exceed the par value of the stock. Aldrich v. Campbell (1899) 97 Fed. 663, 38 C. C. A. 347.

The comptroller has power to order successive assessments, in the aggregate within the limit of the stockholders' full liability; and this power cannot be affected, and the purpose of the law defeated, by the fact that a receiver, in enforcing a first assessment, has sued at law rather than in equity, and has recovered a judgment which has

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

§ 9690. (R. S. § 5152.) Executors, trustees, etc., not personally liable.

Persons holding stock as executors, administrators, guardians, or trustees, shall not be personally subject to any liabilities as stockholders; but the estates and funds in their hands shall be liable in like manner and to the same extent as the testator, intestate, ward, or person interested in such trust-funds would be, if living and competent to act and hold the stock in his own name.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, § 63, 13 Stat. 118.

Notes of Decisions

Construction and operation. — See Whitney v. Butler (1886) 7 Sup. Ct. 61, 118 U. S. 655, 30 L. Ed. 266.

An executor is not personally liable for an assessment except as the assets of the estate in his hands may be charged for it, and where there are assets and they are taken for that purpose, the prospective share of testator's wife and residuary legatee will be lessened to the amount thereof. Witters v. Sowles (C. C. 1886) 28 Fed. 121.

This section was designed to protect persons who hold stock in a representative capacity from any personal liability, and only makes the funds in the hands or under the control of such representative liable. Irons v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank (D. C. 1884) 21 Fed. 197.

See note under § 9689, ante.

Personal liability—Executors and administrators.—Where an administrator, who is also sole heir and next of kin of his intestate, takes into his possession bank stock belonging to the intestate, votes such stock, and draws the dividends thereon, but does not have the stock transferred to his name, he does not thereby become personally liable as owner of the stock before his duties as administrator are ended. In re Bingham (1891) 27 N. E. 1055, 127 N. Y. 296, modifying (1890) 10 N. Y. Supp. 325, 57 Hun, 586.

—— Trustees. — One who purchases stock in a national bank with his own money on the suggestion of another person that the latter would buy such stock as the former "could get hold of," without being under any obligation to convey the stock to the other, is not a trustee within the meaning of this section. Horton v. Mercer (1888) 71 Fed. 153, 18 C. C. A. 18.

This section applies to every one holding stock as trustee, and a father who, as trustee for his children, invested funds belonging to them in such stock, is not personally liable for an assessment thereon, although the fund invested arose from an investment of his own money previously made by him in their behalf. Fowler v. Gowing (1908) 165 Fed. 891, 91 C. C. A. 569, affirming judgment (C. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 801.

When a trustee improperly invested funds in national bank stock, the beneficiary was liable as stockholder, if she accepted the investment or lost her right to reject it by laches or acquiescence. Williams v. Cobb (1914) 219 Fed. 663, 134 C. C. A. 217.

One to whom the shares are assigned in trust as security for a debt due a third person, and following whose name on the stock book of the bank is the word "trustee," is not liable for the assessment, and is also within the provision, exempting from such liability persons holding stock as trustees. Welles v. Larrabee (C. C. 1895) 36 Fed. 866, 2 L. R. A. 471.

Under this section, where new certificates of stock were issued to a defendant who knowingly permits his name to be entered on the stock books as the owner individually, he is liable for an assessment thereon, though he held the stock as trustee. Lewis v. Switz (C. C. 1896) 74 Fed. 381, 382.

A trustee, though not appointed by a will or an order of a court or judge, is not personally liable for assessments against stock of an insolvent national bank owned by this cestui que trust, but standing in his name, where he has been guilty of no fraud, concealment, or negligence. Lucas v. Coe (C. C. 1898) 86 Fed. 972.

Where stock in a national bank at the time of its failure was held by a trustee for the benefit of his children, the fact that the trust estate was wiped out of existence, so far as value or financial responsibility was concerned, by the failure of the bank, did not charge the trustee individually as a stockholder with the additional statutory liability imposed by this and the following sections. Fowler v. Gowing (C. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 801, judgment affirmed (1908) 165 Fed. 891, 91 C. C. A. 569.

One holding shares in a national bank as trustee is personally liable for debts of the bank, unless his trusteeship appears on the bank's books. Davis v. First Baptist Society (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 3,633.

A person appearing on the books of a national bank to be absolute owner of stock is subject to stockholders' liability, though holding it as trustee. Kerr v. Urie (1897) 37 A. 789, 86 Md. 72, 38 L. R. A. 119, 63 Am. St. Rep. 493.

As to liability of creator of trust, see Fowler v. Gowing (C. C. 1907) 152

Fed. 801, judgment affirmed (1908) 165 Fed. 891, 91 C. C. A. 569.

See, also, note under § 9689, ante.

Estates of decedents.—Where a receiver representing creditors has died, and his personal representatives have entered to defend, the assets of a bank in their hands are liable as he would have been. Foster v. Lincoln (C. C. 1896) 74 Fed. 382 (affirmed [1897] 79 Fed. 170, 24 C. C. A. 470).

The estate of a stockholder of a national bank, who died prior to its insolvency, but whose stock had not been transferred at the date of the comptroller's order making an assessment, is liable therefor. Davis v. Weed (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 3,658.

Liability of a stockholder of a national bank held to attach to his estate and become a charge or lien thereon at least from the declaration of insolvency, and not merely from the levying of the assessment by the Comptroller. Rankin v. Miller (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 602.

—— Executors and administrators.—The individual liability of the stockholders is an essential element of the contract by which stockholders become members of the corporation, and therefore the obligation survives as against the personal representatives of a deceased stockholder. Richmond v. Irons (1887) 7 Sup. Ct. 788, 796, 121 U. S. 27, 30 L. Ed. 864.

Neither executors nor legatees held liable as stockholders in national bank, though executors' transfer of stock to themselves, as trustees, was unauthorized, under the rules and practice of the courts of Wisconsin and Laws Wis. 1903, c. 317. Williams v. Cobb (1914) 219 Fed. 663, 134 C. C. A. 217.

The statute makes estates in the hands of executors liable in like manner and to the same extent as the testator would be if living. Witters v. Sowles (C. C. 1885) 25 Fed. 168, 169.

National bank stock, which has been transferred without consideration to a trustee by the executor of an unsettled estate, is liable, as in the hands of the executor, to an assessment on liquidation of the bank. Id.

National bank stock in the hands of an executor is liable to an assessment upon liquidation of the bank. Id.

An executor transferred national bank stock belonging to his testator to the residuary legatee under an order of distribution which did not specifically mention the stock. A receiver was afterwards appointed for the bank, who made an assessment on the executor for these shares. Held, that the stock was no longer the property of the estate for the purposes of assessment. Id.

This section makes no distinction between real and personal property in the hands of an executor, but all property is liable. Witters v. Sowles (C. C. 1887) 32 Fed. 130, 140.

The estate of a deceased owner of national bank stock is liable to an assessment levied against his executors in consequence of the failure of the bank after his death. Wickham v. Hull (C. C. 1894) 60 Fed. 326.

An executor who receives certificates of national bank stock as part of the assets of decedent's estate, and includes them in his inventory returned to the probate court, is a shareholder, and liable as such for an assessment, subject to the relief granted by this section. Parker v. Robinson (1895) 71 Fed. 256, 18 C. C. A. 36.

Under this section a claim against an estate in the hands of an executor for assessments on national bank stock is not affected by the state laws prescribing the time for presentation of claims. Zimmerman v. Carpenter (C. C. 1898) 84 Fed. 747.

Where national bank stock was transferred by an executrix to herself individually, and she admits, before suit and again in her answer, that the transfer was without consideration and void, such admission does not vacate the transfer, and a bill in equity will lie to determine the liability of the estate for an assessment on the stock. Id.

The widow of a deceased stockholder of an insolvent national bank, who by authority of the will undertook to settle the estate as executrix without judicial proceedings, but failed to transfer such stock to herself or other person, cannot, on the ground that the estate is fully settled, escape liability as executrix for assessments on such stock to the extent of assets of the estate under her control. Baker v. Beach (C. C. 1898) 85 Fed. 836.

A testator directed by his will that a daughter's share in his estate should remain in the hands of his executors, and be invested by them, and the income paid to the daughter during her life, and at her death the part of the estate so "held in reserve" by the executors should revert to the general estate. The executors set apart as a portion of the daughter's share certain shares of stock in a national bank held by the testator, and caused the same to be transferred on the books of the bank to themselves as "trustee." Held, that the legal title to such shares devolved upon them as executors, and they had no power to devest themselves of such title by any transfer, and that an action to recover an assessment on the stock was properly brought against them as executors, and especially where the assessment was not made until after the daughter's death. Earle v. Rogers (C. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 208.

Under this section an executrix is liable as such for assessments made by the comptroller on shares of stock in a national bank held by her, and issued to the estate of her testator in exchange for shares held by the testator in his lifetime, and surrendered by her on a reduction of the capital stock of the bank. Brown v. Ellis (D. C. 1900) 103 Fed. 834.

Receiver of insolvent national bank, before enforcing liability of estate of deceased stockholder, held not required to establish his claim before the register of wills, to make demand upon the executors, or present to them an affidavit as required by the state laws. Rankin v. Miller (D. C. 1913) 207 Fed. 602.

Executors of a stockholder of a national bank, which became insolvent before distribution of the estate, although not liable as stockholders for an assessment by the Comptroller, held liable for their wrongful act in distributing the estate, so as to deprive the bank's creditors of their charge or lien thereon. Id.

The estate of an administrator, who in that capacity held stock in a national bank, and never had it transferred to himself, though he was the sole heir of intestate, is not liable to an assessment on it. In re Faulkner's Estate (1890) 10 N. Y. Sup. 325, 57 Hun, 586, judgment modified (1891) 27 N. E. 1055, 127 N. Y. 296.

—— Beneficiaries and distributees.—The widow and heirs of a shareholder in a national bank, to whom the probate court allots the shares of stock in indivision, in proportion to their interests in the estate, but who let the stock stand in the name of the deceased, without any notice of their title to it, are liable to assessments on the stock in case the bank subsequently becomes insolvent. Matteson v. Dent (1900) 20 Sup. Ct. 419, 420, 176 U. S. 521, 44 L. Ed. 571, affirming judgment (1898) 75 N. W. 1041, 73 Minn. 170.

Enforcing the whole amount of an assessment on national bank stock, to the extent of the distributive share received, against one of the heirs or next of kin to whom the stock has been allotted by the probate court in indivision, in proportion to their interest in the estate, pursuant to Gen. St. Minn. 1894, § 5918 et seq., does not violate any rights under the federal statutes. Id.

On the representations of the executor that he had more than sufficient assets in his hands to satisfy all debts and legacies, he was decreed to pay defendant S. S. her legacy, but neglected to do so until after the failure of the national bank in which the testator was a stockholder, when he delivered property to her trustee in satisfaction of the legacy. Held, that the legatee and her trustee were chargeable with an assessment upon testator's stock to meet the liabilities of the bank accruing before actual delivery to the legatee. Witters v. Sowles (C. C. 1887) 32 Fed. 130.

In a suit brought by the receiver of a national bank, to charge the assets of the estate of a testator, in the hands of the executor and devisees and legatees, with an assessment on certain shares of the capital stock of the bank, the bill was framed so as to charge defendant M. with the assets in her hands as legatee, with the payment of the assessment on the testator's stock. Held, that she could not be charged in this action as owner of the stock. Id.

Assets which have been transferred to devisees or legatees cannot be subjected to liabilities of the bank accruing after the transfer. Id.

Where bank stock is bequeathed to one for life, with remainder over, an assessment made after the death of the testator is payable by the beneficiaries of the bequest, and testator's estate cannot be made liable therefor. Blackmore v. Woodward (1895) 71 Fed. 321, 18 C. C. A. 57.

The estate of a testator, and not that of a life beneficiary, held liable for assessments on bank stock. Earle v. Rogers (C. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 208, 209.

After the estate of a deceased stockholder of a national bank was administered upon, and the assets, including the bank stock, distributed, the bank became insolvent, and a receiver was appointed. The stock was never transferred on the books of the bank to the administrator or distributees. In an action by the receiver under Gen. St. Minn. c. 77, to recover of the distributees, to the extent of assets received by them, the amount of an assessment on stockholders, held that, as the claim was a contingent one, and did not become absolute until the bank had become insolvent, and this was after the time to file claims against the estate had expired, the action can be maintained. Dent v. Matteson (1897) 73 N. W. 416, 70 Minn. 519.

Trust estates.—Where the question of the liability of a trust estate for an assessment on shares of an insolvent national bank held by the trustee depends upon the power of the trustee, under the terms of the trust, to purchase such shares for the estate, such question cannot be determined in an action at law by the bank receiver against the stockholder, though it is alleged that he holds the stock as trustee. Hampton v. Foster (C. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 468.

Wards and their estates.—Rendition of a judgment in favor of the receiver of an insolvent national bank against a guardian for the amount of an assessment on shareholders to pay debts, on which execution was directed to issue against the estate of the wards, did not stop the running of the statute of limitations in favor of the wards, even if they were personally liable. Clark v. Ogilvie (1901) 63 S. W. 429, 23 Ky. Law Rep. 552, 111 Ky. 181.

Cited without definite application, Keyser v. Hitz (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 290, 295, 133 U. S. 138, 33 L. Ed. 531; Pauly v. State Loan & Trust Co. (1897) 17 Sup. Ct. 465, 466, 165 U. S. 606, 41 L. Ed. 844; First Nat. Bank v. Hawkins (1897) 79 Fed. 51, 53, 24 C. C. A. 444 (reversed [1899] 19 Sup. Ct. 739, 174 U. S. 364, 43 L. Ed. 1007); Witters v. Sowles (C. C. 1887) 32 Fed. 767, 768; Brown v. Ellis (C. C. 1898) 86 Fed. 357; Aldrich v. Bingham (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 363, 365.

§ 9691. (R. S. § 5153, as amended, Act March 3, 1901, c. 871, § 1, Act March 4, 1907, c. 2913, § 3, Act Dec. 23, 1913, c. 6, § 27, and Act Aug. 4, 1914, c. 225.) Duties and liabilities when designated as depositaries of public moneys.

All national banking associations, designated for that purpose by the Secretary of the Treasury, shall be depositaries of public money, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary; and they may also be employed as financial agents of the Government; and they shall perform all such reasonable duties, as depositaries of public money and financial agents of the Government, as may be required of them. The Secretary of the Treasury shall require the associations thus designated to give satisfactory security, by the deposit of United States bonds and otherwise, for the safe-keeping and prompt payment of the public money deposited with them, and for the faithful performance of their duties as financial agents of the Government: Provided, That the Secretary shall, on or before the first of January of each year, make a public statement of the securities required during that year for such deposits. And every association so designated as receiver or depositary of the public money shall take and receive at par all of the national currency bills, by whatever association issued, which have been paid into the Government for internal revenue, or for loans or stocks: Provided, That the Secretary of the Treasury shall distribute the deposits herein provided for, as far as practicable, equitably between the different States and sections.

Act June 3, 1864, c. 106, § 45, 13 Stat. 113. Act March 3, 1901, c. 871, § 1, 31 Stat. 1448. Act March 4, 1907, c. 2913, § 3, 34 Stat. 1290. Act Dec. 23, 1913, c. 6, § 27, 38 Stat. 274. Act Aug. 4, 1914, c. 225, 38 Stat. 682.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was as follows:

"All national banking associations, designated for that purpose by the Secretary of the Treasury, shall be depositaries of public money, except receipts from customs, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary, and such depositaries may also be employed as financial agents of the Government; and they shall perform all such reasonable duties as depositaries of public moneys and financial agents of the Government as may be required of them. The Secretary of the Treasury shall require the associations thus designated to give satisfactory security, by the deposit of United States bonds and otherwise, for the safe-keeping and prompt payment of the public money deposited with them, and for the faithful performance of their duties as financial agents of the Government. And every association so designated as receiver or depositary of the public money shall take and receive at par all of the national currency bills, by whatever association issued, which have been paid into the Government for internal revenue or for loans or stocks."

It was amended by Act March 3, 1901, c. 871, § 1, cited above, by inserting, in the first sentence thereof, after the words "as may be prescribed by the Secretary," the words "but receipts derived from duties on imports in Alaska, the Hawaiian Islands, and other islands under the jurisdiction of the United States may be deposited in such depositaries subject to such regulations."

It was further amended by Act March 4, 1907, c. 2913, § 3, to read as set forth here.

By a provision of the Federal Reserve Act of Dec. 23, 1913, c. 6, § 27, 38 Stat. 274, as amended by Act Aug. 4, 1914, c. 225, 38 Stat. 682, this section and sections 5172, 5191, and 5214 of the Revised Statutes, which were amended by Act May 30, 1908, were re-enacted to read as such sections stood prior to May 30, 1908, subject to such amendments or modifications as were prescribed in said Federal Reserve Act.

This section was not expressly amended by the Aldrich-Vreeland (National Currency Associations) Act of May 30, 1908, c. 229, which was obviously referred to in the provision mentioned above of the Federal Reserve Act of 1913. But said Aldrich-Vreeland Act of May 30, 1908, c. 229, § 15, post, § 9693, provided that all national banking associations designated as regular depositaries of public money should pay upon all special and additional deposits made by the Secretary of the Treasury in such depositaries, and, all such associations designated as temporary depositaries of public moneys should pay upon all sums of public money deposited in such associations, interest at such rate as the Secretary of the Treasury should prescribe, not less than one per centum per annum upon the average monthly amount of such deposits, etc. This provision operated as a modification of this section, by requiring the payment of interest on deposits of public moneys. Such requirement of payment of interest may be superseded by the provision, mentioned above, of the Federal Reserve Act of Dec. 23, 1913, c. 6, § 27 as amended; but, since such a construction may be questioned, said Act May 30, 1908, c. 229, § 15, is retained in this compilation, and is set forth, post, § 9693. See notes to said § 9693, post.

The provisions of R. S. § 5191, post, § 9746, relating to reserves of national banks, were made inapplicable to deposits of public moneys in designated depositaries, by the Aldrich-Vreeland Act of May 30, 1908, c. 229, § 14, post, § 9692. See notes to said § 9692, post.

Notes of Decisions

Public funds on deposit and matters related thereto.—Disbursing officers may legally make special deposits of their funds in non-specie-paying banks, if so directed by the President, where they will agree to receive the funds in that way. (1837) 3 Op. Atty. Gen. 233.

Any bank not restrained by its charter or other statutory enactments, nor by judicial process, from receiving special deposits, is competent to enter into a contract for the safe-keeping and return of a special deposit in such way and on such terms as may be agreed on. Id.

Under the order of the Treasury Department, approved by the President on the 5th October, 1833, disbursing officers may legally keep the public moneys intrusted to them on deposit in the banks heretofore selected by the Treasury, and which now have the public money. (1837) 3 Op. Atty. Gen. 233.

Where a disbursing agent of the United States had paid public money into a bank, the government will not undertake to settle incidental matters of controversy between him and the bank, but leaves all such questions to the courts of justice. (1854) 6 Op. Atty. Gen. 314.

An agent of the government cannot require it to receive the credit of a bank, or any other third party, in the place of that of himself and his sureties. Id.

A bank cannot lawfully take public funds which have been deposited with it, knowing them to be such, and divert them from a public debt to the payment of the private debt of the public agent, or to a debt contracted by him in violation of law and of his duty to the government. Id.

The Secretary of the Treasury has authority to deposit the moneys received by the sale of bonds under Act July 14, 1870, c. 256, and Act Jan. 14, 1875, c. 15, with public depositaries designated and selected by him, taking such security as the statute requires. (1877) 15 Op. Atty. Gen. 350.

Receipt of security.—The Secretary of the Treasury has authority to receive from national banking associations designated as depositaries of public money Treasury notes of the United States as security for the safe-keeping and prompt payment of the public money deposited with them and for the faithful performance of their duties as financial agents of the government. (1878) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 96.

Checks drawn on depository.—Under this section and Treasury Department Circular 49, § 6, and Circular 102, checks drawn by a federal disbursing agent on a government depositary payable to a fictitious payee with the knowledge of the drawer could not be regarded as valid checks payable to bearer; the bank being chargeable with notice of the limitations on the drawer's authority. U. S. v. National Bank of Commerce of Seattle, Wash. (1913) 205 Fed. 433, 123 C. C. A. 501.

Liability of bank.—A national bank received funds of a school district which it had no right to receive as an ordinary deposit, or to mingle with its own funds, and which it undertook to hold for the special purpose of paying certain bonds of the school district, and no other. It did in fact mingle the funds with its own, and became insolvent, none of the bonds having been presented for payment. It had on hand, at the time it suspended business, cash in excess of the amount of such deposit, which came into the hands of its receiver. Held, that such deposit constituted a trust fund, which was recoverable by the school district from the receiver; the presumption being that so much of the cash on hand as equaled the deposit was the money of the school district. Merchants' Nat. Bank v. School Dist. No. 8, of Meagher County, Mont. (1899) 94 Fed. 705, 36 C. C. A. 432.

The fact that certificates of deposit issued by a national bank to a state treasurer in his official capacity, for money of the state deposited, were surrendered by his successor in office, who had the amount credited in his general account as treasurer, cannot affect the liability of the bank to the state for the money actually deposited, and which was never repaid, nor does it justify its receiver in contesting the claim of the state or its treasurer therefor, where there is no defense to such claim on its merits. McDonald v. State of Nebraska (1900) 101 Fed. 171, 41 C. C. A. 278.

In action by United States against national depository for payments on checks drawn by government officer, who forged indorsements, the bank held not entitled to credit for moneys paid on legitimate claims in the absence of an accounting by the officer. National Bank of Commerce v. U. S. (1915) 224 Fed. 679, 140 C. C. A. 219.

A national bank, not designated as a depository of public moneys, which receives, under the permissive authority of law and the regulations of the post-office department, deposits of money made by postmasters in their official capacity, thereby assumes a fiduciary relation to the government, and becomes a bailee of the government, so as to become directly responsible to it for any moneys which it knowingly or negligently allows the postmaster to withdraw by private check, or otherwise appropriate to his own use; and where, after the removal of the postmaster, he deposits a sum to make good a shortage in his balance, the bank cannot apply it in discharge of a debt due it from him personally. U. S. v. National Bank of Asheville (C. C. 1896) 73 Fed. 379.

Liability of government.—This is a provision to attain security for the benefit of the party ultimately entitled to the money, and does not render the Government liable in case of the failure of the depository. Branch v. U. S. (1876) 12 Ct. Cl. 281.

Designating a national bank as a national depository of public moneys under General Banking Law (13 Stat. 113), § 45, does not change the character of its organization or convert its managers into public officers, or render the Government liable for its acts. Id.

When public money is deposited in a designated depository, it is not retained in kind as the special property of the government, but is mingled with other funds and becomes the property of the bank. Id.

The deposit in July, 1866, in a national bank by a clerk of a district court of the proceeds of cotton seized under the Confiscation Act was held not to be a payment of the money into the treasury binding the government to claimants for its return if the cotton was found not liable to confiscation. Branch v. U. S. (1879) 100 U. S. 673, 25 L. Ed. 759.

Cited without definite application, Bank of Bethel v. Pahquioque Bank (1871) 14 Wall. 383, 385, 20 L. Ed. 840.

§ 9692. (Act May 30, 1908, c. 229, § 14.) Provisions relating to reserves of national banks not to apply to deposits of public moneys in designated depositaries.

The provisions of section fifty-one hundred and ninety-one of the Revised Statutes, with reference to the reserves of national banking associations, shall not apply to deposits of public moneys by the United States in designated depositaries. (35 Stat. 552.)

This section and the section next following were part of the Aldrich-Vreeland (National Currency Associations) Act of 1908, cited above.

